

Jeremy Corbyn 'to apologise over Iraq war' if he becomes leader, as he compares Isil attacks to America's

■ Leadership front-runner plans to issue a public apology on behalf of Labour over the Iraq War - and also suggests there should be "political compromise" with Isil

Corbyn has Jeremy suggested there should "political be а compromise" with Isil and compared their atrocities to America's actions in Iraq.

During an interview in 2014, the Islington North MP said the Islamist extremists had "some quite appalling" things but compared their attacks to what American troops did Fallujah, an Iraqi city.

separate In а development, Mr Corbyn revealed he would issue a public apology on behalf of Labour over the Iraq War if he becomes leader а move repeatedly resisted by Tony Blair.

'deception'

"It is past time that Labour apologised to the British people for taking them into the Iraq War on the basis of deception and to the Iraqi people for the suffering we have helped cause. Under our Labour, we will make this apology," he told the Guardian.

Commenting on Isil's advancement across Iraq last year and how the crisis could be ended, he suggested a "political solution" was needed.

The remarks were published a week after David Cameron warned Isil was "planning to attack" Britain and suggested the group had become the biggest threat the country was facing.

Mr Corbryn gave an interview to Russia Today last year discussing Isil's advancement across Iraq and how the authorities could wrestle back control from the extremists.

He said there needed to "acceptance and be understanding" about why Iraqis in the north of country the had "apparently been prepared to accept the Isil forces".

Mr Corbyn continued: "Yes, they are brutal. Yes, some of what they have done is quite appalling. Likewise what the Americans did in Fallujah and other places is appalling.

"But there has to be seen to be an acceptance of a much wider view of the world than is apparent at the present time by the [Nouri] Malaki government."

He later added: "I think there has to be a political solution. All wars have to end in some kind of political compromise. Why not start with a political compromise now rather than fuelling the war by putting more weapons, more arms and more money into the conflict."

hate preacher

John McTernan, Tony Blair's former political adviser, criticised Mr Corbyn's comments, telling Channel 4: "Wars are horrible, wars should be avoided. But the United States and IS are not the same."

separate In а development, it has emerged Mr Corbyn repeatedly pressurised the government over its decision to ban a hate preacher from entering Britain.

The Labour leadership frontrunner repeatedly questioned cabinet ministers about why Raed Salah had been barred from entering the country and subsequently

"It is past time that Labour apologised to the British people for taking them into the Iraq War on the basis of deception and to the Iraqi people for the suffering we have helped cause." - Jeremy Corbyn arrested in 2011.

Mr Corbyn made a total of five interventions in the House of Commons in Mr Salah's defence at the time – despite another MP warning he had a could end up splitting if "history of virulent anti-Semitism".

Fellow leadership hopeful Yvette Cooper on Thursday warned Labour Mr Corbyn is elected leader as she said the party appeared "to be polarising" between "different extremes".

Scottish economic growth 'longest since 2001'

Scotland's economy has seen its longest period of uninterrupted growth since 2001, according to the Scottish government's chief economist.

Gary Gillespie said the 11 consecutive quarters of expansion and upbeat forecasts for the future demonstrated the economy's underlying resilience.

But the growth was partly driven by one-off public sector building projects, he said.

And he warned the economy may not be keeping pace with consumer spending. In his latest State of the Economy report, Mr Gillespie also said there were signs of an impending rise in UK interest rates early next vear.

positive outlook

He said all main sectors of the economy grew, with a particularly strong performance in construction, but this was driven wholly by public sector building.

Forecasts point to a positive outlook for Scotland's economy for the rest of this year with growth of about 2.4% in 2015 predicted.

Deputy First Minister John Swinney said: "Our programme of investment in public infrastructure is paying off, helping support a particularly strong performance in the construction sector.

"The benefits from this investment will underpin future growth in the Scottish economy and is the appropriate response in order to support and grow the economy rather than the UK government programme of austerity."

108 years on, German couple find message in a bottle from British boffins

■ The bottle was released into the sea by George Parker Bidder in the early 1900s

A message in a bottle thrown into the sea 108 years ago by British scientists has been discovered washed up on a beach in Germany.

It is believed to be the oldest message-in-a-bottle ever found.

Marianne Winkler, a retired post office worker, found the message from the past while on holiday with her husband on the North Sea island of Amrum.

Mrs Winkler found the bottle in April, but was shy of publicity and the full story has only now emerged.

"It's always a joy when some one finds a message-in-a-bottle on the beach," she told the Amrum News, a local website.

"Where does it come from, who wrote it, and how long has it been travelling on the winds, waves and currents?"

But when Mrs Winkler stumbled on her message-in-a-bottle, she had no idea quite how old it would turn out to be.

Written on a piece of paper inside were the words "Break the bottle".

"My husband, Horst, carefully tried to get the message out of the bottle, but there was no chance, so we had to do as it said," Mrs Winkler said.

Inside they found a postcard with no date but a message promising a reward of a shilling to anyone who returned it.

The message, in English, German and Dutch, asked anyone who discovered the bottle to fill in some information on where and how they found it.

The return address was the Marine Biological Association in Plymouth.

"We did as it asked, and the story took its course," said Mrs Winkler. The couple sent the postcard to Plymouth in an envelope to avoid it getting damaged in the post.

"It was quite a stir when we opened that envelope, as you can imagine," Guy Baker, communications director at the Marine Biological Association, said.

It turned out the bottle was one of 1,020 released into the North Sea between 1904 and 1906 by George Parker Bidder, a former president of the association.

Bidder released the bottles as part of a project to find out about deep sea currents.

The bottles were specially designed to float just above the sea bed, so they would be carried by the currents deep below the surface.

"It was a time when they were inventing ways to investigate what currents and fish did," Mr Baker said.

"Many of the bottles were found by fishermen trawling with deep sea nets. Others washed up on the shore, and some were never recovered."

"Most of the bottles were found within a relatively short time," Mr Baker said. "We're talking months rather than decades.

The association had long given up hope of any more being traced.

scientific experiment

"It's not as if they come in and dribs and drabs," Mr Baker said. "I don't know when one was last sent in, but I don't think it was for very many years." It is thought the postcard Mrs Winkler discovered may be the oldest message-in-a-bottle ever found.

"We're still waiting for confirmation from the Guinness Book of Records," Mr Baker said.

The current record-holder spent 99 years and 43 days at sea. It was released in 1914 as part of a similar scientific experiment and found in 2013 in a fishing trawler's net. "It is impossible to tell whether the bottle has been at sea for all that time, or was washed up long ago and buried in sand, or even lay simply unnoticed, said Mr. Baker. But the association made sure of one thing:

Mrs Winkler got the shilling reward promised in the note.

"We found an old shilling, I think we got it on eBay," said Mr Baker. "We sent it to her with a letter saying 'Thank you'."

Ritz all over, Carson... tears flow as Downton cast film the show's last ever scene at the glamorous London hotel

It has long put on the style as one of the most celebrated dramas on British TV... so the final filming of Downton Abbey was always going to be a special occasion.

And where better to stage the show's last glamorous shoot than in the glittering setting of The Ritz?

The show's cast and crew gathered at the landmark London hotel this week to film the show's final ever scenes. On a highly emotional occasion, many members of the show's production team were dressed in 1920s fashion to appear as extras during filming in the Ritz's lavish ballroom. And vintage cars – including a Rolls-Royce _ were parked outside in Piccadilly. Actress Laura Carmichael – who plays Lady Edith – was there for the final hours of the shoot, staying from midnight until 6am.

emotional

And an emotional Lord Fellowes, the show's creator, was on hand to watch the camera roll one last time.

Speaking at a preview of the sixth and final series on Thursday, Jim Carter – who plays butler Carson – divulged details of the last shoot, saying: 'Midnight at the Ritz – that's the very end.'

The event marked the end of a highly emotional week for the cast and crew. On in Monday night, Michelle Dockery, who plays Ira Lady Mary Crawley, filmed her last ever scene in the servants' hall. And on Wednesday, Carson and the rest of the 'downstairs' staff also had their final scenes.

> A source at the shoot said: 'Some of the cast filled up and the sound guy and one of the grips – two big blokes – were in floods of tears.'

cuddling up

And in keeping with Downton's stature as one of the greatest British TV shows of all time, the wrap party was a pretty swanky affair too, as the cast celebrated their final night together with drinks and canapés at popular showbiz eaterie The Ivy in the heart of London's theatreland.

Michelle Dockery, Laura Carmichael, Hugh Bonneville and Elizabeth McGovern said their goodbyes to crew and fellow cast members, and Allen Leech and Lily James – who are both absent from the drama's last season, with their respective characters having decamped to America - were also in attendance, as was newcomer Patricia Hodge, who is set to star in the Christmas special. Phyllis Logan could also be seen cuddling up to on-screen love interest Jim Carter while Sophie McShera and Lesley Nicol, aka Daisy and Mrs Patmore, spent the evening by each others' side.

Calais mayor demands UK pay £17m 'compensation' for migrant chaos

THE MAYOR of Calais is demanding a £17.5 million compensation package FROM BRITAIN for the damage the French town has suffered from the ongoing migrant chaos.

Natacha Bouchart is blaming the UK's "lax asylum system and generous benefits culture" for attracting thousands of would-be asylum seekers to her town.

Ms Bouchart said it was "essential to ask for financial compensation to cover the economic damage" suffered by Calais and was demanding both Britain and France contribute an equal sum.

Ahead of a crunch meeting on Friday between French and British ministers over the crisis, she said: "I'm asking for 50 million euros (£35 million pounds) because it's difficult to evaluate the economic problems we've had for more than 15 years.

"If there isn't a favourable response, I see myself having the obligation to attack, to make a legal complaint against the governments, to the authorities to ensure a compensation ruling."

It came as France applied for £1.7 million in emergency EU funding to improve conditions for UK-bound migrants currently sleeping rough in Calais.

The move will intensify fears that the chaotic port town will continue to be a magnet for thousands of migrants from across the world trying to make their way to Britain.

It will be part of a deal expected to be signed between Home Secretary Theresa May and her French counterpart Bernard Cazeneuve when they meet in Calais.

The contents of the agreement have been kept tightly under wraps, but this week Interior Ministry sources in Paris confirmed that creating more places at the Jules-Ferry migrant camp - already dubbed 'Sangatte II' - will be a top priority for the French government.

The £3million camp currently provides showers, hot meals, an advice centre, and accommodation in refurbished cabins for up to 500 women and children.

It opened amid a wave of controversy in January, becoming the first permanent structure for migrants since the notorious Sangatte Red Cross camp was shut down in 2002.

Sangatte attracted huge numbers from around the world, before being closed as part of an earlier Anglo-French agreement.

The existence of the camp was a source of huge tension between the two countries, with suspicions that the French kept it open to encourage migrants to leave their shores for Britain.

An Interior Ministry source said: "The capacity of the Jules-Ferry centre could be increased after this agreement. More care is seen as a priority".

Man purse row gets Easy Jet passenger tasered

Police tasered a man on an Easyjet flight to Belfast this week after a row over taking on two pieces of hand luggage, including a "man purse". The man became "increasingly abusive", and so the police were called to the plane.

Fellow passengers described how a police officer spent around 20 minutes trying to persuade the man, who was aged in his 40s, to leave the aircraft peacefully.

Eventually however as the man became more upset and agitated they fired their tasers before removing him from the plane.

Gary Trainor, who was on board the 8.20am flight, said some passengers began getting worried that the incident might be terror-related. After landing in Belfast the actor and musician said: "I was in the middle of the plane and he was at the back so I wasn't really aware anything was wrong until I saw a police officer walk down the aisle.

"That is when lots of people started rubber necking to see what was happening. There was a black guy in his 40s and he seemed to be involved in a stand-off with the policeman. He kept saying that he had paid for his ticket and therefore had every right to be on the aircraft.

"It seemed to go on for about 20 minutes and things became increasingly heated. More police officers came on board and then eventually there was a scuffle and I saw they had drawn their tasers."

Ace prank Andy!

■ World No. 2 sheds dour image by posing as ice cream salesman to fool unsuspecting fans

Andy Murray belied his reputation as a hothead by showing a lighter side with a cool prank on an unsuspecting fan ahead this of week's Cincinnati Open in Ohio.

Donning a dodgy wig, hat and glasses, the tennis ace posed as an ice cream salesman though some fans tweeted that they'd noticed a resemblance...

The 28-year-old then took time to pose with Julie Boniface, who was delighted to meet the star and posted a selfie to her Twitter account. A spokesman for

Murray said: 'Andy is in Cincinnati for the tournament and was just larking about in disguise to see if people could recognise him.'

The 28-year-old Scot is taking part in the Cincinnati Masters just days after beating world number one, Novak Djokovic, for the first time since 2013.

Andy

ended his drought against Djokovic to win the Rogers Cup in Montreal at the weekend.

The British No 1 needed five championship points and three hours to see off the Serbian 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 in a tense final, snapping an eight-match losing streak against Djokovic in the process as he scooped his 35th career title.

With the two top seeds Murray has renewing their rivalry a

Baby names: Amelia and Oliver top England and Wales list (if you don't count Mohammed)

Oliver and Amelia were the most popular baby names in England and Wales in 2014 for the second year running.

Data from the Office for National Statistics shows that 6,649 baby boys were named Oliver, while 5,327 girls were called Amelia.

Jack, Harry and Jacob were the runners-up among the most popular boys' names, and Olivia, Isla and Emily for girls.

Characters from TV show Game Of Thrones have been inspiring some parents, with babies named Arya, Khaleesi and Tyrion.

Oliver topped the boys' table in Wales and seven of the nine English with regions, Muhammad heading the London list.

New entrants to the top 100 included Robyn, Nancy and Lottie for girls and Jackson, Joey and Ellis for boys.

For boys, Dexter has seen the largest increase in popularity over the past decade, and Kian had the biggest jump since last year.

Harper, the name David and Victoria Beckham chose for their daughter in 2011, has seen the largest rise in the girls' list. The name was 89th most popular in 2014 (up 3,636 places since 2004).

But for the first time the list brought controversy in its wake, with the Conservative magazine The Spectator accusing the ONS of political correctness because its did not reveal that Mohammed (with assorted variants) is now the most popular boys name in Britain. The magazine noted: "Examine the spreadsheet on the ONS website, and the raw figures reinforce the BabyCentre survey: Mohammed really is the single most popular name. The totals it gives are Muhammad 3588, Mohammed 2536, Mohammad 1116, a total of 7240. There were, by contrast, 6649 Olivers, 5804 Jacks and 5379 Harrys. You can get to 7555 if you add the Olivers to the 906 Ollies. But then Oliver and Ollie are not really the same name. The latter is a shortened, bastardised version of the former. Muhammad/Mohamme d/Mohammad, on the other hand, are different transliterations of the same name, and are pronounced the same. There is no other name where different spellings come close to challenging it. "Ten years ago, the

ONS was quite happy to announce in its press release that Mohammed then apparently the preferred spelling - had

y sentenced for harassing ex Former footy star Colin Hendr

FORMER Scotland football captain Colin Hendry was sentenced to a 12-month community order on Wednesday for harassing his ex-girlfriend after she ended their relationship. Hendry, 49, will also have to perform 100 hours of unpaid work after he pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing to sending up to 10 unwanted text messages and emails a day to beautician Sarah Kinder. The former Blackburn Rovers defender had also admitted making unwanted visits to her home not far from his in Lytham St Annes. Lancashire.

He twice threw stones at her bedroom window to try to get her attention. The harassment began after they split in March this year and lasted for several weeks. Hendry was described as being in "emotional tourmoil".

The father-of-four began seeing Miss Kinder in 2009 after the death of his wife Denise, 42, from botched cosmetic surgery.

Hendry captained his country during the 1998 World Cup and played for clubs including Manchester City, Bolton Wanderers and Glasgow Rangers.

He said after the hearing in Blackpool: "I don't mind getting my hands dirty."

Meet a Member: Esmay and Max Luck

Meet Esmay and Max Luck from London who moved to LA a year ago to pursue music.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? We had met so many people over the last few vears who had either seen us perform or heard our music and subsequently told us, "you guys should go to California, they'd love you!" So we made it our goal to at least get here and see what we could achieve. A few doors opened - we won an international songwriting competition in Nashville for one of our songs, managed to secure US working visas, and then met someone who was willing to offer us a starting base - a place to stay here in California. We had a few friends over in Los Angeles and it struck us as somewhat of a 'no brainer'.

from home?

Well, London is our home; we have family and friends and so many memories growing up, spending time in different areas of London. We miss them all - just being able to wander the streets, crossing from one area to another. There's a lot of history and beautiful buildings there, and it's great how you can wake up, walk over to Camden market, into Primrose Hill, look out over the skyline towards St Paul's, head into a pub, get lunch and then jump on a bus or a tube and be right in the middle of Regent Street in half an hour.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

LA is always on, wild, hot sun shining through What do you miss most blue skies onto hot pavements and asphalt roads, populated by some of the world's most beautiful people and a ton of cars. It can be glitzy and glamorous in parts, and tough in others, but almost everyone is here for one reason - to make it.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

The 'can-do' attitude of the people, the mindset. That's why we are here. "You want to get something done? Sure, let's go do it right now...'

Do you have any hidden gems in LA that you want to share with us?

'Bar Ama' in downtown is amazing for Mexican food, 'Beaming' does great healthy food and shakes when you feel like you can't eat another 'Plan Check' burger - which are awesome. 'Cecconis' is a must at happy hour for some of the best Italian food and drink in California and probably best Negronis on the planet.

A lot of people have misconceptions about LA - did you?

No, it's all true. Jk. Not really 'misconceptions', but it is true there is a struggle here, and people are all pushing to be seen, heard and discovered.

What would vou suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Try and make some connections before you come, just so you can find your way a little when you arrive. # Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: This is the time of year when you feel like taking off or avoiding work, but it is not advisable at this time. After month's end will be better for all kinds of activities and your patience in any area will help your general outlook.

TAURUS: You are ready for a change in pace with the sun in your cousin sign Virgo you are due for this and ready to move life forward a bit faster and with good results. By the end of this month you will have accomplished plenty.

GEMINI: Time to slow your pace this week and prepare for what you want to catch up with.

Around the end of last week you likely felt ready for a break, this should be considered after the end of the month it will be less stressful then.

CANCER: If you are traveling be sure you have a tight hold on your cash as either by design or accident money could be scarce. Keep an eye on what others are spending close to you also. The powerful Jupiter is in a good place for you. LEO: If you take that leap of faith be sure you are ready; this is not the best time in the year to go where angels fear to tread. So be in control of your life not at the mercy of it. Life should be getting better overall.

VIRGO: Any frustrations you have in any area of life, most likely the work arena, will not get better by complaining about things. So bite the bullet and get going on what needs to be done soon. Whatever vou do, have a Happy Birthday.

LIBRA: If all is not well in your general area of being you will find you can deal with life much better when you feel fit. So this will be the best time of the year to start the plan and to not procrastinate. Have fun while feeling better! SCORPIO: You could be feeling less than your best this week due in part to your boss Mars in Leo. He is bringing up thoughts and feelings you may not be aware of. Take time to rest as much as possible and next week is way better. SAGITTARIUS: A new venture will brighten up your life in more ways than one. Be dressed to be noticed this week ahead, especially in any social occasion as an opportunity can arise for career opportunities and now your boss Jupiter is in Virgo he will seal any deal.

CAPRICORN: The feeling of being alone may be here or just past. This is only a feeling and it's to teach you that all changes in life start with your thought process. Make sure you are thinking in a positive way. Jupiter, the Santa Claus of the planets in your cousin sign Virgo, will help.

AQUARIUS: It's the time of year to celebrate, especially if you have been out of sorts or a little blue moody recently. You will find when we move into the time of Virgo life will be calmer for you and a family situation is open for discussion- finally.

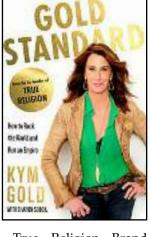

PISCES: You are the only one who can set your own boundaries and take a leading role in who decides what you will do. Be ready for an unexpected expense, to be prepared will make it a lot easier to deal with. Lighten up, life is good!

Gold standard: more than good jeans...

Exclusive interview with author Kym Gold and a review of her book and philosophy on living well

Rating: ★★★★

"I had always wanted to write a book," says Gold Standard author Kym Gold. "Not only to set the record straight regarding involvement mv as co-founder of True Religion Brand Jeans, but also to use my vast experience of thirty years in the fashion industry to pass along advice to younger future designers on the business side of the fashion industry. Hopefully, saving them time and money in their own pursuits."

True Religion Brand sells Jeans premium denim at Nordstrom, Bloomingdales, Saks 5th Ave, and 900 branded boutiques in 50 countries. Priced at $250 and up, the jeans are handmade in America. Founded in 2002 Gold bv and her then-husband Jeff Lubell, True Religion was purchased by Tower Brook Capital Partners in 2013 for nearly $1 billion. Kym Gold shares her life lessons, both professionally and personally in the book. She was married to Survivor producer Mark Burnett before he struck it big in TV. Gold met Burnett when she worked as a hostess at a restaurant. Gold started a t-shirt company and Burnett worked for her. The two married and started working for Gold's stepfather. Gold found out that Burnett was having an affair with his future wife Dianne Valentine and ended their marriage. She then married Lubell. They produced three sons and the two co-foundered True Religion Jeans. She was blindsided when her marriage to Lubell ended and she was pushed out of her company on the same day. Gold's story about the growth of True Religion and her personal journey are lessons that will inspire you.

"Although it is cathartic to write your memoir, it is also painful putting those stories into words and having to relive them all over again," says Gold. Her mantra, "I'm looking for a yes, not looking for a no," is what led her to launch True Religion Brand Jeans.

Gold's advice when launching a business is to consider who, what and how. "Who am I selling to?" says Gold. "What am I selling? How do I sell it? If you start with these three basic principles, you will simplify and clarify your business venture from the start. Have a strong mission statement and stick to it. Know your product well and keep that product narrow and deep. Less is more in the beginning."

Gold is a great believer in making lists. "It is a constant goal to get everything done on my short term daily lists," says Gold. "I can usually do this without problem. For long term lists with business and production, I have a good strong support team who help tremendously. I am a very detail-oriented person and the driving force who will double check the follow through on everything." Gold is a consultant for several branded companies and working on deals for designing new lines for celebrities through her agent at APA. With the help of publicist Claire McKinney, Gold is about to start a book tour.

"I will be at Book Soup on September 12th, and we are working on a speaking event with the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising in Los Angeles for the fall," says Gold. "I am also in development with a network for the TV movie based on the book. I am especially thankful for all the people in my life who

Notes from the Motherland...

Hi Breeps!

It's week four of my "back to the motherland" trip and I'm awfully glad to say I have finally lost my American twang. Although I have to admit that on several occasions I have asked for the check and have taken the elevator...Yes my UK friends are all to eager to correct me and take the piss a bit, and who can blame them? It's an interesting yet exciting time in the UK; of course it's the summer and everyone's spirits tend to be moderately elevated, the streets of Soho are full with the suited and booted drinking pints of warm beer and having a good ol' natter. And even on a cloudy day, the folks are in vests (tank-tops), shorts and flip-flops, which by the way, I still don't quite understand the attraction to; walking around the dirty pavements (sidewalks) of London in the latter, the filth and grime attached your perfectly to pedicured feet is (and never will be) a good look.

The art of conversation is not lost here, as I noticed how interesting and interested people in the UK are and have great stories to share, and very rarely do they talk about their work, but instead lovely, lively conversation. Everyone seems to be very up on their current affairs and welcome friendly debate.

I also love how we the Brits, even having not seen someone for a long time, will instantly embrace you and seem genuinely pleased to see you.

British originals

Once again, perhaps it's weather the and spending most of my time in the new Soho House property, at 76 Dean Street, which I love, or my other new favorite place, Liberty's,, the venerable old department store just off of Regent Street where I did some serious damage. I spent quite a lot of time in the confectionary department musing over their new selection of 'funnily named' chocolate bars, Summer Pudding, Culture Shock, Mess, Eton Space Hopper and Spotted Dick (it's a dessert, Americans).

One truly amazing and very British place is Hoxton Street Monster Supplies, which sells 'bespoke and everyday items for the Living, Dead or Undead'. Their

The best weather I've had so far was in my hometown of Nottingham, where I spent a lot of time taking long walks with my mum and spending some quiet time with my dad on his allotment - yes they do exist - check out some of the videos I've created on Vine or YouTube - look for me under Craig Robert Young.

Finally: my fiancé came in for a quick visit at the weekend to scout for wedding venues. And I think we have selected the one. So look out for an announcement in this very paper ;-) We also went to see the great Imelda Staunton's phenomenal turn as Mamma Rose Lee in "Gypsy" at the Savoy and stopped off for a cheeky cocktail afterwards at the hotel's newly renovated bar - try the Illusionist - a themed cocktail that comes with a story, a rose and a side of London Fog - for real!!! Now I'm up in

Edinburgh, to see 14 shows in 4 nights - The Trip to be continued... Till next time! Cheers, Craig

Supermodel Cara to quit modelling?

British supermodel Cara Delevingne (pictured, right) surprised us all earlier this week after she hinted she may be about to quit her career as a model after claiming it has made her hate her body.

Oo-er!

In fact, she is so certain the catwalk is not her future she admits she is "not doing fashion work any more."

The 23-year-old star opened up about the cut-throat industry in her most candid chat ever.

"It [modelling] didn't make me grow at all as a human being.

"And I kind of forgot how young I was. I felt so old.

"I was, like, fight and flight for months. Just constantly on edge," she told The Times.

Before adding: "It is a mental thing as well because if you hate yourself and your body and the way you look, it just gets worse and worse."

Things got so bad for the London based model that she developed the skin infection psoriasis – forcing her to cover her skin in foundation at every runway show she worked.

She said: "People would put on gloves and not want to touch me because they thought it was, like, leprosy or something."

After rocketing to superstardom at the age of ten, Cara found herself in constant demand by designers who encouraged her to be as sexual as possible when she hit her teens – something she said made her feel sick.

"I am a bit of a feminist and it makes me feel sick. It's horrible and it's disgusting.

"You start when you are really young and you do, you get subjected to ... not great stuff."

In recent months, Cara has focused her attention to acting with roles in Paper Towns and the Christmas blockbuster Pan.

Well, after her impressive performance in Paper Towns, I am sure Cara won't have anything to worry about by missing out on a few modelling jobs... Her acting career, I am sure, is set to soar!

Throwback! Factor's Raign a dead ringer for our Amy....

If Amy Winehouse was not long gone I swear, after seeing this pic I would have been convinced that somewhere out there she was alive and kicking ...and back on stage!

Earlier this week, singer Raign posted a throwback pic on her Facebook page that shows her performing dressed up as Winehouse, and by golly she is a dead ringer for the late superstar...

You must remember Raign, real name Rachel Rabin? She was that feisty contestant who appeared on last year's X Factor (UK) and tried to convince the judges (all but Cheryl) that she had what it takes to be Britain's newest star. Well, all didn't go exactly to plan...and the singer failed to go through to the finals after a much-publicized spat with that annoying judge Cheryl Fernandez-Versini, and sadly that was the end of Raign's TV reign so to speak...

However, since this picture was posted it has ignited much interest and Raign's army of loyal fans who are now demanding more Raign, as Winehouse.

Raign told the BW: "It's a funny story how it all came about, I was doing karaoke in Surbiton, England singing the famous Amy track, Black to Black just for fun and a girl came up to me and said her boyfriend was a guitarist in a band and they needed an Amy Winehouse-style singer.

"Next thing, I went to an audition three weeks later. I got the job and that was that."

We all know that Raign can sing, bless her heart... So how about you pen 'Amy' the musical?

Go on girl, give it a go!

Put in to bat by England captain Alastair the Cook, tourists progressed to 287-3 at The Oval.

But with the pitch and weather doing little to assist England's bowlers, Australia were much more disciplined with the bat and negotiated the morning session without losing a wicket.

international, who was thought to be on the verge of a move to United until Cesc Fabregan reportedly intervened on behalf of the Blues, is a product of Catalan club's the academy and has scored goals in 99 326 appearances since his debut in 2008.

He made 50 appearances for the European champions last season and has won the Champions League three times, scoring a goal in the 2011 final against United, as well as five La Liga titles.

He also won the World Cup and European Championship with Spain in 2010 and 2012 respectively.

Pedro made three for appearances Barcelona this season and came off the bench to score the winner in the 5-4 Uefa Super Cup victory over fellow Spanish side Sevilla.

United manager Louis Van Gaal is said to be livid over the development, but is now considering a big-money move for Atletico Madrid forward Antoine Griezmann.

According to The Mail, United are admirers of Griezmann, who featured for France at the last World Cup, but Atletico have inserted a £56m buy out clause in the player's contract, which could put even the big spending United off.

Another alternative to Pedro is Southampton's Sadio Mane, according toThe Telegraph.

The paper reported yesterday that United made a bid for the Senegal international last week and are considering making a second one.

The figure offered last week was in the region of £15m, and Southampton are insisting that he is not for sale.

United though have raided the Saints for Luke Shaw and Morgan Schneiderlin over the last two summers, and Van Gaal is reportedly keen to force a deal through for Mane.

A less likely signing, that though one continues be to speculated about, is that of Thomas Muller from Bayern Munich.

According to The Star, Muller will be allowed to leave the Allianz Arena, but only if he puts in a transfer request.

Finally Rodney Marsh has claimed that Karim Benzema is heading for the Emirates after Real Madrid accepted a £48m bid for the striker. Marsh, the former Fulham, QPR and Manchester City star told Talksport on Thursday that a reliable source had assured him that the Gunners would wrap up a deal for the French international before the close of the transfer window next week.

City sign £32m Otamendi

Manchester City have Pellegrini said: "He's signed defender Nicolas Otamendi from Valencia on a five-year deal worth £32m.

City will pay an initial £28.5m for the Argentina international, who was named in La Liga's 2014-15 team of the season and played in the Copa America final.

'To be here inside a club that looks so wonderful from the outside is a dream," said the 27-year-old ex-Porto player.

strong, he's excellent in the tackle and he's very good technically."

The Chilean added: "He is an established international for one of the best nations in world football and I have no doubt that he has the right mentality to fit into a squad where he will find many familiar faces, including Eliaquim [Mangala] and Fernando, who he played alongside in Portugal."

Argentina Former City manager Manuel coach Diego Maradona gave Otamendi his first senior cap when he was called up for the 2010 World Cup qualifier against Panama.

He was a member of the squad that qualified for the tournament in South Africa, but was dropped by coach Alejandro Sabella for the World Cup in Brazil four years later.

Otamendi is City's third major summer signing following the arrival of England internationals Raheem Sterling and Fabian Delph.
