Moors killer Brady dead at 79

Moors Murderer Ian Brady, whose horrific crimes against children shocked the world, has died after 51 years in jail.

The serial killer, who tortured and killed five children with lover Myra Hindley and was jailed in 1966, passed away on Monday at Ashworth Hospital, a secure psychiatric unit in Merseyside. The coroner reportedly only released the body to Brady's lawyer after it was confirmed his ashes would not be scattered on Saddleworth Moor, where the bodies of four of his victims were found.

Coroner Christopher Sumner had delayed the release until "assurances" about Brady's funeral arrangements were made.

At the opening of an inquest on Tuesday senior coroner Mr Sumner refused to release the body until he was satisfied that a funeral director and crematorium willing to take it had been found.

Brady and Hindley were jailed for life for the killings of John Kilbride, 12, Lesley Ann Downey, 10, and Edward Evans, 17.

In 1985 he also admitted to the murders of Pauline Reade, 16, and Keith Bennett, who was 12, although he was never tried for those crimes.

Born in Glasgow in 1938, Brady later moved to Manchester, where he met Hindley, and died at Ashworth Hospital, where he was detained from 1985 onwards.

tape recording

The inquest at Southport town hall was told Brady's cause of death was cor pulmonale, a form of heart failure, secondary to broncho-pneumonia and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, or lung disease. Mr Sumner said a full inquest would be held on 29 June.

Few murderers have so haunted the public imagination as did Ian Brady. There was the horrific nature of his crimes. Between 1963 and 1965, he Hindley, tortured, sexually abused and killed five youngsters before burying their bodies on the moors outside Manchester. There was the tape recording they made of the last tormented hours of 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey, as she begged for her mother. It was played to the jury at the time of their trial in 1966. And there was the us-againstthe-world bond between them that joined Brady and Hindley.

For almost two decades after they were jailed for life (Hindley was sent to Holloway, Brady at first to Durham), Brady was held for the most part

Murders that shocked a nation

■ From childhood loner to serial killer, Brady showed no remorse for his horrific acts

THERE HAVE been few, if any murders in the past century that have horrified the nation in the way that the Moors Murders did in the mid-1960s.

The descent of Ian Brady and Myra Hindley from working class obscurity to internationally reviled figures of hate is such a

At first he said he was protesting at his treatment at Ashworth, which had been at the centre of controversy and was threatened with closure following a highly critical commission of inquiry. But it soon became clear that Brady's motives were more self-serving. His narcissism caused him to crave the spotlight. He claimed that he wanted to die, but, as the mental health tribunal later heard, he would often administer his feeds himself, and tuck into other provisions.

It decided quickly and unanimously to uphold his detention at Ashworth. After the furore that surrounded proceedings, Brady disappeared once more from public view. strange and morbid tale that it has continues, fifty years on, to hold a gruesome fascination for many.

Hindley had a difficult upbringing, coming from a broken home, but certainly did not seem disturbed or depraved until she took up with Brady. He however, was a different story.

Born Ian Stewart in the rundown Gorbals area of Glasgow, he was abandoned by his natural mother at three months. He was taken in by the Sloans, a well-meaning couple in their 40s with several older children. Though poor and living in cramped accommodation, they treated the new arrival with kindness. He remained distant from them, seldom joining in family life.

A friendless boy at school, Brady was, his teachers recalled, neat, polite and delicate. But fellow pupils later told more disturbing tales. During a routine game of cops and robbers, he allegedly tied up a classmate and tried to set fire to him. On another occasion he had boasted of burying a cat alive.

As a teenager, he developed two obsessions: collecting Nazi souvenirs and pornography. And although he remained bookish and remarkably well read for a teenager, he was soon drifting into petty burglary. His brushes with the law hardened his views towards authority and increased his fondness for solitude.

After another brush with the law for burglary in 1954 he was sent to Manchester to live with his natural mother. She had by now married Pat Brady, a market porter, and was living in Moss Side.

Brady adopted his stepfather's name and seemed to settle well, until he was caught stealing again. He was sent for a year to borstal, where he studied book-keeping. Returning home on release in November 1957, he landed a job at Millwards chemical factory as a clerk.

In January 1962, he met Hindley, a young typist there. With his cold grey eyes, boney face and aloofness, he quickly had her enthralled. She was later to describe him as her "god". Bathing in the glow of her adoration gave him the confidence to believe his grisly dreams could become reality. An awkward teenager from a dysfunctional background, Hindley later recalled that at first sight Brady seemed to her to be

Princess Diana's former lover James Hewitt 'fights for life after heart attack and stroke'

Former Guardsman in intensive care

James Hewitt, Princess Diana's former lover, has reportedly been fighting for his life in hospital after suffering a stroke and heart attack. The 58-year-old was said to have been placed in intensive care after an emergency operation relating to a pre-existing illness.

The Sunday Mirror reported that his family are hopeful he will pull through. He is now said to be recovering and has been moved to a different hospital.

A relative said the family were "concerned" after the former British Army officer suffered the cardiac arrest just before going in for a medical procedure.

Mr Hewitt was reportedly in Derriford Hospital in Plymouth before being transferred to the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital.

"He had a pre-existing illness, then got seriously ill. Suddenly it got very critical and he was rushed to hospital," a source told the Sunday Mirror.

"It was pretty serious, but hopefully we're all OK now. He is recovering

Mr Hewitt, a household calvary officer who was born in Northern Ireland but spent most of his life in the West Country, had an affair with Diana in the 1980s while she was still married to Prince Charles.

'poor chap'

In a now iconic photo, thought to have been taken amid their secret relationship, Diana is pictured presenting the Captain and Subalterns Cup to Mr Hewitt after leading his Army polo team to glory at Tidworth, Wiltshire.

Diana and Prince Charles separated in 1992 and divorced four years later. The Princess admitted to Martin Bashir for BBC's Panorama in 1995 - in an interview that enraged Buckingham Palace - that she had an affair with Mr Hewitt.

The former lieutenant, who served in the Gulf War, has frequently had to palm off rumours that he could be Prince Harry's father, although the claims were dismissed by royal butler Paul Burrell, who claims that Mr Hewitt did not meet Diana until her youngest son was already a toddler.

Speaking on Australian TV in March, Mr Hewitt was asked if he was Harry's biological father, to which he replied: "No I'm not". He added: "It's worse for him, probably, poor chap."

The strange case of the sex-mad TV writer and the Lithuanian basketball player....

 Former producer of "The Bill" found guilty of conspiring to murder his wife
 David Harris 'infatuated' with leggy hooker, court hears

A former TV producer on the police drama, The Bill, has been found guilty of hiring three hitmen to kill his partner in order to inherit her fortune and run off with his Lithuanian prostitute girlfriend.

David Harris, 69, faces a possible life sentence, after a jury at the Old Bailey rejected his claims that he had simply been researching a book when he offered potential assassins, up to £250,000 to kill 69-year-old parish councillor, Hazel Allinson.

The 5ft 8in pensioner was convicted of three counts of incitement to murder after becoming obsessed with 6ft 1inch former basketball professional, Ugne Cekaviciute, 28.

Harris told the Old Bailey he had met Miss Cekaviciute when she was working in a brothel in Worthing, and he ran up huge debts showering her with gifts and treating her to lavish dinner and stays in expensive hotels.

But he denied plotting to kill Miss Allinson, to inherit her £800,000 estate, insisting that his meetings with hitmen had been research into a thriller he was writing called Too Close to Kill, about a middle-aged lawyer who wanted his wife murdered in order to be with a younger lover.

Harris, a former alcoholic, who joined the film industry from school as an apprentice, met Allinson in the 1980s when they were both working on the TV drama, The Bill.

village life

Charming and gregarious, but with an air of vulnerability, she quickly fell for him and they moved in together at her home in south London.

Friends said they appeared to be devoted to one another and with her support Harris gave up drinking completely.

The couple initially lived in Miss Allinson's home in Norbury, south west London, before later upgrading to a smart house in the Wandsworth area.

In 2010 they moved to the picturesque Amberley on the edge of the South Downs where Miss Allinson threw herself village life, joining the parish council and the choir at St Michael's Church.

But village life seemed too sleepy for Harris who yearned for more spice in his life.

Despite being in his mid 60s, Harris admitted to having a voracious sexual appetite and when Miss Allinson was diagnosed with breast cancer their physical relationship suffered.

He used her illness as an excuse to start visiting brothels, including one in Worthing which is where he claimed he first met Miss Cekaciute, a blonde former basketball professional, who was working as a part-time escort to help supplement her income as a carer for disabled adults.

Harris told the jury at his trial: "I became besotted with her. I thought that she was too young and too nice to be in a brothel." He suggested she

He suggested she quit the sex industry and offered to help her financially, even offering to pay for her to attend college.

Harris explained: "I started to see her on a more regular basis...it started to get very expensive dinner, lunch, hotels - and I just couldn't afford it so I started drawing out of that capital Hazel had given me."

limited means

In his attempt to impress his young lover and stop her finding a man nearer her own age Harris managed to blow £50,000.

But he was a man of extremely limited means and with just his state pension and a £300 a month allowance from Miss Allinson to rely on, Harris was forced to pawn watches and jewellery and even borrow money from friends in the village. With his debts spiralling and Miss suspicious Allinson about how much time he was spending away from home, he eventually realised the situation was unsustainable and perhaps drawing on his experiences working in television drama came up with the extraordinary solution of hiring a hitman to kill her.

He initially approached a mechanic at his garage

in Kingston, telling him he was looking for someone who might be able to help him recover a debt.

The mechanic referred him to a friend, who backed out when Harris revealeded his real plan to kill his wife.

Frustrated but not put off, Harris tried again to find a hitman, this time making contact with Duke Dean, a 6ft 4in "manmountain" who went by the nickname 'Zed'.

He offered Dean, £200,000 and even took him on a "recce" of Amberley, pointing out the church where his partner regularly attended choir practice.

But rather than carrying out the hit, Mr Dean went to police and told them of Harris's murderous plot. He was put in touch with an undercover police officer who met him on November 11 in a Sainsbury's car park in south west London.

Harris was arrested the following morning at the Balham Lodge Hotel where police found him naked in bed with Miss Cekaviciute.

Never one to be lost for words, Harris quickly assured police that the whole thing was a mistake, explaining he had merely been meeting hitmen as research for a book he was writing.

He explained that the novel was about a character called Tom Noble, a middle-aged lawyer who was in love with a much younger girl but married to a rich older woman who had cheated on him.

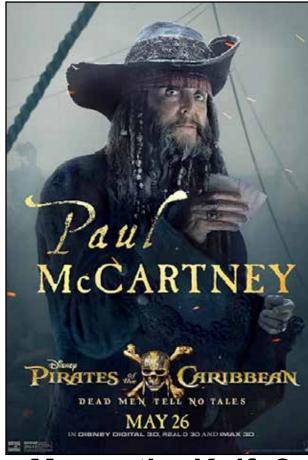

Harris will be sentenced next month.

AMERICAN singer Taylor Swift is dating another actor from the UK – rising star Joe Alwyn.

The chart-topper, 27, has repeatedly shown a passion for all things British. She split with movie heart-throb Tom Hiddleston after a whirlwind romance with The Night Manager actor last summer. And her previous flames also include Scottish DJ Calvin Harris and One Direction star Harry Styles. Now it has emerged that Taylor has been secretly dating 26-year-old Joe for several months.

A friend of the singer has revealed how the couple have been seeing one another as much as their busy schedules have allowed – but had wanted to keep the relationship private at such an early stage.

"This isn't a new couple alert or a secret relationship – the only people this has been a secret to is the media because all of us, Taylor and Joe's closest friends and their families, were

"After her 1989 tour (which took place in 2015) and all the attention Taylor received, she learned she had to be more protective of her personal life, and she and Joe decided early on to keep their private life private."

The actor is currently shooting royal saga The Favourite, alongside Rachel Weisz and Emma Stone. He also starred alongside Kristen Stewart in the 2016 film Billy Lynn's Long Halftime Walk. He still lives with his parents in north London and Taylor is understood

Taylor, who is known for writing songs about her relationships, and actor Mr Hiddleston had to deny their union was a publicity stunt. The pair were pictured looking like love-struck teenagers, with Mr Hiddleston even wearing an "I heart TS" T-shirt. But the once seemingly adoring couple split months later, with contradictory claims over who had called it a day.

One Direction star Harry Styles dated Taylor back in 2012. But the pair also split following a reported bust-up during a romantic holiday in the Caribbean. Harry recently told how it had been difficult to be in a relationship with the singer because of the public scrutiny the couple faced. He told Rolling Stone magazine: "You're a little bit awkward to begin with. You're on a date with someone you really like. It should be that simple, right? It was a learning experience for sure.

"But at the heart of it – I just wanted it to be a normal date."

Taylor, whose hits include Shake It Off, also dated star DJ Calvin for 15 months from 2015 to 2016. But post breakup, they feuded over his song featuring Rihanna, This Is What You Came For. After Taylor revealed she had penned the worldwide hit single under a pseudonym, multimillionaire Calvin accused his ex-girlfriend of "trying to tear your He also accused her of trying to tear your ex bf down' for "something to do".

Tippling Brits guzzle twice the global average

BOOZING Britons still drink nearly twice as much as the global average, statistics show. Last year the typical Briton downed the equivalent 21.6 of pints of pure alcohol compared with 11.3 pints worldwide.

It saw Britain come 12th in a list of almost 200 countries, with virtually all the nations ranked higher in eastern Europe.

The World Health Organisation monitored alcohol consumption in people over the age of 15 in its 194 member states. Lithuanians drank the most, getting through a massive 32 pints a head. Britain's alcohol consumption was on a par with Latvia, Hungary, Poland and Slovakia. Other nations high up the list included Russia, Estonia, Ukraine, Belarus and Moldova – with Belgium the only other western European country.

'incredibly worrying'

Rachel Clark from the World Cancer Research Fund said: "It's incredibly worrying that Britons are drinking almost double the global average. "Alcohol is highly dangerous, and if no one drank it in the UK around 24,000 cancer cases could be prevented every year.

"People should drink no more than the Government's recommended limit of 14 units a week."

But Sarah Hanratty of the Portman Group, which is funded by drinks producers, said Britons were actually downing the equivalent of two pints of pure alcohol less than 10 years ago.

She said: "Harmful patterns of consumption have been falling for over a decade. This is all too often overlooked."

Dave Roberts of the Alcohol Information Partnership added: "Some people may need to review their drinking, but the trend is for British people to have a moderate and mature relationship with alcohol."

The report also showed Britain has lower than worldwide average rates of death from many causes alcohol considered including releated, diabetes, cancer, lung disease and suicide.

HILARITY ENSUES: Sharon Horgan and Rob Delaney shine in Catastrophe

Sharon adjust to their business trip to from his American base. A passionate few weeks follow, and shortly after Sharon discovers she is pregnant. In part because of abandonment issues from his own father, Rob decides to 'do the right thing', moves to London and the pair marry. What follow is three seasons of hilarity as Rob and new lives, their new partners, and in short order, parenthood. The show is hilariously funny, shockingly profane and often achingly true, and benefits hugely from a talented supporting class with a truckload of issues of their own, including the late Carrie Fisher as Rob's mother, and Ashley Jensen and Mark Bonnar as Rob and Sharon's highly dysfunctional best friends. The show feels just like real life, only much funnier. The only downside is that the seasons are so short, at just six apiece. A fourth series of the show is scheduled for 2018.

Catastrophe is great TV. Don't miss it.

Meet A Member: Emma Pyne

Meet Emma Pune originally from Ennis, County Clare, Ireland, who moved to LA from London 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> years ago, to further her career in acting.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I often get asked this. I wanted to do American TV and film so this was the place. But then of course as soon as I moved here lots of great shows (Game of Thrones, Vikings, The Fall) started filming in Ireland!

What do you miss most from home?

Definitely my family. The time difference can suck a bit for making calls. My sister is almost deaf, so we can't speak on the phone and I really miss that connection and now that my parents are getting older I really feel it that I'm not around as often as I'd like to be. Sometimes I only get to see them once a year and that's not really enough, although now with so many airlines in the game it has brought the prices down and I have already been home twice this year, with another trip planned in August/ September, when I'll be shooting a short film I wrote with acclaimed British director, Stuart Douglas. We are in talks with some pretty big name actors for the film so we're very excited.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

Oh my God, I fell in love with the place! It has a kind of honeymoon magic that you only experience when you first arrive. I think that love affair lasts about two years. I didn't even start to notice the underbelly for about two years; I was just dancing along, chasing glitter in the sunlight like a happy little puppy. I don't think LA itself has changed, it's still pretty wonderful, but I've certainly become more seasoned. I love when people come to visit because it's still so exciting for people who don't live here.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus in Ireland or London?

Sunshine! I love the outdoor lifestyle and the ocean. And I love not having to take public transport. Driving is so easy here. I actually think I've forgotten how to drive stick! There are also far greater opportunities for the writer/actor/ performer, and now that I've taken up stand-up comedy again (after an eight-year hiatus) there really is no better place than LA to do standup. Did I mention the weather? Yeah, there's no place like Ireland on a dripping with glamour.

The two began an intense relationship based on a mutual dislike of the Downey and Edward rest of society and their preference for Brady's bizarre and perverse fantasy world. In July 1963 those fantasies turned to murder when Hindley and Brady lured 16-year-old Pauline Reade on to the moors above Manchester, where Brady killed her and they buried efforts to break away even toying with joining the police – she and Brady went on to kill 12-yearold John Kilbride, Keith Bennett, Lesley Ann Evans, aged 17. Shopped to the police by one of Hindley's relatives, Brady remained silent and defiant thoughout their trial as to the full extent of the couple's crimes. (He was later to boast there were more victims, but police found no evidence for this.)

fine day, but the summers in Ireland usually last about 48hrs. If we got the weather in Ireland, LA would be out of business!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

My dad was here recently and he loves golf so we played at Rancho Park Golf Course. It's a great public course and is very inexpensive. And Tiago, located at 7080 Hollywood Boulevard for their Lavender latte. It's my crack.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Come out here for three months or as long as you can afford or your visa will allow. From afar, we think it's just like the movies and that's a fallacy. While LA is great and has a lot to offer, living here is nothing like the movies and it's not a constant vacation. We don't lie by the pool scratching our arses all day, and then wonder what party we will hit up later. If you do that, you will get nowhere in this town, and people like that are easily spotted. It's a daily hustle, it's not for everyone, and it does not happen overnight. Be prepared for a slog and that might take 10 years. Yes it could take six months but that is rare. Be realistic. Ask yourself if can you generate an income stream that will help sustain you, or will you be okay with working in Starbucks or waiting on tables for quite a while, even if you've already got some big credits in the UK?

At their trial, they demanded to be judged as one, but during their long years of imprisonment, love turned to hatred and paranoia, with each blaming the other for taking the lead in their crimes. During his long incarceration, Brady offered not a word of remorse. He described his crimes as "existential exercises, philosophy personal and interpretation", and claimed that the murders were "petty compared to [the deeds of] politicians and soldiers".

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Here are some things I've learned since living in LA: Be happy for everyone else's success. Genuinely. You will draw in that good energy and it's a sign that yours is close. Stay humble. Be someone that people want to work with. Meditate; it's a great way to keep you grounded. And I love Kevin Spacey's quote: "If you're lucky enough to do well, it's your responsibility to send the elevator back down." Let's help each other whenever we can.

And Join Brits in LA. Seriously. I arrived here on my own and that was how I met lots of my great friends. (Advice from Eileen Lee!)

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

I have just done a movie with Ed Asner, Jamie Farr and Marion Ross directed by fellow Brits in LA member Trudy Sargent. It's going to Cannes this month, and we're all very proud of it, so fingers crossed it does well! It's an intellectual comedy called 'Angels On Tap', written by Burt Prelutsky, who used to write for the TV series MASH.

I've also got lots of stand-up gigs around town coming up, including at the Comedy Store and the Improv. The best way to keep track of me is on Instagram: @ emmampyne and Twitter: @emmampyne

Doing good and making us laugh: Red Nose Day

I don't know about you but I was still at school when Britain had their first Red Nose Day telethon in 1988 as part of the annual Comic Relief fundraising efforts, which itself had only been launched three years earlier by comedian Lenny Henry and comedy writer Richard Curtis. As I recall, we were asked to make a donation of 50p and in return we were allowed to attend in 'non uniform' and wear a Comic Relief red nose. I remember laughing hysterically at my younger sister Marya, who was confident enough to wear a silly costume and her red nose on the bus to school. I was secretly quite envious that I didn't have the courage to put mine on until I had safely passed the school gates.

But I did embrace this lovely new traditional whole heartedly in the following years. The goal of using comedy to raise money for charity was quite groundbreaking at the time. I am sure there was the occasional fun run, and I participated in plenty of sponsored swims, but overall I don't recall being encouraged to have a laugh whilst helping those in need.

So I was very excited when Red Nose Day launched in the USA back in 2015, but I was a bit disappointed that I didn't cross paths with random strangers wearing the novelty clown nose. To be fair I wasn't wearing one either; but this year I will! There is still time to get your nose on, as Red Nose Day is on Thursday, May 25th. Our friends from the British including Consulate, our new Deputy Consul General, Colette Weston are obviously game for a laugh. They all showed up for our Tuesday Breakfast Club this week

Liam dishes the 'dirt' on nappy changes...and 'wife' Cheryl!

Pop singer Liam Payne has sparked rumours he and ex- Girls Cheryl Aloud star Tweedy have secretly wed after he described her as his "wife" in a recent US radio interview. Oo-er!

While joking about a popular burger chain, the 23-year-old singer said: "I left my wife and child at home and I was straight out to In-N-Out Burger."

Liam, who is busy promoting his new solo material in the US, also spoke to Sirius FM about being a dad.

The couple welcomed baby son Bear back in March. Recalling the day after the birth he said: "I did all the first day's worth of nappy changes, because [Cheryl] was so tired, she slept more or less.

"All day, there was no poo. I was like this is great, I can handle this."

But then Cheryl, 33, woke up to the baby crying at 5am and wanted to change his nappy.

Liam said: "I was like 'Go on babes', this was her first ever nappy change. So he poos for the first time, of course he does."

"That's so unfair. She had to give birth to him and she was the one who got weed on first."

Liam also revealed he and Cheryl had both selected Bear's middle name – Grey.

"That was multiple choice, that was together. It was going to be James, because my middle name is James, but I prefer Grey."

Liam has recently been forced to leave Cheryl at

But he's making sure he's in constant touch with his 'missus'. The former One Direction star said: "We're always FaceTiming and the other day he (Bear) smiled at me for the first time, it was so special.

"I just want to spend every moment with him but she (Cheryl) is so great, she does everything on her own, she's been amazing."

HBO promise a New Pope!

A fresh pontiff will follow in Jude Law's footsteps, as Sky and HBO announced The New Pope this week, a limited spin-off series following on from the popular cable TV show, The Young Pope. Ooo-er!

Variety reports that the previous show's head scribe Paolo Sorrentino – and his co-writer Umberto Contarello – will return to pen this new drama, which once again takes place "in the world of the modern papacy".

Filming in Italy is scheduled for late 2018, so it'll be a while before the show is on our screens, then. We assume that it will air in 2019, but that's just guesswork on our part.

"Just like The Young Pope, Sorrentino is writing the script for the new show, but it will have a different twist than what would be expected," Sky Italia's Andrea Scrosati told the industry bible. Jude Law's Lenny Belardo will not be the main focus of the show, as the title suggests. But sources have apparently told Variety that "a reappearance by Law in The New Pope, albeit in a much smaller role, has not been ruled out." Law would have to find time in his busy schedule to make such an appearance possible. He's recently signed up for another robeheavy role: playing the younger incarnation of Albus Dumbledore in J.K. Rowling and David Yates' Fantastic Beasts And Where To Find Them 2.

Rest assured, we'll pontificating on this new show as soon as we get more news!

ARIES: If life at work is not all it could be, look at the positive side; as we move into mid-month the planets will open new doors which should result in more cash flow. It's also time for a health check up or shakeup, whichever is the one for you, over the next week or so. TAURUS : Your emotions are probably in a mess regarding some situation which as of now is unresolved. It is more than likely a present situation that has brought things up and this should be resolved once and for all...now enjoy a Happy Birthday.

GEMINI: You would be wise to save some energy before the middle of next week as then life gets hectic. Mars and Venus in your sign make you give you confidence to face the world and get just about with any thing you want.

CANCER: You may be letting go of what you consider the past; it may be for you, not so for others. So be upfront if asked to explain something. It will not resolve itself, so get motivated to do this now. It will be easier for you in the end.

LEO: Losing control now in any area of life will only extend the problem. There is always more than one side to any situation. If you calm that fiery temper you will sort out your priorities and will be in a much better headspace.

VIRGO: This past week or so for you has not been as easy-going as you would like or need.

This is because mostly everything is overwhelming to you, however next week starts out better. So take the chance to take to relax. LIBRA: This is spring cleaning time for you and it can be in any area of life. A new business venture or job (or even romance) will lighten you up overall by the end of May. In the meantime be at peace and know that all will be as you wish it.

SCORPIO: Life is gearing up for bigger and better things. The universe never gives us more than we can handle, even if we don't always agree. With that in mind and feeling better get ready for happy days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS: Peace and quiet should be on the menu for you for the next week or so. Your boss Jupiter is still moving slowly in Libra. However, you are not going to be worried about this, you going to have a fun and busy next month.

CAPRICORN: With Pluto the secret keeper moving backwards while visiting you, you would be wise to do not share personal information with anyone you are not absolutely sure of. As the old saying goes: do not tell a friend something you would not wish an enemy to know.

AQU ARIUS: Do not take anyone's silence as a bad sign. This a temporary situation which will right itself by late in the month. Your time should be spent clearing out and spring cleaning. You can expect someone from your past to resurface.

PISCES: Your dreams will be very active this week, so take note of anything that you remember as it can bring answers to life questions. You have some unfinished business to take care as well as helping another. Take the time to help out...it is good for you!

Exclusive interview with Gareth Russell, author of Young and Damned and Fair, a look at the life of Catherine Howard, fifth wife of Henry VIII

"I wanted to show Catherine as a woman in the context of a society in a state of flux, crippled by religious and political tensions, and also to show her as a daughter of the nobility, born and trained in that way," says Young and Damned and Fair author Gareth Russell. "I was studying for my masters in Medieval History at Queen's University, Belfast, where I wanted to specialize in the Queen's Household Tudor England. in I decided to look at it during Catherine Howard's tenure as queen. And the more research I did, the more I realized that the story we think we know of her life is incomplete and, often, flat out wrong."

On July 28, 1540, Catherine Howard became Queen. At the same time, Thomas be Cromwell, formerly a S favorite of King Henry, of is executed. Sixteen be months later, she will of follow her cousin Anne Boleyn to her death. a Both were executed after being convicted of of adultery and high of treason.

Catherine Howard, fifth wife of Henry VIII, was young and trusting. The book gives details of her life, life at court of catherine's and her families grasp for power. Includes a forgotten text from Catherine's confession. The book features color illustrations, family tree, map, and extensive notes. a full-length biography of Catherine's catherine's says Russell. "I wanted to restore a sense of a fullycontextualized life and strip away the benefit of hindsight," says Russell. "The title comes from a beautiful poem by Stevie Smith, Die Lorelei. I had considered writing a biography of Catherine on and off for years, but now I felt there was actually a need to do so." "On the advice of a wonderful professor called Catherine Clinton, author of Harriet Tubman: The Road to Freedom, I began to turn my research into of Catherine's extraordinary life," says Russell. "During researching this book, I managed to successfully solve a 500-year old sex and theft scandal from Eton College. A headmaster and his student were accused of an affair. The student was almost certainly robbing the school, yet both were acquitted a high-ranking by member of Henry VIII's government. I managed to use my research to prove that this was because of a connection the accused men had to Queen Catherine's entourage."

Russell did exhaustive research, spent a great deal of time translating all the original records, including the interrogations of Catherine and her servants, that are kept at the National Archives of the United Kingdom.

In the summer of 2015, Russell traveled through the north of England, re-tracing the steps of Catherine's own journey there in the summer of 1541. "I only stayed in 16th or 17th century inns en route and attended services in the churches where she prayed, including the spectacular, magnificent wonder that is Lincoln Cathedral."

Russell is currently writing, The Darksome Bounds of a Failing World, about the sinking of the Titanic and the end of the Edwardian Era. "I've been captivated by the story of the Titanic since childhood," says Russell, "ever since my late great-grandfather, Stamford Bridge after more than two decades at the club.

The central defender is the Blues' most decorated player, with this season's title earning him a fifth Premier League winners' medal.

He has also helped them win five FA Cups, three League Cups, the Champions League and the Europa League.

The Londoner has made 716 appearances for the club since his debut in 1998 - 579 of them as captain.

Chelsea manager Antonio Conte, who has restricted Terry to a bitpart role on the pitch this season, paid tribute to the player's influence.

"He is a great man. He helped me a lot in my first season. He had a fantastic role on and off the pitch," said the Italian.

"Against Watford he showed he can continue to play. I'm pleased for him, he scored a great goal.

"I'm looking forward to seeing him lift the cup on Sunday. He deserves this."

"If I could have written my story, this is how it would have panned out - to go having been crowned champions, and to leave the club in great hands with the manager, the owner and the players we have here," added Terry.

"It is going to be sad nd emotional for me Sunday m because ve been here 22 years but I'm delighted for experiences and he pportunities I have been iven."

Rodgers eyes unbeaten season for The Hoops

Brendan Rodgers says it would be a "remarkable achievement" for Celtic to complete an unbeaten league season.

R o d g e r s ' men thrashed Partick Thistle 5-0 on Thursday and must avoid defeat by Hearts on Sunday to finish their title-winning campaign without defeat.

"We matched 33 wins, which is the most wins in the history at Celtic," told BBC Rodgers Scotland.

"We go one behind in the record for goals. Now we're on to 104. So, we've got everything to play for."

Leigh Griffiths, who would later appear to question being substituted, scored Celtic's opener at Firhill from the penalty spot after Patrick Roberts was fouled by Callum Booth. Tom Rogic netted Celtic's second from a low Griffiths cross, and Roberts swept in their third before the break. Strikes from outside the box by Callum McGregor and Roberts followed in the second half.

"It was a joy to watch the team," said Rodgers. "Five goals special and, fundamentally, the players worked very, very hard. It was an outstanding team performance.

"If you go 38 games of a season [unbeaten] with all the games we've had, the level of games, perform like we have done then it's a truly remarkable achievement relative to the time that we're playing in."

Asked if there was any chance of keeping Roberts, who is due to return to parent club Manchester City this summer, Rodgers replied: "I don't know. You have to respect he is a Manchester City player.

"The only thing I would ever say is if there ever is a possibility that he's going to leave Manchester City then of course Celtic would be certainly there to want to bring him here.

"I still think he's got a lot of development left in him. At 19 years of age, he still needs a lot of education, a lot of training. He's getting a wonderful education here with the club, the size of the club.

"He's a wonderful talent. He's very much a part of the team structure and that's great to see.

"When he has the ball, especially in the final third, he truly is a little magician. He was one of a number of outstanding team performers.

"He took his goals absolutely brilliantly. He's always a threat in the penalty box - gets the penalty and scores two other wonderful goals."

Four more for Hitman Harry as Spurs show no sign of easing off the gas

PREMIER LEAGUE LEICESTER CITY.....1 TOTTENHAM H.......6

Harry Kane scored four times as Tottenham produced another superb performance to sweep aside Leicester City Thursday night.

Though Chelsea ended their Premier League title hopes last week, there was no let-up from Mauricio Pochettino's side, who won for the 25th time in the league this season.

Kane helped himself to two predatory goals from close range before rattling in twice from 20 yards in the last few minutes to move to 26 league goals for the campaign - two clear of Everton's Romelu Lukaku.

Son Heung-min also scored fine goals either side of half-time, volleying in Dele Alli's masterful pass, and bending in from 25 yards after a swift counter-attack.

Leicester, who are yet to make a decision on manager Craig Shakespeare's future, played their part in an entertaining game.

Ben Chilwell momentarily sparked hopes of a fightback by making it 2-1, but the Foxes ultimately had no answer to this in-form Tottenham side, who recorded their biggest away win in the Premier League.

This was effectively another dead rubber. But, while the league has failed to deliver the close title race the television schedulers were hoping for, no blame can be attached to Tottenham.

Spurs have won 12 of their past 13 league games and have been kept at bay only by the remarkable resilience of Chelsea, who ensured it has been a case of 'nearly' for Pochettino and his players for the second season in a row.

Third last season despite being Leicester's closest challengers for most of the campaign - or, as the home fans enjoyed chanting in the opening stages, "third in a twohorse race" - Spurs have gone one better this time. Much better, in fact.

This dominant win took them past Leicester's titlewinning haul of 81 points, and they have enough on the board to have won the Premier League on eight previous occasions - with a game still to come.

Son's superb strikes mean that - for the first time in the club's history - they have three players who have scored 20 goals in a season, and took them beyond 75 league goals for the first time since 1984-85.

Add in the division's meanest defence -Hugo Lloris' mistake for Chilwell's goal notwithstanding and it is no surprise Pochettino has committed his future to the club.

As White Hart Lane is dismantled and rebuilt, Spurs' summer seems likely to be flavoured by reports and fears of the team going the same way.

Right-back Kyle Walker - again left out, albeit this time with an ankle problem - has long been linked with a move, and Pochettino admitted this week the club may struggle to compete with clubs offering huge salaries this summer.

That may have sounded alarm bells for supporters, but the good news for them is it would surely take record numbers to prise away either of the side's crown jewels.

Kane and Alli have scored 43 Premier League goals between them this season and were outstanding again, along with Son, in a dynamic attacking display.

Those three players alone had 19 efforts on goal, while Alli's chipped assist for Son's first goal was further evidence of his growing influence and inventiveness.

Kane, who tapped in Son's cross to open the scoring, added a closerange header then twice thrashed past Kasper Schmeichel from the edge of the area, could become the first man since Robin van Persie to win the golden boot in successive seasons. Kane is already the fifth player in Premier League history to score 25 goals or more in successive seasons (Robbie Fowler, Thierry Henry, Alan Shearer and van Persie are the others). As for Leicester boss Shakespeare, he told reporters he expects to find out if he will remain in charge of the Foxes "within days". He has certainly made a strong case to be retained, but his side's second-half capitulation must be a disappointment, particularly as a comeback briefly looked possible when Chilwell scored his first career goal, prodding in after Jamie Vardy had gone around an out-ofposition Lloris.

A second big decision of the season now looms for the Leicester hierarchy, who were widely criticised for sacking Claudio Ranieri in February, just months after he delivered the title.

They must surely consider themselves vindicated, despite such a heavy defeat. The Foxes were one point cont. on page 19, col 6
