Authorities closing in after 'major breakthrough' in long-running case

MADELEINE McCann detectives are set to make arrests after a major breakthrough in the case, it was revealed on Thursday.

Scotland Yard said they had discovered their chief suspect abused a British girl in the same resort two years before Madeleine vanished.

The victim, who was 10, was attacked in her bed in Praia da Luz in Portugal's Algarve region.

Police believe the fact that he struck so close to Madeleine's holiday villa is of huge significance to their new probe into her 2007 disappearance.

They were tipped off about the previously unknown incident after a Crimewatch TV appeal last month.

They revealed on the suspects BBC show that they wanted to trace a serial sex attacker they had linked to 12 attacks on white British girls as

Ukip suspend poster boy Lampitt after he claims Labour leader was 'not a real Brit'

THE UK Independence Party (Ukip) have suspended one of its most high-profile members for "repellent" comments he made on Twitter, it has emerged.

A party spokesman said they were aware of at least six posts from Andre Lampitt expressing "extreme racists views" including anti-Islamic sentiments.

In the past few months Mr Lampitt had called Labour leader Ed Miliband not a "real Brit" adding that the Labour leader was Polish and also called slavery an "act of war" on Twitter.

The Zimbabwean decorator and kitchen fitter was hoping to become a Ukip candidate for local elections and appeared in a party political broadcast.

In it he wore a builders hard hat and said "since the lads from Eastern Europe" had moved to the UK he had struggled to provide for his family.

Ukip spokesman said Mr Lampitt's membership had been "suspended immediately pending a full disciplinary process."

They added: "We are deeply shocked that Mr Lampitt has expressed such repellent views." Since Ukip suspended Mr Lampitt's membership it appears his Twitter account has been deleted. In one post Mr Lampitt claimed Mr Miliband was

LAMPITT: describes himself on Twitter as: "Born British in Rhodesia and proud of heritage, sad at how Britain is run."

"not a real Brit...He was only born here" and suggested the Labour leader was Polish.

In another tweet written to a user he said: "Oh for Gods sake get over it slavery was an act of war you lost stop being so damn jealous and move forward."

While in another post Mr Lampitt said: "I want to start a website islamoutofuk.co.uk".

Before the account was taken offline, the Ukip hopeful described himself on Twitter as: "Born British in Rhodesia and proud of heritage sad at how Britain is run."

It comes after party leader Nigel Farage was forced to defend the latest Ukip European elections poster against accusations of being racist.

One poster read: "26 million people in Europe are looking for work. And whose jobs are they after?"

Alongside the anti-immigration message was a picture of a giant hand pointing at whoever would be reading the poster.

Labour MP Mike Gapes had blasted the posters as "racist" while former Tory minister Lord Debden said "UKIP stands for the worst in human beings".

new information is coming out since the last appeal shows the scale of work that is yet to be done.

"Naturally Kate and Gerry hope that it can be completed as soon as possible.

"There is a lot of information that still needs to be checked and Kate and Gerry are hoping it leads to Madeleine being found.

"They remain very grateful to the Metropolitan police for the work they continue

He added that the families of previous victims did not wish to be identified but were "prepared to help police all they can".

'horrendous experience'

Five of the new crimes have been classed as sexual assaults, while the sixth was described as a "near miss". Portuguese police have announced that African burglar Euclides Monteiro, who died aged 40 in a tractor accident five years ago, is the serial attacker but Scotland Yard are not so sure

DCI Andy Redwood, leading the Met probe, said the latest cases emerged after more than 500 members of the public phoned a special hotline for the case.

He said the horrific sexual assaults had left the lives of the victims and their parents shattered.

He told press at central London's New Scotland Yard on Thursday: "For every one of these families it's been an horrendous experience."

Deputy Assistant Commissioner Martin Hewitt revealed British police are poised to stage operations on Portuguese soil soon.

He said: "I am cautiously optimistic that in the not-too-distant future we are going to start to see activity."

Inquiry into Hillsborough 'insults' from Whitehall

The Cabinet Office is making "urgent inquiries" following claims that government computers were used to make offensive and inflammatory comments about the Hillsborough disaster.

Anonymous alterations to the Wikipedia page about the tragedy were made from computers on Whitehall's secure intranet, the Liverpool Echo said on Thursday.

The newspaper said revisions to the online encyclopaedia began five years ago on the 20th anniversary of the tragedy, and again in 2012.

Among the reported amendments to the Hillsborough section was an insertion saying "Blame Liverpool fans", and two years go the phrase "You'll never walk alone" was altered to "You'll never walk again" and later "You'll never w*** alone."

A spokeswoman for the Cabinet Office said: "We thank the Liverpool Echo for bringing this to our attention. This is a matter that we will treat with the utmost seriousness and are making urgent inquiries."

Kate and Wills follow in Diana's footsteps with visit to Ayers Rock

- The Duke and Duchess continue Down Under tour with trip to iconic Australian landmark
- Charles and Diana made same trip in 1983

IN AN UNCANNY echo of his late mother's visit to Australia thirty years ago, Prince William this week posed for pictures in front of the iconic Ayers Rock, -in virtually the same spot as Prince Diana in 1983.

The trip to Uluru, as Ayers Rock is officially known, came on the 16th day of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge's three-week official tour to New Zealand and Australia.

Kate and William watched in awe - and batted away the flies – as the sun set over the remarkable 1,142ft-high red sandstone landmark in the heart of the Australian Outback. 'It's a beautiful sight. Quite breathtaking,' the prince told his 32-year-old wife, who was in a Hobbs dress she has worn previously in the UK and wedge heels.

A schoolgirl told Kate: 'You were both like magic when the photos were being taken, I was like "How are they not swatting flies away?"'

Kate laughed: 'I know. It was difficult.' William added: 'They were all coming for us.'

solitude

Earlier, the couple, who had left baby George in Canberra, enjoyed a rare moment of solitude when they visited a water hole at the bottom of Uluru, walking along a tree-lined track ahead of their Aboriginal guide, aides and police bodyguards.

Tour guide John Sweeney, who accompanied Aboriginal guide Sammy Wilson, said: 'We let them have a bit of time to themselves, pretty rare on a trip like this.

'Sammy told them the ancestral story, which relates to how this part of Uluru was formed. Sammy showed the cave painting that his grandfather did, which was one of the last paintings done at Uluru.

'They were very interested in everything that was said. They were an absolute pleasure. They apologised for not bringing the baby. Sammy said it was all right – he could come back later on.'

'special place'

Vincent Nipper, 35, whose grandparents met Charles and Diana in 1983, said: 'It is really important for them to come to a special place like this. I am really happy to meet them and that they have come here.

'Thirty years ago his parents came here. They were over the other side of the rock and they met my grandfather and my grandmother. I am told that they felt it was really special. They said they must come back and bring their son back here. I am glad he was able to come back like his parents said he would.'

The royal couple watched a welcoming dance from several elderly bare-chested Aboriginal women at the Uluru-Kata Tjuta Cultural Centre before receiving gifts from local artists.

Kate was given a necklace, made from nuts and seeds found in the desert, which she wore for most of the day.

The trip to Uluru had started with a visit to the National Indigenous Training Academy, the

The royal couple were presented with gifts from the academy, including a hand-painted bracelet, traditional hunting spear, wooden bowl, clapping sticks – a percussion instrument – and a small kangaroo-hair blanket.

glamping

Kate seemed pleased with her bracelet, putting it on immediately and marvelling at the detail that went into it.

Later the couple indulged in a bit of glamping – sleeping out under the stars at a luxury campsite so that they could experience Uluru at sunrise before flying to Adelaide on the next leg of their trip.

Earlier in the day the couple took part in an Aborigine Welcome to Country ceremony at Uluru-Kata Tjuta Cultural Centre.

After meeting elders from the Anangu people of Uluru, they gathered around a camp fire to watch the Inma ritual which incorporates traditional clapping sticks.

The royals later spoke to several young people who were part of the ceremony, good naturedlyposing for pictures with several teenage girls.

And Chevez Kirkman, 15, who excels in maths and sport at Nyangatjatjara College, was asked by Prince William if he followed an English soccer side.

When Chevez said no, the Duke suggested his own side, saying, 'If you were to have one, maybe Aston Villa would be a good one.'

The Duke is known to be a keen supporter of the Midlands side.

CAMILLA, Duchess of Cornwall, was said to be 'devastated' by the freak death of her beloved brother in New York this week.

Costa living turns sour for countless Brits in Spain

■ Almost 90,000 flee country as Spanish dreams shrivel in the sun

THE dream of living in the Mediterranean is over for almost 90,000 British expats, who have abandoned Spain after the Eurozone crisis hit the country.

Tens of thousands flocked from Spain last vear, as shrinking jobs market and a property slump contributed to exodus of Britons.

It is the second year in a row Spain's population has been reduced by departing British expats, with almost one in four leaving the country.

Jackie Miles, 48, is among the Britons who moved from Spain in 2013, when she left with her two children and husband for Dubai. She said: "We had been in Spain for 13 years and loved it, but like many other British people we had to find work and it just wasn't possible any longer in our part of Andalusia."

The figures have been revealed by Spain's Statistics National Institute

In January 2013 there were 385,179 British expats living in Spain but that slumped to 297,229, a drop of 23 per cent, in December.

The number Germans living in Spain also dropped by 23.6 per cent, while the amount of French expats fell by 12.7 per cent.

Maura Hillen is chairman of AUAN, a group that campaigns for British homeowners caught in a property scandal in Spain.

She said: "There is a wider trend of Britons leaving.

"People who retired out here in their 50s and 60s have seen their circumstances change.

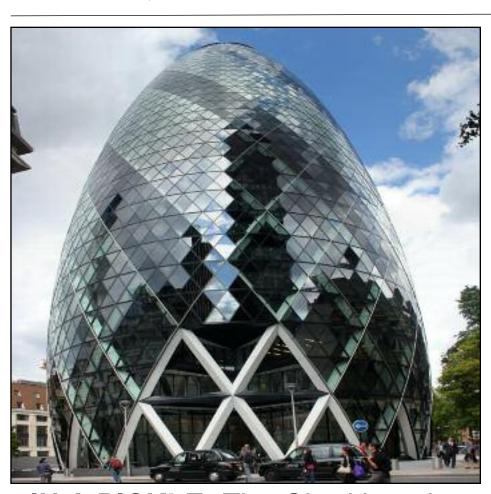

"Advancing losing a partner and the rise in the cost of living make life here less attractive."

SETTING SUN: the dream has turned sour for many British expats on fixed incomes on the Spanish coast

TOO PRICEY: there has been a sharp drop in business for watering holes like Benidorm's Queen Vic

IN A PICKLE: The Gherkin to be auctioned off as receivers called in

London's skyscraper is set to be auctioned off later this after lenders appointed receivers to the iconic City building today.

The tower, formally known as 30 St Mary's Axe, was at one time the UK's most expensive consortium in 2009. Part of the loan was also made in Swiss francs, increasing the burden on the borrowers as the currency soared against the pound.

recovering property markets and huge demand for assets on a £400 million loan in the capital have boosted sale prospects for the Gherkin, prompting lenders to bring in Deloitte as receivers. It is understood a sale is likely within months.

One senior property source put the value of the Gherkin at close to £600 million and said it would attract interest host international domestic buyers. He said: "This is a trophy product.

Values for prime assets are approaching the levels we saw at the peak of the market."

Potential buyers include Chinese insurer Ping An, which bought the Lloyd's Building for £260 million last year.

The Gherkin was commissioned by Swiss Re to replace the Baltic Exchange, damaged by an IRA bomb in 1992. Architects Foster and Partners designed the building, which would become one of the design companies most famous creations.

Work on construction began in 2001 and the Gherkin opened three years later, with more than 76,500 metres square commercial including a club on the top floor with panoramic

Rangers legend Jardine dead at 65

Former Rangers, Hearts and Scotland defender Sandy Jardine has died at the age of 65.

Rangers confirmed that Jardine had lost an 18-month battle against cancer on Thursday evening.

He was part of their European Cup Winners' Cup-winning team of 1972 and played 38 times for his country.

Ibrox manager Ally McCoist said everyone at Rangers was devastated at the loss of "a legend" and "a great man".

And the club said their thoughts were with his wife Shona, children Steven and Nicola, his grandchildren and friends.

Hearts also extended their condolences to his family, with the Tynecastle club adding they were deeply saddened at the death of a club legend.

E dinburgh-born Jardine began his career with Rangers in 1965 and went on to make over 600 appearances for the Ibrox side

As well as playing in the club's European triumph in 1972, the full-back won three top-flight titles, five Scottish Cups and five Scottish League Cups with Rangers.

A move to Hearts followed in 1982 and, along with former Rangers team-mate Alex MacDonald, he was joint-manager at Tynecastle between 1986 and 1988.

After his playing career ended, he returned to work for Rangers in various roles. In November 2012, it was confirmed Jardine was being treated for cancer.

"He was respected not only by Rangers fans but also the wider football community and he is a huge loss to the game," McCoist said on Rangers' website.

Just like Wimbledon! Andy Murray is honored...and breaks down in tears

ANDY Murray was overcome with emotion this week as he was presented with the Freedom of Stirling, in scenes reminiscent of his post-Wimbledon tears.

The tennis star was awarded the honour at his old school, Dunblane High.

But the emotional event all got a bit too much for the 26-year-old, who had to pause several times to wipe away tears.

Two years ago, Murray gave a similarly teary interview following his Wimbledon final defeat to Roger Federer.

However, he soon bounced back to win Olympic gold at London 2012 before going on to break Britain's long wait for a Wimbledon champion last summer.

'emotional'

After receiving today's award, Murray spoke to the audience and said: "I'm going to keep this very short because there's a good chance I'll get emotional.

"It feels good to be home."

After pausing to wipe his eyes he went on: "I'd like to thank the council for voting me in, I was expecting a few nos.

"I'd like to thank all my family and friends and girlfriend for coming to support me."

He apologised as he took another break, before being given a standing ovation as he said: "I think everyone knows I'm extremely proud of where I come from.

"It means a lot to me so thanks to everyone for coming along and I apologise for this behaviour."

He later explained why he became so emotional, adding: "I don't get the chance to come back that often and I don't get the chance to see my family as much as I would like and I'm very proud of where I come from. So to get this honour from my local council means a lot.

"I don't think anyone would have really expected it - tennis players don't really come from Scotland, so it's a strange story, but proves that anything can happen if you believe and you dream and work hard, then you can achieve whatever you want to, so it's a nice story."

Bagpipes accompanied Murray's entrance as he arrived at the school's 'Murray Hall' with his girlfriend Kim Sears.

The Olympic gold medallist admitted that he did not actually know what the Freedom of the City afforded him.

He said: "I've read a bit about it on the internet. I don't know exactly what it lets me do but I don't think I can do anything different to anyone else.

"It's amazing, it doesn't happen that often, so it shows the support from the public, which has been unbelievable."

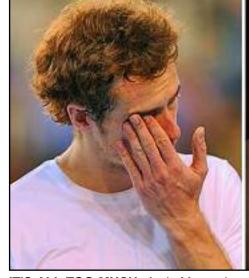

He was later advised the honour would now mean he had permission to drive a flock of sheep down the city's high street.

'buzzing'

He joked: "I don't think it's the case anymore but I might give it a go this evening and see what happens."

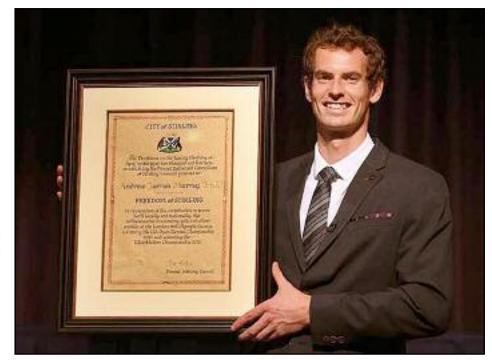

As he left, Murray paused to chat with pupils, sign autographs and even posed for a 'selfie' with a student.

Alex McRae, a sixth year pupil at the school, said: "Everyone here is behind Andy at all his events so it was brilliant to meet him.

"He was overwhelmed by the people who came to see him and it was emotional for him.

"There's swimmers, footballers and tennis players in the school and I think everyone has been motivated by what he said.

"He even asked us about our exams and personal lives. He took a real interest and it just shows that he's a nice guy."

The Freedom of Stirling has only been granted on four other occasions.

It was decided that Murray would receive the honour in 2012, after his stunning performance in the London Olympics and first Grand Slam win at the US Open later that year.

But the star's intensive training and competition schedule meant it could only be awarded now.

Stirling Provost Mike
Robbins said:
"Everybody is buzzing about today's special ceremony. There's always a lot of interest and excitement whenever

Andy comes home, and we're delighted to welcome him back.

"We hope that today's very special event will inspire young people to get into sports and lead healthy and active lifestyles."

He bestowed the Freedom of the City on Murray, saying: "I now formally present Andy with the scroll which confers upon him the freedom of the city of Stirling, here in Dunblane, and, from one Dunblane person to another, I'm delighted."

Hypnotic Hardy keeps us 'Locked' into compelling and daring new British film

MOVIE REVIEW: By Debbie Lynn Elias

When I first heard about LOCKE, I had no idea what to expect from writer/director Steven Knight.

A man in a car? Driving? Alone? The whole concept may have some thinking "what the hell can you do with that?" but Knight defies expectations, mesmerizing the viewer with both character and cinematography. The car, of course is a touchstone of the world today where much of our individual and collective lives are lived and and from Ivan Locke's first phone call, we are captivated.

And then we see Tom Hardy give a tour de force performance in what is essentially a one-man show in a single location movie. Hardy plays Locke as a man at the pinnacle of his trade, on the biggest day of his professional life. A strong, confident man, Locke is a construction foreman and also a devoted husband and loving father. Doing everything right is of the utmost importance to him. He carries that with him in life and at work, reinforcing those beliefs on the eve of the biggest job of his life.

One night stand

A 55-storey building, the tallest in the British Isles, is having its concrete foundation poured in the morning. One bad pour, one runny slurry, an improper grade of cement to cut costs, and that building will eventually topple. Much like life. Needing everything to go smoothly, Locke has thoroughly prepared for the event. The one thing he didn't prepare for, however, was a telephone call from his one-time site assistant with whom he had a one-night stand and now, nine months later, she calls to say she is giving birth to his child and she needs him to come to the hospital; now.

Most men would dismiss the call and focus their attention on the matters at hand. But Ivan Locke isn't just any man. He will maintain control and handle it all; even if that means turning the morning concrete pour over to his less experienced assistant, even if it means disappointing his two sons and a tradition of watching football together, even if it means confessing to his wife about his one-time indiscretion, even if it means losing his job. He is Ivan Locke. He is the foundation of his world. He will be strong. He will not crumble. Or will he?

Which he is why he is tooling down the M1 in the dead of night in his bells-and-whistles-laden BMW, heading for the London hospital where his lapse in judgement is about to come to term.

panic

With a steady stream of phone calls, Locke starts juggling all the balls amidst the darkness of night with the only light being the brightly lit bluetooth dashboard display within the car, at times his best friend, at others, worst Problems nightmare. mount with the job and his assistant Donal. Histrionic panic sets in with mother-to-be Bethan. Anger rages with his wife Katrina. Sadness fills his sons. And we are there in the car with Locke with only the faceless voices as company, telling the story of a man's life.

As Ivan Locke, Tom Hardy is in control, commanding, a man reigning over a crumbling dominion but determined to steer the ship to where he wants it. The calm of Hardy is imposing, at times almost threatening. You are waiting for him to snap, to bend, to break. Yet the only time he does is with himself. He never lets any chink in his armor be heard in his voice when speaking with others. The building is a metaphor for Locke himself. He is the solid secure foundation for all those around him.

inky night sky

Written and directed by Steven Wright, the construct of Locke fascinates, starting with the premise of shooting at night and the brilliance of cinematographer Haris Zambarloukos.

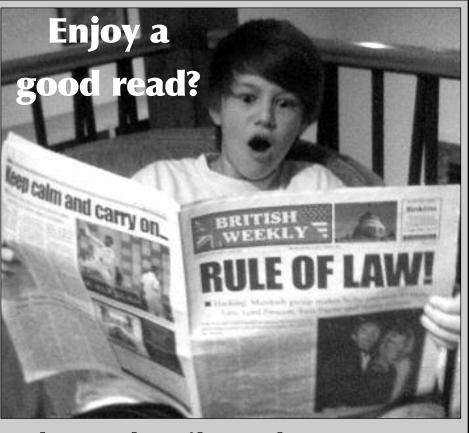

Night shoots - on clean freeways that skirt majestic cities ablaze with lights against an inky night sky - have the capacity for gorgeous lensing and that's precisely Zambarloukos gives us. The play of lights, the blur and distortion, the color of tail-lights, signal lights, tinged yellow lights from buildings, the misty halogen pallor of street lamps. They mesmerize under Zambarloukos' lens. The result visually stunning, three dimensional and like Hardy's performance, prove totally hypnotic.

KISMET, HARDY? Tom Hardy stars as the beleaguered Locke in the remarkable, single-location new film from British director Steven Knight

Meet A Member: Clive Pearson

Meet Clive Pearson from Pulloxhill, a village in Bedforshire, who moved to LA 23 years ago to pursue acting

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? Yes I was as vapid as everyone else here, so I fit right in, now I'm even more vacuous, and colorless, so I'm looking forward to getting plenty of TV acting parts
What one thing do you miss from home?
Huh?????

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus the UK?

The women are prettier here, but you can't have a conversation with them.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want

What would you suggest to others who are

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It's time to plan ahead for a trip early next month. This may be pleasure or business - ideally it should be a bit of both. Keep an eye on your diet this month ahead for health's sake.

TAURUS: Your priority should be taking care of YOU in any area that requires attention and this may be your health as your ruler Venus is going backwards so any area of your life that requires attention will be uppermost in your mind. Happy Birthday

GEMINI: If you feel you need to make a move in settling some kind of work or emotional situation now is the time. You may not be sure how it will be received, but bite the bullet and do it. Thing's will get easier as the week proceeds.

CANCER: You will have to be aware this next week to not speak out of turn or harshly to anyone, or the consequences will be far-reaching, especially if it's a close friend or family. Be sure you buy some lottery tickets - you could be lucky!!

LEO: This is a time for your inner strength to surface as you are going to be a busy bee this next month ahead. Life just is very good for you at the moment so take advantage.

SAGITTARIUS: If you are worried about finances and are not doing anything to change the situation then it will make you crazy and with a lot of action happening in finances this month ahead there are opportunities to make the change for sure.

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling a bit restless or not in balance, this is due to the line-up of planets currently affecting you. They are conspiring to let you know something in your life is out of sorts in any area. You will do better after the end of this month.

AQUARIUS: Your judgment in a long term situation is way out and this week if you allow yourself to go the same route as before all is a waste of time. So be cool, wait and see if you can change your mind and change the outcome!

PISCES: Neptune and Venus are both in your sign for a while. The former will bring you financial rewards and the latter could bring new love in your life. It is a very Karmic time!

Time to 'Turn'? 'Washington's Spies' sparks AMC show

■ Exclusive interview with author Alexander Rose about his book Washington's Spies, the basis for the AMC television series Turn

Rating: ★★★

"Barry Josephson, the producer (of the AMC mini-series Turn) contacted me from out of the blue about three years ago," says Washington's Spies author Alex Rose.

"Barry and Craig Silverstein invited me along to watch the pilot being filmed down in Virginia, which was very exciting. I spent two weeks down there, seeing how the sausage gets made. It was quite fascinating, especially for a writer more accustomed to working alone in an archive."

Washington's Spies is a factual book not a historical novel. Washington used handful of rebels acting as spies although spycraft hadn't yet been refined and these early American made spies many mistakes, some fatal. The British spies were no better. Major John Andre, when captured by the Americans, revealed the fact that Washington's star general Benedict Arnold was a traitor.

In the summer of 1778 General George Washington needed to know where the British would strike next. Washington's goal was to find out as much as he could about what General Henry Clinton was doing and stop him. He enlisted group of loyal Americans who later become known at the Culper Ring comprising, among others, a Quaker torn between family loyalty and political principle, a sailor who was a thrill junkie, a party boy, an Ivy League-educated cavalryman who was a friend of Nathan Hale, and a peaceful farmer who wanted nothing more than to retire, but couldn't. The operated in British-occupied New York.

An academic book, Washington's Spies is not a novel and Rose doesn't give dialog, but does use lots of quotes from correspondence. explores the relationship between Washington and his spies. Rose talks about the technical aspects of Culpers' spycraft including using invisible ink and cryptography and the footnotes make for fascinating reading of anecdotal details. At the end of the book Rose traces the people's lives and their deaths after the Rose says choosing the Culper Ring was an accident. "I was reading a biography of Benedict Arnold and I became interested in the wider espionage angle during the Revolution. It turned out much, against my expectations, that hardly anything had been written on the subject. So then it was a matter of finding the right story to hang it on, which is where the Culper Ring came in."

Rose spent a great deal of time poring through the Culper Ring correspondence and trying to read their handwriting.

"All the Culper letters are lodged in the George Washington Papers at the Library of Congress," says Rose. "Anyone can go see them, or at least consult them online."

For this season, Rose has been serving as a consultant on the AMC series. "I go over the scripts and make suggestions," says Rowe, "but it's up to the writers what to do from there. As for the look of the show, that's nothing to do with me; that's the work of the brilliant costume, props, construction, and special-effects people. They're the ones who brought the series to life."

Stars come out - and the Blue Peter Badge - at BritWeek bash!

The eighth annual BritWeek festival launched in style with a gala party at the British Consul-General's residence in Hancock Park on Tuesday night. The business, arts and entertainment celebration runs until May 4th in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

BritWeek is a non-profit organisation, co-founded in 2007 by former Pop Idol judge Nigel Lythgoe to highlight the creative fusion between the UK, California, and Miami.

Stars including Seal, Jason Isaacs, Chesney Hawkes, Dani Behr, film director Amanda Eliasch, actress Justine Glenton, Jenna Elfman, Catt Sadler and others gathered under the stars a spectacular Midsummer Night's Dream party sponsored by BBC Worldwide, Boots, Fairmont Miramar Hotel and Bungalows and The Times of London.

TV presenter Cat
Deeley put the all-white fashion trend to work, arriving on the red carpet
with her husband Patrick Kielty looking jam hot in a white capped-sleeve dress with matching stilettos. The hand held?
Kate Spade's 'Paris and the Single Girl' clutch, the bag that every

Parisian-chic gal needs in her life.

Of course I turned up dressed looking the part a la-Brit-boy, kitted out in designer Paul Smith finished off with a Union Jack tie. My bestie, actor Craig Robert Young had very the clever idea of pinning HIS Blue Peter badge on the lapel of my jacket just before leaving for the do. What a great idea! I received SO much attention, who would have thought I'd be upstaged by Craig's Blue Peter badge! Even Seal, singer who, incidentally I have known for years, couldn't resist making his comments about the cute little symbol of the well-known British kids' TV show. I felt like such a fraud actually, because you have to do something special to receive one. Many of my admirers had asked me what had I done to receive such an honor.

Er... Hmm... Craig!!! Simon Cowell's former girlfriend Terri Seymour stuck to an all-white outfit, in the form of a silky white negligee dress. She covered up with a white blazer and topped off with silver glittering clutch bag and matching sandals. According to Terri, who arrived on the arm of her toyboy beau, model Clark Mallon; Simon is enjoying every bit of being a first-time dad to his two-month-old Eric. told partygoers,"He's very good. He'd never even held a baby before, so he was like, 'How do you hold a baby?' You have to remind him every now and then about the head... But he's really good and he loves it." Aww, that was nice to Record producer Paul Oakenfold looked rather swish in his suit and stood confidently on the red carpet with his hands in his pockets and actress Britt

OLD MUCKERS: Chesney Hawkes and Sean Borg

Ekland wowed in white. Dani Behr, who recently revealed her nine-year marriage to Carl Harwin is over in a Hello! magazine interview, looked super-sexy in a figure-hugging purple dress by Tom Ford.

There was a surprise appearance from Supernanny, also known as Jo Frost, and Amanda Eliasch was spotted chatting away to Charles Saatchi's ex-wife, the lovely Kay. The artist and film director wore her trademark "Peggy Guggenheim" dark glasses. (I'm amazed she found her way around the party wearing those all night). Actress Justine Glenton, who stars in Eliasch's directorial debut The Gun the Cake and the Butterfly looked gorgeous ever wearing a sexy, long, flowy number.

I had fun catching up with people I hadn't seen in a very long time, in particular singer Chesney Hawkes, who still looks as young as he did the day I met him wayyyyyyy back in 1990... Ches' and I were starving and we set out to find the Fish 'n' Chips stall on the other side of the party. As we fought our way through the crowds, we finally made it only to find they had out... Darn. run Thankfully though, super-PR girl Jane Owen had the wonderful idea of inviting us to the Sunset Towers after the do for Champagne and mini-sliders... Fabulous. Thanks Jane!

BritWeek will continue its ode to the 450th anniversary Shakespeare with a one-night-only performance, BritWeek's Evening of Shakespeare, Music, and presented by Beverly Hills Wealth Management, on April featuring acclaimed actors (including Ioan Gruffudd, Iane Seymour, Malcolm McDowell, Michael York, Sophie Winkleman, and others) performing the Bard's best work. And on April 28, Amanda Eliasch will screen her incredible "art house" film "The gun the cake and the butterfly" at the Arclight cinema in Hollywood. Save the date!

All-in-all a super night had by everyone...

Here comes Primark, and some cheeky Bingo...

Hey Breeps!

Hot topics this week: Primark or Prim-ani (play on Armani) as it is commonly referred to, is set to grace US shores -no date set for L.A. just yet - but the flagship will be in Boston. Bit of a trek, but it will make the missus happy no doubt. Our American friends won't have a clue what it is I'm talking about. Primark, which started in Dublin back in 1969, is a popular chain of budget clothing stores with 162 locations in the Think Sam's,

Michael's or Marshall's here, but way, way, way cheaper. You can get a whole outfit, including shoes for $100 and throw in a bottle of aftershave too. Now all this comes with a warning, these said items are not very well made and may only last you one washing cycle, so be prepared for them to fall apart after a night out of boogie (or whatever you kids call it these days, Twerking?) but joining the ranks of previous Topshop and H&M, the Brits cannot wait for Primark to make its mark in on the West Coast.

BritWeek is on!

Britweek is all a flutter, and we are excited to be co-hosting a screening and after-party for Eliasch's Amanda movie "The Gun, The Cake & The Butterfly" at the Arclight Cinema on Monday in association with Jaguar and Genlux magazine. All of our key members are invited to come along and enjoy the exclusive after-party. I was fortunate to sit down and have lunch with Amanda last week at The Ivy, and she is a truly remarkable lady. A beautiful, creative, unique butterfly herself.

Eyes down, full house

Well, cheeky Bingo was such a huge success that we are making it a weekly event. Come join us after the game at around 9.30pm for free rounds and chances to win great prizes. Come early to get a good seat. At The Parlor

VORTEX FANS: Craig with Shannon Holt and Bruno Tonioli at the Malibu Playhouse

Hollywood, 7250 Melrose Avenue, just west of La Brea.

Embrace your inner Coward

Also The Vortex is still playing and my good friend Bruno Tonioli from Dancing wIth the Stars came to support us on opening night. Actress Shannon Holt, who plays Florence in the play was beside herself as she is a huge fan of his. We have a few weeks remaining so come down, enjoy the ride and the ocean view and see some great theatre in Malibu. - Tickets available at www.plays411.com use the code BLA for a $10 discount and a free drink at interval. Doesn't get any better than that!

Finally... Here at BritsInLA we are deluged with questions about life in LA but the majority of queries focus on driver's licenses, social security cards and passports. So we've made a blogpost just for you so it's all in one place. The URL is too long to list in these pages, so check out our website: britsinla. blogspot.com

Cheers! Craig

Ramires to miss rest of season

midfielder Ramires will miss the rest of the Premier League season after accepting a charge of violent conduct.

The Brazilian was sanctioned following an off-the-ball incident involving Sebastian during Larsson his side's 2-1 defeat by Sunderland on Saturday.

The 27-year-old will serve a four-match ban after a review panel decision.

Manager Jose Mourinho and assistant Rui Faria are also subject to Football Association charges from the match.

Ramires elbowed Larsson towards the end of the first half at Stamford Bridge, a few moments after the Sunderland midfielder had barged him off the ball in front of goal.

The incident was later reviewed by a panel of former referees, and Ramires will now miss Chelsea's remaining Premier League fixtures this term - against Liverpool, Norwich and Cardiff - as well as their

"It has always been tougher in the transfer market when you are not competing at the highest level," said Ayre.

"We have always been fortunate to be able to bring great players here despite that, but there is no question it opens up a few doors for us and makes it a little bit easier.

"There is no question we always expected that the squad we need for next season will be very different to the squad that we have needed for this year when we were not playing in Europe."

It is likely that Liverpool's main focus will be on defensive reinforcements.

Moyes hits back!

■ Glazers fly in as United come under attack ■ Club branded 'unprofessional" by LMA

Manchester United boss David Moss ensured his departure from Old Trafford would be less than cordial when he pointedly refused to thank his former players and was then caught up in a furious war of words with the club about his controversial sacking.

As three members of the Glazer family, United's American owners. prepared to fly in for a Friday summit meeting, the bitter fall-out from the Moyes affair gathered momentum.

Moyes thanked Sir Alex Ferguson, his coaching staff the fans but significantly made no mention of the players, who he feels let him down.

And League Managers' Association chief executive Richard Bevan accused being of "unprofessional" leaking reports of Moyes' departure before informing him he was fired.

"The LMA is very disappointed with the nature of David's departure from Manchester United, and to read extensive reports in the press confirming David's sacking before David himself had been spoken to officially by the club," said Bevan.

"Throughout his time at United, David, as he always does, has conducted himself with integrity and professionalism, values that he believes in and that have been strongly associated with the club and its rich

"It is therefore sad to see the end of David's tenure being handled in an unprofessional manner."

United hit back by insisting the final decision to dispense with Moyes was not taken until late on Monday evening. "We do not accept it was handled in an unprofessional manner," said a spokesman.

Moyes, alarmed by speculation on newspaper websites that he was facing the sack, spoke to executive vice-chairman Woodward on Monday afternoon, but Woodward could not confirm he was out of a job because conversations with the Glazers continued until late in the evening.

Moyes' fate was only officially confirmed when met Woodward face-to-face at Carrington training ground early on Tuesday morning.

In a statement he admitted the job was "a significant challenge" and accepted results and performances had not been "what United and its fans are used to or expect", saying: "I both understand and share their frustration."

Holland coach Louis Van Gaal, keen to return to club football after the World Cup in Brazil, remains favourite but United have not ruled out Carlo Ancelotti, well aware he could be fired by Real Madrid if they fail to win either the Champions League or La Liga.

The Glazers will also meet interim manager Ryan Giggs to offer the club's longest-serving player their full support ahead of his four-game spell in charge and will stay to watch Saturday's home game against Norwich.

Klopp has won the Bundesliga title twice with Dortmund since he replaced Thomas Doll as manager in 2008. He also guided them to last Champions League final, in which they lost to Bayern Dortmund contract until 2018 in October last year and said that, although United are a "really great club", he is not tempted to leave Westphalia for Old Trafford. "I'm still really happy here," the German added.
