A very good night for the Tories....

■ ELECTION 2015: Conservatives head for victory after SNP bury Labour in Scotland and Lib Dems suffer 'utterly horrific' results

The Conservatives are on course to be the largest party at Westminster with David Cameron hopeful of gaining a majority following Thursday's general election.

At press time the Tories were on course to be the largest party but could still fall a few seats short of an outright majority. Labour was essentially wiped out by the SNP in Scotland and has failed to make the gains it needs in England to stand a chance of forming a government.

The Lib Dems could finish with as few as 10 MPs, with Vince Cable, Ed Davey and Simon Hughes all losing their seats.

The SNP could be set to gain more than 50% of the vote in Scotland.

The exit polls suggested the Tories will get 316 MPs and Labour will get 239 MPs and despite initial incredulity from Labour and the Lib Dems appeared to be accurate as the results poured in overnight up and down the country.

Mr Cameron looks like he will be able to remain in Number 10 as the head of a minority government without the need for a coalition - although he might have to rely on the support of the DUP or the Lib Dems.

'very strong night'

Even if Labour leader Ed Miliband was able to persuade the Lib Dems to join the SNP in backing a Labour government, he would not have the necessary numbers to get his legislative programme through Parliament in a Queen's Speech.

The finishing line needed to form an absolute majority is 326, but because Sinn Fein MPs have not taken up seats and the Speaker does not normally vote, the finishing line has, in practice, been 323.

Speaking after holding his Witney, Oxfordshire constituency, Mr. Cameron made light of the pre-election polls forecasting a Labour victory, saying: "Some lshire people say there's only Mr. one poll that counts - the of the one on election day, and polls I'm not sure that's ever been truer than it is tonight.

"This is clearly a very strong night for the Conservative party. We've cont. on page 2, col. 1 THE BRITISH WEEKLY, SAT. MAY 9, 2015 had a positive response to a positive campaign about safeguarding economy, about creating jobs, about a record in government over the last five years but above all a plan for the next five years based on clear values, of wanting to reward work in our country and ensuring that those that put in and do their best should find the system is on their side."

By contrast the mood in Doncaster was glum, where despite retaining his seat, Labour leader Ed Miliband was honest about the scale of his party's defeat.

"Clearly this has been a very disappointing and difficult night for the Labour Party," he said.

"We haven't made the gains we wanted in England and Wales and in Scotland we have seen a surge of nationalism overwhelming our party."

He said the next government had a "huge responsibility" and a difficult task to "keep our country together".

Labour is being hammered in Scotland by the SNP, with Nicola Sturgeon's party on course to take as many as 56 of the nation's 59 seats.

Jim Murphy, leader of the Scottish Labour Party, and shadow foreign Douglas secretary Alexander have both lost their seats to the SNP, which is benefiting from a 27% average swing from Conceding defeat, Mr Murphy said it had "proven hard to turn round years of difficulties with the Scottish Labour Party in just five short months".

'punishing night'

He congratulated the SNP on the scale of their victory but said he intended to continue as the party's leader in Scotland.

"Scotland needs a strong Labour Party and our fightback starts tomorrow morning," he added.

The exit poll suggests the Lib Dems will lose 47 seats, taking the party back to its 1970s level of representation Westminster.

Mr Clegg said: "It is now painfully clear this has been a cruel and punishing night for the Liberal Democrats.

"The election has profound implications for the country and for the Liberal Democrats.

"I will be seeking to make further remarks about the implications of this election - both for the country and for the party that I lead and for my position in the Liberal Democrats - when I make remarks to my colleagues in the Liberal Democrats later this morning when I return to Westminster"

Scottish Labour wiped out by SNP landslide

The SNP has ousted Scottish Labour leader Jim Murphy as it stands on the verge of a historic landslide general election victory in Scotland.

As the British Weekly went to press the party was set to almost wipe out Labour in Scotland, with Douglas Alexander and Margaret Curran also losing their seats.

The SNP won by 10,000 votes in Kirkcaldy Cowdenbeath, which had previously been held by Gordon Brown.

And it won Glasgow North East with a record swing of 39.3%.

By 04:45am, the SNP had won 50 of the 52 seats to have declared in Scotland, making it by far the party's most successful general election ever. previous best was in October 1974, when it won 11 seats.

The SNP has won all seven seats in Glasgow while from Labour, former party leader Alex will Salmond returning to the House Commons winning the Gordon constituency from the Liberal Democrats

THE FACE OF VICTORY: Nicola Sturgeon (center) was in buoyant mood following a very good night for the Scottish National Party on Thursday

The only seats which the SNP has not won so far are Orkney and Shetland and Edinburgh South, where Liberal Democrat Alistair Carmichael, the former Secretary of State for Scotland, and Labour's Ian Murray managed to hold on.

major questions

The SNP were on course to win more than half of the votes in Scotland, a feat not achieved by any party since the Conservatives won 50.1% in 1955.

An exit poll has predicted the SNP would win 58 of Scotland's 59 while seats.

Conservatives will be the largest party across the UK.

In East Renfrewshire, SNP's the Kirsten Oswald defeated Mr Murphy - who had been defending a majority of 10,400 - by 3,718 votes.

The defeat will leave major questions about whether Mr Murphy can continue as Scottish Labour leader, with former Labour MP Ian Davidson - who lost his Glasgow South West seat to the SNP's Christopher Stephens - having already called for him to resign.

And Mhairi Black, who at the tender age of 20 becomes the UK's MP. youngest overturned former shadow foreign secretary Mr Alexander's majority of 16,600 in Paisley and Renfrewshire South to win by 5,684 votes - a swing of 27% from Labour to the SNP.

Labour's former Shadow Scottish Secretary Margaret Curran was defeated by more than 10,000 votes by the SNP's Natalie McGarry in Glasgow

the first seat in Scotland to declare - with 30,000

His tally was almost double that of Labour's Cathy Jamieson, who won the seat in 2010, but was heavily defeated this time round after returning 16,362 votes.

The SNP has also gained seats including Dunbartonshire West, Falkirk, Ochil and South Perthshire, Dundee West and Edinburgh South West, which previously been held by former Chancellor Alistair Darling, from Labour.

'losing the trust'

The SNP's John Nicolson defeated Lib incumbent Dem Jo Swinson Dunbartonshire East. while Marion Fellows defeated Labour's Frank Roy in Motherwell and Wishaw.

SNP leader Nicola Sturgeon told reporters that Labour had been "losing the trust of the people of Scotland over a period years".

She added: we're seeing tonight is Scotland voting to put its trust in the SNP to make Scotland's voice heard, a clear voice for an end to austerity, better public and services more progressive politics at Westminster. That's what we now intend to do."

Throughout election campaign, Ms Sturgeon had been hoping to form a "progressive alliance" with other parties to bring about change at Westminster.

But with Conservatives on track to be the largest party again, she insisted Labour could not blame her party for its failure to win across the UK.

'Utterly horrific' night as Lib Dems fall like ninepins

■ Cable, Hughes, Kennedy and Featherstone all among the losers as party suffers huge electoral setback

THURSDAY's election with the party suffering saw an astonishing drop in support for the Liberal Democrats, as the party looked on course for its worst performance in a generation.

Secretary Business Vince Cable has lost his seat of Twickenham, as did fellow Lib Dem heavyweight Simon Hughes and former m u l t i p l e defeats following five years in coalition with the Conservatives.

A Liberal Democrat source has described the party's result as "utterly horrific", adding that they may claim as few as five seats.

Party leader Nick Clegg reclaimed his seat of Sheffield Hallam with leader Charles Kennedy, a narrow victory over Labour.

Speaking after the win, he said: "It is now painfully clear this has been a cruel and punishing night for the Liberal Democrats.

"The election has profound implications for the country, (and) it obviously has profound implications for the Liberal Democrats.

'terrible night'

"I will be seeking to make further remarks about the implications of this election, both for the country and for the party that I lead, and for my position in the Liberal Democrats, when I make remarks to my colleagues... later this morning when I return to Westminster."

Mr Cable said the Liberal Democrats' results across country represent a "terrible night all over for our party".

"The fact is we were hit by a very effective campaign based on people's fears of a Labour government and the SNP," he said.

"We will see in the days that follow what the and Old Southwark. implications are of that.

"I want to say it has been a marvellous experience and a great honour, being the MP for this constituency.

"Unfortunately, it has been a terrible night all over for our party, but I'm absolutely certain we'll bounce back locally and nationally."

Energy Secretary Ed Davey has also been ousted in the seat of Kingston and Surbiton, losing to Conservative Michael Berry by around 3,000 votes.

Former Minister of State for the Home Office Lynne Featherstone also lost her seat of Hornsey and Wood Green, while Simon Hughes was defeated in Bermondsey

TOUGH NIGHT: Simon Hughes, Vince Cable and Lynn

Mr Hughes had held various forms of the seat since 1983 and was one of the Liberal Democrats' longest standing MPs.

Lib Dem Employment Minister Jo Swinson earlier lost her seat of Dunbartonshire East to the SNP candidate John Earlier a spokesman for Mr Clegg said the party is facing a "bad night".

"I am not going to pretend the Liberal Democrats are going to have anything other than a bad night."

An exit poll carried out on behalf of the major broadcasters predicts the Liberal Democrats will claim only 10 seats, down from 57 in 2010.

Knives out for Miliband

A Labour source has claimed that "Ed Miliband won't make tomorrow lunchtime" after they suffered major electoral setbacks Thursday night.

And when asked if the Labour leader (above) should resign, former cabinet minister Jack Straw told Sky News: "It is for Mr Miliband to make up his mind about his future."

The party's difficult night began with an exit poll predicting the party's tally of seats would represent Labour's worst result since 1987.

Forecasts of major defeats north of the border have been borne out with both Scottish listen."

"This, of course, has been a very difficult night Labour," Alexander said.

"Scotland has chosen to oppose this Conservative government but not place that trust in the Labour Party. It will be our responsibility to re-win that trust in the months and years ahead."

Labour's John Mann tweeted: "Can't say that Labour leadership weren't warned repeatedly - those who even bothered to meet that is. Never hurts to

Born in Essex, she is credited with bringing a social and psychological dimension to crime fiction.

Publisher Penguin Random House said Rendell, who suffered a stroke in January, died in London on Saturday morning.

"We are devastated by the loss of one of our best-loved authors," the publisher said in a statement. Penguin Random House chair, Baroness Gail Rebuck, said Rendell was admired throughout publishing for her "brilliant body of work".

"An insightful and elegant observer of society, many of her award-winning thrillers and psychological murder mysteries highlighted the causes she cared so deeply about."

Rendell's first Wexford book, From Doon with Death, was published in 1964, beginning a series of more than 20 starring Inspector Reginald Wexford, played in the popular TV series by George Baker.

Many of her works were translated into more than 20 languages and adapted for cinema and TV, attracting worldwide sales of 60 million.

She was the author of more than 20 standalone novels, whose protagonists were often on the margins of society, and was awarded the Crime Writers' Association Cartier Diamond Dagger for excellence in crime writing.

Her final novel, Dark Corners, is due to be published in October.

Rendell began her writing career as a reporter on an Essex newspaper.

However, she was forced to resign after filing a story about a local sports club dinner that she hadn't attended. Her report failed to mention that the after-dinner speaker had died half-way through the speech.

Rendell, whose writing brought her considerable wealth, was made a Labour life peer in 1997 and is reputed to have given generously to charity. She was a vocal campaigner against female genital mutilation.

Labour leader E

Miliband tweeted she would be missed greatly by the party.

She was born Ruth Barbara Grasemann in 1930 in South Woodford to a Swedish mother and British father.

Rendell married Don Rendell, a journalist, in 1953. They divorced 22 years later but remarried each other within two years. She is survived by their son.

Spurs legend Greaves recovering after stroke

Ex-England and Tottenham striker Jimmy Greaves is out of intensive care after suffering a severe stroke on Sunday.

His family say the 75-year-old is able to sit up in bed, adding that while he is "by no means out of the woods there is room for cautious optimism."

Greaves has a club-record 220 league goals for Tottenham from 1961 to 1970.

His 44 goals in 57 caps puts him fourth in the list of all-time England goalscorers behind Sir Bobby Charlton, Gary Lineker and Wayne Rooney.

A statement on Tuesday from Greaves's wife Irene read: "Jimmy is having to do what he is told and understands the seriousness of what has happened. He's in the best hands."

Greaves, who had a minor stroke in 2012, scored a then-club record 124 league goals for Chelsea between 1957 and 1961.

He also played for AC Milan and West Ham and was part of England's 1966 World Cup-winning squad but originally missed out on a medal because he was injured during the group stage.

In the 1980s he forged a new career as a football pundit on ITV, most notably alongside former Liverpool striker Ian St John on Saint and Greavsie, which ran from 1985 to 1992.

Queen meets the newest member of the Royal Family

■ Charlotte Elizabeth Diana is fourth in line to the throne

The Queen has met her new great-grand-daughter Princess Charlotte for the first time at Kensington Palace.

The princess, who is fourth in line to the throne, was born on Saturday at London's St Mary's Hospital, weighing 8lbs 3oz.

Kensington Palace revealed on Monday that she had been named Charlotte Elizabeth Diana.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge have formally registered the birth of their second child.

The Duke of Cambridge signed the birth register at Kensington Palace on Tuesday, witnessed by a registrar from Westminster Register Office.

The document gives the date and place of Princess Charlotte's birth, and her full name as Her Royal Highness Princess Charlotte Elizabeth Diana of Cambridge.

royal pedigree

The Queen is believed to have arrived in London from her Sandringham estate in Norfolk.

The meeting was the first time a serving sovereign had met a great-granddaughter born in direct succession on the male line since Queen Victoria met George VI's sister Princess Mary, who was born 118 years ago in 1807

The princess has had several other visitors, including the Prince of Wales and Duchess of Cornwall who spent more than an hour with their new granddaughter on Sunday.

The Duchess of Cambridge's parents, Michael and Carole Middleton, and sister Pippa have also met their newest relative.

The duke and duchess and their daughter spent most of the week at Kensington Palace since leaving hospital on Saturday evening, before travelling to their country home, Anmer Hall, on the Queen's Sandringham estate, in Norfolk on Thursday.

The Queen and other senior royals were told

THE LONG WAIT IS OVER: Kate and William with their new daughter Charlotte. The family are scheduled to spend the next few weeks at Anmer Hall in Norfolk.

of the baby's name before the announcement was made public.

Charlotte, the feminine form of Charles, has a long royal pedigree and became popular in the 18th Century when it was the name of George III's queen.

The King bought Buckingham House in 1761 for his wife Queen Charlotte to use as a family home close to St James's Palace - it became known as the Queen's House and is now Buckingham Palace.

According to figures from the Office for National Statistics, Charlotte is the 21st most popular girl's name in England and Wales with 2,242 babies being given it in 2013.

Captain Kidd's pirate ship 'found off Madagascar coast'

Underwater explorers in Madagascar say they have discovered treasure belonging to the notorious 17th-Century Scottish pirate William Kidd.

A 100lb silver bar was brought to shore on Thursday on the island of Sainte Marie, from what is thought to be the wreck of Kidd's notorious ship Adventure Galley.

The bar was presented to Madagascar's president at a special ceremony.

'stuff of legends'

US explorer Barry Clifford says he believes there are many more such bars still in the wreck.

Capt Kidd was first appointed by the British authorities to tackle piracy but later became a ruthless criminal and was executed in 1701.

"Captain's Kidd's treasure is the stuff of legends. People have been looking for it for 300 years. To literally have it hit me on the head - I thought what the heck just happened to me. I really didn't expect this," Mr Clifford said.

"There's more down there. I know the whole bottom of the cavity where I found the silver bar is filled with metal. It's too murky down there to see what metal, but my metal detector tells me there is metal on all sides."

Clifford's team believe the bar, marked with what appears to be a letter S and a letter T, has its origins in 17th-Century Bolivia.

The location of the ship, thought to have sunk in 1698, has been known about for many years but the silver bar was only discovered earlier this week.

Mr Clifford said that while diving in the wreck, his metal detector picked up signals but it was too muddy for him to see anything.

execution

UK ambassador to Madagascar Timothy Smart, who attended the ceremony, said he hoped that Mr Clifford's latest discovery would raise Madagascar's profile as a tourist destination.

The plan is to exhibit the bars in a museum.

Kidd is thought to have been born in Scotland's Greenock or the Dundee area in about 1645. He was appointed by the Crown to tackle piracy and capture enemy French ships, but turned to piracy himself.

In 1698, he looted the Armenian ship the Quedagh Merchant, which was apparently sailing under a French pass.

The Quedagh Merchant had been carrying satins, muslins, gold and silver.

Unfortunately for Kidd, the captain of the ship was an Englishman, and it is thought that a large amount of the cargo belonged to the British East India Company.

Capt Kidd was captured and brought back to London. He was found guilty of piracy and the murder of one of his crewmen during a row in 1697, and sentenced to death.

During his execution in Wapping in 1701, the first rope put around his neck broke, so he was strung up a second time. That rope also snapped, but the third one held.

Afterwards, his body was dipped in tar and hung by chains along the River Thames to serve as a warning to would-be pirates.

Legend had it that Capt Kidd hid much of his loot, which has prompted numerous treasure hunts around the world and inspired author Robert Louis Stevenson when writing Treasure Island.

NOTORIOUS: William Kidd cut a larger-than-life figure for much of his brief career, which ended with his being hung by the River Thames in 1701. His body was then displayed in a metal cage to dissuade those who might be tempted to copy his exploits

Industry tributes flow as Hot Chocolate singer Errol Brown succumbs to cancer at 71

Hot Chocolate lead singer Errol Brown has died aged 71, his manager has said.

Brown had cancer and died at his home in the Bahamas, said Phil Dale.

Hot Chocolate had hits more than 50 countries worldwide, including You Sexy Thing - which Brown co-wrote - It Started with a Kiss and Every 1's a Winner.

Brown was made an MBE by the Queen in 2003 and received an Ivor Novello award for outstanding contribution to British music in 2004.

You Sexy Thing, Hot Chocolate's best-known hit and a top 10 single in the 1970s and '80s, charted again in the UK when it was featured in The Full Monty in 1997.

A statement from Brown's manager on Wednesday confirmed the singer's death.

"Errol Brown MBE passed away in The Bahamas this morning with his wife Ginette and daughters Colette and Leonie by his side of liver cancer," he said.

'sadly missed'

"Errol was a lover of life and obviously 'music!' I never went into his home, car or a hotel room without music

His musical career began in 1969 when he and some friends sent their own reggae version of Give Peace a Chance to its writer John Lennon.

"We all laughed about it," Brown told BBC Breakfast in 2009.

£340k payout to man who fell while spending a penny

■ Figures revealed by campaigners challenging Britain's 'compensation culture'

■ Council blasted after eight-year compensation battle with disabled man

A man has been paid more than £340,000 in compensation after a public toilet collapsed as he sat on it.

The unnamed disabled man slipped off and fell as the toilet bowl broke beneath him.

Details of how the accident happened have not been revealed, including whether he was seriously hurt, but the broken loo in the seaside town of St Annes, near Blackpool, has cost Fylde Council a whopping £341,000.

The huge sum was paid out in damages to the man, who was disabled before the accident, in 2013 after eight years of legal wrangling.

The claim was one of 28 settlements made by the Tory-run council in 2013-14, reaching a total of £773,290. This was 14 times more than the £54,484 paid out by the authority just five years

This week campaigners said taxpayers were footing the bill for an control' compensation culture.

"suing culture"

Jonathan Isaby, chief executive the TaxPayers' Alliance, said: 'An extraordinary sum of taxpayers' money has been paid out - some which appears frivolous by any stretch of the imagination.

'Legal fees on top of this will only add to the bill landing on residents' doorsteps.

'This is further evidence of a compensation culture out of control councils ministers must do a better job counteracting.'

group Campaign Justice Not Profit, which says it was set up to 'stop the erosion of the English legal system by a US-style suing culture', asked councils for information on their compensation payouts.

The group said the 'no fee' compensation culture was to blame for a rise in the number of claims. John Higginson, of Justice Not Profit, added that of the 70 councils that have replied to them so far, Fylde's 1,319 per cent increase settlements from years ago was the biggest rise.

"public purse"

council The which insurance, covered the costs, but has to pay an excess of £500 itself for each payout.

Fylde Council spokesman said the total amount paid in excess last year was less than £10,000, adding: 'We are the guardians of the public purse obviously we take out insurance to protect taxpayers.

'We give full co-operation to the insurance company's lawyers in defending against claims where it is necessary to do so. It is ultimately up to the insurer whether defend a claim or to settle ' The spokesman added that the council will review its policy this year to 'ensure it remains the most cost-effective'. Confidentiality rules prevent the council from saying how much it pays for insurance, but the spokesman said its premium has not gone up after the huge payout to the disabled man as insurers acknowledged that the accident was 'a one in a million event'.

Brits in LA: Meet A Member

Meet a Member: Lena Carannante

New Jersey who moved to LA 10 years ago.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I clearly remember the first time I visited LA in the 90s when I was about 15 or 16 years old. My mom wanted me to see the West Coast and took me to a lot of touristy spots like Malibu, Melrose for shopping, and even Westwood Village to see UCLA. My first pic of LA at the famous Gladstone's deck-seat where everyone takes a picture. I told my mother at that moment, "I am moving to LA one day".

A decade later I finally moved here. I guess you could call that The Law of Attraction.

What do you miss most from home?

I really miss the pizza. I know that sounds silly, but there is no pizza in the entire world like East Coast pizza. I've learned Meet Lena originally from what I like here through lots of trial and error! Mulberry pizza is one of my faves. Also, when I'm in the mood to be a bit healthier I love D'Amores.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

My first impression of LA was that it was really "fancy" with lots of expensive cars and rich people. Once I lived here I realized that there are so many different areas, cultures. and neighborhoods to enjoy here other than the ones you see on television. I love knowing my way around now and being able to experience different parts of LA like downtown.

Do you have any hidden gems in LA that you want to share with us?

I have hidden gems all over. From the craft items I buy in the garment district at Santee Alley, to the amazing spiritual places where I buy my crystals or do group mediations like Mystic Journey in Venice or Spellbound Sky in Silverlake.

I'm really into vintage right now and the strip of vintage stores on LaBrea keeps me busy for hours. The vintage vendors at Melrose Trading Post, downtown, or at the Rose Bowl flea market are like none I've ever seen anywhere else. Also, I can't forget my favorite restaurant Bottega Louie downtown. It has the most beautiful pastry section that is like something you could see in Paris. All the food is amazing there. I'm always up for a new adventure and love that LA always has something different to offer me. Ī am also a LACMA member and visit at least 8 times a year:) The Brits in LA art and music events always are a blast too. I've seen a photography and poetry show in the last week through them.

How does LA compare to hometown of vour Hamilton, NJ?

snows and that I don't have to wear winter jackets.

A lot of people have misconceptions about LA - did you?

misconception I ever had about LA is what I've now green juice drinking, meditating, hippie dippie, animal loving, laid back

The biggest difference is that LA is home to some of the best culture in the world whereas before I would've had to travel to NYC to see anything similar. I love living in a city that has the newest art exhibits, a variety of amazing restaurants, and is a stopping point for all of the music that I love. It's amazing knowing that everything I enjoy and want to see is at my fingertips. I feel so lucky to live here and absolutely love it. I think that Los Angelenos as a whole are a lot healthier than the East Coasters, where I grew up. I'm very health-conscious now and into organic and local foods. I love that I have so many options here when it comes to what I eat. Also, I love the fact that it never

Stars/Book Review

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: A trip in June is best planned at least in part before midweek to ensure you are setting things in order. The love planet Venus is in your money house...that's good news for cash flow.

TAURUS: Your priority should be taking care of YOU in any area that requires attention, and this may be your health as your ruler Venus is visiting for a while. Happy Birthday! GEMINI: If you feel you need to make a move in settling some kind of past emotional situation but are not sure how it will be received right now it will be easier as the week proceeds. Jupiter sailing in calm waters in your life will assist you.

CANCER: You will have to be aware this next week not to speak out of turn or harshly to anyone. The consequences could be far-reaching, especially if it's a close friend or family. Now is a good time to clean out any unwanted "stuff" in your life.

LEO: Yes, this is a time for the inner person to reveal itself for some of you who are not participating in life as you know you can. The fact is that your attention span is shot currently so when the opportunity appears, go for it. VIRGO: It's time for a change of scenery and near or far matters not as you benefit from the change. Just make sure you have caught up with whatever is unfinished because you can expect to be much busier the next few weeks.

LIBRA: Relationships are highlighted this month as your ruler Venus is going for stroll around your relationships area. Make sure you are as charming as you can be and with the right people - it could reap rewards.

SCORPIO: This will be one of those weeks when a lot is going on and it's difficult not to worry. However, turmoil never lasts for long, and with this in mind tackle any area left neglected without delay. A large purchase of sorts will be uppermost in your mind, so act now.

SAGITTARIUS: If you want to change anything waiting around for others to make the first move is not a good idea. Mars your fiery cousin in your opposite sign will give you the power to follow through. The eclipse this past week has brought something to your door that you need to tackle now.

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling tired out or worn down. The most likely reason is you are working too hard. Plus the eclipse in your cousin sign of Taurus recently brought up deep emotions. Remember that you (yes, even you!) are allowed time out.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling a bit frustrated this week. Well that's life for you so take a break from responsibilities (at least from some of them). You will receive credit from your peers. A hobby you enjoy keeps you sane through this month.

PISCES: The planets are really on your side this month; however as with all water signs you get a tad emotional due to Neptune the king of the ocean being involved in your life for some time now. You are ready to make a move, and this can be in any area of life.

Folly: making a killing in the Cotswolds

Exclusive interview with author Stella Cameron, author of the latest Alex Duggins murder mystery set in the Cotswolds

Rating: ★★★

"For a long time I've write wanted to mysteries set in the UK, where I was born," says Folly author Stella Cameron. "That drove my choice of background...the Cotswolds and the village of Folly-on-Weir. I spend some time in the Cotswolds each year and find the gorgeous hills and valleys, the amazing villages, a constant inspiration."

Cameron writes

romance and mystery books, and Folly is a great marriage between the two genres. The characters are a bit older and the mystery is the driving force in this novel. The humour and quirky characters add a nice balance. This book could be compared to a modern Agatha Christie novel.

In Folly, Alex Duggin's marriage is over. She moves back to her Cotswolds home town in the middle of winter. While out walking Alex stumbles across a frosted corpse buried in the snow. The ensuing murder investigation will uncover old secrets of many in the town, including Alex. She's at the top of the police suspect list. Determined to clear her name, Alex sets out to find the real murderer. But will she wind up the next victim?

research, her Cameron says she read The Cotswold Journal with avid pleasure. "Research never stops," Cameron. "Throughout a book the writer has to delve and dig into so many elements. UK police procedure, of course. And that's always a lot of fun."

For each book or series, Cameron says amasses her own collection of books and "I use maps. both non-fiction and personal accounts. Libraries have been my best friends all my life. For obscure historical facts I usually go to records on film."

Cameron buried herself in village life to become comfortable with Cotswold people and the matters that concern them. Also the buildings, the stone, of course and the very rich history of the area. "Every story presumes the suspension disbelief," of savs Cameron. "But, the facts that support that story have to be solid if the writer and reader are going to be comfortable and absorbed."

Cameron writes fiction and non-fiction, novels, novellas, short stories and articles. She has seventy books published. Originally published under the title Cold, as a short run on-demand book, the Folly story was picked up by Severn House and renamed. It's the first in the series.

Cameron has won awards for Best First Historical, Best Selling Novel. Best Romantic Suspense Novel of the Year and a career achievement award from the Pacific Northwest Writers Association.

Cameron completed Out Comes the Evil, the second Alex Duggins novel, and is now working on the third, If the Blues Don't Kill You. "The Alex Duggins mysteries are feeding my roots," says Cameron. "When I go home each year I feel so right, so comfortable. Everything slips into place naturally. I have discovered that this is my rightful milieu."

Cameron lives near Seattle. She spends a month of each year in Britain. She was born in the Dorset seaside town of Weymouth.

A congenial British

A PIECE OF HISTORY: The British Home in Sierra Madre was formally opened in 1931 by a group of British women affiliated with The Daughters of the British Empire (D.B.E.) in the Western District. Their vision of a place where elderly people could be cared for in a warm and kind environment continues to this day.

Bobby and Beefeater will be strolling the grounds, happy to have their photo snapped, or to be included in a selfie.

One of the most popular Faire features is the Raffle Booth, where tickets may be purchased to enter the $1,000 Grand Prize Raffle. The first, second and third place winners, who need not be present, are announced at the conclusion of the Faire.

The British Home is located at 647 Manzanita Avenue in Sierra Madre, in a residential area, with parking along Ramona and Manzanita Avenues, as well as on the side streets.

My Week: Babies, Bards and Ballet...

My goodness this first week of May has certainly been eventful one!

Not only did we get a new royal in the shape of Princess Charlotte, but we also witnessed the most profitable boxing match in history. And by the time this goes to print the United Kingdom should have a new Prime Minister too!

month This has certainly kicked off with an impressive cultural explosion in LA. Mr Musichead's opening reception for 'A Lad Insane' by Brian Duffy was my first arty stop of the week and it was packed to the rafters - I am planning to pop back and take a proper look before it ends on the 23rd. There is no charge to get in so feel free to go along and check out their new location on Sunset Boulevard, aptly positioned opposite Guitar Center.

Salford Bard Dr John Cooper Clarke was my intellectual entertainment the following night. His northern wit and banter for almost two solid hours was a great reminder of what I love about the UK -I didn't expect to have such a giggle at an evening of poetry but I guess that is why he is called the Punk Poet. I hope he comes back soon as I really want you all to go along and see him live.

Sunday Supper Club

Brits in LA Key Members met for their first Sunday Supper Club at our one of our favourite haunts, Cecconi's in West Hollywood. It was a great chance to relax for once and find the time to have real conversations over great food and wine. It is worth going just to see the Damien Hurst Butterfly installation.

Cut a long story short..

I got a last-minute invite to the LA premiere of Soul Boys of the Western World; a fantastic documentary about Spandau Ballet that was first screened at SXSW in 2014 - it took a long time to make it to California but it was definitely worth the wait! I was just a bit too young to be a huge fan of Spandau Ballet back in their heyday, so I didn't quite realize what an impact they had on the 80's. Not only was their music a new sound for that era but their fashion sense was seen as groundbreaking too - the film also examines the politics of the time which overshadowed Margaret Thatcher, along with unemployment, Miners' Strike and the Falklands War. Director George Hencken also examines the bitter fallout and court battle the band went through in the 90's and it is pretty brutal to watch, even uncomfortable when the band members are sitting just a few feet away from you! It makes it all the more impressive that they have manage to reunite and are currently on a World Tour (with a show scheduled here in July). Hencken has succeeded in making a film that will appeal to the masses not just diehard fans - my only regret upon walking out of the theater was that I wished I was ten years older, (a rarity in LA!), mainly so I could have experienced the exciting time that my home town of London went through in the 1980s.

Soul Boys of The Western World opens in LA on May 8th - May 14th quite outrageous and heavily by massive more at the Arena Cinema in Hollywood (1625 N Las Palmas Ave, Hollywood, 90028 (visit arenascreen.com) showtimes . I highly recommend you watch it on the big screen if you

That is all from me for this week, - make sure to find us on Facebook @BritsinLA as we have lots of great events coming up and tons of concert competitions courtesy of Goldenvoice. You've got to be in it to win it!

MOU: Title is reward for risk

Chelsea manager Jose Mourinho says the Premier League title is his reward for the risk he Stamford Bridge for a second spell.

Eden Hazard's goal gave Chelsea the 1-0 win over Crystal Palace on Sunday that saw the West London side crowned as champions.

Mourinho also said he will stay for as long as owner Roman Abramovich wants.

He said: "When you go back to where you had success before you risk a bit of your prestige and took in returning to your history. I risked it but I can say we won again."

> Mourinho won two titles in his first stint in charge and claimed his third after coming back to Chelsea at the start of last season

> He said: "I could choose another club in another country where it is easier to be champion but I chose the most difficult league in Europe where I was happy before.

> "In my country, Portugal, we say don't go back to where you were happy before because it is a risk

"But I have taken that risk and I'm so happy because I won another Premier League 10 years later in my second spell.

"To win titles with two generations, 10 years apart, I feel I have a place in Chelsea's history"

Mourinho flew to Portugal following the win at Leicester City on Wednesday to be with his father as he underwent surgery, but was back to lead Chelsea on Sunday and insisted they would be regarded as worthy champions.

He said: "I think we everything showed football demands from a team since day one. We have had fantastic attacking football, fantastic domination, high possession. low possession and defended amazingly well.

"There is a saying in my country for the ones that have big faces and say we don't deserve it - 'the dogs bark and the caravan goes by'. They may not say but they know."

brought in to work on football matters if the takeover is successful but would not pose a threat to current Villa boss Tim Sherwood.

"I haven't heard anything. It's out of my hands," said Sherwood.

"I know Tony but only through playing. He's a good guy, I have a lot of respect for Tony. "If the club's up for sale a decision will be made if a fee is agreed but Randy has given me no indication he's lost any enthusiasm for this job. He's excited about what's happening at the moment."

Villa were put up for sale last May by current owner Randy Lerner.

2006, announced his intention to sell, stating that he "owed it to Villa to move on, and look for invigorated leadership, if in my heart I feel I can no longer do the job."

It is also understood that Lerner will only commit to a sale if the FA Cup finalists avoid relegation, with the club currently two points above the Premier League drop zone with three games to go.

"Smith is an expert in the field of sports rights and is backed by several highly respectable blue-chip investors and his bid is being treated seriously in the city," said a leading football source in Birmingham.

United to sign Dutch star Depay

■ Red Devils agree £25m fee with PSV for rising star

Manchester United have agreed a deal to sign Dutch forward Memphis Depay from PSV Eindhoven.

The fee is in the region of £25-30m with the deal believed to be until 2019, with the option of another year.

Subject to the 21-year-old passing his medical next week, he will join United once the transfer window opens in June.

Depay, who has scored 21 goals as PSV won this season's Dutch title , tweeted: "Time to set my goals again on winning trophies with Manchester United."

He added: "I always say; dream, believe, achieve. I was dreaming and believing of becoming the champions of the Eredivisie with PSV and we achieved it.

"I'm extremely grateful towards PSV and all the fans for believing in me."
