

MCCANNS: search shows Maddy could still be alive

Kate and Gerry McCann believe the lack of evidence found during new police searches proves their daughter could still be alive.

The couple say they are "very pleased" with the digs carried out in Praia da Luz over the last 10 davs.

"We further are encouraged that despite the intensive searches, no trace of Madeleine has been found and this reinforces our belief that she could still be alive," they said in a statement.

"As parents of a missing child, we have always wanted all reasonable lines of inquiry to be followed and it is gratifying to know that a substantial amount of work will take place over the coming months with the close co-operation of the British and Portuguese authorities.

"We would like to thank all those involved for their efforts and the members of the public who have come forward with information."

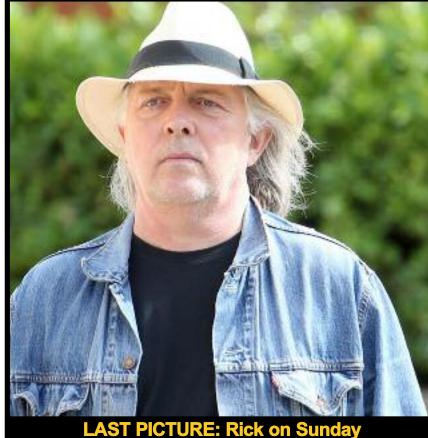

Officers from the UK have been working with their Portuguese counterparts on sites in and around Praia da Luz, Madeleine where disappeared in 2007.

Police say this is only the "first phase of this major investigation which has been agreed with the Portuguese".

The UK teams have now flown home but officers say more searches will take place "shortly".

The new operation in Portugal is being carried out at the request of British police.

One million pupils in England do not speak English as their first language, new figures show

More than one million pupils in state-funded schools in England - one in six - do not speak English as their first official language, figures out Thursday showed.

number has The swelled by a third in the last five years to 1.11 million children, or 16.6 percent, according to the Department for Education statistics for January 2014.

In London primary schools, where pupils are aged five to 11, the figure is 48.1 percent.

It rises to 75.8 percent in the Tower Hamlets borough and 75.3 percent in neighbouring Newham borough in east London, both areas with high levels of immigration.

Outside London, English is not the first language of at least two in five primary school pupils in Birmingham (43.1 percent), Bradford (43.4 percent), Leicester (48.8 percent), Luton percent) (51.5 and Slough (58.3 percent).

A Department for Education spokesman stressed that by the time pupils sit their GCSE exams at 16, "pupils with English as an additional language are performing almost as well as pupils whose first language is English".

2012/2013 In the academic year, 60.9 percent of pupils whose first language is English obtained the higher grades in GCSE, compared to 58.3 percent of those whose first language was not.

The statistics also showed that 29.5 percent of pupils at English primary schools and 25.3 percent in secondary schools — for pupils aged 11 to at least 16 were not classified as being "white British".

In London, 71 percent of primary pupils were not "white British", rising to 81 percent in the 14 inner city boroughs.

The figure was 89 percent in Tower Hamlets, with 63 percent being of Bangladeshi origin.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: 89% of the residents in London's Tower Hamlets borough are listed as 'non-white' English, with 63% being of Bangladeshi origin

Hague pairs with Jolie in sexual violence crusade

FOREIGN SECRETARY William Hague found himself in glamorous company this week when he was joined by Angelina Jolie in a crusade to end sexual violence in war zones.

Potter author suffers vile abuse after conjuring up £1m for 'Better Together' camp

■ JK Rowling labelled a "Union cow bag" - and much worse - in social media posts from fervent nationalists

Edinburgh-based charity probed after issuing offensive tweet

JK Rowling has been subjected to obscene online abuse after becoming the pro-UK campaign's biggest donor by giving £1 million.

The Harry Potter author was variously labelled a "specky b", a "Union cow bag" and a "disgrace" in social media posts from fervent nationalists.

One Edinburgh-based charity is being investigated by regulators after calling Rowling a "b*" in a message sent from its official Twitter account.

"What a #b* after we gave her shelter in our city when she was a single mum," the tweet read.

The Dignity Project, which promotes the education for African children, later claimed the account had been hacked and said "people are free to donate to whoever they choose".

The Prime Minister's official spokesman condemned the messages, saying there is "never any place for abusive behaviour in whatever sphere of life".

The reaction from so-called cybernats – online nationalists who attack prominent figures that speak out for the Union – followed a blog post written by Rowling.

The writer, who was born in England and has lived in Scotland for 21 years, compared extreme nationalists to Death Eaters – supporters of the evil Voldemort in her Harry Potter series who hate people without "pure-blood".

She also warned voters considering backing separation against making a "historically bad mistake".

"The more I listen to the Yes campaign, the more I worry about its minimisation and even denial of risks," said Rowling, who is worth approximately £560 million.

'heady position'

In particular, she said she was concerned about the future of medical research in Scotland if left the UK. She has previously donated large amounts of money to research in Scotland into Multiple Sclerosis, the disease of which her mother died.

If it rejects independence, Rowling predicted that Scotland would be "in the heady position of the spouse who looked like walking out, but decided to give things one last go."

She argued that Scotland would never be in a better position to "dictate terms" on what extra powers should be given to Holyrood, with all three of the main UK parties promising extra devolution.

Her donation represented a significant boost for Better Together, which was concerned about being outspent by the opposing proseparation Yes Scotland campaign.

It emerged last month that Yes Scotland is almost entirely bankrolled by an SNP-supporting couple who won the Euromillions lottery.

Chris and Colin Weir have handed over £3.5 million to Yes Scotland since it was founded two years ago, according to the most up-to-date figures, almost 80 per cent of its total cash income of £4.5 million.

Their contributions meant Yes Scotland had raised nearly £4.9 million compared to the £2.8 million declared by Better Together in December.

Rowling, who has close links to the Labour Party, recently attended a special comedy concert hosted by Eddie Izzard in Edinburgh that was part of a drive to convince Scots the English do not want them to leave the Union.

Senior party figures in Holyrood and Westminster condemned the reaction from some nationalists on social media.

'personal abuse'

John Lamont, Scottish Conservative Chief Whip, said that Rowling was one of Scotland's "best known exports" and a "tremendous ambassador for the country".

"Yet today, because she has decided to back the case to keep Scotland part of the UK she is forced to endure the most extreme personal abuse imaginable," he said.

Baroness Liddell of Coatdkye, a former Scotland secretary and Labour peer, said: "I cannot repeat some of the things that have been said. It contains words that I have never used and nor will I ever use."

"This is a shame on my country and I am appalled and I urge the First Minister to stand up for the decent people of Scotland who will have nothing to do with this," she added in a House of Lords debate.

A spokesman for Yes Scotland said: "While we may disagree with her views, we of course completely respect JK Rowling and her right to express her opinion on the referendum and donate to the No campaign.

"And while we do not agree with her choice, we can all agree with her strong point that if the majority of people in Scotland do vote Yes, then she truly hopes that it is a 'resounding success'."

STEVEN R. LAND

William and Barbara Anne Wood, who run The Dignity Project charity, denied posting the message calling Rowling a "b*" and said they only became aware of the tweet when alerted by friends.

"It's caused us nothing but grief. Somebody sent me a phone message to say this had happened. My reaction was horror and disbelief," said Mr Wood.

"Somebody tweeted the message from The Dignity Project without our knowledge and without our opinion. Somebody hacked our Twitter account.

"It's malicious. Somebody doesn't like what we do and I think they are trying to cause us hassle."

London at a standstill but Uber claims taxi strike victory

Thousands of cab drivers bring London to a standstill, but the app they're protesting claims a surge in sign-ups

Up to 12,000 taxicab drivers brought central London to a standstill on Wednesday, leaving key capital arteries around St James, Leicester Square and Piccadilly in gridlock.

Organised by the Licensed Taxi Drivers Association, the protest claims mobile app Uber is operating illegally. The app, which has seen huge growth since its 2010 debut in San Francisco, can be used to book rides in both licensed taxis and minicabs and measures the journey distance to calculate a fare which is paid direct to the driver. The LTDA argues that it acts like a taxi meter, which private cars are not allowed to use, and has helped to organise a protest which promised "severe chaos, congestion and confusion across the metropolis". On Wednesday they appeared to have delivered it.

'dark ages'

Transport for London has reached a preliminary ruling that permits Uber to operate, but referred the case to the High Court for clarification. The LTDA claims Uber should be banned or regulated differently.

Uber claimed sign-ups to the app rocketed by 850 per cent, however, as it also announced it had added black cabs to its service for the first time.

Jo Bertram, the app's UK and Ireland general manager, said it had seen its biggest day of sign ups since it launched in London two years ago.

"Today we're seeing an 850 per cent increase in sign-ups compared to last Wednesday. The results are clear: London wants Uber in a big way. Unsurprisingly, the Licensed Taxi Drivers' Association (LTDA), which is stuck in the dark ages, is intent on holding London to ransom and causing significant economic impact to Londoners today, estimated to be £125m," she said.

"We join Transport for London and the Metropolitan Police in calling on the LTDA and others to call off this unnecessary and irresponsible strike. We passed TfL's most stringent and comprehensive audit of a Private Hire Vehicle operator to date, passing with flying colours. We are proud to be in London, we are proud to serve London, and we are here to stay. Uber on London!"

And Uber's Regional General Manager for Western Europe, Pierre-Dimitri Gore-Coty, told Reuters:

"What you are seeing today is an industry that has not faced competition for decades. Now finally seeing we are competition from companies such as Uber which is bringing choice to customers."

"failed Londoners'

A cab driver will be alerted to a passenger's direct location, and the fare for the journey will be processed through the passenger's existing Uber payment details removing the need to make a last minute stop at a cash point.

TARRY ON CABBIE: The Mall was just one of many key streets in the capital blocked by black cabs on Wednesday. The cabbies claim Uber's technology is effectively a taximeter and thus contravenes a 1998 British law reserving the right to use a meter for licensed black taxis.

"We are here for all the forgotten, hidden survivors who have been made to feel ashamed or been abandoned.

"And for the children of rape - we want the whole world to hear their stories and understand that this injustice cannot be tolerated, and that sorrow and compassion are not enough."

Ms Jolie said government representatives from around the world would hear the accounts of sexual violence victims from their own countries during the conference.

Taboo subject'

The Hollywood star said the new protocol would provide a "manual" for governments to end the crime of sexual violence. "When our governments say 'well we want to help you, it's wrong but it's a process', we can say it's a process but here's a manual.

"You can't say you don't know and you can't say you don't know how to approach it because it's been done for you by hundreds of including experts, survivors who have decided this is how to handle it in a very comprehensive way,' she said.

Mr Hague said it was 'critical" that the conference was followed by action.

"This is a subject that the world did not want to talk about for a long time.

"We have moved a long way in the last two years in getting the world to talk about what was a taboo subject, and now we have to follow it with action," he said.

'Cardiac event' to blame for shock death of comedy writer and actor Rik Mayall

Rik Mayall's wife says the comedian "suffered an acute cardiac event" before his death at their home on Monday.

Barbara Robbins said it happened after the comic returned from a morning run.

Her comments follow the West London Coroner's Office saying the post-mortem examination had proved inconclusive and further tests were required.

A pioneer of the 1980s alternative comedy scene, Mayall starred in shows including The Young Ones and Bottom.

In a statement, Ms Robbins said: "We now know that our darling Rik suffered an 'acute cardiac event' at our home around midday on June 9th.

"He had just returned from his usual run and many people had seen him that morning."

She also thanked the public for their messages of support and the press "for their discretion at this time and for all the wonderful coverage that you have given Rik - it would have made him very happy".

"We always knew that Rik was well loved but we are all overwhelmed by so many joining us in our grief," she added.

He added the death was not believed to be suspicious.

Tributes flooded in after his death, with Ben Elton saying he "changed my life utterly when he asked me to co-write The Young Ones with him".

Still top of the pops: Tony Blackburn rules the airways 50 years on TONYBLACKBURN,perhapsBritain'sbest-knownDJ,celebratedhishalf-century on the radiothis week.

When Blackburn made his first broadcast 50 years ago, Sir Alec Douglas-Home was prime minister, the price of the average house was £3,360 and A Hard Day's Night by The Beatles topped the charts.

Now 71, the evergreen disc jockey, who presents five weekly radio shows, has received a gold award at the Radio Academy Awards to mark his career milestone and will be honoured this week with a special programme on Radio 2.

cheesy jokes

While many contemporaries have retired or fallen by the wayside, Blackburn still keeps the nation entertained with his cheerful, upbeat manner and cheesy jokes.

"I have no idea as to how I've survived so long," he said yesterday, "but I think that my deep love of music has been a factor. People tend to focus on the jokes but underneath I really love the music." Blackburn, Blackburn, whose mother was a nurse and father a doctor, was born in Guildford, Surrey, in January 1943, but when he was three his family moved to Bournemouth. Educated at Millfield public school and Bournemouth Technical College his ambition was to make it as a singer.

Radio Caroline

He formed a band called Tony Blackburn And His Swinging Bells but it didn't last long - "because the posters kept being altered, we had to change the name to Tony Blackburn And The Rovers".

In 1964 he landed a job as a DJ on the first British pirate station Radio Caroline, which broadcast offshore from a ship called Mi Amigo anchored three-and-a-half miles off the Essex coast. "It could get very rough out there and once we ran aground in a Force 10 gale but I never got seasick," he later recalled.

Two years later he moved to another offshore pirate station Radio London but in 1967 he began his long association with the BBC by joining the Light Programme. At 7am on September 30, 1967, he made history as he launched BBC Radio 1, devoted to pop music and to a "young in heart and in style" audience.

"And good morning everyone, welcome to the exciting new sound of Radio 1," he announced before playing Flowers In The Rain by The Move.

The station proved a big hit and Blackburn's Breakfast Show attracted around 20 million daily listeners. On TV he presented Top Of The Pops and later the BBC's Seaside Special.

bachelor pad

In the late 1960s and 1970s, Britain's top disc jockeys became cult figures - as popular as the stars whose music they played. As one of the biggest radio personalities of the day, Blackburn enjoyed a colorful lifestyle, driving his red E-type Jaguar around London and attracting plenty of female admirers. He had a bachelor pad in Kensington and claimed in his autobiography that he had bedded more than 250 women

He enjoyed his fame, admitting later: "I loved being one of the most recognised faces in Britain." He and his actress wife Tessa Wyatt, whom he had married in 1972, were the country's most high-profile celebrity couple.

In 1973 their son Simon was born but the marriage hit the rocks and Wyatt moved in with actor Richard O'Sullivan with whom she starred in the TV sitcom Robin's Nest.

Blackburn shared his heartache with his listeners. He admits to becoming depressed and addicted to Valium.

butt of jokes

"I was depressed because it was the first failure (in my life)," he said in a recent interview. "I don't know anybody who goes through a divorce who's happy about it. I had to live it whilst I was doing my radio shows.

"To be honest, I was boring the nation stupid with my marriage break-up. Somebody should've told me to shut up."

Then Blackburn - and the music he liked to play also looked to be going out of fashion.

A knowledgeable fan of classic soul and disco, he regarded the trend for punk and new wave music with distaste. "I thought that was a horrible era and didn't like it," he has said.

He became the butt of jokes and put-downs by the likes of DJ John Peel, who played less commercial music than the records Blackburn favoured. Peel derisively called his Radio 1 "Timmy colleague Bannockburn" but it was Blackburn who would have the last laugh.

Although he left Radio 1 in 1984 he continued broadcasting and took over the weekday afternoon show on Radio London then worked on the Capital Gold station.

In 2002 he won over a whole new generation of fans when he was crowned King Of The Jungle in the first series of ITV's I'm a Celebrity... Get Me Out Of Here!

After 50 years on the airwaves he still gets a thrill from doing live radio. "It's great when there's this interaction with listeners, reading out their messages and tweets. When you're doing it live you can mention the weather. I often say how nice or bad it is in London and then someone gets in touch to say that it's very different in another part of the country."

There's no doubt that Blackburn's enthusiasm has been a big factor in ensuring his professional longevity. While he loves playing tracks from years gone by he is no fuddy-duddy who shuts out the modern world.

"I like Alicia Keys and Beyonce and some of the current stuff," he admits. He also likes to keep up with modern technology. "I got a satnav really early on and was on Twitter early too."

As Blackburn celebrates his professional half-century, the good news for the indefatigable DJ's millions of fans is that he has no plans to retire.

Weller's wife launches privacy campaign

Paul Weller's wife Hannah has launched a campaign to prevent images of children being published without the permission of parents.

The couple won damages of £10,000 from Associated Newspapers after the MailOnline used pictures taken of their three children's faces while on a family holiday in California in 2012.

They are now calling on the Government to change the law so that if an outlet wants to use a child's image without parental consent, the face must be pixellated.

Hannah Weller told Sky News: "Any parent would agree that it's not right that a grown man can follow their children around the streets, take photographs and then put them on the internet."

British acts gigging in LA this summer

SUMMER is the perfect time to enjoy live music in Los Angeles and there's plenty of British acts to choose from during the coming months. Here's our selection of some of the best concerts between now and September:

Nightmare and the Cat, the Los Angeles-based indie rock band founded by brothers Samuel Stewart and Django Stewart, sons of musician/producer Dave Stewart and Bananarama's Siobhan Fahey, play at the Wiltern Theatre, this weekend (Sat. June 14th).

Globe-trotting British DJ Paul Oakenfold is also in town this weekend, playing from 5-10pm on Sunday June 15th, as part of XIV's outrageous bacchanal, the Summer Sessions, located at 1743 N. Cahuenga in Hollywood. The event bills itself as Los Angeles' leading day club (modeled on the Las Vegas originals) so expect expensive table service and lots of beautiful bodies.

English singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran from Suffolk, will be appearing on Monday, June 16th at the Hollywood Bowl with Demi Lovato, while Devon's own electronic music pioneers Metronomy will be at the Henry Fonda theatre on June 17th.

Waterboys alumnus Kurt Wallinger and World Party will play the Troubadour on June 27th, while American Idol winner Adam Lambert will appear with the surviving members of Queen for a night of classic rock at the Forum in Inglewood on July 3rd.

In keeping with the nostalgia theme, 1980s cult band Echo & the Bunnymen bring their American tour to the venerable Orpheum Theatre, located at 842 South Broadway in downtown Los Angeles, on August 1st.

Ageless (well almost) rockers Deep Purple are playing the Pacific Amphitheatre in Costa Mesa on August 6th, while musical theatre stalwart and former Mrs. Andrew Lloyd Webber Sarah Brightman will bring her wonderful pipes to the Greek Theater on August 6th.

The Arctic Monkeys are booked into the Staples Center downtown on August 7th, and the daddy of them all, Paul McCartney, will hope to hit a home run in the wide open spaces of Dodger Stadium on Saturday, August 10th.

And finally, the busy summer season rounds off with what will probably be the best ticket of them all, the prolific and endlessly talented Elvis Costello, playing the Hollywood Bowl on September 5th and 6th.

Meet A Member: Annie McQueen

Meet Brits in LA Member and singer/songerwriter Annie McQueen, originally from Sheffield, who moved to Tinseltown six years ago.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? My partner TJ Ramini is an actor and was ready to take on Hollywood after doing various TV shows in England, and I thought 'why not'? I'd done the live circuit gigging around London and was up for a change

What's the one thing you miss from home?

Public transport! I really miss not being able to jump on the tube to get around; being in the car all the time is a bit solitary, although I actually love driving in LA; much easier than London! You really get a feel for the people of a city if you use the public transport. For the first two years in LA I didn't drive, so I took the buses everywhere and observed some amazing characters along the way. It's also a good way of learning the map of the city.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus the UK?

Space. There's so much of it! When I first arrived here I couldn't believe how much space per person there was! I can literally walk two blocks in Santa Monica and not pass a soul, quite a difference to Oxford Street! When I first moved to LA I was a little overwhelmed with ust how big everything is; I felt really small! (granted, I'm only a little over 5'2" anyway!) The width of the streets, roads, size of buildings etc., but now I'm so used to it, I really notice how small everything is back home. Well, quaint!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? I'm not sure this is considered hidden, but it's a bit of a gem; when having to take the 405 (North or South) during rush hour, consider taking Sepulveda instead. I can't count the number of times I've whizzed up or down Sepulveda alongside a 405 chock-full of traffic without sitting bumper to bumper for an hour. It's a bit windy but still quicker than the alternative.

What would vou suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Save lots of money and do your research. Come and do a couple of in and work in the reccies and find a really good immigration Immerse lawyer. yourself in reading about what you need to make the move; visas etc. and if you can come industry of your choice. It's not easy! But do-able if you're organized and committed.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: In any relationship situation please understand you can't control everything that people think so all you can do is keep an eye on what the other person is doing as it will be what it turns out to be without you doing any thing. Expect fun and games this weekend.

TAURUS: Your priority should be taking care of YOU in any area that requires attention and start with what you know is well overdue. On the upside finances are due for a boost this month. You have probably been overdoing it these past few days so take it easy.

GEMINI: You have a very creative side and it is about time you explored some new possibilities or you will not see the benefit that can be had from opening up to new directions. Happy Birthday

CANCER: You will have to be aware next week to not speak out of turn to anyone. The consequences are long reaching for you as the person will be much more likely to turn against you now than before. Good news is coming as Jupiter is on his way to your money house.

LEO: Yes, this is a time for the inner stress to show itself for some of you, especially those of you who tend to over worry...which is pretty much a waste of time. If you have any health issues please pay attention.

VIRGO: It's time for a change of scenery this can be as simple as a coat of paint on the walls to a trip out of town Either way its best to take some action rather then brood as this is the worst thing to do. Be proactive not reactive. LIBRA: If you have things you need to be working on in any area be sure you do not try to do too much all at once. We have several planets going backwards affecting you and retrograde Mercury is difficult for all Air signs. SCORPIO: Due to positive planetary activity affecting the water signs you will be in better spirits than recently. If you have felt a bit lost or blue look inside for the cause. It's all temporary so cheer up!

SAGITTARIUS: If you want to change anything waiting around for others is not a good idea. Your lucky ruler Jupiter is leaving you soon but will leave behind the fortitude to hang on until decisions are made for the good. CAPRICORN: You are usually the most responsible sign of the Universe, however, even you are allowed time out and as Jupiter is moving in a positive direction in your opposite sign of Cancer it's time to play a little. Be sure you let those that matter to you know that you are only taking a well-deserved time out.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling a bit frustrated this week. Well that's life for you so take a break and do not let your duties frustrate you. If you did not have a purpose, life would be dull for you. A short journey is on the cards.

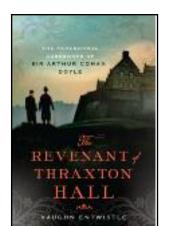

PISCES: The planets are really on your side this month, however as with all water signs you let your feelings take control sometimes so watch you don't upset someone who does not understand your mood.

The Revenant of Thraxton Hall: Doyle goes Wilde

■ Exclusive interview with author Vaughn Entwistle and a review of his new novel featuring Conan Doyle on the case with Oscar Wilde Rating: ★★★

"Early on in the creative process, when I was still kicking ideas around, I decided that J.G. Barrie, the author of Peter Pan, would make a great sidekick," says The Revenant of Thraxton Hall author Vaughn Entwistle. "As I was riffing on the idea, I thought it would be fun to have Oscar Wilde enter during a restaurant scene. However, Wilde's overwhelming personality didn't just steal the scene, he hijacked the entire novel."

Entwistle's new book is a mystery first and foremost, replete with supernatural forces and a potential murder. The premise of using a famous author to solve mysteries has worked before - for example the books by Stephanie Barron that feature Jane Austen solving mysteries. The premise is great, having Sherlock Holmes creator Sir Arthur Conan-Doyle and Oscar Wilde (JG Barrie having been discarded) off to solve a mystery. Wilde is an over-the-top character. However, book starts with lots of exposition and it takes a while to really get the story moving.

Conan-Dovle finds himself the most hated man in England for killing off his beloved Sherlock Homes in 'The Final Problem'. When he gets a request to meet with a medium who claims her life is in danger, he initially refuses, but with Oscar Wilde's encouragement, they travel together to Thraxton Hall, a creepy old pile that is Gothic personified. Can Doyle and Wilde solve the mystery before the medium becomes a ghost herself?

"Conan Doyle's inner life presents a strange dichotomy," says Entwistle. "He invented Sherlock Holmes, the foremost exemplar of reason and rationality at work, but at the same time pursued a lifelong fascination with spiritualism and the supernatural. I find the tension between those antithetical worldviews intriguing. So when I came to write a real world mystery that Conan Doyle needed to solve, I decided it should reflect that dichotomy."

Entwistle will have two novels published in 2015. The Angel of Highgate will debut early in the year with The Dead Assassin, book two of The Paranormal Casebooks of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, scheduled for publication in March.

"Writing this book has rocket-launched my career as a novelist," says Entwistle. "It landed me my dream agent and secured a two-book deal with St. Martin's Press, one of the largest E n g l i s h - l a n g u a g epublishers."

Entwistle visited the British Library for much of his research. "The library collection features several of Wilde's and Conan Doyle's manuscripts, complete with hand scribbled edits, notes and marginalia," says Entwistle.

Entwistle also wandered the streets of London where the two writers lived, as well as the Sherlock Holmes museum at 221 Baker Street. "I also took the Wilde Tour of London, which visits the building that was formerly The Albermarle Club (where Wilde received the infamous defamatory calling card from the Marquess of Queensbury). I even made a pilgrimage to Undershaw in Surrey, the home Conan Doyle had specially built for his family."

Entwistle is beginning to plot the third book in The Paranormal Casebook series and is revising an unsold novel he wrote a

The new Posh 'n' Becks?

Football legend and philanthropist David Beckham joined his Royal "hotness" Prince William in central London this week to launch a campaign to help stigmatize the buying of ivory and rhino horn.

Becks gave a passionate speech about the Whose Side Are You On initiative for conservationists.. Speaking about the illegal wildlife trade Becks said: "It's devastating. We're in a world where our generation, and the younger generation can make a difference and we need to do it now."

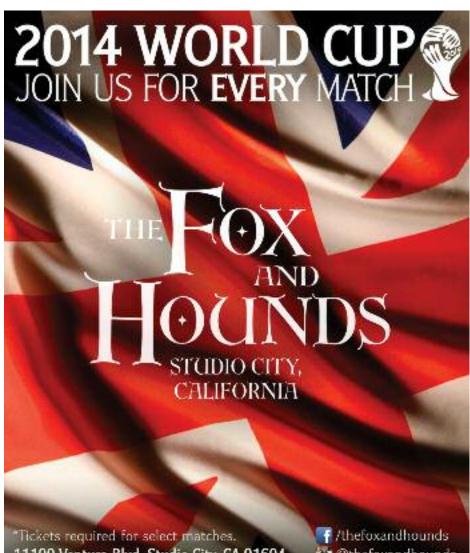

The Prince is the president of of the charity United For Wildlife, and said the campaign would use sport and social media to raise awareness of the problem. He said, "Our children should not live in a world without elephants, tigers, lions and rhinos. Enough is enough."

Prince William has convened the organization, a coalition of global conservation groups. Wills added, "It is time to choose between critically endangered species and the criminals who kill them for money."

Aww, such a good cause... I like this Posh 'n' Becks much more than the other combo that's for sure!

Stath proves a real action super-star(e)

Jason Statham looks as if he is the all-protective boyf' as he exits a Los Angeles nightclub last weekend with his sexy girlf,' former Victoria's Secret model, Rosie Huntington-Whiteley. Who needs a bodyguard when you have a real action hero looking after you?

Supermodel-stunner RHW is known for her poise and elegance and she showed off her fantastic figure in a sheer polka dot dress as she was guided out of the club by movie hunk Statham as he gave the paparazzi a mean stare as if to say, "Don't mess wiv' me or my gal!"

The Expendables star looked like he'd be more at home on an action movie set, dressed head to toe in black.

The fit-hottie was the all-perfect gent escorting the young beauty to a waiting car, holding her hand and putting his arm around her waist protectively.

Jason was spotted

Mel B confirmed as X Factor judge

This should spice things up a bit...It's official folks... (even though I knew all along), that singer Mel B has been CONFIRMED as a (UK) X Factor judge... Oo-er!

The ex-Spice Girl, who appeared as a guest judge on the show in 2012 is the fourth judge announced and will sit alongside Simon Cowell, Cheryl Cole and Louis Walsh in the next season of the hit British talent show.

jetting into LAX alone earlier in the day, but clearly, he was keen to join Rosie as she partied in Los Angeles that night.

The model can next be seen on the big screen in Mad Max: Fury Road that is scheduled for release in May 2015. Meanwhile, Jason is Nice to see them together still... Showbiz couples often don't have it easy these days especially with the media's glare constantly on them – well done you two!

£1million... Exciting stuff! This puts Mel in second place as most successful "Spice Girl" after Victoria Beckham.

Simon Cowell said he was "thrilled" by the appointment. He said: "I thought she was fantastic as a guest judge a couple of years ago.

"She is feisty, opinionated and, I believe, will be a great mentor."

Knowing Mel (and I do) she'll be anything but boring and I am sure she'll rip Cheryl Cole a new one if she tries to backchat ol' Scary Spice.

Mel has also been on both the American and Australian versions of the show...This panel just got fun!

UNITED TARGET MAN: Barcelona's Alexis Sanchez

Muller rejects United move

FOOTBALL SHORTS

NOT ONLY have Manchester United missed out on Cesc Fabregas, who spurned their advances in favor of Chelsea this week, but Thomas Muller has also rejected a move to Old Trafford, opting instead to sign a new deal that will keep him at Bayern Munich until 2019.

United were hopeful of luring the 24-year-old German international following his indifferent year at the Bavarian club in which he struggled to secure a first team place.

But Muller was quoted on the Bayern website on Thursday as saying: 'Shortly before the start of the World Cup, I'm very happy about extending my contract with FC Bayern until 2019...We held very good talks with the management of the club, which made it clear to me that I'm in the right place here." Müller's team-mate and captain Philipp Lahm has also signed a two-year contract extension that will keep him at the club until June 2019, while United may now turn their covetous gaze on the Bayern midfielder Bastian Schweinsteiger.

New United manager Louis Van Gaal has now put Barcelona forward Alexis Sánchez on his summer shopping list and will get to run the rule over the £20m-rated Chile international when he lines up against the manager's Dutch side in São Paulo later this month.

United have also been linked with Atlético Madrid's Brazilian defender Miranda, while bitter rivals Liverpool are keen to sign the Sevilla left-back Alberto Moreno, although negotiations may have hit the skids over the £16m fee the La Liga side are seeking.

West Ham are ready to pounce if, as expected, Micah Richards rejects the offer of a new contract at Manchester City. Stevan Jovetic could also be on his way out the Etihad exit door if Internazionale are successful in their attempts to bring the Montenegrin back to Italy just a year after he left Fiorentina for Manchester boasting a price-tag of £22m. Joleon Lescott will be offered a deal by Hull City once his Manchester City contract expires, although the FA Cup finalists will face competition from West Ham, Aston Villa and Bundesliga side Schalke in the race to secure his signature.

David Luiz may be out of the door at Stamford Bridge en route to a big-money deal with free spending PSG, but former teammate Eden Hazard is staying in London. The Belgian star told a newspaper this week: "I am staying at Chelsea, 100% sure. I am at Chelsea and I like it here - I want to stay. We are in talks about extending my contract. Chairman Abramovich is relying on me and I have not received an offer from PSG."

Blues hope joy of Cesc will end their scoring problems

Chelsea will be hoping Cesc Fabregas can boost their firepower after the Barcelona midfielder agreed to sign a five-year deal with the Stamford Bridge club on Thursday.

Fabregas, 27, currently in Brazil with the Spain World Cup squad, will return to London after leaving Arsenal to rejoin his boyhood club in 2011.

Spanish media reported Chelsea had paid £26 million for the 2010 World Cup winner.

Switching allegiance from north to south west London, he joins Jose Mourinho's Chelsea side that finished third in the Premier League and reached the semi-finals of the Champions League last season despite having trouble scoring goals.

Fabregas is likely to team up with prolific the age of 16, made 151

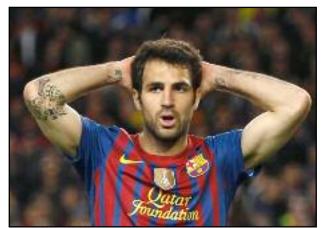

Atletico Madrid striker Diego Costa, a much publicised transfer target for Mourinho, at Stamford Bridge next season.

"I do feel I have unfinished business in the Premier League and now is the right time for my return," Fabregas told Barcelona's website (fcbarcelona.com).

"Everyone knows Arsenal had the first option to sign me. They decided not to take this option and therefore it wasn't meant to be.

"I considered all the other offers very carefully and I firmly believe Chelsea is the best choice. They match footballing mv ambitions with their hunger and desire to win trophies."

Fabregas, who played for Barcelona as a child before joining Arsenal at

FABREGAS: £26m move to Chelsea appearances under three coaches, scoring 42 times for the Catalans but, unlike his time in north London, never proved a favorite among the fans. OUTGOING Chelsea defender David Luiz has revealed he has signed a five-year deal with PSG despite the move still not being confirmed by the clubs. Luiz even took to Twitter to thank Chelsea fans for their support and say he was looking forward to a new challenge.

It is believed that PSG flew medical experts out to Brazil to conduct tests on Luiz, who is a key member of his country's World Cup squad, late last month.

But now the 27-year-old has also confirmed that he has put pen to paper on a five-year deal in the French capital.

Villa in sudden Cole strike

Aston Villa have signed former England midfielder Joe Cole on a two-year contract.

The 32-year-old, who won 56 caps, was available on a free transfer after being released by fellow Premier League side West Ham in May.

He said: "This is a massive club and there's a massive opportunity for the club to push on. "I've been lucky enough to have a really good career, but there's still a lot more I want to achieve."

Cole, who also played for Chelsea, Liverpool and on loan at Lille, is Villa's second signing of the summer.

Manager Paul Lambert has also signed

Arsenal Philippe Senderos on a free transfer from Valencia.

• WEST BROM want to appoint their next manager by Friday, with Sherwood emerging as the leading contender.

Having returned from a summer holiday in last Ibiza week, Sherwood has held talks with Baggies chairman Jeremy Peace about the club's vacant managerial position.

The Baggies have been on the look out for a new boss since the departure of Pepe Mel at the end of last season.

And Sherwood is emerging as the leading contender to land the role, having impressed

JOE COLE: ..."there's still a lot more I want to achieve."

Peace during talks over the past few days, and reports suggest he could be appointed within the next 48 hours.

Burnley manager Sean Dyche and axed Norwich boss Chris Hughton are also among the contenders for the iob.

Tony Pulis is looking to take Crystal Palace to a top-ten finish next season and has identified Stoke striker Peter Crouch and Tottenham midfielder Jake Livermore as his two main targets. Livermore has had an impressive season on loan at Hull City. Steve Bruce's future as manager at the FA Cup finalists may be in doubt after a reported bid from Southampton to take him to the South Coast to replace Mauricio Pocchetino, now installed at White Hart Lane.

Stay calm, says Roy as young guns face Italy

WITH ANTICIPATION BUILDING ahead of England's World Cup opener today, manager Roy Hodgson has tried to calm mounting expectation surrounding his squad's young prospects.

Everton's Ross Barkley, 20, has impressed in warm-up friendlies, while Hodgson has described Liverpool teenager Raheem Sterling as "breathtaking" in training.

"Let's see good performance in an England shirt before we say they're worldbeaters," said Hodgson, 66.

England start their tournament against the mighty Italians in Manaus, but speaking at England's magnificent Urca training base, nestled below Rio's Sugar Loaf Mountain, Hodgson was keen to separate the excitement of potential from expectation.

With Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain, Sterling and Everton's Barkley boasting just 25 international caps between them but expected to feature prominently in the tournament, Hodgson acknowledges some players still have much to prove.

"As yet they have not had the chance to show in an England shirt that that potential will be realised - we think it will be, but they have not had that chance yet," he said.

"We have more pace, more mobility, a lot of technical players. I'm not trying to play down the fact that the future looks quite bright and there are interesting times ahead. This is the World Cup and we are also going to need our more experienced players."

Hodgson, meanwhile, is hoping Oxlade-Chamberlain will have recovered from the medial knee ligament injury he suffered against Ecuador in time to be available for England's second game against Uruguay on 19 June in Sao Paulo.

He said: "Alex did very well in training. He was just running in straight lines but it is still very positive he can run so well and so fast in straight lines.

"He will work on his training programme during the course of the week. The medics hope he'll be ready for the second game."

Captain Steven Gerrard will be fit to face Italy after suffering from a slight groin problem.

ENGLAND'S GROUP GAMES: 14 June: v Italy, Manaus 19 June: v Uruguay, Sao Paulo 24 June: v Costa Rica, Belo Horizonte

The pitch for England's opening World Cup group game with Italy at the Arena Amazonia is unsuitable, global players' union FIFPro claims.

Ground staff were appearing to spray the playing surface with green paint ahead of Saturday's Group D match in Manaus, according to one reporter. "The players deserve a quality playing surface," said the International Federation of Professional Footballers (FIFPro) in a statement.

"This isn't the case in Manaus."

The head groundsman responsible for the surface had admitted that the pitch was in "bad shape". England were due to send a member of manager Roy Hodgson's backroom team to inspect the pitch ahead of the Italy match after the head g r o u n d s m a n ' s comments.

"The maintenance has been complicated," said Carlos Botella, head groundsman for the Royal Verd company, which is responsible for the turf at Manaus.

"There are no roads. All the machinery and materials had to be brought by ship. There was no fertilizer and no seeds.

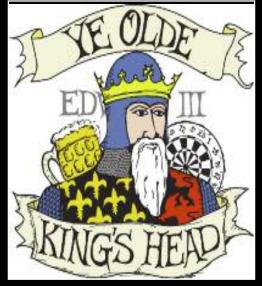

"Now we have put fertilizer down. We will increase the fertilizing process with biostimulants and seeds to try to get the most out of the grass."

The stadium, which holds 39,118 people, was constructed last year.

England striker Wayne Rooney was unconcerned, saying: "It's the same for ourselves and Italy, so we'll both have to deal with that."

SOFTLY SOFTLY: Hodgson (right, with Raheem Sterling) says his squad is very exciting but added: "I must advise caution."
