Robbers net up to £200m in audacious gem heist

■ Meticulously planned robbery in Hatton Garden may be Britain's biggest-ever

LONDON'S famed jewelry district Hatton Garden was left stunned this week by a daring raid that may have netted in excess of £200m in precious gems.

In what may ultimately become Britain's biggest-ever heist, the robbers concocted a sophisticated scheme in which they appear to have started a major underground fire at Holborn tube station before the raid to disable alarm and communications equipment.

Power and phone lines went down leaving 5,000 homes and businesses without electricity during what investigators said was an electrical fire.

The gang is understood to have broken into offices above the Hatton Garden Safe Deposit company before cutting through the roof, abseiling down a lift shaft, and using heavy equipment to break through 18inch-thick metal doors to access the vaults.

They managed to disarm the sophisticated alarm and steal the CCTV system's hard drive before spending the Bank weekend Holiday drilling into up to 70 security boxes and plundering contents.

The gang was almost caught out when an alarm went off on Friday afternoon, but a security guard checked the main of the vault. doors and left "because he didn't get paid enough" to investigate further.

'dust and debris'

A Metropolitan police spokesperson described the "chaotic" scenes that greeted officers when they entered the vault of Hatton Garden Safety Deposit Ltd on Tuesday, discovering scores of the empty boxes "strewn" over the floor.

Detective Chief heading the investigation into the theft, told reporters that forensic experts found no sign of forced entry on the outside of the building, which houses a of other number businesses and has a communal entrance.

The Met spokesperson said the unidentified thieves used a heavy duty Hilti DD350 drill to bore holes in the thick two-metre re-enforced concrete wall

A local jeweller said that residents had been prepared for the sound of drilling after many received a letter informing them of works related to an ongoing construction project on the City's Underground.

Officers arriving on Tuesday found a vault "covered in dust and debris," with the floor "strewn with discarded safety deposit boxes," Det Chf Insp Johnson said.

Scotland Inspector Paul Johnson of confirmed that an as the Flying Squad, which many as 70 safe deposit boxes had been opened. The thieves had also discarded "numerous" power tools, including an angle grinder, concrete drills and crowbars, some of which are believed to cont. on page 7, col. 1

This Week at Westminster

Labour 'too weak' to handle SNP alliance claim nervous Tories

NICOLA Sturgeon would be the dominant player in any post-election alliance between Labour and the SNP, the Conservatives claimed this week as their opponents inched ahead in the polls.

Chancellor George
Osborne said the SNP leadership is "much stronger" than "weak"
Labour leader Ed
Miliband and that Ms
Sturgeon would be
"running the government" in any pact between the two parties.

In his starkest warning yet on the potential influence of the SNP, Mr Osborne spoke of a "deeply disturbing" threat to the UK as the main parties clashed over the likelihood of an anti-Tory alliance in the event of a hung parliament.

A minority Labour government dependent on SNP MPs for its survival would be forced to make policy concessions to the Nationalists in order to remain in office, the Chancellor said.

Mr Osborne stepped up the Tory attack on the prospect of such a pact after Ms Sturgeon, who replaced Alex Salmond as First Minister of Scotland in November, offered a new deal to Mr Miliband to be part of an anti-austerity alliance of Labour and the SNP to "lock David Cameron out of Downing Street".

Meanwhile, Labour's shadow chief secretary to the Treasury, Chris Leslie, said the SNP was "playing political games" and wanted the Conservatives to win the election so that the Nationalists could force a second referendum. Mr Leslie said the SNP "believes in totally different things" to Labour.

Ms Sturgeon issued her fresh appeal to the Labour leader after she strenuously denied making comments contained in a leaked memo at the weekend that Mr Miliband was "not prime ministerial material".

Liberal Democrat Scottish Secretary Alistair Carmichael has confirmed that the leaked memo, which contained an account of a private meeting between Ms Sturgeon and the French ambassador, was written in the Scotland Office.

SITTING PRETTY? new polls suggest Scotland's First Minister Nicola Sturgeon is poised to hold the balance of power following the General Election on May 7th in January, the company said.

The poll put support for Labour on 35 percent, up from 33 percent since the firm's last poll on April 3, while the Conservatives dipped 1 percentage point to 31 percent.

Support for the anti-EU United Kingdom Independence Party fell 3 percentage points to 15 percent, while the Liberal Democrats were unchanged at 9 percent, and the Scottish Nationalists and Greens had 4 percent each.

The poll surveyed 1,111 people on Wednesday and Thursday. Miliband announced on

VICTORY AT HAND? Ed Miliband has edged ahead of David Cameron in the personal approval ratings

Wednesday that he wanted to scrap tax rules that allow wealthy individuals to legally reduce the amount of tax they pay on money earned overseas.

The Survation poll found 59 percent of respondents supported the idea.

A separate poll, by Yougov for The Sun newspaper on Wednesday, gave Labour a one percentage point lead over the Conservatives.

Opposition edge into four point lead

IN THE CLEAREST sign yet that the upcoming General Election will bring about a change of government in Westminster, the Labour Party has taken a small but possibly decisive lead in the opinion polls.

With less than a month to go before the May 7th election, the survey by polling firm Survation and conducted for the Daily Mirror newspaper, put Labour four points head of the Tories, with Labour leader Ed Miliband also overtaking Prime Minister David Cameron in terms of net personal approval ratings.

It was the first time Miliband had outpolled Cameron since Survation began asking voters about personal approval ratings

Royal relief as judge orders Andrew sex allegations struck from court record

- Allegations a 17-year-old was forced to sleep with Prince Andrew erased
 - Virginia Roberts had attempted to join lawsuit against the U.S. government

Allegations that a 17-year-old was forced to have sex with Prince Andrew, which prompted a crisis at Buckingham Palace earlier this year, have been removed from a federal court case by a judge in the US.

Judge Kenneth Marra ordered Virginia Roberts's accusations about Andrew, the Duke of York, to be struck from the record and denied her attempt to join a lawsuit against Jeffrey Epstein, a friend of the prince and a convicted sex offender.

"At this juncture in the proceedings, these lurid details are unnecessary," Marra wrote in his order, issued at the US district court in southern Florida on Tuesday morning. "These unnecessary details shall be stricken."

'immaterial'

Andrew and Buckingham Palace vehemently deny Roberts's allegations.

Marra made no ruling or statement about the veracity of Roberts's allegations. He said the "factual details regarding with whom and where" she had sex were "immaterial and impertinent" to her argument that she should be allowed to join the lawsuit.

However, Marra noted that Roberts may yet appear as a witness when the long-running case finally goes to trial.

Brad Edwards, an attorney for Roberts, said in a statement that her legal team "absolutely respect" the judge's ruling, which had recognised Roberts's right to take part in the case as a witness. Roberts said: "I'm happy to get to participate in this important case."

A Buckingham Palace official said the Duke had been informed of the Florida court's ruling and was spending this week in private, before resuming his schedule of public engagements next week.

intense pressure

His spokesman declined to comment further but referred back to repeated palace denials of Roberts claims, including a 3 January statement that "it is emphatically denied that the Duke of York had any form of sexual contact or relationship with Virginia Roberts. Any claim to the contrary is false and without foundation."

Five court filings in the Florida case, including a document filed on December 30 last year in which Andrew was first accused, were immediately sealed from the public.

The filing at that time placed Andrew under intense pressure, forcing him to return to his home at Windsor from Verbier in Switzerland where he was on a skiing holiday with a party including his daughter Princess Beatrice.

The duke only resumed public engagements at the World Economic Forum in Davos in late January where he was pursued by reporters and used a short speech "to reiterate and to reaffirm" the existing emphatic Buckingham Palace denials of what courtiers described as "lurid and deeply personal" claims.

plea agreement

Buckingham Palace broke with convention to directly address the sex claims, and Andrew approved a statement which vehemently denied "any form of sexual contact or relationship with Virginia Roberts". It continued: "The allegations made are false and without foundation."

Roberts, who is referred to in the case only as Jane Doe 3, and a fourth woman were seeking to join two other alleged victims of Epstein in suing the US government over a plea deal that federal prosecutors struck with the hedge fund tycoon in 2008.

Under the plea Epstein agreement, guilty pleaded to prostitution soliciting from an underage girl. He received an 18-month jail sentence and served 13 months before being released. He remains a registered sex offender in Florida and the US Virgin Islands, where he lives on a private island.

The agreement was criticised as being extraordinarily lenient by attorneys for a series of women who allege that Epstein sexually abused them when they were under the age of consent. The FBI, which took over the investigation into Epstein, said it had identified dozens of potential victims.

Roberts has for years alleged that she travelled around the world with Epstein as his "sex slave" and was made to have sex with some of his influential associates, including prominent politicians and royalty.

defamation lawsuit

Miss Roberts now faces legal action for defamation by another high-profile target of her allegations.

Alan Dershowitz, the prominent US lawyer whose clients have included Mike Tyson and OJ Simpson, has said that he will pursue a defamation case against Roberts and her legal team.

HEAVY PRICE: Virginia Roberts, pictured with the prince, is now facing a defamation suit from high-powered attorney Alan Dershowitz

Mr Dershowitz, who was named in the same court filings, has said that he will pursue a defamation suit and hoped that Ms Roberts would be jailed for perjury if she repeated the allegations under oath.

"I'm confident that at the end I'll be vindicated and everybody will understand this is a completely made-up story," he told the New York Daily News.

Could black gold make Gatwick the new Dallas?

■ Over £300bn worth of oil 'discovered' in West Sussex site has potential to be "world class resource"

WEST SUSSEX could become the Texas of the counties home following the discovery of a significant oil field to close Gatwick Airport.

The exploration company UK Oil & Gas Investments made the bombshell claim this week, saying analysis conducted on the site means the site could yield up to 158 million barrels of oil per square mile. The company's licenses cover 55 square miles of the Weald Basin, a region spanning Kent, Sussex, Surrey Hampshire.

This suggests that the site could hold over 8.6 billion barrels of oil - just under a fifth of the amount that has been pumped out of the North Sea in the past 40

At the current oil price of around $58 a barrel, the amount of oil UK Oil Gas Investments claims is lying under the West Sussex countryside

NOT QUITE READY FOR TAKE-OFF: the low price of oil means that Gatwick's oil potential may not be unlocked for some years to come.....

would be worth just $500bn, under £336bn. However, the company cautioned that it may only be able to extract a fraction of those reserves from the site.

'complicating factor'

A number of industry experts have expressed scepticism about the size of the discovery.

Mike Jakeman, a global commodities analyst at Economist Intelligence Unit, said: "The bargain price of oil at the moment means that only the cheapest oilfields are being exploited.

"Higher-cost ventures, such as Canada's oil sands and off the coast of Brazil, are economically viable at the current price level. And this discovery in the UK would almost certainly fall into this category, regardless of whether there was the additional complicating factor of fracking involved."

Stephen Sanderson, the chief executive of UKOG, said that his company had drilled the deepest well in the region in 30 years. It has also been able to call on cutting-edge technology and data interpretation techniques. This had "comprehensively change understanding of the area's potential resources".

He added: "Appraisal drilling and well testing will be required to prove its commerciality, but this 'Weald hybrid play' has the potential for significant daily oil production."

UKOG said the area Gatwick. sometimes dubbed "Britain's Dallas", had the potential to be a "world class potential resource".

News of the discovery has raised concern among environmentalists. Dr Doug Parr, the UK chief scientist Greenpeace, said: "To gleefully rub your hands at a new fossil fuel discovery you need to turn the clock back to the 19th century and ignore everything we have learnt about climate change since.

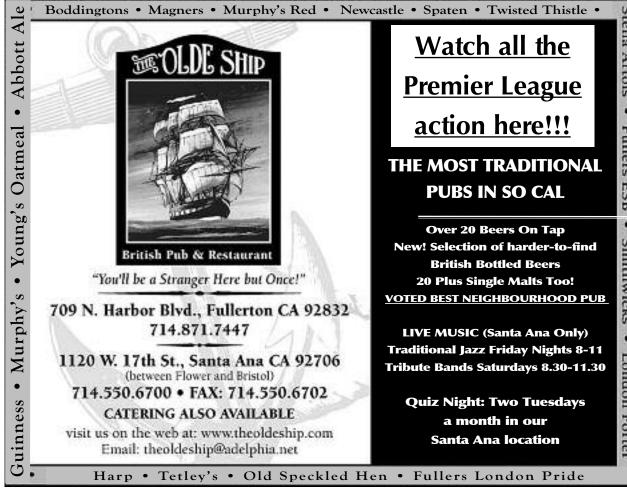

'alarm'

"We already have more than enough coal, oil and gas reserves to fry the planet. Dotting the English countryside with drilling rigs and pipelines to squeeze the last drop of oil out of Britain doesn't make any sense."

Brenda Pollack, a Friends of the Earth South East campaigner, said: "The prospect of dirty oil extraction in southern England will greatly alarm local communities and put fracking firmly on the region's election agenda."

Shares in UK Oil & Gas Investments surged as much as 325.3pc to 4.7p on the news amid ferocious demand for the stock from private

96 year-old sex offender becomes Britain's oldest serving prisoner

A 96-year-old man has become the oldest serving prisoner in the British Isles after he was jailed for a series of sexual offences.

Gaston John Pinsard was sentenced to 18 months after admitting nine charges of indecent assault in which he attacked two young girls in the 1950s and 1960s.

He was first questioned by Guernsey Police officers last year have been used to drill through the concrete wall.

During the press conference Det Chf Insp Johnson emphatically refused to answer many questions concerning the boxes, telling reporters that the forensic examination of the crime site was still on going.

"Officers are in the process of identifying the owners of the safety deposit boxes and as we do, we are contacting them to take statements and find out what has been stolen," a later statement read.

The details come amid claims that premiership footballers are among the victims of the heist, believed to be the largest ever successfully carried off in the UK, and further speculation surrounding the perpetrators.

inside information

Spokesman John O'Connor suggested that the robbers would have likely needed inside information to carry out the elaborate raid – and said the high degree of organisation is a clue to who committed the and immediately confessed to the abuse.

Since then Pinsard has been on bail but has now been sent to Les Nicolles prison on Guernsey for what Judge Russell Finch described as "serious, troubling offences" with "distressing and unpleasant facts".

The Prison Officers Association told Sky News they believed it made Pinsard the oldest serving prisoner in the

"If you know how to bypass all the security devices you're going to have a detailed layout of the whole of the business so clearly they got that from somebody on the inside," the ex-detective said

Barry Phillips, former operational head of the Flying Squad, said it was "inconceivable" that the gang did not have inside information.

He said: "The raid was well planned and well executed. They must have had inside information to be able to get into a premises like that, to know the routes, the vulnerabilities, the lift shaft, and to defeat a state-of-the-art security system."

Mr Phillips said police would never know the true value of what was stolen due to the inherently secretive nature of the safety deposit box industry.

He added: "A number of people use them to hide their assets from family or for tax purposes or because they are hiding ill-gotten gains."

Former Flying Squad chief Roy Ramm said he "would not be surprised" if the stolen gems were worth £200 million, British Isles.

The Guernsey court heard how Pinsard touched the first girl on numerous occasions between 1951 and 1955, and the second between 1964 and 1969.

The girls were both between five and nine years old when the offences took place.

The assaults all took place at his home address in St Sampson's, Guernsey.

although he said the figure would probably never be declared in full.

He told BBC Radio 4's Today programme: "There's a sort of old-fashioned audacity about it. The amount of money and the goods that are taken is never fully revealed... and there's a good chance that not everybody would declare."

Local jewellers said the victims would be small, independent business and workshop owners who used the boxes to store their stock overnight and who did not have their own safes.

Michael Miller, a jeweller from Knightsbridge, London, faces the prospect of losing up to £50,000 as the contents of his safety box were not insured. But he said some boxes would be worth several million pounds.

"I have a collection of watches I was going to give my son and that is irreplaceable," he said. "I bought an IWC GST Aquatimer on the day my son was born and I was going to give it to him when he turns 18. They don't make them anymore."

OLD LAG: Gaston John Pinsard of Guernsey said he was ashamed of himself and described himself as a "filthy devil".

Pinsard told police he knew what he was doing was wrong but he had urges he could not resist. He said he was ashamed of himself and described himself as a "filthy devil".

Pinsard's legal representative told the court on Thursday about his own horrific childhood, which included being sexually assaulted at Haut de la Garenne boy's school in Jersey where he was born.

The judge said he had no choice but to impose a custodial sentence and said he had considered that Pinsard may die or become ill while in prison, despite being in good health for a 96-year-old.

Drug resistant superbugs 'could kill 80,000', government warns

Up to 80,000 people could die in an outbreak of a drug-resistant infection because of new superbugs, a Government forecast has warned.

The report estimates that a total of 200,000 people would be expected to be infected by a widespread bacterial blood infection that could not be treated effectively with existing drugs.

Over the next two decades the number of infections complicated by superbugs are expected to rise significantly, according to a Cabinet Office document.

The National Risk Register Civil Emergencies, which provides guidance on potential threats such as terror, flu and natural disasters, notes that routine medical treatments could become "high-risk" because of the growing resistance to antibiotics. The report states: "Much of modern medicine (for example, organ transplantation, bowel surgery and some cancer treatments) may become unsafe due to the risk of infection. In pandemics would become more serious without effective treatments."

The assessment, continues: "The numbers of infections complicated by AMR (antimicrobial resistance) are expected to increase markedly over the next 20 years.

"If a widespread outbreak were to occur, we could expect around 200,000 people to be affected by a bacterial blood infection that could not be treated effectively with existing drugs, and around 80,000 of these people might die."

Brits telling great stories: the classical past comes to life at the Getty Villa this weekend

GLORIOUS SETTING: the Getty Villa is modeled closely after a first-century Roman country house, the Villa dei Papiri in Herculaneum, Italy.

■ Master storytellers Hugh Lupton and Daniel Morden return with captivating tales of Ancient Greece

Imagine being transported back to ancient Greece through the power of suggestion alone.

Hugh Lupton and Daniel Morden, British storytellers renowned for their passionate, evocative and accessible retellings of Greek myths will return to the Getty Villa, bringing these ancient stories to life on April 10th, 11th and 12th at the Getty Villa Auditorium.

Drawing inspiration from the current exhibition Dangerous Perfection: Funerary Vases from Southern Italy, Lupton and Morden will animate the images from the Apulian vases in the exhibition, such as the depiction of

CAPTIVATING: Hugh Lupton and Daneil Morden will weave some magical tales at the Getty Villa this weekend

Jason, the leader of the Argonauts and his hunt for the Golden Fleece. Lupton and Morden last appeared together at the Getty Villa in 2007 to great critical acclaim. They have performed all over the world on the radio, at festivals, at schools and in theatres, and their work as a pair includes the celebrated retelling of the Greek epics, as well as a book titled Demeter and Persephone. At the Villa they will recount "The Calydonian Boar-hunt," a Greek episode of heroism told and re-told throughout antiquity that follows the great Meleager who sets out to slay a monstrous boar in the forest. A tale of revenge, fate and c o m p e t i t i o n , appropriate for ages 12 and over, the moving story also touches on love and disappointment.

These myths still have the power to charm and chill us today, remaining part of our consciousness millennia after they were first created.

Master Storytellers with Hugh Lupton and Daniel Morden scheduled for Friday, April 10, at 8:00 p.m.; Saturday, April 11, 2015, at 8:00 p.m.; and Sunday, April 12, at 2:00 p.m. Tickets are $12 and are available by calling 310-440-7300 visiting www.getty.edu. Meet A Member: Andrew de Burgh Meet Andrew de Burgh from Berkshire, England who moved to LA 3 years ago to pursue acting and filmmaking.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I came with my parents to Orange County in 2006 when my Dad was offered a job out here. I finished two years of high school in the OC, then did my studies at Pepperdine University then decided to make the move to LA after to pursue acting directing. Los Angeles is the Film and TV capital of the world and there is no better place for me. But the traffic definitely gets on my nerves!

What one thing do you miss from home?

I miss taking walks in the English countryside and pretending I'm a Hobbit in the Shire.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus England?

It's completely different world to be honest. The pace of life is probably the biggest difference.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

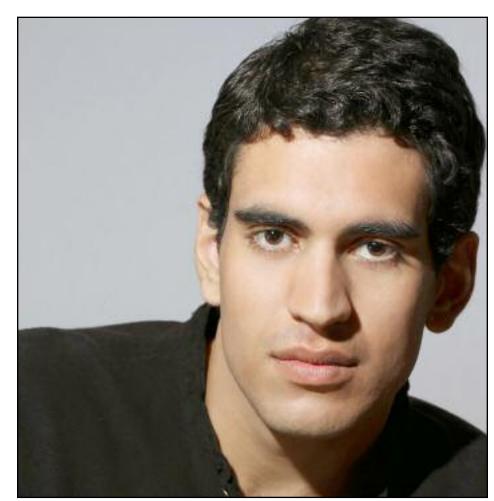

It's not exactly hidden, but Urth Caffe on Melrose is one of my favorite places. Partly because I love the TV show 'Entourage' (many scenes were filmed there) but the Green Tea Boba drink they serve is phenomenal. And Natalee Thai Robertson Boulevard is mv favorite restaurant in LA. Check it out if you're in the mood!

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Go for it! Sometimes in life, it's important to throw yourself in the deep end and just make it happen.

If your your life was a TV show what would be the theme tune and whv?

The theme tune would be "Hard work conquers all'. Though there are other factors that dictate success in life. I believe that hard work should be emphasized more than others simply because it is one of the only things

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: With all planets possible lined up in your life there are good and no-so-good outcomes possible. Those that are positive will show up this month; the rest is out of your control, so no need to worry.

TAURUS: On the upside you can expect a call from someone from the past and this time you need to be upfront, honest and speak very frankly about your feelings. You will likely want a holiday soon...wait until mid May.

GEMINI: The sun in your cousin sign of Aries will bring out your mellow side and it favors getting a handle on any part of life that you have not resolved. Be open as you can be as this is the right time to deal with it. CANCER: The consequences will be long-reaching for you if you do not reconcile with one whom you have had a longstanding dispute. The self-deceiving Neptune in your cousin's sign of Pisces can make you somewhat melancholy for a few days this week.

LEO: This is a time for the inner artist to show him/herself for some of you who are not participating in life as you know you can. This month could end on a note of self pity if you don't take action now.

VIRGO: It's time for a trip, and short or long, near or far matters not as you benefit from the change of scenery. Just make sure you wait until mid-month as the planets will be better lined up then for you.

LIBRA: One of the universe's big beasts, Uranus, is in your opposite sign of Aries right now so first do not travel before end of the month if possible. If someone asks for financial help be sure you get the repayment terms in writing.

SCORPIO: Jupiter in your career and power area is moving forward now after several months sleeping so don't plan too far forward on any plans you thought you had. Expect all sorts of opportunities to come into your life.

SAGITTARIUS: If you are worried about finances and are not doing anything to change the situation then expect to feel crazy. The good news is that Jupiter is going to start revving up his engines this coming week. CAPRICORN: You may be feeling a bit restless or not in balance. This due to your boss Saturn in the fire sign of Sagittarius. He is letting you know something in your life is out of balance. Expect to be busier than usual this coming month.

AQUARIUS: Your judgment in a long-term situation is way off and if you follow the same path you did recently expect nothing but a waste of time. Be cool and wait to see how you can change your attitude and THEN you will change the outcome.

PISCES: Your ruler Neptune is in your life for several years ahead and at times you will be both emotional and angry. This is merely a passing away of the old feelings you have lived with all your life. It's time to release and move on now.

Mr Campion's Fox: in Margery's footsteps

Exclusive interview with author Mike Ripley and a review of the latest Mr Campion mystery Rating: ***

"In 2012 I was given the chance to complete a Mr Campion novel left unfinished on the death of Margery Allingham's widower, Youngman Carter, in 1969," says author Mike Ripley. Youngman Carter had written three Campion novels after his wife's death.

"The reception for that book, Mr Campion's Farewell, from dedicated Allingham fans was so kind and so enthusiastic that I embarked on Mr Campion's Fox", says Ripley. "It features much-loved Allingham characters but is an entirely new story of my own making. Albert Campion was one of the great detectives of the Golden Age of English crime-writing in the 1930s and ranks alongside Hercule Poirot and Lord Peter Wimsey in the pantheon of famous fictional sleuths."

Mr Campion's Fox is a welcome return to classic British detective novels. The book is humorous, witty and very engaging. The wry British humour in the dialogue will make you laugh. If you love old movies, think of the repartee beween Nick and Nora Charles in The Thin Man.

In Mr Campion's Fox, Albert Campion has retired. That doesn't the Danish ambassador asking him to keep an eye on his daughter's boyfriend Frank Tate. Because Albert's retired, he has his son Rupert follow Frank. However, Albert keeps an eye on his son to make sure nothing happens to him. The ambassador's daughter disappears and Frank is found dead. Rupert and his wife Perdita go to stay with their friends the Sandymans, where ambassador's daughter was an au pair. Can Rupert become the detective his father is?

"I was introduced to the detective stories of Margery Allingham in 1967, when aged 14 and living in Cambridge, by a philosophy lecturer at the university insisted I read them," says Ripley. "More than 40 years after I last saw him, I was able to track down that philosopher, now a retired professor, and invite him to the launch of Mr Campion's Fox in Cambridge."

Margery Allingham wrote first Campion book in the series, The Crime at Black Dudley, in 1929. In that first book, Albert Campion is not a main character. In second novel, Mystery Mile, Albert takes on a much bigger Allingham's role. American publishers preferred this character above the others.

Allingham wrote 17 novels and over 20 short stories featuring Campion. After Allingham's death, her husband Philip Youngman Carter completed Allingham's novel Cargo of Eagles (published 1968), and two further Campion books: Mr Campion's Farthing and Campion's Falcon.

Ripley's 21st published book. He may be best known for the Fitzroy Maclean Angel comedy crime novel series, with a roguish hero who is honest mostly drives a de-licensed London black cab. "Early fans of the Angel novels, in the 1990s, were Lord Ted Willis, the creator of Dixon of Dock Green, who took me for many splendid lunches in the House of Lords, and Pierce Brosnan, who went on to play James Bond," says Ripley, "and who invited me on to the set of the film Tomorrow Never Dies."

Mr Campion's Fox is

Ripley is based in East Anglia. He was born in West Riding of Yorkshire.

Love blooming again for Miranda and Orlando?

British film hunk Orlando Bloom is set to rekindle his romance with s u p e r m o d e l ex-wife Miranda Kerr, my sources tell me....

Friends claim the gorgeous couple have grown close again two years after they reportedly split over Orlando's partying...

Ooo-er!

One friend said Orlando and former Victoria's Secret babe Miranda looked like a happy couple during a day at the beach with four year-old son Flynn recently.

The pal explained: "They get on better now than any time since they first got married.

"They chilled and had fun, just like any other young family.

"They spent the day together and enjoyed each other's company.

"It made them realise they still have feelings for each other."

Orlando and Aussie Miranda's reunion in Malibu came just weeks after speculation of their revitalised romance mounted after they left the Vanity Fair Oscars after party in Los Angeles together in late February.

The couple, who have not divorced, also spent Christmas together in Britain, with Miranda branding the experience "magical."

A source close to the pair said they were keen to remain good friends for the sake of Flynn, but that romance could now blossom again.

Miranda is said to have avoided dating anyone else. She has denied a fling with pop star Justin Bieber that saw Orlando almost come to blows with the pop brat.

They are now rumoured to be considering renewing their wedding vows this July, on what would be their fifth wedding anniversary.

Will this new situation of friendly hook-ups convince them to call off their divorce?

Or have Orlando and Miranda found the arrangement that works out best for them?

Either way, you can't imagine either of this lovely couple being left on the 'elf' for long....!

Splitsville for Garfield and Stone?

British star Andrew Garfield and U.S actress Emma Stone are reportedly taking a break from their three-year romance, according to internet gossips.....

Long distance appears to be the super-villain in this particular saga...

Really?

According to a People magazine source the "Amazing Spider-Man" co-stars are said to be going on a honey hiatus while Garfield shoots Martin Scorsese's historical drama "Silence" in Taiwan through May, and while the Oscar-nominated actress finishes production on "Aloha" in Los Angeles - at least that's the story several news outlets were peddling this week.

"Emma understands his work anxieties - it's why she originally pulled out of 'Cabaret' last year and only did it this year - but they're taking a break from seeing each other," an unnamed source said. "They're both a slave to their schedules. This time last year they were privately discussing marriage."

Despite being in relationship limbo, there is still reason to believe that the duo will work things out once they are in the same place again."

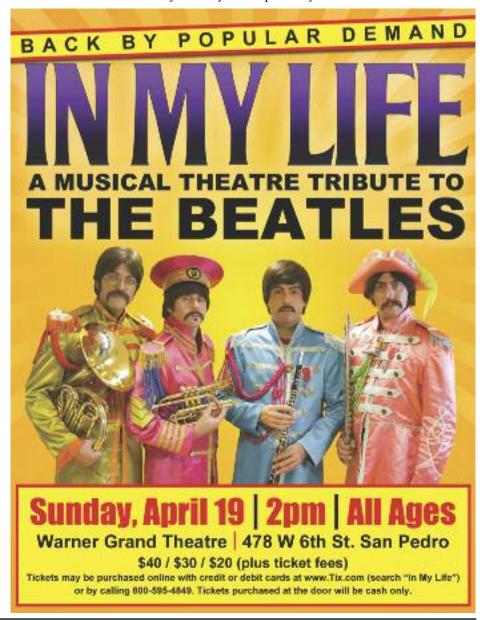

"It's one of those situations where only Andrew and Emma quite know if they'll pick up where they left off or they've separated. They are just separated for work," another source added.

The couple ignited rumors of a split after Stone appeared at numerous awards shows earlier this year sans Garfield, who was born in Los Angeles but raised in Epsom, Surrey.

Another insider confirms that the split is temporary and not an official breakup.

I suspected this week would be fairly eventful due to the Blood Moon eclipse last weekend - I find every eclipse always seems to cause a shake up so the colorful red tinge probably only adds to it.

It started off with a 3.1 tremor over in Granada Hills - then we woke up to read the news that one Brits in LA member and regular pub quizzer had gone off to fight against ISIS in Syria! Whether we agree with his decision or not I am sure you will join me in wishing him a safe passage and return.

Boarding Victoria

Monday was eventful in a very pleasant way - It was a day we at Brits in LA had been looking forward to for months - a few of us went along to Long Beach fundraising for luncheon aboard Cunard's Queen Victoria for HMS Victory. She was kindly donated to the National Museum of the Royal Navy back in 2012, but sadly is not in the best shape and therefore needs our help in raising money to restore her - I was lucky enough as a teen to pay a visit to the HMS Victory at her Portsmouth home. So I can honestly vouch for beauty worthiness in preserved for the next generation. Victory was Admiral Nelson's flagship at the pivotal Battle of Trafalgar in 1805 and also the place where he died from his wounds with victory secured. Launched in 1765, at 250

That evening we were back at the Pikey for Pub Quiz - my team won again! Fix! I hear you cry - but I swear it isn't so. So if you are feeling lucky, come and knock us off our pedestal - I promise we aren't particularly clever as we only beat the team behind us by about half a point! Don't be shy about coming alone, just drop me a line at BritsinLA@ gmail.com and I will put you on a team - we are back on April 21st with Sandro Monetti as our quizmaster - visit our website Britsin.LA for all the details on this and all our other events.

My sister Sally is in town for a flying visit - so I get to see LA through the eyes of a visitor and fall in love all over downpour we had earlier this week - simple things like turning off your taps whilst you brush your teeth or not flushing if it is only a wee, can make all the difference!

If you have any good conservation tips you can share them with us on Twitter @BritsinLA

It's a good time to face our rivals, claims Kompany

■ City skipper upbeat, despite poor run of results that sees team slump to fourth

Vincent Kompany says it is a good time for Manchester City to play local rivals United, despite being overtaken by Louis van Gaal's side in the table.

City's recent record of three defeats in five games, coupled with United's five successive wins, has seen the champions slip from second to fourth.

Before Sunday's meeting, the City skipper said: "It's a good moment to go into a derby.

"It's the perfect place for us to go and try to rectify what we've had."

He added: "A derby is a derby. It doesn't matter what place you are in the league, it's a derby."

Following Monday's 2-1 defeat at Crystal Palace, Manuel Pellegrini's side are fourth, a point behind United and two points behind second-placed Arsenal. Before the weekend, City had been second.

They are now 66-1 for the title, with the gap to leaders Chelsea, who have a game in hand over their rivals, now nine points.

Despite the huge setback to their hopes of retaining the title, Kompany said it was important for City to get back on to the winning trail.

"My only concern is we get back to our best form," he said.

"I think it's our general form that we have to improve. I've learnt from the past seasons as well that finishing a season strongly can have an impact on your next season as well."

Former Manchester City goalkeeper Joe Corrigan believes some players in the City squad are not fully committed to the cause.

"A manager can tell the team what he wants on pitch, but it's the players who go out and it's their pride at stake," he told BBC Radio 5 live.

"Not all players, but there doesn't seem to be the passion to go out and win."

"I think Pellegrini's time will be up," said former Wales midfielder Robbie Savage on BBC's 5 Live

Fifa rankings: Wales rise 15 places to highest level of 22nd

Wales have reached their highest-ever world ranking after climbing to 22nd in the latest standings released by world governing body Fifa.

Chris Coleman's side have risen 15 places thanks to their unbeaten start to their Euro 2016 qualifying campaign.

Scotland are up 10 places to 29th and England - the highest ranked of the home nations - are up three to 14th, with Northern Ireland up one to 42nd.

Wales' Euro 2016 qualification rivals Belgium are up to a best-ever third.

Wales topped Group B after beating Israel 3-0 in March but are now second on goal difference behind Belgium, who they face at home in June.

Wales' previous best ranking was 27th, when Terry Yorath's Wales side just failed to reach the 1994 World Cup, but in March 2011 they were as low as 116th. "It's a fantastic achievement and if it's the highest ever then it shows we're doing something right," said Wales full-back Chris Gunter.

"Chris Coleman said last week that we've lost one game in 18 months so we probably deserve to be there and we're on a good run.

"But as high as we are in the rankings, we want to make sure that come next October we're where we want to be."

Cricket legend Benaud dead at 84

Former Australia captain and legendary cricket commentator Richie Benaud has died at the age of 84.

A pioneering leg-spin bowler, Benaud played in 63 Tests, 28 as captain, before retiring in 1964 to pursue a career in journalism and broadcasting.

His final commentary in England came during the 2005 Ashes series but he continued to work for Channel Nine in Australia until 2013.

In November, he revealed he was being treated for skin cancer.

Benaud took 945 wickets in 259 first-class matches and made 11,719 first-class runs, scoring 23 centuries at an average of 36.50.

He was the first man to achieve 2,000 runs and 200 wickets at Test level. He was also a highly regarded tactician and never lost a Test series as Australia captain, winning five and drawing two.

After such an impressive playing career, he became even better known as a prolific author, columnist and commentator on cricket.

Following the 1956 Ashes tour in England, he completed a BBC training course while still a player, marking the beginning of 40-year association with the corporation.

His first BBC radio commentary came in 1960, followed by his first television appearance three years later.

With his mellifluous, light delivery, enthusiastically imitated by comedians and cricket fans alike, Benaud also became the lead commentator on Australian television's Channel Nine from 1977.

At the age of 83, he crushed two vertebrae when his 1963 Sunbeam vintage sports car hit a brick wall near to his Coogee home in Sydney.

Benaud often spoke of a return to commentary, but, to the great sadness of his legions of admirers, it did not materialise.

Benaud, who was made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire in 1961 for services to cricket, leaves a wife of 48 years, Daphne, and two children from his first marriage.

Sherwood insists: I was a success at Spurs

Tim Sherwood has insisted his time at Tottenham was a success as he looks forward to his first return to the club since his sacking in May.

The 46-year-old, who takes his Aston Villa side to White Hart Lane on Saturday, was dismissed by Spurs two days after leading them to a sixth-place finish last season.

"I knew it would be a tough job at Tottenham and it proved that," he said.

"But I was very successful, both as a development coach and as a manager."

Sherwood took over at Spurs in December 2013, after a period running the under-21 side, and went on to record a 59% top-flight win record, the best of any Tottenham boss in Premier League history.

His replacement, M a u r i c i o Pochettino, added five players to the squad in the summer, at a reported cost of around £35m, but Spurs are currently in the same position they finished last Conway in before the Frenchman recovered to rescue his own mistake.

Sakho's evening was about to be cut short by a hamstring injury and the France international was replaced by Kolo Toure.

Liverpool, missing suspended trio Steven Gerrard, Martin Skrtel and Emre Can, enjoyed plenty of possession but did little with it and Eastwood's only moment of serious concern came when he clawed Coutinho's effort around the post.

Blackburn, encouraged by how they had contained the Reds, started on the front foot after the break and Mignolet was called into action athletically from Cairney then low to his left from Marshall's header.

Rovers cult hero Rudy Gestede was unable to start because of a slight hamstring problem but Ewood Park rocked as he was introduced for Conway after 64 minutes, instantly creating an opening for Rhodes that came to nothing.

It was the visitors who finally made breakthrough, though as Coutinho rounded off a one-two with Henderson by hitting a low, driven finish that Eastwood gave chance.

The Blackburn keeper almost rescued his side with that dramatic late intervention but it is Liverpool who are still alive. And captain Gerrard can still hope for a dream Reds farewell in the final on his birthday, 30 May.

No gaffes from Prince Philippe!

FA Cup Quarter Final BLACKBURN R.....0 LIVERPOOL.......1

Liverpool's FA Cup talisman Philippe Coutinho worked his magic again to defeat Blackburn Rovers Wednesday night and set up a semi-final meeting with Aston Villa at Wembley.

The mercurial Brazilian scored a spectacular late winner in Liverpool's fourthround replay win at Bolton and broke the deadlock at Ewood Park with 20 minutes left to put Brendan Rodgers's side into the last four.

It was a performance short on quality from Liverpool in a quarter-final replay played out on a scruffy surface but all that mattered was the victory required to keep hopes of success alive this term after successive Premier League losses to top four rivals Manchester United and Arsenal had damaged their hopes of a place in next season's Champions League.

Rodgers insists the Reds can still make the top four - but the FA Cup remains the more realistic success and would be his first trophy in his third season in charge at Anfield.

Liverpool, who will face Villa on Sunday, 19 April in the semi-finals, endured a night of hard toil in the face of a stirring challenge from Gary Bowyer's Championship side.

Blackburn had earned this second chance with a goalless draw at Anfield last month and will feel hard done by to have not earned a place at Wembley.

The Premier League side were indebted to goalkeeper Simon Mignolet two outstanding saves early in the second half from Tom Cairney and Ben Marshall - then even more dramatically in the closing seconds as he stopped his opposite number Simon Eastwood from forcing extra time as he came up for a corner.

Liverpool produced the moment of class that mattered when Coutinho exchanged passes with Jordan Henderson before driving in from the angle in front of the elated travelling support massed into Ewood's Darwen End.

STAR MAN: the Brazilian scored Wednesday to secure Liverpool's semi-final spot

The victory will ease the disappointment of those two crucial losses and Rodgers will hope it provides fresh impetus for the final seven league games of the season.

On a pitch that hardly lent itself to quality, it was an optimistic long punt forward that created the first opportunity, Mamadou Sakho's confusion almost letting Craig cont. on page 23, col. 1
