Glitter guilty of sex abuse

■ Singer likely to die in jail as more victims come forward

Gary Glitter has been found guilty of historical sex abuse against three young girls between 1975 and 1980.

The 70-year-old former singer - real name Paul Gadd - was convicted of attempted rape, four counts of indecent assault and one of having sex with a girl under the age of 13.

Gadd, who denied all charges, was acquitted of three other counts at Southwark Crown Court, London.

Police are looking at new information relating to other potential victims.

'Sexual predator'

Asked whether any more complainants had come forward during the course of the trial, a Metropolitan Police spokeswoman said: "Officers have received other information and it is currently being assessed."

Gadd was remanded in custody and will be sentenced on 27 February.

He could face up to life imprisonment for the offence of having sex with an underage girl.

The court heard one victim was under the age of 10 when Gadd, of Marylebone, central London, tried to rape her in 1975.

She said the singer had crept into her bed as she slept and that afterwards she had felt "ashamed and dirty". She only managed to escape by moving away and then wrapping herself in sheets and blankets.

The victim told the trial she had been to the star's mansion a number of times as a child and that after the attack, drunken Gadd had fallen asleep in the bed while she locked herself in a bathroom.

Gadd also attacked two other girls, one aged 12, and the other aged 13 or 14, after inviting them backstage to his dressing room. He had claimed he could not have abused them there because he had been cleaning his wig.

The 12-year-old was attacked by Gadd after a show at a Leicester nightclub in 1977. She was invited to his Holiday Inn hotel suite where the abuse took place after she was pushed onto a bed.

Two other indecent assaults relate to the girl who was 13 or 14 when Gadd invited her to sit on his lap in his dressing room, on a date between October 1979 and December 1980.

The court heard Gadd forcefully kissed the girl and put his hand up her skirt and later told her it was to be their "secret".

Gadd was also cleared of two counts of indecent assault and one count of administering a drug or other thing in order to facilitate sexual intercourse.

Det Ch Insp Mick Orchard of the Metropolitan Police said Gadd had "shown himself to be a sexual predator who took advantage of the star status afforded to him by targeting young girls who trusted him and were in awe of his fame".

Rising far-right group Pegida plans UK rally in Newcastle

■ Locals fear German movement's plan to hold event in city is attempt to whip up tension after Paris attacks

A far-right group that protests against the perceived "Islamisation of the west" has announced plans to march in Newcastle in its first UK rally.

The German movement Pegida said it would hold an event in the city on 28 February in what local people fear is an attempt to whip up tension after the Paris attacks last month.

The group, known by its acronym, which translates as "patriotic Europeans against the Islamisation of the west", convulsed Germany in January when it drew 25,000 protesters to a rally in Dresden at the same time as 100,000 people took to the streets to mourn the victims of the French terror attacks.

'message of hatred'

In a Facebook post, the group said: "Pegida UK is holding its first rally in Newcastle. All are welcome to attend. Let's show the Islamists we show no fear."

As of Thursday evening, 320 people had clicked to confirm they would attend the rally the Newcastle rally.

Events in Birmingham and London have been suggested for a later date.

Newcastle Central's Labour MP, Chi Onwurah, said Pegida would not find the same level of support in the city as in Germany.

"Pegida, like EDL [the English Defence League] and all those who try to peddle a message of hatred, will find they have no place in Newcastle," she said.

'shared values'

"I was born and grew up in Newcastle. It's a city of strong communities and we value our diversity and our shared values and those include respect for people and working together.

"This morning's report on the rise in anti-semitism shows that there are people who are trying to exploit tensions between communities - there's an increase in anti-semitism, an increase in Islamophobia - and Newcastle stands against that."

Onwurah said she had not seen a rise in tension in Newcastle since the Paris attacks although there had been an increase in Islamophobic and antisemitic comments on social media.

They're not going to find the same kind of support in Newcastle that they've been finding in Germany, in part because our communities talk and engage together all the time."

extremists

Opponents say they will hold a counter-demonstration if the Newcastle march goes ahead. Unite Against Fascism's joint secretary Weyman Bennett said: "They have tried to do this all over Europe. I think we should oppose it."

Northumbria police said it had not been contacted by Pegida. A spokeswoman said: "We have not received formal notification from this group about a proposed march."

Pegida's progress in Germany has been hit by the resignation of five leaders amid fears the cause was being hijacked by extremists.

Army needs more Muslim recruits, says top soldier

More must be done to recruit soldiers from ethnic minorities and in particular the Muslim community, the Head of the British Army has admitted.

General Sir Nicholas Carter, who took up the role of Chief of the General Staff last year, said that ethnic minority representation in the military is "nowhere near where it needs to be".

"We have to do more. My highest priority is ensuring we continue to have the best possible talent throughout our Army," he said.

Figures released by the Ministry of Defence reveal there are only 480 Muslims serving in the Army.

That is only 0.54% of the total regular force of 88,500. Moreover, not all of those Muslims are British - some joined from Commonwealth countries.

'rewarding experience'

Overall, all ethnic minorities - including black, Asian, Sikh, Hindu and Fijian people - make up less than 10% of the force.

The military's Islamic Religious Advisor welcomed General Carter's comments.

"In my view, the values of the Armed Forces are fully compatible with the values of Islam as well as other faiths," said Imam Asim Hafiz.

"Anybody wishing to pursue a career in the Services, Regular or Reserve, and is prepared to work hard can be assured of a very rewarding experience."

Prince Charles wailed 'I can't go through with it' on eve of marriage to Princess Diana, biography claims

■ Catherine Mayer's new book says both Charles and Diana contemplated calling off their wedding - for different reasons

The Prince of Wales was racked with such doubts about his doomed marriage to Diana, Princess of Wales that he told an aide on the eve of his wedding: "I can't go through with it," a new biography reveals.

Both the Prince and his young bride-to-be entertained thoughts of calling off the wedding because each knew that their relationship was deeply flawed.

recruits:

Defence recognise that conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan have led to negative perceptions of the military in Muslim communities.

General Carter wants that to change through closer interaction and engagement with ethnic minority communities.

"Our recruitment from the black, Asian and minority ethnic communities has been improving over the years, but it is nowhere near where it needs to be," General Carter said.

"The values and standards we espouse resonate closely with these communities and there is much common ground that we can build on to broaden our recruitment base."

To that end, the Army has launched an Armed Forces Muslim Forum to bring military and civil communities together.

It is also working to create a Muslim Peace Garden to commemorate Muslims killed in the armed forces.

While the then Lady Diana Spencer knew the Prince held a candle for Camilla Parker Bowles, her groom panicked that he was rushing into marriage with a girl he hardly knew.

Catherine Mayer, whose unauthorised biography Charles: Heart of a King was published on Thursday, quotes a member of the Prince's inner circle as saying that on the eve of the wedding in 1981 the Prince "was desperate"

'jolly country girl'

The future Princess, to whom he had been engaged for five months after a brief courtship, was "not the jolly country girl he had assumed", but instead a vulnerable, complicated woman already suffering from an eating disorder.

He is said to have told his confidant: "I can't go through with it...I can't do it."

The same friend is quoted as saying that: "I always told him afterwards that if it had been a Catholic marriage, it could have been declared null. Because he wasn't really [committed], because she started with the bulimia and everything before the wedding."

'I can't marry him'

Lady Diana, meanwhile, had found a bracelet intended for Camilla Parker Bowles which had the letters "GF" engraved on it. She believed they stood for "Gladys" and "Fred", the pet names the Prince and Mrs Parker Bowles had given each other, though an alternative suggestion was that they stood for "Girl Friday", another nickname the Prince had given her.

Lady Diana later told her own biographer Andrew Morton that she confided in her sisters, telling them: "I can't marry him, I can't do this, this is absolutely unbelievable."

They told her it was

ROYAL RUMPUS: Catherine Mayer, whose unauthorised biography Charles: Heart of a King was published on Thursday too late to pull out because "your face is [already] on the tea towels".

But, says Mayer: "She had no idea her bridegroom also had to be coaxed to the altar."

A mutual friend of the Prince and the Duchess of Cornwall debunks the myth that they met at a polo match, and instead reveals that she introduced the two over a drink at her flat in 1971, certain that they would make a good match.

Savile link

The biography has already caused controversy over its depictions of the Prince's court as a modern-day "Wolf Hall" riven with backstabbing and rivalry, and Clarence House has responded to the book by claiming Mayer overstated the exclusive access she was given to the Prince, which amounted to a nine-minute conversation, according to an aide.

On Wednesday Mayer hit back, telling the BBC: "I had some help from Clarence House to not only attend events that press could accredit for, but also to talk to members of his inner circle and his friends."

The book also contains fresh evidence about the extent to which the Prince of Wales trusted Jimmy Savile, later unmasked as one of the worst predatory paedophiles the country has ever known, even asking him to read his speeches for him to give him his thoughts.

British jihadi held severed head in video

A LONDON court has been shown the moment a British jihadi held up the severed head of a Syrian soldier.

Those inside the courtroom were warned about the extremely graphic nature of the video they were about to see, which was shot in Syria in April last year.

In the footage, Imran Khawaja, from west London, is seen delving into a bag of severed heads and lifting one out.

The 27-year-old can be heard saying: "Heads, kuffars (non-believers). Disgusting."

Khawaja pleaded guilty last month to preparing acts of terrorism, attending a terrorist training camp in Syria and receiving weapons training and is now facing a lengthy prison term.

Khawaja and his two co-defendants were expected to be sentenced on Friday after press time.

On Thursday, Woolwich Crown Court was told how the defendant had faked his own death in Syria in order to sneak back into Britain last summer.

Prosecutor Brian Altman said Khawaja had been a frontman for the extremist organisation Rayat Al Tawheed, which has close ties to Islamic State.

Howzat for age discrimination? Willey the umpire fights ECB over age ruling

A former England batsman says being 65 years old is not a just reason to drop him from the England & Wales Cricket Board (ECB) first-class umpire list.

Peter Willey and George Sharp, 64, are claiming unfair dismissal after they were forced to retire.

The pair, who have 45 years of elite umpiring experience between them, say the ECB broke age discrimination laws.

"When you walk on to the field as a 25-year-old or a 65-year-old you can make a mistake," Willey said.

Willey, a former chairman of umpires who officiated in 25 Test matches during a playing and umpiring career that spanned 49 years, said his own professional pride would have told him when he could no longer perform his duties.

"I don't want to carry on and leave the game with people thinking I wasn't a very good umpire," he told the Central London Employment Tribunal hearing on Wednesday.

"When I finished my [playing] career at Leicestershire after 25 years I was asked to take the money and leave the club. For the last year and a half, I was not a very good cricketer and I don't want that to happen as an umpire."

Sharp, who will be 65 by the time the season starts, told the tribunal that the ECB should make the decision on ability rather than age.

"At the moment, my standards have not dropped, and at the end of the 2015 season I would know if my standards had dropped and I would go back to the board and discuss it," he said.

"If they said, 'George, your standards have dropped, you have got to go', I would say, 'thank you very much'."

The ECB's umpires manager Chris Kelly told the tribunal on Tuesday that the board was justified in ending the pair's careers at the age of 65, citing the "physical and mental pressures" associated with the £51,270-a-year job.

"At that age it's not easy to stand for long games. A lot of older umpires have told me they feel the days are getting longer," he said.

Four year US jail term for British fraudster

Paul Dunham, a British business executive who entered into a suicide pact with his wife to avoid extradition to the US on million-dollar fraud charges, was sentenced to four years in jail by a US court on Thursday night.

Dunham, 59, was sentenced after pleading guilty to the fraud charges following his extradition to the US last May alongside his wife, Sandra, 58, who was spared a custodial sentence at a hearing last month.

The couple from Northamptonshire worked systematically to defraud the electronics company, PACE Worldwide, running up huge bills on company credit cards for Caribbean holidays, expensive groceries and pet furniture and then double-billing them to the UK arm of the company, the court heard.

Among the bills were $20,000 for interior decoration and $1,270 for a "pet residence". Mrs Dunham was accused of racking up $78,000 in fraudulent expenses, Mr Dunham more than $600,000. In total the couple were accused of swindling $1.4m between 2002-2009.

Mr Dunham was ordered to pay $1m in restitution to Pace Worldwide, but was allowed to remain out of custody for three weeks while his wife awaits the return of her passport after serving an 18-day house arrest sentence.

Sentencing Mr Dunham, the judge at the district court in Greenbelt, Maryland said he had "abused his power" as PACE's chief executive, noting that the once-respected executive had "fallen far" but adding: "A man with a briefcase can steal more money than a man with a gun."

CHEERS: Brits have developed a growing fondness for Argentine wine in the past few years

Wine overtakes beer as Britain's favorite tippie

Wine has overtaken beer as Britain's most popular alcoholic drink, research suggests, with supermarkets reporting a surge in sales of Argentinian red this year.

In a poll, six in 10 people chose wine as their "drink of choice" as middle-class couples increasingly spend evenings at home, rather than in the pub, and throw weekend dinner parties. More than half of respondents in every region preferred wine when asked their preferred tippie, according to polling firm YouGov.

Miles Beale, chief executive of the Wine and Spirits Trade Association, which commissioned the research, declared the results as evidence that wine was "no longer just for connoisseurs" and was enjoyed by "all social classes".

However, his assertion that wine had overtaken beer as the nation's favourite drink, based on the 4,000-person poll, were disputed by breweries and pubs.

They reported the first rise in beer sales in a decade, up 1.3 per cent in a year, and referenced tax data showing the amount of beer consumed in November was still 10 per cent higher than wine.

Brigid Simmonds, chief executive of the British Beer and Pub Association, said: "British beer is back in growth - and we want to keep it that way."

For the first time, more beer was bought in supermarkets and off-licences than sold in pubs, the trade body's figures showed.

More than 10,000 pubs have closed since 2006 as British drinking habits change. Research has shown that as well as consuming less, people are choosing to drink sparkling wine such as Prosecco or a glass of red at home.

Demand for Argentinian wine in particular is soaring at a rate of 35 per cent a year, according to retail analysts Nielson.

Tom Waugh, Tesco's Argentinian wine buyer, said sales were up 70 per cent, prompting the supermarket to extend its range.

"In the last few years there has been a major revival for steak houses which first became popular over here more than 40 years ago, and in particular those from Argentina which are doing well in larger cities across the UK," he said. "This has had a direct effect on helping popularise the country's wines."

Murray's potty-mouthed girl makes headlines down under

ANDY MURRAY'S girlfriend Kim Sears certainly saw the funny side of things after she caused a Twitter storm during last week's Australian Open semi-final.

Kim appeared to go on a foul mouthed four-letter rant that shocked the normally genteel tennis world as Murray despatched Tomas Berdych.

A Vine appeared apparently showing her saying 'F***ing have that, you Czech f***ing f***' during a particularly close point.

The world was in the main, as mentioned earlier, shocked. Horrified. Appalled.

But she revealed her self-deprecating sense of humour the following day when she wore a black T-shirt with the phrase, 'Parental Advisory Explicit Content'.

Kim, Andy's partner of nine years, became an internet sensation with social media erupting with messages of approval.

Nigel Sears, a coach and pundit, was asked about his daughter's expletive-filled tirade and joked: 'she's always had a potty mouth - gets it from her mother of course' before expressing his surprise that Miss Sears' 'feisty' support had created such a furore.

But Kim was doubtless choking back the expletives in Sunday afternoon's final, as Murray succumbed in four sets to Novak Djokovic.

It was the third time the Scot has lost to Djokovic in an Australian Open final - although the match featured both controversy and the best tennis of the tournament.

Murray led 2-0 in the Murray later admitted he had been distracted by his opponent's antics, while Djokovic said he was keen to ensure there is no bad blood between the duo moving forward, who were considered good friends at the start of their careers.

Djokovic was asked whether Sunday's events will sour their friendship.

"From my perspective, no," eight-time Grand Slam winner Djokovic is quoted as saying in The Independent.

"How he feels about it, it's obviously still very fresh to talk about that. He's definitely disappointed about losing that match. It's normal that some time has to pass. We'll see."

Driver bin lorry crash driver breaks silence

The driver of the Glasgow bin lorry that crashed and killed six people has said he was unconscious and cannot remember what happened.

Harry Clarke was at the wheel of the truck when it careered down a busy shopping street in the city three days before Christmas.

Speaking to the media for the first time, he told Scotland's Daily Record the victims were on his mind "every minute of every day".

But the 58-year-old said his memory is a blank and he cannot remember the time leading up to the tragedy.

"I understand a lot of people want to know what happened that day. I wish I could tell you but I can't," he told the Daily Record.

"I just want all of the families of the injured and deceased to know I can't remember anything.

"I wish I could but I was unconscious.

"I have racked my brain to try to remember but I can't. I will never know what happened other than people telling me what they saw."

Among those killed in the crash were 18-year-old Erin McQuade and her grandparents, Jack and Lorraine Sweeney.

Stephanie Tait, 29, Jacqueline Morton, 51, and Gillian Ewing, 52, also died when the truck mounted the pavement and drove for up to 300 yards before crashing into a hotel.

Mr Clarke was diagnosed with a heart condition after the crash and has been undergoing hospital tests, but said he previously had no idea he was in poor health.

Labour faces meltdown in Scotland, new poll shows

■ SNP poised for huge gains especially Glasgow, if pollsters are proved right in May election

Labour faces meltdown in Glasgow with the party's traditional stronghold turning SNP yellow at the General Election, according to a new poll.

Senior Labour politicians like frontbenchers Douglas Alexander - who is the party's election campaign manager - Margaret Curran, Gregg McClymont and Cathy Jamieson would all lose their seats to the Nationalists, according to the latest snapshot from Tory peer Lord Ashcroft, who this week polled 16 Scottish seats, mainly Labour ones, some with large majorities and which either voted Yes to independence or where the result was close.

The overall swing to the Nationalist in Labour-held constituencies was more than 25 per cent. If repeated nationally Labour would lose all but six of its 41 seats.

The polling also showed Alex Salmond, the former First Minister, would easily win Gordon, the Aberdeen constituency, and Liberal Democrat Chief Secretary to the Treasury, Danny Alexander, would lose his Inverness seat.

The survey looked at all the Glasgow seats and found only Glasgow North East would stay Labour with the current majority there falling from 54 points to just seven.

In the Labour-held seats, only 60 per cent of those who voted Labour in 2010 said they would do so again this year; some 35 per cent said they would support the SNP.

While the Conservative vote held up well in the polled seats, the Liberal Democrats' vote collapsed; only 12 per cent of the party's 2010 supporters said they would vote Lib Dem again; 47 per cent said they would switch to the SNP.

The single most popular election outcome in the surveyed seats was a Lab-SNP "coalition"; favoured by 39 per cent of voters overall, including 62 per cent of SNP supporters and 79 per cent of Labour-SNP switchers.

Lord Ashcroft, commenting on his polling, offered a warning.

"As ever, it is vital to remember these polls are a snapshot, not a prediction. The Labour majorities in some of these seats are such that even a swing of this magnitude has not put the SNP far ahead; for example, just three points in Glasgow South West and Coatbridge, Chryston & Bellshill, and six points in Glasgow North West.

"With a vigorous

TROUBLE AHEAD: the Scottish Labour leader has warned that an SNP surge would benefit the Tories Labour campaign there remains room for movement before May," he added.

Meantime, Angus Robertson, the SNP's election campaign director, said: "These polls include some of Labour's safest seats in the whole of the UK as well as Scotland and they are clearly excellent for the SNP. But we are taking absolutely nothing for granted and will work hard for every vote and seat in May."

The telephone poll undertaken between January 5 and 30 involved more than 16,000 people. Jim Murphy, the Scottish Labour leader, acknowledged the poll showed his party was "well behind" and had a big gap to close but stressed "the only people who will benefit from these polls are David Cameron and the Tories".

He said: "It is a simple fact that the single biggest party gets to form the next government. The more seats the SNP get from Labour, the more likely it is the Tories will be the biggest party and David Cameron will get into government through the back door."

Cash boost for Scottish film industry

THERE WAS good news for Scotland's film industry this week as it was announced that two new funds are being established to aid the screen, TV and film industry north of the border.

While the film industry waits to hear whether a publicly-funded film studio will be built north of the border, Fiona Hyslop, the culture secretary, has announced the funds - one a tax credit loan fund and the other a skills fund.

The £2m Tax Credit Loan Fund will provide a loan facility to productions in Scotland so that they can access UK film, animation and high-end TV tax credits earlier.

This will help producers in completing the finance of their projects and move them more speedily towards production, the government said.

The £1m Screen Sector Skills Fund will help to provide training and skills development opportunities for people already involved in the screen industry, as well as young people considering a career in screen.

Both funds will be run by Creative Scotland and will run over the financial year 2015/16, starting from April this year.

Skills Development Scotland will play an advisory role for the skills fund.

The Tax Credit Loan Fund is a pilot scheme.

Ms Hyslop said: "Scotland is already widely recognised for our world-class talent, crews, facilities and breath-taking locations, and the Scottish Government and its agencies are committed to working together to continue to create the conditions that enable our screen sector to flourish.

"The funds I am announcing today will assist producers in financing their projects, at the same time as investing directly in our workforce to build on its strengths and address the gaps identified by the sector.

"The Scottish Government recognises and values the vision and the ambition of Scotland's screen sector and we are determined to help it to thrive - and the funds I am announcing today will do this, addressing two pressing needs of the industry."

She added: "We fully understand that Scotland needs greater studio resources for film and high end TV production, and the Scottish Government, Creative Scotland and Scottish Enterprise are continuing to work together with the sector to make this happen.

"The funds I am announcing today will help the industry move from strength to strength."

Attention Expats: Don't miss out, you may be able to vote at the 2015 General Election

Did you know that British nationals living overseas can take part in the UK General Election this year? If you didn't – you wouldn't be alone.

Lots of people don't know that this is possible, which is perhaps one reason why out of an estimated 5.5 million UK nationals who live overseas fewer than 20,000 people are currently registered as overseas electors.

This is an important message, especially with the General Election fast approaching, so the Electoral Commission is working hard to reach expat audiences to let them know that they may be able to take part.

The really good news is that you can now register online.

In order to register you must have been previously registered in a UK constituency within the last 15 years.

If you were too young when you left the UK to have been registered, then you can register as an overseas voter if your parents (or guardians) were registered in the UK in the last 15 years.

Now with online registration, filling in the application form takes approximately five minutes, and can be done from wherever you have an internet connection. All you need is your National Insurance number and your date of birth. If you don't have your National Insurance number you can still register, but you may be asked for some extra information by your Electoral Registration Officer.

When it comes to actually voting, it's really important that overseas voters choose the best way of voting to suit their circumstances.

You can choose to vote via one of three methods. You can vote either by post; by proxy (you designate someone you trust to vote on your behalf in the UK); or in person at a polling station in your constituency, but of course if you live overseas you're unlikely to be able to do this. If you want to vote by post, please check that you will have sufficient time to receive and return your postal ballot pack. Postal votes will usually be dispatched a few weeks before polling day. For your postal vote to count, it needs to be received back by the Returning Officer by 10pm on 7 May 2015. ## 'Selma' star Oyelowo 'had to leave Britain' for career

David Oyelowo, who plays Martin Luther King in the Oscar-nominated Hollywood film "Selma", says he had to leave Britain because of a lack of opportunities for black actors.

"We make period dramas (in Britain), but there are almost never black people in them, even though we've been on these shores for hundreds of years," Oyelowo said in an interview with the Radio Times.

"I remember taking a historical drama with a black figure at its centre to a British executive with greenlight power, and what they said was that if it's not Jane Austen or Dickens, the audience don't understand," he told the television listings magazine.

"And I thought 'OK — you are stopping people having a context for the country they live in and you are marginalising me. I can't live with that. So I've got to get out,'" the actor said.

Oyelowo, who returned to London at 13 after spending some of his childhood in Nigeria, first came to prominence with a series of performances for the Royal Shakespeare Company in his early 20s.

Martin Luther King is the latest in a string of big-screen roles the 38-year-old actor has won since leaving Britain in 2007 for the United States.

His comments come after The Imitation Game star Benedict Cumberbatch highlighted the lack of diversity on British screens.

Last year actors including Idris Elba, the star of "Mandela: Long Walk to Freedom" and comedian Lenny Henry expressed their dismay at the small numbers of people from ethnic minority backgrounds working in the television industry.

Oyelowo told the Radio Times: "There's a string of black British actors passing through where I live now in LA. We don't have 'Downton Abbey', or 'Call the Midwife', or 'Peaky Blinders', or the 50th iteration of 'Pride and Prejudice'.

"We're not in those. And it's frustrating because it doesn't have to be that way. I shouldn't have to feel like I have to move to America to have a notable career," he said.

"Selma" has been nominated for just two Oscars, despite receiving rave critical reviews and being a hit with audiences in the US.

Oyelowo shrugged off the lack of nominations, saying: "We made a film that is not your typical biopic, that doesn't feel like, 'Oh, here come the strings'. We made the movie we wanted to see, not what we thought the Academy would like."

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your financial situation could be getting a boost as early as this week ahead. Look for an opportunity to add to your circle of contacts, business or otherwise. Your boss Mars is in the watery sign of Pisces, so you will feel more emotional.

TAURUS: The sun in Aquarius will bring a situation that is unresolved for some time now to a head. Therefore it's best to not take on any responsibility that is not absolutely required.

GEMINI: You will be travelling (emotionally or otherwise) to a place where you can put things in order. Your ruler Mercury is strolling faster through your life in the middle of the week so travel and reunion can be expected.

CANCER: Movement is good for you and this week it's all around you and also in the family. Be kind and be honest with the person who asked for your opinion. There are always gentle ways to say unpalatable truths ...choose to be compassionate.

LEO: Tackle what is a priority and then spend your downtime relaxing not stressing. The best weekend of the month is next week so catch up on work until then. Don't be a nag if someone is not doing things your way.

VIRGO: Ask yourself if you are working on your best plan for the next couple of weeks. If it is a problem now to plan ahead better believe it will be a bigger one when Mercury your boss starts a forward march next week.

LIBRA: Venus your boss is now moving gently through Pisces and will bring some tantalizing and possibly emotional situations your way. Take your time deciding...you have until month's end. You may have to make a quick change of plan so be prepared.

SCORPIO: Your energy is all over the place this past week or so. This is due to the fact that your boss planet Mars is in your cousin sign of Pisces. Take time to relax and be peaceful as the second part of February is very different now Venus has joined Mars.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is sitting in your cousin sign of Leo so be good as he will be watching you and your level of commitment to the task at hand. That means nothing and no one should stand in the way of where you want to be. The full moon this week has opened a lot of new doors. .

CAPRICORN: The will to go it alone is very strong this week and you should use this energy to assist you to get the job done. This month is a great opportunity to complete a long overdue project. Whatever this may be, rest easy as you are in a good cycle.

AQUARIUS: This is an important time of general rejuvenation and you will get information coming at you from all directions. The clue is not to think too much and to go with your gut feeling. Work situations are much on your mind however all will be ok by mid-March. Happy Birthday!

Historical cookery + mystery = delicious read

Exclusive interview with Martine Bailey and a review of her new novel, An Appetite for Violets, about a young cook caught in a murder mystery in 18th century Italy

Rating: ★★★

"I came across a historical tidbit about the sex lives of Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire and her best friend Lady Bess Foster, whose sharing of the Duke's favours is shown in the film The Duchess," says An Appetite for Violets author Martine Bailey. "The movie doesn't show that in the days before contraception, both women had to hide illicit pregnancies by travelling abroad and leaving their babies with foreign foster families. That gave me the idea of writing from the point of view of a cook to an aristocratic young wife, who has no idea a murderous conspiracy is being hatched on a mysterious journey to Italy."

Biddy Leigh is under-cook at Mawton Hall. She wants to marry her childhood sweetheart Jem, leave the Hall and run a tavern with him. But then her new mistress turns her world upside-down. The new Lady Carinna is unwell and must go abroad for better weather. Biddy is forced to go with her new mistress, leaving Jem behind. They first travel to London where Biddy meets her mistress's younger brother to whom she is attracted. As they travel, Biddy learns her mistress' secrets. Her life may be in danger. Biddy is smart and can write. She documents her adventures and recipes.

An Appetite for Violets is part mystery, part cookbook, and set in 18th century Europe. The author places recipes at the beginning of each chapter. The culinary aspect of the book adds to the story and there are surprises but sometimes so many things are going on that it can be confusing.

"I became obsessed with historical cookery," says Bailey. "I originally started baking to save money and feed my son, by making local English specialities like those featured in The Great British Baking Show, such as Bakewell Tart, gingerbread and roly-polys. When I had more opportunities to travel, I became fascinated by foreign cuisine and one day entered a Merchant Gourmet contest with a Spanish dish for a Smoky Austrian Stew. I was amazed to win and the prize was a cookery course in Provence, France."

Bailey says her most unexpected praise was from the author Fay Weldon. "She said I had created a new genre, Culinary Gothic," says Bailey. "As my twin loves are historical food and the Gothic atmosphere of novels such as Jane Eyre and Rebecca, I am over the moon."

In 2013 Bailey became Writer in Residence at a tiny 17th century cottage offered by The Hosking Houses Trust at Stratford-upon-Avon. In 2011 she was given a Creative Artist Residency Scholarship in an eco-house in a palm forest at Muriwai, New Zealand.

An Appetite for Violets is Bailey's first novel. It has yet to be optioned for TV or film. Bailey has written books under the pseudonym Laura Bloom. The Wedding Diaries is a humorous journal of the planning and celebration of her marriage. One of her money-saving attempts was to bake her own white chocolate wedding cake. In 2007 she wrote The Grown-up Gap Year Diaries, about her travels to Indonesia, where her mother was born and her Dutch family had lived since 1768.

Book Corner with Gabrielle Pantera

Bailey has finished her second novel, The Penny Heart, that is set in the 1790s in the north of England, Australia and New Zealand, in which a former Botany Bay convict is unwittingly employed by a naïve young wife at a remote Hall in Yorkshire.

Martine Bailey is based in Chester and was born in Lancashire.

DEAD BRILLIANT: Lincoln on zombie drama's 'brutal' return

Get ready, zombie lovers! "The Walking Dead" is nearly ready to stagger back into your living rooms again. Brace yourselves people....

British star Andrew Lincoln was recently chatting about the show's midseason premiere that hits our screens on Sunday, and he says people should be prepared for both the best and the worst - meaning some of the best episodes ever, yet some of the worst conditions for the survivors. EEK!

Lincoln is currently the man of the moment when it comes to post-apocalyptic US horror TV shows and acting in general.

Lincoln's big break came almost two decades ago as the conflicted lawyer Egg in the British TV drama This Life. He also starred in the Richard Curtis rom-com Love Actually before snagging his career-defining role as Rick Grimes, the former cop turned leader of a band of survivors battling to stay alive in the post-apocalyptic zombie drama.

Lincoln said that the midseason premiere and the episode next to it are his favorites, "This back eight is my favorite back eight we've done since we started the show, for many reasons....mainly because it's almost like a reset.

"We get to reimagine and sort of dial back some of the characters. And we meet so many new people. It's sort of a wild rabbit hole that we all go down, and I think the storytelling is phenomenal."

"I think Episodes 9 and 10 are two of my favorites," he says. "They're brutal. They're incredibly emotional, and I think there will be a lot of surprises along the way. Be prepared."

He went on to say, "Don't count on

GRIMES AND PUNISHMENT: Andrew Lincoln anchors The Walking Dead

anything you've seen before when it comes to the midseason premiere, what happened and what's going on is very different." OMG...Roll on Sunday!

The Walking Dead returns on AMC on Sunday, Feb. 8 at 9 p.m. ET.

The naked truth: Matilda gives Ramsay a roasting!

She's hoping to follow in her father's footsteps by becoming a chef, but Gordon Ramsay was no doubt regretting inviting his 12-year-old daughter Matilda to make an appearance on US television after she dropped an embarrassing bombshell about him.

Young Miss Ramsay claims the chef "likes to run around naked" in their house...

Oo-er!

The outspoken chef was left red-faced when Matilda revealed his embarrassing habit as she made a cameo appearance on show 'Masterchef Junior'.

Asked by Gordon's fellow judges Graham Elliot and Joe Bastianich if her dad ever embarrasses her, she said: "Yeah! He loves to run around naked."

Whoops!

As Gordon - who also has daughter Megan, 16, and twins Jack and Holly, 14, with wife Tana - hung his head, his daughter backtracked and insisted: "I'm kidding."

The 48-year-old chef tried to get his own back by trying to set Matilda up on a date with 12-year-old contestant Michael, who enthusiastically agreed.

However, his daughter continued to give her dad a roasting, adding that she wouldn't romance someone of her father's profession because she thinks he is a "nutter".

She said: "If you think I'm going to marry a chef, you've got another think coming! Why not? Because you're a nutter."

Whilst she might not want to marry a chef, Matilda has her own eye on a culinary career and has impressed her dad with her efforts on her new cooking program 'Tillywood'.

Gordon previously said: "It was just fascinating watching her, saying, 'Dad's food is posh, but my food is real

"She has all the makings of a great chef. If you had put me in front of a camera at age 12, even Well Matilda, you certainly know how to turn up the heat...just like your ol' man!

IT'S THE SPIRIT OF TOSCAR TIME!!!!

Greeting Breeps!

It's that Toscar time of year again; I believe all films are in the can and the editors are busy honing their films down to five minutes. This year I got to play again instead of the hard, crazy work of producing the event - this year's honor goes to the marvellous chairlady Nadia Wit! - Looks like it's going to be a fun one this year with no frills but lots of booze.

Anyway this year I got to play a role too, that is so transformative - I don't think anyone is going to recognize me - I was in make-up for all of one-and-a-half minutes. I got to work with the lovely Sarah Thompson again (She was my first ever on-screen kiss in a British TV show called 'Dream Team') well let's just say we get to do a bit more than that in this film, which is a parody of Birdman - if you want to know more you will just have to come and join us on the night of Feb 17th. Location TBA. The Toscars have been variously described as 'the most fun all award season' (The Guardian) and "silly" (BBC America). And I say yes to both. Plus Ron Jeremy, who first cut his acting chops in last year's PG-13 rated "British Hustle" will be back again this year for a surprising turn in the parody of "Selma." - Hmmm! I can't wait to see that!

Oscar night dreams...

It always amazes me when I watch acceptance speeches at these award shows, how ill-prepared most of the winners appear to be.... so In the spirit of award season and re-reading The Secret, I thought it might be fun to dream out what my Oscar week would look like, so here goes:....

Don't eat for five days before the show.

Work out abnormally hard. But just the upper, because they rarely show the legs on camera anyway.

Smile on the red carpet for the paps and Bila's Kerstin Alm (Mammarazzi)

Have some witty banter ready for Ryan Seacrest.

Blatantly name drop of the designer I'm wearing, then duck into the bathroom to tweet it with hashtag, so I get to keep the tuxedo (which I had tailored earlier at Stitch, the fab new alterations store on Melrose owned by my great friend Alex Harden (7306 Melrose Avenue).

Hob-nob with the other nominees and tell them how gorgeous they look, even without seeing them, because I will be too distracted and not listening and obviously scanning the room to see who's looking at ME.

Once I'm sitting down in the theatre and they show a clip of my film and say my name as a nominee, I'll get coquettish and shy. When I win, I'll pretend to be shocked, then I'll walk thru the audience wishing all these agents and studio execs I don't know, would stop pawing at me. (They didn't WANT know me three years ago.) And now on stage, I'm totally gonna cry, forget my speech, and lie and say I didn't prep one, because I totally didn't think I was gonna win this year! I will say something about a disabled community and the war in AfganIraq, and how HARD this journey has been for me. And of course mention my fellow nominees by their first names, so everyone thinks we are all really tight. I'll waffle on till the orchestra starts playing. Then I'll speed up my waffling to around 75 rpm and waffle more. Play with my hair a bit. Wink at Belinda Gosbee, coz I know she was desperate to be on my team, I'll say Thank you AGAIN. Pick up the award and say "Phwoar - This is heavy." And more than likely, I'm gonna walk the wrong way off stage...

After, I'll go to ten after-parties and dance with my award above my head. I'll let Elton John touch it! Coz he's Elton blooming John! Then I'll go to Astro Burger and be photographed by the paps just to show the plebs, I'm normal. When I get home that night, I'll watch the reruns on the DVR Replay seeing myself win about 50 times, then just for fun I'll freeze frame on all of the other nominees in my category and pause on their faces at the moment their dreams were crushed and laugh inside. Schadenfreude is a beautiful thing. Thanks The Secret - Hope to make your dreams into reality!!!

Or maybe I'll just do the Astro Burger part!

The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924.g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 012267-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. FOR SALES INFORMATION: (844) 477-7869 CLEAR RECON CORP. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by RICHARD J. CHENOWETH in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that RICHARD J. CHENOWETH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

(This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF TIMOTHY A. HORAN, JR.

Case No. BP157843

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of TIMOTHY A. HORAN, JR.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Timothy G. Horan in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Timothy G. Horan be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on March 3, 2015 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

minute of my time here. These two and a half years have been a great experience and I think the football club have moved forward," he added.

"We are in a European competition and in the FA Cup we can get to final. We can challenge not just for fourth place but beyond that. Those are the objectives of the forthcoming months."

Liverpool travel to Crystal Palace in the FA Cup fifth round on 14 February after beating Bolton 2-1 on Wednesday, then host Besiktas in the last 32 of the Europa League round the following Thursday.

Of Sunday's derby, Rodgers said: "Derby games are very exciting. They are wonderful games to be involved in, full of emotion and they go so fast."

"The quality of the football is outstanding, which is especially impressive as the players are under intense pressure."

Rodgers also addressed whether Everton fans will be glad to see the back of LA Galaxy-bound Steven Gerrard.

"I'm sure they will. He has been incredible for the club and been outstanding in so many derby games."

"How will he deal with the emotion of it being his last? Like he has all the others - by being focused on the team getting a result."

hump, we haven't had a row," said Redknapp. "I knew some while ago that we were not going to be able to get much done in January."

"We had one real target on the last day, Emmanuel Adebayor, because we are short upfront, but he was too much money. I accept that.

"There are no hard feelings on my part. I've not had a problem with Tony Fernandes in all my time there."

Redknapp said the timing of his decision may look suspicious but added: "I know what people think - that I've been sacked, or stormed off because we couldn't get the players in - but I can't control what people think."

QPR have made contact with Tim Sherwood about becoming the club's next manager but no deal has yet been agreed.

The club hope to make an appointment next week and at least by the time they play at Hull on 21 February.

"We the board will hire someone who cares, thinks long term, wants to be involved in developing the academy, has coaching skills, will play young players and is a winner," said Fernandes.

"The names that fans are mentioning to me are names that we are going to consider. I would say three interviews will be done. All fan feedback has been taken in."

Sherwood, 45, is without a job after parting company with Tottenham in May 2014 following five months in charge.

Louis van Gaal tipped his Manchester United side to win the FA Cup after their 3-0 midweek win over Cambridge United.

Goals from Juan Mata, Marcos Rojo and James Wilson sealed a fifth-round trip to League One Preston.

"I am not a casino man," he said. "I am not allowed to bet. But I give you a tip. We have a real chance now."

QPR: Harry limps away

■ Veteran manager denies fight with club over transfer budget

■ Sherwood in frame to take over

HARRY REDKNAPP has parted company with Queens Park Rangers, blaming imminent knee replacement surgery for his decision.

The 67-year-old informed chairman Tony Fernandes on Tuesday of his decision to leave the club, who are second bottom of the Premier League.

"I need immediate surgery," said Redknapp. "If I can't give 100%, it's better for someone else to take over."

Head of football operations Les Ferdinand and academy coach Chris Ramsey will take temporary charge.

Redknapp led QPR to promotion to the Premier League last season via the Championship play-offs.

There were reports he was one game from the sack before the 2-0 defeat by Manchester United on 17 January.

Afterwards, Redknapp blamed an "insider" for attempting to destabilise the club, while QPR chairman Tony Fernandes issued a statement on 19 January saying he would remain as manager.

"I have had such a fantastic time at QPR," said Redknapp, who took over Rangers in November 2012.

"I would like to thank the board, the players and all my staff, and especially the supporters who have been absolutely fantastic to me.

"My relationship with chairman Tony Fernandes has been one of the highlights of my footballing career and I wish the club every success.

"I am confident they will survive in the Premier League this year."

Fernandes thanked Redknapp for "everything he has done for QPR", adding: "We part on good terms and I would personally like to wish him all the best for the future."

Redknapp echoed those sentiments in an interview with the Daily Mail and insisted he had not fallen out with Fernandes because of the club's lack of business on transfer deadline day.

"I haven't got the

Rodgers: we need silverware

Brendan Rodgers wants to leave a "proud" legacy at Liverpool as he prepares to take charge of the club for the 100th time in the Premier League.

Saturday's Merseyside derby at Everton will see the Reds bid to extend their unbeaten league run to eight matches.

Rodgers says "anything is possible" and is targeting success in the FA Cup, Europa League and a top-four finish.

"At whatever point I leave here hopefully I'll be leaving something people can be proud of," he said.

"We now have to rubber-stamp that by winning some silverware."

Rodgers has won 53, drawn 24 and lost 22 of 99 league matches since taking charge at Anfield in June 2012.
