'Iraq War was wrong – but we must smash ISIS'

- Former Tory leader Hague calls for British ground troops in Syria
- British-drawn boundaries in Middle East should not be 'immutable'

FORMER foreign secretary William Hague has claimed Britain shouldn't rule out sending ground troops to Syria to smash Islamic State (ISIS) jihadists.

The ex-Tory leader also suggested Syria should be broken up into smaller states in order to bring an end to the country's bloody civil war, which has allowed terror groups to thrive.

Lord Hague, who was handed a seat in the House of Lords after stepping down as an MP at May's general election, used a newspaper article to abandon his support for Britain's invasion of Iraq in 2003.

The Conservative peer voted for the Iraq War and had defended the overthrow of tyrant Saddam Hussein as recently as last year.

RAF airstrikes

But although Lord Hague has now branded military intervention in Iraq "wrong", he has urged MPs not to use that as a reason for not backing military action in Syria.

This week at Westminster David Cameron set out his case for extending RAF airstrikes against ISIS from northern Iraq to Syria, and was expected to call a House of Commons vote on support for increased bombing raids against the jihadists, meaning military action could take place as early as next week.

Writing in the Daily Telegraph, Lord Hague warned "the rise of Islamist terrorism is not a phenomenon that will pass quickly".

In the wake of the Paris terror attacks by ISIS militants, the peer claimed the "time to take action is now because rarely are the requirements of national interest and morality so closely aligned".

The ex-Cabinet minister also called on Mr Cameron to think beyond merely bombing ISIS from the air.

He said: "The destruction of this enemy also means that someone has to be able to take control on the ground where state failure has allowed a terrorist organisation to roam free."

And while he said "that someone should be Syrians, Iraqis or other Arabs" he added: "It would be a mistake for Britain or other western nations to rule out some of our own forces operating there if that can make the crucial difference to the outcome."

effective opposition

Lord Hague also urged world leaders to consider redrawing national borders in the Middle East in an attempt to achieve peace.

He said: "The borders of Syria and Iraq were largely drawn by two British and French diplomats in 1916.

"They should not be considered immutable."

The peer suggested Kurds in Syria and Iraq, who are providing the most effective opposition to ISIS on the ground, should be granted their own state.

He added: "A subdivided Syria might now be the only one that can be at peace."

HAGUE: "A subdivided Syria might now be the only one that can be at peace."

In June 2014, Lord Hague had denied the invasion of Iraq was a mistake.

At the time, he said: "It's entirely possible to say that it was the right thing to remove Saddam Hussein, but that mistakes were made in the aftermath of that."

But, in his newspaper article, the peer now describes the 2003 invasion as "wrong".

He said: "We relied too much on evidence that turned out to be flimsy, and let our most important ally, the United States, become exhausted when there were many other battles to fight."

The Prime Minister has backed away from British involvement in Syria after MPs previously failed to back military intervention in the war-torn country.

But Downing Street is believed to be increasingly confident of winning a new House of Commons vote on bombing ISIS in its Syria strongholds, with many Labour MPs set to support the Government's position.

This could see the deepening of splits between Labour MPs and their leader Jeremy Corbyn, who opposes military intervention.

Labour's membership has swelled in recent months amid a surge of supporters loyal to Mr Corbyn.

The Stop the War Coalition, which was chaired by Mr Corbyn until his election as Labour leader, has also been lobbying MPs to prevent them voting for military action.

40-year jail term for man who plotted to bomb Arndale Centre

A man who plotted to bomb Manchester's Arndale Centre on one of its busiest weekends has been jailed in New York.

Pakistani-born Abid Naseer, 29, was sentenced to 40 years in prison after he was found guilty of planning to carry out the failed UK bombing as well as a terrorist attack on the Manhattan subway, a New York US attorney said.

Naseer, who was directed and commissioned by al Qaida to attack Manchester, had come to the city from Peshawar, Pakistan, on a student visa in November 2008 and was at the head of a UK-based cell.

Prosecutors in New York said that the British plot had been part of a broader al Qaida conspiracy calling on other cells to attack civilians in New York and the Danish Embassy. Whilst living in the Cheetham Hill area of Manchester he had conspired to use a potential vehicle bomb to blow up the city's shopping centre on the Easter Bank Holiday weekend in 2009.

The North-West Counter Terrorism Unit estimated that there could have been up to 90,000 people in the area - citing the bank holiday weekend as the busiest weekend after Christmas.

They said that hundreds of people would have been maimed and killed in the attack, with thousands injured, had the operation not been foiled days earlier.

They said Naseer's strategy had been to detonate the bomb outside retail store Next in a saloon-type car - less than 100 metres from where the IRA struck in 1996.

He was to then use a secondary device to kill and injure more shoppers as they fled the centre into nearby Market Street.

In a statement Robert Capers, United States Attorney, said: "This al Qaida plot was intended by the group's leaders and Naseer to send a message to the United States and its allies.

"Today's sentence sends an even more powerful message in response: terrorists who target the US and its allies will be held accountable for their violent crimes to the full extent of the law."

Press watchdog barks warning after Sun's 'one in five' claim

THE PRESS watchdog which oversees the newspaper business in Britain has revealed that it received a record number of complaints over a Sun story which claimed nearly one in five UK Muslims has "sympathy for jihadis".

The Independent Press Standards Organisation said more than 1,200 people made contact over the front page piece, based on a poll by leading English poll company Survation.

The Sun said it had "published the poll's findings clearly and accurately, including the questions in full".

Survation has defended its work but not how it had been interpreted by the tabloid and other news outlets.

IPSO said most of the complaints were made under the accuracy clause of its editors' code which says newspapers "must take care not to publish inaccurate, misleading or distorted information".

'Sensationalising'

The Sun's story, based on a survey carried out after the Paris terrorist attacks, was published on Monday. It said figures have emerged showing nearly one in five British

ANOTHER BOOB?: the Sun is standing by its headline, which caused uproar in Britain

Muslims had sympathy for those who had fled the UK to fight for the Islamic State group in Syria.

But the Muslim Council of Britain, which represents mosques, schools and other associations in Britain, said the question posed had been about foreign fighters generally, "not the murderous death cult of ISIS specifically, or indeed 'Jihadis' in general".

The MCB accused The Sun of "sensationalising" the poll's findings, adding: "As we know, foreign fighters belong to various backgrounds, fighting the brutal dictatorship of Bashar al-Assad and some are supported by the UK."

Survation said it had asked respondents whether they had "sympathy with young Muslims who leave the UK to join fighters in Syria".

'Worthy of discussion'

It said the poll was "broadly representative and meets acceptable methodological standards for media publication" but it would be looking at whether there were "improvements" it could make in future work.

Survation said there was a "distinction between the work we do and how clients chose to present this work".

"Neither the headline nor the body text of articles published were discussed with or approved by Survation prior to publication," the pollster added in a statement.

The Sun said it was "surprised" by comments from Survation and had discussed and agreed the question with the pollster in advance of the survey.

"The fact remains that a significant minority of Muslims have sympathy for the actions of extremists," it said. "That is a subject worthy of discussion and the Sun believes that it must be appropriate for that conversation to take place."

IPSO, the independent press regulator, was established on 8 September in 2014 after the controversial, newspaper-funded Press Complaints Commission was wound up following its failure to self-regulate before and during the News of the World phone-hacking scandal.

Veteran villains behind Hatton Garden raid

■ Ringleaders of heist brought years of experience to £14m theft – England's biggest ever burglary, jury told

The ringleaders of the Hatton Garden heist were seasoned criminals responsible for some of the most notorious robberies of the last century, a court was told this week.

In an audacious raid carried out over Easter weekend this year, the gang made off with gold, jewellery and gems worth more than £14million, making it England's biggest ever burglary.

Despite a massive police operation which resulted in four of the key players pleading guilty to organising the raid in central London, detectives have only managed to recover items accounting for a third of the haul's value.

three years planning

On Monday four of the alleged co-conspirators went on trial for their part in the burglary at the safety deposit box building as prosecutors described how the gang spent up to three years planning the raid, which took from Thursday to Sunday to carry out.

Philip Evans, prosecuting, told the jury that despite their advancing years, Brian Reader, 76, John Collins, 74, Daniel Jones, 60, and Terrence Perkins, 67, had all admitted carrying out the Hatton Garden heist. He said they were experienced criminals who had been responsible for some infamous robberies. One of the gang, who entered the Hatton Garden premises via the front door and let in the rest via the fire escape, has never been identified and is known only as Basil, the court heard.

Addressing the jury at Woolwich Crown Court, Mr Evans said: "These four ringleaders and organisers of this conspiracy, although senior in years, brought with them a great deal of experience in planning and executing sophisticated and serious acquisitive crime not dissimilar to this.

'serious theft'

"This offence was to be the largest burglary in English legal history. Two of these men had also been involved in some of the biggest acquisitive crime of the last century, and the other two had for many years in their earlier lives been involved in serious theft."

The court heard that Reader, the oldest member of the gang, was known as "The Guv'nor or Master" by the rest of the thieves. On the day of the raid, the pensioner used his Oyster card to travel by public transport from his home in Dartford, Kent, to Hatton Garden.

Mr Evans added that when police raided Reader's substantial home in Dartford they found a book on the diamond underworld, a diamond tester, a diamond gauge and diamond magazines.

Mr Evans said it was important for the jury to understand the criminal backgrounds of those who had pleaded guilty so they could appreciate the role of the men they allegedly recruited.

reconnaissance

On the first day of the trial it emerged that the gang may have spent up to three years planning the raid. They used high powered diamond tipped drills to bore their way through the concrete vault before ransacking 73 boxes.

Police discovered that one of those who took part had been carrying out internet searches on drills dating back to August 2012. By May last year, he had started researching a specific type of drill and had looked at YouTube clips showing how to operate it.

By January this year, the plan appeared to be in full swing, with local jeweller Lionel Wiffen claiming the building was being watched. Analysis of the gang's movements in the months and weeks leading up to the raid, using mobile phone cell site technology, also showed that they regularly carried out reconnaissance of the area.

By April 2 the plan was ready to be put into operation and the jury was shown CCTV footage of a white Ford Transit van arriving in Hatton Garden after the staff had left for the bank holiday weekend. Mr Evans said Reader, Perkins, Jones and Wood got out and began to unload bags, tools, large metal joists and two wheelie bins. "Basil" was then seen entering the building and letting members of the gang in through the fire escape door.

Describing the scene that was unfolding, Mr Evans said the gang members maintained "radio silence" during the evening, using walkie-talkies to communicate with one another.

PLENTY OF PREVIOUS: (l to r) John Collins, Daniel Jones, Terry Perkins and Brian Reader have already pled guilty to the largest burglary in English legal history

EXPERTS: The thieves used a drill to bore a hole 20in deep into the vault

Once inside the building, the men disabled the lift, leaving a handwritten "out of order" note, to allow them a short drop down the lift shaft to the basement below.

At the bottom, the shutters were forced open so the men could crawl out into the "airlock" where one of them cut the grey cable coming out of the alarm box and broke off the GPS aerial, reducing its signal range.

After attacking the alarm, the raiders cut the electrical box wires, allowing the iron door to be pulled open, and broke out of the large wooden door to allow heavy equipment to be brought in. Despite the alarm system sending an alert shortly after midnight, police and security guards failed to spot there was a burglary in progress, allowing the thieves to work uninterrupted throughout the night.

The trial continues.

Corrie's Emily Bishop takes some time off the Street

■ Veteran actress has been a fixture on the soap since 1961

Coronation Street actress Eileen Derbyshire is taking an extended break from the soap – but she will be back in the spring.

Eileen, who has played Corrie's Emily Bishop for 54 years, has asked for a few months time off from filming. But an insider has reassured that Eileen is not leaving the show.

Mild-mannered Emily – Weatherfield's longest-running female character – is due to take her extended leave at the end of January and she will return in the spring.

The source said: "It is not true to say she is leaving the show. She has asked for a few months extended leave and she will be back in the spring."

Emily will wave goodbye to the cobbles for a holiday when she goes travelling in South America with her nephew Spider Nugent.

Emily first arrived on Coronation Street in scenes which aired on January 27, 1961. And she has suffered her fair share of Weatherfield woes ever since.

Tragedy struck in 1978 when her beloved husband Ernest was shot and killed in a botched robbery. And she tried to make up for the heartbreak of not being able to have a child of her own by becoming godmother to Tracy Barlow.

Most memorably the devout Christian cheated death after being whacked over the head with a crowbar by evil killer Richard Hillman (pictured, above right) in January 2003 in an attempt to murder her for her house and money.

He knocked her unconscious but was interrupted in the act by Maxine Peacock, who he murdered with the same weapon.

Emily made a full recovery but felt terrible guilt for surviving when young mum Maxine didn't.

Ringo to auction off White Album #0000001

It's the ultimate rock'n'roll souvenir.

Ringo Starr is to auction off the first ever copy of the band's 1968 album, The Beatles, more commonly known as the White Album.

Each unit of the record, which acquired its name due to its minimalist packaging, came with its own serial number stamped on the cover. White Album No 0000001 will be sold at Julien's, the Beverly Hills auction house that specialises in celebrity memorabilia, on 3 to 5 December.

The first four pressings of the LP were all in possession of the Beatles.

It was assumed that No 0000001 belonged to John Lennon, who Paul McCartney once said "shouted loudest" for it. But it turns out the drummer has had the record all along, and kept it locked away in a London bank vault for more than 35 years.

Bidding on the record starts at $20,000 but it is estimated to fetch up to $60,000. Copy No 0000005 of the album sold at an auction in 2008 for around $30,000.

Starr is also auctioning off many items of jewellery, as well as art, clothes and instruments, including George Harrison's Gretsch Tennessean guitar, which is expected to fetch up to $200,000.

Other items, which together take up 55 pages of the auction house's website, include a Roy Lichtenstein painting, expected to fetch up to $25,000, and the suit Starr wore in the 1964 film A Hard Day's Night, expected to fetch up to $20,000.

All proceeds of the auction will go to the Lotus Foundation, founded by Starr and his wife, Barbara Bach, to "fund, support, participate in and promote charitable projects aimed at

Kidman and McAvoy the big winners at Evening Standard Theatre Awards

Nicole Kidman and James McAvoy have won the best acting honors at the Evening Standard Theatre Awards.

Kidman was named best actress for her role as pioneering British scientist Rosalind Franklin in the play Photograph 51.

The award for best actor went to McAvoy for his performance in The Ruling Class.

The awards, hosted by Rob Brydon, took place at London's Old Vic theatre on Sunday night.

Picking up her award, Kidman paid a moving tribute to her scientist father who died in 2014.

"Every night before I would go on stage I would kneel in front of his photograph and look into his eyes and he would give me the strength to go and do it every night," she said.

The Oscar-winning star had returned to the London stage for the first time in 17 years to play Franklin, the only woman involved in the discovery of DNA's double helix in 1953.

'pain and wit'

Among the stars attending the event and handing out awards were Gillian Anderson, Shirley Bassey, Salma Hayek, Gugu Mbatha-Raw, Dominic West and Ruth Wilson.

Imelda Staunton received a standing ovation as she picked up the best musical performance prize for Gypsy. She scooped the same category at last month's UK Theatre Awards.

Written in the 1950s with lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, Gypsy opened in Chichester in 2014 before it transferred to London's West End.

Staunton described Sondheim as the Shakespeare of musical theatre. "Every night when I sing his speeches - as I think of them - I revel in the richness, depth, pain and wit of his words," she said.

Sondheim, who turned 85 this year, was honoured on stage with a special award presented by co-hosts Dame Judi Dench and Sir Ian McKellen at the end of the ceremony.

Gemma Arterton was named best newcomer in

TAKING THE LEAD: Nicole Kidman picked up the Best Actress gong for the play Photograph 51, while McAvoy got the nod for his turn in The Ruling Class advancing social welfare in diverse areas".

The auction will be the second time in two months that Beatles memorabilia has been sold at Julien's. Earlier this month, a guitar once stolen from Lennon in the 1960s sold for $2.4m at the auction house, and a Beatles drum head went for $2.1m, fetching some of the highest prices ever for rock'n'roll memorabilia.

The price for Lennon's guitar far surpassed the $965,000 paid at a 2013 Christie's auction for Bob Dylan's Sunburst Fender Stratocaster, which Dylan played at the 1965 Newport folk festival, where he shocked folk traditionalists with a set of rock songs.

According to Guinness World Records, a Fender Stratocaster sold for a record $2.7m at a 2005 charity event in Qatar. The instrument had been signed by Keith Richards, Eric Clapton and Paul McCartney.

Groom up north: Northerners are now better groomed than southerners, new report finds

NORTHERNERS are smarter and better dressed than southerners, according to a surprise survey.

The unexpected capital of smooth is Bolton, home of Lancashire hotpot and super smart TV presenter Vernon Kay, the research claims.

Boltonians spend the most on their personal appearance, racking up an average £95.30 per person on spray tans, spas, hair treatments and facials.

That's 57% more than the average for the top 50 cities in the UK.

London does take second place with £71.52, third goes to Wolverhampton... which just pips Preston and Barnsley.

biggest bar tabs

The figures come from Worldpay, which drew on its payment data between May and July 2015 to reveal the spending habits of millions of Britons. Its so-called Indulgence index might challenge a few preconceptions about the country beyond Watford Gap.

The north also claims the biggest bar tabs with 13 northern towns making up the top 20

UK cities for average bar spend per visit.

If it's a big night out you're looking for, then head to Oldham where people spend an average of £36.58 each time they head to their local - more than 50% above the national average.

But York, Barnsley, Bradford and Wigan all feature in the top 10.

eating out

And Warrington in Cheshire is the top venue nationwide for movie going. Film buffs there took a trip to the cinema once every six weeks, 15% more often than the UK average.

Less surprisingly Londoners fork out the most on eating out - more than double the UK average.

Brighton's restaurant scene runs them a close second with foodies spending 80% more on meals out than in other major cities.

But the Sussex resort is less keen on public houses. It comes bottom of the table for pub-spending - just £17.96 per visit.

By contrast, people in Stoke-on-Trent are the least likely to treat themselves to dinner, spending 80% less than the UK average.

AMBASSADOR: Bolton, home of former model and now heartthrob TV presenter Vernon Kay, is the nation's capital of smooth, according to the report

CAPITAL NOURISHMENT: Londoners still spend the most when it comes to eating out

Marriage broke up because I was too old to have a baby, admits veteran rocker Ferry

Bryan Ferry, the former Roxy Music frontman, has disclosed that he split from his younger wife because she wanted a baby and he believed he would soon be too old to work.

Ferry married Amanda Sheppard in 2012 when she was 29, but the pair divorced last year after just 19 months of marriage.

Speaking for the first time about the reason for the split, Ferry, now 70, said that he did not want to become a father again. The singer already has four sons with model Lucy Helmore with whom he was married to for 21 years.

We wanted different things," he told the Mail on Sunday's Event Magazine. "She wanted a baby and I didn't. First of all I thought I could, and then later I thought, it's not the right thing to do.

"It was a terrible, terrible stressful time for both of us. I just thought it could have ended up really bad with me being too old to work.

"We so enjoyed each other other's company. Sometimes people just get on with each other and we did, rather well. She's a wonderful girl and I could never think anything bad about her. She's full of life, positive and a great lightness of spirit which complemented my more grave side.

glamorous women

"It was a great combination and it's sad that we had to go our different way. We wanted different things, that's really the phrase."

Ferry and Sheppard married in a private ceremony at the Amanyara beach resort on the Turks and Caicos Islands. Sheppard had previously dated Ferry's son Isaac.

Ferry, who has just released a new solo album entitled Avonmore and completed a European tour, said he had not been dating since his marriage fell apart.

"I haven't since, at all. I haven't seen anyone since Amanda so it is now quite a long time," he said.

When asked whether his new songs had been influenced by the split, he added: "It's not a break-up album but in every song there'll be bits of stuff."

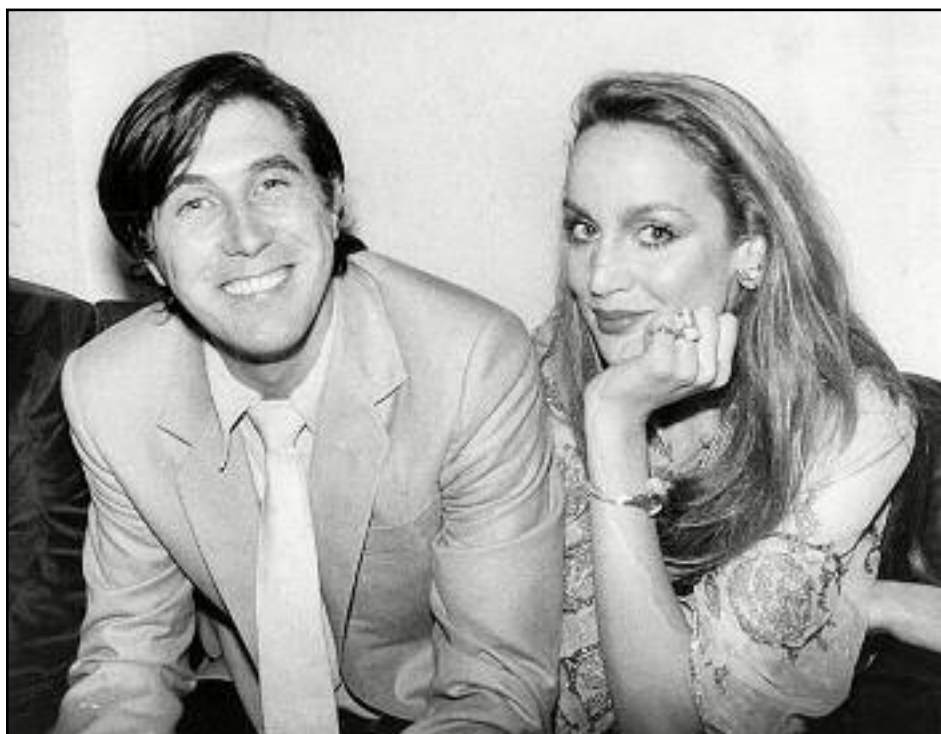

Ferry has dated a string of glamorous women, many of whom appeared as models on the covers of his albums. He began a relationship with Jerry Hall in 1975 after she posed for the cover of the Roxy Music album Siren.

The pair lived together in Los Angeles and London but Hall left Ferry for Rolling Stones' frontman Mick Jagger in 1977. She has recently started dating Rupert Murdoch.

Speaking about Hall's new relationship, Ferry added: "I just wish her well."

Meet a Member: Joanna Garzilli

Meet Joanna Garzilli from London, who moved to LA ten years ago to pursue the healing arts and entertainment industry.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I chose LA because I found the people very open-minded, spiritual and progressive. When I had an idea to do something and I bounced the idea off of someone in LA, they'd say, "That's great! How can I help?" In London, the response was more likely to be, "You don't want to do that. Don't waste your time. It'll never work." California allowed me to dream my ideas into reality through a strong support network.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss my family, hanging out with my best friends, BBC Radio 1, British MTV, the Chinese and Indian restaurants, real custard, Devonshire clotted cream, British fashion, Notting Hill, Glastonbury and Soho House.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, how?

My first impression of LA was perfect weather, a relaxing lifestyle and glamour. My perspective has shifted. At times I find it quite chilly. The traffic has got much worse, so meeting a friend can be difficult because driving from Marina del Rey to West Hollywood can take over an hour. All my friends are ambitious and busy so it isn't relaxing anymore.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus

London?

The biggest difference living here versus London is the health driven lifestyle. There are amazing organic restaurants like Café Gratitude, Kreation, Juice Crafters and a wide selection of yoga classes and spiritual workshops. Do you have any hidden gems in LA that you want to share with us? I love eating ocean front at The Malibu Beach Inn. Also, love The Malibu Country Mart. Inn of The Seventh Ray is a beautiful setting on the creek in Topanga. For the best French Toast and pancakes, The Griddle on Sunset Blvd. My favorite place to go recharge is Marico Massage with Ghanda, only $39 for 50 mins and I am a big fan of Olympic Spa in Korea Town.

A lot of people have misconceptions about LA - did you ?

No. LA was just how I imagined. I first visited with my Dad as a teenager and had many vacations here so I had a good sense of what to expect when I moved. It immediately felt like home. I feel a special magic in LA. Like that guy at the beginning of the movie, "Pretty Woman" when he says, "Welcome to Hollywood! What's your dream? Everybody comes here; this is Hollywood, land of dreams. My dreams did come true! I met my husband Nick, we have a six-year-old, Dominick and I got a book deal with Harper Collins for "Big Miracle Breakthrough" that will be published in January 2017.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

I would recommend visiting several times first. Perhaps do a 3-month stay. It's great that airbnb now exists. Check out the different neighborhoods because each one has its distinct qualities. Traffic is an important thing to consider. For example if you want to launch your acting career, I don't recommend living in Sherman Oaks because you'll be spending a lot of time in the car going back and forth from Hollywood. Think about your ideal lifestyle. What do you want to be your environment when you wake up in the morning? Do you want to be in the hustle and bustle or do you want a beach community? What activities are important to you? Make sure your priorities are met before making the move. What's the worst that can happen? You don't like it and go home to Blighty.

Lastly , how can we find out more about you?

HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO ALL!!!

ARIES: You have spent too much time recently worrying about what a difficult person thinks about what you say or do. The key is RELAX and be yourself. In the end their opinion of you is none of your business.

TAURUS: Don't let the indulgence of Thanksgiving throw you off your exercise regimen. The harder you work now the more you can enjoy life in the coming weeks.

GEMINI: The sun in your opposite sig Sagittarius can bring out a very creative side of you and it also favors getting a handle on any part of life that is causing you some upset. If you just think about it you will see not much has changed, best to let go.

CANCER: Think twice before you spend anything this holiday season. Money you may have been counting on will be delayed until at least the new year. Once you know you can have some self-control you'll stress less and enjoy more!

LEO: Now is the right time to prepare for the best time of the year and also a time to shed any worries. Do not allow any negative vibes to enter your life .

VIRGO: It's time for a change of scenery, which can be as simple as a new coat of paint on your walls or a quick trip out of town. If you find yourself brooding over recent events some downtime in a new environment will be the right tonic.

LIBRA: The holidays are fast approaching but don't think you can relax just yet. After Thanksgiving expect to juggle several vital issues. Don't put them on the back burner, get them resolved, then you can really enjoy the season.

SCORPIO: Love or money situations will be back in focus as Neptune wakes up. So this time around make sure you get a good resolution. Don't just roll with the punches this coming week or so stand up for your self in any way.

SAGITTARIUS: Be ready to have extra guests this month at the holidays and even if you are not too happy about this it will end up fine. This is the beginning of your new year. Happy Birthday!

CAPRICORN: All work and no play makes for a dull life. But it doesn't have to be this way and by mid December life is due for a check-up. This means you must look at what has not worked this year and prepare for yourself to make a change.

AQUARIUS: Family matters at the holidays could be coming up again...especially if nothing is changed or remains incomplete. However be ready to party for sure and make it fun by being open to new experiences and people.

PISCES: You have had problems these past few weeks but events are now unfolding for whicy you planted the seeds in early summer. Remember that if you plant potatoes you shouldn't expect to harvest roses; and if you do, well you will know better next time!

How to enjoy the festive season ...without piling on the pounds

Health & Fitness
WITH RICKY PARCELL
bodyconfidenceclub.com

FOR MANY the coming weeks are the most wonderful time of the year...but for others all those rich dinners, alcoholic drinks and tasty snacks can leave a hangover that lasts well into the New Year.

The number one way to avoid temptation and pounding on the calories with between-meals snacking is to simply avoid keeping cookies, candies or too much bread in the house. I know I have to be very firm about this because otherwise I would eat them all! So the key number one is: avoid temptation in the first place!

Next up, get out the SMALL plates. I've found this is the best way to limit my intake of certain foods that I really enjoy eating. I also make it a priority to change up my meal timing and alter my training routines. I work out daily, eat more greens and drink more water daily. In short, my regular maintenance eating strategy is completely different than my 'holiday' restriction strategy.

Self-control all begins in the mind, and unfortunately many folks believe they can enforce a restriction strategy anytime they want to. The reality is that it's very tough to change your every day habits. Yet we always think it is going to be easier than it is. We always map out our restriction and tightening up efforts in our heads in a montage that bears no relation to reality. Most of us fail miserably over and over again at trying to achieve this seemingly simple goal - especially at the holidays.

Since this is so hard, try to COMPLETELY remove negative temptation from your life. Find out what's in the fridge? What's in the pantry? Ensure that only good temptation is available! If it is not healthy, make sure you earn it with a workout first!

The diet business in America is a multi-billion dollar business and sadly you are the ones who end up fuding these businesses. Rather than fighting a battle for your health, the vast majority of diet plans end up either distracting you from the real issue or implanting damaging psychological

What is the real issue? Regarding fat loss, the key is and always will be mastering your energy balance. While all foods are not created equal and have different thermic effects, consequences, and benefits – they all have energy. At the end of the day, you are ingesting 'x' amount of energy and expending 'y' amount of energy. Your ability to master that balance is where your focus MUST be. Don't get sidetracked by or force-fed poor scientific research that takes you further and further off the trail. Down that road lies only disappointment. Instead, focus on the following simple rules, (see inset, right)

Till next time: stay healthy!

BIG BIRD WITH ALL THE TRIMMINGS: try using small plates and drinking lots of water to offset all that indulgence!

DO: Focus on small portions, greens, reduce bread and increase water intake daily

DON'T: Scare yourself into never enjoying foods again

DO: Remember energy balance is the key to your success

DON'T: Forget that every macronutrient has its role and that all foods have different strengths

DO: Enjoy any food you desire in moderation

DON'T: Let moderation become annihilation

DO: Stay true to what makes you feel good inside and out

DON'T: Be fooled by a few "good studies" listed in a sensational blog post

DO: Believe that results should happen at a relatively predictable pace

DON'T: Believe that those results should only show on a scale....body fat is far better for measurement.

Talking Turkey: and the magic of Club 33

HELLO BREEPS:

Hope you all had a wonderful Thanksgiving.

I was thankful to have some family come into town and ending up in Disneyland for the day.

We were very fortunate to call guest relations and secure a Disney guide who takes you to the front of the queue on every ride. This enabled us to get round the both parks (including the California Adventure) in six hours. My nine year-old niece Rainna was ecstatic. To book this special perk, it's $495 an hour with a six hour minimum and you can have up to ten guests - Call Special activities at 714-300-7710.

We also had our Thanksgiving lunch at Disney's worst kept-secret "Club 33". Open since May of 1967, it was created by Walt Disney as a secret venue for entertaining important celebrities, politicians and park investors. Decorated with antiques personally chosen by Disney and his wife, it remains the only place in Disneyland that serves alcohol, in which I indulged, just a little. It is located in New Orleans Square above The Pirates of the Caribbean ride, with no ornate signs to help you locate it, one would have to go looking for the door in order to find it. Even if you've never heard of the Club, chances are you've unknowingly walked passed it; there's just a small, simple "33" address plate marking the outside. The Club is open for lunch and dinner and costs around $100, not including theme park entrance park - that costs another $100. The meal includes an all-you-can-eat appetizer bar along with your choice of seasonal entrée off the menu, and an all-you-can-eat dessert bar.

If you are interested in accessing this nice little bonus to the world's most famous theme park, there is quite the protocol to go through; you or your company must have a membership, or you must know a member willing to personally book you a table as one of their guests (which is how we got in). New applicants can be on hold for about 14 years just for the chance to pay the exorbitant $25,000 initiation fee with an additional $10,000 annual membership fee. Applicants must also pass a rigorous background check.

Would you pay over $25,000 a year to become a VIP at the Happiest Place on Earth? I guess it depends on what exactly makes you happy, right? I can think of a million other ways to spend my money!

To offset this very special obnoxious day full of luxury and uniqueness - I sat Rainna down to choose a letter for "Adopt-a-letter." The charity that answers kids from impoverished areas letter to Santa Claus. Some of these letters are truly heartbreaking and made me feel truly thankful for the life I live.

Set up by Dame Kimberley Moore, who personally hand delivers the gifts to the children's homes, and with the help of the toy drives we do every year at our events, the siblings of the child who penned the letter gets a toy too. Go visit the website today (www.adoptaletter.org) and chose a letter to adopt and make a kid's Christmas that much brighter.

Match of the day: Beckhams sport identical strips...

THERE HAS long been speculation about who REALLY wears the pants in the Beckham household, and judging by an appearance by the power couple at the British Fashion Awards this week the verdict is in: they both do.

Victoria and David Beckham stole the show at the event as they sported his-and-her outfits at the London Coliseum in Covent Garden.

David was recently named the world's sexiest man by People magazine, but Posh was determined not to be upstaged by her soccer icon hubby - rocking a finely fitted tux with skinny black pants, - from her own collection course - and a black scoop-neck top underneath it all for continuity.

And as if to prove her recent headline-grabbing smile at an event in Manhattan was just an aberration, Victoria allowed nary a grin to pass her lips this time, using her red carpet entrance as usual, for one long pout-fest

As for David, he did what he does best. He stayed quiet, smiling broadly, letting his wife enjoy the lion's share of the attention. In other words, he was taking one for the team, yet again..

Gunners off the canvas

MESUT OZIL: another influential performance for Arsenal on Tuesday night

Arsenal's Champions League hopes are still alive after they eased to a 3-0 victory against Dinamo Zagreb at Emirates Stadium on Tuesday night.

The Gunners needed to win and hope that Bayern Munich beat Olympiakos to ensure that a victory by two goals - or by a margin of one if they score three goals - in Greece in their final group game would send them into the knockout phase.

Bayern fulfilled their part of the bargain and Arsenal had no trouble with a Dinamo side who beat them in the earlier fixture in Croatia.

Man of the match Mesut Ozil headed them in front after 29 minutes and Alexis Sanchez added a second four minutes later before the Chile forward rounded off a fine second half move to give Arsenal the convincing win their superiority deserved.

Midfielder Ozil has had his critics since making the £42.4m move to Arsenal from Real Madrid in September 2013 - but he has arguably been the Gunners' most influential player this season.

The elegant German international has become the goal-maker supreme, setting a Premier League record with an assist in his seventh successive game when Olivier Giroud put Arsenal ahead at West Bromwich Albion on Saturday.

And he was pulling all the strings in North London as Arsenal kept their Champions League campaign on track, not only by displaying a wonderful range of perfectly-measured passing, but by breaking the deadlock and easing nerves inside the stadium with his diving header.

Sanchez added a second after some unselfish work from Nacho Monreal and Arsene Wenger was entitled to think his side were so in control, with Özil and Cazorla creating so many problems, that they should have added further goals before half-time but after the break the tempo did falter for a while. But their deserved third goal came in the 69th minute, created by Campbell with a darting run and beautifully weighted pass.

Campbell can still be raw sometimes but he has good acceleration and his first thought is always to head goalwards. He had cut in from the right, with the ball on his left boot, and his angled pass sliced open the Dinamo defence. Sánchez darted in to take the ball around the goalkeeper Eduardo and scooped his shot high into the exposed goal.

Blues shrug off domestic woes with strong showing in Israel

Chelsea moved joint top of Group G in the Champions League after a comfortable win at 4-0 Maccabi Tel Aviv on Tuesday.

Gary Cahill poked home the opener after his initial header was saved, before ex-Chelsea player Tal Ben Haim was sent off for a wild lunge on Diego Costa.

Willian added a second from a free-kick, before headers from Oscar and Kurt Zouma wrapped up the win.

Dynamo Kiev's win against Porto means Chelsea need a point in their final group game to reach the last 16.

The Blues, level on 10 points with Porto and two ahead of Dynamo Kiev, host the Portuguese side at Stamford Bridge on 9 December.

Manager Jose Mourinho believes his side are beginning to get their confidence back after a dismal start to the season but, despite taking an early lead through Cahill, it took until the 73rd minute before the Blues made the game safe.

For all their patient build-up Chelsea fell short in final third, prompting Mourinho to cut an increasingly frustrated figure on the touchline.

Willian, who was always dangerous from set-pieces, enabled Mourinho to breathe easy and from then on the fight evaporated from the hosts, allowing Oscar and substitute Zouma to add gloss to the scoreline.

In the end, it was a comfortable win, but Mourinho will know his side will need to show more in their crucial clash with Porto to ensure they get the result they need to progress.

Once again, a number of Chelsea's big players failed to impress.

Eden Hazard struggled to stamp his authority on the game, while Costa was unable trouble home keeper Predrag Rajkovic.

Mourinho certainly appeared unhappy with Costa's first-half performance, with the two having an exchange of words as they made their way to the tunnel at the break while Loic Remy was sent out to warm up.

Willian, though, stood out. The midfielder has been impressive from set-pieces all season and it was from his corner that Chelsea scored their first, before his second-half strike took his tally from free-kicks this season to six - the most of any player in Europe's top five leagues.

After the game Jose Mourinho dismissed questions of a rift between himself and Costa, adding he had "a few kisses and cuddles" with the striker after the game.

"I was disappointed. I reacted and he reacted too," said the Portuguese.

"At half-time in the dressing room there were a few kisses and a few cuddles."

"In the first half I could feel only the bad pitch stopped us from playing even better when we reached the last third," he said.

"I think we played better matches than today, but we lost."

Meanwhile, Mourinho confirmed John Terry is a doubt for Sunday's Premier League game at Tottenham after the defender injured his ankle in Tuesday's game.

Chelsea travel to Tottenham on Sunday looking for their second successive win in the Premier League. But despite the venue long being nicknamed as 'Three Points Lane' by the Chelsea faithful the Blues will have painful memories of their last visit there: on New Year's Day they were hammered 5-3 by Mauricio Pochettino's men, with Harry Kane scoring a brace.

United hanging in the balance

■ United remain toothless in bore draw

Manchester United's involvement in this season's Champions League remains in the balance after they were held to a goalless draw at home to PSV on Wednesday.

It was a frustrating night for United, who pressed and dominated possession but struggled to hurt their opponents.

Jesse Lingard fired their best chance over the bar, while Morgan Schneiderlin saw a close-range shot saved.

United will qualify for the last 16 if they beat group leaders Wolfsburg in their final game on 8 December.

The top three sides in the group - Wolfsburg, United and PSV - are now separated by only two points.

United knew before Wednesday that a win would be enough to send them through, but the draw leaves them in a very precarious position.

They remain in charge of their own fate, with PSV are a point behind them in third, but the Dutch side's final game is at the Philips Stadion against CSKA Moscow, who are already eliminated following a 2-0 home loss to Wolfsburg.

The Dutch side also have the advantage of a superior head-to-head record against United, who were beaten 2-1 in the Netherlands in September.

High pressing is in vogue in England, thanks largely to Jurgen Klopp's impact at Liverpool, and United employed the tactic during an opening quarter that was full of energy and intent but lacking in end product.

A hassled and harried PSV were starved of the ball and pinned back in their own half but rarely in real danger as United failed to find the killer ball, turn of pace or piece of skill to open up a side more than happy to leave Manchester with a well-earned point.

In the few times they earned a sight of goal, Lingard's touch let him down in the box, Schneiderlin fluffed a chance from close range from a corner and Anthony Martial fired a shot straight at the keeper from inside the box.

As their energy waned, United were even less effective after the break, resulting in aimless balls forward and the almost inevitable introduction of Marouane Fellaini.

Lingard's glanced header and shot over the bar after Ashley Young's cross had deflected into his path was the closest they came to a winner.

An increasingly comfortable and confident PSV could even have won the game themselves had Santiago Arias found a cross to match the movement and driving run that took him clear down the right.

COMING IN MANDY: Mario Mandzukic scores for Juventus Wednesday night

Old Lady leaves City empty-handed

Juventus joined Manchester City in the Champions League knockout stages by beating Manuel Pellegrini's men on Wednesday night to move top of Group D.

Fernandinho blasted over from close range for the visitors before Mario Mandzukic volleyed last season's losing finalists ahead soon after.

Fernando had a header tipped onto the post for City after the break, before Stefano Sturaro hit the post for Juve.

Substitute Raheem Sterling squandered a golden chance to equalise late on.

The Italians will now finish top of the group if they win at Sevilla in their final match.

Manchester City's miserable night was compounded when goalkeeper Joe Hart was replaced late on because of injury.

Pellegrini has overseen City's previous best Champions League campaigns by reaching
