MAY DEFIANT AFTER NEW LONDON ATTACK

Prime Minister Theresa May has told MPs: "We will never waver in the face of terrorism."

Paying tribute to the slain Pc Keith Palmer in the House on Thursday, she said: "He was every inch a hero and his actions will never be forgotten."

Delivering a Commons statement she said Wednesday's attacker was British born and known to police and MI5. The attack was related to "Islamist ideology".

Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn described the attack as "an appalling atrocity".

Five people died, including the attacker, with 40 more injured.

Mrs May said the victims included 12 Britons, three French children, two people from Romania, four from South Korea, one from Germany, one from Poland, one from Ireland, one from China, one from Italy, one from the US and two Greek people.

She told MPs: "Yesterday an act of terrorism tried to silence our democracy, but today we meet as normal, as generations have done before us and as future generations will continue to do, to deliver a simple message: We are not afraid and our resolve will never waver in the face of terrorism."

She said it was still believed that the attacker acted alone and there was "no reason to believe" further attacks on the public were planned.

"His identity is known to the police and MI5 and when operational considerations allow, he will be publicly identified," she said.

"What I can confirm is that the man was Britishborn and that some years ago he was once investigated by MI5 in relation to concerns about violent extremism.

"He was a peripheral figure. The case is historic. He was not part of the current intelligence picture. There was no prior intelligence of his intent or of the plot."

Describing it as an attack on free people all over the world, Mrs May thanked global allies including US President Donald Trump for their support.

"We meet here in the oldest of all parliaments because we know that democracy and the values it entails will always prevail," she said.

"Those values - free speech, liberty, human rights, and the rule of law - are embodied here in this place but they are shared by free people around the world.

"A terrorist came to the place where people of all nationalities and cultures gather to celebrate what it means to be free. And he took out his rage indiscriminately against innocent men, women and children.

"This was an attack on free people everywhere - and on behalf of the British people, I would like to thank our friends and allies around the world who have made it clear that they stand with us at this time."

American tourist among the victims of terror attack

An American man has been named as one of the victims of deadly Wednesday's attack in London, Kurt Cochran, 54 and from Utah, died in the attack and his wife Melissa was seriously hurt, their family has said.

They were celebrating wedding 25th а anniversary and also visiting Melissa's parents, who work on a Church of Jesus Christ Latter-day Saints of mission.

They were struck when the attacker drove a car over Westminster Bridge, near the Houses of Parliament.

So-called Islamic State has said it was behind the attack, which left five people dead, including the attacker. Eight people have so far been arrested.

President Donald Trump tweeted: "A great American, Kurt Cochran, was killed in the London terror attack. My prayers and condolences are with his family and friends."

In a statement released by the church, Clint Payne, Melissa's brother and Kurt's brother-inlaw, said the family was "heartbroken"

"Kurt was a good man and a loving husband to our sister and daughter, Melissa," continued the statement.

"They were in Europe to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary, and were scheduled to return to the United States on Thursday.

"Melissa also received serious injuries in the attack, and is being cared for in the hospital.

our "We express gratitude to the emergency and medical personnel who have cared for them and ask for your prayers on behalf of Melissa and our family.

"Kurt will be greatly missed, and we ask for privacy as our family mourns and as Melissa recovers from her injuries."

Mr Cochran owned a sound recording studio in Utah called the Onion Street Studio.

His LinkedIn page lists him as an engineer involved in tracking, mixing and editing, and highlights his voluntary involvement in a benefit concert called Until the Violence Stops.

In an interview with a local website in 2014, he says he grew up in Maryland and lived in Texas before moving to Salt Lake City in 1983.

He says he got his first guitar at seven but "didn't have much talent". natural He played in a band for a few years before deciding to build the studio.

A GoFundMe page administered by Mrs Cochran's brother to help cover her expenses, says the couple built the studio business from the ground up over the past decade.

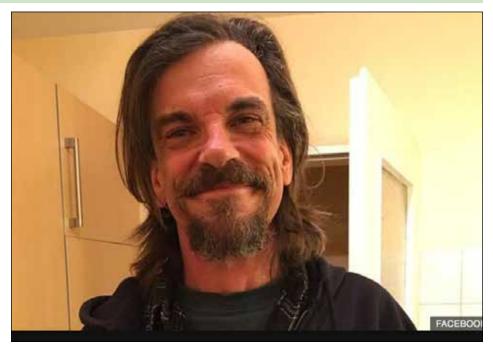

Melissa Cochran's sister, Sara Payne-Mcfarland, wrote on Facebook: "My sister, Melissa, has a broken leg, a broken rib, and a cut on her head.

"While we are glad she survived, our hearts are broken and will never be the same after losing our dear uncle, brotherin-law, father. Kurt, you are a HERO, and we will never forget you."

The other victims of the attack have been named as police officer Keith Palmer and Aysha Frade, who worked at a London college.

The attacker was British-born and known to the police and intelligence services. He has been named as Khalid Masood, 52.

Leaders of countries affected by recent terror attacks, including France and Germany voiced solidarity with the UK after the attack.

Police identify attacker

Police have identified Khalid Masood as the man who carried out the Westminster attack, as the death toll rose to five.

Kent-born Masood, who was shot dead by police, had not been the subject of any current police investigations, but had a range of previous convictions.

The 52-year-old was believed to have been living in the West Midlands.

PC Keith Palmer, 48, Aysha Frade and US tourist Kurt Cochran, 54, were killed on Wednesday, while a 75-year-old man died on Thursday evening.

The man had been receiving medical treatment in hospital but his life support was withdrawn.

The so-called Islamic State group has said it was behind the attack.

Three women and five men were arrested in London and Birmingham on suspicion of preparation of terrorist acts following Wednesday's attack.

A woman aged 39 was arrested in east London, a 21-year-old woman and a 23-yearold man were arrested in Birmingham and a 26-year-old woman and three men aged 28, 27 and 26 were arrested at another address in Birmingham.

A man aged 58 was arrested at a different address in Birmingham

The Met Police says detectives are continuing to search a number of addresses, including one in Carmarthenshire, three in Birmingham and one in east London. Addresses in Brighton and south-east London have also been searched.

'We will defeat them'

Home Secretary Amber Rudd told those gathered for a candlelit vigil in London's Trafalgar Square on Thursday evening that terrorists "will not win". "We are all connected and today we showed that by coming together, by going to work, by getting about our normal business, because the terrorists will not defeat us. We will defeat them," she said.

Masood drove into pedestrians on Westminster Bridge before crashing his car into railings and then running into the grounds of Parliament, armed with a knife. He stabbed PC Palmer before being shot dead. The Metropolitan Police said there had been no prior intelligence about Masood's intention to carry out an attack.

But he was known to the police and his previous convictions included causing grievous bodily harm, possession of offensive weapons and public order offences.

His first conviction was in November 1983 for criminal damage and his last in December 2003 for possession of a knife.

He had not been convicted of any terrorism offences.

Scotland Yard said Khalid Masood "is not at this early stage believed to be his birth name" and that research into his aliases was being carried out.

Car hire company Enterprise said the vehicle used in the attack had been rented from its Spring Hill depot in Birmingham.

Early reports said Masood hired the Hyundai SUV in person, giving his profession as a teacher.

The Department for Education said it had no record of him having worked as a qualified teacher in English state schools.

It appears that he styled himself as an English tutor at one point.

Tributes paid to slain PC

Tributes have been paid to Keith Palmer, the police officer killed in Wednesday's attack in Westminster.

His family have described the 48-year-old as a "wonderful dad and husband, a loving son, brother and uncle", and a chapel service was held in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Theresa May said the PC, who was married with a fiveyear-old daughter, "was every inch a hero".

The Metropolitan Police Force called him "a fantastic member of staff".

A minute's silence was held at 09:33 GMT in the Palace of Westminster and at New Scotland Yard. The Rev Rose Hudson-Wilkin led the prayer and vigil service at the House of Commons Chapel of St Mary Undercroft. Offering prayers "for Keith, our brother and all others affected", the Rev Hudson-Wilkin urged dozens of attendees "to show mercy in the face of the hatred shown in the Westminster terror attack."

'true hero'

A statement released by PC Palmer's family went on to say he was "a long-time supporter of Charlton Athletic. Dedicated to his job and proud to be a police officer, brave and courageous. A friend to everyone who knew him.

"He will be deeply missed. We love him so much. His friends and family are shocked and devastated by his loss."

Charlton Athletic responded to the news by putting a football scarf on PC Palmer's season ticket seat at the Valley stadium and said it would remain there until the next home game on 4 April.

There are also plans to commemorate his life at the game itself.

"Keith was a familiar face at The Valley to many supporters and sat in his same East Stand seat for many years," the club said.

"He was a true hero who will be greatly missed by all the Charlton family and everyone at the club would like to offer their sincere condolences to his family and friends at this extremely difficult time". PC Palmer joined Command in April last year after serving in the Territorial Support Group (TSG) based in Catford but working across London. He had previously been based in Bromley borough between 2002 and 2009.

Londoners honor the dead with candelight vigil

L O N D O N E R S have responded to Wednesday's terror attack with a candlelight vigil Thursday night at Trafalgar Square to mourn the dead and pledge their solidarity in the face of extremism.

The people gathered in the iconic location to stand together quietly, respectfully, flanked by police officers with the rumble of helicopters a constant presence above.

Reporters from around the world were there too, gently questioning some of those who came.

The word "solidarity" was heard over and over again.

Candles were laid on the ground and on the steps leading to the National Gallery, then lit in memory of those who died.

German-born Michaela Thomas, who has lived in Poplar for decades, came to take part in the vigil, but her husband did not feel safe enough to join her.

She said she was there because she did not want terrorism to stop her living her life.

Her view was echoed by many around the square.

Sister Petronia, a nun from Hackney, put on her London 2012 Gamesmaker jacket to attend.

"I feel everybody in London is the heart of London beating," she said.

"When something like this happens, those of us who live here feel the pain.

"People want to come together and express solidarity, and express their desire for peace."

At the front of the crowd, Donnelly Devereaux and her daughter Mary-Katherine Caestecker, both from Chicago, waited for the ceremony to begin.

"We're visiting the city and we wanted to come tonight to show our support, particularly as one of the people who died, Kurt Cochran, was from the US," Mrs Devereaux said. "It's so much more calm here than it would be at home. Everyone's so calm and collected on the tube, and here in the square tonight." As the bells of St Martinin-the-Fields chimed, the crowds fell silent.

Some filmed the scene on their phones, but the focus was on three candles on the steps leading up to the National Gallery, above which MPs, religious figures and others stood in a line to pay their respects. As Met Police Acting Commissioner Craig Mackey, Home Secretary Amber Rudd and London Mayor Sadiq Khan addressed the crowds, bursts of applause broke out and people around me cheered when Mr Khan told them: "Londoners will never be cowed by terrorism".

The minute's silence was impeccably observed - no chatter in the crowd, no phones going off, just people bowing their heads and closing their eyes to remember what happened about half a mile away.

As the ceremony ended people moved across the square to light candles, teacher Danny Lyne, from the East End of London, told a reporter: "What happened yesterday has been in my head ever since I found out. I remember what happened 12 years ago, on 7/7, and this has brought it all back.

"I think it's important to pay respect to those who lost their lives this time, and to give respect to the police - the Met Police in particular don't often get that."

Theresa May to offer his condolences and to praise the effective response of UK security services.

Mr Trump pledged the "full co-operation and support" of the US government in bringing those responsible for the attack to justice, the White House said in a statement.

Belgium's prime minister sent a message of support as his country marked the first anniversary of the suicide bomb attacks on the Brussels airport and underground system, which killed 32 people.

"Our condolences are with those who mourn and all who are affected in London," Charles Michel tweeted. "Belgium stands with UK in fight against terror."

European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker said in a statement that the people of Brussels and Belgium had "suffered a similar pain and felt the support of your sympathy and solidarity".

"At this emotional time, we at the European Commission can only send that sympathy back twofold."

Russian President Vladimir Putin also sent condolences by telegram to Mrs May, expressing support for the bereaved and wounded.

"The forces of terror are acting more and more deviously and cynically. It is clear that, in order to counteract the terrorist threat, all members of the global community must combine forces," he said.

In other reaction:

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said in a statement that it was an "attack on democracies around the world" and Canadians stood "united with the British people in the fight against terrorism" Australian Prime Minister Malcolm

Turnbull said it was an "attack on parliaments, freedom and democracy everywhere" and offered his support and solidarity to the British government

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said he and Mr Turnbull had discussed the attack as they met in Canberra. "Together, we send our condolences to the prime minister of the UK and together we condemn terrorism and we stand against all forms of terrorism."

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte said: "Horrible images from London. The very heart of the city has been struck. Our thoughts are with the British people."

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan emphasised that "Turkey feels and shares deeply in the United Kingdom's pain" and that it stood in "solidarity" with Britain "in the fight against terrorism". It came just hours after his latest salvo in a fiery row with European allies, especially Germany and the Netherlands, over Turkish referendum campaigning in their countries. Mr Erdogan had warned that Europeans would not be able to walk safely on the world's streets if "Europe continues this way".

Butnotallinternational reaction was so reserved, with some right-wing politicians suggesting that controls on immigration - or even all Muslims - was the way forward. It has subsequently emerged that the attacker was born in Britain.

The leader of Australia's One Nation party, Pauline Hanson, announced her own personal hashtag..

"It's #Pray4Muslimban. Put a ban on it, that's how you solve the problem, and then let's deal with the issues here," she said.

Clinton urges all parties to complete McGuinness's work

Sinn Fein leader laid to rest in emotional service in Derry

Bill Clinton has urged the leaders of Northern Ireland's political parties, gathered at a funeral mass for Martin McGuinness, to complete his work and restore the power-sharing government.

Some mourners outside wept and many broke into spontaneous applause during the former US president's oration at the end of the service inside St Columba's church in Derry as he recalled his and the former IRA chief of staff's role in the peace process.

Clinton, who had earlier lightly touched the coffin draped in the Irish tricolour said McGuinness had "risked the wrath of his comrades and the rejection of his enemies".

Imploring the parties and the people who elect them to the Northern Ireland assembly to reach another compromise, Clinton told mourners: "If you want to continue his legacy, go and finish the work he has started."

Referring to McGuinness' once unthinkable friendship with the late unionist leader, Rev Ian Paisley, Clinton said: "It was great he got a word in edgeways. I never could".

He lightened a sombre atmosphere inside the church and in the surrounding streets by referring to the deep bond between McGuinness and his close ally and Sinn Féin leader, Gerry Adams. Clinton joked that Adams was "married" to McGuinness for nearly as long as his widow Bernie, which provoked laughter both inside and outside St

Columba's. He also referred to the presence of Arlene Foster, the Democratic Unionist leader and first minister in the last power-sharing coalition that fell apart in acrimony this year.

Praising her for attending the service despite criticism from some families of IRA victims, and recalling that she too had almost been killed as a schoolgirl in an IRA bomb attack, Clinton said: "First minister, thank you for being here. I know your life has been marked in painful ways by the Troubles."

In a symbolic scene as mourners filed out shortly after Clinton's speech, Foster and the new leader of Sinn Féin in Northern Ireland, Michelle O'Neill, reached across the church pews to shake hands.

Clinton remains popular not only in Derry but across Ireland for his role in hosting talks and encouraging the leaders of Northern Ireland's parties to secure the 1998 Good Friday agreement. It took half an hour for him to get back into his car as he was mobbed outside the church by well-wishers wanting to shake his hand.

Before the funeral, Barack Obama had also issued a statement praising McGuinness as a "man who had the wisdom and courage to pursue reconciliation for his people".

Other political leaders in attendance included the current Irish president, Michael D Higgins, his predecessor, Mary McAleese, and the taoiseach, Enda Kenny.

McGuinness died surrounded by family in the early hours of Tuesday morning in Derry's Altnagelvin hospital. He was suffering from a rare genetic condition, amyloidosis, which affects vital organs including the heart.

During the requiem mass Father Michael Canny said in his homily that the presence of unionist leaders such as Foster and the outgoing Ulster Unionist chief, Mike Nesbitt, was the ultimate legacy for Martin McGuinness.

CLINTON: the former President remains hugely popular in Ireland for his pivotal work in bringing about the 1998 Good Friday agreement the memory of Martin McGuinness."

At the republican plot in Derry's City cemetery, Adams delivered his own oration in praise of his co-strategist who helped guide the republican movement away from armed struggle toward democratic politics and compromise with unionists.

Adams's speech stressed McGuinness's adherence to his revolutionary republican principles right to the end of his life, and his outreach to the unionist community.

In the traditional part of his oration, Adams said:

"Martin McGuinness was not a terrorist. Martin McGuinness was a freedom fighter ... Martin believed that the British government's involvement in Ireland, and the partition of our island, are the roots of our divisions. He was absolutely right about that. The British government has no right whatsoever to have any involvement in Ireland."

He also told mourners that by meeting the Queen and shaking hands with her, his friend had shown how "to reach out beyond your own base" and in particular to the unionist community.

Trump junior weighs in, gets flamed

President Donald Trump's son has come under fire for criticizing London's mayor shortly after Wednesday's attack.

Donald Trump Jr tweeted an article written last year, in which Sadiq Khan said terror vigilance had become "part and parcel" of life in a global city.

Mr Trump quoted the headline and tweeted: "You have to be kidding me?!"

He angered many

Britons who accused him of exploiting the tragedy and implying the quotes were made after the attack.

Dozens were hurt in Wednesday's attack, when an assailant drove a car through pedestrians on Westminster Bridge and then fatally knifed a police officer who tried to stop him entering the Houses of Parliament. He was then shot dead.

Two hours later, Mr Trump tweeted an article from the Independent newspaper in September 2016.

In the article, Mr Khan was speaking shortly before a meeting with New York Mayor Bill De Blasio, on the day after three bombs exploded in New York City and nearby towns, wounding 29 people.

The attacks had given him a sleepless night, he said, as he pondered the dangers faced by big Western cities like New York and London. "Part and parcel of living in a great global city is you have to be prepared for these sorts of things, you have to be vigilant, you have to support the police doing an incredibly hard job, you have to support the security services," he said.

On Wednesday, after the attack in Westminster, the mayor said that Londoners "will never be cowed by terrorism" and that the city stood together in the face of those seeking it harm.

NOT FALLING FAR FROM THE TREE: Trump and son

Mr Trump's tweet incensed many British people on Twitter, including MP Wes Streeting, who called him a "disgrace" for exploiting the tragedy.

Mr Khan, London's first Muslim mayor, has previously clashed with Mr Trump's father, in January denouncing the US president's travel ban as "shameful and cruel".

Teen nihilism erupts in L.A.

■ Los Angeles debut for acclaimed British play at the Odyssey Theatre

As seven teens at an English prep school tangle with the pressures of love, sex, bullying and college entrance exams, the confusion, disconnect and latent savagery simmering beneath the surface is revealed. They are intelligent, articulate and accomplished the cream of the crop turning sour.

At least that is the premise of Punk Rock, a highly acclaimed play from Simon Stephens having its Los Angeles Premiere Odyssey Theatre Ensemble this weekend.

Based on Stephens'

experiences as a teacher and inspired by the 1999 shooting, Columbine Punk Rock premiered London's Royal at Exchange in 2009, then transferred to the Lyric Hammersmith. The play opened off-Broadway in 2014 at the Lucille Lortel Theatre in an MCC Theater production that Ben Brantley of The New York Times called "tender, ferocious and frightening."

Set in the library of a modern Stockport grammar school, it tells the story of various angsty adolescents as they flirt, bully and their way pontificate through their A-level mocks. The play was hugely well received when it made its London debut in 2009. The result is a play that is "powerful and compelling" according to the Independent's Michael Coveney, and "evokes the which twilight world of the teenager with scary vividness."

Simon Stephens is an associate artist of the Lyric Hammersmith and the Royal Court Theatre in London. His many other plays include Disruption; Carmen Heisenberg; Birdland; Blindsided and Three Kingdoms. His version of A Doll's House for the Young Vic transferred to the West End and then New York. His new translation of The Threepenny Opera ran last fall at the National Theatre. His other plays for the NT include Port, Harper Regan and On the Shore of the Wide World, which received the Olivier Award for Best New Play. His stage adaptation of Mark Haddon's novel The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time received both the Olivier Award and the Tony Award for Best Play.

Punk Rock's cast of young newcomers features Jacob B. Gibson, Zachary Grant, Nick Marini, Raven Scott, Kenney Selvey, Story Slaughter and Miranda Wynne.

Performances of Punk Rock take place March 25 through May 14 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. Additional weeknight performances are scheduled on Wednesday, April 12; Thursday, April 27 and Wednesday, May 3, all at 8 p.m. Tickets are $34 on Saturdays and Sundays; $30 on Fridays; and $25 on Wednesdays and Thursdays, with discounted tickets available for students and members of SAG/ AFTRA/AEA.

The Odyssey Theatre is located at 2055 S. Sepulveda Blvd., West Los Angeles, 90025. For reservations and information, call (310) 477-2055 or go OdysseyTheatre. to Recommended com. for mature audiences: graphic language and violence.

Meet A Member: Steve Sidelnyk

Not all Brits in LA Members live in Los Angeles: in fact a fair number are scattered around the globe. This week's Meet a Member is Steve Sidelnyk who lives in Whitstable in Kent in the UK.

Seeing as you don't live in Los Angeles how did you end up joining Brits in LA? I lived in LA for 10 years till 2014 and it is my second home and the Brits In LA Community was an important part of my life there. I made so many great friends and always loved the social gatherings that Eileen and Craig organised.

What was your impression of LA? I think people forget that normal people actually live there and that there are many families and neighbourhoods as well as the Strip.....it Has to be the Farmer's Market at The Grove.....great food, beer and great friends....I miss it!!!!

Why would you recommend other overseas readers joining Brits in LA? Well it's a great way to meet other likeminded people and as I've said the help both on a social and practical level is there and most people are willing to share their insight and experience.

We hear you have been working on an exciting project. Care to tell us more about it?

Feeling the pain of dear old London

Maybe it's because I'm a Londoner that I feel extraordinarily saddened by the terror attack that occurred in Westminster this week.

It didn't seem to take precedence in the media here, and in the scheme of things I don't think it would be unfair to say that this was a fairly minor event.

But seeing the people on the streets of my home town running selflessly to tend to the injured, whilst I sit here 'safely' in Los Angeles felt very wrong. The images had me wishing I could be there to help in some way, even if it is was just to keep my chin up and carry on. My heart hurt when I read the story of PC Keith Palmer who sadly lost his life whilst 'just doing his job' of protecting our city. It must take immense courage to confront a knife-wielding maniac in the hope of protecting others from getting hurt. I dread to think how difficult it is for his colleagues who choose to continue to go to work, not knowing what the coming days will entail.

With all the nuttiness going on around the world I took extra comfort in having family visit. My sister Sally is here and we joined forces with Craig and his troop for dinner. We went to the infamous restaurant Pump in West Hollywood . It really is such a lovely setting, very similar decor to Sur on Robertson, which are both owned by fellow Brit Lisa Vanderpump. I had no idea that their fame had reached Britain until I caught Craig's cousin Barbara on a bit of a Vanderhunt.

If you haven't been yet, I highly recommend stopping by for a cheeky Pump-tini. They have a decent Happy Hour too Mon-Thurs 5-7pm and Fri-Sat. 4-6pm. Visit pumprestaurant.com for full details. I am lucky enough to have made lots of good friends in Los Angeles. Many of whom I feel are extended family, including my old Brits in LA Jim and Laura Tavaré. As many of you know Jim was involved in a near fatal accident a couple of weeks ago - I am delighted to say he is slowly on the mend but due to his extensive injuries he has had to cancel an upcoming comedy tour, so not only will he be saddled with huge medical bills but his income is going to be limited for quite some time - which brings me to the GoFundMe page his mate Jim Perry has set up. If you can even donate a $1 I know it will be very much imagine appreciated, if all 11,000 Brits in LA members did this the target could be reached tomorrow! Plus you will be in great company, as I noticed many of his fellow comedians including Dawn French and Lee Mack have already chipped in. Visit www.gofundme. com/JimTavare for details and if you can't spare anything perhaps just leave a message of support.

And finally...let me put in a plug for one of my favorite British TV shows of recent years ... People Just Do Nothing. The complete seasons 1-3 are now available on these shores at Amazon and I can't recommend it highly enough. Just what we need in these troubling time...and good old British belly laugh.

ARIES: This birthday time for you fiery folks is filled with challenges, some good, some not so....But you have an amazing gathering of planets, so if you are ready to move forward and make your mark now is the time. Happy Birthday!

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler in Pisces just might be helping as the month progresses, especially in romance and any kind of relationship. It's the time of year for you to set up any intentions. GEMINI: It's time to deal with what has been a hassle so far this year for yourself or others.

Uranus the trouble-maker is hanging out in the area of family or friends and your conscience will be nudging you until mid-April.

CANCER: A positive beginning next month and it's time to make peace or amends with anyone or anything that has caused you upset. Chances are you did not see the picture clearly at that time. This not the time for the crab to hide in its shell.

LEO: The good news is if you take control a thorny issue can be sorted before another week goes by. Any trip taken before mid-month will not achieve the expected and hoped-for outcome, but mid-to-late April is better.

VIRGO: If any area of life currently is not going as smoothly as you expect you can let go of worry about the outcome as all will be well in the end. But if you have been pondering buying a new large appliance – or even a new car – wait until late April when your financial situation will be healthier.

LIBRA: The main lesson of this month is that now is not the time to begin anything you will not have time to finish up. Mars will hold your feet to the fire all next month if you try to move before then. On the upside you are in a lucky time frame financially.

SCORPIO: You will be feeling more positive this week ahead and you may have already started to feel this for the past week. You are coming to terms with recent events and while it's true that nothing lasts forever Venus will bring you love while Mars brings financial gifts.

SAGITTARIUS: You may be feeling like a time alone or with that special someone will be good. While this is true do not make it a long time. The sun is in your cousin sign Aries and will be motivating you more these next few weeks. You should take advantage of this time. CAPRICORN: Changes are good for you and it's just around the corner so it's inevitable you will have to accept them. You are always the one to help others so be prepared to help yourself now. Be your own best friend and do not listen to negative self-talk.

AQUARIUS: It's best to not make firm plans this week as you will find yourself scrabbling when they change quickly. The good news is it's all to your benefit so take a deep breath and enjoy the ride. Your life is about to change in a good way...enjoy!

PISCES: You may have had some home-related problems such as stuff breaking down. This is due to Venus going backward in your life. She is bringing up stuff to remind you to stop procrastinating on something else of more importance. You will figure out what that is very soon!

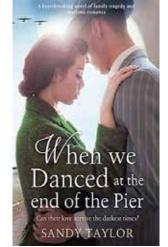

Romance, war and the pier: it's all here

Exclusive interview with author Sandy Taylor, discussing the Brighton Girls Trilogy

"I grew up in a close loving Irish family where there was a mental health problem," says When We Danced at the End of the Pier author Sandy Taylor.

"I think that I have always wanted to tell this story because those problems shaped my life, they gave me an understanding wav beyond mv years. To love someone so much and not truly understand why they were sometimes so unhappy and other times so normal was difficult for me as a child. When I was writing, it took me straight back to those times and I was able to recount it but with the wisdom of an adult."

When We Danced is set in 1930s Brighton. Maureen O'Connell is young carefree girl. The world is on the brink of war that will change her family forever. Maureen's friends are Jack and Nelson. Maureen and Jack fall in love, but war tears them apart. Nelson is off fighting too. Will Jack and Nelson come back? Will she find her happily ever after?

This book is the third book in the Brighton Girls Trilogy. "Having written the first two, The Girls from See Saw Lane and Counting Chimneys, my publishers asked me to do a prequel," says Taylor. 'It made sense to take the book back in time to the 1930s and through the war years, telling the story of Dottie's parents."

"My books are very character driven,' says Taylor. 'I could deal with my characters emotions, fear and loss because that is the way I write. I wanted my readers to feel as if they are there with them, in time and place. I wanted them to cry with them and to laugh with them but within a framework of authenticity. This background is reflected in my novels as they are full of dialogue."

Taylor had to do a lot more research for this book than for the previous two. "To start with, I was worried about writing about a period I knew nothing about. But, I found that the more I got into it, the more I learned. I am now an expert on the WW2 in Brighton. I knew that I had to get the facts right as far as the war went. I grew up in Brighton but didn't live through this time...unlike the world of the sixties that I had experienced."

Thank heavens for the Internet because this was where I got a lot of my background information," savs Taylor. "I was also loaned some amazing old books on the war in Brighton, which were invaluable, especially the photos of actual streets that were bombed. This made the whole thing very real. I also read personal accounts of people who had lived through these times. I read books about the evacuees, which helped with Gertie's ng story."

Taylor, who started as a playwright, has won seven awards for her plays and three for television. She's been a singer and a standup comedian. When We Danced has yet to be optioned for film or television. She's written musicals, pantomimes and has two published books of sketches and monologues.

"There is а wonderfully emotional quality to Sandy's writing which is so distinctive," says Claire Bord, Taylor's editor at Bookcouture. "I guess that's what struck me first. I felt like I really knew the characters, that they were my friends or family."

"I think that to write this story without having lived through it would have been difficult," says Taylor.

"But, for me it was very cathartic. This was a story that I needed to write."

Taylor is currently writing two more books for a two book deal. She lives in the West country but born in Brighton.

BRITISH WEEKLY SP Reds legend Moran dead at 83

Former Liverpool captain and coach Ronnie Moran has died at the age of 83. Moran made 379 appearances for Liverpool between 1952 and 1966 and was the club's longest-serving employee when he retired in 1998.

He joined the coaching staff in 1966 and twice filled in as caretaker manager - after Kenny Dalglish's resignation in 1991 and following Graeme Souness' heart surgery in 1992.

His son confirmed he had passed away on

K

Wednesday after a short illness.

Moran worked under nine different managers during his time in the dugout.

Crosby-born The defender won 44 trophies during nearly five decades with the club.

A left-back in his playing days, Moran signed for Liverpool as a schoolboy in 1949 before turning professional in 1952 and making his debut in November that year. He was club captain when Bill Shankly was appointed manager in December 1959.

Moran was a key part of the side that won the Football League First Division title in 1963-64 and made his final firstteam appearance in the 1964-65 European Cup semi-final against Inter Milan.

After being offered a role on the backroom staff by Bill Shankly in the pre-season of the 1966-67 season, Moran was involved as the Reds won 11 league titles and four European Cups.

Hogg again wins 6 Nations award

Scotland full-back Stuart Hogg has been voted Six Nations player of the championship for the second year running.

The 24-year-old Glasgow Warriors star received the backing of 29,734 fans, almost 25% of the public vote.

He scored three tries in the tournament as Scotland picked up three wins for the first time since 2006.

Ireland flanker CJ Stander came second, with France number eight Louis Picamoles third.

Scotland fly-half Finn Russell was fifth in the voting, just ahead of Ireland scrum-half Conor Murray.

Jones shrugs off end to England's winning run

Eddie said Jones England will "have more setbacks" after his side's hopes of a second straight Grand Slam and a world-record 19th Test win were ended by Ireland on Saturday.

Jones' side had already retained the Six Nations title before their campaign ended with a 13-9 defeat in Dublin

The Australian said England are "14 months into a four-year project".

"It would have been great to be Grand Slam champions and world record holders but it wasn't our day," he added.

The defeat means England's winning run ends on 18 Tests, level with New Zealand, who saw their series of victories also ended by the Irish, in Chicago in November.

"To win the World Cup you've got to win seven in a row, you've got to cope with that pressure," added Jones.

"How many teams average a 90% win rate? Not many, only the All

Iones said the hosts used the conditions "superbly", adding: "Full credit to Ireland, they were brilliantly coached and executed their plan well."

But he said England did not play to their potential and that he would take full responsibility for the defeat.

"We knew it was going to be a tough, physical game, we just weren't good enough today. I didn't prepare the team well," he said.

"We're all human beings, we're not perfect, and that's why world records finish at 18 games because it's hard to keep [winning].

"The next Test we play I'll prepare them better. I'm human like everyone else, I make mistakes. Even [legendary Australia batsman] Don Bradman got a zero in his last Test."

England captain Dylan Hartley said his team had "big lessons to learn" from the defeat.

"We set out to win the tournament and we've done that. Obviously disappointed we're not to win this final game because we had high hopes, we had high expectations of ourselves," added the hooker.

"Credit to Ireland. We seemed to back up every error with another error. We are not the finished article. This will keep us grounded."

The British and Irish Lions will travel to New Zealand in June looking for a first Test series win there since 1971.

Podolski ends Southgate run

But plenty of good signs as England fall in friendly

Gareth Southgate suffered his first defeat in charge of England as Lukas Podolski's spectacular second-half winner provided a fitting farewell to his Germany career in Dortmund on Wednesday night.

Southgate had been undefeated in four games as interim manager following Sam Allardyce's abrupt departure from the England post after one match - and he will feel this 1-0 loss in his first match in permanent control was harsh on his side after a creditable performance against the World Cup holders.

Adam Lallana struck a post and Dele Alli saw a shot blocked at pointblank range by Germany keeper Marc-Andre ter Stegen in the first half as England were superior for spells.

It was almost inevitable, however, that former Arsenal striker Podolski, given a hero's reception before, during and after the game, made the decisive contribution with a rising left-foot drive from outside the area after 69 minutes that gave England keeper Joe Hart no chance.

Germany's reshaped side had the same experimental appearance as England's but there was still plenty to satisfy manager Southgate in a losing cause.

The result will hurt because for a large portion of this game England were the more creative, threatening and energetic side.

Southgate, though, will reflect on a threeman defensive system that worked effectively - although it was not put to the test too often by a Germany team who rarely went through the gears.

Burnley's Michael Keane made an assured debut, almost scoring in the opening minutes, and while the attacking system occasionally left Jamie Vardy isolated it did allow Alli and Lallana to flourish and advance into dangerous positions.

England looked effective in possession and nothing that happened here will damage the confidence Southgate is looking to rebuild and put in place after his appointment as permanent successor to Allardyce.

It was a qualified satisfaction because this was nowhere near a fullstrength or full throttle Germany.

But Southgate will still have plenty of plus points to take forward into Sunday's World Cup qualifier against Lithuania at Wembley.

This friendly international carried the air of a testimonial for long periods - and in many ways it was as Germany striker Podolski bade farewell to the

...but a few fans spoil the show

THE behaviour of a section of England fans in Germany was "inappropriate, disrespectful and disappointing", says FA chairman Greg Clarke.

England lost 1-0 to Germany in Dortmund on Wednesday night, but a section of England supporters booed the German national anthem and sung chants referencing World War Two.

It is understood that the FA is trying to gather footage of the behaviour.

If found to be involved, supporters could be banned from attending games. "The FA has consistently urged supporters to show respect and not to chant songs that could be regarded as insulting to others," said Clarke.

"Individuals who engage in such behaviour do not represent the overwhelming majority of England fans nor the values and identity we should aspire to as a football nation.

"We are working with the England Supporters Travel Club and speaking with the Football Supporters' Federation to come together to address this issue.

The FA part-fund the Football Supporters' Federation (FSF). This includes funding for an annual supporters' summit to discuss fan issues.

An FSF spokesperson said: "Over the last 20 years, English football fans have built a worldwide reputation for our passionate support and the vocal backing we give to our teams.

"Unfortunately little of the wit and imagination that goes into our club football songs is reflected at England games.

"We don't want to regress to a situation where that reputation is tarnished by the actions of a minority."

GOING OUT WITH A BANG: Podolski is retiring from international football international stage.

The 31-year-old striker was ending his career after 130 caps, 49 goals and a World Cup win in 2014, a goodbye said in some style even apart from his spectacular final goal.

Podolski was given a presentation and delivered a speech that delayed the kick-off by several minutes while Germany fans unveiled a celebratory mosaic to a hugely popular figure in this country.

It may well have accounted for the flat atmosphere in the first half and a German performance to match on a night that almost seemed more about paying tribute to one of their great sporting servants than learning lessons from playing England.

The match-winner exited the stage a few minutes before the end, accompanied by a standing ovation and dramatic music. This was a night dedicated to him.
