UK 'powerless against Putin'

■ As Russian war aircraft invade British space AGAIN, ex-RAF chiefs warns 'we're powerless to prevent it'

Britain cannot defend itself against the military threat posed by Russia, senior army figures have warned.

As two RAF Typhoon fighters were scrambled on Wednesday evening to escort Russian long range bombers flying off Cornwall, military chiefs said that the UK "could not cope" with an all-out attack as our defences have been "decimated".

David Cameron said Moscow appeared to be "trying to make some sort of a point".

"I don't think we should dignify it with too much of a response," he said.

However, Sir Michael Graydon, former head of the RAF, appeared to take the threat far more seriously.

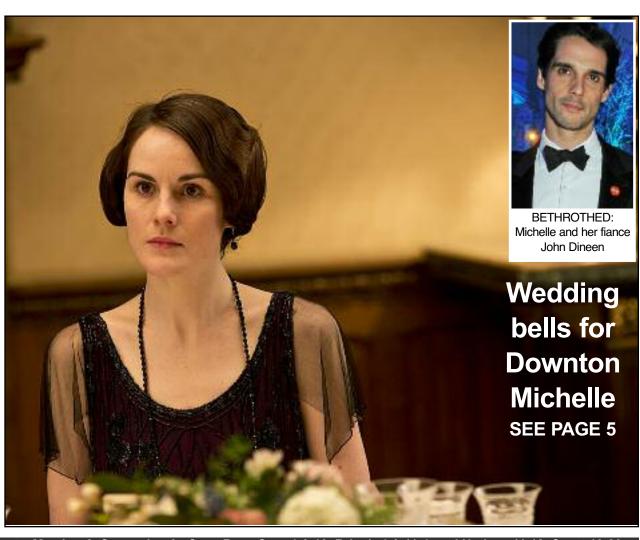

"I very much doubt whether the UK could sustain a shooting war against Russia. We are at half the capabilities we had previously," he said.

"They fly in these regions to check our air defences and have probably worked out we are not as sharp as we were.

"They know it is provocative and they are doing it at a time when defence in the west is pretty wet compared to where they are."

As tensions between Nato and Russia have worsened over the Ukraine crisis, Moscow has significantly increased the number of military flights probing Nato airspace.

Boris Johnson plans to renounce US citizenship

■ Rising politician considers nationality issue a distraction

Boris Johnson says he intends to renounce his American citizenship to prove his "commitment to Britain".

He told the Sunday Times that his citizenship was "an accident of birth that has left me with this thing. I've got to find a way of sorting it out."

The Mayor of London, who was born in New York, has in the past been forced to pay US tax because of his American citizenship.

He has just completed a six-day tour of cities in the US.

Mr Johnson said he would approach US ambassador Matthew Barzun to explore what steps he had to take to give up his American nationality.

The Conservative politician - who was born in Manhattan in 1964 and holds a US passport alongside a British one - said that relinquishing his citizenship was a "laborious business, they don't make it easy for you".

His passport was

ON THE HOOK: Johnson described his US tax bill as "absolutely outrageous".

The number of interceptions over the Baltic States trebled last year and Nato members including Britain have stepped up air policing support in the area.

Air Commodore Andrew Lambert, who commanded Allied forces in northern Iraq in 1999, said: "If the Russians turned up the heat, we would struggle badly.

"If Putin wanted to attack, he would not send a pair of bombers, he would send the lot and saturate our defences; we couldn't cope".

He told The Daily Mail: "The Typhoon is a really good aircraft but with their relatively small numbers they would be overwhelmed: the Russians would outflank us, go around us or just go through us.

"The modern generation of politicians has grown up in absolute security – they've never felt a threat to their existence, safety or security.

explanation

"They've taken peace for granted and decimated the Armed Forces. Let's hope we don't pay the price."

The Russian Tupolev TU-95 bombers, known as Bears, were picked up in international airspace to the north west of Britain at round 6.30pm on Wednesday and escorted as they flew south, then turned around and flew off north.

The interception of the Bears comes a fortnight after similar aircraft flew into the English Channel, prompting the Government to demand an explanation from the Russian ambassador.

Michael Fallon, the Defence Secretary, said there is a "real and present danger" that Vladimir Putin, the Russian president, will launch a campaign of undercover attacks to destabilise the Baltic states on Nato's eastern flank.

He added that Putin might try to test Nato's resolve with the same K r e m l i n - b a c k e d subversion used in Crimea and eastern Ukraine.

renewed in November 2012 but he had previously stated that he would give it up after being told in 2006 that, as a native born American, he could only use a US passport to travel in that country, and not his British one.

Tax bill

"The reason I'm thinking I probably will want to make a change is that my commitment is, and always has been, to Britain," he said.

In January he settled a

US tax bill he had previously described as "absolutely outrageous".

Mr Johnson had faced a demand from the US authorities to pay capital gains tax on profits from the sale of his house in north London.

American law requires all citizens to pay US taxes even if they live abroad.

Mr Johnson is running for parliament in Uxbridge and South Ruislip in the forthcoming general election.

In 2012 he told US chat show host David Letterman that he could "technically speaking" become US president, as that nation requires its presidential candidates to be a "natural-born citizen".

His trade mission to the US this week was aimed at bolstering London's science and technology industries.

He began his east coast tour in Boston before heading to New York City and Washington DC.

Soldier deserts to fight against Islamic State

A serving British soldier has left his army base and travelled to fight with Kurdish forces against Islamic State in northern Iraq.

The 19-year-old serviceman said he was joining the Peshmerga in their battle against the extremists because he wanted to help them.

The man, who is not being named, told his parents of the news in a text message a couple of days ago and has informed friends he intends to spend a year in the region.

He travelled via Dubai telling his family he was taking a holiday there and is not officially AWOL as he is currently on leave.

However, an Army source said that if the soldier outstayed his period of leave he would face discipline for going AWOL.

The soldier has been in the Army since leaving school at 16 and is known to have been been learning Arabic.

Britain's unlikely property hotspots revealed: Margate, Slough....and even Clacton-on-Sea

■ Dozens of locations across the UK have increased in value by up to 50 per cent in the last year, according to a new report

Margate, Slough and Clacton-on-Sea have been revealed as the UK's unlikely property hotspots, which have increased in value by almost 50 per cent in the space of a year, according to a new report.

These locations have seen big jumps in the number of transactions taking place last year, according to research from Lloyds Bank, based on Land Registry data covering England and Wales.

The number of property sales taking place in a handful of towns last year even managed to surpass the number which took place in these places in 2007, at the height of the housing boom.

The research compared the number of property sales in the first ten months of last year with those in the first ten months of 2013.

Around 760,000 sales took place across the country between January and October, marking a 21 per cent increase on the same period in 2013.

Margate has seen a 46 per cent year-on-year percentage ncrease in sales between 2013 and 2014, with 45 per cent for Slough and 44 per cent for Clacton-on-Sea.

The report showed a year-on-year decline in sales in more than a fifth of London's boroughs, showing that the London market has "slowed sharply" since last summer.

"Low interest rates, improvements in the UK economy and Government schemes, such as Help to Buy, all appear to have contributed to the rise in home sales," said Andy Hulme, mortgages director at Lloyds Bank.

"There is a clear north versus south pattern to the housing market recovery, with sales closer to their 2007 levels in the south."

Meanwhile, in further signs that the London market is cooling off, the capital saw a year-on-year decline in sales in more than one fifth of its boroughs.

There was an 11 per cent year-on-year increase in sales across London in 2014, which is the smallest uplift recorded across any region last year.

The report said this chimes with other studies showing that the London housing market has "slowed sharply" since last summer.

Brits would miss their dog 'more than a family member'

- Nine in ten consider their dog a 'fully-fledged' member of the family
- Half admit their dog's needs had influenced major life decisions

AS IF FURTHER proof were needed that Britain is a nation of dog lovers, a new survey this week revealed that many Britons would miss their dog more than a family member.

A survey for the leading dog competition Cruft's revealed that more than half of all dog owners would be sadder if their pet died than if an uncle, aunt or grandparent passed away.

Nearly nine in ten consider their dog a 'fully-fledged' member of the family. Two in five share their suppers with their pets.

And a THIRD of Britain's dogs even have their own designated chair in the living room.

Collymore dropped after Rangers row

Former soccer star Stan Collymore has been dropped as a pundit on BT Sport after an online row about sectarian chanting at Rangers football games.

The ex-footballer had claimed he was "taken off the show" bv broadcaster but spokesman said they had not dropped or sacked him, indicating it was Collymore's choice.

The outspoken commentator demanded the Glasgow side be pulled off the television if their fans continue to sing sectarian

After announcing the news on the internet, Collymore became locked in a fiery online exchange with some sports fans, many of whom brought up his violent past and domestic violence.

It had been triggered after Collymore backed a petition which said:

"Boycott sponsors Sectarian chanting is illegal. Demeaning."

The former Liverpool and England striker, who worked for BT Sport on a freelance basis, tweeted: "Just had a call from @btsportfootball. taken off the show. Absolutely fine. Better to be right than bury my head. Enjoy!

He claimed he was dropped from the BT Sport line-up for the Raith Rovers  $\mathbf{v}$ Rangers Championship clash because he called for Rangers to be taken off air until their fans stopped singing about "Fenian blood".

A BT Sport spokesman countered the claim, saying: "Stan intimated he no longer wishes to appear on BT Sport."

The broadcaster said that while they do not agree with any form of racism they "did not agree with the nature of the debate on twitter", and said they had been "brought into (the debate) without prior agreement".

Collymore had urged his online followers to show their support for the petition and said if they signed it he would "take it to every sponsor and tv/radio station i know."

Collymore hit back at his critics and said: "You can get sectarian, racist, threats from Rangers fans but can't tell truths. Censorship & fascism alive and well in 2015 Britain."

The Rangers Supporters Trust dismissed Collymore's claims and branded him a "self-publicist".

In a statement on their website they claimed that "if Mr Collymore was interested in sectarianism then he would deal with the subject evenly".

LOVE MATCH: Michelle Dockery and boyfriend John Dineen at Wimbledon

Abbey ever after!

■ Downton beauty Michelle to wed

There's a real life Downton Abbey romance as Michelle Dockery is set to walk down the aisle with her fella.

In contrast to her s t o n y - f a c e d character Lady Mary, Michelle is reportedly planning a romantic dream wedding with hunky boyfriend (now fiancé) John Dineen.

According to The Sun, Michelle, 33, couldn't wait to show her Downton pals the sparkler he bought her, after the pair have been dating for a year.

A source reportedly said: "She's over the moon and was showing it off to all of the cast and crew

"It's wonderful news and everyone is delighted. She and John make a lovely couple."

While Lady Mary is the reserved type Michelle is a lot more easy going in real life and even known to flash a bit of the old side boob on the red carpet.

And m'lady even laughed off PORN parodies to Downton when she appeared on Conan O'Brien.

Confronted with a cheeky spoof called Down on Abbey she took it on the chin.

She said: "Oh of course, it's endless, the amount of spoofs that become of the show."

Commuter bumps into fellow passenger and says 'go f*** yourself': Hours later he turns up for job interview and is faced by... guess who?

A LONDON human resources executive became a minor internet sensation this week after he found himself interviewing the same man who launched a foul-mouthed tirade at him earlier the same

Buckland claimed the job seeker told him to "go f*** yourself" as they both got off a packed rush hour train on Monday morning.

Little did the offending commuter realise his harsh words on the District Line were aimed at the very man who would be interviewing him later that day.

Mr Buckland is head of recruitment for investment firm Forward Partners, based in East Road, Old Street, where the angry commuter had applied for a web development role.

Buckland told BuzzFeed: "At Monument station, I stood to one side to let someone else off the train first and I think he thought I was just standing in his way.

"He pushed and I turned, I explained I was getting off too but he pushed past and then looked back and suggested I might like to f*** myself... which might have been true but not before a few cups of coffee."

Recalling the interview later that day, he said the man did not recognize him until he "asked him how he got to the interview, how was his morning commute".

Remarkably, Mr Buckland said he did not hold it against the interviewee, though the man was not offered the job.

"It would be easy to hold something like this over someone in an interview, but for me interviews aren't about that," he said.

"By the end of the interview we laughed it off and we're both happy."

Buckland's account of the exchange proved a huge hit on Twitter this week, prompting some to question Buckland for making fun of the applicant on social media, a charge he denies, "I don't think it's public shaming as he hasn't been named. I've been in contact with him and he's fine about it," he said. "Although understandably, doesn't want to do any interviews."

Anti-ageing chocolate which reduces wrinkles developed by Cambridge University spin-off

■ A daily 7.5g bar of the chocolate can change the underlying skin stucture of a 50 year-old to that of someone in their 30s, say developers

It may seem too good to be true, but guilt-free chocolate which promises to slow down the emergence of wrinkles and sagging skin, has been developed by scientists.

'Esthechoc' the brainchild of a Cambridge University spin-off lab, claims to boost antioxidant levels and increase circulation to prevent lines and keep skin looking youthful and smooth.

Just a small 7.5g bar of anti-ageing chocolate contains the same amount of the antioxidant astaxanthin as a fillet of Alaskan salmon, and equal levels of free-radical fighting cocoa polyphenols as 100g of dark chocolate.

Its makers say it can change the underlying skin of a 50-60 year old into that of someone in their 20s or 30s. Tests showed that after four weeks of eating the anti-ageing chocolate every day, volunteers had less evidence of inflammation in their blood and increased blood supply to skin tissue.

Creator Dr Ivan Petyaev, a former researcher at Cambridge University, and founder of biotech firm Lycotec, said: "We're using the same antioxidant that keeps goldfish gold and flamingos pink.

"In clinical trials we saw that inflammation in the skin starting to go down and the tissues began to benefit.

"We used people in their 50s and 60s and in terms of skin biomarkers we found it had brought skin back to the levels of a 20 or 30 year old. So we've improved the skin's physiology.

"People using it claimed that their skin was better and we can see that the product is working to slow down ageing."

The confectionary, which is also called 'Cambridge Beauty Chocolate' comes boxed as a three week supply, individually wrapped, and will only be available in high end retailers from next month.

RSC stalwart Alan Howard dead at 77

Renowned Royal Shakespeare Company actor Alan Howard has died aged 77 after suffering from pneumonia.

Howard (right) played a series of lead roles at the National Theatre and in the West End, with notable performances as Macbeth and King Lear, but always described the RSC as his "spiritual home". He was a mainstay there for 17 years after joining in 1966.

Gregory Doran, RSC

artistic director, paid tribute to the English actor on Thursday, branding him a "giant gifted with a great classical physique, a prodigious talent and an utterly unmistakeable voice".

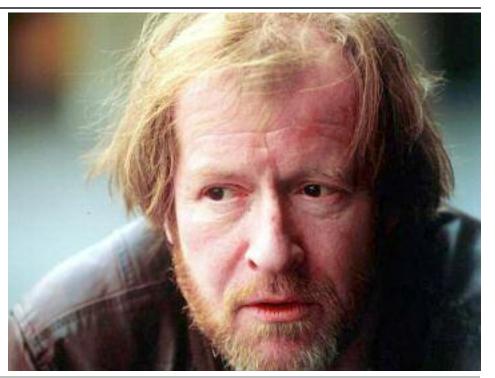

Howard's regular theatre collaborator Terry Hands also spoke about his death. "Alan was an RSC icon, a great classical actor in the line of Olivier, Redgrave, Scofield," he said. "I have lost a brother."

Howard's other stand-out roles included Oberon in Peter Brook's 1970 production of A Midsummer Night's Dream and Antony alongside Glenda Jackson's Cleopatra in the 1978 staging of Antony and Cleopatra.

His last stage appearance was as Sir Peter Teazle in The School for Scandal in 2011.

His novelist wife Sally Beauman and their son James were at his side when he died on Saturday 14 February.

Wizard condensation: Potted Potter comes to Beverly Hills

POTTED POTTER, an unauthorized, critically-acclaimed and highly condensed theatrical production of the Harry Potter saga that has wowed audiences worldwide over the past decade, is finally coming to Los Angeles.

The 70-minute show runs from Feb. 25th to March 1st at the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, 9390 Santa Monica Boulevard in Beverly Hills.

Created by two-time Olivier Awardnominated actors Daniel Clarkson and Jefferson Turner, Potted Potter sounds perfect ages six to Dumbledore (who is very old indeed).

Dan and Jeff have been described as a classic double act, with Jefferson Turner playing the Ernie Wise role of the perennially hopeful yet permanently aggrieved straight man, while Daniel Clarkson adopts the Eric Morecambe persona of the dotty surrealist who knows exactly how to wind his partner up.

Plump and amiable, Jeff plays the boy wizard, and Dan plays all the other roles, heroically undeterred by the fact that he seems to have only the most distant with acquaintance Rowling's epic oeuvre. The pair whip up an atmosphere of crazy delirium glove-puppet monsters, enjoyably awful jokes, quick changes, silly accents and frenzied slapstick. And audience participation proves riotous, especially in a frenzied game of Quidditch, in which poor Jeff finds himself absurdly dressed up as the golden snitch and the adults in the audience behave even worse than the kids when it comes to gaining possession of the Quaffle.

In true British style there's plenty of sarcasm, puns put-downs. At point mild-mannered Jeff actually cracks up and complains about just how boring the character of Harry Potter actually is. And then there is spectacle of Dan as Dumbledore proudly announcing: "the only wizard in the village" (Little Britain, anyone?) before going on to sing the great gay anthem I Am What I Am. Listen too, Voldemort's version of the disco classic I Will Survive.

The Daily Telegraph described the show as "A fabulously funny parody. Will tickle the funny bone of every age group," while Time Out gushed: "Gloriously irreverent!".

Oscars 2015: Votes are actually cast by Hollywood house maids, says Barry Norman

■ Veteran film critic suggests not all Oscar voters watch every film

why The Help received four Academy Award nominations; Oscar votes are often decided Hollywood's household maids, Barry Norman has claimed.

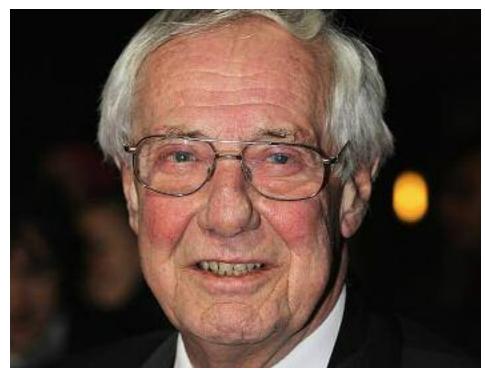

The veteran reviewer told Radio "There's Times: question of whether all the voters actually saw all the films. It's not unknown for some, especially the elderly, to get their maids to watch them on DVD and deliver their opinions."

admission

It is widely suspected that the 6,000-plus "motion picture professionals" comprise the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences do not watch every film under consideration, as they are required to, before casting their vote.

Chris Martin once admitted that he filled in the form belonging to his then-wife, former Best Actress winner Gwyneth Paltrow. "I read the instructions, which is like you've got to put your top five in order," he recalled. "I did get a say on that form. I got to put a vote in. I voted for Mickey Rourke."

Writing ahead of Sunday night's ceremony, Norman said:

VETERAN: Barry Norman presented BBC 1's Film programme for 26 years beforen moving to Sky in 1998. He continues to write about film and watch cricket. He is perhaps most famous for his catchphrase "And Why Not?"

"Just being nominated for an Oscar is a victory in itself. It's only when it comes to picking the winners that everyone votes in every category and the whole thing becomes little better than a crapshoot. likes Personal dislikes come into play. You might vote for someone simply because he or she was nice to you on the set."

'sadly overlooked'

thesis may help explain the success of The Help, a 2011 American period drama about a young white woman and her relationship with two black maids, set during the Civil Rights era in

The film secured four Academy Award nominations including Best Picture, Best Actress Davis, Best Supporting Actress for Chastain, and a win for Best Supporting Actress for Octavia Spencer.

Norman predicted a Best Actor win on Sunday the Birdmanstar Michael Keaton. But he wrote: "For me, Keaton wasn't even the best actor in Birdman: that was Edward Norton, who is up for best supporting player. Indeed, Keaton is no better than two British actors - David Oyelowo (Selma) and Timothy Spall (Mr Turner) - who were sadly overlooked for nominations."

Meet Salme Geransar from Melbourne, Australia who moved to LA 9 months ago to pursue acting.

I chose LA because of the acting opportunities, I have a lot of family that live here, and it's much warmer than NY or Canada!

What one thing do you miss from home?

I miss the familiarity like knowing the things system/how work (being able to pay my rent online), and which shops/cafes/restaurant s are good.

What do you find the thinking about making biggest difference is living here?

The biggest difference between LA and Melbourne is the public transport. I know a few people that get around LA without a car, but it definitely makes life easier having one!

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: This is the time of year when you feel like taking off or not working. Either way is not advised as this month's end will be better for all kinds of activities for fun. Your boss Mars is feeling sentimental.

TAURUS: What a change in pace you are due for. In order to prepare for this second wind you'll need to clear all tasks and make space. By the end of this month you will have accomplished plenty.

GEMINI: Time to slow your pace this week and prepare for what you want to do for yourself. Wait until around the last week of the month...you should be right in the middle of the changes. CANCER: If you are traveling be sure you have a tight hold on your cash as either by design or accident money could be scarce. And keep an eye on what others close to you are spending. The sun in Pisces will be a friend to you soon.

LEO: If you take that leap of faith be sure you are ready. The fact is this: it is not the time in the year to go where angels fear to tread. So be in control of your life, not at the mercy of it.

VIRGO: Any frustrations you have in any area of life (most likely work) will not get better by complaining about things. Bite the bullet and get going on what needs to be done soon. The sun in your opposite sign will assist now.

LIBRA: If all is not well in your general area of being you will find you can deal with life much better when you feel fit. So this will be the best time of the year to start the plan of changes in lifestyle, possibly to even SCORPIO: Your powerful boss is going into Pisces, visiting the Sun and so life is getting better. Good news also is Mercury is moving in a positive way and so your thoughts turn to love and creative matters.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is sitting in Leo, however he is on a go-slow until mid-April. This means that all new plans should ideally be put on hold until then. If you have to set something in motion just expect it to take longer than you expected.

CAPRICORN: The Sun in Pisces will assist you to get a job done. This month is a great opportunity to complete an overdue and neglected project, probably in your home base. Also Saturn your boss living in a fire sign currently will lighten life up.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling like a break awaym so even if you can't get out of town take time out. Since this is the beginning of your new year make decisions on how you want to proceed until next birthday. Work can be tedious, however this will only last a couple of weeks.

PISCES: Neptune your boss is assisting you all the way through this year in order to get your life in order and to experience happier days. Change is much on your mind and if you learn to live in the moment life will be sweeter. Have a Happy Birthday.

New book is more than black and white

Exclusive interview with Lawrence Hill and review of his book that is now a television mini-series on BET

Rating: ★★★

"I got the idea for the book fifteen years before I starting writing it in 2003," says Lawrence Hill. "I took a book from my parents' bookshelves and was so mesmerized that I never returned it. The Black Loyalists by James Walker. It is a history book that gives a detailed, fascinating of account African Americans who threw off the chains of slavery to serve the British during American Revolutionary War, and who, after the British lost, had their names entered into the British naval ledger known as The Book of Negroes before they were evacuated in 1783 from Manhattan and sent by ship to Nova Scotia on the Atlantic coast of Canada."

The Book of Negroes is about the life of Aminata Diallo, born in 1745 in Bayo, West Africa. In 1802 London, as Aminata is British abolitionists, she reflects on her life. At age 11 she was captured by British slavers and survives the voyage to South Carolina. Georgia, American-born slave, helps her adapt and thrive unfamiliar conditions. The man who owns her. Robinson Appleby, is a cruel master. She is sold to duty inspector Solomon Lindo. Despite the hardships, she keeps going. The British promise to free Blacks who fight against the rebels. Because Aminata can read and write, she's chosen to write The Book of Negroes.

The Book of Negroes is also a 6-hour miniseries airing this week on BET. The Canadian-South African co-production based on Hill's novel is directed by Clement Virgo, who co-wrote the screenplay with Hill.

"A man in The Netherlands was incensed by the word Negro in the Dutch edition of my novel that he sent me an email basically beginning with the words, 'Dear Sir, I Intend to Burn Your Book'," says Hill. "And, he did indeed go on to burn copies of the cover of the book while TV cameras rolled. He didn't care that the title derived from the historic British naval ledger by the same name."

Hill had an audience with the Queen in Buckhingham Palace. He traveled twice to South Africa, once for the filming of the miniseries near Cape Town, another winning the Commonwealth Writers' Prize. To research the book, Hill took five years of interviewing experts, traveling and reading documents from libraries, archives, bookstores and online.

Hill has written nine books. The Book of Negroes is the seventh. Hill met his agent, Ellen Levine at Trident Media Group, New York, on the recommendation of other authors.

Hill grew up in Canada and the United States, the child African-American father and a white American mother who moved to Canada. "I grew up of American parentage knowing, as do all Americans, that the first person that died in the American Revolution was a black man, Crispus Attucks, who sided with the rebels," says Hill. "But very few Americans and Canadians had heard of the story of thousands of black loyalists, former American slaves who accepted formal offers written by the British to give them their freedom in exchange for service during the Revolution. So because New York City was a central hub of British control during the seven or eight year Revolutionary thousands of blacks fled to New York City, hid in Canvas Town in the southern tip of the island and served the British."

Milking the moment: British Oscar nominee Rosamund's got it sorted!

These stunning Rosamund Pike really knows how to make an impression, or so I am told...

The blonde bombshell, hails who from Hammersmith, may be known for playing edgy characters on the big screen but as mother to 10-week-old son Atom, the Oscar-nominated star now has had to balance breastfeeding her baby boy while still keeping up with her incredibly successful busy showbiz career - especially during hectic awards season...

"I am just taking him around with me," Pike, said during a visit to The DeGeneres Ellen Show last Thursday.

"It has a very interesting effect on people because they don't expect it. I'm turning up to meetings because what do you do - you're a mom and you got a baby who needs to eat."

And the Gone Girl beauty - who's up for Best Actressfor her role in the film - says her adorable entourage doesn't go unnoticed. "I turn up [to meetings] and they're like, 'Oh, your baby's here,' ' she jokes. "I'm like, 'Yeah, yeah he is.' "

Pike - also mum to 2½-year-old son Solo admits her nursing routine has made for an interesting award show schedule, turning her star status into a Hollywood outsider...

"I do the red carpet. I get there really early," she says. "I'm the really uncool one who shows up very early for the carpet. First off, I've never been early for anything in my life!"

Although she's managed to successfully breastfeed by setting up a discreet station backstage — complete with slippers, a robe and her pump - her streak of luck took a turn the BAFTA awards.

"I just roped up into the chairman of the Royal Opera House's office and tried to put on the robe. I couldn't do the buttons and whipped it off," she recalls. "I was just sitting there, butt naked, with the double breast pump. If this guy had seen the kind scene was as underhand as if we'd been taking drugs or something!"

While Pike is happy to talk about one of her most memorable breastfeeding moments, she isn't quite ready to share snapshots of the event quite yet.

"One day, when I'm fearless and don't care what anybody thinks, which I endeavor to do anyway, one day I'll publish the photos because they are very funny," she muses...

Oo-er...

Best of luck on Sunday darling, breast feeding pumps and all!

Julianne Moore and Eddie Redmayne once played a creepy mother-son duo!

This year Julianne Moore and British actor Eddie Redmayne are up for Oscars -Julianne for her role in Still Alice and Eddie for The Theory of Everything. However, six years ago they were co-starring as an incestuous mother and Tom in Kalin's Savage Grace.

The film tells the based-on-reality story of the Barbara Baekeland (Moore) - the wife of Brooks Baekeland, heir of the Bakelite plastics fortune. Redmayne plays Barbara's son Antony, who eventually kills his mother - but not before engaging in a threesome with her and another man played by Hugh "Savage Grace" itself wasn't a hit with critics: It currently has a 38 percent on Rotten Tomatoes, and EW gave it a B-.

Owen Gleiberman said in his review, "Savage Grace has been shot with decadent coo creaminess, yet it's a rather slipshod movie."

For Redmayne, it was simply a job: It was only his third theatrical film. He followed it with a role in The Other Boleyn and Girl the miniseries The Pillars of the Earth, and won a Tony in 2010.

Both stars have since put the film behind them.

So I'm sorry Eddie mate, hate to break to you, but I won't be watching this one (I think), but good luck on Sunday, as we Brits in LA are rooting for you to s many of you k n o w , unfortunately we had to cancel our big awards show, The Toscars ceremony, this year.

Heroics at the Toscars....

However, it seems we created a monster and teams wanted to go ahead and make the films anyway. Scaling it back and going back to our bar roots seemed like a perfect fit and Nadia Wit produced a lovely intimate event at the trendy Here lounge in West Hollywood, and honored the show by naming it The Spirit of the Toscars.

As most who were there know, the screening interrupted was momentarily when a gentleman in the audience took ill and stopped breathing. Brits in LA members sprung action resuscitated the man until the paramedics arrived within five minutes. I was a life guard in my youth at the local swimming baths and it's amazing how quickly instinct kicked in. A big Shout Michael to Enright who performed CPR, London and Kim Morgan Greene for helping control the situation immensely. I hear the gentleman - only known as Ray - is stable right now and we continue to pray for his recovery.

In the world of showbiz the show must go on but after such an episode it was difficult to play comedy. However, we decided we were going continue for the sake of Ray, as that's why he was there in the first place and I'm sure he would have wanted us to continue.

Sandro Monetti was this year's master of ceremonies with a little help from his friends, adult movie actor Ron Jeremy and British comedian David Schall. They managed to keep the mood light and led us into a great end to the evening.

Thanks to all of our 16 judges, comedians and industry professionals who voted in all categories.

All of the films this year were really excellent and very, very funny. Big BirdMan took home the best picture honors and the majority of the awards - six in total including, Best Whactor, Best Supporting Whactor, (which I happened to win) Best Boss, Best Shooter, Best Scribblers and Best Parody Film. Other winners were Immigration Game for Best Tunes, American Snapper for Best Editing, Boy Wood for Best Supporting Whactress and, in a gender-bending turn, Dickie Sanderson took home the award for Best Whactress for With-Lash...a spoof on WhipLash! Let's see if we can once again predict the big winners at this year's 'other' awards show, the Oscars, this Sunday on ABC, hosted by the very talented Neil Patrick Harris.

A fun night was had by all and thanks again to Nadia for keeping the flame alive and letting us all get to play and be silly! If there was thing we could take away from the night it is that life is too short not to be silly and have fun! - We did it for you Ray - Now concentrate on getting better!

Cheers,

HAPPY DAYS: Rory McIlroy and Darren Clarke during Europe's 2012 Ryder Cup triumph at Medina

Montgomerie should also be considered as "whoever it is standing on that stage opposite Tom Watson needs a huge presence".

With the support of star players such as Rory McIlroy and Ian Poulter it was McGinley who eventually won the day, and he insisted after Europe leading victory at Gleneagles last year that he would not let personal feelings affect his view on his successor

Clarke has also stated he would be "foolish" not to immediately seek McGinley's advice if given the daunting job of following in footsteps.

The last of Clarke's five appearances as a player was emotionally-charged occasion at the K Club in 2006, when he somehow won all three of his matches just weeks after the death of his first wife Heather from cancer.

Clarke and long-time friend Lee Westwood played the final fourball match of the first session against Phil Mickelson and Chris Di Marco, with Clarke hitting his opening drive more than 300 yards down the

After failing to qualify for the next two contests. Clarke was a surprise winner of the Open Championship at Royal St George's in 2011, but has failed to record a single top-10 finish on the European Tour since.

In contrast, Jimenez and Bjorn have remained competitive, with Bjorn making his third appearance as a player at Gleneagles and 51-year-old Jimenez extending his record as the Tour's oldest winner with victory in the Spanish Open last year.

The US captain is due to be officially named next week, although it been widely reported that former captain Davis Love has been handed the chance for redemption after being on the wrong end of the 'Miracle Medinah' in 2012.

Swede's first strike since November.

It is a goal which keeps the tie in the balance and they play the second leg at the San Siro on 26 February.

But Tottenham face a tough battle to remain in the Europa League after being held to a round of 32 first-leg draw by Fiorentina at White Hart Lane.

Roberto Soldado volleyed in a sixth-minute opener from Paulinho's corner as Spurs dominated the opening half-hour.

But Argentina centre-back Jose Maria Basanta scrambled in an away goal that gives Vincenzo Montella's side the edge ahead of next week's second leg.

Nacer Chadli hit the bar for Spurs, who faded after half-time.

Soldado started instead of 23-goal top scorer Harry Kane as head coach Mauricio Pochettino facing the first of six matches in 17 days - made six changes in an attempt to keep his squad fresh.

Mario Balotelli scored a late penalty to give Liverpool a narrow 1-0 Europa League lead over Besiktas despite a row over whether he should take the kick.

awarded the spot-kick in the first leg at Anfield after Jordon Ibe was fouled by Ramon Motta Balotelli and Jordan Henderson argued over who should step up to the spot before the Italy striker grabbed the ball and confidently converted.

Demba Ba went closest for Besiktas but saw his shot saved by Simon Mignolet.

LUKAKU NETS A TREBLE

■ EUROPA LEAGUE: Striker in deadly form as Everton take control in first leg

Romelu Lukaku answered his critics in the finest possible style on Thursday night, grabbing a hat-trick as Everton romped to a 4-1 win in Switzerland against the Young Boys of Berne in the Europa League round of 32 first leg tie.

The Belgian striker angered supporters earlier this month by telling a newspaper that he hoped to leave for a "top club".

Lukaku has also appeared disinterested in some games for the Toffees this season, but certainly not in midweek, as he struck with a header, a right-foot shot and a left-foot shot after Young Boys scored through Guillaume Hoarau.

Seamus Coleman scored Everton's second, while Hoarau missed a second-half penalty after John Stones was sent off.

Since making a permanent £28m move to Everton from Chelsea in July, Lukaku has struggled to reach the levels of form he showed during a loan spell at Goodison Park last season.

But he had a prolific evening against a Young Boys side who struggled with their offside trap all evening, and could have had at least two more goals after completing his hat-trick.

Uli Forte's side could point to the fact that two of Everton's three first-half goals looked to be offside.

But Everton deserve immense credit for adapting so well to the synthetic surface at the Stade de Suisse, having spent time in the build-up to the match training on the artificial pitch of rugby league side Widnes Vikings.

They had to come back from a goal down as Young Boys, who had won their previous seven

John Guidetti's stunning added-time goal Thursday night earned Celtic a draw against Inter Milan and gives them belief they can progress in their Europa League tie.

The Glasgow giants conceded cheap early goals to Xherdan Shaqiri and Rodrigo Palacio but levelled through Stuart Armstrong's finish and Hugo Campagnaro's own goal.

But Palacio pounced on Craig Gordon's error to hand Inter a half-time lead.

The second half did not look like yielding any further goals until the cont. on page 19, col. 4

Clarke named Ryder Cup captain

Northern Ireland' Darren Clarke has been named as the Europe Ryder Cup captain for 2016 after five-man summit at the European Tour HQ at Wentworth this week.

Spain's Miguel Angel Jimenez and Denmark's Thomas Bjorn were also in the frame, but the overwhelming support of the players appears to have swung the vote in favour of the Ulsterman getting the nod for Hazeltine.

Clarke will bidding to lead Europe's to for a fourth successive Ryder Cup victory.

The 46-year-old Northern Irishman has played in five Ryder Cups and was a vice-captain in 2010 and 2012.

Clarke said: "I am naturally extremely proud to be selected as European Ryder Cup captain for 2016. The Ryder Cup has been a massive part of my life and my career, so to have the chance to lead Europe next year is a huge honour.

"I am lucky to have played and worked under some fantastic captains in my seven Ryder Cups to date and I look forward to the challenge of trying to follow in their footsteps and help Europe to a fourth consecutive Ryder Cup victory at Hazeltine next year."

The selection panel consisted of the three most recent captains - Paul McGinley, Jose Maria Olazabal and Colin Montgomerie - along with European Tour chief executive George O'Grady and players' representative David Howell.

McGinley and Clarke's relationship has been severely strained since Clarke put himself forward for the 2014 captaincy, having previously sent McGinley a letter supporting the Dubliner's candidacy.

And when Tom Watson was named US captain in December 2012, Clarke suggested 2010 captain
