Short honeymoon for new Labour leader

■ Corbyn strolls to victory in party vote - then comes under fire for NOT singing the national anthem at RAF memorial service

Jeremy Corbyn has endured a controversial first week following his overwhelming victory in the Labour leadership contest at the weekend.

The unabashed left-winger cruised to victory with almost 60 per cent in the first round of voting at the weekend, a landslide victory which saw him take 251,000 of the total 422,000 votes cast. He won the most support from members, registered supporters and affiliated members alike.

Yet Corbyn came under fire almost immediately for pointedly refusing to sing the national anthem during an RAF service 75th marking the anniversary of the Battle of Britain on Tuesday, prompting Tory MP Sir Nicholas Soames, Winston Churchill's grandson, to describe Corbyn's behaviour was "very rude and very disrespectful".

In his victory speech, Mr Corbyn said: "During these amazing three months, our party has changed. We have grown enormously, because of the hopes of so many ordinary people for a different Britain, a better Britain, a more equal Britain, a more decent Britain. They are fed up with the inequality, the injustice, the unnecessary poverty. All those issues have brought people in in a spirit of hope and optimism."

'utterly boring'

Mr Corbyn also revealed he is planning a shake-up of Prime Minister's Questions to allow other Labour MPs to ask questions in his place sometimes. He told the Huffington Post: "I want prime minister's Question Time to be less theatre, more fact, less theatrical, more understandable. I think it's very exciting for political obsessives, it's utterly boring for most of the population, who think it's an utter irrelevance. I will be trying to conduct my part in prime minister's Question Time on the basis of the questions and also share out a lot more stuff in within the parliamentary Labour party. I'll obviously be there and do all the things that I'm asked to do. But we've got a lot of very talented people within the parliamentary Labour party. They can call ask questions, they can all do things, let's share it all out a bit. It won't all be me everywhere all the time."

"It's a whole party, and a whole movement. We are about bringing people on, not stopping people."

He reasserted his message that Britain does not need nuclear weapons – ahead of a plan to persuade his party to back his controversial stance.

And his refusal to sing the national anthem

NO WORDS? Jeremy Corbyn at Tuesday's service in London's St. Paul's Cathedral marking the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Britain.

found some unlikely backing from James Gray, a Conservative MP and a member of the Defence Select Committee, who said: "The fact he was there properly dressed, wearing a tie, good on him. Well done him.

"He is a pacifist and not a royalist but he has gone along and stood in the front row," he said. In a statement released by the Labour Party before the event, Mr Corbyn pair tribute to those who fought in the Battle of Britain.

"My mum served as an air raid warden and my dad in the Home Guard," he said.

"Like that whole generation, they showed tremendous courage and determination to defeat fascism. The heroism of the Royal Air Force in the Battle of Britain is something to which we all owe an enormous debt of gratitude.

"The loss of life - both civilian and military - should be commemorated so that we both honour their lives and do all that we can to ensure future generations are spared the horrors of war."

BCC to blame for 'no' vote, claims Salmond

■ Former First Minister renews attack a year on from historic referendum

Biased reporting by the BBC in the lead up to S c o t l a n d ' s i n d e p e n d e n c e referendum last year was a "significant factor" in the country deciding to remain part of the Union, Alex Salmond has claimed.

In an interview with The Independent exactly a year on from the historic vote, Scotland's former First Minister renewed his attack on the BBC's coverage of the referendum, saying his "biggest regret" of the campaign was not foreseeing the extent of its "institutional bias".

Mr Salmond also launched extraordinary broadside the against wider Scottish media, describing the country's right wing press as "prejudicial, short sighted lunatics" who "infect" social media purposefully slanted articles.

"I think what decided the referendum was the renewed scaremongering campaign, and the BBC was one of the chosen instruments of that scaremongering," the former SNP leader said. "My biggest regret of the campaign is I didn't anticipate that the BBC would be as biased as they were."

On the prospect of a second referendum, Mr Salmond said the Yes side would win another vote if it were held tomorrow. He added that the BBC's influence would be lessened because the corporation had "managed to wreck the greatest broadcasting reputation in the world" and was now "in crisis in terms of its relationship with the people of Scotland".

Singling out the Scottish editions of the Daily Mail and Daily Telegraph for further criticism, Mr Salmond said some of the titles' journalists produced "not just right wing

3,000 homegrown extremists, says MI5 boss

MI5 and anti-terrorism police are monitoring more than 3,000 homegrown Islamic extremists willing to carry out attacks in Britain, security sources have said.

British men and women, many in their teens, are being radicalised to the point of violence within weeks, MI5 warned on Thursday.

Investigators have also detected a significant overlap between Islamist suspects and those suffering mental health problems, leaving them vulnerable to grooming. The NHS now has full-time staff attached to

The scale of the domestic threat was revealed after Andrew Parker became the first MI5 director-general in the agency's 106-year history to give a live broadcast interview. Intelligence officials had foiled six plots in the past year, he said yesterday, calling on internet giants to help in the fight.

Mr Parker told BBC Radio 4: "Most of the people who try to become involved in terrorism in this country are people who were born and brought up here, have come through our education system, and have nonetheless concluded that the country — their home country and the country of their birth — is their enemy."

'Thatcher should be on $10 bill'

US Republican presidential hopeful Jeb Bush has picked former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher as his choice for the face of the $10 bill.

The former Florida governor made the surprise suggestion during Wednesday's televised debate for the top Republicans vying for the presidential nomination.

All 11 candidates were asked who they would choose, now the US Treasury has announced plans to put a woman on the redesigned note.

Mr Bush's choice drew applause.

"I would go with Ronald Reagan's partner, Margaret Thatcher," he said, noting it was "probably illegal" and unlikely to happen because she is not American.

But he added: "A strong leader is what we need in the White House, and she certainly was a strong leader that restored the United Kingdom into greatness."

He was not the only Republican to pick a foreigner to grace the new note, which comes into circulation in 2020.

Mother Teresa was the choice of the Governor of Ohio, John Kasich.

Woman convicted for impersonating man to dupe friend into having sex

■ Gayle Newland found guilty of three counts of sexual assault after asking woman to wear blindfold during meetings with 'Kye Fortune'

A woman has been found guilty of sexual assault for pretending to be a man in order to trick one of her friends into having sex with her while wearing a blindfold.

Gayle Newland, 25, protested her innocence from the dock at Chester crown court after being found guilty of three counts of sexual assault on Tuesday.

She had admitted using a male alter-ego called Kye Fortune to chat up girls online, saying she was not comfortable with being a lesbian and found it easier to approach women that way. But she denied sexual assault, claiming her accuser. also aged 25, always knew she was pretending to be a man as they engaged in roleplay while struggling with their sexuality.

The pair had sex about 10 times until on one occasion the complainant took off the blindfold and saw Newland wearing a prosthetic penis, her breasts restrained by bandages under a swimming costume, her long hair covered by a hat.

On Tuesday, a jury of eight women and four convicted men defendant. Willaston, the Wirral, of three counts of sexual assault by penetration, which took place at the complainant's flat. She was cleared of two similar offences said to have taken place at Chester: in largely after her defence was able to prove she had not purchased the prosthetic penis until after those encounters.

The jurors reached majority verdicts on which 10 of them agreed on each of the three guilty counts after six hours and 11 minutes of deliberation.

He told Newland the consequences of her behaviour "may be serious", prompting her anguished response: "How can you send me down for something I have not done?"

She will be sentenced in November following assessments by psychiatrists and probation.

The complainant's case was that she was so desperate to be loved that she suspended her two-and-a-half relationship Newland, whom she truly believed was a man called Kye Fortune. Kye told her he was insecure about his body, having muscle tone following treatment for a brain tumour and a car accident. Because of these body consciousness issues, he asked her to wear a blindfold every time they met, even when watched films together or went out in "his" car.

She agreed. Giving evidence last week, the complainant said: "Every time I met up with Kye Fortune, I either had the mask on already or he would wait outside the door and I would put it on. I was so desperate to be loved. It's pathetic, so desperate for love, so desperate."

She was heterosexual, she insisted, and thought Newland was too. She admitted she had been perhaps foolish to have sex with someone she had never seen in the flesh, but insisted she only ever consented to sleeping with a man, not a woman wearing a prosthetic device.

"Depressed" Frank Bruno back in hospital after relapse in long fight against bipolar disorder

Boxing legend tells reporters: "This may well be the toughest fight of my life, but I'll do all I can to win it"

Frank Bruno has been readmitted to hospital after suffering a devastating relapse in his bipolar disorder battle.

The boxing legend, who has been sectioned three times in the past 12 years, went voluntarily with a "severe bout of depression".

Just days ago Frank looked happy and relaxed as he posed for pictures with fans after finishing the Great North Run charity event.

'terribly sad'

But the 53-year-old was hiding the anguish of his continuing struggle against bipolar disorder.

One close friend said: "It is terribly sad but Frank has been struggling for the last few weeks now and needed to get some help.

"He has taken this step in a bid to try to make sure he gets better and back to his best as soon as he can.

"All that matters now is that Frank focuses on getting well and his recovery. Frank's a fighter and this is a battle he is determined to win."

His spokesman Dave Davies added: "After a very busy period Frank decided to seek medical assistance to help with a severe bout of depression."

Frank was due to talk about his glittering career at a dinner in Lincoln on Friday night but pulled out due to his illness.

Boxer David Haye will host the event.

harrowing detail

Three years ago Bruno told the Sunday Mirror he wanted to be out for good after another spell battling the condition on a psychiatric ward.

Speaking in harrowing detail about being sectioned twice in the space of six months following a relapse, he said: "I was in there five weeks but it felt like five years. It is harder than being in the ring.

"At least in boxing it is 12 rounds and then you come out. In hospital I could never see when it was going to end.

"I felt it was a bad place for me. In the end all I wanted to do was get out.

"Now I am out I want to stay out. I take my medicine and I do what the doctors say. I am just working on staying alive.

"After I got out I remember sitting at home looking at my belts again. I hold my memories of boxing very, very close, in many ways it does inspire me.

"This may well be the toughest fight of my life, but I'll do all I can to win it much-loved

Frank told how he got through the ordeal by doing 4,000 press-ups a night and by praying to God. But he told how during one hospital stint another patient had tried to stab him.

Last year, the dad-of-four joined Care and Support Minister Norman Lamb in a campaign trying to improve the care offered by the Government to people suffering with conditions such as bipolar and depression.

He was widely credited in helping bring about improvements.

Frank, who remains one of Britain's most-loved sports stars despite quitting the ring 16 years ago, has openly spoken about his illness in the past and the need to break down mental health stigma.

Brian Close: remembered as one of the bravest cricketers of all time

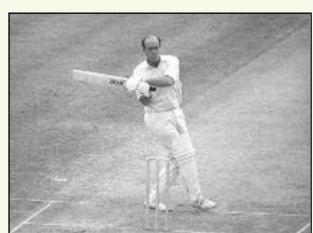

Brian Close, the former England, Yorkshire and Somerset cricket captain, has passed away aged 84.

Close became the youngest player ever to represent England at 18 and went on to lead his country seven times in 22 Tests.

He died on Sunday after a long illness with cancer. His death was confirmed in a statement by Yorkshire CCC on Monday morning, who remembered him as "one of Yorkshire and England's greatest ever captains and one of the game's most courageous players".

Retired Test umpire Dickie Bird also paid tribute to Close as an "all-time great".

"He will go down as one of the bravest cricketers of all time," he said. "He is Yorkshire's most successful post-war captain - winning the County Championship on four occasions - and will always be regarded as one of the best skippers in the game.

Brian Close: the former England, Yorkshire and Somerset captain died this week. He was 84.

"He led from the front and never took a back step. He commanded huge respect from his fellow players. He had the ability to get the best out of every player under his stewardship with his fearless and brave approach to the game."

long career

Born in February 1931 in Rawdon, a small Yorkshire village, Close's all-round sporting talent soon caught the eye of the professionals, not just at Yorkshire but also at Leeds United, for whom he would make six appearances as a forward – scoring twice – and twice more for Bradford City. He also played once for Arsenal, and won an England Under-18 cap against Scotland at Pittodrie.

But cricket was his first love and he abandoned his other pursuits to concentrate on the sport, being rewarded with a long career which brought him 22,650 runs and 967 wickets in a 21-year stint at Yorkshire. He played his last first-class match at the age of 55, finishing only six runs short of 35,000 career runs at that level.

UK set for 'coldest winter in 50 years'

BRITAIN is facing the America most savage winter in more than 50 years with months heavy of snowfall and bitter Arctic winds set to bring the country to a total standstill.

Sub-zero temperatures and violent snow storms could hit as soon as late October as a freak ocean cooling in the Atlantic threatens to trigger a historic, nationwide whiteout.

Emergency services have been warned to prepare for a repeat of the devastating 1962/63 winter which saw rivers and lakes freeze over across Britain.

The shock warnings have also sparked fears Britain could face fuel and food shortages as roads and transport networks grind to a halt.

Meteorologists and oceanographers warn plunging ocean temperatures in the Atlantic are at the root of the crisis.

Temperatures in the Gulf Stream - the warm ocean current which runs up the east coast of plummeted over the past vear.

The stream merges into the North Atlantic Drift which normally pushes warm water towards the west coast of the United Kingdom.

However a drastic reduction in speed and temperature of the current has left Britain without any buffer to a bitter Arctic influx.

Experts fear a repeat of the worst winter in history which temperatures plunge to near -20C in January 1963 causing the sea to freeze off the Kent coast.

Madden, James forecaster for Exacta Weather, said the Gulf Stream has been rapidly winding down over the past 12 months.

He said experts had feared an especially severe winter last year after signs emerged during the autumn.

However a 'lag effect' helped narrowly dodge a crippling whiteout although this winter now threatens to bring the much-feared mega-freeze.

British hero dies after falling 14 storeys trying to save suicidal teenager in Hawaii

■ Thomas Bennett, 24, is believed to have fallen to his death while attempting to stop a teenager committing suicide

A young British man who died after falling 14 storeys trying to save a suicidal teenager has been hailed as a hero.

Thomas Bennett fell to his death from an accommodation block at University of Hawaii in Honolulu.

The 24-year-old, who came from Plymouth, Devon, but lived in Hawaii, had been attempting to rescue a teenager from a window ledge.

But the rescue mission ended in tragedy as both men fell.

Mr Bennett was killed, while the 19-year-old survived the incident but was left in a critical condition.

TRAGIC FALL: Thomas Bennett of Plymouth, Devon died attempting to save the life of a 19-year-old at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu in the fall, including two broken legs, a broken arm, a collapsed lung, a partially broken back and internal bleeding.

The Honolulu Medical Examiner said British-born Mr Bennett died as a result of injuries from the fall.

'second chance'

Mr Bennett's mother Lesley Heard, 50, of Plymouth, said: "The word 'hero' is banded about too freely, but what my son did was heroic.

"Wherever he went, he made friends with his cheeky grin, distinctive red hair and piercing blue eyes and his caring personality. He was full

"I hope that young man [he saved] will put his second chance at life to good use and in time, pay forward the caring and kindness that my Tommy gave to him so my son will not have died in vain.

"We all so are immensely proud of Tom for his unselfish act in helping someone else."

Mr Bennett was born in the UK, but was brought up in Philadelphia, where he lived for 14 years. Three years ago he moved to Hawaii, where worked he as landscaper.

He is believed to have been attending the party of a friend, Ted Guillory, at the Hale Wainani dormitory on 16 August shortly before the start of the new university term.

Neither Mr Bennett nor the man he attempted to save were students at the university, reports said.

Mr Guillory told local organisation news Kaleo.org: "Tommy cared about - and loved - a lot of people in his life, and he proved to me that night that he cared about other people more than he even cared about himself.

"He is a hero.

"What he did that night was the most heroic thing I've ever seen anybody do and the fact that my best friend Tommy did it, it doesn't surprise me."

Mr Bennett's family and friends paid tribute to him at a funeral service in his home town of Plymouth this week.

He leaves behind his mother Lesley, father Chris and siblings Annaliese, Emily, Ross and Isabelle.

Prince Harry celebrates birthday with ex-girlfriend Cressida Bonas

THE BRITISH PRESS was rife with speculation this week that Prince Harry has rekindled his on-again, off-again relationship with society beauty Cressida Bonas.

Prince Harry spent his 31st birthday with ex-girlfriend Cressida on Monday just HOURS after it emerged that she had split with her boyfriend.

The Sun newspaper has reported that after taking part in an official engagement in Sussex, the fifth in line to the throne met with the 26-year-old actress and friends at a private party in Chelsea, west London.

Pictures showed Cressida arriving at the party wearing a dark grey coat over jeans and a frilled white shirt.

The couple dated for two years before breaking up last March after an alleged row over attending the wedding of Harry's good friend, Guy Pelly.

CRESSIDA AND HARRY: the society beauty was reported to have ended her affair with actor Edward Holcroft earlier this month

Harry was introduced to Cressida by his cousin Princess Eugenie in May 2012 and started dating a month later, however their romance was reported to have hit trouble when the Prince was pictured naked with a woman at a party in Las Vegas.

Harry and Cressida were reunited after his four-month deployment to Afghanistan as an Apache pilot and were spotted kissing on the ski slopes in Verbier in February 2013. They were also seen together at an England rugby match in March last year, but were reported to have split in the following month.

Cressida is the youngest daughter of socialite Lady Mary Curzon and Old Harrovian businessman Jeffrey Bonas.

In all, Lady Mary has five children by three of her four husbands, including Isabella, married to Virgin heir Sam Branson, who are all hugely protective of 'Smalley', as Cressida is known in the family.

Kensington Palace declined to comment.

BBC makes war on Netflix with new streaming service

■ Auntie aims to boost revenues by £150m over next five years

The BBC is to launch a rival to Netflix, with a new subscription streaming service to offer British programmes to US viewers from next year, it was announced on Thursday.

The move is part of the corporation's plans to boost its commercial revenues by more than £150 million over the next five years. It also the BBC's signals intention to compete more aggressively in a global market dominated by online giants such as Netflix and Amazon, with the director-general warning that the "Britishness" of broadcasting in the mother country is under threat.

The BBC said it will launch an "over-the-top" service — a video service provided over the internet — in America next year, allowing US viewers to pay to watch a mixture of "fresh and favourite" programmes.

Shows such as Sherlock and Doctor Who will still be shown on the BBC America cable channel, but US viewers will be able to pay for other BBC and independently produced programmes, which is likely to include a range of comedy, drama, documentaries and entertainment.

No details have been finalised about the brand name or pricing for the service, but it is understood that it will build on lessons learned from the trial of the Global iPlayer, which charged users in Europe, Canada and Australia up to to £4.30 per month to access 2,000 hours of BBC programmes such as Top Gear and Blackadder.

Lord Hall Birkenhead, the BBC director-general, said: "Next year, we're launching over-the-top video service in America, offering BBC fans programmes they wouldn't otherwise get showcasing British programme-makers and celebrating our culture."

A report this summer from the market research company Global-WebIndex said that there was "clear potential" for the BBC to make millions from foreign viewers after finding that more than 60 million people abroad currently exploit internet loopholes to watch BBC programmes without paying the licence fee.

Lord Hall said that the BBC's plans to expand Worldwide - including the new online streaming service - would boost returns by 15 per cent per year, to a total of £1.2 billion over the next five years. "We need to raise commercial income to supplement the licence fee so we can invest as much as possible in content for UK audiences," he said.

ARIES: Please be kind to another who may be feeling sorry for themselves this week

This person is really not having a good experience in life and needs your support. TAURUS: What has been a problem will melt away like snow in sunshine. You need to get moving and grooving and continue the month in good form and energy. If you have work in your home it's time to complete it.

GEMINI: What you can achieve this week is up to how willing you are to make the right call. Holding back for the right time is wasting time. Mercury your boss is moving backwards now.

CANCER: If you continue to hold on to grudges you will wind up on the wrong end of the stick this week. This situation that will require to keep your temper...or you will wish you did. It will all be OK in end.

LEO: The powerhouse planet Mars is in a difficult position for you in that you could clash with others with whom you are usually in harmony. So keep a low profile and remember to think before you speak.

VIRGO: Any task you take on will be easier to deal now than for the last few weeks and as this will last until the end of this month make it a priority to complete. Happy Birthday.

LIBRA: Travel is much on your mind and this can make you a bit antsy if you cannot get away right now. The clue is to make an effort to keep busy or to take a short trip to visit an old friend sooner rather than later. SCORPIO: You are getting nearer to the best time of the year for you, Autumn, and these next few weeks ahead your powerful ruler Mars will be bringing many gifts and opportunities to advance. It's about time! Whatever is happening currently will be done by this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS: You may need to be alone a little more this coming week and if you could travel to a quiet peaceful place it would help. Although you are the mildest of fire signs you still can stir up a fire...just don't burn yourself!

CAPRICORN: Change is not always good but this coming week it will be inevitable so be prepared to accept what you cannot change. Pluto will be in your sign until December so it's wise to law low until then. AQUARIUS: Any unfinished business from the past will require you to not make any waves this week ahead. In the end you might not win, however the reward will be that at long last it's complete and no one can change that.

PISCES: You might benefit from taking a break away with close friends or family this week. The past few weeks have been full of problems in varying degrees for some of you. This too will pass if you stay calm.

Enchantress of Paris: something quite magical...

Exclusive interview with Marci Jefferson
about her novel
set in the Sun
King's French
court

Rating: ★★★★

"In most sources, Marie is mentioned as King Louis' first love, someone he might have married if not for his duty to his country," says Enchantress of Paris author Marci Jefferson. "But deeper study revealed a story far more complex, full of conspiracy, corruption, passion. I couldn't resist writing about her. I actually learned about Marie Mancini while doing research for my debut novel, Girl on the Golden Coin."

The Mancini sisters

dabble in the dark arts and are vivacious and witty. Marci Jefferson brings the French court to life. There's politics, intrigue, and secrets more than romance. In the vein of Alison Weir or Philippa Gregory, this a book for anyone who loves reading about history involving royalty.

According to the stars, Marie Mancini would be gifted and destined to disgrace her family. Her uncle Cardinal Mazarin brings her to the French court where her older sister Olympia already holds the Sun King in thrall. Marie is there in case the king tires of Olympia. The king shifts his attention to Marie and the girls' uncle pits the sisters against one another. When Marie faces danger and the king can't protect her she calls on the dark arts to shield her family and defend France.

Jefferson says she had to research extensively. "Enchantress of Paris has around sixty characters, and all of them are historical figures. I read, I read, then I read some more. There are lots of historical resources out there related to King Louis XIV, and I tried to get my hands on as much of it as possible. I read books on architecture, music, drama, fashion, cookery, politics, religion, the occult, and too many biographies to count. My poor, wonderful librarians delivered cartloads of books to me over the course of writing this novel." She turned to French-speaking friends to translate court theatricals and astrological almanacs that have not been translated into English.

"I needed to know which courtiers acted in which palace ballets, and what those ballets were like," says Jefferson. "I needed a few obscure astrological almanacs. I could have gone without such documents, but I wanted to make the novel as accurate as possible. So when Marie Mancini portends doom in the alignment of the stars, it is because the world's leading astrologer at the time did, too."

"Marie's family members were involved in the arts of divination, so it naturally fell into my research," says Jefferson. "I found myself drawn to the herbal lore of the day. Because people in the seventeenth century lacked scientific understanding of herbal properties, considered their potency to be magical, even related to astrological predictions. Religion often blended with superstition, and all sorts of beliefs about herbs and prayers sprang into existence."

"Prayer was not just an expression of faith, it was considered a powerful sort of magic," savs Jefferson. hadn't studied these before, and I realized my own matriarchs had subscribed to similar beliefs. When I was a child, my great grandmother taught me a few whispered chants to help heal wounds."

Jefferson has a short story to be published in March, 2016, in the anthology A Fall of Poppies, Stories of Love and the Great War, with her story of a WWI Belgian rebel who hides, only to find an ally in the enemy.

Jefferson lives in the Midwest United States with her husband and two children. She was born in New Mexico.

Getting a charge from my brand new wheels...

Hey Breeps!

It's SO nice to be back in the land of heat, fresh air and good food (see last week's column to find out what I mean...) There's much to tell but I'm most excited about my latest mode of transport.

This week I traded in my racing green Mini Cooper, which has been a wonderful car to me, because I have decided to go electric, with a new freeway clocking 80mph the car is very easy to clever Bavarians, as well

BMW i3 - and so far, so good. I've been on the comfortably and found control, boasts the sort of great-looking interiors you'd expect from those as Sirius radio, parking assist rear cameras and heated seats....not that we need much of that in Cali

PLUG IN AT HOME: the i3 comes with a charging kit that plugs the car straight into a 240 volt outlet but you never know come December.

My new car payment may be considerably higher than with the Mini, but once you factor in the savings I'll make on gas about $140 a month, and the California clean energy rebate I'm actually saving $50 a month. Then there are the tags that allow me to travel in the carpool lane. But the main reason is I just really want to do my bit to decrease my carbon footprint.

where can I charge?

My car came with a handy app called iremote that has become my new best friend. It tells me what percentage of charge the car currently has, as well as the location of nearby charging stations and whether they are free. It also allows me to turn on the a/c BEFORE getting in the car, I can lock and unlock my car doors remotely and it will let me know where exactly I parked it in the shopping mall, in case I forget. Plus most parking garages have a charging deck and the best thing is the car comes with a home charging kit that plugs the car straight into a 240 volt outlet (same kind as your washing machine). There is also an SOS button, so if you happen to run into trouble or run out of charge, BMW will provide a complimentary roadside assistance.

Which only leaves the question of whether to buy or lease. There are pros and cons to both but if, like me, you use your car primarily for business the lease payments can usually be deducted at tax time, (check with your accountant).

For those of you ready to make the move to electric, shoot me an email at craig@britsin.la and I'll connect you with my specialist....

Pub quiz

Eileen and I will be back hosting a special pub quiz this week at The Pikey, with great British prizes to be given away and a fun physical challenge. Its $5 to play and a chance for your team to take home the greenbacks.

Our Tuesday breakfast is back at Cecconis every Tuesday at 9.30am and because Saturdays proved so popular, we will soon be bringing back the Saturday social. So come to either or both, we'll always be happy to see

Toodle pip! Craig

HOW COOL IS THAT? my new app tells me just how much charge my new car has...

How Super! Our Henry's a 'relationship guy'

Henry Cavill was pretty frank about his love life in his most recent interview with Cosmopolitan, and might come as a shock to some fans as "Superman - Man of Steel" star revealed that he isn't dating that much and "more of a relationship guy."

In the interview, Cavill said he "was a pretty awkward kid and really didn't have girls fancying me. My first kiss was outside a dance when I was 12. and it was one snog and out!"

The statement came as a surprise for the actor's millions of fans who always thought that he was popular with the girls. Cavill says his "awkward" past is somehow getting buried now that many outlets are referring starring in DC's to him as a desirable and eligible bachelor.

The British hunk also said which is set for release he prefers confident women on March 25, 2016.

who are definitely comfortable "in their skin," adding that he is a total sucker for "someone who hasn't got a front on."

He also shared that he is the kind of guy doesn't immediately tread the dance floor when he visits a place with music. He would enjoy a dance after a few drinks but he surely is "no John Travolta by means."

Ooer!...but I think means he can't dance as well as Travolta!?!? Cavill will be "Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice,"

Beckham off! Victoria inks out hubby

Fashion designer Victoria Beckham has started erasing a major part of her relationship with husband David her three tattoos she once dedicated to him... Oo-er!

The former Spice Girl allegedly decided to get rid of the ink because she wants to be taken "more seriously" in the fashion industry, according to reports. We're not sure how a field as creative as design could turn its nose up at pretty ink, but whatever you say, Posh.

However, the Beckhams are NOT in danger of breaking up was the message

BACK OFF: The tatts are going but the hubby stays from Victoria as rumours fly about the state of their 16-year marriage.

The celebrity super-couple are under scrutiny after the Sun claimed VB unhappy with David's new friends Iason Statham and Rosie Huntington-Whitely.

But a close friend of the couple denied the rumours, telling the Daily Record: nonsense. David isn't even friends with Jason and Rosie."

They added: "The family were together for seven weeks on holiday recently. It's all rubbish." Hmm, well whatever her reasoning is, it all seems a little odd, Vic did in fact show off her fading spine tattoo — which read " I am my beloved's and my beloved is mine" in Hebrew — at her New York Fashion Week show.

Maybe the event was its going away party?

'Hakarena' leaves All Blacks fuming

■ Rugby World Cup favourites fail to see the funny side of former England international's video WORLD CUP favorites the All Blacks were left seething this week after Matt Dawson, England's World Cup-winning scrum-half, released a video ridiculing their famous haka.

With the tensions rising ahead of this week's tournament opener, a New Zealand camp insider disclosed that the players were deeply unimpressed with Dawson's mocking display, believing that it denigrated the profound cultural significance of the Maori war dance to New Zealanders. They had hoped, according to the source, that their English hosts would show proper respect.

Dawson's self-styled 'hakarena', reducing the haka to a series of disco moves and setting it to the tune of Los del Rio's 'La Macarena', did anything but. The 42 year-old, now a television personality, produced the video for the clothing company Jacamo and was swiftly condemned by a leading Maori politician for "shameful" behaviour.

Sir Pita Sharples, former co-leader of the Maori Party in New Zealand, said: "The haka is done as a way of honouring the enemy. It's recognising the worth of the other side. they're doing something to mock the haka, I think that's pretty shameful. The haka is very meaningful to us. To mimic it and bring it into ridicule deliberately is, to me, insulting. The Maoris and New Zealanders in London could react to that, big time."

In public at least, the All Blacks were diplomatic in the sanctuary of their leafy compound in Teddington, south-west London. But they are understood to seething privately Dawson's crass production. While the New Zealand and England camps have been scrupulously polite to each other ahead of this World Cup, certain former players seem intent on ratcheting up the psychological warfare.

The 'hakarena' video followed a scathing broadside by Ali Williams, the ex-All Blacks lock, who claimed it would be a "dark day" if England won the Rugby World Cup and described Twickenham as the "most hostile ground there is". Dawson's intervention was received with anger in New Zealand, with one Kiwi accusing him on Twitter of "ignorance, bigotry and cultural insensitivity".

The Rugby World Cup kicks of Friday, Sept. 18th at 8pm GMT as England take on Fiji at Twickenham.

Blues get winning feeling back...

Chelsea boss Jose Mourinho said he had forgotten the winning "feeling" after his team reacted to their worst start to a Premier League season with a 4-0 victory over Maccabi Tel Aviv in midweek.

The Blues entered the Champions League opener with one win from five matches.

"I forgot the feeling. For so long we don't win a game, so good, a good feeling," Mourinho said.

"I am a fantastic manager when I win matches and I

Despite an early missed penalty by Eden Hazard, goals from Willian, Oscar, Diego Costa and Cesc Fabregas ensured Chelsea had no problems in seeing off their Israeli opponents.

"The penalty we missed was a big test for us," Mourinho added. "When you start a game you have to win and after five minutes you miss a penalty, it is an extra negative episode and our reaction was very good.

Mourinho had been the centre of attention building up to the match after his side's worst start to a domestic season since 1986

Europa Round-Up

Tottenham began their Europa League campaign with victory over Qarabag on Thursday as Son Heung-min shone on his home debut.

Debutant Kieran Trippier conceded an early penalty, converted by Richard Almeida, before Son prodded home from close range for his first of two goals.

Son swept home minutes later after lovely footwork from the impressive Dele Alli as Spurs came from behind.

Erik Lamela was unlucky to strike the post after an Alli through ball but added a third with a chipped finish.

Liverpool were denied their first win in four games after substitute Jussie scored in the last 10 minutes to earn Bordeaux a point in their opening Europa League Group B match. Adam Lallana opened the scoring with a delightful 65th-minute strike after he had nutmegged defender Pablo.

But with nine minutes remaining Jussie fired high into the net after the Reds failed to clear their area.

Football

Liverpool also went close through Philippe Coutinho and Danny Ings.

FC Sion, third in the Swiss league, lead Group B after recording a 2-1 victory over Rubin Kazan.

Olivier Giroud was sent off for Arsenal as they lost at Dinamo Zagreb in their opening Champions League game on Wednesday night.

The Gunners went behind after a Josip Pivaric shot was saved by keeper David Ospina but rebounded in off Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain. Giroud was then sent off for a second booking when he fouled Ivo Pinto before Junior Fernandes headed in for Dinamo.

Theo Walcott superbly slotted in to give Arsenal hope but the home side nervously held on for the win.

Moreno 'sorry' for Shaw tackle

Horrific double break leaves United defender's career in the balance

PSV Eindhoven defender Hector Moreno has apologised after making a tackle that broke Manchester United full-back Luke Shaw's leg.

Shaw, 20, had surgery Tuesday after suffering a double fracture of his right leg during the Red Devils' 2-1 Champions League defeat Eindhoven.

England The international will stay in hospital to continue his recovery.

Moreno, 27, said: "I just feel really bad because I was involved in the accident. I feel really sorry."

Shaw was given oxygen while being treated on the pitch for minutes Moreno's 15th-minute challenge, and was in tears in the dressing

United executive vice-chairman

Woodward visited Shaw at St Anna Ziekenhuis hospital before flying back to England on Wednesday.

Shaw, who signed from Southampton in June last year in a £31m deal and made appearances in injury-interrupted first season, is said to be in a positive frame of mind.

Uefa has no plans to review the tackle, which was not penalised by the officials, and will not take any further action.

Moreno said he did not think his challenge was a foul, despite United boss Louis van Gaal describing it as "very bad".

"I think I played the ball, but in this kind of this season, as well as situation I don't care if it was a foul," said Moreno, who broke his leg during last year's World Cup. "I feel bad for him, for his family."

Shaw has started all of United's eight games playing in England's European Championship qualifiers against San Marino Switzerland.

But with just nine months to go until Euro 2016, he has broken both his tibia and fibula.

City millionaires are mugged by Old Lady

Manchester City's Champions League campaign got off to a disappointing start this week with a 2-1 home defeat by last season's runners-up Juventus.

who struggled to make a serious impact in the Champions League and have never won their opening home game in the group stage, looked to be on course for victory when Juventus defender Giorgio Chiellini headed into his own net under pressure from Vincent Kompany.

The Italians protested furiously that Chiellini had been fouled but then produced an impressive response to come from behind and close out the

Paul Pogba's superb ball allowed Mario Mandzukic to steal in behind Eliaquim Mangala for the equaliser, then Alvaro Morata pulled substitute Nicolas Otamendi - on for Kompany - out of position before curling a precise left-foot finish beyond City keeper Joe Hart for the 81st-minute winner.

Raheem Sterling had two big opportunities for City but wasted both as Manuel Pellegrini's side find themselves on the back foot once more Champions League.

Once again this was a night where City, dominant domestically with five wins out of five in the Premier League, still looked like they are struggling to convince themselves they belong in the exalted company the Champions League.

Juventus' pedigree is clear - they reached last season's final - but they had not won a game all season until beating City, cast-iron confidence in the league looks to be somewhat stripped away here and like opponents experienced Italians are only too happy to expose those flaws in self-belief.

This even seems to extend to City's fans, anxious throughout and streaming out in droves before minutes of stoppage time, clearly not convinced their team would rescue a point.

City missed striker Sergio Aguero, not fully fit after picking up an injury at Crystal Palace and restricted to a brief appearance substitute, and they have learned the hard way that chances do not come along as often in the Champions League as they do in the Premier League - and the price for not taking them is an expensive one.

There is still plenty of time to recover but City need to win games such as this if they are to finish top of the group avoid the potentially hazardous last-16 draw.
