The identity of the Islamic State killer, who appeared in beheading videos for Isil, was known to British security services but they chose not to disclose it

The Islamic State killer Jihadi John has been identified as Mohammed Emwazi, from west London.

Emwazi was known to British security services but they chose not to disclose his name earlier for operational reasons, it was claimed on Thursday.

He is believed to have travelled to Syria around 2012 and to have later joined the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (Isil), the group terrorising Iraq and Syria.

Jihadi John first appeared in a video last August, when he appeared to kill the American journalist James Foley.

The Isil terrorist apparently studied computer sciences at Westminister University. The Washington Post describes Emwazi as Kuwaiti-born and in his mid-20s.

He was apparently raised in a middle class neighbourhood and occasionally prayed at a mosque in Greenwich.

Emwazi lived in a three-bedroomed flat on the first floor of a contemporary block of flats on Warwick Crescent, Maida Vale, between 1996 and 1997. The block is sandwiched between the Regents Park canal and the M40, with the maisonettes overlooking both. The flats currently sell for up to £800,000.

Neighbours did not remember the family.

Friends told the Post that Emwazi began to radicalise after a planned safari to Tanzania after he graduated from Westminster.

The Washington Post cite two friends of Mohammed Emwazi as sources who have identified him as Jihadi John. One is an unidentified close friend who says: "He was like a brother to me. ... I am sure it is him."

The other is Asim Qureshi, a researcher at Cage, an organisation which campaigns for the rights of Muslim prisoners. Mr Qureshi said he was in contact with Emwazi after he was arrested in Tanzania while claiming to be going on a safari holiday. He was released and flew to Amsterdam, where he was detained again and accused by MI5 interrogators of having intended to go to Somalia to join al-Shabaab, the militant jihadist group fighting there.

Cage has released a statement blaming the British security agency, MI5, for his radicalism. "Mohammed Emwazi is a British citizen who was subjected to security agency harassment for at least four years.

"He was repeatedly detained at airports, deported, barred from entering countries and even allegedly assaulted by officers. This treatment prevented him from leading a normal life while having no means to obtain redress, even though no evidence was ever presented to cont. on page 2, col. 5

■ Return of Labour bruiser confirms disarrary in Opposition ranks as General Election looms ■ Whispers grow louder of bitter rift between party leader Ed Miliband and shadow chancellor Ed Balls

John Prescott is to make a surprise comeback to the political frontline, after Ed Miliband called on the bruiser to 'bash heads together'.

Despite Lord Prescott frequently criticising Mr party Miliband's handling, he is to become the Labour leader's special adviser on climate change.

The appointment of Lord Prescott, who once punched a voter on the campaign trail, comes just weeks before the general election amid claims Mr Miliband is at 'logger-Eds' with his shadow chancellor Ed Balls.

experience

The decision to call on Lord Prescott ahead of the general will be seen as an attempt to turn the clock back to when Labour used to win elections.

The move was backed by Alastair Campbell, Tony Blair's former spin doctor, who also pledged to join the effort to get Mr Miliband elected.

Mr Miliband's repeated claims to have moved on from the New Labour era.

The Labour leader said that he wanted to exploit Lord Prescott's experience in negotiating the landmark Kyoto Protocol in the run-up to a crucial United Nations summit in Paris at the end of the year.

Writing The in Observer, he said: 'His abilities and experience, as one of the architects of the Kyoto Protocol in 1997, must be used at this critical time for our future and there is no one better than John at bashing heads together to get a deal.'

However, it raises the prospect of him playing a high profile role during the election campaign.

tensions

Alexander, Douglas Labour's election co-ordinator, told Sky News: 'I fully expect that as well as that policy role, he will continue to support the Labour campaign in the months ahead and I welcome that.'

However, just months ago Lord Prescott launched a scathing attack on Mr Miliband's 'too timid' approach to winning in May.

The Labour leadership is in the grip of a crisis, amid claims of deep divisions between Mr Miliband and Mr Balls.

Tensions have mounted over how to pay for Mr Miliband's flagship pledge to cut tuition fees from £9,000 to £6,000.

'logger-Eds'

A meeting last week designed to thrash out how to fund the plan 'did not end well', according to a report in the Sunday Times.

Problems at the top are now so bad that Labour MPs refer to "the Ed aches" or the two leaders being "at logger-Eds".

Mr Miliband is now being urged to ditch Mr Balls from the key economic brief if he wins the election to prevent a repeat of the deeply damaging clashes between Tony Blair and Gordon Brown in the last Labour government.

Rifkind and Straw caught in cash-for-access scandal

TWO SENIOR politicians were left red-faced this week after appearing to offer cash for access in a classic newspaper sting.

Top Tory Sir Malcolm Rifkind and former Labour foreign secretary Jack Straw were implicated after the Daily Telegraph and Channel 4 revealed the pair had offered to use their positions as politicians on behalf of a fictitious Chinese company in return for thousands of pounds.

Rifkind has announced that he will stand down as Conservative MP for the Tory safe seat of Kensington after making "errors of judgment", while Straw's indiscretion may have cost him a Knighthood of the Garter - an honour in the sole gift of the Queen.

She is said to have developed a liking for Straw, 68, who met her regularly when he was Labour's Home Secretary later and Lord Chancellor.

Rifkind announced that he would not contest the general election and would also stand down chairman as of parliament's intelligence and security committee (ISC) with immediate effect. He will remain as a member of the committee, which is due to publish a report into privacy and security arising from the leaks by the NSA whistleblower Edward Snowden before dissolution the of parliament ahead of the general election in May. Speaking after a meeting of the committee in Westminster, Rifkind said: "No, I don't think I did anything wrong. I may have made errors of judgment but then we all make errors of judgment. We are all human beings in that sense."

Britain's brightest leaving in brain drain and replaced with low skilled migrants

One in ten of Britain's best workers have been lured from the UK in a brain drain and been replaced by low skilled migrants, research has found.

The country's most highly skilled workers are emigrating because they can earn more money and enjoy better standards of living overseas, according to University College London.

But in their place the UK has attracted more than two million migrants with low numeracy skills, the report concluded.

The news was seen as an embarrassment to David Cameron, whose "no ifs, no buts" election pledge to slash immigration during his time in power is coming back to haunt him.

The Prime Minister promised to cut net migration to the "tens of thousands" by the 2015 General Election but official figures published on Wednesday are way off that mark.

The UCL study also found that migrants in the UK are six times more likely to have never worked than those born there.

Migrants are also more likely to be unemployed, with unemployed female migrants almost double the rate of British born. Dr John Jerrim, of the UCL Institute of Education, said: "Immigrants account for one in four of the 9.6 million working age adults living in the United Kingdom with low level numeracy skills.

"Immigration has therefore had its biggest impact upon the bottom end of the numeracy skill distribution; it has led to a significant increase in the supply of low skilled workers."

There are now an estimated 4.7 million Britons living abroad and, on average, more than 300,000 a year leave the UK, the report said.

Dr Jerrim said around "one in ten highly skilled British citizens now lives overseas".

The academic calculated that immigration added some 2.4 million people to the UK population with low numeracy skills.

Newest VC Hero 'Took On 20 Taliban' In Helmand Battle

■ Dodging bullets, Joshua Leakey saved the life of a US Marine and single-handedly regained the initiative in a fierce gun battle

A British soldier who showed "complete disregard" for his own safety has won the Victoria Cross for his role in a gun battle in Afghanistan.

Lance Corporal Joshua Leakey will receive the honour following a combined US/UK assault on a Taliban stronghold in Helmand Province in 2013.

His group came under attack from around 20 insurgents armed with machine guns and rocket propelled grenades.

Under heavy fire he ran to the top of a hill where he realised two friendly machine gun teams had been surrounded.

He then moved back down the hill to give first aid to a US Marine Corps captain and began casualty evacuation.

Despite being the most junior member of the group, he returned to the top of the hill to take control of a machine gun, before moving position to fire on the enemy.

Again Lance Cpl Leakey ran 200 metres down the hill, this time to pick up a second machine gun. In 45 degree heat he clambered back up again with 60lbs of equipment on his back, drawing fire.

The troops around him were inspired by his actions and started fighting back.

During the battle, 11

insurgents were killed and four wounded.

According to his citation, his "gritty leadership" well-above his junior rank, "single-handedly regained the initiative prevented and considerable loss of life". On hearing the news he was to receive the British armed forces' highest military honour, he said: "Why me? Why on earth have they picked me out for this.

"It's amazing to receive this, it's outrageous really. But it represents something more than just me, my mates who were there with me at the time, the rest of that tour, all the other tours the battalion has done and the regiment as well."

The Head of the Army, General Sir Nicholas Carter, clearly moved when announcing the honour , said he was "humbled to award him the Victoria Cross".

"Sex Pest' Jimmy Savile abused 60 people at Stoke Mandeville hospital, inquiry finds

■ Late BBC DJ was subject of at least 10 formal and informal complaints by victims going back to 1972, but none were taken seriously, report says

Jimmy Savile was given free rein to sexually abuse 60 people, including seriously ill eight-year-olds, over two decades at Stoke Mandeville hospital due to his gold-plated status as a celebrity fundraiser, an inquiry has found.

The late BBC DJ was the subject of at least 10 complaints going back to 1972, but none were taken seriously or raised with senior managers, according to the NHS investigation.

The victims included a girl aged eight or nine raped 10 times by Savile when she visited the hospital where her relatives worked.

A total of 177 people, mainly women or girls, say that Savile - one of the BBC's top presenters in the 1970s and 1980s, known for his eccentric dress sense and love of cigars — abused them from 1954 onwards.

'too intimidated'

The latest allegations emerged in a new series of reports which help lift the lid on the full extent of his crimes, which only emerged after his death 2011. This has in prompted questions about why they were not detected earlier.

"People were either too dazzled or too intimidated by the favourite nation's celebrity to confront the evil predator we now know he was," Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt told the House of Commons in а statement.

It is thought that Savile abused people in 41 acute hospitals nearly a quarter of the total number in England.

Sixty of the allegations centre on Stoke Mandeville hospital northwest of London, where Savile was "given the run" of the facility, including his own flat, after being appointed as a fundraiser by Margaret Thatcher's government in 1980.

nine complaints

It is claimed he committed offences against patients, staff and visitors there ranging from rape to sexual touching between 1969 and 1992.

Victims of Savile, who worked as a voluntary porter at the hospital, included some young patients with spinal injuries, which the hospital specialises in treating.

While staff there saw him as a "sex pest", nine complaints made against him were not referred to senior management, the into report what happened at Stoke Mandeville found. His youngest victim was aged eight and the oldest was 40 and they included patients, staff and visitors.

"Because of his celebrity and useful fundraising skills, the right questions, the hard questions, were simply not asked," Hunt said.

Liz Dux, a lawyer representing 44 of the victims, said it "beggars belief" that the report

Latest abuse probe is 'absurd' claims furious Cliff Richard

■ South Yorkshire's Chief Constable has revealed David Crompton says the "expanding nature" of the investigation meant he could not give a date when it would be concluded

Sir Cliff Richard this week angrily denied he has sexually abused anyone after police they revealed are widening their current investigation into the pop veteran's past.

Detectives said more alleged victims have come forward to accuse the 74-year-old of attacking them.

But Sir Cliff, who has already been quizzed over allegations he targeted a young boy in the 1980s, said: "I have never, in my life, assaulted anyone.

"I have no idea where these absurd and untrue allegations come from. The police have not disclosed details to me. I have never, in my life, assaulted anyone and I remain confident that the truth will prevail.

"I have co-operated fully with the police and I will continue to do so.

"Beyond stating that allegations the are completely false it would not be appropriate for me to say anything further until the investigation has concluded, which I hope will be very soon."

He added it had been an unbelievably difficult period" and also claimed he had not seen details of the fresh allegations.

'regular contact'

But officers insisted the star was not being kept in the dark about the probe. They said it was up to his lawyers to keep him informed of proceedings. South Yorkshire Police Chief Constable David Crompton, whose force is carrying out the probe, said in a February 10 letter to chairman of the Commons Home Affairs Select Committee Keith Vaz: "This investigation has increased significantly in size since its inception.

"Sir Cliff Richard's lawyers are aware there is more than one allegation.

"Police are in very regular contact with Sir Cliff Richard's lawyers. Typically this involves a verbal update about once £3.5million home in a fortnight. We have not written directly to Sir Cliff Richard.

"It is the responsibility of his lawyers to ensure he is fully briefed on the conversations which have taken place."

And the singer's hope for a swift conclusion to the probe appeared to be dashed by Mr Crompton.

His letter, which had two paragraphs blacked out before it was released, said: "In view of the expanding nature of the investigation it would be premature and potentially misleading to predict a conclusion date. We are progressing as swiftly as possible."

inquiry

Officers began investigating Sir Cliff last August after a man claimed the star attacked him at a Sheffield rally given by evangelist Billy Graham in 1985. He was interviewed under caution but not arrested or charged.

The search of Sir Cliff's

South Yorkshire Police refused to comment on the latest allegations. Prosecutors have not been presented with a file for a charging decision.

Potted Potter: British duo continue fine comic tradition

Did you know there are 3407 pages in the complete Harry Potter saga?

In a feat of creative magic only possible to the finest performers, two-time Olivier award-nominated actors Daniel Clarkson and Jefferson Turner have pruned down and transfigured every page into Potted Potter, a blisteringly funny 75-minute play, keeping the gist of the stories intact, while adding a big dollop of their own absurd theatrics. Having already potted Pirates and Panto, ex-CBBC (Children's BBC) Dan and Jeff have again successfully created a kid friendly show that doesn't forget the grown ups in the audience, nay, even encourages them to join in the mirth. You don't even need to be a Potter fan, as plenty of others who are will surround you, and some with wands and in costume. In the tradition of the best of British comedy duos such as Morecambe and Wise, Mayall or and Edmondson, Clarkson and Turner craft a wonderful rapport with the audience through their storytelling and off-the-cuff remarks.

assortment of ingenious, if unsuitable, props and set, as they multi-role play all the characters, with unending energy at it's most silly and uproarious. They even succeed in boldly staging a game of Quidditch with the help of the audience, who are divided up into rival teams, without anyone becoming airborne. There are many priceless moments when things on stage don't quite go as rehearsed, resulting in much laughter from Dan and Jeff as well as the audience, and it is a delight to watch how they brilliantly ad lib their way out it.

The show managed to lure Monty Python's Eric Idle into the audience, and from his obvious enjoyment of the evening's playful antics it would be fair to say Clarkson and Turner continue to proudly fly high the flag of Great British comedy.

Dazzling new exhibit at the Getty showcases later works of JMW Turner

Extraordinarily inventive and enduringly influential, the great British artist J. M. W. Turner (1775–1851) produced many of his most important and famous pictures after the age of sixty, in the last fifteen years of his life.

A dazzling new show at the Getty Center demonstrates the ongoing radicalism of his technique and ever-original subject matter, bringing together over sixty key oil paintings and watercolors, making this major international loan exhibition is the first to focus on the unfettered creativity of Turner's final vears.

Despite his fame, wealth and ailing health, Turner was never content to rest on his reputation. He continued to travel extensively, depicted novel subject matter, experimented with different canvas formats, and pioneered free and spontaneous techniques in both oil and watercolor. He developed new ways of rendering atmospheric and coloristic effects to convey the awesome and emotive powers of the elements, pushing the boundaries of expression in any media he used.

Yet even as he experimented with form and technique, Turner maintained a firm commitment to narrative and meaning in his compositions. Paintings that at first sight appear to solely illustrate effects of light and color frequently provide opportunities for contemplation on humanity's role in history and place in the natural world.

Resisting the lure of romantic medieval subject matter favored by his contemporaries, Turner's later work reflects his interest in the sea, in dramatic or poetic landscapes and cityscapes such as he found in Continental Europe, and in current events, including the modern state of Italy, the legacy of the Napoleonic Wars, and spectacular fires at the Palace of Westminster and the Tower of London.

Turner employed gestural brushwork and quasi-abstract subject matter to explore states of consciousness and the emotional power of color. These last paintings shocked and mystified his audience, many of whom thought them the products of senility or madness. While such works often were misunderstood and mocked by contemporary critics, they are now appreciated as a coda to Turner's career, representing a synthesis of his innovations in technique, composition, and theme.

Turner died in 1851 at age seventy-six, leaving a trove of his work to the English nation. While popular and scholarly ideas about his work have evolved, he has emerged as a titan of nineteenth century art whose paintings retain their initial poetry and power.

Meet A Member: Leilani Dowding

Meet Leilani Dowding from Bournemouth. Leilani is a former Page 3 girl who in 1998 became the first woman of Asian descent to represent Britain in the Miss Universe pageant. Leilani moved to LA 8 years ago...to pursue 'anything rather than modeling'.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? I wanted to get out of England, for a fresh start. The weather here is incredible, it's English speaking, plus I had a lot of friends here already.

What one thing do you miss from home?

Roast Dinners, Yorkshire especially pudding

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Bournemouth?

Well aside from the sun and being able to sit at the beach happily in February, there isn't much difference for me as I have so many British friends here. However, I think that when you aren't around the fellow Brits the sense of humor and banter is the biggest difference.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? I love Vinotech on Melrose. Its wine and tapas and is delicious. I also LOVE Larchmont Village. The locals know it. but it's not somewhere that newbies often go to, everyone knows about Melrose, Robertson and Rodeo. It reminds me of Hampstead, with its unique boutiques and restaurants. There aren't any huge chains on the street, which I love.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? I'd say do it! But keep focused. The weather and outdoor living becomes distracting. But if you can stay focused you can literally achieve anything. You should also hit me up if you are looking to buy a house out here, or even to rent, as I'm in real estate and can answer all your questions.

If your your life was a TV show what would be the theme tune? Walking on Sunshine.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you ? Are you on the Internet? My real estate website is www.thedowdinggroup.com

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your ruler Mars sitting this next week in Pisces may dampen your ambition to start anything new. Also expect pressure to discard anything not working.

TAURUS: You should feel like you need to get moving and get ready for the spring season. It's possible you are not in the mood, however you will miss a lot of good stuff if you don't. The current planet line up can bring some old feelings.

GEMINI: What you can achieve this week is up to how willing you are to make the right connections. Holding on to what obviously has not worked is a good start. You will likely be feeling somewhat nostalgic for the past.

CANCER: If you continue to hold onto grudges you will win up on the wrong end of the stick. This week expect your temper to be sorely tested...but keep cool or you will be the loser. Hower you are due for a boost with the Sun in your cousin sign of Pisces.

LEO: The powerhouse planet Mars is in a difficult position for you in that you could clash with others with whom you normally live in harmony. Keep a low profile and remember to think before you speak. Rest some more than usual.

VIRGO: Any task you take on will be easier to deal within the next month and as this will last until the end of spring you will be wise to stay low key. You have to realize that any stress from you will cause unnecessary upset.

LIBRA: Travel is much on your mind and this can make you a bit antsy if you cannot get away right now. The clue is to make an effort to keep busy or finish up any unfinished business at home. You are due a very happy surprise early next month.

SCORPIO: Your powerful boss is visiting your cousin sign of Pisces this month and will be bring some emotional situation that is unfinished to a head. Since this is a healing time just go with the flow and it will come to light. Be positive.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is sitting in Leo until mid-year so be good as he will be watching and hoping you won't put that famous foot in your mouth. This can mean in any area and to anybody.

CAPRICORN: The Sun and Mars in Pisces will assist you to get the job done as this month is a great opportunity to complete an overdue project that has been long neglected – probably at home. Time to lift your spirits and do some cleaning out.

AQUARIUS: If life seems unfair right now it likely is; however as this is something we all go through from time to time it is best to accept it. This too shall pass and as you are just in the beginning of your New Year start off the way you mean to continue.

PISCES: Jupiter is assisting you all the way through mid year in order to get your life in order and to experience happier days. The past has been much on your mind but it's easier if you learn to live in the moment and things will work out quicker and with less stress.

The real drama behind the revolution....

Exclusive interview with author Donna Thornad and a review of her new novel about a heroine of the American revolution who is a playwright and actress

Rating: $\star \star \star$

"Most histories of the Revolution that mentioned the theater at all referred to Congress closing the playhouses," says Mistress Firebrand author Donna Thornad. "A few talked about British theatrical productions in New York and Philadelphia and Washington's fondness for camp theatricals at Valley Forge. It was Congress' ban that struck me as interesting, because no one bans something that isn't happening...a lot."

The Continental Congress ban on all theatrical entertainments in 1774 was motivated by Puritan moral disapproval of the stage. Politicians saw the stage was a threat to them, yet plays were still written by American playwrights distributed and in pamphlet form as political propaganda.

Mistress Firebrand is the third book in Thorland's Renegades of the Revolution series. Thorland gives the heroine the unusual occupation of being a playwright. It's surprising how she helps with the American Revolution. The book is filled with rich historical detail. The romance between her and a British officer grows slowly.

It's 1777 Manhattan, the British have taken over the town. Jennifer Leighton is a struggling playwright. Severin Devere is a British intelligence officer whose job is to ensure the safety of General John Burgoyne, not only a military man, but also a successful playwright. When a letter arrives from Jennifer for the general asking for his help as a playwright, Severin goes to investigate what she really wants. Severin is Native-American. half get Jennifer doesn't anywhere with the British and starts writing plays for the Rebels under the pen name Cornelia, in which she undermines the British Army. The pseudonymous Cornelia is put on the hanging list, bringing Severin into contact with Jennifer again. "The theater is barely mentioned in most histories of the American Revolution," savs Thornad. "But when you look closely at the participants, so many of them, particularly on the British side, had one foot in the world of the playhouse. Burgoyne wrote for Drury Lane. After the war Banastre Tarleton would become the lover of actress. novelist, and early feminist Mary Robinson. Robert Rogers, who is currently enjoying some notoriety on television as a villain in AMC's Turn wrote a play about Pontiac's Rebellion. People on both sides of the Atlantic from all walks of life frequented the playhouse. Trying to paint a picture of the Revolution without the theater is like trying to explain the 20th century without the cinema."

Mistress Firebrand is Thornad's third stand-alone book in the Renegades of the Revolution series. She also writes for television and is currently working on the WGN drama Salem. As a TV writer she spends time in Los Angeles, where the Huntington is a great resource, and Salem, where she has access to the Boston and Salem Athenaeums and the Boston Public Library. She says she has spent a lot of time looking at notices of theatrical performances

Brilliant Brits snag well deserved Short Film Oscar!

It was a proud moment for me when "The Phone Call," won the Oscar for best "live-action short film" at last Sunday night's awards-show extravaganza because I have met and known of some of the talent involved.

British creatives, James Lucas and Mat Kirkby's tearjerker tells the story of a woman working for a crisis centre phone help line who receives a call from a suicidal older man. It is an encounter that changes the lives of all of those involved in the call.

The film has an all-star cast with Golden Globe winner Sally Hawkins (Blue Jasmine) as the call center worker Heather and Academy Award winner Jim Broadbent (Iris) as the troubled caller Stan, give two of the year's most h e a r t - w r e n c h i n g performances. Other cast members include Edward Hogg as Daniel and Prunella Scales as Joan.

The short is written, directed and produced by Kirkby, with Lucas as co-writer. The film had already earned plaudits from the Tribeca Film Festival and other festivals from Seattle to Helsinki.

I asked James when I bumped into him at the Elton John AIDS Foundation Academy Awards Viewing Party in West Hollywood how he felt after his phenomenal achievement and he told Lady V shines at Elt's Oscar viewing extravaganza!

So many familiar faces attended the Elton John AIDS Foundation Academy Awards Viewing Party in West Hollywood, but I have to say, it was a pleasure catching up with Lady Victoria Hervey as I watched the Oscars ceremony from one of the best parties in town.

Lady V was sitting on the table next me and we got to have a good ol' catch up as the awards show rolled on huge screens above us.

Victoria had just appeared on the UK winter sports reality TV show Jump and coincidentally I had watched nearly every episode of her unbelievable talents and showmanship on YouTube as the weeks unfolded Who'd have thought Lady V had it in her... Well she certainly does! She was amazing on the show...and I couldn't wait to tell her. I think she was quite surprised and a little flattered perhaps (maybe?) by my compliments. She even smiled at me, something she hadn't done too often in the past.

Perhaps we're all growing up finally. Los Angeles can be a tough ol' town at times and people can get caught up in all sorts of BS... me included. But Lady Victoria shone on Oscar night, looking gorgeous in her revealing long black gown by Jean Fares Haute Couture.

Well done Lady V, I (finally) salute you!

On a touching note... It's nice to remember that we are not only at Elton's to watch the Oscars, but to raise money for the fight against HIV/AIDS. The party, hosted by Sir Elton and David Furnish just happened raise $5.8 million on Sunday night and as Sharon Osbourne quite rightly put it when she took to the stage at the event, she yelled out, "FK the Oscars let's raise money and save lives!" ... Well said Shazza, well said!

me, "this is the most unbelievable night of my life, I froze for second when they announced the winner and I was like, that's us!"

As he posed proudly clutching his Oscar next to sexy fashion designer Nikki Lund and myself James added, "I couldn't get up on stage fast enough but everything went in slow motion, I can't explain it. I still can't believe it.

"I am so thankful to everyone who became part of this film, you dream of these moments, but when they become real you know you're on the right track."

On the film's website, Mat Kirby said, "It was a real dream come true working with Jim and Sally. Jim is an Oscar-winning legend, and Sally had literally been filming with Woody Allen and Cate Blanchett a couple of weeks previously, so, as you can imagine, I was pinching myself rather a lot on set."

Keep the tissues handy when you watch "The Phone Call", because this beautifully made short packs a three-hour epic's worth of emotion into just 20 minutes...

Verdict: A well-deserved win!

Brits get hot in February; and our pub quiz is BACK!

February has certainly been the month for British people in LA didn't we do well at the Oscars?!

I had the pleasure of attending the British Consulate's Great British Film Reception honoring the British nominees and all the UK contributions to film and creative industries. It was a lovely afternoon at the London Hotel although the star of the event was definitely the Aston Martin Vanquish, which was proudly flying the British flag!

Turner at the Getty

The Getty Museum launched their highly anticipated 'J. M. W. Turner: Painting Set Free' the day after the Oscars - I do think the film Mr Turner was overlooked during this years award season, don't you? But at least we can enjoy this exhibition, which is a stunning collection of over 60 of Turner's key later-life paintings. The majority have been generously loaned by London's Tate Gallery. It was packed to the rafters on the opening night so I am already planning to return again to have a proper look. Make sure to visit the gift shop too as there are some really lovely purchases to be had. I am delighted with my Turner trivet and tea I highly cup! recommend you take advantage of this remarkable show by a great British artist being here - as it really is a beautiful collection and a real treat to have it on our doorstep. Admission is free, although parking is not cheap so carpool if you Visit can!

The Lost Knight

A new British pub called the Lost Knight has opened in Echo Park to rave reviews. The place boasts décor sourced from antique shops throughout Britain and has expansive tap room and lounge bar. I also hear that they specialize in artisan British brews and will have a fab cocktail menu focusing on classic London Dry and Old Tom Gins. Their Stargazy pie is already the talk of the town. Cricket World Cup 2015: Vaughan blasts 'predictable' England

Former captain Michael Vaughan says England are too predictable and need to adopt more aggressive tactics to succeed at the World Cup. After heavy defeats by co-hosts Australia and New Zealand, England won their first game of the tournament by beating Scotland by 119 runs in Pool A in midweek.

"After the [Scotland] game [captain] Eoin Morgan said they are flexible," Vaughan told BBC Radio 5 live.

"No, they're not. They are set in stone the way they are going to play."

England scored only 131 runs in the final 20 overs against Scotland and Vaughan wants to see Nottinghamshire's Alex Hales - the first England player to score a Twenty20 century - given a chance to bat at number three rather than Yorkshire's Gary Ballance, to improve the scoring rate.

Speaking on the Tuffers and Vaughan show, he added: "England are very, very predictable and if they're not careful this World Cup will be like most pundits have said with a predictable outcome.

"They will get to the quarter-finals - just - and then play a powerhouse like India at the MCG and it will be same old, same old, same as the last World Cup and same as the one before."

He said England were

FLYING THE FLAG: Scotland supporters see the funny side of their defeat to the English at the Hagley Oval in Christchurch struggling to keep up with other teams.

"One-day cricket has moved on. It's almost like they are swimming with armbands on," he said,

"Everyone else is taking on a different leap, with more power, more aggression and more freedom.

"I know it's hard when you've just been beaten badly. You just want to win, you want those two points and they got them and that's a huge credit.

"But they aren't going to go far if they don't change their approach, particularly with that number three. They need a Hales type to give it a good old launch."

England are fifth in their group after three matches with the top four going into the quarter-finals.

e Their next game is against Sri Lanka in Wellington on Saturday and former England spinner Phil Tufnell also wants to see a more positive approach.

"I just think there's muddled thinking about how to progress this England side in one-day cricket because's it changed vastly," Tufnell said.

"England haven't gone forward. I just don't see where they are moving forward. Where has all this preparation got them? It's got them nowhere.

"They just seem a little bit dull when they play one-day cricket."

England were not the only home nation side to be licking their wounds at the Cricket World Cup this week. Scotland found themselves stunned by an upstart Afghanistan team on Thursday – a shock defeat which will take time to get over, according to captain Preston Mommsen. Afghanistan recovered from 97-7 to overhaul 210 in the final over and deny Scotland a first World Cup win.

"It's a very difficult day," Mommsen told the BBC's Test Match Special. "There was a lot riding on this, a huge opportunity to get that first win.

"Regrettably, it wasn't to be. It will take a couple of days to get over it."

Scotland, who have never won a World Cup match, had earlier slumped to 144-8, only to be taken to their highest score in the tournament by a ninth-wicket partnership of 62 between Majid Haq and Alasdair Evans.

Guarin wonder strike ends Celtic's hopes

Celtic's European campaign was finally snuffed out in Milan on Thursday, as the Glasgow club succumbed to a stunning late strike from Inter's Fredy Guarin.

Any chance the Scottish champions had of progressing looked to have been extinguished when Virgil van Dijk was shown a first-half red card.

But Celtic did not crumble and remained in the tie until Guarin's fine finish.

Despite the disappointment of their exit, Ronny Deila can take comfort from his side's ability to compete with the Milanese over two legs, especially in the pulsating 2-2 first leg tie at Celtic Park.

Jason Denayer and Nir Bitton were d e f e n s i v e l y outstanding for the Hoops as Celtic spent most of the second half camped around their own box.

But neither they nor keeper Craig Gordon could resist Guarin's blistering drive from 22 yards.

Celtic's most famous victory on foreign soil was against Inter Milan in the 1967 European Cup final and hopes of a first win on Italian soil were high before Van Dijk's sending off.

However, there was a

In an open, end-to-end first half Gary Mackay-Steven had Celtic's best opportunity but struck his shot straight at Inter keeper Juan Pablo Carrizo.

Two Celtic penalty claims went unheeded by Slovakian referee Ivan Kruzliak, who took a harder line as Van Dijk caught Rodrigo Palacio from behind and shortly afterwards picked up a second booking for a foul on Icardi.

That changed the balance of the match, with Celtic forced largely onto the defensive as centre-half Denayer blocked Xherdan Shaqiri's goalbound shot and Gordon kept out Danilo D'Ambrosio on the rebound.

The Celtic goalkeeper also made an absolutely stunning one-handed save to claw away Mauro Icardi's header from a free-kick moments after Van Dijk's dismissal.

Celtic's organisation and stout defending meant the goalkeeper was largely unworked after the break until having to pick Guarin's shot out of the net, the moment the tie was sealed.

too many touches to cut inside Uysal from the right after being played in by Balotelli, and Gonen beat out the shot.

The home side played with more energy in the second period, as Liverpool the lost initiative in midfield - but it was the introduction of former Germany Under-21 midfielder Arslan, signed from Hamburg in January, that gave Besiktas the impetus to get back into the tie.

He gave Rodgers' side a warning with a stunning 35-yard shot that whizzed inches wide of Mignolet's left-hand post.

Liverpool's goalkeeper had no chance when Arslan curled a beautiful shot into the top corner from the edge of the penalty area, after Tore's low ball from the left had been flicked on by Ba.

The former Chelsea striker, having played a part in that goal, should have sent Besiktas through in injury time at the end of 90 minutes, but slammed a shot against the underside of the bar from four vards after Uysal had glanced on a Tore corner.

ΤΟΤΤΕΝΗΑΜ΄ s profligacy in front of goal and shakiness at the back cost them dearly in Florence on Thursday night, as the hosts ended the North London side's European campaign with an efficient 2-0 victory and a 3-1 aggregate win. Mario Gomez raced clear after a second-half mistake by Federico Fazio and slid the ball under Hugo Lloris.

Chelsea loanee Mohamed Salah sealed the win after a blunder by Jan Vertonghen.

Spurs needed to score in Florence, but were unable to make a breakthrough, with striker Roberto Soldado golden wasting а first-half opportunity.

The Spanish striker was played clean through by Erik Lamela's swept pass after Spurs broke quickly from a corner, but he scuffed his attempt to square the ball to Nacer Chadli and keeper Neto gathered.

Pochettino brought on Kane - who had scored six goals in his five previous games - and the in-form striker almost made an immediate impact, but he was denied a goal after Ben Davies, who squared the ball to him, was correctly flagged offside.

The result is a blow for Spurs before their biggest game of the season so far - the Carling Cup final against Chelsea on Sunday.

Toffees cruise into last

Romelu Lukaku scored two goals to reach a total of five in the tie as Everton cruised past Young Boys to progress to the Europa League last 16.

The Belgian striker followed up his hat-trick in the 4-1 win in Switzerland with two more after Sekou Sanogo had given the visitors the lead.

Kevin Mirallas then made it 3-1 before the break as Everton ensured a safe passage into Friday's last-16 draw.

They are now the only British side remaining in the Europa League.

The Merseysiders are flying the flag after Liverpool, Tottenham and Celtic all exited the competition on Thursday. A similar fate was never likely to befall Roberto Martinez's side after their exploits in Bern last week but a slow start to this encounter gave Young Boys a glimmer of hope and left the Goodison Park crowd frustrated. It was the visitors who took the early lead after Tim Howard saved Milan Vilotic's header from Raphael Nuzzolo's shot and Sanogo reacted quickest to put in the rebound.

It could have been for worse Everton moments later with Scott Sutter heading against the bar from Gonzalo Zarate's corner.

However, the Toffees were soon level after Young Boys goalkeeper Marco Wolfli fouled Steven Naismith in the area, following Lukaku's delightful back heel.

Lukaku confidently slotted home the penalty and Everton soon had the lead on the night as the striker netted his 15th of campaign. the The Belgian volleyed home after he had been picked out by full back Luke Garbutt.

Darron Gibson, who was making his first start since November, set up number three before the break with a slide-rule pass that found Mirallas, who coolly sidefooted home.

Penalty heartbreak brings end to Europa campaign

Liverpool lost their first penalty European shootout Thursday night as Besiktas knocked them out of the Europa League.

When centre-back Dejan Lovren missed the crucial spot-kick after Tolgay Arslan's 20-yard curler forced extra-time in the round of 32 second leg it marked the end of a sad return to the site of one of Liverpool's greatest triumphs – the city on the Bosphorus where they beat AC Milan to win the 2005 Champions League final.

Things might have different been had Liverpool made their first half superiority tell, but after Daniel Sturridge's shot was beaten out by Cenk Gonen Besiktas began assert to themselves and and almost sealed the tie in 90 minutes as Demba Ba hit the crossbar.

BESIKTAS.....1 LIVERPOOL.....0 (a.e.t. agg: 1-1) Besiktas win on pens, 5-4

Slaven Bilic's side deserved to go through after recovering from a dreadful opening 45 minutes to dominate the game, meaning that Liverpool are left with the FA Cup as their last realistic hope of a trophy this season.

Liverpool were missing a number of injured key players - including captain Steven Gerrard, vice-captain Iordan Henderson, centre-back Mamadou Sakho and playmaker Philippe Coutinho.

But they should have made more of a number of first-half chances, as Raheem Sterling had a shot beaten awav somewhat theatrically by keeper Cenk Gonen, then saw a shot on the turn

And it's all over for Spurs, too deflected wide by Necip Uysal after Alberto Moreno and Daniel Sturridge had combined to set him up.
