Calais: send in the troops!

■ As migrant crisis deepens, overwhelmed French police back calls to bring in the British army

French police in Calais have backed calls to bring in the British army to help tackle the deepening migrant crisis.

Bruno Noel, head of the Alliance union for police deployed to Calais' port and Eurotunnel site, said his force is "doing Britain's dirty work", but that the situation could soon become unmanageable as migrant numbers swell and police ranks are further depleted.

'virtually lawless'

"We have only 15 permanent French border police at the Eurotunnel site. Can you imagine how derisory this is given the situation? So I say, why not bring in the British army, and let them work together with the French?" he said.

The call for British reinforcements was first made by Kevin Hurley, police and crime commission for Surrey police, who proposed "sending in the Gurkhas". Nigel Farage, the Ukip leader, suggested dispatching the British army over the Channel to check lorries to stop people illegally entering Britain, calling the situation around Calais, "virtually lawless".

The suggestions drew howls of complaint in France, with critics arguing it would be a total "non-starter" and a slight to French national pride to have UK forces in a port France only recaptured from its c r o s s - C h a n n e l neighbour in 1558, when it was known as "the brightest jewel in the English crown".

Heath was a 'sad old gay man'

■ Former brothel madam says she supplied men for former PM to sleep with, but insists 'he was not a paedophile'

A brothel madam has claimed she did supply Sir Edward Heath with men to sleep with but he 'was not a paedophile - just a sad, old gay man'.

Myra Ling-Ling Forde, 67, who has convictions for operating a brothel just a mile from the former Prime Minister's home in Salisbury, Wiltshire, claims he 'never asked me for children'.

It is alleged that in the early 1990s a prosecution against Forde, who is said to have known 'many politicians and celebrities', was dropped after she threatened to expose Sir Edward as a paedophile.

She told Channel 4 News: 'You know he's not a paedophile. He's not a paedophile. He never asked me for children, and I never supply anybody young boys.'

'very secretive'

'I can't really tarnish his name. I promised him that. I'd like to put it straight that he's not a paedophile. He's just an old sad, gay man.'

She added: 'I gave him company and he was happy.'

The Filipina, known as Madam Ling Ling, previously released a statement through her solicitor, when the allegations came to light, where she denied any involvement with the former Tory leader.

But in an interview with The Sun this week Forde said: 'I knew Edward Heath in the early 90s and provided young men for him. But he was not into sex with children.'

'He was just a very secretive and shy gay man. It was impossible for someone in his position to be openly gay at the time so he came to me.'

companions

According to the paper, Forde claimed the pair first came into contact when the former Conservative leader called her about an advert in the Salisbury Journal in 1990.

He initially told her his name was 'John' and went on to pay £500 a time for meetings with foreign male escorts - including a Spanish man called Enrique, who was aged 21 or 22.

Forde said she provided the former Prime Minister with young companions - Enrique, a Greek escort and possibly a Portuguese man - on four occasions, with each meeting lasting about an hour and a half.

The brothel madam recognised Sir Edward when she saw a picture in a newspaper, and told him she knew his real identity when he invited him to his house to collect the money he owed her.

oversight

She said: 'I could see he was uncomfortable, but he just laughed and shrugged his shoulders then put his finger to his lips and said, "Shush". That was the last time I saw him and he never called me again.'

Forde added: 'He was specific from the start he wanted men over 21 and under 30 and I was happy to help him as I didn't see anything wrong with providing that service. He was not a paedophile - he was gay. People should stop blackening his name.'

At least seven police forces are now investigating child sex allegations involving Sir Edward, who died in 2005, after Wiltshire Police received 'tens' of calls.

As well as probes by Wiltshire, London, Kent,

Hampshire and Jersey detectives, there is speculation officers in Northern Ireland could examine whether the Tory politician had links to a children's home at the centre of a child abuse inquiry.

Wiltshire Police said it has been agreed that it will 'lead on the national oversight and coordination of any investigations into Sir Edward Heath'.

Operation Hydrant, a national hub coordinating inquiries into historical abuse, has been liaising with forces which received information concerning Sir Edward.

A Wiltshire Police spokesman said: 'This decision has been taken following consultation between Operation Hydrant and affected forces and is based on operational considerations.'

Cilla to be laid to rest in hometown

■ Much-loved entertainer's body has already been repatriated to the UK, her sons have confirmed

Cilla Black is to be buried next to her parents next week with a private ceremony at the church in Liverpool where she married the love of her life Bobby Willis.

Her family has confirmed that the service will be held next Thursday at St Mary's Church, Woolton, where she married Mr Willis in 1969.

The showbiz legend will

Labour peer faces abuse hearing

THE SEEMINGLY endless drama of historic child abuse investigation in the UK took a new turn this week when it emerged Greville Janner could be arrested if he does not attend court to face allegations he sexually abused nine boys over three decades.

The former Labour peer's legal team had argued that forcing him to attend court on Friday would have a "catastrophic impact" on him because he has Alzheimer's disease.

Paul Ozin, for Lord Janner, asked two senior high court judges to spare the 87-year-old the "barbaric, inhumane and uncivilised" ordeal by lifting the threat of an arrest warrant if he failed to attend.

But the legal challenge was summarily dismissed on Thursday by Lady Justice Rafferty and Mr Justice Irwin.

The ruling means Janner must now appear in court for the first time in the criminal proceedings over 22 child sex abuse allegations, in which he is accused of molesting nine boys between 1963 and 1988.

then be laid to rest next to her parents at the nearby Allerton Cemetery.

Cilla died on August 1 at her villa in Spain and it was originally expected that her funeral would take place in St Mary the Virgin Church in Denham, Buckinghamshire, where Bobby's funeral was held.

A cremation service was held there after his death in 1999 and his ashes were scattered at their various homes in locations all over the world.

But the family has confirmed that she will return to her home city of Liverpool now she has passed, a death that left the nation in mourning and attracted tributes from some of Britain's biggest stars.

'waiting for me'

The Right Reverend Thomas Williams will conduct the service, which he said is due to be held at 1pm.

Terry McCann, who had known the star since they were children, claimed she knew she was going to die and that she had told him: 'Bobby's waiting for me'.

The singer and TV star was devastated when Bobby Willis, her husband of more than 30 years and the father of her three sons, died in 1999 from lung and liver cancer, and she never remarried.

Cilla Black's sons have spoken for the first time since her death, saying they 'just want to get home' after arranging to have her body flown back to the UK from Spain.

'long week'

Speaking at their mother's holiday home in Estepona on Wednesday, Robert, Jack and Ben Willis offered few words.

Speaking as they left the property, where the 72-year-old suffered a stroke on her sun terrace, Robert said the three were eager to return to Britain after a 'long week'.

'It's been a long week and we just want to get home,' the 36-year-old said.

Cilla's husband Bobby's brother Kenny, 78, will be unable to attend the service because of a long-term illness.

Cilla's nephew Ian Willis, 51, told the Sunday Mirror: "He wants to be there but he's just not well enough to go to Cilla's funeral.

SOULMATES: Cilla Black and Bobby Willis on their wedding day in Liverpool in 1969

Friends of the family have since described the days since Cilla's death as 'the worst' in the brothers' lives.

'Cilla's sons are just so overwhelmed by everything at the moment,' a source told The Daily Mirror.

'This has been the worst week of their lives. It was hard enough losing their father Bobby at such a young age – but to have their mum taken away too is so cruel and hard to take.'

Cilla's sons remained at her villa where their mother died last after tumbling and hitting her head while she sunbathed on her bedroom terrace.

News From Britain

DETERMINED: hundreds of migrants are caught daily trying to stow away on Folkestone-bound trains at Coquelles, near Calais

But Mr Noel, 40, disagrees. He and his colleagues have spent a gruelling two months trying to keep migrants out of lorries queuing to board trains entering the Channel Tunnel, dealing with striking French ferry workers, and in the past two weeks seeking to stop migrants intruding en masse into the huge Eurotunnel site and hurling themselves onto slow-moving freight trains – at grave risks to their lives.

plight

Anyone who doubted their resolve was provided a spectacular example last Thursday when it emerged that Abdul Rahman Haroun, a Sudanese migrant, dodged hundreds of security cameras and speeding trains to walk 31 miles in the Channel Tunnel to Folkestone, before British police arrested just short of the exit.

The media spotlight has been focused on migrants' plight. Every night, hundreds more from countries including Sudan, Eritrea and Afghanistan – men, women, children and even babies strapped to mothers' backs – make their way from the sprawling migrant camp known as the "new jungle" to the Eurotunnel site's freight trains. The UN refugee agency has slammed their "appalling" living conditions.

On the ground, Romain Bellina-Fages, on duty for the CRS, France's anti-riot force, and more used to policing violent strike protests than fending migrants away from trains.

'exhausted

He was among a team seeking to repel up to 2,000 migrants who stormed the Eurotunnel site last Tuesday seeking to reach the shuttles carrying lorries. He says the task is getting harder by the day.

But Mr Noel says few spare a thought for the French police, who are "physically, psychologically and morally exhausted" from their part in this human drama.

You're walking over a cliff!

■ Blair warns Labour as Corbyn edges closer to leadership

WITH THE LABOUR Party on the verge of choosing a new leader former Prime Minister Tony Blair took to the pages of The Guardian this week with an impassioned plea for party members NOT to vote for the frontrunner, John Corbyn.

Blair, who won three consecutive elections as Labour leader, claimed the party was in 'mortal' danger and about to walk "over the cliff's edge to the jagged rocks below".

Below is an excerpt from Blair's article:

"The Labour party is in danger more mortal today than at any point in the over 100 years of its existence. I say this as someone who led the party for 13 years and has been a member for more than 40. The leadership election has turned into something far more significant than who is the next leader. It is now about whether Labour remains a party of government.

"Governments can change a country. Protest movements simply agitate against those who govern. Labour in government changed this country. I don't just mean the minimum wage, civil partnerships, massive investment in public services, lifting millions out of poverty, or peace in Northern Ireland. I mean we changed the nation's zeitgeist.....And, yes, governments do things people don't like, and in time they lose power. That is the nature of democracy.

"The unions in the 1980s were, by a majority, a force for stability and sense. There were constituencies so solidly Labour that nothing could shake them from their loyalty. What we're witnessing now is a throwback to that time, but without the stabilisers in place. The big unions, with the exception of the most successful in recent times, USDAW, are in the grip of the hard left. And the people do not have that same old-time loyalty.

"If Jeremy Corbyn becomes leader it won't be a defeat like 1983 or 2015 at the next election. It will mean rout, possibly annihilation. If he wins the leadership, the public will at first be amused, bemused and even intrigued. But as the years roll on, as Tory policies bite and the need for an effective opposition mounts – and oppositions are only effective if they stand a hope of winning – the public mood will turn to anger. They will seek to punish us. They will see themselves as victims not only of the Tory government but of our self-indulgence.

'immense damage'

"Jeremy Corbyn doesn't offer anything new. This is literally the most laughable of all the propositions advanced by his camp. Those of us who lived through the turmoil of the 80s know every line of this script. These are policies from the past that were rejected not because they were too principled, but because a majority of the British people thought they didn't work. And by the way, they were rejected by electorates round the world for the same reasons.

"I don't doubt that his campaign has sparked interest. Why wouldn't it? There is something fascinating about watching a party wrestle with its soul. It doesn't mean it is a smart place to be.

"The tragedy is that immense damage has already been done by a policy debate that, with some honourable exceptions, is defined by its irrelevance to the challenges of the modern world. We should be discussing how technology should revolutionise public services; how young people are not just in well-paid, decent jobs but also have the chance to start businesses that benefit their communities; how Britain stays united and in Europe; what reform of welfare and social care can work in an era of radical demographic change.

"Instead we're talking about bringing back Clause IV. There is a vast array of policy questions to answer. We're not even asking them right now. We know where this ends. We have been here before. But this sequel will be a lot scarier than the original. So write it if you want to. Go over the edge if you want. But think about those we most care about and how to help them before you do."

Ex-council flat fetches record £1.2m fee

A former council flat in central London has changed hands for £1.2m in what is thought to be a new record for an ex-local authority apartment.

The three-bedroom property near Covent Garden has been sold by the original buyers, who bought it from Westminster council in 1990 for £130,000 under the right-to-buy rules introduced by Margaret Thatcher. Although it failed to reach the initial asking price of £1.35m, the sellers are unlikely to have been disappointed with a return on their investment of more than 800%.

The property is not the first ex-council flat to be marketed for more than £1m this year. In May a two-bedroom home above Stella McCartney's boutique in Fulham came on to the market for £1.15m. Last year, two large houses were sold by Southwark council for almost £2.96m and are now back on the market for more than £3m each.

Situated in Siddons Court, a mansion block which was once entirely owned by Westminster council, the £1.2m flat is in a part of London popular with both buyers and renters. The 1,118 sq ft flat boasts its own private front door entrance, a third bedroom and an eat-in kitchen separate from the main reception room.

The estate agency that oversaw the sale described the area as a "fantastic location" just behind the Royal Opera House. However, its statement also explained why most would-be homeowners now see the centre of the capital as out of bounds. "With central London property prices at a premium, and with demand for properties far outstripping supply, we weren't surprised that this former council flat reached this impressive price."

Fergie: I'm no longer the Duchess of Pork!

■ Duchess of York credits QVC blenders for dramatic weight loss

Sarah, Duchess of York has appeared on the US shopping channel QVC, promoting a food blender and "pick me up" smoothies....

As she discussed the emulsifier, the Duke of York's ex-wife praised the American people for giving her daughters their mother back, thanking them for believing in second chances.

She joined a live demonstration on how to make a breakfast smoothie containing lemon peel, cayenne pepper, ginger and pineapple, and an iced coffee with whipped cream as she talked about the juicer from her Duchess Discoveries range.

'confidence'

The Duchess spoke of how she turned to the Fusion Xcelerator blender, which is being sold by QVC for $59.97, after she "ballooned up" in weight, but that she did not use a chef and made her smoothies herself to get back in shape.

She added: "Americans have been so good to me. They helped me build my confidence. They gave my children their mother back because they believed in second chance(s).

"I've made a few mistakes, put on weight and done this, that and the other and now because of the American people, I wanted to be really honest with them."

Speaking of how she was affected after she was targeted for her weight, she said: "No longer am I the Duchess of Pork ... or fat frumpy Fergie ... It broke my heart."

She had tweeted that she was looking forward to talking about Duchess Discoveries on QVC. She is appearing on the channel several times and a video clip of one of the segments was posted on the channel's website.

On the Buses star Lewis dead at 88

■ Veteran actor also starred as Smiler in Last of the Summer Wine

ACTOR Stephen Lewis has died at the age of 88, his family have confirmed.

The star made his name in the 1970s when he starred in sitcom On The Buses, playing jobsworth ticket inspector Blakey.

Stephen also played Smiler in the BBC's Last of the Summer Wine. According to his family, the actor died "quite peacefully" in a nursing home in Wanstead, east London, in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

He was "in high spirits" right until the end, his niece Rebecca Lewis said, adding that he had been in the care home for around three years.

Peter continued: "He had terrible arthritis in one knee which really badly affected him, and many years ago he had prostate cancer - and whether that had come back we don't know."

Stephen's nursing home manager, Rashid Ebrahimkhan, revealed the actor would often deliver his famous lines from On The Buses, including "I'll get you for this Butler" and "Get these buses out Butler".

Dad-to-be Andy: I feel ace

Former Wimbledon champion Andy Murray is not concerned about the impact the birth of his first child will have on his career.

Speaking before the opening of the Rogers Cup in Montreal, Murray said: "I'm not thinking what the impact [of becoming a father] will have on my career. I'm more concerned about the baby being healthy.

"We're both extremely happy and feel very lucky."

The 28-year-old's agent confirmed Murray and his new wife Kim Sears were expecting their first child together on 7 August 2015.

Murray added that: "[Sears' pregnancy] is very exciting news, but it's also private news."

However, although the newlyweds are keen to keep quiet about their baby news, Murray's father let slip who he wants the baby to look like.

Willie Murray, 60, told Hello! magazine: "It's stunning news. I'm so

The grandfather-to-be also gushed about his son and daughter-in-law, saying she will make a "great mum" and Murray will be a "great dad".

Meet a Member: Lara Clear

Meet Lara Clear from Highbury, London, who moved to LA 5 months ago to pursue acting

Was there a particular reason you chose to move to LA?
I moved to LA to work in TV and film. I have been in NYC for a few years as a stage actress. When I decided to switch mediums and pursue more TV and film I knew Los Angeles was the best place to be.

What do you miss most from home?
I miss my family and friends but I must say I do miss an English cup of tea (the water just seems different here!) Marks and Spencers, Arsenal FC games, Cadburys chocolate and the English sense of humour!

What was your first impression of LA?
My first impression of LA was that the weather was just too good to be true! And the palm trees are so tall! Those and the permanently gorgeous blue skies are picture perfect. It just made me feel very happy to wake up here every day. Santa Monica beach was lovely and I immediately felt like I was meant to live on the West Coast after visiting the beach.

What do you find is the biggest difference living here?
The biggest difference for me between living in Highbury, London and LA is that I don't get to go to the Emirates stadium weekly to see Arsenal in action! Also I miss hearing the London accent everywhere and seeing a lot of diverse culture, green grass, parks and being surrounded by nice architecture that gives London a historic, classic feel that is like no other place.

Do you have any favorite places that you would like to share with the group?
I think Lake Shrine Temple (in Pacific Palisades) is gorgeous - whenever I visit that place and just sit still for a few moments I feel recharged and energized ! No Vacancy and Davey Wayne's are some of favourite places to go out at night in Hollywood ! Planet Nails in West Hollywood is an amazing nail place!

Many people have preconceived ideas about LA, did you?
A lot of my New York friends told me every one in LA was going to be fake and not as nice as east coasters - I think that's one of the biggest misconceptions. I didn't think this before I moved here and I still don't now. I have met many great people . I did think that the city wouldn't have as much culture as it actually does. It does have a lot to see but you just have to look a little harder for it Any tips for anyone out there who is considering making LA their new home?

What I would suggest for people making the move to LA is to make sure your working papers are all in order first and that you get a car! I think you have to be willing to work very hard in LA because you are usually very far from home and your support system so you have to work hard to build a new life for yourself in such a big, vast space. And if you are pursuing a career in entertainment it's especially important to remain focused and to not be distracted by the Hollywood glitz and glamour and the party life that's readily available.

Movie Star: rise and fall in Hollywood

Exclusive interview with author Hilary Liftin and a review of her new novel about a mega-star couple

Rating: ★★★

"Celebrities with the juiciest stories don't necessarily want to share them," says Movie Star by Lizzie Pepper author Hilary Liftin, who was a ghostwriter for over ten years. "I was reading yet another article about a celebrity marriage imploding when it finally dawned on me, I could have the celebrity of my dreams at my disposal, dishing all, willing to risk everything, if I just invented her."

Inspired the real-life drama of the marriage and break-up of Katie Holmes and Tom Cruise, Movie Star by Lizzie Pepper is a breathless journey to the heights of Hollywood power and royalty. Life in the spotlight is at first sought, then impossible to escape. A story of Hollywood fame, romance and relationship. Full of twists and turns, if you like Hollywood drama this is for you. Told from Lizzie Pepper's point of view, it would have been nice to have more emotional details from Lizzie along the way. A light read, perfect for the airport or beach.

An American actress whose roles are usually girl-next-door, Lizzie Pepper meets Rob Mars, mega superstar. They have a whirlwind romance and celebrity wedding. Always on the cover of some magazine, the pair dominates the spotlight. Away from the spotlight, Lizzie's life is quite different, with lonely holidays in a sumptuous villa to her husband's deep commitment to a repressive cult, Lizzie reveals a side of fame that her fans have never seen.

Liftin says researching the book was fun. "I focused on lifestyles of the rich and famous. If I was an A-list celebrity, where would I go on vacation? Where could I get married? How might I try to keep it a secret? The best detail I found in my research was that there is actually a trailer, one of those trailers that stars use on movie sets, that is fully tricked out with LCD screens in place of windows. The screens project what is going on outside the trailer. To me that was the most amazing, hyper-digital-spy-age idea. That you would replace your windows with a video feed of what was actually going on outside."

Moving from ghostwriting to fiction presented some problems for Liftin. "So fiction was completely new territory, and I had the unfamiliar experience of sometimes writing myself down the wrong path. I threw out whole chapters at a time. At times it felt strange to move forward without the safety net of fact. But I did myself a service by choosing to write a fake celebrity memoir. I'd been at those reins before. My experience in shaping books helped me more than I knew it would."

Before Liftin started her ghostwriting career, she wrote two books under her own name. Dear Exile is a collection of letters that she exchanged with a friend when they were in their twenties. "She was in the Peace Corps in Kenya, and I was finding my way as a single girl in New York City," says Liftin. Candy and Me is a memoir of her life told through candy, with each candy triggering a memory of a specific time and place.

"After those two books, I was pretty much done talking about myself," says Liftin. "But I love the intimacy of the memoir, and so I took to ghostwriting right away. It's a chance to help tell the personal story of someone whose life is far more dramatic than my own. In the past ten years I've ghostwritten over fifteen nonfiction books."

Book Corner with

Liftin is based in Los Angeles. She was born in New York city and raised in Washington, D.C.

Getting those sarnies right...

What do you miss most from home?

If you are a regular reader of our Meet A Member feature you will know that whenever we ask that question the answer is usually 'family and friends', but most interviewees then go on to add what they really miss - their favourite food or drink that can often only be found in Britain or at a premium in select shops here.

On my most recent trip back to the UK I was of course delighted to catch up with my family and friends, but realized that my visit was so much sweeter by having access to unlimited supermarket cheese & onion sandwiches (ask any of my family members and they will concur). As we all probably know, Marks & Spencer were the pioneers of supermarket sandwiches, but contrary to popular belief they are not that new - they were first launched in 1929! I think they were discontinued due to food rationing during the war, but were relaunched in 1980 with the debut of 'Salmon & Tomato' which doesn't sound like a winner to me. However, their all-time best selling creation 'Prawn Mayonnaise' was on the shelves by 1981, which cemented the British public's relationship with the prepackaged sarnie (and the decline of lunchtime - but that is a another story).

When I first moved to LA I was infamous for my penchant for the plastic-wrapped tuna sandwiches from 7-Eleven - I would rather stick pins in my eyes than eat one now, but at the time I think I was particularly homesick and hoped that they would help fill the gap. I didn't really equate that my cravings were related to my pangs for the motherland, although with hindsight it is fairly obvious.

Cheese & Onion

Which leads me back to the present day...I always knew I enjoyed a cheese & onion s a n d w i c h e s pie/slice/pasty/crisps; but I never thought about trying to make one of them at home, until this week....

Upon researching the recipe I discovered that the cheese & onion sandwich is so popular that some grocery stores even sell the filling as a standalone product. So I thought it was only fair for me to share my discoveries with you. I took advantage of being in London this month and started with a Sainsburys, Marks & recce/field trip - this Spencers, Tesco and for entailed visits to Waitrose, good measure Morrisons.

They all tasted pretty much the same, but I noticed that Red Leicester, sweet onion, mayonnaise and multigrain bread were essential if I wanted to attempt this challenge. Thank goodness for Trader Joe's (I like to think I am partially responsible for the phrase 'thank heaven for 7-Eleven' too;)) - they stock all of the necessary ingredients, although being in SoCal the cheese is only available with jalapeños. I did mix in a bit of cheddar and a few chives for good measure, but by Jove I think I might have almost got it! The fact that it is not quite perfect only gives me an excuse to keep on trying and tasting - if anyone knows where to get untainted Red Leicester, please drop me a line at britsinla@gmail.com.

And if you want the recipe for my almost perfect sandwiches visit our website www.BritsInLA.com or drop us an email. If you have any similar recreation recipes that you want to share, don't hesitate to send them over to us and if we like them we will try them out.

Or maybe there is something you are missing from home? Would you like us to attempt to recreate it?

Look forward to hearing from you!

Cheers!
Eileen

'Super' Henry was once called fatty!

"Man from U.N.C.L.E." star Henry Cavill has told how his peers mocked him in school because he was an overweight kid. He was definitely not as popular in school as he is now.

Oh, Henry!

The British star said "I was teased, and it was hard. Even though for some it may be malicious, I think it's just kids being kids," adding that he has no hard feelings against those who made fun of him.

The experience has taught Cavill to "read people" and to remain grounded despite his fame and star persona.

"I became very much an observer, and that taught me an awful lot about people. Of course it's flattering when people say that [he is good-looking], but you've got to keep yourself aware of the fact that it's all perspective.

"There's one group of people saying that and there's one group of people who may not feel the same way," he said.

Cavill gained popularity as Superman/Clark Kent in "Man of Steel."

The film was one of the highest-grossing Superman films and went on to earn $668 million. He is reprising the role in the coming "Batman v.

Superman: Dawn of Justice." He will be seen taking on Ben Affleck's Batman.

The 32-year-old actor shared his experience of working with Affleck. He said the "Gone Girl" actor is "fantastic" and has a great sense of humor.

Cavill's new film, "Man from U.N.C.L.E.," is a spy comedy directed by another Brit, Guy Ritchie. Cavill is playing Napoleon Solo, an agent of U.N.C.L.E., or United Network Command for Law and Enforcement.

He teams up with Armie Hammer's character Illya Kuryakin to stop a criminal organization from proliferating nuclear weapons.

The film also stars Alicia Vikander, Elizabeth Debicki, Jared Harris and Hugh Grant. It opens this Friday.

"Supporter of females" Rita dismisses Brown backlash

Rita Ora has defended her controversial track "Body on Me" with convicted domestic abuser Chris Brown, insisting she is not a traitor to women.

And the hitmaker channeled her inner dominatrix on Wednesday when she stepped out in the Soho area of Manhattan (pictured, left). Clearly taking style inspiration from The Village People, the 24-year-old slipped into a form-fitted plunging leather mini dress which she teamed with a matching baker boy hat as she strutted around the city street.

The British singer recently came under fire for teaming up with the 26-year-old star – who was convicted of assaulting then-girlfriend Rihanna in 2009.

Ora told reporters: "I've been such a supporter of females for such a long time, you know, look at any of my interviews. I think the song speaks for itself."

"His voice really suited this record and I approached it with that in mind.

"I really just went into this collaboration with a clear mind of what vocally will sound the best, and what musically works.

"That, to me, made the most sense."

The jury is still out with Brown... but the track ROCKS!

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices/Sales.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2013-27162. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Ernest T. Ofeldt be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JOSEPH D. GARCIA Case No. BP165404

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JOSEPH D. GARCIA. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Martha Marie Flores in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Martha Marie Flores be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Sept. 9, 2015 at 8:30AM in Dept. No. 9 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

HOW DID WE GET HERE? Alastair Cook celebrates regaining the Ashes at Trent Bridge

COOK: Ashes victory was ‘beyond belief’

England captain Alastair Cook said his team’s resounding Ashes triumph over Australia was “beyond belief”.

Cook’s pre-series underdogs completed a second straight three-day victory over their opponents at Trent Bridge at the weekend to take an unassailable 3-1 lead in the series.

“To win as we have done is beyond belief,” Cook, 30, said.

“I didn’t think we were quite ready to win the Ashes because I thought you needed players who were match-hardened, but the guys out there surprised me.”

He added: “We’ve won really critical moments and players have made that big step from guys with little experience to match-winners for England.”

sceptical public

England lost the last Ashes series 5-0 in 2013/14, were knocked out of the World Cup in the group stages in March and drew their last two Test series with West Indies and New Zealand 1-1.

But after clinching victory by an innings and 78 runs in the Saturday sunshine at Trent Bridge, Cook hopes England’s attacking cricket has won over a sceptical public.

“We’ve tried to really enjoy every moment,” he said. “The big thing this summer has been trying to show people our talent and players in the dressing room have really thrived in that atmosphere we’ve tried to create.

“People are prepared to express themselves more than we have done in the past.”

The 5-0 whitewash in Australia led to Cook being criticised heavily for his defensive style of captaincy.

‘less stubborn’

And the skipper admitted he had adapted his leadership methods to embrace a young, energetic new team.

“I realised I had to change a little bit,” he said. “I had to be a less stubborn captain than in the past.

“Stubbornness gets you a long way in international cricket because you need that inner belief and self-belief that you are doing things your way.

“But I’ve certainly opened my ears to a number of people over the last six months and probably relaxed into it a little bit more as well.” And the win has cemented the reputation of Trevor Bayliss, England’s Australian coach who was appointed in May but only took charge for the first time in the first Test at Cardiff.

In going up against the country of his birth, the 52-year-old has been in opposition to a number of players he has worked with at New South Wales and the Sydney Sixers.

“I’m not going to gloat in front of Australia,” said Bayliss. “I know how much they will be hurting in that changing room.

“I’m not sure I’m surprised, but knowing the strength of the Australian team and the individual players and how good they are, I knew it was going to be a very difficult assignment.

“I think the Australian team is probably in a little bit of a transition period - but England were good enough to exploit those weaknesses. The skill they showed, with the movement they were able to extract out of the wicket, was a fantastic effort.

“Certainly when the boys took that last wicket, and the lap of honour, the hairs on the back of the neck were standing up.”

Dismal Soldado on his way home

Roberto Soldado is on the verge of a permanent move to Villarreal, with the Tottenham Hotspur striker having flown to his native Spain on Thursday morning to finalise the transfer.

The 30-year-old arrived from Valencia in August 2013 in what was a £26m deal, although Tottenham claim they only paid about £16m, with the rest to follow in add-ons, which Soldado did not fulfil.

Soldado has endured a difficult two seasons at White Hart Lane, in which he has scored only seven Premier League goals – four of them from the penalty spot.

Tottenham's outgoing sporting director, Franco Baldini, has been negotiating the sale to Villarreal and the club are happy they will cut their losses with a decent fee for him.

Erik Lamela, the Tottenham winger, tweeted his best wishes to Soldado, although he subsequently deleted the message. "I enjoyed these two years that we share," Lamela wrote. "I wish you well in your new club. Good luck friend."

Mauricio Pochettino, the Tottenham manager, was more circumspect, although he did confirm Soldado had been allowed to travel to Spain. "It is true that the club gave permission for Roberto to go to Spain,"

■ Manager should not expect new deal if team disappoints at Euro 2016, says FA bigwig

Roy Hodgson will lose his job as the England manager if the team fails in next year's European Championship, the Football Association's chief executive has said.

Martin Glenn said Hodgson has accepted that, and would not expect to be given a new contract if England have a bad tournament, because he is "a proud man".

Hodgson, whose current contract expires at the end of Euro 2016, suggested at last month's 2018 World Cup qualifying draw that he was not happy for his contractual position to be left until after the Euros, but Glenn said he has now met the manager to confirm that is the FA's position.

"I have spoken to Roy," Glenn said. "The air didn't really need clearing to be honest. I had a cup of coffee with him, which turned into a few drinks. We are all on the same page.

"Roy is a really good manager and he would be the last person in the world who if – and I don't think it will happen – but if we had a bad Euros, he would not expect to be kept on. He is a proud man."

Hodgson said at the draw in Russia that he wanted to continue in the job, and "did not know" if he was happy with leaving his contract discussions until after the Euros because that would lead to months of speculation.

'extra yard'

Glenn, however, said he believed that position was already clear, and that Hodgson has now accepted he will not be retained if England fail. The chief executive did not, however, state what level of performance in the Euros will be considered a failure.

The dance around Hodgson's contract started in March when the FA chairman, Greg Dyke, who was keen for the issue not to distract England from their Euro qualifying campaign, said that there would be no discussion of Hodgson's future for up to a year.

"We will have the discussion with Roy in the next nine months to a year. When we decided in Brazil that we wanted Roy to continue with his contract, we thought, 'He's got a contract, he sees it through.' Sometime in the next year we will discuss what happens afterwards."

Dyke said in March: "I get on quite well with Roy and I chat to him all the time. We have not talked about contracts yet. We genuinely haven't discussed it."

However Glenn, the former chief executive officer of United Biscuits,

HODGSON: the England manager's contract expires at the end of Euro 2016 had not taken up his office at that point and he indicated in July that Hodgson's role was dependent on the team's performance in France.

"Roy is a consummate professional and he knows how we want to work," he said then. "One of my values is, you pay for performance. Roy understands that if we have a great Euros, that will set him up well.

"So I think the past history of giving England managers long, long contracts, I can see why it gives certainty, but I like to have a bit of uncertainty to encourage people to go that extra yard to get results."

YOU SILLY MOU: the Chelsea manager threw a wobbler on the sideline Sunday

JOSE MOURINHO found himself at the center of yet another controversy this week as he was bitterly criticized for demoting team doctor Eva Carneiro following a confrontation between the two during Chelsea's 2-2 draw with Swansea at the weekend.

The fiery Portuguese manager was seen screaming in fury as Carneiro and head physio Jon Fearn ran on to the Stamford Bridge pitch –
