PARSONS GREEN ATTACK: SIXTH SUSPECT HELD

"This continues to be a fast-moving investigation," says top Met cop

A sixth person has been arrested in by officers having been planting the device, is connection with the investigation into a bomb attack which took place on a London Underground train last week, British police said Thursday.

17-year-old suspect was detained in Thorton Heath, a suburb south of London, where a search was ongoing.

people were injured in the September 15th attack, when a homemade explosive device in a Lidl bag left on a packed District Line Tube train partially detonated, shooting flames. The attack took place when the train was stopped at Parsons Green station and was claimed by the Islamic State of Syria and Iraq (ISIS).

Emergency services were on the scene within minutes, with one rescuer telling reporters that had the device exploded completely, 'the loss of life would have been horrendous'

Commander Dean Haydon, head of the Met Counter Terrorism Command, said in "This statemen: continues to be a fastmoving investigation. significant amount of activity has taken place since the attack on Friday,".

"We anticipate that the searches will take some days to complete and may cause further disruption," he said.

The attack was the fifth terror attack in the United Kingdom in 6 months. It caused the national terrorism threat level to be raised to "critical," meaning an attack was judged to be imminent. The threat level was then lowered again after the first two arrests.

"A significant amount of activity has taken place since the attack on Friday. We now have three men in custody and searches are continuing at four addresses. Detectives are carrying out extensive inquiries to determine the full facts behind the attack," Haydon added.

Two men arrested on Saturday are still being held in custody.

May tells EU leaders of 'shared responsibility'

■ PM offers £20bn payment over two years to ease Brexit shortfall

Theresa May told EU leaders there is a shared responsibility to make Brexit work "smoothly" as she attempts to break the deadlock in negotiations.

In a major speech in Florence on Friday, she said history will judge Brexit "not for the differences we faced, but for the vision we showed".

And she proposed a two-year transitional deal, after March 2019, ahead of a permanent trade deal.

It could include payments worth 20bn

There were claims on Thursday that the teenage suspect was reported to the counter terrorism strategy Prevent in the months before the attack.

The embattled prime minister said that a successful final agreement is in the interests of both the UK and the remaining EU countries.

"If we can do that, then when this chapter of our European history is written, it will be remembered not for the differences we faced, but for the vision we showed; not for the challenges we endured but for the creativity we used to overcome them; not for a relationship that ended but a new partnership that began."

She added that if the UK and EU can be "imaginative and creative" about establishing a new relationship, both sides can be "optimistic about the future".

She went on to tsay that it was "in all of our interests for our negotiations to succeed... so I believe we share a profound sense of responsibility to make this change work smoothly and sensibly, not just for people today but for the next generation who will inherit the world we leave them".

The Prime Minister's offer, potentially worth 20bn euros over the two years - could plug a black hole in the current EU budget, which runs to 2020 - created by the UK's departure.

Mrs May briefed her top team at a marathon two and a half hour cabinet meeting in Downing Street on Thursday ahead of her departure for the Italian city.

A government source said that the intention was to make the potential payments conditional on continued access to the single market and some form of customs union which allowed the UK to strike its own trade deals during the transition period.

Additional long-term liabilities, like EU pensions and debts, will also have to be dealt with in the talks to come, so the eventual Brexit bill is likely to be far higher than that 20bn euros (about £18bn).

He acknowledged that to those who supported Brexit it was "frustrating" to have to continue paying into the EU for two years after leaving. But he said: "I think as a matter of goodwill, there is a sense in saying we will pay to the end of that budget process... and then not a penny more."

But Lib Dem Leader Vince Cable, who was also on the panel, said: "£20bn is just for starters. It's going to be a lot more than that - it's an opening offer."

In a speech to the Italian parliament on Thursday, the EU's chief Brexit negotiator Michel Barnier said that striking a deal with the UK was "in our common interest" but he was awaiting

"clear commitments" from the UK on the issue of guaranteeing EU citizens' rights, on the financial settlement and on the Northern Ireland border.

Without those issues being resolved in a withdrawal agreement, there would be no transition deal, he said. The fourth round of Brexit negotiations begins on 25 September, with the UK due to leave the EU in March 2019.

Moors murderer 'died of natural causes'

Moors Murderer Ian Brady would remove his own feeding tube while he was on hunger strike, an inquest heard on Thursday.

Dr Noir Thomas, consultant forensic psychiatrist for Mersey Care, told a hearing at Bootle Town Hall this act was a "symbol of his need to control".

Brady, 79, who tortured and killed five children with Myra Hindley, died at Ashworth Hospital on 15 May.

He died of natural causes unaffected by the hunger strikes, senior coroner Christopher Sumner ruled.

Neglect or self neglect did not contribute to his death, Mr Sumner added.

No plans for his burial were revealed at the inquest, although Dr Thomas told the hearing that in the final hours of his life Brady "declined chaplaincy".

During his 32 years in detention, Brady had severe mental disorders and refused medication and therapy, the inquest heard.

Heart failure

Dr Thomas said the child killer's condition had deteriorated in February and then again, significantly, on 24 April.

He said Brady had then removed his own nasogastric tube on 10 May and it had not been re-sited by staff

On 14 May, he was assessed by a doctor and found to be nearing the end of his life.

Home Office pathologist

Dr Brian Rodgers said Brady died from cor pulmonale, a form of heart failure, secondary to bronchopneumonia and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, or lung disease.

Dr Rodgers said although Brady had been on hunger strike his body did not look emaciated and "he may well have been eating".

He was jailed in 1966 for the killing of John Kilbride, aged 12, Lesley Ann Downey, 10, and Edward Evans, 17.

In 1985, he also admitted to the murders of Pauline Reade, 16, and Keith Bennett, who was 12, although he was never prosecuted for their deaths.

Bridlington couple guilty over Domino's pizza shop sex

A couple had sex against the counter of a pizza delivery shop as staff worked in its kitchen, a court has heard.

Daniella Hirst, 29, and Craig Smith, 31, were captured on CCTV in the Domino's shop in Scarborough in February.

Hirst, of Bridlington, pleaded guilty to outraging public decency and Smith, of Bridlington, was found guilty in his absence.

Magistrates in Scarborough have adjourned the case until 17 October.

However, chair of the bench Angela Beardshall said a custodial sentence could not be ruled out.

S c a r b o r o u g h Magistrates' Court was played 18 minutes of video that had been captured by the pizza shop's CCTV.

It showed the couple going into the Domino's shop, on Castle Road, and ordering food.

It then showed Hirst performing oral sex on Smith.

The couple were also seen having sex leaning against the shop counter.

Ms Beardshall said: "This offence was in a public place. It was a lengthy incident.

"Members of the public were present as were staff.

"The shop was on a public thoroughfare and members of the public should not have to put up with this disgusting behaviour."

Hirst, of Gypsey Road, was in court as the video was played but Smith, of Field Road, was not present and the magistrates were told he was in prison for other

As she left court Hirst said she was "fuming".

Scott McLoughlin, Hirst's solicitor, told the court the pair had been drinking and suggested that the sex acts were not "brazen".

'It was a terrible mistake'

Rooney ordered to do 100 hours' unpaid work after driving party girl's car while nearly 3 times over limit

FORMER England captain Wayne Rooney has apologized for his "terrible error" after receiving a two-year ban for drink-driving.

The Everton striker, 31, was caught driving home party girl Laura Simpson, 29, in her VW Beetle in the early hours of September 1 when nearly three times over the limit. Simpson, single mother, claimed they "kissed and cuddled" after he escorted her from a nightclub in Alderley Edge, Cheshire.

'genuine remorse'

The late-night incident left pregnant wife Coleen, 31, so furious she ditched her £250,000 wedding ring. She is reportedly still deciding whether or not to forgive him. And on Monday Rooney was left publicly grovelling for forgiveness when ordered to complete 100 hours of unpaid work.

After admitting drink-driving at Stockport magistrates court, Michael Rainford, defending, said: "Wayne Rooney wishes to express his genuine remorse

Rooney mistake, a terrible error of judgment. "He has not only let himself down very badly but riving. striker, young people who look the driving to him."

And in a statement issued after the 20-minute hearing, the Manchester former United and England star said: "It was completely wrong. I have already said sorry to my family, manager chairman and everyone at Everton FC. Now I want to apologize to all the fans who supported me throughout my career."

Rooney, who rejoined his boyhood Merseyside club over the summer, walked into court wearing a blue suit and sat in the public gallery beside his agent Paul Stretford. He was called into the dock to confirm his full name, Wayne Mark Rooney, his address and date of birth. When asked how he pleaded to the charge that he drove under the influence of alcohol while over the prescribed limit, he replied: "Guilty." His afternoon and night of carousing with ex-Manchester United teammate Wes Brown was caught on social media. After eating at an Italian restaurant at 4pm, the pair were spotted drinking in a bar until 10pm and then the nearby Symposium nightclub.

'poor judgment'

Onlookers saw the star singing to Oasis songs before he met and began drinking prosecco and vodka with Ms Simpson. A Cheshire Police patrol stopped Ms Simpson's VW Beetle not far from the nightclub at 2.10am after spotting the car had a broken brake light. Wife Coleen and their three sons, Kai, Klay and Kit, were on holiday in Spain at the time.

Rooney's legal team asked District Judge John Temperley to consider whether unpaid work was "proportionate". Mr Rainford revealed the star works with Alder Hey Children's Hospital and Claire House Children's Hospice and other charities. But Judge Temperley insisted Rooney do unpaid work as he said he was "not convinced" a large fine "would have the same effect".

The judge told the striker: "This was a serious offence that you admitted. You were driving a motor vehicle nearly three times the limit. You were carrying a passenger, which is an aggravating factor. "You placed yourself and other road users at risk as a result of your poor judgment."

He ordered that Rooney, of Prestbury, Cheshire, complete 100 hours of unpaid local community work within the next 12 months. He was also ordered to pay £170 court costs.

British troops lend a hand as Virgin Islands struggle to recover from Irma

■ 900-strong contingent helps with cleanup, security and communications following killer hurricane

"Thank God for life" is a common everyday expression on Tortola, the largest of the British Virgin Islands.

But since Hurricane Irma smashed through the lush green landscape of the tiny British Caribbean territory less than two weeks ago, leaving at least five people dead, it has become a mantra.

As the scale of the devastation has become clear, the islands are now bracing for another battering, this time from tropical storm Maria later this week, which appears to be following Irma's path.

"absolutely hellish"

In the meantime, a patchwork combination of the hard work of local residents, private aid from the tax haven's myriad wealthy financial services companies and assistance from British troops will continue to help the islands find their feet.

For their 30,000 residents, it is clear the road to recovery will be long – and expensive.

Absolutely hellish," is how Boris Johnson described the devastation when he flew in last week for a one-day show of British commitment to the islanders.

"I've never seen anything like it," the foreign secretary told his press entourage as he toured communities now almost submerged in piles of rubble, twisted galvanised roofing, broken trees, glass and household items. Up to 80% of the islands' buildings have been damaged or destroyed.

Johnson brought with him promises of £25m in UK aid to add to the original £32m announced by Theresa

PITCHING IN: Sir Richard Branson

May immediately after the storm.

But there is a catch. The £57m total is, according to a UK government official who did not want to be named, to be divided between the BVI, nearby Anguilla and the Turks and Caicos Islands - all of them British dependent territories affected by the hurricane. Also in the mix is the island of Barbuda, part of the independent nation of Antigua and Barbuda but also severely damaged by Hurricane

"We are still in survival mode right now, still reacting to the situation," says Rusty Henderson, a British citizen and longtime resident in the islands. small His business formerly installed high-end internet entertainment and systems in luxury homes and resorts. After Irma, Henderson created a makeshift communications force.

"Up until end of [last] week, we've had almost no communications with the outside world, or with each other," says Henderson. "Our little brought group has together competing local phone providers, the BVI government, UK Foreign Office, British armed forces and a whole bunch of outside aid groups all trying to provide basic communications as soon as possible," says Henderson.

group's first The success was finding a pile of unbroken telephone poles in the rubble and using those to raise antennas for mobile phone signals so police and emergency teams could communicate.

More than 900 British troops have been helping local and Caribbean forces maintain order on the streets and clear roads. Shops were looted and up to 120 prisoners escaped after the prison building lost its roof and fencing during Irma. Local police, with the help of the heavily armed UK forces, have now rounded up almost all of the prisoners while some have returned voluntarily, according to the island's police commissioner, Michael Matthews.

"too much to do"

While the island's premier, Orlando Smith, and the British governor, Augustus Jaspert, continue to chair the emergency operations meetings in a damp wing of the new $116m (£85m) hospital, upstairs on the fifth floor doctors and hospital staff catch what rest they can during a marathon of medical heroism.

"I lost everything in the storm," says Dorothy Simms, a hospital technician taking moment outside to call her daughter. "At least that's what I have heard. I was here [at the hospital] during the storm and haven't even been able to go back since. There's too much to do."

The loss of was remarkably low considering the scale of the destruction, but the A&E department was working around the clock for the first week treating injuries. Others queued for entire days to get scarce prescription medication.

The BVI may be small but they have friends in high places. Among their most famous parttime resitants are Oracle Chairman Larry Ellison and British tycoon Sir Richard Branson. In the immediate aftermath of the storm, both billionaires flew their staff to safety and began organizing shipments of supplies to the communities of Virgin Gorda and the other islands. Branson's son Sam has set up a food distribution centre in the North Sound area of Virgin Gorda, while the international charity Virgin Unite has been coordinating shipments supplies and organizing evacuations.

On paper, the offshore tax haven is also home to more than 400,000 businesses holding estimated $1.5tn an assets, according in to Capital Economics. Industry represents a direct plug into big money. The large law and accounting firms that create obscure offshore companies and contribute 62% of government revenues, have capital and clients just a keyboard click

"Immediately after the storm, all of the BVI financial companies prioritised locating and providing safety for their employees," says Sjoerd Koster, BVI general manager of Switzerlandbased VP Bank. "With this in motion, many of us began initiatives to get essential help moving."

There is clear intent for the financial services sector to return. "As soon as we have power and reliable internet service, I'm certain that almost all of the companies will come back and resume business as usual," says Koster.

For most islanders, however. immediate solutions are still all that matter: shelter from the rain, which continues to pour, clean water, food and fuel.

LONG ROAD AHEAD: British troops help to clear a main road on Tortola

ADVENTUROUS: Emma Kelty

British kayaker killed by Brazilian gang

A BRITISH kayaker on the 'trip of a lifetime' to the Amazon was shot by a gang of seven men who threw her body into the Amazon, say Brazilian police.

Locals reported seeing Emma Kelty still conscious when she was in the gang's canoe. Police say they won't know if she was alive when she was dumped in the river until her body is found.

The 43-year-old, from London, had been attempting to travel the entire length of the Amazon on her own.

She was killed last week in an area known for drug traffickers and pirates.

Police have arrested three men over her murder, but another man thought to be involved has since been killed.

The former head teacher was camping by the upper stretches of the river in northern Brazil on 13 September when she was spotted by a gang of "pirates", who were in a canoe, police said.

They fired two shots at her tent from a 20 calibre rifle before stealing her belongings, including a drone, two mobile phones and a tablet.

The suspects, according to police, say they tried to make it more difficult for her body to be recovered by cutting her shoulder with a knife.

They wanted to attract animals with her blood and prevent her body from floating.

Lead investigator Jose Afonso Barradas said the men tried to sell her possessions and "were heard boasting about having a lot of money and gold".

One of the men, Evanilson Gomes da Costa, is believed to have been responsible for firing the rifle at Ms Kelty - according to Brazilian police he died on Wednesday after also being shot.

Police said it was likely he was killed by a rival gang who were trying to get hold of Ms Kelty's stolen cash.

Jardel Pinheiro Gomes, 19, Erinei Ferreira da Silva, 28, and a 17-year-old boy have been arrested and police are still looking for three other men.

The Brazilian Navy and divers from the Amazon fire brigade are searching for Ms Kelty's body.

Her kayak was found by police, who have recovered some of her stolen belongings - one phone, one credit card, and one GPS system.

Ms Kelty was 42 days into a 4,000-mile trip along the Amazon river, which she had been documenting on social media, when she was attacked.

Her family said they were extremely proud of her and "her strength would be sorely missed".

Ms Kelty's brothers Piers and Giles, and sister Natasha, said in a statement: "Emma was an active and determined sister who challenged herself, latterly through her adventures on the Pacific Coast Trail, as well as in the South Pole and Amazon River."

Morgan cries foul as Corbyn shuts him out in chat with Arsenal star - 'by speaking Spanish'

TALK ABOUT a story only the North London elite could love.

Piers Morgan, the morning TV host, former Daily Mirror editor and well-known Donald Trump supporter, was left crying in his champagne this week after Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn hijacked his conversation with Arsenal star Hector Bellerin - by speaking Spanish

Morgan is a hate figure to many Brits (and not a few Americans after his stint as a CNN host), but his combative persona showed a softer side this week when he reported an incident at an awards dinner among the London elite that left his feelings hurt.

Poor thing.

Writing about the GQ Men of the Year Awards, the outspoken Arsenal fan, who has not been shy about calling for the club's boss Arsene Wenger to be sacked, found himself sitting at the same table as rightback Hector Bellerin, used the opportunity to discuss their side's recent poor form.

'shut me out'

"Later, fellow Arsenal fan Jeremy Corbyn came over to speak to him," Piers Morgan goes on.

"When I tried to interrupt, the Labour leader - whose wife is Mexican - promptly switched to fluent Spanish to shut me out of the conversation."

He says he then asked Jeremy Corbyn what they'd been talking about.

He writes: "Corbyn smirked. 'I told him to please send Arsene Wenger my very best and assure him he continues to have my full support, even if he's lost yours,

Piers. In fact, particularly because he's lost yours...'

"'He's lost mine because we keep losing,' I retorted. 'You and Wenger are the only losers in football and politics to keep their job... no wonder you love him.'"

Despite this bitter exchange, in the next paragraph Piers Morgan comments that Jeremy Corbyn's "extraordinary popularity shows no sign of abating"

Bellerin has since tweeted telling Piers Morgan not to "take it personally".

And perhaps in an effort to save face, on where Keith's remains were buried. The boy's mother Winnie Johnson, who died in 2012, had repeatedly pleaded for Brady to do so.

Keith's brother Alan runs a website, Searching for Keith, in an ongoing attempt to locate his body.

In May, Mr Sumner initially refused to release his body amid fears his ashes would be spread on Saddleworth Moor where the remains of three of his victims were found.

Brady's body was then released on 18 May to his lawyer who said there was "no likelihood" of his ashes being scattered on the moor.

John Kilbride's brother Terry said he would have "fought tooth and nail" to prevent that.

He believes Brady should be buried in the grounds of Ashworth Hospital.

"It's the best place for him," he said.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your boss Mars is visiting the earth sign Virgo which can make your life somewhat subdued for a while. Bear in mind nothing lasts forever. You can use this downtime to relax and enjoy life. The week ahead will be much busier.

TAURUS: You need to look long and hard this week ahead at where you are heading. If it is the right direction with some creative project you will likely find you need to make a detour. Only by taking the bull by the horns will life lighten up.

GEMINI: With Saturn in your opposing sign it's very possible you are engaged in a financial discussion of some kind. Keep your mind focused on the expected outcome and do not back away from your goal. If you are sleeping well at night that's good...if not search your conscience.

CANCER: It is a month of makeover, either you or your home or (if you can afford it), both. Either way get moving as it's the right time. Mars moving in Virgo visiting your house of communication will move you through the old and stale.

LEO: As this month ends you could find yourself stretched pretty much beyond your financial limits. One is work (or the lack of it) and following on is cash flow. It's going to get easier before the middle of October.

VIRGO: Any task you take on will be easier to deal with and will likely last until the end of this month. Be on the safe side and make it a priority to complete anything outstanding because new ideas and opportunities will come up next month.

LIBRA: Travel is much on your mind and this can make you stressed or feel limited. The clue is to make an effort to keep busy. Jupiter visiting you currently is leaving very soon and will leave some unexpected gifts. Happy Birthday.

SCORPIO: Pressure in some emotional areas may have got you down and feeling blue recently. However now your boss Mars is visiting your friend Virgo the pressure is already lifting. Jupiter is set to arrive in your life and times in a few day. This the highlight for several SAGITTARIUS: You can complete the final part of the year and end it in a blast of glory. Whatever way you having been trying to move forward is not going to harm your end result now that Jupiter your boss is in a positive light for you. However do not take any short cuts financially as Saturn is still active.

CAPRICORN: It is time to tell the truth (either for you or someone you know who is not). Mars in your cousin planet Virgo will also stir up your emotions somewhat. Do not let them get to you especially this weekend. Best to lay low for now.

AQUARIUS: Social groups and gatherings will be much on your agenda these next few days or so. You will benefit much from other people's input, so be open to what your close friends or family tell you. It will much to your advantage in your general life.

PISCES: This week you have the powerful Mars in your opposite sign Virgo assisting you to move onwards and upwards. Be low-key and spend time alone. This will help to keep you from feeling overwhelmed until you are feeling more confident.

Paris Fashion: A Cultural History

Exclusive interview with author Valerie Steele discussing her updated guide to French fashion

"While traveling Paris, I realized that there was no real cultural history of Paris fashion, only books that enumerated the various designers there," says Paris Fashion: A Cultural History author Valerie Steele. "There is a reason why Paris fashion, and Paris itself, have become mythical, larger-than-life phenomena. There is so much beauty and history and excitement."

This is the third edition of Paris Fashion. First published in 1988, it's been completely revised to include fashion and designers from the 21st century. With beautiful illustrations and images, the book starts with the 14th century and moves to present day. It shows how fashion played a part in history and politics. Anyone who loves Paris or fashion will love this book.

For over 300 years Paris has been the capital of fashion. The Parisians tend to lead fashion. When Napoleon came into power, the Empire dress become all the rage. Despite the war with England, the style moved from Paris to London. Mostly the English ladies were not as daring as the French women who dampened their dresses to make them transparent. There were a few exceptions though. Some aristocratic British women like Lady Caroline Lamb were considered risqué.

Steele did extensive research and visited Paris dozens of times. She loves to travel. "It's always great to travel to another city to promote the book," says Steele.

"First you read books and then you start tracking down references in footnotes, or going through bibliographies or library data bases looking for intriguing titles," says Steele. "I did years of research, reading everything from novels and letters to fashion magazines and looking biographies, at fashion prints and photographs, going to fashion shows, talking with designers. My favorite period in French fashion history would be now, although I also love the Belle Epoque."

Steele has written 25 books, including Fashion

The Museum at FIT (Taschen). Her book The Corset won a prize. Paris Fashion has yet to be optioned for film or TV.

Steele wrote Shoe Obsession, released in 2013, a wonderfully illustrated homage to an obsession for extreme and high fashion shoes. Japan Fashion, 2010, covers the 1980s Japanese fashion revolution with avantgarde designers Issey Miyake, Yohji Yamamoto, and Rei Kawakubo of Comme des Garçons.

"Kathryn Earle my editor, and a great friend," says Steele. "She is incredibly enthusiastic, smart, and funny. As an editor, she's also brilliant and supportive."

Earle had published an earlier edition, but so much has happened in the interim, and the subject is so visual that the publisher wanted

A-Z: The Collection of to update the text significantly, and increase the extent and quality of the illustrations program to produce an absolutely gorgeous book.

"The enhanced production provides an appropriate showcase for the content, which is simply unparalleled," says Earle. "Roxanne Lowit's cover image, Galliano for Dior, 2000, sparked internal debate. Some thought it was macabre and wanted a more conventional image. But Val and I think it is simply perfect, ripe with historical references, thought-provoking and visually arresting. It's hard to imagine a better image to sum up the history of French fashion."

Steele is currently working on Think Pink, a book and exhibition on the color pink, on 300 years of pink in fashion,

Flipping Heck! TOWIE star raises...eyebrows

LA's newest British arrival, reality TV star Mark Wright beamed with delight during his recent encounter with Hollywood actress Margot Robbie, and couldn't but post a provocative pic of the pair on social media.

Wright, who shot to fame as part of the TOWIE phenomenon (The Only Way Is Essex, in case you've been living under a rock), relaunching his career in the U.S and if this snap is anything to go by, all seems to be going swimmingly well!

He got along famously with Robbie, who got hitched in a hush-hush ceremony in December.

I reported how the Australian pretty Robbie, blonde 'confirmed' her marriage to British director Tom Ackerley with a cheeky showing her snap flashing her diamond ring on her wedding finger following the ceremony.

In a similar style, Mark, who is happily married to former Coronation Street star Michelle Keegan, chose to give fans a glimpse of his chunky marital band in their hilarious Instagram image.

Queenland-born Margot, who appeared so memorably The Wolf of Wall Street and more recently in Suicide Squad, looked stylish in a pretty pink blouse and left her blonde hair in loose, natural waves for their catch-up.

She was captured sitting at a table while Mark, dressed in a blue jumper, sidled up behind

Flashing identical beaming smiles, they stuck their wedding fingers up for the which Mark captioned: "When you join in with @ margotrobbie to recreate THAT iconic pic."

Oo-er!

Another put it this way: "You're taking the biscuit now geez. Great to see you doing so well mate x" while a third quipped: "She's got bigger fingers than you Mark."

Looks like he nailed it!

Fans rejoice: here comes a new track, by George...!

FANS of the late George Michael were rejoicing this week after the release of a new single from the late musician, titled "Fantasy".

The track remixed by another music legend - Nile Rodgers – using a B-side from Michael's "Freedom '90" single and the cut has already been dubbed a masterpiece.

Chic founder and in-demand producer Rodgers admitted having "mixed feelings" working on the track, just months after Michael's death.

"This He said: process was extremely emotional for me."

Reaction to the mix has been largely positive, with people calling it "uplifting" and "simply beautiful".

'Fantasy' was one of the first songs George wrote after the monumental success of his Faith album in 1989 when he was becoming frustrated by the trappings of fame.

He abandoned the with a more plaintive sound on 1990's Listen Without Prejudice. But, according to George's manager David Austin, the singer revisited 'Fantasy' last year.

Austin told Radio 2's Chris Evans: "George phoned up Nile Rodgers, his good pal, in early 2016 because the two of them have always spoken the same musical language,

The remix – which features new guitar and vocal hooks – came after George's sisters Melanie and Yioda revealed they planned continue their brother's legacy through they what called extraordinarily "his beautiful music".

Fantasy will feature on a deluxe version Listen Without Prejudice Vol 1/ MTV

REDKNAPP: dismal start to the season at Birmingham

I was canned too soon, insists Harry

Birmingham sacked Harry Redknapp on Saturday night, but after the manager left St Andrew's he defiantly claimed he would have brought Premier League football back to the club.

The 70-year-old former Tottenham boss was brought in on a rescue mission at the end of last season and kept City in the Championship. But the club have lost seven of their 10 games in all competitions this term, including their last six, following a 3-1 home defeat to Preston.

That reversal proved to be the final straw and City released a statement which read: "Unfortunately due to the poor start to the campaign which sees the club second from bottom of the Championship, we are left with no choice but to terminate the contract of the manager with immediate effect."

Redknapp, however, is adamant he would have delivered success, and claimed he was hamstrung by injuries and deals that did not get done during the transfer window.

That excuse will surprise some given Redknapp signed 14 players for £20 million in the summer after signing a contract worth £1.75 million to take charge for this season.

"I'm disappointed. It's been difficult, I have had one week with a new team and new players, one week," Redknapp told The Birmingham Mail.

"It's not an excuse but today I had three of the forwards missing who I would have picked, probably the three most exciting players in all honesty.

"It takes time to build a football team, not one week. I didn't get the players in I was after in pre-season and suddenly I have got a load of players in.

"A lot of the targets I was after I couldn't get over the line. And I still felt that given time I would have given them a team that would have been challenging for promotion, I had no doubt about that. Maybe not this year but over the next two years I would have got promotion.

"I had to do well this year but I would have stayed because I loved it there, absolutely loved my time there.

"I am not an idiot, I am not a silly person who goes around saying things, I think I have been round long enough."

SUDDEN DOWNFALL: Samson was sacked amid claims of racial discrimination about Mark's conduct during his time at Bristol. We believe he breached his professional boundaries."

The original concerns about Sampson's behaviour during his time at what is now Bristol City Women's Football Club were passed on anonymously to the FA in March 2014, four months after he took the England manager's job.

The FA refused to disclose the details of Sampson's misconduct but later made clear it was about "boundaries between coach and players". Glenn described the case as "the most awkward and complicated issue I have ever dealt with".

He said: "We know that coaches are in a potential position of power and that position mustn't be abused. That's been true across all sports and is true in football as well. We have to be really clear and I think we are at the FA about what we stand for in that respect. He is not deemed a safeguarding risk in football but to us it's a conduct issue. The standards we set in the FA would not be compatible. Α club [considering employing Sampson] would have to make their own mind up."

Sampson, 34, was sacked amid allegations of racial discrimination by former England international Eniola Aluko against him.

He was previously cleared of any wrongdoing in that regard by an independent FA investigation by the barrister Katharine Newton. That investigation, separate to his dismissal, is poised to be re-opened in the light of Aluko's Chelsea team-mate, Drew Spence, coming forward to corroborate her claims.

The minister for sport, Tracey Crouch, branded the situation a "mess". She added that "it raises very serious questions about whether the historic processes that the FA had in place around the recruitment of coaches were appropriate, for something like this to have been missed. The FA is right to have taken action but reassurance is needed to make sure this does not happen again at any level of coaching".

The Women in Football group says questions over suitability were raised during his recruitment process. But the FA claims that directors Kelly Simmons and Dan Ashworth, who were involved in Sampson's recruitment, were not aware of any allegations before hiring him.

ACCUSER: Eni Aluko made the initial allegations against Sampson

No defence for Klopp as Foxes stun Reds

Islam Slimani's superb Liverpool had dominated strike helped Leicester see off a wasteful Liverpool at the King Power Stadium to reach the fourth round of the Carabao Cup on Tuesday night.

The Algeria striker's left-footed shot found the top corner after substitute Shinji Okazaki had put the Foxes ahead.

That came after a first half in which Philippe Coutinho impressed before being replaced.

Okazaki's arrival sparked the Foxes into life and he latched on to Vicente Iborra's knockdown for the good both missed opportunities for ` the visitors, who named a much-changed side.

Elsewhere, Roy got Hodgson his first win as Crystal Palace boss at home to Huddersfield and Bristol City shocked Premier League Stoke.

It took Tottenham 65 minutes to break down a resolute Barnsley at Wembley, while Leeds beat Burnley penalties at Turf Moor.

Joshua King scored in extra time to send Bournemouth through against Brighton, as Middlesbrough knocked out fellow Championship Villa side Aston and Swansea won at Reading.

The one bright spot for the Reds was the form of Coutinho, who having returned to the Liverpool side for the 1-1 draw with Burnley on Saturday, was by far the best player on the pitch in the first half as he sauntered between the lines to dictate the tempo of the Reds' attacks.

And Oxlade-Chamberlain, making his first start since a £35m move from Arsenal, had a shot blocked from a smart Robertson cut-back before Solanke headed off target from another pin-point ball.

But Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp opted to replace Coutinho with Ben Woodburn at the break and, despite some impressive running from Klopp said it "was always the plan" to give Coutinho 45 minutes, but his departure was countered with the arrival of Okazaki for the Foxes, the Japan striker adding pace and intensity.

He reacted first to fire low into the corner for the opener with 25 minutes remaining, then teed up Slimani for a fantastic solo effort that put the game beyond the visitors.

Chelsea have agreed terms with Atletico Madrid for the transfer of striker Diego Costa back to the Spanish club.

The move, which will be completed in January, is subject to the agreement of personal terms and a medical.

Atletico said the who 28-year-old, left the club to join Chelsea in 2014, would have a medical in the next few days.

Spain international Costa has not played for the Blues this season, and spent much of August in his native Brazil.

He cannot be registered as a player for the La Liga outfit until January, when the club's transfer window ban comes to an end. The two teams play each other

This followed reports of an offer from China that would have been worth £30m a year in salary. At the time, Chelsea said they had no intention of selling him.

Later in that month, Tianjin Quanjian's owner said a bid to sign Costa had been scuppered by new rules over foreign players in the Chinese Super League.
