Vanity Fair penned a 1,500-word article to explain to readers why he had not published an article about Paltrow.

The Los Angles-born actress, named by US alternative magazines as the "most hated celebrity" and the "world's most beautiful woman", had been engaged in a dispute for almost a year with the magazine, which was said to have been planning to run an essay "the Gwyneth on Paltrow love/hate phenomenon"

lifestyle

Coldplay singer Chris Martin is said to have struggled to deal with aspects of various Gwyneth Paltrow's lifestyle which believed to have led to their split.

It's thought Chris, who was pictured lavishing children with attention and even buying them ice cream numerous on of occasions, found the actress' diet and rules both constricting and hard on the children.

A source told The Sun's Dan Wootton: 'He wanted the family to watch DVDs and TV and also wanted them to eat treats every now and then.'

The source continued: 'Chris felt he was starting to lose the woman he fell in love with.'

A couple of years ago Gwyneth, 41, shocked observers when she revealed her very strict parenting rules.

She admitted that she allowed the couple's two children daughter Apple, and son Moses to watch television in French or Spanish instead of their native English.

occasional treat

The Iron Man star, who is known for her strict approach to diet and exercise, did however say that she 'loosens up the reins' when the family go out.

She revealed in one of her Goop posts that she tried to start her kids off on the right foot nutrition-wise, 'but the lure of Oreos and cotton candy outweighed the lure of carrots and hummus '

'And that's all part of childhood and I love Oreos too, so I completely understand,' she said.

The busy mother said that while she makes sure to feed her children nutritious meals at home, she allows them the occasional treat.

'They love a brown rice stir-fry but they also love their "Coke of the week"', said the blonde.

having fun

However it was perhaps not enough for Chris who was spotted taking his children, who were always pictured having fun with him, getting ice cream while out and about in LA last year which raised eyebrows.

It is unclear now whether Chris, who is reported to have moved out of the family's £7 million home London's Belsize Park last year, will avoid the macrobiotic entirely.

'no choice'

The Sun reports that the Coldplay singer began living with his bandmate Guy Berryman's small flat in Hampstead Heath when he moved out of the family home.

An insider claimed: 'Chris was really struggling with Gwyneth. He was doing everything he could to patch things up. But he felt he had no choice but to move out. Guy offered him a place to stay.'

LAID BACK: Martin's approach to parenting is seen by many observers as being far more fun loving and traditional than Paltrow's more regimented style

British teen and her American boyfriend 'shot dead police officer' before taking their own lives

■ Manchester girl's life ends in tragedy after she hooks up with Florida drug addict

A BRITISH girl's love affair with a troubled American teen ended in tragedy this week with an horrific murder-suicide in an upmarket Florida suburb.

A l e x a n d r i a Hollinghurst, 17, was found dead of gunshot wounds minutes after the murder of a local policeman in the posh development of Windermere, near Orlando, where Tiger Woods keeps a home.

Police believe Alexandria committed suicide with her boyfriend, 18 year-old Brandon Goode, after the pair murdered Officer Robert German, 31.

But Alexandria's devastated parents have contested the claim, and believe Goode murdered their daughter before turning the gun on himself.

'devastated'

Jane and Tom Hollinghurst have not spoken publicly since the shocking events of last weekend but Alexandria's heartbroken grandmother, Joyce Johnson, said Jane and Tom believe the teenager was actually killed by her drug addict boyfriend.

"Tom and Jane are both devastated," Joyce told a local newspaper in Blackley, Manchester, this week.

Alexandria had been living the 'American Dream' after moving to the US from Glossop with her family about six years ago.

But according to Joyce, Alex's life began to spiral out of control after she fell for drug addict Goode.

The couple are suspected of killing Officer German early on Saturday morning when he stopped them as they walked through the e x c l u s i v e neighbourhood.

Alexandria, originally from Oldham, Greater Manchester, had graduated from high school in Florida one year early and had not been in trouble before.

aggravated assault

However, she had recently struck up a relationship with Goode, who was arrested last month on drugs and alcohol charges.

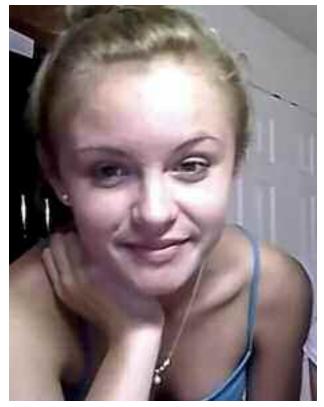

Goode had also previously been held in October 2012 on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Distinguished officer German had called for backup at around 3.30am after stopping the couple while on patrol in the suburb after deeming them suspicious.

Colleagues found him with fatal injuries - then had to take cover as two more gunshots were fired from the grounds of a nearby multi-million dollar home.

The teens were found with self-inflicted firearms wounds and a gun was recovered from the scene.

Orange County Sheriff Jerry Demings said: "It appears they likely committed suicide."

BRIGHT STUDENT: Alexandria, whose family relocated to Florida from Glossop

Alexandria - known as Alex - lived in the nearby city of Davenport with her younger sister Hannah, dad and mum after they relocated from the UK.

A family friend wrote on Facebook: "I have friends whose daughter was murdered this morning in Florida. She was only 17... they think her boyfriend killed her."

'hole in our hearts'

Sheriff Demings said: "The deputy knew he had a suspicious set of circumstances, so he called for backup."

The two gunshots which followed forced officers and two sheriff's deputies to take cover. Sherriff Demings said: "They heard gunfire in the background. They went up and used the police vehicles to shield themselves."

The officers stayed put while their colleague was rushed to a local hospital but medics were unable to resuscitate him and he was pronounced dead at Orlando Regional Medical Centre.

Windermere Mayor Gary Bruhn said: "There's a real hole in our hearts right now."

Officer German was honoured in January for his five years' service to Windermere.

"German was one of the best officers on the force and loved what he did," said Windermere Police Chief Dave Ogden.

TROUBLE: Alexandria's parents begged her to end her relationship with 18-year-old Brandon Goode

MURDERED: Robert German, 31, was fatally shot after stopping the pair in the upscale suburb of Windermere

Last of the wartime codebreakers dies at 93

Captain Raymond "Jerry" Roberts, the last of the great wartime codebreakers has died at 93.

Roberts, who died on Tuesday following a short illness, was part of the legendary team at Bletchley Park Buckinghamshire which helped to crack the German Tunny system used Hitler, by Mussolini and other high ranking generals during the Second World War, a spokeswoman said.

He was the last survivor of the nine cryptanalysts who worked on Tunny.

Capt Roberts joined Bletchley Park as a cryptographer and linguist in 1941 and was one of four founder members of the Testery, an elite unit named after the man leading it, Ralph Tester, which cracked the Tunny code - making it possible to read Hitler's messages during the war.

'unchartered territory'

The Testery team, which grew to 118 by the end of the war, managed to reverse-engineer the Tunny, which had 12 encryption wheels to the Enigma machine's three, described by Bletchley Park as "an incredible feat of dedication".

The spokeswoman said: "Jerry came to Bletchley Park straight from university but they were all in unchartered territory. It was new ground for everybody."

The intelligence gathered at Bletchley Park is credited with providing strategic information that was passing between the top level commanders and is believed to have shortened the war by two years and helped to save millions of lives.

Capt Roberts worked at Bletchley Park until 1945 before moving to the War Crimes Investigation Unit for two years, followed by a 50-year career in marketing and research.

He was made an MBE in 2013 in recognition of his service to Bletchley Park and codebreaking,

Coroner stumped by strange death of former Olympic athlete

THE DEATH last summer of Olympic golden girl Donna Hartley-Wass while sunbathing in her back garden has baffled experts.

Assistant coroner Louise Slater, who recorded a verdict of death from natural causes, said: "Science cannot prove what happened at that time. These are very unusual circumstances."

Donna, wearing just bikini bottoms, was found lying on a sun lounger by husband Bobby Knutt. The comedian, whose real surname is Wass, told the inquest: "Her face had turned purple and she looked like she had died".

He called an ambulance but his wife could not be resuscitated.

The inquest was told that on the day she died in June last year, Donna had been to work as a fitness instructor before relaxing at home near Barnsley with a glass of wine.

But pathologist Dr Charles Wilson said he could not determine the cause of Donna's death – though he added that as an athlete "her heart would have done an awful lot more work" than most.

Dr Wilson said: "I don't know whether this caused heart failure. I couldn't see anything which suggests that to be the cause. We have a previously healthy lady who has died suddenly."

After the hearing in Sheffield, Mr Knutt said: "It was the biggest shock of my life.

"She was as fit as a butcher's dog and only looked about 42. She used to worry about everything but that is how she was."

Donna, a 400-metre runner who also competed under her maiden name Murray, won two Commonwealth golds in 1978.

She was awarded an MBE in 1979, then grabbed a bronze in the 1980 Moscow Olympics. She became a champion bodybuilder after retiring from athletics.

Hillsborough: ex-officers questioned

Thirteen retired and serving police officers are being questioned over offences related to the Hillsborough football disaster, the national police watchdog has said.

Eleven of the suspects have been interviewed so far and they are all retired. Of the two others to be questioned in the near future, one is a serving officer.

The Independent Police Complaints Commission said the 13 suspects were being questioned under criminal caution over a range of offences, including manslaughter, misconduct in public office and perverting the course of justice.

It is the first time the IPCC has announced information on suspects.

One in five would spurn gay wedding invite, poll shows

About one in five British adults would turn down an invitation to a same-sex wedding, research suggests.

legislation allowing gay couples to marry comes into force on Saturday, the BBC Radio 5 live survey also found men were nearly twice as likely to spurn the nuptials as women.

The poll of 1,007 people found agreed gay marriage should be permitted, with 26% opposing it.

A gay rights charity said people's attitudes "incredibly were positive".

A spokesman for lesbian, gay and bisexual charity, Stonewall, said it important was highlight the fact that four in five people would accept invitation to a gay wedding.

'Bigoted or intolerant'

But Catholic Voices, which represents the Catholic Church, said the findings of the survey reflected the reality that people remained "deeply uncomfortable" with being honest about their true feelings on the meaning of marriage.

Father Edmund Montgomery, a member of the organisation and a Catholic priest in Greater Manchester, said: "As the Church, we love those seeking a same-sex union, but our love for them requires we tell them the true meaning of marriage, something which that fifth of find respondents difficult but have the integrity to do by turning down the invitation.

"In our modern culture it is increasingly difficult to have an open debate without being labelled as bigoted or intolerant."

L'Wren Scott leaves it all to Jagger

■ Tragic designer left her entire estate to her long-term boyfriend and omitted both siblings from her will

Mick Jagger's fashion designer girlfriend L'Wren Scott left her entire $9million estate to before taking her own life last week.

Scott, whose remains were cremated on Tuesday following a small, private funeral service in Los Angeles, left a simple will bequeathing all her jewelery, clothing, furniture, cars and other personal effects 'Michael Phillip Jagger'.

and Jagger the designer's estranged family have however come to an agreement to split her ashes between them.

Her brother Randall Bambrough whom Scott had appointed as director of her faltering fashion business in November, has revealed that he plans to take Scott's ashes to her childhood home in Utah.

'She was cremated and I the Rolling Stones rocker have some of her ashes,' he told the New York Daily News.

"Some of those ashes, they will be buried near our parents here in Utah. And there will be a ceremony, date to be determined, in Utah for all family members who will have an opportunity to see their friends and others.'

Bambrough said he wasn't sure what the singer planned to do with his share of his late girlfriend's remains. 'They're with the Jagger family. That's all I can say,' he said.

Bambrough also said that Tuesday's funeral in Los Angeles had been in keeping with his sister's

Miss Scott also added in her final will and testament: 'I have never been married. I have no children.'

However, she later crossed out the word 'never' without providing a further explanation.

British sailor found dead on life raft in West Indies

A British sailor has been found dead on a burned out life raft after his yacht was destroyed fire in the Caribbean, was reported on Thursday.

The body of John Garner, 53, discovered on the raft by the coastguard off St Vincent on Wednesday afternoon.

He had reportedly suffered injuries to his head and both legs and was taken to the island's Milton Cato Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

have Police now launched a murder investigation and are understood searching for a woman named Heidi Hukkelaas, reportedly his wife, with whom he flew to St Vincent on January 19.

St Vincent police commissioner Michael Charles said Mr Garner's death being treated suspicious and that investigators were looking at "all lines of inquiry".

Mr Charles said: "We suspect foul play and will investigate fully. Miss Hukkelaas is a person of interest and as with investigation we have to look at everyone and everything and will leave no stones unturned."

Garner's But Mr daughter Elisabeth, 37, told reporters that her family believed his death to be a "tragic and was accident" unaware that it was being investigated as suspicious.

'difficult time'

She added that her stepmother had left St Vincent two days before Mr Garner to return to Norway to look after her young children, saying: " This is a shock for everybody. We have not been told that this is treated suspicious. As far as we have been told, it is being treated as a tragic accident."

The yacht, reportedly named Asante registered in Gibraltar, is believed to have been found approximately 15 miles west Buccament, south-west St Vincent.

Police reportedly said debris and an oil spill were discovered, and that they believe the yacht sunk.

The Jamaica Observer said a preliminary police investigation found the couple arrived in St Vincent and Grenadines by air on January 19, and that they had been granted an extension to remain until April 19.

The newspaper said checks had revealed Ms Hukkelaas had not left the state by any of its air or sea ports.

A spokeswoman for the Foreign Office said: "We are aware of the death of a British national in St Vincent and The Grenadines. We are providing consular assistance to the family at this difficult time."

'Schools should provide morning after pill', says leading health body

■ The guidance for GPs and chemists says under-25s - including girls under 16 - should be able to obtain the morning-after pill more easily

Teenage girls will be able to stock up on the morning-after pill under new NHS guidance which will allow young women to pre-order the drugs, despite Government fears the move will increase promiscuity.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (Nice) made the announcement on Wednesday despite ood read:

Exp Card Billing Address Zip Code:

concerns from Jeremy Hunt, the Health Secretary, and outrage from patients' groups and campaigners.

The guidance for GPs and chemists says under-25s — including girls under 16 — should be able to obtain the morning-after pill more easily, in advance of having sexual intercourse.

It is not currently common practice for

" e m e r g e n c y contraception" to be handed out in advance. But the new guidance will allow women to obtain the morning-after pill on the NHS in bulk for the first time.

The move was first mooted by Nice four years ago, but has been repeatedly delayed amid fears such a move could encourage promiscuity and increase the number

"Really worrying and deeply unwise": - the new measures have berthed a firestorm of controversy in the UK of girls and young women having unprotected sex.

Mr Hunt is understood to have opposed the plans, amid concern that there is little evidence it would reduce unwanted pregnancies and fears it would lead to increased rates of sexually transmitted diseases.

teenage pregnancies

The new guidance says that the pills can be provided in advance, if those seeking it are using methods of contraception, such as condoms or the Pill, which can be subject to "user failure".

It also says school nurses should be able to dispense free emergency contraception to pupils, while pharmacists — who normally charge £25 for the pills — should be able to dispense pills free.

The new guidance, aimed at cutting the high numbers of unwanted teenage pregnancies in England, also says free condoms should be "readily accessible" for young men and women at places such as "schools, colleges and youth clubs".

Josephine Quintavalle, from the pressure group Comment Reproductive Ethics, said: "I think it is really worrying and deeply unwise. Having stockpile of morning-after pill on hand is a licence for unprotected sex, and that puts young women at increased risk of sexually transmitted diseases."

'promiscuity'

Roger Goss, from Patient Concern, said: "It seems like a way of promoting promiscuity." There has been a long-running debate about whether provision of advance contraception reduces unwanted pregnancy rates.

The new Nice guidance says: "The evidence shows that advance provision of emergency contraception does not encourage risky behaviour among young people. Evidence also shows that women who have emergency contraception in advance are more likely to use it, and to use it sooner after unprotected sex."

But last vear an international expert warned against the strategy. Prof James Trussell, of Princeton University, said there was no evidence that such schemes cut pregnancy rates. He told the American Society for Reproductive Medicine that women with access to advance emergency contraception were more likely to have unprotected sexual intercourse, as they came to regard the morning-after pill as a safety net.

The Nice guidance advises health professionals that emergency contraception can be provided to girls under 16 "without parental knowledge or consent, in accordance with best practice guidance".

Prof Mike Kelly, director of the centre for public health at Nice, said: "Evidence clearly shows that the availability of contraception reduces the rate of unwanted pregnancies."

WW1 Centenary: Britain to turn off the lights

■ The lights will go dark across Britain at 11pm on August 4 under Government plans to mark the centenary of the First World War

Every household in Britain will be asked to turn out the lights at 11pm on August 4 to mark the centenary of the First World War, under plans announced Thursday by Culture Secretary Maria Miller.

The nationwide event is designed to echo the words attributed to Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, on the eve of the conflict: "The lamps are going out all over Europe; we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime."

The Government is backing the initiative, which forms part of a cultural programme to commemorate the centenary.

Organisers are hailing it as "one of the most dramatic UK-wide events ever organised" in which "people from all four nations will be invited to turn off their lights and to replace them with one single light to remember a day that changed the world forever".

Germany declared war on France and invaded Belgium on August 3 1914. That evening, Sir Edward Grey gazed across St James's Park from his window at the Foreign Office as the lamps were being lit on the Mall. He turned to a friend, John Spender, and made his now famous remark.

'engaging young people'

The switch-off, official titled Lights Out, is a centrepiece of the 14-18 Now programme. Funded by £10 million of National Lottery money, it is the brainchild of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

Germany is being included in the commemorations.

Torsten Rasch, a celebrated German composer born in Dresden, will join the Philharmonia Orchestra to present a new work which sets the poetry of the First World War – works by Robert Frost, Rupert Brooke and Edward Thomas – to music.

The 40-minute work for choir, soloists and orchestra is entitled A Foreign Field. It will be presented at Worcester Cathedral on July 31.

Announcing programme, Maria Miller said: "Culture is part of the fabric of British society. Ensuring a cultural element flows throughout the centenary will be vital part of our commemorations, particularly as a way of engaging young people and helping them make that connection with the

REMEMBRANCE: a raft of events is taking place in Britain this year to mark the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of World War One past.

"The 14-18 Now cultural programme will help all of us to pause in remembrance and to understand the resonance of the First World War today."

Events will take place over the next four years and will centre around three key moments: the declaration of war, the start of the Battle of the Somme and Armistice.

The director of the festival is Jenny Waldman, who was creative producer for the London 2012 Festival which accompanied the Olympics.

The Lights Out event will take place at the same time a candlelit vigil of prayer, readings and music held in Westminster Abbey. During the event, candles will be extinguished one by one until a single flame is snuffed out at 11pm.

United old boys confirm Salford City takeover

Ryan Giggs and four former Manchester United team-mates have agreed a deal to purchase non-league Salford City.

Giggs, in his 24th season as a player at Old Trafford, is joined in the venture by the Neville brothers, Gary and Phil, Paul Scholes and Nicky Butt.

United player-coach Giggs, 40, said: "We want to use our football experience and knowledge to nurture young talent."

Subject to Football Association and Northern Premier League approval, the deal will be completed in the summer.

Salford are 11th in the Northern Premier League Division One North, the eighth tier of English league football.

Gary Neville, who had his first United trial in Salford, said: "Salford City represents those early years, the commitment, hunger, enthusiasm, desire and spirit of football and I am very excited about this venture."

The former England defender added on Twitter: "For clarity, [there will be] no name change, no ground change and management and committee as before!"

His younger brother Phil, now United's first-team coach, added: "It is important to safeguard the hard work that is done in the lower leagues and it is going to be exciting to be able to feed our experience into the young players."

STILL IN THE GAME: Messrs Giggs, Neville, Butt and Scholes

Giggs, who made his 961st appearance for United in the 3-0 victory over Olympiakos on 19 March, is the only one of the six United youth-team graduates who came to be known as the Class of '92. still playing.

Along with former England captain David Beckham, Giggs, Scholes, Butt and the Neville brothers were part of one of the most successful periods in the club's history, having made their senior debuts in the early 1990s

Under former manager Sir Alex Ferguson, United won 13 league titles, two Champions League crowns, four FA Cups and four League Cups with at least one of those six graduates in his squad.

Saving Mr. Banks: it's no Mary Poppins

■ The story of the rivalry between Walt Disney and Mary Poppins author PL Travers has its moments, but distracting head-hopping may make you dizzy

Gabrielle Pantera reviews the Oscar-nominated movie, released this week on Blu-Ray

"Saving Mr. Banks is about the making of Mary Poppins, not about the filming of Mary Poppins," says star Tom Hanks who portrays Walt Disney in the film. "It's about the translation of Mary Poppins from book to screen. It's about the creative process, of how Travers' character started on paper first before it became the classic movie."

"I think that P.L. Travers felt that Disney was making her version of the world somewhat dishonest because she was denying the darkness," says Emma Thompson, who portrays the prickly author.

"Disney, who had experienced enough darkness of his own, wanted to create a world for children that was not dark. The books have a particular atmosphere and are rather different to the movie, which has Disney's and the Sherman brothers' extraordinary, bubbly, champagne-like life force. Americans have a kind of energy and life force that's very, very different to and to her designedly and forcefully British outlook."

As the film unfolds we learn that for twenty years Walt Disney (Tom Hanks) has wanted to make the book Mary Poppins into a movie. He's promised his daughters he'll do it. One big problem; he doesn't own the rights to the book.

BY Gabrielle Pantera

The author, Australian writer P.L. Travers (Emma Thompson) is anti-social and dislikes everyone and including everything, Disneyland.

Saving Mr. Banks sprang from the efforts of Australian filmmaker Ian Collie, who made a television documentary about P.L. Travers in 2002 called The Shadow of Mary Poppins. Collie became interested in Travers after reading a book by Valerie Lawson published in Australia in 1999, Out of the Sky She Came: The Life of P.L. Travers. The Mary Poppins author was born in 1899 in Maryborough, Queensland, Australia. She moved to London in the 1920s.

After making documentary, Collie asked Australian television writer Sue Smith to write a screenplay about Travers. It was Smith who came up with the film's title. Later, Owen brought Kelly Marcel (Terra Nova) to work on the screenplay with the support of BBC Films. Before approaching Disney, Owen shared the script with songwriter Richard Sherman, who had collaborated with Travers 50 years before at "This movie is a very honest picture," says Sherman. "It tells it the way it was. Walt got a couple of songwriters and a story man together to create a film that he knew he could sell to the world. Nobody in the world really knows this story. We've always said she was difficult, but this is the first time it's actually been talked about."

Solution to Puzzle #108

The British Weekly, Sat. March 29, 2014

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your financial situation could be getting a boost as early as midweek, so look for an opportunity to add to your bank account while Jupiter the gift bringer is in your life.

TAURUS: This week is the perfect time to bring stability to an area of your life that has been in flux; even if it is only a mind set to turn around. Start any new project now since next month is not so good for new beginnings.

GEMINI: Your boss Mercury picked up speed this week and will complete what has transpired in your life these past few months. You will be travelling - mentally or otherwise - to a place that has memories aplenty. CANCER: Movement is good for you and this week it's all around you and in the family also.

Be strong and understand you can do whatever you wish; the clue is to make sure you don't hold on.

LEO: Emotional issues could hold you back from enjoying this first week of the month, so tackle what is to do and make it your priority and spend time relaxing, not stressing on what is not possible.

VIRGO: As this week moves forward fast be sure you are ready and willing to get going on your particular plan for the next month. If it is a change in work or home, this will work well.

LIBRA: With Mars the power monger going backwards in your life situations that demand decisions might not be easy. This is due to you normally not making quick decisions. However you should at least do what is first on the list.

SCORPIO: This will be one of those good weeks when all things fall into place; however you may have to deal with a person who is trying to belittle you in some way. Be aware and don't react.

SAGITTARIUS: If you want to change anything waiting around for others to make the first move is not a good idea. Mars the action maker in your life this month will bring things to a good conclusion or beginning!!

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling tired or worn down, so it is likely (as usual) you are doing too much work. You are the most responsible sign of the Universe usually, however, even you are allowed time out. AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling a bit frustrated this week. Well, that's life for you, so take a break and do not take out your frustrations on any one else as it will be sure to catch you back.

PISCES: The planets are really on your side this month, however as with all water signs you get a tad emotional at things most other people don't understand. Don't try to explain, just be yourself!

Brits in LA/Meet a Member: Andy Newton Lee

Meet Andy Newton Lee from Hull who moved to LA 9 years ago to pursue acting (but ended up doing something very different...)

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I never came here to 'make it' as such as an actor. I wanted a change. I wanted to live in the sunshine and have a healthy lifestyle, it was one of my dreams as a child to live in America. I used to watch Beverly Hills 90210 and thought I want to live there! Here we are 9 years later.

What one thing do you miss from home?

My flat in sunny Kilburn, I miss walking by the beauty of high-rise council flats on my way to the Tube. Kebabs, I also miss kebabs! A great kebab with garlic sauce and salad after a night out is always a treat! You just can't get it here.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus the UK?

I find the sense of humor here is very different from the UK.

ANDY NEWTON LEE: 'I miss walking by the beauty of high-rise council flats...'

Sometimes West Coast Americans don't appreciate the sharp, blunt wit of us Brits. I couldn't possibly count the amount of times I've offended Americans through my dry and i n a p p r o p r i a t e banter...and Brits for that matter, it's all fun and games hey?!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? There's a great massage place on Sunset and Highland, ask for my friend 'Mucky Vicky' that's all I'm saying!

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? If you're an a c t o r d o n ' t !

Obviously I'm joking, the main thing I advise would be to do your research and get some structure. When I came here I did the opposite; I had no money, couch surfed and it drove me insane. Not a good combination trying to achieve things in LA. If I was to wrote a book it would be 'how not to make it in LA' I think I made every mistake possible, you can't focus here without structure. It frustrates me when I see young, talented people coming through my relocation business making the same mistakes I did, but I've come to realize people need to make their own journey here

Emma Watson Makes a Fashion Splash in NYC!

Emma Watson made a big splash at the premiere of Darren Aronofsky's blockbuster flick Noah this week.

The biblical blockbuster movie has already generated criticism before official release; however, Watson won only praise as she hit the red carpet at NYC's Ziegfeld Theater to celebrate the opening.

her Outshining co-star Jennifer Connelly, sexy trendsetter Watson, known for her cutting-edge fashion, wore a stunning fulllength black gown duchess satin from Oscar de la Renta's Fall 2014 collection.

Though this type of dress would normally fare far better on a much older woman, the pixie-like starlet pulled it off, looking every inch the rich, classy and elegant lady she is rapidly turning into.

The actress has been doing the rounds this fulfilling week promotional commitments in New York. On Tuesday, she was spotted outside the iconic Ed Sullivan Theatre, home of The Late Show with David Letterman - where the genial host interviewed her about her latest role in the film that stars Russell Crow in the title role.

Looking androgynously stylish in a smart black trouser suit and crisp white shirt as she posed for photos outside the studio doors, and the fitted ensemble in particular the skinny 'cigarette pant' trousers complimented slender frame.

On the show, Watson found it hard to cover-up her embarrassment when Letterman asked about animal sex (Oo-er). It was priceless moment indeed, just to see the sheer look of shock on her innocent) British face.

"Who sexes the animals?" asks Dave. "You know what I mean?"

"Um, I don't quite understand what you're saying," replies an obviously flustered Watson.

"My son is very fond of turtles," says Dave. "And he will come to me with a turtle and ask me, 'Dad, is this a boy or a girl?' And I know how to sex a turtle."

Um. red faces all-around!

Rumors also swirled this week that the 23-year-old star has hired a former NYPD officer to act as a bodyguard - for the spellbinding sum of $150,000 for her own personal protection. A recent incident while shooting her latest film left her shaken and fearing for her life, so the word is she has hired ex-cop Denise Morrone to protect her.

Well, it has been reported that young Emma is worth a measley $38 million (give or take), so I reckon she can afford a bob-or-two on a bodyguard... Don't you!? "Noah," sails into theaters this Friday.

New Doctor Capaldi gets to grips with his sonic screwdriver...

He previously admitted that he was nervous stepping into Matt Smith's shoes, but Peter Capaldi looked more than confident as he his filmed latest dramatic scenes for Doctor Who in Cardiff earlier this week.

The photos from the new series just keep coming, on showing 55-year-old actor Capaldi getting to grips with his inner Time Lord looking rather bemused as he handles his Sonic Screwdriver in the latest batch of pap-snaps.

The Scottish actor, who has been filming his first full episodes of the show following his official debut Christmas, went it alone as he wielded the gadget infamous around the Cardiff set.

Later shots suggested that he would be using the device against a sinister blue-eyed alien, played by series regular Jimmy Vee.

However, there was no sign of co-star Jenna Coleman who plays sidekick Clara Oswald - or the creepy looking new monster which was spotted on-set last week.

Speaking about what fans can expect from Capaldi's portrayal of the iconic character, the show's executive producer Steven Moffat said: "Scottishne ss. I think that's the main thing.

"I mean watching him, and I just watched episode two actually, you don't go around thinking this is an older bloke as The Doctor, particularly.

"You just think my God, he's Scottish. And doomed dialogue doesn't half sound great in Scottish. You say the world's about to end in a Scottish accent, and you really believe it."

Filming for the new episodes kicked off in January, with the series expected to air in late summer, while Moffat recently confirmed that series nine would air uninterrupted in 2015.

Mothering Sunday, personal hygiene ...and Bingo!

Hey Breeps!

Don't forget Mothering Sunday is tomorrow!

This actually got me thinking how so many of us move to Los Angeles alone and perhaps, if we are lucky, get to see our mothers once a year. Being a bit of a statistician, I realized that I don't really have an awful lot of time left on earth with her. Not to be a Debbie Downer, but let's say (for example) my mum is 68. The average life span of a British woman is 82.8 years, just increased by a year, according to a recent report in The Express newspaper (by the way life expectancy for a man has grown too, to 78.8 years). So my Mum comes to visit me once a year for a week. It takes her two days to get over jet lag. Which gives me, speculatively around five days a year with her. - 5 days per 15 average years = 75 days.

- Depressing, isn't it?

The whole point is to highlight that every day counts and we shouldn't take our mums or anyone we love for that matter, for granted. For me, every day with her counts. So many of my friends have already lost their mothers and my heart breaks for them. Mine is still here and I'm grateful for her and appreciate all the time together we have. She is kind, patient, loving and generous and a lot of fun to be around. She likes her wine (She's British, it goes hand in hand). So take a little time when filling out those cards or sending flowers, to really put into words what your Mum means to you. I love ya Mum. And don't worry I'm not counting the days!

One of our most popular posts Facebook this week was about B.O. (Body Odor) and how best to approach a person who suffers from this pungent problem. There were quite a lot of suggestions from cyberspace, from the old standby about taking the offender aside and having a quiet word, to giving them a LYNX gift set in the hopes they might use it. (Gas masks for everyone else?)

But in all honesty I feel that in this day and age we should be able to take care of our personal hygiene a little bit better, especially if going out in public. And especially in LA. Now I don't mean to be mean, superficial judgmental, but I feel we owe it to society to clean conscientious; washing hands after using the bathroom has become the norm (I hope) and hand sanitizer is readily available, - there are even wipes in Trader Joes to clean the handles the shopping trolleys.

Now don't get me wrong, I've been stinky, usually after a work out with JC MAC, a hike personup Runyon canyon, or a hot yoga session, but I can usually always smell myself

Celtic were unable to have a planned lap of honour at Firhill Stadium after a pitch invasion by some Celtic came out guns blazing in Lennon was not too concerned, saying they would make up for it at home to Ross County on Saturday. That was echoed by captain Scott Brown.

"We were going to do a lap of honour, but I think it's just the stewards that are left now," said the midfielder. "We're still having fun.

"We knew we had the players to do it. The first-half performance wasn't the best, but we the second half and Partick Thistle couldn't deal with us."

Scotland defender Charlie Mulgrew was disappointed not to be able to share his joy with the visiting support.

"It was a great result and a great way to end the season, but it would be nice for some fans to be here," he said.

"Sometimes you get carried away in the moment and the fans are obviously happy. These things happen."

United fans turn on Fergie

■ Supporters vent fury on David Moyes and the man who anointed him after latest derby loss

IF SIR ALEX FERGUSON was expecting a quiet night in the stands for the midweek Manchester derby he was in for a surprise as he was subjected to a volley of bitter insults as United lost 3-0 to their crosstown rivals.

removing the 'Chosen banner at the Stretford End - unveiled following David Moyes's appointment Ferguson's hand-picked successor last summer former manager Ferguson bore the brunt of anger from fans close to the directors' box in the earshot of executive vice-chairman Ed Woodward and managing director Richard Arnold.

One supporter was also photographed being escorted away from the area close to Moyes's seat in the dug-out by stewards after appearing to gesture for the Scot to resign.

Ferguson was berated with expletive-laden outbursts from supporters complaining at the state of the team left behind on his retirement as well as his decision to anoint Moyes as his replacement.

Moyes's future is now likely to come under the microscope again, despite the ongoing position from the club that he will remain in charge to rebuild the squad this summer.

Midfielders Marouane Fellaini and Tom Cleverley were also targeted for criticism from the stands, with United greats Gary Neville and Paul Scholes dismantling the team's performance in their role as television pundits.

Scholes, whose expected appointment to the coaching staff at United following Ferguson's retirement has yet to materialise, delivered a further condemnation of Moyes's team by criticising the fighting spirit of the players. "When I was playing, we could be two or three down but we never felt we were beaten," Scholes said. "Tonight I never thought we'd get back in it, even at 1-0 down.

"It is difficult for a new manager coming in because he needs time to get to know his players. He doesn't know his best team yet and the players haven't helped him because they're not performing the way they should."

Celtic boss Neil Lennon hails his 'breathtaking' title-winners

Neil Lennon hailed his Celtic side's title-winning 5-1 defeat of Partick Thistle in midweek as a "simply breathtaking" way to emphasise their Scottish dominance.

Celtic secured their 45th Scottish title with seven games to spare.

"It was a fantastic night for the club, a fantastic performance, a fantastic support," Lennon told BBC Scotland.

"Now we are really stamping our authority on the game in Scotland and want to take it further. We want to take it into Europe."

It is Celtic's third championship in a row, but the Glasgow side were knocked out of the two domestic cup competitions.

"There's room for improvement obviously - there are other competitions we want to look at and strive forward in," said Lennon.

"But it is in our DNA as a club to win championships and, since I've been involved in the club, that's nine in 14 vears.

"It was our priority and we wanted to improve on last year. This is unquestionably the best league campaign I've had as a manager.

"We are the title favourites every season, but we've been emphatic this year."

It is the earliest the title has been secured since Rangers won on 16 March in season 1928-29.

Lennon was not only proud of having only lost once in 30 league games so
