My 'car crash' life.

■ Former News of the World editor comes clean on work, romance and money

Former News International chief executive Rebekah Brooks laid bare details of her "car crash" personal life this week as she gave evidence about the inner workings of the News of the World.

year-old continued giving evidence in her defence at the Old Bailey on Friday, culminating a week that has seen the controversial journalist dominating the nation's front pages.

Brooks became emotional as she faced questions about her relationships with actor EastEnders actor Ross Kemp, her former deputy Andy Coulson who went on to become communications director for David Cameron - and current husband Charlie Brooks, and her difficulties becoming a mother.

She also denied any knowledge of a contract worth £92,000 per year given to private investigator Glenn Mulcaire, who has already admitted phone hacking.

Her barrister, Jonathan Laidlaw QC, apologised for having to question her about her love life, including relationship with former EastEnders actor Kemp, and her affair with Andy Coulson.

She met Kemp in 1995, and they became engaged the following year but split in 1997. A year later they re-kindled their relationship, and by

2001 they talked about children and marriage.

'put on hold'

Brooks appeared to well up as she asked for a break, before talking about her fertility treatment, which was halted by the start of the hours were very long Iraq war in 2003.

She said: "It was a tough year for us. Basically, life was put on hold for Iraq."

The court heard that the couple eventually split in 2005, but it was but the two of us weren't amicable.

Brooks said: "I am sure if Ross was here, he would say the same. Our whole relationship was a rollercoaster, and so sometimes it was good,

sometimes it was not

As Mr Laidlaw moved on to her relationship co-defendant with Coulson, who is also accused of conspiring to hack phones, she admitted periods of "physical intimacy" between 1998 and 2006.

She met her husband Charlie Brooks in March

Brooks told the court: "My personal life was a bit of a car crash for many years. It's probably very easy to blame work but the and hard and you got thrown together in an industry like that. It was wrong and it shouldn't have happened but things did.

"Ross was a good man meant to be and certainly Andy and I weren't meant to be. When I met Charlie I was happy for the first

Recent flood damage 'preventable' say experts

■ Shadow chancellor blasts 'short-termist' budgeting of flood defences

Some of the damage from the recent floods could have been prevented if the correct water management techniques had been used, a group of experts has said.

In an open letter, the experts - representing 15 organisations including Institution Environmental Sciences. the Chartered Institution Water Environmental Management and the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors urged David Cameron to convene cross-departmental conference bringing Whitehall departments, the Environment Agency and the professions to put in place measures to prevent a repeat of the current floods.

The call came as shadow chancellor Ed Balls pledged that investment in flood defences would be a priority for an incoming Labour government.

Writing in the Daily Telegraph, Mr Balls accused the coalition Government of "short-termist salami-slicing" of budgets for flood defences, and said that 300 "shovel-ready" schemes were shelved last year because of lack of funding.

drainage systems

The open letter, also published in the Telegraph, set out technical measures which could cut the risk of future floods, including the use of forestry and land management to hold back water in the upper reaches of rivers as well as dredging to ease problems in the lower reaches.

The experts said that sustainable drainage systems should be fitted on existing and new buildings and that buildings and land that cannot be properly protected should be made resilient to withstand flooding. All new housing on flood plains should be resilient when built, they

"While we are pleased to hear that the Prime Minister will provide leadership and funding, it is essential that government actions are based on best practice developed over many years," said the letter. "Water management techniques could have helped prevent the effect of flooding on villages, towns and over surrounding land seen recently. Emergency measures are in order for the immediate crisis. But in the long term, the management of water requires a clear strategy."

The letter came a day after the Met Office confirmed that the UK has suffered its wettest winter in records dating back more than a century.

flood warnings

Figures for December 1 to February 19 show that the UK has had 19.2 inches of rain, making it the wettest winter in records dating back to 1910, beating the previous record set in 1995 of 19.1 inches.

Two severe flood warnings remain in place in the Somerset Levels, which has been one of the worst-hit areas this winter, suffering prolonged flooding in the face of repeated storms and heavy rain.

Across the rest of southern and central England, the risk of flooding is receding as river levels fall, including

NO END IN SIGHT: Network Rail have dealt another blow to the beleaguered counties of Devon and Cornwall by pushing back by a month the date it hopes to finish repairing a crucial stretch of railway in Dawlish in Devon (pictured, above) – a delay that could cost the local economy up to £300m in lost business. The railway is the main artery to the South Western Counties apart from the more time-consuming road link.

Plymouth Chamber of Commerce chief executive, David Parlby, said he estimated that the suspension of the line is costing Plymouth more than £1m a day, as businesses find it harder to meet contacts and freight deliveries are disrupted.

along the Thames and Severn, the Environment Agency said.

But properties in areas including Windsor and Maidenhead, Surrey, Buckingham and West Berkshire could remain flooded for some time. And with more unsettled weather on the way, the risk of flooding will be slow to disappear, the Environment Agency warned.

There are 70 flood warnings, and 119 less serious flood alerts currently in place across England and Wales. Groundwater is continuing to rise, with continuing flooding in parts of Greater London, Kent, Hampshire, Wiltshire and Dorset.

BOWIE: Best British Male Solo Artist at the Brits

David Bowie wins Brit award, asks Scotland to 'stay with us'

David Bowie has sparked fury in Scotland after his unexpected foray into the independence debate at the Brit awards.

The veteran musician and style icon won the award for Best British Male Solo Artist, but did not attend the ceremony. Instead, supermodel Kate Moss went up to collect the award for Bowie, dressed in one of his Ziggy Stardust outfits - known as the "rabbit costume".

She read out a message from Bowie that read:

"In Japanese myths the rabbits on my old costume that Kate is wearing live on the moon. Kate is from Venus and I am from Mars. I am completely delighted to have won the Brit for being the best male, but I am, aren't I Kate? (to which Ms Moss mouthed 'yes')

"I think it's a great way to end the day. Thank you very, very much.

"And Scotland, stay with us."

Responding through Twitter and Facebook, many in Scotland appear to have declined his offer, encouraging him in some questionable language to return to Mars forthwith.

In an open letter signed from The People of Scotland, the Glaswegian author Ron Windward wrote: "Congratulations on your Brit award and thank you for your kind offer to 'stay with us', delivered so eloquently by your emissary Ms Kate Moss.

"I am really sorry to let you know that on this occasion will will have to decline your heartfelt plea, even though you obviously put a lot of effort into weighing up the pros and cons of both the YES and NO camps before arriving at your conclusion."

Another not quite-so Hunky Dory comment, on his Facebook page read: "* off back to Mars."

Independence sentiment up despite sterling warning

LONDON: The first opinion poll since Westminster warned Scots they would lose the pound if they voted to leave the United Kingdom showed a slight increase support for independence ahead of a referendum on the issue scheduled for September 18.

David Cameron's government have been fighting a vigorous public relations battle to undermine the case for independence by cautioning that breaking the 307-year-old union with England would make Scots poorer.

But Scottish nationalists claim that such tactics have provoked a backlash among Scots, though opinion polls continue to show that Scots would vote to stay in the United Kingdom.

A Survation/Scottish Daily Mail poll carried out on February 17 and 18 of 1,005 people found 37.7 percent support independence, which it said could be compared to 36.9 percent recorded in a PanelBase/Sunday Times poll carried out on January 29-February 6.

GETTING SHIRTY: the gap between the yes and no votes is closing....

The Survation poll showed 46.6 percent would vote 'no' to independence, a decline from 48.5 percent in the PanelBase/Sunday Times poll.

shared asset

The gap between those who would vote against and for independence narrowed to 8.9 percentage points from 11.6 percentage points in the earlier poll.

With seven months to go until voting day, pollsters say it would only take a small section of the 4 million electorate to change their minds for the result to change.

Scottish nationalists, led by First Minister Alex Salmond, have promised Scots that independence will allow them to forge their own prosperity: keeping the pound, the queen and using North Sea oil revenues to bankroll the new Scottish state.

But in a closely chore ographed phed campaign, Prime Minister David Cameron and Chancellor George Osborne have warned that breaking the union would endanger stability and propel Scotland towards a poorer future without the pound.

The Survation poll showed that both "yes" and "no" voters had a strong preference for keeping the pound and that 65 percent of respondents wanted Salmond to come up with a Plan B for the currency.

Salmond has argued that the pound is a shared asset and Scotland could refuse to take a share of liabilities such as the UK's £1.2 trillion pound debt if it was refused access.

Maddy: the net is closing

■ Top cop confirms there has been 'progress' in McCann case

Britain's most senior police officer has suggested his officers are closing in on the people who abducted Madeleine McCann.

Scotland Yard boss Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe admitted his officers have the names of suspects and that 'some progress' is being made in the inquiry.

But he declined to be drawn on when the suspects would be quizzed over her disappearance Portugal seven years declined comment further.

Asked whether his officers had the names of suspects, he replied: 'That is correct'.

It emerged last month that the Met identified three burglars as prime suspects for Madeleine's disappearance.

Analysis of mobile phone data suggests the men were close to the scene of her abduction, at the time she went missing, and that they were in close contact with each other in the hours that followed.

Portuguese newspapers later reported that three former workers at the Club where the family were staying when Maddie went missing, were Scotland Yard's prime suspects over disappearance.

Met detectives are reported to have requested bank details of the men, who are thought to have carried out a series of break-ins at the Ocean Club in the run up to Maddie's disappearance.

Although local media reported the men had been employed at the Ocean Club complex in Praia da Luz, it was not clear whether they were working there at the time Madeleine went missing in May 2007.

Madeleine, who was nearly four, disappeared from her family's holiday apartment in Praia da Luz in the Algarve on May 3 2007 as her parents dined at a nearby restaurant with friends.

Alps shooting: former policeman arrested

A former policeman named locally as Eric Devouassoux has been arrested by French Police in the Alps murder mystery case in which a British family were gunned down on a remote mountain road.

The 48-year-old, described as a "taciturn mountain man" and said to have left the police force last year, was found to have a number of weapons in his home less than two miles from the site of the quadruple murder.

The weapons were seized by police searching his home on Tuesday.

Shaker rattles the south west

FIRST FLOODS, then sinkholes...and earthquaies.

England was hit by a rare 4.1 magnitude quake on Thursday, with the epicenter lying three miles beneath the Bristol Channel.

The British Geological Survey (BGS) said the tremor, which happened at 1.21pm on Thursday, was being analysed.

The tremor is thought to have lasted several seconds.

Residents reported their houses rocking and others described the earthquake as like a "heavy truck going up the road".

It was felt in areas including Dartmoor, Bristol, Taunton, Swansea, Llanelli, Barnstaple and Gloucester, according to the BGS.

Robin Beer tweeted: "Anybody else feel the earth tremor just now?!"

Glenn Watts added: 'Small tremor felt in Lasted five Exeter. Armchairs seconds. wobbled, as did the TV on its stand."

People in South Wales also reported feeling the ground shake.

One tweeter wrote: "Earthquake tremor in Wales today. We felt it in the building Swansea."

Brian Baptie, from the BGS, told Sky News: "We get an earthquake of this size maybe roughly once every three years somewhere in the Prices up down the chippie as fishing fleet gets battered...

■ Price of fish is 'always affected by the weather' says fishmongers chief

Britain's favourite dish, fish and chips, faces a sharp rise in price as the recent storms cause the wholesale price of fish to go up by more than 40 per cent.

Fishing vessels across the UK's coasts have been unable to set sail for much of the past month because of the stormy weather, stopping supply and pushing up fish prices.

Because of this, the price of a portion of fish and chips has gone up 10 per cent, around 35p per portion.

Wholesalers are being forced to pay 40 per cent more for haddock, plaice and whiting caught in the Atlantic ocean.

Other species of fish been nearly impossible to catch, and as a result some fish markets have been left completely bare.

The president of the National Federation of Fishmongers, Jonathan Adams, said: 'The price of fish is always affected by the weather - when it goes up, consumers must expect to pay as much as 10 per cent more.

'Buyers have had about a 30-40 per cent price increase recently and some things have been virtually impossible to get hold of

'When I went to Brixham fish market the other week they had absolutely no produce available for just the second time in ten years.

'It should be back down again within the next couple of weeks, I guess it all depends on what happens next.'

The price of popular white fish often used in the British staple, such as cod and haddock, have gone up dramatically over the last 12 months.

The price of haddock has risen by 54 per cent to £1,474 a ton, and plaice has risen 51 per cent to £1,246 a ton.

Fishmonger Malcom Smith said: 'Usually fishing boats go out for five to seven days but they have only been able to get out for a day or two because of the bad weather down Cornwall and Devon.

'Prices can fluctuate by up to 35 per cent in just seven days but we try to even out the prices throughout the year so that we don't shock the customers.

'The prices are starting to come down again now because there are more fish in the system. Things will improve week on 'Fish are a bit like the stock market. It is the only product these days that is still auctioned. They sell for the price that buyers want to pay.'

Passenger 'Mutiny' on RyanAir flight

The low-flying reputation of RyanAir encountered further headwinds this week after angry passengers called police from the tarmac after being left for hours without food or drink.

More than 100 travellers, including children, had already faced a long wait to board the delayed flight from Stansted to Porto in Portugal. Three hours later, the plane was still on the ground.

Police duly arrived and ordered the passengers to be debarked. Their flight finally took off eleven hours late.

She was also questioned about the inner workings of the News of the World during her editorship between 2000 and 2003.

Asked by Mr Laidlaw if she knew anything Mulcaire's about the former contract, News International chief executive said: "No, not at all."

Brooks admitted that, as editor, an expense as big as that should have been run past her for approval.

The court heard that when Brooks became editor of the now-defunct Sunday tabloid in May 2000, the editorial budget allocated for the year July 1 2000 to June 30 2001 around £23.4 was million, with a forecast annual revenue around £160 million and profit of around £30 million.

As she was questioned multimillion-pound budgets given to the tabloid, Brooks told the court: "The NOTW was very profitable during my editorship but then it was a good time for newspapers back then.

"I think every year that I was there we had a healthy profit and I think it stayed around the time."

Brooks, of Churchill, Oxfordshire. denies conspiring to phones, conspiring to commit misconduct in public office, conspiring to cover up evidence to pervert the course of justice.

She gave details to the court of large payments made by the newspaper for celebrity pictures and exclusive stories.

David Beckham was paid £1m to run excerpts of his autobiography in the Sun and News of the World, Brooks said, and revealed behind-the-scenes deals with celebrities, PR guru Max Clifford and Big Brother contestants such as "Nasty Nick".

Asked about the extent private which investigators were used by the tabloid from 2000 to 2003, she said: "It was quite normal to have detectives private working on the paper." She said they helped in tracing people who were difficult to find.

Brooks said she would not expect to be told every time a private investigator was used for a story but there were some specific occasions when the use of a private detective was raised with her, such as when the newspaper carried out its campaign for Sarah's Law.

Wearing a grey chiffon dress, Brooks told the packed courtroom that the campaign for parents to have access to details of convicted paedophiles "defined editorship".

The court heard that Brooks's contract when she became editor of the NOTW included a clause that she would be responsible for agreeing payments for the contributions to

Rose West urged to break silence on schoolgirl

The brother of a schoolgirl who vanished in Gloucester has urged jailed serial killer Rose West to reveal what happened to his sister.

Ahead of the 20th anniversary of the Cromwell Street murder investigation, Peter Bastholm said it was time for West to break her silence.

Mary Bastholm was 15 when she disappeared without trace on a winter's night.

Police thought it was likely Mary was abducted and murdered Rose's builder husband Fred, who killed himself in prison a year after his arrest. But without a body they could not prove it.

"I think Rose knows exactly what happened to Mary because I assume she and Fred discussed it themselves. between Whether she will ever disclose it, I really don't

"It would be a final act to find Mary's body and lay it to rest after all these years, after all we have gone through."

Mary's body was not among the nine victims' remains recovered from the excavation of the House of Horrors, 25 Cromwell Street. Gloucester, which began on 24 February, 1994.

But police did find evidence that suggested a link between Mary and Fred West.

Mr Bastholm said: "My Mr Bastholm, 69, said: wife and I went down to the police station to view a lot of things that had been taken from the Wests' house. My wife picked out a silver locket on a chain and she said that was Mary's because she wore it as a bridesmaid at wedding.

"We had a photo of it and police took it away to examine, but because it was a black and white picture they said they could not tell if the locket was silver or gold, so nothing came of it. But it was exactly like the one found at Cromwell Street."

Fred West is said to have confessed to killing Mary in conversation with his son Stephen, but never admitted it to police.

Wounded Ecclestone limps across finish line in £85m court case

■ Formula 1 boss wins damages claim but suffers withering assessment from the judge over bribe

A High Court judge has rejected an £85m damages claim against Formula 1 boss Bernie Ecclestone but said he did pay a bribe over a sale of F1 shares.

Mr Justice Newey found Mr Ecclestone had made a "corrupt" deal. And he had been not "reliable or truthful" during the case in London, the judge added.

But he said there had been no financial loss to German media group Constantin Medien. It said it would appeal.

Mr Ecclestone, 83, said he was "relieved" at the ruling.

Mr Ecclestone is the chief executive of F1, and has ruled the sport for almost four decades.

Constantin Medien had an interest in the 2006 sale of a stake in F1, belonging to the German bank Bayern LB (BLB) and bought by private equity group CVC Capital Partners.

Lawyers for Constantin

Medien claimed that the sale was agreed "without the normal and proper process" and for an undervalued price, and were seeking £85m (103m euros) in compensation.

'Technical grounds'

But Mr Justice Newey, delivering on Thursday the judgement reserved at the end of the two-month case last December, said the damages claim failed because it had been "no part" of Mr Ecclestone's purpose for shares to be sold at an "undervalue".

"No loss to Constantin has been shown to have been caused by the corrupt arrangement," the judge said. "That fact is fatal to the claim."

Mr Ecclestone always denied any wrongdoing, saying he was the victim of blackmail and that it wasn't bribery.

The judge found that Mr Ecclestone had made payments to bribe German banker Gerhard Gribkowsky to facilitate the sale to a buyer chosen by him.

Mr Ecclestone has admitted paying Gribkowsky, but denied bribery and claimed he was effectively the victim of blackmail.

Giving evidence last December, Mr Ecclestone said the damages claim "lacks any merit".

In written findings, Mr Justice Newey said: "The payments were a bribe. They were made because Mr Ecclestone had entered into a corrupt agreement with Dr Gribkowsky on May 2005 under which Dr Gribkowsky was to be rewarded for facilitating the sale of BLB's shares in the F1 Group to a buyer acceptable to Mr Ecclestone.

"Mr Ecclestone's aim was to be rid of the banks. He was strongly averse to their involvement in the F1 Group and was keen that their shares should be transferred to someone more congenial to him."

The judge also said:

I find it impossible to regard him as a reliable or truthful witness."- Mr. Justice Newey of London's High Court on F1 supremo Bernie Ecclestone

"Even... making allowances for the lapse of time and Mr Ecclestone's age, I am afraid that I find it impossible to regard him as a reliable or truthful witness."

Following the ruling, a statement on behalf of Mr Ecclestone said he was "delighted that this thorough ly unmeritorious claim has been dismissed".

The judge's finding that Mr Ecclestone had paid a bribe was, it added, "not underpinned by reliable evidence" because the source of the allegation - Gribkowsky - had not given evidence in the case.

Mr Ecclestone faces a criminal trial in Germany in April over the payments to Gribkowsky. He has stood down as a director of F1 ahead of the criminal trial, but continues to run the sport on a day-to-day basis.

Speaking to the BBC, Mr Ecclestone said he was "relieved" he will not have to pay "an awful lot of money to somebody I should not have had to pay".

Asked about the judge's verdict that he had not been "reliable or truthful" during the case, he said: "Let's assume I am a liar and let's assume I am unreliable.

"I've run the sport for the last 30-odd years and nothing has changed. So if I was unreliable, and whatever, I have been lucky to have been as successful as we have been."

Sodden Britain see sudden rise of sinkholes

THE MISERABLE litany of atrocious weather conditions in Britain this winter has produced an unwelcome new chapter, with a sudden rash of sinkholes appearing across the country.

This week two more sinkholes opened up in the south of England, taking the number to eight in the last month.

The pair are just a mile from the hole that opened up on the M2 motorway in Kent, according to Colin Parsons, a local resident.

One of the sinkholes, which are about 500 yards apart on farmland between Sittingbourne and Faversham, is about 9ft deep while the other is about 10ft deep.

The sinkholes are the latest in a spate to appear after a 35ft wide and 20ft deep one opened up under homes in a quiet cul-de-sac in Hemel H e m p s t e a d, Hertfordshire, on Saturday morning.

Last week a stretch of the M2 was closed after a 15ft deep hole was discovered in the central reservation, and on February 2 a teenager's car was swallowed up when a 30ft deep crater appeared in a family's driveway in High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire

Another appeared in

Ripon, North Yorkshire, on Monday, which left residents concerned their properties may collapse.

Tony Cooper of the British Geological Survey explained how the new sinkhole in Kent looks to be an oval, about 30ft by 45ft, but only about 20 inches deep in the middle.

"It's quite typical but there are much bigger ones and much smaller ones," Dr Cooper said at the scene.

He said a 30ft deep hole opened up just across the other side of the nearby river in 1997 and swallowed four garages.

Another, in 1978, appeared about 50 yards from the current site.

Dr Cooper said water pouring through a cave system below a layer of gypsum helped trigger sinkholes.

The expert said gypsum is extremely soluble, and that a block the size of van would take just 18 months to dissolve in a river.

"It's quite difficult to predict where the next one is going to be," he said. "But, quite often, they occur in lines that follow the joint pattern and, quite often, there are groups that occur quite close together in time."

In Ripon, North Yorkshire, another sinkhole opened up under a detached house, leaving part of the structure close to collapse and a community concerned about the future of their properties.

No one was hurt when the 25ft wide hole opened up beneath the 100-year-old building on Monday afternoon.

But firefighters rescued a dog from the property before the whole area was sealed off amid fears that the precariously leaning side of the brick property could fall at any time.

Neighbours said the 30ft high wing was still moving. Local councillor Stuart Martin said he had spoken to the family living in the house and they were "very distressed".

Brits in LA/ Meet a Member: Laura Harbron

Meet Laura Harbron from St. Louis, MO who moved to LA about three years ago to pursue television writing and comedy.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? Yes! I wanted to get into television, so I knew I needed to come out to LA to achieve my goals.

What one thing do you miss from home?

Toasted raviolis.
They're the most amazing food in the world and they only exist in St. Louis. It's basically breaded and fried raviolis with meat inside. And you dip them in marinara sauce. Trust me, they're fantastic.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus the Midwest?

Life in LA is definitely more exciting than back home. More people, bigger city. It's just a different state of mind. I will always love St. Louis - it's a really fun place with its own charms, but there's something about LA. The whole city is filled with new opportunities.

gem in LA that you want to share with us? Yes. I know the location of the best taco truck in the city: Leo's Taco Truck. It's parked in the gas station at the corner of Venice and La Brea (across from the Taco Bell). $1 tacos and they're just amazing. Like beyond good, authentic tacos. Get the Al Pastor tacos - they have a huge spit that they slice the meat from on the spot, and then they add a little fresh pineapple on top. Delicious.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Stop thinking about it and just move here

Stop thinking about it and just move here already! Seriously, it's definitely a big move to make, but it's worth it. Plus, finding a job

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your ruler Mars is moving slowly backwards these next few weeks in Libra, which may dampen your ambition to start anything new. However, it is requesting you to discard anything not working.

TAURUS: You should feel like you need to get moving and ready for the spring season. You may think you are not in the mood, but as long as your ruler Venus stays in Aquarius, you will have plenty of energy.

GEMINI: What you could achieve this week is up to how willing you are to make the right connections. Holding on to what has obviously not worked is a good start, being honest and upfront at work is important.

CANCER: If you continue to hold on to grudges you will be on the losing side this week ahead. And remember to keep your temper in stressful situations. Once Jupiter starts his engines in the coming weeks all will be well.

LEO: The powerhouse planet Mars is in a difficult position for you in that you could clash with others with whom you are normally in harmony. So keep a low profile and remember to think before you speak.

VIRGO: Any task you take on will be easier to deal with next month and as this will last until the end of spring you will be wise to stay low key. You have been overtaxing your ability to worry over just about anything

LIBRA: Travel is much on your mind and since the powerful Mars is sitting still in your life the clue is to make an effort to keep cool. Keep moving gently forward and finish up any unfinished business.

SCORPIO: Your powerful boss is going backwards and so life is on a go-slow. The good news is that Mercury is moving in a positive way at the end of this month and soon will be joined by Jupiter and so your thoughts turn to love and creative matters.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is sitting in Cancerm, a water sign, until the middle of this year so be good as he will be watching you and also helping you to proceed in any unfinished business.

CAPRICORN: The Sun in Pisces will assist you to get the job done as this month is a great opportunity to complete an overdue project that has been long neglected.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling like a break away, so even if you can't get out of town take time out. Since this is the beginning of your new year make decisions on how you want to proceed until next birthday PISCES: Jupiter is assisting you all the way through mid-year in order to get your life in order and to experience happier days. Change is much on your mind and if you learn to live in the moment things will work out quicker and with less stress.

Churchill's First War: history repeats...

■ Exclusive interview with author Con Coughlin about lessons learned on leadership and war from Churchill's 1890's Afghan Campaign

Rating: ★★★

"When researching the American military's new counter-insurgency doctrine, both General Petraeus and General Stanley McChrystal said that they had drawn on the British experience of fighting the Afghans in the Victorian era," says Churchill's First War author Con Coughlin.

"The idea to write this book came to me when I was interviewing senior American military officers, including General David Petraeus, about their strategy for defeating Taliban the Afghanistan. In particular they had read Winston Churchill's publication, The Story of the Malakand Field Force, which is his account of waging war against the great, great grandfathers of the modern Taliban movement in the 1890s. It seemed remarkable to me that this neglected but fascinating period of Churchillian history should have such a direct impact on the modern military campaign in Afghanistan."

Before Winston Churchill was Prime Minister, he was a military officer. In 1890 he fought in the Afghan campaign on the Northwest Frontier against Pashtun tribesmen. These tribal wars provided the genesis of the Taliban. Churchill, a cavalry lieutenant, wrote about what he saw and his first book, published in 1898, is today required reading for both American British military commanders on ground.

Churchill's First War grabs your attention from the first chapter. Coughlin writes of adventure, potential peril and ultimately success for the British and how this helped shape Churchill to become the leader he became. Coughlin's writing is engaging and the book will make you think.

After becoming bored with playing polo in India, 1897 Churchill volunteered for a posting to the NorthWest Frontier, - modern day Pakistan. Churchill described the incredible killing power of new modern weapons after seeing Pashtun tribesmen, confident they had the numbers to overrun the British, cut down by British repeating rifles. This experience prompted Churchill to later support development of the British Coughlin says what surprised him most was that the modern battlefield is the same area where Churchill fought in the 1890s. "If you took a map of the CIA's drone strikes against the tribal areas of northern Pakistan they would correlate directly with the same villages, tribes and valleys that Churchill fought against in the 1890s, " says Coughlin.

Churchill's First War is Coughlin's sixth book. As an acclaimed author, he has been invited to the White House to meet with former President George W. Bush and to Downing Street to meet with former British Prime Minister Tony Blair. "Britain's current Prime Minister, David Cameron, reading photographed Churchill's First War on his beach holiday in England in the summer of 2013," says Coughlin.

Coughlin travelled extensively in Afghanistan and Pakistan, visiting the areas where Churchill fought. "I also studied the Churchill archives at Cambridge University in England, as well as digging our various contemporary accounts of the military campaign," says Coughlin.

'Slave' cleans up at the BAFTAs!

"Twelve Years a Slave" took top honours at this year's BAFTA Awards.

The British film and television honours took place in London at the Royal Opera House last Sunday.

Director Steve McQueen was on hand at the event to accept the Taking podium he thanked the Lupita cast Michael Nyong'o, Fassbender, and Chiewetel Ejiofor before reminding the audience: "There are 21 million people in slavery as we sit here. I just hope 150 years from now, our ambivalence will not allow another filmmaker to make this film."

The film's leading actor Chiwetel proved the Eijofor bookies right, winning

Frustration as Brits fall short of Sochi gold

Team GB endured a disappointing day at the Sochi Olympics on Friday after failing to achieve two historic targets.

The male curlers had to settle for silver after losing 9-3 to Canada and Elise Christie was penalised in her 1,000m short track skating semi-final.

Both failures meant the team missed out on the chance to win two golds at one Winter Games for the first time.

Had Christie won GB's fifth medal, it would have been the nation's best total at one Winter Olympics.

Britain have one more realistic chance to rewrite the record books, with the four-man bobsleigh team, who won World Cup silver in December, starting their bid for gold on Saturday.

GB's current medal haul of four equals the total they won at the inaugural Games in 1924.

They hit their three-medal Sochi target thanks Lizzy Yarnold (skeleton gold), Jenny (snowboard Iones slopestyle bronze) and the bronze won by GB's curlers on women's Thursday.

UK Sport, who set the target, has invested £14m to help Britain's teams at the Winter Olympic and Paralympic Games.

GOLDEN GIRL: Britain's Sochi Skeleton champ, Lizzy Yarnold

The first disappointment of the day came in the men's curling final when the GB team, led by skip David Murdoch, were outplayed by the defending champions.

"We just never got off to a good start," said Scot Murdoch, whose team defeated world champions Sweden in the semi-final. "We were struggling after three ends and when you go 5-1 down to a team of that calibre it's extremely difficult to come back."

The focus then turned to Christie. Many fancied the 23-year-old to win a medal from the 500m, 1500m and 1,000m events at these Games.

However, after penalties cost her the chance to win a medal in the 500m and 1500m earlier in the competition, she suffered the same fate again when she was judged to have impeded Chinese rival Jianrou Li.

But overall the British performance in these winter games is something of a high spot for a country with a very thin tradition in most of the Games' events.

"In my 20-plus years of involvement in British winter sport, I have never seen an Olympic team better prepared, confident and with such high expectation of themselves than this one," said director of performance Simon Timson.

"British athletes, whether they be summer, winter, Olympic or Paralympic, have belief in their ability, and this Games could prove to be a real turning point for us as a winter sports nation."

Premier League titans confirm summer US dates

ENGLISH FOOT-BALL's growing popularity on these shores was underlined this week by the announcement that Manchester City will play Liverpool at New York's Yankee Stadium this summer in the International Champions Cup.

The pre-season friendly, ahead of the start of the 2014-15 campaign, will take place on 30 July.

Manchester United will also feature in the eight-team tournament, which will take place across the United States.

Other key dates include United taking on Roma in Denver, City meeting AC Milan in Pittsburgh and Liverpool meeting AC Milan in North Carolina. A marquee game between Real Madrid and Manchester United is still in the planning stage.

United are in a group featuring Real Madrid, Inter Milan and Roma, while AC Milan and Olympiakos feature in FOOT- the same group as City rowing and Liverpool.

City's return to Yankee Stadium, where they beat Chelsea 5-3 last May, comes as they prepare for the full launch of their New York City FC Major League Soccer franchise in 2015.

Their meeting with Liverpool comes three days after facing AC Milan in Pittsburgh, while they take on Olympiakos in Minneapolis on 2 August.

Liverpool will play Olympiakos on 27 July in Chicago and, after facing City, take on Milan in Charlotte, North Carolina on 2 August.

United announced fixtures against Roma in Denver on 26 July and Inter Milan in Washington DC on 29 July.

The tournament starts on 24 July, 11 days after the end of the World Cup in Brazil, and three weeks before the start of the 2014-15 Premier League season on 16 August.

Pelligrini outburst sparks UEFA probe

Uefa has opened an investigation into Manchester City manager Manuel Pellegrini's comments after Tuesday's Champions League loss to Barcelona.

Pellegrini was fiercely critical of Swedish referee Jonas Eriksson after the 2-0 defeat at the Etihad, claiming he was "not impartial to both teams".

Uefa said a disciplinary inspector had been appointed to assess the remarks.

"Based on the outcome, a decision will be taken on whether disciplinary proceedings will be opened," Uefa said.

The first leg of Tuesday's last-16 encounter was poised at 0-0 early in the second half when Eriksson sent off City defender Martin Demichelis for a foul on Lionel Messi with the Argentina playmaker clean through.

Replays showed the incident was just outside the box, but a penalty was awarded which Messi duly converted. Dani Alves also scored in the last minute to secure a two-goal lead heading into the second-leg at the Nou Camp on 12 March.

Rooney:

"I know that's what some of the press thought but it's not a massive concern for me. This is because I know the direction that this club is going in, and if we don't make it this season then we will come back stronger and claim a Champions League spot next season.

"Let's not forget we still have a chance this year, some of the other teams are playing well but we have a strong squad here and if we have a positive end to the season then who knows what can happen."

Rooney has won five Premier League titles and the Champions League in his time at Old Trafford.

The forward, who returned to first-team action at the end of January after nearly a month out with an injury, has made 28 club appearances this season and scored 11 goals.

handful throughout, the Brazil-born forward denied by an excellent save by Brad Friedel after the Spurs defence had been carved open in the 25th minute.

Tottenham had scored 23 goals in their previous eight Europa League games, yet they were anything but clinical in Ukraine, Nacer Chadli screwing an easy chance horribly wide in the 28th minute.

Spurs had a penalty appeal turned down when Paulinho went sprawling under a 35th-minute challenge by Ivan Strinic, the referee awarding a free-kick on the edge of the area rather than pointing to the spot.

Then came Soldado's miss in the 56th minute, the ball hitting the Spaniard's shin with the goal at his mercy after Paulinho had got behind the home defence.

Friedel saved well from Giuliano before the late penalty drama.

Vertonghen could have few complaints after placing his arm on Matheus's shoulder before pulling him back.

K o n o p l y a n k a , a Liverpool target during the January transfer window,kept his composure to leave Tottenham with serious work to do in the return leg to stay in the competition.

We will survive, says new Fulham boss

New Fulham manager Felix Magath (above) says he is certain his side will avoid relegation from the Premier League and has set a target of six wins to stay up.

The Cottagers, who sacked Rene Meulensteen and his staff this week, sit bottom, four points from safety.

"I am sure we will avoid relegation with this team," said Magath, 60. The German defended his much-publicised challenging - and controversial - training methods, saying: "Ask the good players and you will get the right answers. I'm very nice."

A number of Magath's former players, including ex-Norway international Jan Aage Fjortoft, who worked under him at Eintracht Frankfurt, have highlighted the former Wolfsburg manager's emphasis on discipline and fitness.

A three-time Bundesliga winner as a manager during spells at Bayern Munich and Wolfsburg, Magath takes charge of a Fulham side with just one win in seven matches and the worst defensive record in the Premier League.

What a score for Wazza!

■ Rooney inks new £300,000-a-week deal with United Manchester United have confirmed that striker Wayne Rooney has signed a new five-and-a-half-year contract.

The 28-year-old England international has extended his current contract by four years in a deal worth up to £300,000 a week.

Rooney told his website: "I'm happy everything is now finalised and I can carry on concentrating on my football."

Rooney moved from Everton in 2004 and is 42 goals shy of passing Sir Bobby Charlton's record of 249 United goals.

He has scored 208 goals in 430 games in all competitions for the Red Devils, and will be 33 at the end of his new deal. He will become a club ambassador when he retires from the game.

Rooney said potentially breaking Charlton's record: "This is definitely something I would like to achieve. If I managed to do it it'd be something I'd be very proud of. My aim is always to score and create as many goals as possible, so if I can continue to score regularly and break the record then I would be delighted."

Manchester United David Moves boss added on United's website: "I said last July that Wayne has an outstanding chance to be a true legend of this club's long and rich history. He is just 42 goals away from overtaking Sir Bobby as our record goalscorer and becoming the first United player to hit 250 goals for the club.

"These opportunities only come to special players and I'm confident Wayne will set a new record that will take decades to reach."

Rooney, whose previous £250,000 a week deal would have expired next year, had looked set to leave Old Trafford last summer after former United manager Sir Alex Ferguson claimed he had asked for a transfersomething the player denied.

Chelsea had more than one bid for him rejected but new boss Moyes insisted he wanted to keep his former Everton player at Old Trafford.

Moyes said: "We

GOOD BUSINESS...AT LEAST FOR HIM: David Moyes insisted that Wayne Rooney would not be sold from United on his watch

always felt Wayne wanted to stay. He's a great player and hopefully we can keep him at a really high level which he has showed this season.

"We're all delighted. It's part of the rebuilding and part of it is also to make sure you keep the players you really want to keep. "Everybody would want him, you could see the clubs who did want him but there was never a chance he was going to leave Manchester United, certainly not on my watch."

It seems likely that next season will be Rooney's first out of the Champions League since his move from Goodison would Park 10 years ago.

United are 11 points off the top four, although they could still qualify by winning this season's tournament.

But Rooney said he was not concerned, preferring to concentrate on the club's long-term future.

Wasteful Spurs lose in Ukraine

EUROPA LEAGUE: Roberto Soldado was guilty of a dreadful miss as Tottenham suffered a 1-0 defeat by FC Dnipro in the Europa League round of 32 first leg on Thursday.

The former Valencia striker fired over from four yards out from Paulinho's low cross when the game was goalless.

Yevhen Konoplyanka took advantage of Soldado's miss by scoring from the penalty spot after Jan Vertonghen had fouled Matheus.

It could have been worse for Spurs, Roman Zozulya heading against a post.

SOLDADO: shocking miss

It means Spurs have it all to do in the return leg on 27 February after a highly satisfactory night for Dnipro's former Tottenham manager Juande Ramos.

The tie took place against the backdrop of violent unrest in Ukraine's capital Kiev, about 220 miles from the Dnipro Arena in the eastern Ukrainian city of Dnipropetrovsk.

There was a minute's silence before kick-off as a mark of respect to those who have lost their lives, while there was a sparse crowd inside the 31,000-capacity ground as some home supporters opted to boycott the tie.

A much-changed Spurs side acquitted themselves well on a difficult surface before a combination of poor defending and woeful finishing brought about their first defeat in nine Europa League games this season.
