IRAQ REPORT: nine months wait ahead

- David Cameron 'immensely frustrated' by delay in glacially slow Chilcot report
- Tony Blair's office denies former PM had any role in delay in inquiry's findings

THE LONG-AWAITED Chilcot inquiry report into Britain's participation in the Iraq War may finally be made public next summer....thirteen years after the conflict began.

Sir John Chilcot, chair of the inquiry and a former high ranking civil servant, announced on Thursday that his report - all 2m words of it would be made public in June or July next year, security pending clearance of its content.

The report's progress has been glacial for many bereaved families forensic spotlight to be shone on what they consider the manipulation intelligence by Tony the news this week that the wait will be at least another nine months national security prompted David Cameron to say he was "immensely frustrated" and for others eager for a on behalf of families who lost loved ones in the war after the former mandarin said he would of complete his work seven years after Gordon Blair's government. And Brown set up the inquiry.

In a letter to the prime minister this week Chilcot said the text of his report should be finalized in the week of 18 April 2016. He then promised to hand the document over to officials, who will be allowed to conduct national security checks before its publication which should take place in June or July.

Chilcot preempted criticism of his decision to allow officials to clear the report by saying it was necessary to avoid an inadvertent breach of national security and to ensure there had been no breach of article two of the European convention human rights (ECHR), the right to life.

In his letter, Chilcot said: "National security checking is distinct from process declassifying material for disclosure in the inquiry's report. Its purpose is to ensure that government's obligations under article two of the ECHR and for the protection of national security will not be inadvertently breached by publication of the inquiry's report as a whole.

right to reply

Tony Blair's office denied that he was the cause of the delay. The former prime minister's spokeswoman made clear that he replied in August this year after receiving documents in January from the Chilcot enquiry as part the process in which witnesses who are to be criticized are given a right to reply. The documents sent to Blair were understood to have run to thousands of pages.

Cameron made no attempt to hide his irritation: "I immensely frustrated by slowness and amount of time it has taken, he said. "I am not frustrated on my own behalf. I am frustrated for the mums and the dads who lost loved ones and who want to know what happened and why it happened and want to make sure that the lessons are learnt."

played Cameron down the significance of the vetting of the report on national security grounds. He said: "On Chilcot, we will follow absolutely the required method of responding to independent inquiries, where they arrive on the government's desk, there is a very brief bout of national security checking that has to be carried out.

"When we had the Saville inquiry – which was an even longer inquiry into Bloody Sunday – I think it took two weeks for my office to make sure that was turned around and published. I'll publish it as quick as I possibly can. I know how long people have waited, they don't want to have to wait any longer."

pressure

Publication has been held up by two factors. Chilcot was involved in a lengthy wrangle with two successive cabinet secretaries, Gus O'Donnell and Sir Jeremy Heywood, over the publication correspondence between

SPIES NEEDED: M 6 turns to parenting website

shadowy BRITAIN'S secret intelligence service has found an unlikely new arena from which to draw new recruits - the wildly popular UK parenting Mumsnet.com

In a sign of growing gender equality in one of the last bastions of male supremacy, MI6 recruiting a new breed of female intelligence officer, and their recent ad on the website has received a LOT of attention from potential Moneypennys.

The ad went up on the parenting site on October 21 and stresses the 'importance of discretion'.

The ad went on: "In today's world, intelligence is drawn from sources as diverse as satellites and seismic sensors, social media and SMS. Yet human intelligence, gathered in the field, will always have immense significance and value. As an Intelligence Officer you could play a wide range of roles at the heart of our work - from analysing intelligence to planning operations to working in the field overseas.

The Secret Intelligence Service also stipulates: 'You should not discuss your application with anyone other than your partner or a close family member.'

Mumsnet CEO Justine Roberts said MI6 had first placed the ad on the site in May – and it received more applications than any other job advertised on the website.

Asked why parents might make perfect spies, she said they were 'used to having eyes in the back of their heads and being invisible, once you reach a certain age'.

The ad has received a lot of attention from mums already.

One woman writes: 'I could be a spy. I think I'd be really good. I'm very good at sitting quietly yet taking everything in. And I remember conversations word for word. Can't drive though.'

Another comments: 'I'd do it IF I got Daniel Craig or Matt Damon as my side-kick.'

'I'd make a brilliant spy, although I'm probably too old. Am also a total blabbermouth wouldn't be able to resist changing my FB status to "Spy" adds another.

Applicants have got until Nov 20 to respond.

Internet fame for brave pensioners who foiled Salford robbery

TWO have-a-go pensioners who foiled an armed robber have become internet sensations after a video clip of their bravery went viral.

Ron Smith, 78, and Robert Anderson, 72, held a shop door shut, trapping a knife-wielding thug who was trying to steal from the till.

It led to the arrest of 19-year-old Liam Redford, who was jailed for two years.

The courageous action of Ron and Robert was captured by a CCTV camera and has been viewed online 21 million times all over the world.

Ron said: "Blimey, I'm speechless. I have had people contact me from America and Scandinavia about the video.

"People say we were heroes but I would hope anyone would have done what I did."

The drama unfolded last December at a convenience store in Salford.

Ron recalled: 'I was just walking past the shop and looked in and saw this lad holding a big knife at a girl behind the counter.

"I thought, he's not getting out while I'm here." Robert, who was nearby, went to help when he realised what was going on.

Redford had filled a bag with £450 in cash and cigarettes worth £200.

But but when Ron and Robert refused to let him out of the shop he threw his haul at the assistant and pleaded: "Tell them to open the door. "I just want to go, you can have your money."

He then escaped through a bedroom window but was caught by builders who went to the aid of the pensioners.

Top Gear's Clarkson threatened with jail as Argentina reopens Falklands car row

■ Clarkson and Top Gear programme chiefs face a worst case scenario of three years in prison after three appeal judges order reactivation of the case

Jeremy Clarkson's hopes of putting the infamous Top Gear Falklands row behind him were dashed this week after a court probe was reopened in Argentina.

A judge in the southern city of Ushuaia had thwarted attempts to have the former BBC presenter charged with falsification in April after the controversial number-plate on the Porsche he drove was swapped ahead of a riot.

But state prosecutors appealed Maria Cristina Barrionuevo's decision not to press ahead with a full-scale criminal investigation against Clarkson and his ex-Top Gear team.

And now the probe is back on - with Clarkson and programme chiefs facing a worst case scenario of three years in prison - after three appeal judges sided with prosecutors and ordered Barrionuevo to reactivate the case.

violent disturbances

The decision raises the real prospect of the high-profile presenter and his former Top Gear co-hosts Richard Hammond and James May being summoned to give evidence in the city they fled in October last year before programme technicians and camera crews were caught in violent disturbances as they tried to escape to Chile.

Falklands war veteran Osvaldo Hillar, who prompted the court probe by filing an official complaint over the number-plate change on Clarkson's car, has already been called to give evidence.

The motormouth presenter sparked anger last year after driving through Argentina on a 1,400-mile road trip for a Top Gear Christmas special in a red Porsche with the number plate H982 FKL on it.

War vets accused Clarkson, who once drove through an Indian slum in a Jaguar fitted with a toilet, of goading them over the Falklands.

'malicious mockery'

An Argentine politician also made the improbably claim that the digits 269 on the number plate of the Ford Mustang Richard Hammond drove were close to the 255 Britons killed during the war - and the numbers 646 on James May's Lotus could be taken as a reference to the 649 Argentinian casualties.

The Top Gear team ended up having to cut short filming and flee the country with a police escort after being told to leave by angry locals who stormed their five-star hotel in Ushuaia and threatened to kill him.

Clarkson and his co-hosts flew to the capital Buenos Aires before returning to Britain.

Nearly 30 other members of the film crew were stoned as they headed for Chile by road and had to abandon Clarkson's Porsche and the other two cars by the side of the road.

NAUGHTY BOYS: Clarkson, Hammond, and May with the infamous Porsche

The number plate that sparked calls for a full criminal probe - HI VAE - was found on the battered Porsche which was attacked by a furious mob after it was left at the side of the road.

The furore sparked a diplomatic incident with Argentina's ambassador Alicia Castro calling the H982 FKL plate "malicious mockery" of those who fought in the 1982 Falklands War.

Maria Cristina
Barrionuevo rubbished claims by the BBC and the controversial presenter the use of the plate H982 FKL on

Clarkson's infamous Porsche was an " u n f o r t u n a t e coincidence."

She also dubbed the decision to drive through southern Argentina with the vehicle "arrogant and disrespectful."

But she rejected calls to launch an official probe into the Top Gear team over the number plate change, concluding programme chiefs had acted to avert more conflict and had not been motivated by "bad faith."

The three appeal judges nullified her decision and ordered her to reopen the case - at the request of state prosecutor Daniel Curtale - after a private hearing in the nearby city of Rio Grande.

Prosecutors claim the Top Gear team committed a crime under article 289 of the Argentinian Penal Code which carries a prison sentence of between six months and three years for those who "falsify, alter or suppress the number of an object registered in accordance with the law."

The BBC has consistently denied suggestions the Porsche was bought for its number plate, or the number plate was changed after it was purchased.

When Harry met Barry...

■ Prince joins President and First Lady promoting Invictus Games for wounded veterans

Prince Harry met with US president Barack Obama during a visit to the US to promote the Invictus Games this week.

The prince met Mr Obama in the Oval Office of the White House for an informal chat after earlier joining Michelle Obama to meet injured service personnel in Virginia.

The Games are an international event for injured and sick service personnel.

The first Invictus Games took place in London last year, with the next due in Orlando, Florida, next year.

During his visit with the First Lady the prince took in a game of wheelchair baskeball, watching former soldiers take part in a very different type of combat. At one point the prince caught the basketball and handed it to her. The pair share the same passion - helping injured servicemen. But the pair, who have met several times, can also share a joke. Addressing the women present, she said: "Don't pretend you haven't noticed Prince Harry is here."

The hundreds gathered were told that for their countries, to sport had changed the lives of many injured servicemen. Max Rohn, who lost his leg in Iraq in 2009, said Harry's support meant the world to him. Sport, he said, gave him the hope he was missing.

Prince Harry and the first lady were joined by Jill Biden, the US vice-president's wife, for tour of the purpose-built United Service Organizations Warrior and Family Center at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, which supports troops, their families and carers.

They joined an art therapy class for veterans then visited a music therapy room.

They also watched a sports event before giving speeches.

'Personal sacrifices'

In his speech, Prince Harry said his deployments to Afghanistan "changed the direction" of his life.

He said that after returning to the UK on a flight with three critically injured British soldiers, he realised he had "a responsibility to help all veterans, who had made huge personal sacrifices healthy lead dignified lives after service."

He added: "I hope that 2016 Invictus remind people everywhere just how incredible our service personnel are, and how much of a positive contribution to society they make.

"I am sure American public will embrace the Invictus Games, just as the British public did in 2014."

Prince Harry founded the Invictus Games after seeing a similar event, the Warrior Games, held in the US in 2013.

He said the aim was to change perceptions of physical and mental

"One thing we have to talk about more is breaking down these barriers around so-called invisible injuries, like post-traumatic stress, just as we have for physical injuries like the loss of a limb," he said.

"We have to help [veterans] to get the support they need, without fear of being judged or discriminated against. Not only is it OK to talk about it, we have to talk about it."

TURNING POINT: Prince Harry, pictured with President Obama in the Oval Office, said his deployments to Afghanistan had 'changed the direction' of his life

The White House drop-in marked Prince Harry's first meeting with President Obama, but it is not the first time he has met the first lady. previously Thev attended a White House event to support military families in 2013, and met

Five Britons in whale watching tragedy named

FIVE Britons who died when a whale-watching boat sank off the coast of western Canada earlier this week have been named.

David Thomas, 50, and his son Down's Syndrome child Stephen, 17, from Swindon were among those who died. Stephen's mother Julie was rescued from the boat, which capsized in clear conditions off the British coast of Columbia.

Nigel Hooker, 63, from Southampton, Salford-born Jack Slater, 76, who had lived in Canada for many years and Katie Taylor, 29, also died.

Canadian government investigators are looking into the cause of the accident.

All five of the victims were on the open, upper deck of the boat, but were not wearing life jackets, regional coroner Matt Brown told a news conference.

The other passengers were all in an enclosed part of the boat.

Officials have said more of the 27 people on board could have died had it not been for the "amazing response" from locals around Tofino.

27-year-old Α Australian man from Sydney is still missing after the accident on Sunday afternoon.

'Shocked and saddened'

The Down's Syndrome Association described Stephen Thomas as "a very talented young man and a gifted photographer".

Isambard Community School in Swindon also paid tribute to former pupil Stephen.

Headteacher Banks said he was "always a positive role model for others - he never used the term 'I can't' and constantly smiling".

She said he had a love for art and his work was regularly exhibited in the school and sold at the annual art show.

David Thomas worked for Microsoft. A statement from the company said they were "shocked saddened" to hear the news.

Michel Van der Bel, Microsoft UK general manager, said: "Our thoughts and deepest sympathies are with their family, friends and David's colleagues and we will be doing everything we can to support them."

Mr Slater's family said he was a retired navy engineer from Toronto, who had lived in Canada for over 30 years and had daughters. He was on the boat with his wife, Marjorie, who is being treated in hospital.

His daughter Michele Slater Brown wrote on Facebook he was "larger than life, a charmer, handsome, entrepreneur, engineer in the Navy... he was our dad, our lovely dad, I will miss him forever but I'm grateful for all the times I spent with him, I love you dad."

Ms Taylor was also a British ex-pat living in the ski resort of Whistler.

Palace date for Lamps

Former England and Chelsea midfielder Frank Lampard has been awarded an OBE by the Duke of Cambridge for services to football.

Speaking outside Buckingham Palace after his investiture this week, he said the honour was a huge personal achievement.

He said: "It ranks right up there with my achievements on the pitch and what I won with Chelsea in particular and playing for my country. "To receive an award like this amongst some very special people here in the military, people that are doing a lot of good work in charity - it was very humbling for me to be involved and to be amongst them."

Lampard spent six years at West Ham before moving to Chelsea in 2001, going on to make more than 400 appearances for them.

The football star, who now plays for American team New York City FC, said he had discussed his Chelsea career with the Duke, whom he described as an "incredible man".

"He gives so much time to everybody, he talks to everyone and we just chatted a bit of Chelsea, a bit of England, a bit of America.

"It was very brief because people are coming through quickly but we chatted a bit of football. I know he knows his football. He's been involved with the England team so he's very up on it."

Scots left stunned by school stabbing death

SCOTLAND was left stunned this week by the stabbing death of a 16-year-old Aberdeen schoolboy.

Bailey Gwynne, described as "a special son, brother, grandson and friend" died of his wounds after argument with another the teenager Cults highly-rated Academy school on Wednesday afternoon. A 16-year-old suspect has been detained by police.

Head teacher Anna Muirhead said the victim was "very gentle" and "caring" and pupils and staff were in a "state of total shock".

She added: "I think it is fair to say the whole school community is totally devastated but at the moment, of course, our thoughts are with the boy's family."

In an emotional statement, the schoolboy's relatives said: "There are no words. Bailey is our beloved boy and our heart. Our hearts have gone with him."

"He will always be our boy. We don't know what we will do without our junior 'man about the house'."

At a press conference on Thursday afternoon, Ch Supt Adrian Watson confirmed that Police Scotland were not looking for anyone else in relation to the death and that further details of the charge facing the 16-year-old would be given when he appeared in court on Friday.

Friends and fellow pupils laid floral tributes outside Cults Academy throughout Thursday and many attended a vigil at the nearby parish church in the evening.

Young people came to the school gates in small groups or individually, some visibly upset, to push their bouquets through the wire fencing to build up a display of bright blooms.

As heavy rain battered the plastic wrappings throughout the day, one boy spoke of his shock as the news of the fatal stabbing spread through the school. "It's a very good school, I've always felt safe there," he said.

Around 400 of Bailey's friends and fellow school pupils gathered to remember him at Cults Parish Church.

The place was packed out, with many having to sit in the aisles, as over 100 candles were lit, tears shed, messages written and memories shared.

Unlike traditional services, tea, coffee and cake was served and chairs were laid out to encourage people to sit and talk in groups.

Current and former pupils, parents, members of the local Cults

BAILEY GWYNNE: described by his teacher as 'very gentle' and 'caring' community and church elders moved around the room adding their messages of support throughout the vigil.

Bailey is said to have uttered the word 'stabbed' as he fell to the ground after what has been described as a 'pointless fight which got out of hand'.

Teachers and pupils fought to keep the teenager alive before he was taken by ambulance to Aberdeen Royal Infirmary, where he later died.

Bailey, a fifth year pupil, lived in the village of Maryculter with his four brothers, and their mother, Kate.

Fasten your seat belts: Gervais is back for Globes

Comedian Ricky Gervais is to return for the fourth time as the host of Hollywood's Annual Golden Globe Awards.

The outspoken star caused controversy in 2010 when he made barbs at some of Hollywood's leading stars and had vowed in 2012 to never host the awards again.

But in a blog post entitled "Ricky's back!" the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, which organizes the Golden Globes, confirmed the news this week.

The 73rd ceremony will take place on 10 January in Los Angeles.

In response to the news, Gervais, 54, tweeted: "It's a good job I'm drunk. Otherwise the thought of hosting The Golden Globes again would seem like a real pain in the arse."

While some critics have embraced Ricky's no-holds-barred attitude towards the Hollywood elite, feeling that the self-congratulatory atmosphere of one of Tinseltown's biggest nights deserved to be punctured, others were horrified at just how close to the bone some of his comments cut, fearing some celebrities might not show up for the event rather than risk being the target of Gervais's ridicule.

Among his most memorable lines:

- Telling Kate Winslet after her film The Reader earned her the Best Supporting Actress Award: "Well done Winslet! I told ya, do a Holocaust movie and the awards come."
- "I drink no more than the next man. Unless the next man is Mel Gibson".
- "Next up, Eva Longoria has the daunting task of introducing the President of the Hollywood Foreign Press.

That's nothing, I just had to help him off the toilet and pop his teeth in."

- On Robert Downey Jr, as Gervais presented him with an award, saying: "Many of you in this room probably know him best from such facilities as the Betty Ford Clinic and Los Angeles County Jail..."
- On Boardwalk Empire: "It's about a load of immigrants who came to America about a 100 years ago and they got involved in bribery and corruption and worked their way up into high society. But enough about the Hollywood Foreign Press..."

DIVIDING OPINION: Ricky Gervais

Manchester named Oasis of culture by Lonely Planet

■ Revitalized city has muscled in as one of the world's top 10 cities to visit in 2016.

Lonely Planet's Best in Travel publication has named Manchester in one of the world's top 10 cities to visit next year.

The dynamic city secured the eighth spot on the coveted list, rising above Rome at number 10.

Heralded as "the UK's cultural boomtown," the book says that the once industrial giant "has found a new groove for the 21st-century as a dynamo of culture and the arts."

It states: "(The Government) has committed £78 million to build The Factory, a new, multi-purpose arts space that will include a 2,200-seat theatre and will be the permanent home of the Manchester International Festival."

The city's football heritage - which boasts Premier League sides Manchester City and Manchester United was also noted along with its boutique shops on South King Street and the 'industrial chic' dining room at Manchester House.

James Smart, Lonely Planet's destination editor for the UK and Ireland, said: "Manchester transformed in recent years, with inspirational new openings, reinvention of existing spaces and vast investment.

"Whatever resperience travellers are after - culture, sport, shopping, nightlife - they won't come away from Manchester disappointed. The city has something to offer everyone."

Dublin was also named third on the list and described as a location that "pulsates with youthful vibrancy."

The list was devised by Lonely Planet's experts based on exciting developments, destinations with "a lot of buzz" and special events to come next year.

Gavin Rossdale and Gwen Stefani finally reach amicable settlement

■ No Doubt singer and her English ex-husband remain 'partners in parenthood'

After filing for divorce over the summer, Gwen Stefani has reached an agreement with her estranged husband Gavin Rossdale.

The No Doubt singer and the British rocker were married for almost 13 years, but have been together for 20.

According to TMZ, Gwen and Gavin will have joint physical custody of their three sons – Kingston, nine, Zuma, seven, and baby Apollo. The children will most likely spend more time with their father though, because of Gwen's busy touring schedule.

irreconcilable differences

A source added that Gwen, 46, and Gavin, 49, did not have a prenup. Californian law states that the couple are entitled to equal shares of their assets, but Gavin has agreed to take far less than his 50 per cent portion, presumably to reach a quick settlement.

A judge is expected to sign the final divorce papers by the end of the year.

Gwen and Gavin announced that they were ending their marriage in August with Stefani citing irreconcilable differences in court documents.

"While the two of us have come to the mutual decision that we will no longer be partners in marriage, we remain partners in parenthood and are committed to jointly raising our three sons in a happy and healthy environment," they wrote.

"To that end, we respectfully request privacy from the media during this time."

NO MORE FIGHTING: Gwen and Gavin

The pair first met when their bands toured together in 1995, and dated for six years before they were married in 2002. They were due to celebrate their 13-year wedding anniversary on 14 September.

Last week Gwen

debuted her heartbreaking new single Used to Love You to a New York crowd. The song features lyrics such as "I guess nobody taught you how to love" and "You go, I'll stay, you can keep all the memories."

Meet a Member: Louisa Faye

Meet Louisa from Dartford, Kent who moved to LA 8 months ago to pursue her career in acting.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

Well after spending three professionally London, I felt it was time for a change of scenery. I'd visited LA many times over the past eight years and the fact that Hollywood, our 'mecca' for acting, was the main artery to the city, well that sold it to me instantly! Of course the sunshine, beaches and smiley faces were an added bonus. It has definitely been worthwhile me moving here too. In eight months, I've been in one feature, four shorts. television shows and various theatre gigs about town! It's been a busy and wonderful eight months.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss crumpets, proper Warburtons crumpets, with lashings of Lurpak butter and Marmite. I miss Monster Munch Pickled Onion and my Mum's roast dinner, with proper gravy, Yorkshires roasties! Drooling now!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

Well I'd been to LA many times before but I guess the first thing I noticed actually moving here, was how it's like anywhere in the world. Once the sunshine and shiny cars become a normality, Los Angeles becomes a home like anywhere. The people I find are a lot more friendly, but then that's hardly a surprise coming two worlds apart! from near London.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Dartford?

Wow now comparing it to London, there's a lot. But Dartford...they are worlds apart. Dartford is green fields on the outskirts, merging with grey pavements and a pretty poor local community, a thriving working class town back in the day, now a typical high street, closed shops and the Saturday market keeping it going. Los Angeles absolutely has those poor pockets dotted about the sprawling metropolis but equally it has blue ocean shores drifting into those picture-perfect Hollywood hills with glistening motors and supermodels at every corner. Quite literally

Do you have any hidden gems in LA that you want to share with us?

The Venice Canals! I know it may not be 'hidden' but I have so many people here who have been to 'Venice' but never the canals.....and are breathtaking. When I am stressed or the buzz of the city gets a bit too much, I head off to walk about the canals. They feel like a vacuum of silence amidst the craziness of Venice.

A lot of people have misconceptions about LA - did you?

Yes I thought it would be smaller. I had no idea how HUGE this place is and how BAD the traffic can get! A car is a lifeline here and I couldn't live without mine, thank godness I like driving!

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

1) Get a car 2) When you first arrive, getting an apartment with no SSN or credit history can be an absolute nightmare, so just breathe and take things calmly. I did. It took me 13 days from landing but I had a three-bedroom apartment under my name for a year's lease, a phone, a car and a bank account. It was probably the most stressful 13 days I've had in a long time, but it was worth it all!

HAPPY HALLOWEEN TO ALL!!!

ARIES: It's time to plan ahead for a trip in the last weeks of the year. This may even be a move of some kind. Either way it's best planned (at least in part) before mid-December so make sure you are setting things in order.

TAURUS: Your priority should be taking care of YOU in any area that requires attention. And with the full moon in your sign this week health issues may be to the fore. If you ignore this you will spend a lot more than time getting back to normal.

GEMINI: If are unsure in making a move to settle an emotional situation know that it is easier to just bite the bullet and go for it because the planets will support you.

CANCER: You will have to be aware this next week not to be too hard on yourself or another or speak out of turn. If you ignore this advice the consequences may be far-reaching. November will see a turn for the better.

Carter and Lovecraft: wonderfully twisted stuff

Exclusive interview with Jonathan L. Howard and a review of the first book in his new detective series

Ratiing: ★★★

"Macmillan (the leading publishing house) had an elevator pitch about setting a Lovecraftian story in the modern day, and then looked around to see if they were publishing already anyone who might be interested in taking it on," says Carter and Lovecraft author Jonathan L. Howard. "Carter & Lovecraft is unusual to me because it's the first time I've written a book to spec. Thomas Dunne Books, which is a part of Macmillans, had published two of my Johannes Cabal novels, the former of which in particular [Johannes Cabal: The Fear Institute] is very Lovecraftian. The TV rights for Carter & Lovecraft were sold before it was even published. That was very cool."

Howard modernizes H.P. Lovecraft's style of writing, the late American author whose works of horror fiction had little recognition during his life, but gained prestige later to such a degree that he is now considered one of the great American writers. You'll like Carter, the lead character. Originally a tough cop, he's got more heart than it first seems. His banter with Emily is witty and almost feels British. Howard guides us into what the characters are thinking without losing Carter's point of view.

After the sudden death of his partner, NYPD homicide detective Daniel Carter leaves the force to private become investigator. He's unexpectedly inherited some property Providence, Rhode Island. He thinks it's a house and he'll sell it. On arrival he finds out it's a rare book store. He meets Emily Lovecraft, who's related to the man who left the property to Carter and the last known descendant of the famous writer. But then people start dying. Carter has Emily help him. Can her knowledge of H.P. Lovecraft stories help them catch the killer?

"Given that I was working from an elevator pitch, most of which I dispensed with, there wasn't a lot of material to go on, and not a great deal of time to create the whole thing from very nearly scratch," says Howard. "Yet here it is, and I am honestly proud of it."

"The original pitch was very two-fisted and had a descendant of H.P. Lovecraft as a modern day detective who ends up bumping into beasts of the (Lovecraftian fictional universe) Cthulhu Mythos," says Howard. "As much to his surprise as any one else's. It sounded like fun, but it had been done before, so I suggested taking it a little bit further away from battling horrors assault rifles and making it more about the cosmic horror of what does it mean for us all if such things exist? What if that utterly alien horror is only an onion skin's distance away from us, and it turns out that very thin layer of protection isn't all it might be? It meant that I could go back to some ideas that I'd considered for The Fear Institute but hadn't used as they would have been unnecessary for telling that story, use them to create something new that was contemporary and a little more raw than the Cabal novels."

Before becoming a published author, Howard was a game designer and writer.

Howard was born in Manchester and now lives near Bristol.

Finally Autumn: crispness and music in the air...

Hello Breeps!

I really love this time of year - the clocks go back an hour on Sunday and it starts to get dark early, and there's a crispness in the air which, although not quite British, reminds you that the seasons are changing.

It's finally a time when Angelenos can wear a good jacket at night.

A misconception about LA is that it's hot all the time. In fact it's often the case that temperatures can drop a good twenty degrees from day to night which comes in very handy if you've got a fancy costume ready for Halloween. As most of you know, All Hallows Eve, as it was once known, is a pretty big deal in LA and it's not just for the kids. Ground zero will once again be West Hollywood and especially Santa Monica Boulevard, which is always swarmed by adult cosplay (that's costume play to the uninitiated!) Hallowe'en in WeHo is truly a magnificent sight and has to be done at least once, although I haven't been down there in a few years since the last time I lost most of my party, couldn't and make with them contact because of the concentration of people and cell service. I ended up walking three miles home due to the lack of cabs, which was horrific, and not in a good way!

I much prefer a good bar party or house party at Halloween and I'm a fan of looking in my wardrobe and seeing what I can make out of what I already own. No slutty fireman for me, but a pirate is easy to do! But whatever you decide, make sure you are safe and have a meeting place for you and your friends. It can be spooky out there at night!

Madonna, baby!

Another reason I love this time of year is because of the music. LA is one of the best places in the world to see music live and our fair city is a real destination spot for tours, whether it's up--and-coming acts at the Wiltern, the Troubadour or the Fonda theatre, or an established superstart like Madonna at the which happened to see this week. I have to say it was remarkable, the best show I've seen her do in years. She was so comfortable and relaxed athletic and and entertaining. She even dragged Katy Perry up on stage for a spanking, I mean, where else would THAT happen? At 57 it looks like she isn't even at her peak. Both physically emotionally it seems her arrested development is forever 21. Cheeky, fun, talented and seductive, no wonder she always attracts the younger man. Viva Madonna!

Let's party

Speaking of music, I'm a huge fan of Adele and her new single "Hello" is blowing up the charts and breaking records. The biggest downloaded single of the year, looks like she may have a great year at the Grammys.

Fitness counts

I'll end with challenge for you. After coming back from the UK this summer, I'd packed on a few unwanted pounds and sort of dreaded trying to get back into shape. But with the help of Ricky and JC - two of the best personal trainers in LA (and both British) I set myself the 10-day fitness challenge. And I'm happy to say I completed it and feel much stronger and healthier for it. Each day I pushed myself to do a piece of exercise. No matter what and for at least 30 minutes to an hour each day. I hiked, I swam, I ran, I went to the gym, I biked, I ran with the dog, I did yoga - each day something new, which stopped boredom, but the result has now propelled me to get back on track. So I challenge you to do the same. Send me updates on Facebook to let me know how it's going for you - I'm here to support you!

Until next time... Craig

Welcome return for Jonesy's Jukebox

Jonesy's Jukebox, the radio program featuring Sex Pistols guitarist Steve Jones that was a staple of the late, great L.A. radio station Indie 103.1, returned to the local FM dial on Friday.

Iones, rejoined by producer Mark Sovel, aka "Mr. Shovel," will now host a two-hour program on L.A.'s KLOS (95.5 FM).

In an announcement, the station calls the latest incarnation of program a "two-hour open forum show where the only rule is doing whatever Jones wants."

In the past that has

included spinning music from the eclectic collection of the former punk icon, who recently turned 60, to wide-ranging interviews. The new weekly show will run Fridays, noon to 2

Jonesy's Jukebox was a daily staple in Indie 103.1 from its launch in 2004 until the station's demise in early 2009. The show had a run on Internet radio beginning later that year, and then on KROQ from late 2010 until March

Murdoch and Hall: really an item?

Rupert Murdoch is in a 'romantic relationship' with Mick Jagger's former girlfriend Jerry Hall, it has been reported.

The billionaire media mogul, 84, is said to have been introduced to the 59-year-old Texan in Australia by one of his sisters and a niece.

A close family friend of the Murdochs said: "It's all very new. They are really enjoying each other's company very much.

"He is very fond of her. There is no question that they are a couple."

Rumours Mr Murdoch, a naturalised American. and Miss Hall were romantically involved have circulated for several weeks

Now, however, it has been suggested the pair will appear together for the first time in public at the Rugby World Cup final at Twickenham this weekend.

It follows time spent together in California and a recent outing to see the hit Broadway musical Hamilton in New York.

Mr Murdoch, who has been married three times and has six children, was divorced from Wendi Deng, 46, in 2013, amid rumours she had become infatuated with Tony Blair. She is alleged to have commented approving on former Prime Minister's "piercing blue eyes", "good body", "good legs" and "butt [sic]" in a note alleged to have been written while Miss Deng was still married to Mr Murdoch.

Mr Blair has denied all allegations of an affair with Miss Deng, while friends of Miss Deng said the pair were never more than friends

Ex-Model Jerry Hall began dating Rolling Stones singer Mr Jagger in 1977. The couple, whose 1990 'marriage' in Bali was later annulled, officially split in 1999.

They have four children together, including model Georgia May, who are believed to be aware of the relationship.

Mr Murdoch's involvement with Miss Hall, who also dated Roxy Music frontman Bryan Ferry, is evidence the octogenarian vigorous in his private life as he is in business', a source told the Mail On Sunday.

Welsh welcome in the Valley

Cricket among the expats in Hollywood has a long a glorious history which was continued in fine style last weekend at the Simon Jones Testimonial 20/20 limited overs match at Woodley Cricket Ground in Van Nuys.

A BAFTA XI took on the Simon Jones XI and good time was had by all. Players included Kris Lythgoe, Audley Harrison, Piers Morgan and Julian Stone.

Simon Philip Jones MBE (pictured above with actor Ioan Gruffudd) is a Welsh cricketer who played internationally for England and was part of the invincible ASHES 2005 team. Simon played county cricket successively for Glamorgan, Worcestershire, and Hampshire, before re-signing with his first county, Glamorgan, in December 2011 on a two-year deal. He retired from first class cricket in 2014.

F1 champ Lewis salutes matching his idol Senna

NEWLY CROWNED
Formula One world champion Lewis
Hamilton said his latest win was the most important of his career
after matching childhood hero Ayrton Senna's three titles.

Hamilton won the US Grand Prix in Austin, Texas, after a late error by Mercedes team-mate Nico Rosberg.

"The last two times were really climactic in the last race. This one still feels just as special if not more special," said the 30-year-old Briton.

"It has kind of topped last year for me - it's equalling Ayrton," he added

Hamilton said that his career aim had always been to match the achievements of the great Brazilian, who was killed in a crash in the 1994 San Marino Grand Prix.

Hamilton, who now has 43 career victories compared to Senna's 41, said: "It is a very humbling experience to equal Ayrton Senna who inspired me and still does today.

"For me the target was always to get the three Ayrton had. I don't know what's coming next. There is no-one else I want to equal or emulate.

"I feel like I have the baton now for myself and Ayrton and I will carry it as far as I can and see where I can build it.

"As a driver you want

HAMILTON: "It's really difficult to find the words."

to win everything you compete in, to perform at your best and hopefully better than everyone else. When you win a title that signifies I guess your greatness and the people around you."

Hamilton also dedicated his third world title to his family.

"I'm just overwhelmed," Hamilton said. "It's really difficult to find the words.

"It's just crazy to think I am now a three-time champion. I owe it all to my dad and family who sacrificed it all to see me here."

And after his 10th victory of 2015, he still has a chance to equal the record number of wins in a season - 13, held by Sebastian Vettel and Michael Schumacher.

Niki Lauda, the non-executive chairman of Hamilton's Mercedes team and a three-time world champion himself, said the Briton would "get better and win more".

Team boss Toto Wolff added: "Lewis deserves the world championship, he was brilliant in his driving."

Hamilton's great rival Fernando Alonso, the driver the Englishman respects most on the grid, was one of many to offer his congratulations.

"Really strong performance, well deserved," the two-time champion said.

"Fantastic. Congratulations. He dominated all season. Last year Nico was a little closer and gave him a little bit more of a fight but this year it was not a fight. Lewis was very strong from the beginning of the year."

Alonso's McLaren team-mate Jenson Button, the 2009 world champion, said: "Congratulations to Lewis. Great job.

"The team are in another category at the moment, they are doing such a good job. But fair play to Lewis, he has not put a foot wrong and he has come away on top."

Batting collapse to blame for England loss, says Cook

Pakistan: 378 and 354-6 declared Engalnd: 242 & 312 all out

England captain has Alastair Cook blamed a first-innings batting collapse for his side's defeat by Pakistan in the second Test in Dubai.

The tourists came within 6.3 overs of securing a draw, but Cook pointed to England's loss of seven wickets for 36 runs on Saturday.

"In these conditions you can't afford those two or three hours," said Cook.

"But the character we have shown today - we are disappointed not to get over the line."

England number eight Adil Rashid, playing in only his second Test, batted for four hours on a wearing fifth-day pitch while Mark Wood and Stuart Broad also provided admirable final-day assistance.

Joe Root (71), Jonny Bairstow (22) and Jos Buttler (7) were all dismissed before lunch, but the tailenders threatened to deny Pakistan what had looked a routine victory.

Spinners Yasir Shah (4-87) and Zulfiqar Babar (3-53) finally broke through in the final hour of the day to ensure the hosts head into the final Test of the series at Sharjah on Sunday 1-0 up.

"These are a fantastic bunch of players," added Cook. "The lower order showed a lot of character.

"You always think that it is never over. Mark Wood and Jimmy Anderson are capable so it wasn't impossible. Some good things have come out of this but we shouldn't have been in that position.

"We will dust ourselves off now. It will be a great last Test."

Pakistan captain Misbah-ul-Haq said: "You have to give credit to the opposition.

"They showed character. They played very well on the last day against two really good spinners.

"Overall, the spinners bowled well, under pressure. When we needed the breakthrough they kept their nerve."

We can keep Andy Carroll fit, vows high-flying Bilic

West Ham striker Andy Carroll can stay injury free, says manager Slaven Bilic after the substitute's winner in the Hammers' 2-1 dramatic home victory over Chelsea on Saturday.

The 26-year-old, whose career has been riddled with injuries, scored his first goal since January in his fifth game since returning from knee surgery.

"We changed the schedule and philosophy and the way of training," Bilic said.

"He always used to come back after five or six weeks of training, but it doesn't help him."

'good shape'

The Croat, who replaced Sam Allardyce in the summer, added: "He goes running into the box and fighting with people.

"Now he was training hard for six to eight weeks and came back in the team gradually.

"His quality was never in question. If he's in good shape now we have a good chance that he will be injury free for a long time. In that case, West Ham and England will benefit from that a lot."

Former Newcastle

striker Carroll has only made 24 Premier League starts since his £15m move from Liverpool more than two years ago. The last of his nine England caps came in 2012.

Carroll - who came on midway into the second half and scored 10 minutes later - told Match of the Day: "We've got a great atmosphere at the training ground.

"It's fantastic to be a part of. Slaven is a top manager - he analyses the opposition and then tells us how to beat them.

"We all thought we could beat them today. It wasn't about Chelsea, it was about us. We've had some great wins this season and hopefully we'll carry on. The way we're going, we've got a right shot at it [a high finish]. I don't see why not."

Walcott replaced Oxlade-Chamberlain but left the field on 18 minutes and both will have scans on muscular injuries.

The Gunners boss said the injuries to both forwards were a "big blow".

"We are short now with the injuries," added the 66-year-old Frenchman, who has six other first-team players out.

"I have to manage the workload of the players and at the end of the day I still think I maybe brought too many experienced players here."

The FA Cup holders barely threatened as goals from Ross Wallace, Lucas Joao and Sam Hutchinson sent the Championship side into the quarter-finals.

Wenger said he would have "loved" to have won the tie but, referring to his growing injury list, he added: "With the squad we have got now, we cannot keep in all the competitions."

Wenger made nine changes for the 3-0 defeat but still included Olivier Giroud, Per Mertesacker, Mathieu Flamini, Petr Cech, Mathieu Debuchy, Kieran Gibbs and Calum Chambers.

But Wenger said the level was "too high" for the younger players he selected.

Midfielder Glen Kamara and forward Alex Iwobi - both 19 - made full debuts in the last-16 tie, while 17-year-olds Ismael Bennacer and Kristian Bielik came off the bench.

"They are not ready to play at this level," said Wenger. "We lost two players and after that I had Gabriel and Nacho Monreal on the bench but I couldn't bring them on because I couldn't afford to lose any more players."

The club are rumored to be planning to splash the cash in January to help sustain their challenge at home and in Europe. Top of their shopping list is thought to be Bayer Leverkusen midfielder Hakan Calhanoglu, a 21-year-old dead-ball specialist – hailed in Germany as 'the new Ozil', although the player's £29m price tag may be too rich for Wenger.

United dumped out of Capital One Cup in bad week for the big boys

Middlesbrough's League Cup penalty win over Manchester United was "lucky", says Red Devils boss Louis van Gaal.

The Championship side won the shootout 3-1 to progress to the last eight after a goalless 120 minutes at Old Trafford on Wednesday night.

"It is more like the casino, red or black," Van Gaal said. "We trained yesterday on penalties, but it is like that. I cannot take them."

Andreas Pereira scored his but England trio Wayne Rooney, Michael Carrick and Ashley Young all missed from the spot.

United lost their fourth successive penalty shootout and the Dutchman saw his side knocked out of the competition by a lower-league team for the second successive season following defeat by MK Dons last term.

In normal time, Middlesbrough winger Stewart Downing's powerful shot was tipped over, while United's Jesse Lingard saw his effort hit a post.

United defender Daley Blind put the ball into his own net only for Boro striker Kike to be flagged offside.

Van Gaal added: "They were lucky but of course you can force the luck

"We have created a lot of chances, especially in the second half and in extra time. We had chances from one metre, two metres in front of the goal. We have to finish those.

"In football it is always the goals that are counting and not the chances."

Middlesbrough boss Aitor Karanka said: "I told my players after the game that we were better than them - we were more confident on the pitch, we were fitter than them.

"I have to say how proud I am of my players. Penalties sometimes you lose - last season we lost against Liverpool after 30 penalties - and sometimes you can win like today.

"The main thing is the performance, and the performance today against Manchester United, a big team, it was amazing."

Boro will play Everton at home in the last eight, with the ties to be played in the week commencing 30 November.

...and it just gets worse for Jose

Jose Mourinho's miserable season took another turn for the worse as holders Chelsea were knocked out of the League Cup by Stoke in a penalty shootout on Tuesday night.

After Chelsea dominated a goalless first-half, Stoke led when Jon Walters was allowed to turn on the edge of the box before firing in off the crossbar. Loic Remy drilled in an injury-time equaliser, seconds before Stoke's Phil Bardsley was sent off for two bookings.

Stoke scored all of their spot-kicks, Eden Hazard missing the final penalty.

Potters keeper Jack Butland was the hero for the home side, saving the Belgian's high effort to put Stoke into the quarter-finals.

Stoke fans took great pleasure in goading Mourinho in the wake of Walters' goal and again after Butland's penalty save, suggesting that the Chelsea manager might be looking for alternative employment on Wednesday morning.

Several national newspapers have suggested that the Portuguese boss could be sacked if the Blues lose to Liverpool at the weekend, while the Daily Mirror claimed senior players are expecting his departure in the near future.

Fear is holding us back, says Klopp

Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp claims the club must collectively shake off the fear which engulfs his side every time things go against them.

Speaking ahead of clinching his first victory in charge of the Reds in midweek – a 1-0 win over Premiership strugglers Bournemouth - the German told reporters: "It's only a goal, only a game of football. It's like it's the last thing in your life and we have to calm this down.

"I don't understand this pressure but the guys feel it. I hope I'm not the only person in the stadium who thought 'this is not the end of the world'. We can work on this."

The German, who replaced Brendan Rodgers as Liverpool manager earlier this month, believes he has seen signs of progression in his players following their 1-1 draw with Southampton at the weekend.

"I saw development, I saw the next step, but at cont on page 19, col. 4
