From English schoolboy to Isla Vista murderer...

- Rampage killer described bucolic English childhood before embarking on murderous spree
 - "It breaks our hearts on a level that we didn't think possible," say gunman's parents
 - Killer's grandmother in Kent said he had suffered mental health issues for some time

Santa Barbara gunman Elliot Rodger enjoyed an idyllic childhood in the English countryside, but felt rejected and alienated when he joined a Sussex prep school, according to his online "manifesto".

The 22-year-old killed student people and injured 13 more when he went on gun and knife rampage in the college town of Isla Vista and he detailed his rage and murderous plans in the 141-page document.

He chronicled his fury and resentment in My Twisted World: the Story of Elliot Rodger, a lengthy essay he emailed to his parents and a therapist just before the killing began. The early pages described a happy childhood in England before the feelings of rejection began at school.

'beautiful'

He bragged about his world travel and his family lineage, detailing father's background, saying:

SHOWBUSINESS: Director Peter Rodger's career allowed him to moved his family to California

"Peter is of British descent, hailing from the Rodger prestigious family; a family that was once part of the wealthy upper classes before they lost all of their childhood of playing fortune during the Great outside, surrounded by Depression.

"My father's father, countryside. George Rodger, was a renowned photojournalist who had taken very famous photoduring graphs the Second World War, though he failed to reacquire the family's lost fortune."

Rodger went on to detail blissful a family in with vast grass fields surrounding it. The house even had a name: The Old Rectory. This was where I spent my early childhood, the first five years of my life, and it was beautiful," he wrote.

"The memories I have of this period are only memories of happiness and bliss. My father was professional photographer at the time, just in the stage of becoming a director. My mother gave up her nursing career to stay at home and look after me. My grandma on my mother's side, who I would call Ah Mah, cont. on page 5, col. 1

UKIP: the party goes on

■ Nigel Farage warns the the big boys he will "see them in Westminster" after his upstart movement surges in local elections

Nigel Farage says his party is a "serious player" for 2015 after UKIP made significant gains in the last week's local elections, leaving the other main party leaders admitting there was work to do.

The Prime Minister conceded the Conservatives had to start delivering on immigration and welfare reform, and said the public had become "frustrated" with the status quo.

Mr Farage told the leaders of the main parties he would "see them in Westminster" as the results showed UKIP now had the potential to cause an "earthquake" at next year's General Election.

He said: "The UKIP fox is in the Westminster henhouse."

Asked whether the party would widen its pitch to voters beyond the EU and immigration, Mr Farage insisted it already had "clear principles" on cutting taxes and bringing back grammar schools.

He added: "Don't think the immigration issue is going to go away. The plight of the eurozone is such that immigration is likely to be an even bigger question at the time of the general election."

UKIP gained 163 seats - giving them 180 seats in all but with no councils under their control; and Labour had won 3,999 seats, giving it control of 81 councils - an increase of five.

'unprofessional'

The Conservatives have 2,679 seats overall, controlling 41 councils -down 13; the Liberal Democrats picked up 882 seats, seeing the number of councils under their control falling from eight to six.

UKIP took seats off both Labour and the Conservatives in their heartlands, which was particularly damaging to Ed Miliband, who has been accused by his own party of running an "unforgivably unprofessional" campaign.

Labour lost its grip in the north and, in a serious blow, lost control of Thurrock, a key marginal for the General Election in 2015.

Mr Miliband rejected that he was an electoral liability and told Sky News: "I think we ran a good campaign."

"I think in some parts of the country we have had discontent building up for decades about the way the country has been run and about the way our economy works ... so what you are seeing in some parts of the country is people turning to UKIP as an expression of that discontent."

David Cameron said: "We have got to work harder and we have got to really deliver on issues that are frustrating people and frustrating me, like welfare reform and immigration and making sure people really benefit from this recovery."

election pact

Education Secretary Michael Gove told Sky News there were lessons to be learned from UKIP's success.

If replicated in the 2015 General Election, the results would result in a hung parliament, with Labour holding the largest number of MPs – a development that prompted three Conservative MPs – Douglas Carswell, Peter Bone and Jacob Rees-Mogg, who are all on the right of the partyto propose an election pact between the Tories and the upstart party.

Liberal Democrat leader Nick Clegg admitted the party had had a bad night but said: "Actually I think in the areas where we have MPs where we have good organisation on the ground ... we are actually doing well."

Mr Farage celebrated by going on a tour of the areas where he had been most successful.

Siobhan Robbins, who was with him in Thurrock, said: "It was like he was a pop star. People were gathered around him and there was a scrum. I saw two grown men cry. One of them was saying: 'Thank you Nigel Farage. Thank you for showing us the light'."

Kate's scotches pregnancy talk with a wee dram...

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge have been drinking whisky while on a visit to Scotland possibly scotching rumours the Duchess might be pregnant.

Kate and William sampled a 'dram' of Scotland's national drink while on a tour of the Glenturret distillery, just outside Crieff, Perthshire on Wednesday.

The tour was part of their visit to the Strathearn area of central Scotland.

The couple were appointed the Earl and Countess Strathearn by the Oueen after they were married.

At the distillery, they were greeted by a bagpiper and crowds waving flags before being shown round.

When they reached the whisky bar, master blender Gordon Motion talked them through the different brands.

William chose the Alpha Black first, and commented: "That's pretty good."

Kate sipped from a glass of Snow Goose said to have a lighter flavour and be popular with women - which she said was "very nice" and suggested that William try "the girly one".

The couple were also offered a glass of cask Glenturret strength single malt which prompted the Prince to say "Blimey, it's got a bit of a kick to it," while Kate said it was delicious.

It came after the couple's recent trip to Australia and New Zealand when Kate appeared to quash speculation that she may be expecting a second by telling wine-makers how she was enjoying being able to drink again after the birth of Prince George.

The Duchess wore a coral and red striped coat Scottish designer Ionathan Saunders and a dress by Goat.

The outfit was topped off with beige heels, a matching clutch bag and a celtic brooch given to her as a wedding present.

General manager Stuart Cassells presented the couple with a bottle of whisky, personalised with the label "The Famous Streathearns".

He also gave them a cuddly grouse toy for their son, saying: "We didn't want to leave George out."

Established as a single malt distillery in 1775, Glenturret is also blended with other grains and malt whiskies to create The Famous Grouse, one of the world's top whiskies.

During their tour, the couple officially opened the newly-revamped Famous Grouse Experience visitor attraction.

Mr Cassells said: "They said they liked whisky, both Prince William and Kate.

"We were surprised at how many different whiskies they tried. The last whisky they tried was at 57% cask strength."

After bottling their own whisky, the couple attended a civic reception people with from Perthshire, invited for their work in the community.

They had begun the day with a visit to Strathearn Community Campus where they were greeted by crowds of excited locals waving Saltires and Union flags.

While there, the Duke chatted to the crew of Scotland's Charity Air Ambulance (SCAA).

The encounter came after reports suggested the Duke is considering taking a pilot's role with the East Anglian Air Ambulance service.

An Australian newspaper owned by Rupert Murdoch has become the second publication to run images the Duchess of Cambridge's bare bottom in its pages.

The photograph, initially published in German magazine Bild, was taken by a photographer during the recent royal tour of Australia.

Duke The Duchess were visiting the Blue Mountains near Sydney when a blast of wind from a nearby helicopter blew up her Diane Von Furstenberg wrap dress and accidentally flashed her backside.

"fair game"

Bild unpixelated image alongside shots of Kim Kardashian and her sister Khloe, declaring in a caption: "Khloe, Kim and Kate - backsides which have moved us these past few days."

In contrast, the Sydney Telegraph published it as part of a comment piece under the headline: "My bare lady: Derri-heir to the throne is fair game."

In it, the author Annette Sharp criticised British publications for their "ridiculous" ban on printing the shots because of privacy.

seems a ridiculous to expect the rest of the world's media follow suit. particularly in a world in which flesh and commercialism go hand in hand," Sharp wrote.

"If the duchess can't be bothered protecting herself by having hem weights sewn into her garments, why should the media protect her?"

The photographer who took the shot, Diane Morel, who is local to the Blue Mountains, almost deleted the image before she realised what she had managed, in a split second, to capture.

"It wasn't until I got home and I popped my camera card into the computer that I realised what I had captured," she told the Sydney Daily Telegraph.

'grotesque'

She added that the money she earned from the image would go towards funding for a bushfire relief fund.

The controversial move by the tabloid is likely to spark another

Buckingham Palace and the global media.

The Palace labelled the publication of the images a "grotesque" invasion of privacy. It also comes after a

New uproar over NI first minister's Muslim remarks

■ Peter Robinson blasted after defending sermon which branded Islam 'Satanic'

Northern Ireland First Minister Peter Robinson has stoked controversy by saying he would not trust Muslims for spiritual guidance but would to "go down the shops for me".

The Democratic Unionist leader is facing criticism over his remarks which defended a contentious sermon made by Pastor James McConnell, in which the pastor branded Islam "satanic" and a "doctrine spawned in hell".

fiery address

Police are now investigating to see if its contents constitute a hate crime. Mr Robinson has said his comments have been "misinterpreted".

The First Minister, who has attended the fundamentalist Protestant preacher's church in Belfast, said he supported the pastor's right to criticize the Islamic faith.

In a fiery address earlier this month, Mr McConnell said: "People say there are good Muslims in Britain - that may be so - but I don't trust them.

"Islam is heathen, Islam is satanic, Islam is a doctrine spawned in hell."

In an interview with the Irish News, Mr Robinson insisted the pastor did not have "an ounce of hatred" in his body.

He said a Christian minister had a right to "denounce false doctrines".

Mr Robinson said he would not trust Muslims for spiritual guidance, or those engaged in terrorist acts.

But he added: "Would I trust them to go down the shops for me? Of course I would. Would I trust them to do a number of other lifetime, normal day-to-day issues? There's no reason why you wouldn't."

The controversy has erupted at a time when race hate attacks in Northern Ireland are on the increase.

In a statement on Thursday, Mr Robinson said he had not intended his comments "to insult or cause distress to local Muslims" and said his words had been "misinterpreted".

He said: "I very much value their contribution at every level to our society and I will take the opportunity to meet with local Muslim leaders to demonstrate my ongoing support for them as integral law abiding citizens in Northern Ireland."

'true respect'

Mr Robinson said he still believed in Pastor McConnell's right to freedom of speech.

Northern Ireland's Equality Commission, which monitors compliance with equality legislation, criticised the pastor's sermon and raised concern over Mr Robinson's comments.

Chief Commissioner Dr Michael Wardlow said: "It is incumbent on all leaders in public life to demonstrate in what they say, and what they do not say, a real and true respect for all human beings.

"Those in a position to influence others should not use language which may increase the vulnerability and legitimate fears of people who already feel isolated and under attack because of their race and religion."

Sinn Fein Deputy First Minister and former IRA commander Martin McGuinness, who has already accused the pastor of hate-mongering, has told his partner in government to show some leadership.

"All of us in positions of leadership have a responsibility to represent and stand up for all the people of our society," he said.

But this provoked an angry response from Mr Robinson on Twitter, who said: "I won't take lectures from a self-confessed leader of a bloody terrorist organisation on equality, tolerance and mutual respect for all."

Search abandoned after British yacht found with life raft intact

FOUR BRITISH sailors aboard a Southamptonbased yacht are now believed to be dead following the discovery of their upturned yacht with its life raft still aboard.

The upturned hull of the 40ft Cheeki Rafiki was found on Friday but there was no sign of the crew.

The yacht began taking on water on its way to the UK after an Antigua regatta.

The US search ended at midnight local time and the RAF will no longer go out. The yacht's owners said it was a "terrible moment" for their families.

A US Navy helicopter crew discovered the wreckage about 1,000 miles east of Massachusetts on Friday after the search for the missing men resumed three days earlier following an official request from the UK government.

The crew got into difficulties in the same area on 15 May.

They were Paul Goslin, 56, from West Camel, Somerset; Steve Warren, 52, from Bridgwater, Somerset; skipper Andrew Bridge, 22, from Farnham, Surrey; and 22-year-old James Male, from Romsey, Hampshire.

Mr Warren's uncle, Albert Davey, told the BBC: "Prior to setting off on this return trip... the Cheeki Rafiki had won its class in the Antigua Yachting Regatta.

"It's not the ending we would want but we have got to gain some small consolation that Steve was doing what he thoroughly enjoyed doing and I think we have got to cling on to that."

English whiz: Emma Watson graduates

■ Harry Potter actress earned an English literature degree after five years at university though she has achieved her aim of having a normal student experience.

And apart from her minder, perhaps she had.

In the past, the 24-year-old has played down her celebrity status, claiming to have never been asked for an autograph on campus – a sign, she said, of her normality.

Underneath her graduation gown, the guard wore a pink shirt, jeans and trainers – far more practical, no doubt, than Miss Watson's strappy heels.

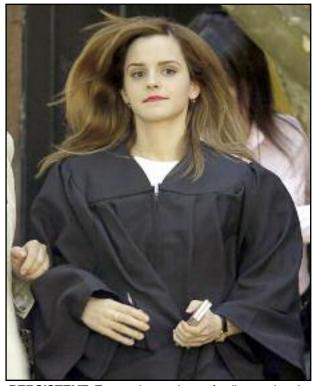

Miss Watson's mother Jacqueline Luesby was also present for her daughter's graduation, which came after five years – and three enrolments – at university.

Miss Watson first enrolled at Brown in 2009, before dropping out to shoot the final Harry Potter film, in which she starred as the studious witch Hermione Granger.

Then, having transferred to Oxford University – where she would meet her current boyfriend Matt Janney, as well as former flame William Adamowicz – for another go at it in 2011, she was cast in The Perks of Being a Wallflower and put her studies on hold once more.

It was a role she could not refuse, having waited so long to land a 'grown-up' part and being desperate for a chance to prove she could do more than the Harry Potter films

But it would appear the third time is a charm for Miss

She added: 'I will be there. And I will be throwing a huge party. And getting very drunk.'

"I would spend a lot of time with Ah Mah during these years. This was a time of discovery, excitement, and fun. I had just entered this new world, and I knew nothing of the pain it would bring me later on.

'too strict'

"I enjoyed life with innocent bliss. I can remember playing in the fields and going on long walks with Ah Mah to pick berries. She would always warn me not to touch the stinging nettles that sometimes grew in our fields, but my curiosity got the better of me, and I got stung a few times. There was a swing in the back of our yard, which I had many good times on."

But the gunman later details his unhappy time at the all-boys prep school Dorset House in the Sussex downs.

He said: "I was forced to wear a uniform, which I hated because I had to wear uncomfortable socks up to my knees. I was very nervous and I cried on my first day there. I can remember two friends I made by name, George and David. I would always play in the sandpit with them.

'terrifying experience'

"I didn't like school at Dorsett [sic] House very much. I found the rules to be too strict. My least favourite part of it was the football sessions. I never understood the game and I could never keep up with the other boys in the field, so I always stood by the goal-keeper and pretended to be the 'second goalkeeper'."

Rodger also remembers a time when he was terrified after getting lost on a school trip to a park.

"As my class was eating lunch, I ventured off to another area of the park, and when I returned, my class had moved on," he wrote. "I remember panicking and asking strangers for help. It was a terrifying experience for me."

assistant director

Elliot was born in August 1991 in Lambeth, South London to his Malaysian-born mother Li Chin, now 53, and film director father Peter, 49. They moved to America's West Coast when Elliot was five and his younger sister Georgia only a baby. Peter's career has flourished since his move and he was most recently assistant director on the global smash The Hunger Games.

Following the tragedy Peter and Li Chin released a statement, which was read aloud by family friend Simon Astaire on NBC's the Today show, which read, in part: "We are crying in pain for the victims and their families.

It breaks our hearts on a level that we didn't think possible."

'difficult time'

"The feeling of knowing that it was our son's actions that caused the tragedy can only be described as hell on earth," they said.

Speaking from her home in Kent, Elliot's grandmother, 89, explained that he had suffered mental health issues for some time.

She said: 'He was a very disturbed boy. He lived in California but of course I'd known him. This is just one of those very tragic things. I don't want to talk about it any more. This is a rather difficult time.'

Memorial held for TV globetrotter Alan Whicker

■ Friends and colleague pay tribute to "a towering figure" in the world of television

Friends and colleagues for what is more usually of Alan Whicker have paid tribute to the veteran TV globetrotter who died last year.

Sir Michael Parkinson and Monty Python star Michael Palin were among the guests at a memorial service at the Grosvenor Chapel in London's Mayfair on Wednesday.

Former BBC boss Michael Grade described Whicker as "one of the corner stones of the golden age of British television".

'unerring instinct'

Whicker died in July 2013 after a TV career lasting nearly six decades.

He was best known for Whicker's World which ran from 1959 to 1988 on both the BBC and ITV.

"Alan Whicker belonged to that very exclusive club of gifted individuals who over so decades many consistently delivered memorable programmes such transitory medium," Lord Grade said.

"He had that unmistakable voice with its delicate inflections so easily mimicked, eyebrows that could speak a thousand words when raised slightly at the right moment... and an unerring instinct to know when to listen."

Whicker's dapper dress sense - which included his trademark smart blazer and tie - made him one of the most recognised figures on television. Palin, who spoofed Whicker in a Monty Python sketch, said Whicker was "a towering figure" in the world of television.

He said Whicker had the "enviable ability to deliver introductions and summings up that were as crisp and precise as the clothes in which he delivered them".

Palin recalled how he had been the fourth Doc' Duvalier.

person the BBC had asked to present travel series Around the World in 80 Days, the first choice having been Whicker.

'Gist' of Bush-Blair talks to be made public at last

■ Long awaited report into run-up to Iraq invasion the result of painstaking negotiations between Blair's office and chairman of the Chilcot inquiry

Sensitive extracts of exchanges between Tony Blair and George Bush in the run-up to the Iraq war are to be published but the full versions will remain secret.

Years of negotiations over the release of the "vital" material, which includes 25 notes from Mr Blair to Mr Bush and more than 130 records of conversations between the former Prime Minister and then US president, is understood to have been behind the delay in of publication the long-awaited report into the invasion.

Under the agreement that has now been thrashed information being disclosed will be limited to "quotes or gists" and the inquiry's use of the material "should not reflect president Bush's views".

'difficult issues'

The deal was struck by the Government's top civil servant Sir Jeremy Heywood, who was private principal secretary to Mr Blair in 10 Downing Street in the run-up to the war, and inquiry chairman Sir John Chilcot.

In a letter, Sir John told the Cabinet Secretary: "I appreciate that the inquiry's requests for disclosure raised difficult issues of long-standing principle, which have taken some months to resolve: recognition of the wholly exceptional nature of this Inquiry has allowed that to happen.

"My colleagues and I judge that this material is vital to the public understanding of the inquiry's conclusions."

He added: "Following our recent agreement on principles disclosure of material describing communication between the prime minister and the president of the United States, detailed consideration of the gists and quotes requested by the inquiry has now begun.

'potential gaps'

"Consideration will be based on the principle that our use of this material should not reflect president Bush's views.

UK growth 'fastest since 2003"

The UK economy is growing at its fastest pace for more than a decade, according to from the figures Confederation British Industry.

It said a survey of growth recorded in May gave the strongest reading since its data began in 2003.

The poll of 726 firms found a balance of plus 35% - the difference between those reporting higher output in the last three months and those saying it was lower. It was up from plus 25% in April.

It suggested the UK economy - which grew by 0.8% in the first three months of 2014 - had continued to perform strongly going into the second quarter, the CBI

The pace of growth was expected to remain above average, with a balance of plus 30% for expected output increase over the next three months.

"We have also agreed that the use of direct quotation from the documents should be the minimum necessary to enable the inquiry to articulate its conclusions."

Sir John said some gaps" "potential material had been identified which had now been addressed. "including some material received by the inquiry very recently".

The inquiry completed public hearings in 2011 this week's announcement comes amid mounting criticism over the delay in releasing the report. Officials said the date of publication is yet to be agreed.

Earlier this week, Mr Blair insisted he was not the reason for the delay.

"It certainly isn't me who is holding it up," he told the BBC. "The sooner it is published the better from my perspective as it allows me to go and make the arguments."

Letters must be sent out to individuals facing criticism in the report before it is published to give them an opportunity to respond.

Once that is complete, the report can be finalised and sent to Prime Minister David Cameron, who has previously said he hopes it will be published by the end of the year.

A Cabinet Office spokesman said: " The Government is pleased that agreement on a way forward on both Cabinet papers and UK/US exchanges has now been reached with the inquiry.

"This allows for the declassification and publication of the material the inquiry

Local News/Meet a Member

Martin Cowley passes away

THERE WAS sad news for the British community on Thursday with the early death of Martin Cowley, following his battle with cancer.

Martin, (pictured, above) a plumber, was well known and much loved among the local expat community, which took to social media to express their sadness at the news.

Susie Gillan wrote on Facebook that she was 'heartbroken...I can't believe that Martin Cowley, has passed away...my deepest condolences to Lynda Rose Cowley and family, balling my eyes out as a write this....you will be missed so much. I will always remember your gorgeous smile."

And paparazzi and fellow longtime expat Giles Harrison also chimed in with a brief story of meeting Martin for the first time in 1992, writing: "22 years ago I had a bunch of Brits crammed in my tiny blue 1984 Camaro on a ride from the Baja Cantina to 625 Oxford.....Jason Hampshire, Peter Ringrose, Todd Pearson and Martin 'Plumber' Cowley....it was the start of a great friendship with a guy that always had your back whether it was a brawl or a rave or making sure the sprinklers didn't come on during many a backyard BBQ in Agouraand one of the few Brits you could trust to work on your house...........RIP Martin."

Prior to his death a benefit evening had been planned for Martin on June 7th at the Cock & Bull. That event will now be cancelled or turned into a memorial for Martin. Details were not available at press time. Our sincere condolences to Martin's family and loved ones.

Meet a Member: Lamorna Watts

Meet Lamorna Watts from Bristol, UK who moved to LA 3 years 4 months ago to pursue an acting career

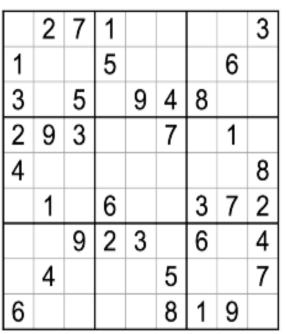

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? It was either Australia or LA and as LA is the epicenter for the 'industry' it was the obvious choice. It's where I need to be!

What one thing do you miss from home? Oh you know.... the perpetually grey skies, torrential icy downpours and bitterly cold winds. Yep I really miss that ;)

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus the UK?

The weather obviously plays a MAJOR factor! I love being so near to stunning hikes and the beach however the traffic REALLY is a killer.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Expect good news in a matter of your feelings in regard to another. This can mean personal or business, however by the end of this week you will feel just relieved it's over. This week ends on a better note than for some time.

TAURUS: As June arrives you will be able to see your way to having space in your life for new people or projects or both. What is definite this coming week is that you must lay to rest any outstanding baggage.

GEMINI: Take a deep breath and understand that it's up to you how you want your life to be now. Take time to really smell the roses and spend quality time with friends or family who are good for you. Happy Birthday

CANCER: Well! Now the anticlimax after the whirlwind of the last month. You have to face up to what is not finished and deal with it this week, otherwise it will pass you by.

LEO: If you look at what the current unresolved situation means to you then the faster you will change it. If you only knew what the other side of this was you would act and swiftly it might just be good news.

VIRGO: This month coming up there is a lot of stuff which may not end up in a positive place that you are looking for it to be, however no action at all is worse. Best to stand back, review all options and then move through.

LIBRA: You are ready to clear away all the past dead wood, which can mean many things to you; keeping healthy and feeling fit being the most important. Take action to make this a priority for yourself. You will have more energy than usual for a week or so.

SCORPIO: Life is about to heat up! Love is nearer to you than you think so don't be seen out looking less than your best. You have been in a bit of a funk this past few weeks time to get your Mojo on!

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is keeping an eye on you so be good and don't let that impulse regarding spending take over your mindset.

CAPRICORN: The stars' alignment will assist you to get the job done as this month is a great opportunity to decide on a long overdue decision in any area.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling like a break away so even if you can get out of town take time out in the garden or walk on the beach. If you look at a financial situation this month

Beware of jumping the gun on an investment, as what goes up must come down!

PISCES: The family is much on your mind and if you learn to live in the moment things will work out quicker and with less stress. Your mind is making you think things that will never likely happen so relax and know that there is a time for everything under the sun.

Murder at Honeychurch Hall: not so sweet...

■ Exclusive interview with Hannah Dennison and a review of her country house murder mystery set in modern day Devon Rating: ★★★★

"My new series focuses on Kat Stanford, a former TV celebrity and antique dealer and her mother, Iris, who secretly writes steamy bodice-rippers under the pseudonym of Krystalle Storm," says Murder at Honeychurch Hall author Hannah Dennison.

"Both are starting new chapters in their lives. Kat and Iris allow me to explore the relationship between mothers and daughters and the life challenges that face us as we grow older."

Murder at Honeychurch

Hall is a fantastic addition to the cozy mystery genre. Dennison's writing is wry and her characters show many dimensions. Her main character Kat can be blunt, but she's full of surprises, as are all the other characters. You think you know who, and even why, but do you really? You often wonder if the character are just plain quirky or if there is a hidden motive for it. This is a keeper.

The story opens as Kat Stanford quits her job to start an antiques business Iris. Recently widowed, Iris has bought a dilapidated cottage in Devon. Kat thinks her mother is lost and must rescue her – a notion that is strengthened when Kat arrives and sees the state of her mother's new home. The inhabitants of Honeychurch Hall are an eccentric bunch. The nanny goes missing and family retainer Vera is found dead. Everyone is suspect. Kat finds out her mother has been hiding things from her for her whole life. What is the truth?

"After my dad passed away in 2002, my mother decided to buy the wing of an old country house near Totnes in Devon," says Dennison. "It is...she still lives there...hugely impractical for someone of 84 with three floors and lots of stairs. I was really against the idea until I realized that it was what she really wanted. Although Mum had been happily married for 54 years, she was discovering what it felt like to do exactly what she wanted for the very first time."

"I've always been interested in preserving ancient buildings and a supporter of the National Trust and British Heritage, but now I've developed an almost zealous obsession about it, joining all kinds societies campaigns," says Dennison. "There's a program called Country House Rescue hosted by Ruth Watson [on BBC-4]. I love it. I want to rescue a country house."

Dennison based Honeychurch Hall on two places: Dundridge House in Harberton, where her mother lives now, and Hillersdon House in Cullompton, Devon, close to where she grew up. "Hillersdon is in the process of being restored to its original state that is highly unusual and very exciting," says Dennison. "This means replacing the lakes and reinstating the deer park for example. I've visited several times now and I'm being kept up to date on the progress."

"Mike Lloyd, who owns Hillersdon, very generously showed me the original plans and has sharing been experiences," Dennison. "Although the house that stands now was built in 1848, I made the fictional Honeychurch Hall much older because as the series progresses, I want to touch on historical events that would impact the present day residents."

With the release of Murder at Honeychurch Hall, Dennison is doing a book tour and a virtual blog tour. For more cumberbatch 'not sexy enough' for Sherlock?

According to UK's Radio Times magazine, Doctor Who s h o w - r u n n e r Steven Moffat has revealed that the BBC wasn't always happy with his casting choices of his other hit show Sherlock.

Specifically: They didn't think David Tennant was a sexy enough Casanova, and shockingly, they thought the same of international British star Benedict Cumberbatch, who apparently lacked a certain sex appeal.

"They said of casting David Tennant as Casanova, 'Damn, you should have cast someone sexier." Moffat said.

"With Benedict Cumberbatch, we were told the same thing. "You promised us a sexy Sherlock, not him," the BBC said about the casting, according to Moffat.

Although Tennant and Cumberbatch's features are each chiseled in a somewhat idiosyncratic way, each has become a heart-throb, with Cumberbatch even prompting an online army of 'Cumberbitches', in thrall to his every movement.

Moffat wryly lamented the actor's success, saying, "It can be quite annoying too if you're scheduling a damn show."

The next series of "Sherlock" won't emerge for another two years thanks to scheduling difficulties with its key players.

In the meantime. Cumberbatch will tackle a brace of Shakespeare heavyweights in Hamlet at the UK's Barbican Theater and Richard III on BBC2. Cumberbatch, is also in talks to play the brother of organized crime lord Whitev Bulger opposite Johnny Depp in a biopic.

Oe-er, he sounds busy... Not so elementary for someone without any, er, sex appeal!

from Harry Potter to Postman Pat
British star Rupert

Rupert Grint:

British star Rupert Grint reckons the main character from his latest film, Postman Pat, is a much bigger icon than Harry Potter.

The actor took to the red carpet this week looking as fit as ever, clad in a military-style navy jacket, khaki tee, simple jeans and black boots, with his ginger locks as shiny as ever.

It is the first time that Postman Pat has appeared in a feature-length film, which is released in the UK on Friday.

"Harry's more international," Grint says, "but I think he [Pat] is a bit more distinctive."

The story revolves around Postman Pat entering an X Factor-style competition and surprising everyone with his ability to sing.

Grint plays one of the contestants called Josh in the talent show and admits it was strange seeing the cartoon version of himself but says he can see a likeness.

"I'm not convinced it's me," he laughs.

"There's kind of a resemblance, a kind of round head," he grins.

He explained that approaching an animated film is different to some of his previous roles.

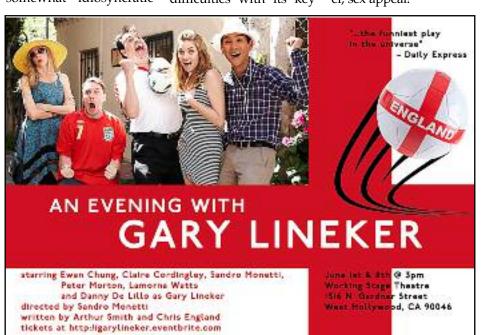

"It's quite hard to realistically interact with an actor that isn't there, especially if they haven't done their bit yet," he admits.

"You're kind of hearing someone's voice and it's strange but I quite like that challenge." He could be forgiven for being annoyed about consistently being asked about Harry Potter.

"I am not consciously trying to really distance myself from it [Harry Potter]," he says.

And he admits he "owes a lot" to the franchise and that he would not be in the Postman Pat movie if he hadn't been part of it.

"The younger generation is starting to get in to it as are kids that weren't even born when the first film came out, it's amazing."

Lift June Gloom...with our World Cup viewing room

Hi Everyone: Can you believe we are almost half way through the year!!

I find it hard to keep track of time when we don't have real seasons. But as soon as the days start off cloudy and grey, my mental calendar reminds me that May Gray – to be followed by June Gloom - is upon us. It really does happen like clockwork!

The lack of 'proper' seasonal weather in Los Angeles may contribute to the Peter Pan attitude a lot of us seem to have. It is quite hard to grow old if time stands still.

The great thing about feeling forever young is you keep that 'Can Do' mentality. So what if you a television presenter, its okay to try out stand up comedy à la Caroline Feraday, who has done just that. She also happens to be performing at Rain (12215 Ventura Blvd, CA 91604) in Studio City this Saturday, May 31st if you fancy checking her out. Then we have Brits in LA member, Sandro Monetti, book author and journalist, (whose name I often drop in this column). He has recently discovered his passion for acting, writing and directing. He can be seen in 'An Evening With Gary Lineker" at the Working Stage Hollywood on June 1st (SOLD OUT) and June 8th (some still tickets available). Hop over to our Meet A Member section (page eight) as his fellow castmate Lamorna Watts featured this week.

In with the new

This is all a parallel with my ongoing New Year's resolution to try something new every month. My mother (at the age of 81) visited Buckingham Palace for their annual garden party last week - this was a first for her, but she also made the cover of British newspaper The Times - it just goes to show whatever stage of life you are in, there constant opportunities to either grab it with both hands. It may be easy to to say no but so much more fun to say yes!

We are only two weeks away until England's first World Cup match (v Italy)! We have a great venue to watch - we have partnered up with BAFTA Los Angeles and Mixology/Planet Dailies. We picked a central location at the Market on Farmers Third St. This will be our home for tournament. 34 screens and two areas - which is even more perfect when there are simultaneous matches showing. Kids are welcome and if football isn't your other half's cup of tea, there are plenty of other things to do at the Grove. Cost Plus is across the street and they stock a variety of British groceries and Top Shop is adjacent, so significant others can always support England in a different way if they choose. Full details are available on our website www.Britsin.LA

Our weekly events Pub Quiz and Breakfast Club will continue through the football season but our weekly Sunday Roast at Palihouse will be put on hold, as we are thinking positively and assuming England will go through to the quarter finals - at the very least!

If you have any questions, don't hesitate to drop us a line at info@britsin.la

Cheers! Eileen

Strachan content after Nigeria draw

Manager Gordon blamed Strachan rustiness for his team's conceding a late equalizer as Scotland hosted Nigeria in an entertaining 2-2 draw at Craven Cottage on Wednesday night.

"Some of our guys have not played since 4 May," Strachan told BBC Radio Scotland after a game in which the Scots led twice.

"We didn't execute when normally we would and I think we were one pass away from another four goals.

"But I'm really pleased to finish the season off threatening the goal."

Charlie Mulgrew cleverly diverted James Morrison's strike into the net to give Scotland a 10th-minute lead before Michael Uchebo levelled with a deflected shot just before the interval.

Azubuike Egwuekwe then turned a dangerous Alan Hutton cross into his own goal early in the second half.

But World Cup-bound Nigeria finished strongly and Uche Nwofor went close with two headers before a defensive lapse allowed him to drill in a shot in the final minute of regulation time.

Grant Hanley dithered in possession in his own box before his attempted clearance rebounded into the path of the Super Eagles substitute.

"There was nothing we could do about the first goal," said Strachan. The second; you're hoping we can clear that better but it's not happened. But I thought Grant Hanley was immense.

"You might say I was a bit disappointed. Not for me; it's for the players.

"We've had three days" hard work when they could have just come along and gone through the paces but they've worked really hard."

Rodgers signs new long-term Reds deal

Brendan Rodgers has signed a new long-term contract with Premier League runners-up Liverpool.

Rodgers, appointed Kenny Dalglish's sucessor in 2012, has guided the Reds back into the Champions League following a four-year absence.

In Rodgers's first season in charge, Liverpool finished seventh with 61 points, winning 16 league matches, losing nine and scoring 71 goals.

This season they have finished second, with 23 points more, winning 26 matches, losing six and scoring 101 goals.

"I am both humbled and privileged to be offered the chance to extend my stay at this great club," said the 41-year-old Northern Irishman.

Liverpool finished two points behind champions Manchester City this season.

The 18-time English champions had been strong contenders to win their first top-flight title since 1990, before a 2-0 home defeat against Chelsea allowed City to take control.

Liverpool had been five points clear at the summit when they hosted Jose Mourinho's side on 27 April, but the loss disrupted their momentum and City went on to win all their remaining games to finish build on the foundations we have built over the last two years," said Rodgers, who has also managed Watford and Reading.

"Now we move onto the next phase which I believe will be as exciting, challenging rewarding.'

Reds' principal owner John Henry and chairman Tom Werner, in a joint statement. said Anfield club were "very fortunate" have Rodgers at the helm.

"We place our trust in Brendan to deliver the vision we share for Liverpool Football Club," said the American businessmen.

"Brendan is at the heart of what we, as an ownership group, are trying to achieve on the pitch.

"This season has reaffirmed evervone's belief that we can bring football success

Liverpool and we are all committed to working together to achieve that.

"Players and supporters have made it clear how important Brendan is to our success and so to have him commit to us for the long term is a great boost for everyone."

Henry completed his £300m takeover Liverpool from fellow American Tom Hicks and US hedge fund Mill Financial in October 2010.

Redknapp secures top flight return; asks to go shopping

Queens Park Rangers manager Harry Redknapp met with chairman Tony Fernandes this week to discuss the club's summer transfer plans.

The London club have already been linked with a number of players, including long-term target Tottenham defender Michael Dawson, since winning promotion back to the Premier League via the Championship Play-off Final victory over Derby last Saturday.

At the heart of Liverpool's rise were captain Steven Gerrard, Daniel Sturridge, Raheem Sterling, Jordan Henderson and Glen Johnson, who are all in Hodgson's 23-man squad.

"I'd definitely start with Gerrard, Sturridge, Henderson and Sterling," said Scholes.

Spurs go for MoPo

■ Daniel Levy puts his faith in youth after coach's impressive spell at Southampton

Tottenham Hotspur have appointed Mauricio Pochettino as their new manager on a five-year deal.

The Argentine resigned from Southampton after 18 months with the club.

The 42-year-old becomes Tottenham's 10th manager since 2001 and replaces Tim Sherwood who was sacked on 13 May.

"This is a club with tremendous history and prestige and I am honoured to have been given this opportunity to be its head coach," Pochettino toldthe Spurs website.

Pochettino's assistant Jesus Perez, first team coach Miguel D'Agostino and goalkeeping coach Toni Jimenez have also left Southampton to join him at Spurs.

The White Hart Lane club started last season with Andre Villas-Boas as manager but sacked him

Sherwood replaced the Portuguese and led the club to a sixth place finish in the top-flight.

Tottenham also sold forward Gareth Bale to Real Madrid for a world record £85.3m fee last summer as they signed Paulinho, Roberto Soldado, Nacer Chadli, Etienne Capoue, Christian Eriksen, Vlad Chiriches and Erik Lamela.

"There is an abundance of top-class talent at the club and I am looking forward to starting work with the squad," added Pochettino.

"Tottenham Hotspur has a huge following across the world and I have great admiration for the passion the fans show for this team.

"We are determined to give the supporters the kind of attacking football and success that we are all looking to achieve."

The former Espanyol boss took over at Southampton in January 2013, when he replaced Nigel Adkins, and led them to eighth last season - their highest finish in the Premier League.

Luke Shaw, Adam Lallana, Rickie Lambert and Jay Rodriguez all earned their first England caps under Pochettino as the club secured notable wins over Manchester City, Liverpool and Chelsea.

Spurs chairman Daniel Levy said: "He has a proven ability to develop each player as an individual, whilst building great team spirit and a winning mentality."

Former Tottenham winger David Ginola said Pochettino will need to be given time to succeed at the club, while ex-Spurs boss Terry Venables said he was happy with the appointment.

"I think he looks like a very educated guy as far as football is concerned," Venables told BBC Sport.

Scholes: England must play 'like Liverpool'

Manchester United legend Paul Scholes has urged England boss Roy Hodgson to emulate Liverpool's attacking style of play at the World Cup in Brazil.

Scholes said Liverpool's "swagger" this season, in which they fell just short of a first league title since 1990, reminded him of "United at their best".

"It would be refreshing for England to adopt Liverpool's attacking mentality," said Scholes.

"That means four - and possibly five - Liverpool players in the starting XI."

Liverpool, rejuvenated under manager Brendan Rodgers, scored 101 goals in the league this season as they finished just two points adrift of champions Manchester City.

They topped the table with three matches to go but faltered to let City claim their second title in three years.

N e v e r t h e l e s s , Liverpool's performances impressed Scholes.

"The thing I admired most was the swagger of their play and how they cont. on page 19, col. 2
