FAREWELL MEE RONNEE

Comedy legend Ronnie Corbett dead at 85

Entertainer Ronnie Corbett, best known for BBC comedy sketch show The Two Ronnies, died on Thursday aged 85.

His publicist said: "Ronnie Corbett CBE, one of the nation's bestentertainers, loved passed away this morning, surrounded by his loving family.

"They have asked that their privacy is respected at this very sad time."

Corbett was one of the UK's best-loved comedians and along with Ronnie Barker; their double act was one of the most successful of the 1970s and '80s.

The entertainer had been suffering from illhealth for some time and had been in hospital in 2014 with gall bladder problems.

Following Barker's death in 2005, Corbett continued to be regular fixture on UK TV and is perhaps best-known for his armchair "shaggy dog" sketches.

His most memorable solo projects include the sitcom Sorry! and the game show Small Talk. He most recently starred in the BBC Radio 4 sitcom When the Dog Dies.

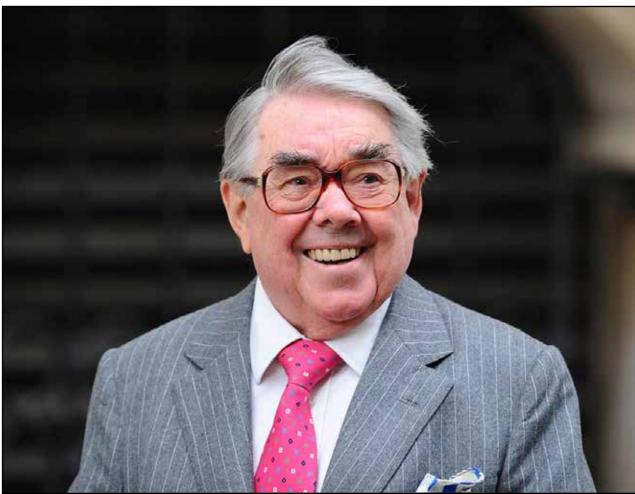

'Huge talent'

Sir Bruce Forsyth spoke emotionally about his friend, colleague and fellow golf enthusiast, saying it was "one of the saddest days of my life".

"Ronnie was a friend, someone I admired so much. It's a very, very sad day. I'm going to miss him like crazy, I really will."

Sir Bruce said one of the first times he saw Corbett was when he was working in the cast of a Danny La Rue show in the West End.

Scottish firms mixed on Brexit business leaders Scotland who believe British firms should stay in the European Union has fallen from last year, although the majority still favour remaining in the EU, according to a survey published this

Business Growth Fund (BGF), which provides capital to small and midsized businesses, said the percentage of leaders who favour remaining in Europe fell to 61 per cent from 82 per cent in June

But 64 per cent said the UK being part of the EU gives British businesses essential access to European markets, while 55 per cent were worried that an EU exit risks constricting business growth.

BGF investor Mike Sibson said it was "clear that despite uncertainty prompted by the vote, and economic instability Scottish overseas. businesses remain committed to growth".

survey also found that 61 per cent of respondents were focused on growth, but only 18 per cent expected conditions for growth to improve over the next quarter, down from 46 per cent in November last year.

Additionally, 67 respondents cent of believed a Brexit would prompt another Scottish independence referendum.

Meanwhile, a second survey on Wednesday showed that 70 per cent of respondents in the property industry Scotland and England believed the UK should stay in the EU while 18 per cent favoured a British Property consultancy Ryden found that 35 per cent of those surveyed thought the EU referendum process would cause their income to drop slightly.

Ben Nevis rescue for woman in shorts shorts and trainers in blizzard conditions and carrying only a selfie stick has been rescued from Ben Nevis, Britain's highest mountain.

Sara Albone, 28, said she had decided to climb the mountain on the spur of the moment while she was taking part in a mountain biking tour through Scotland.

But the cross-country runner had only taken the light clothing for her bike trip - not the ice pick, poles and shelter emergency advised by experts for a trip up the snow-capped mountain.

She subsequently develop began to hypothermia after becoming disorientated. She was found purely woman wearing by chance while lost on the North Face of the 4,411ft peak, which has claimed the lives of several climbers in recent months.

> The drenched and frozen woman was spotted by two male climbers who helped to warm her up and shared some of their dry clothes with her.

> Lochaber Mountain Rescue Team leader John Stevenson said it was "ridiculous" to try to climb the mountain, where the summit remains in "full-blown winter", without the right equipment or support.

"Being irresponsible means others have to go out of their way to help," he said.

Albone, Ms from Brighton, apologised and thanked her rescuers who had walked her off the mountain because weather conditions were so bad she could not be reached by helicopter.

Writing on mountaineering forum, Ms Albone said they had been "incredibly brave and kind", adding: "I think if it had not been for these guys I could have died."

She wrote: "[I had] Just the stuff I had packed for the weekend and a stupid selfie stick. I kind of knew I was under-prepared, didn't actually intend on getting to the top. I just sort of thought, oh I've got this far - it's not too bad - let's carry on."

Ms Albone said she planned to take a mountaineering course once she returned home.

Ireland remembers Easter Rising

Hundreds of thousands of people lined the streets of Dublin last Sunday for a military parade – the largest in the Republic of Ireland's history marking the centenary of the 1916 Easter Rising.

The insurrection lasted only six days, and failed to end colonial rule, but its bloody suppression galvanised nationalist sentiment and paved the way for the war of independence, in 1919, and the establishment of the Irish Free State, in 1922.

The insurrection began on 24 April 1916 – Easter Monday – when Patrick Pearse, the leader of one of three rebel groups involved, proclaimed independence on steps of the General Post Office in Dublin. By the end of the week, 1,600 rebels were battling more than 18,000 British troops; 485 people had been killed (more than half of them civilians) and much of the city centre reduced to rubble. Hopelessly outnumbered, surrendered. In the next few weeks, 3,400 people were arrested, and 14 rebels, including Pearse and James Connolly, were executed Kilmainham Gaol, where Irish President Michael Higgins laid a wreath last Sunday "on behalf of the people of Ireland in honour of all those who died" - rebels, civilians and British soldiers.

However, feelings were less unanimous later in the week when Higgins pulled out of attending a civic dinner in Belfast to mark the centenary of the same event. Mr Higgins was due to be guest of honour at the 8 April City Hall event but pulled out after the Pearse Democratic Union Party indicated it would not attend. Higgins' spokesman said he had accepted the invitation on the basis there was "cross-party support" for it. The DUP has been accused of scuppering the dinner by refusing to attend, a claim the party rejected, saying it had no objection to the event happening, but will not be there.

Gervais, who appeared alongside Corbett in his TV show, Extras, tweeted: "RIP the lovely, funny legend Ronnie Corbett. It was an absolute honour and joy to have known him.

Little Britain star David Walliams. added: "Goodbye my friend and comedy idol Ronnie Corbett Thank you for all the laughs. It was the greatest honour to know and work with you. Goodnight."

Movie star Russell Crowe, added: "And it's good night from Ronnie Corbett. Thanks for all the laughs mate."

'wonderful comic'

And comedy Miranda Hart, said: "Having a little weep at the death of one of my heroes Ronnie Corbett."

Former BBC chairman Michael Grade also spoke of his sadness at the loss of Corbett, who he described as a "huge talent".

He told the BBC the entertainer was "one of the all-time greats of British comedy, no question - I'm so sad for [his wife] Anne and the family - and the nation, really. We've lost a great friend and entertainer.

"He learned his craft the hard way. He was a master of comedy of all kinds - TV, cabaret, The variety. most wonderful man."

BBC director general Tony Hall called Corbett "a wonderful comic and entertainer".

"A man of great charm and warmth who brought laughter and joy to millions. He was quite simply one of the true greats of British comedy."

Scottish-born Corbett started his TV comedy career on David Frost's satirical comedy the Frost Report in 1960.

It was here he first worked with Ronnie Barker, although they had met before, and formed the duo whose TV sketch show became a British TV classic, regularly cited by the public as one of their enduring favourites and by other comics as a big influence on their careers.

The Two Ronnies ran from 1971 to 1987 and saw the comedians take part in musical performances and sketches.

Speaking Telegraph about how well they got on in 2013 he said of Barker: "We were a real couple with matching tastes and styles.

"Of course we were quite different but somehow we fitted so well together. I think it's a more pleasant and palatable thing to see people being funny together because you're touching areas of truth. Dinner parties or falling out with people - it's the naturalness of it."

'class' sketch

The programme won a Bafta in 1972 for best entertainment performance and was staple viewing for much of the UK audience on a Saturday night, with more than 15 million viewers.

One of their most enduring sketches was the famous hardware shop "fork handles" skit. When on his own, Corbett specialised in long, rambling jokes delivered from an outsize armchair with his legs dangling in the air.

BEST OF BRITISH: Ronnie Corbett's place in British comedy history was comented by the success of his long-running BBC TV show, The Two Ronnies

4 December 1930, Corbett was educated at the James Gillespie School and the Royal High School, Edinburgh.

He did not attend university after leaving school and instead joined the Ministry of Agriculture.

After two years he moved to London where his first roles were playing schoolboys due to his diminutive height of 5'1".

Corbett also started to do summer seasons, intimate revues and running the bar at the Buckstone Club off Haymarket, central London, which is where he first met Barker.

> Barker says: "I look up to him [Cleese] because he is upper class, but I look down on him [Corbett] because he is lower class."

> Corbett says: "I know my place."

Following Barker's retirement in 1987, Corbett had a number of roles in the theatre, including The Seven Year Itch, Out of Order and The Dressmaker, while he also took guest roles on TV and in film.

He wrote books including Ronnie Corbett's Armchair Golf, The Small Man's Guide To Life and his autobiography High Hopes. He was also a keen and proficient golfer, and a member of the Honourable Company of Edinburgh Golfers.

Corbett is survived by his wife, with whom he celebrated his golden wedding anniversary last year, and the couple's two daughters, actresses Emma and Sophie.

Irn-Bru maker vows to move away from sugary drinks

IN A SURPRISE move this week, the maker of Scotland's favorite tipple Irn Bru has said it will move away from high sugar drinks in light of the surprise sugary drinks tax proposed by the Chancellor.

Cumbernauld-based firm maker AG Barr said it expects "at least two thirds of our portfolio will be lower or no sugar" by the time the levy is introduced in April 2018. Around 40% of the group's portfolio currently has a low sugar content.

The drinks sector was sent reeling by the announcement of the new tax in the Budget earlier this month, which aims to raise around £520 million a year to help fund sports for schools.

The FTSE 250 firm, which product also makes Tizer and Snapple, said its annual pre-tax profits lifted by 7% to £41.3 million, although sales slipped just under 1% to £258.6 million in a "difficult market" in the Management at the soft drinks maker, led by chief executive Roger White, has had a number of meetings with the Treasury ahead of making its formal submission on the proposal.

Mr White has called drinks levy plans "extremely disappointing".

He said: "Although the details of the Chancellor's proposed soft drinks levy are still to be consulted upon, we believe our combination of brand strength, ongoing reformulation and consumer driven innovation will allow us to minimise the financial impact on the business at the proposed point of implementation in April 2018."

One can of Irn Bru contains around grams of sugar, about 42% more than the World Health Organisation's recommended intake of about 24 grams for adults.

Irn Bru accounts for around 40% of the group's annual revenues.

Parts of the soft drinks industry are understood to be considering taking legal action against the Government through European courts on the basis that other types of food and drink, such as fruit juice and milkshakes, are not included.

Similar taxes Scandinavia have been successfully challenged.

But AG Barr said it has no plans to join any legal action.

In a Treasury Select Committee hearing following the Budget, George Osborne companies considering a legal challenge to "bring it on" as he said Government lawyers were convinced the new tax is legal.

AG Barr said across the UK the value of the soft drinks market fell 1.8% over the year, while volumes were flat in the same period.

The business said the growth area in the market was water, which offset significant declines in fruit juices and sports drinks.

The firm also makes Strathmore mineral water and St Clement's fruit juices.

Hull residents encouraged to get naked for City of Culture event

People in Hull are being asked to take part in a mass naked art event as the city prepares to be named the UK City of Culture.

The city is to be the latest to host a oneoff installation by the American photographer Spencer Tunick, who is known for his images of masses of naked people taken at locations all over the world

The installation will be made on Saturday July 9, when the weather will, hopefully, be a little warmer and drier than the the current conditions on the east coast of England.

And it will be unveiled in 2017 when Hull is the UK City of Culture.

Organisers say Sea Of Hull will give hundreds of people the opportunity to become part of the art

Participants covered in specially formulated cosmetic body make-up will position themselves in front of Tunick's camera in multiple colours of the sea to create abstract shapes separating the body from the pavement in dramatic ways, they said.

New York Tunick has created more 90 installations at landmarks and cities including the Sydney Opera House, Place des Arts in Montreal, Mexico City, Ernest Happel Stadium in Vienna and Munich in Germany.

He said: 'I'm very interested in the history of the city and its place as a seafaring centre and its relationship to a rich maritime past.

'It intrigues me that in some places where there are major streets or parks today, previously there was water. To reflect this I'll be using body paint so that the massed people create the idea of a sea of humanity flooding the urban landscape.'

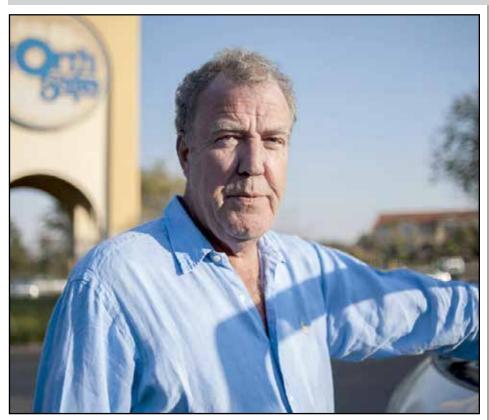

He said: 'This is a wonderful opportunity for anyone interested in art who wants to pose nude but is modest. The body paint will help many participants overcome inhibitions - after all, they will still be covered in a way.'

Kirsten Simister, curator at Hull's Ferens Art Gallery, said: 'This is more than a commission. It's an opportunity to involve people directly in an amazing live, performance that will temporarily transform the city.

She said: 'His new body of work will form part of an exhibition in 2017 and will also be purchased for the permanent collection. With hundreds upon hundreds of people coming together to be photographed, Sea Of Hull anticipates exciting things to come at the Ferens next year.'

Anyone over 18 can take part. All participants will receive a limited edition photograph in exchange for getting involved.

Clarkson vs Cohen: the Top Gear feud

There is no love lost between Jeremy Clarkson and the man who sacked him, says Charlotte Edwardes in The Sunday Times. Even before Clarkson disgraced himself by punching a producer in the face, he was regarded with suspicion by Danny Cohen – the politically correct executive who was then the BBC's director of television.

Once, Cohen summoned Clarkson to his office to ask if it was true that he'd named his West Highland terrier Didier Dogba, after the former Chelsea striker Didier Drogba (Clarkson is a Blues fan). "I confirmed it was true. He said: 'What colour is it?' And I said: 'It's black.' And he said: 'You can't call your black dog after a black footballer.' So I said: 'Why not? Would you rather I called it John

Mazel Tov, laddie: first Jewish tartan debuts

Jewish people now have the means of wearing the colours of their tribe, while embracing Scottish culture, thanks to an official Jewish tartan.

The blue and white pattern was designed by Mendel Jacobs, a Scottish-born Rabbi. The distinct pattern, which is meant to represent both Scottish and Israeli heritage, is the real deal. It's been registered with Scottish Tartans Authority.

Jewish forbid mixing wool and linen garments, the navy and burgundy design is featured on a kosher non wool-linen mix. Mike Wilson of the Scottish Tartans Authority helped finalize the design.

"A friend of mine told me about a Polish tartan and a Sikh tartan had been registered, so why not a Jewish one?" Jacobs told the Scotsman. "Jews have always enjoyed a positive relationship with Scotland. It's one of the few countries where there is no history of persecutions."

He added that many Jewish ex-pats around the world have links to Scotland.

"We've already had a lot of interest from around the world," he said. "It's nice to produce a symbol that represents both Jewish and Scottish culture."

Jews' history in Scotland can be traced back to the late 17th century.

- Owner recommends 'personality transplant' for unhappy diner

The owner of an Indian restaurant in Scotland not standing for customers who complain on TripAdvisor.

Ahmed Waseem dissatisfied told one customer his complaint was 'written excrement' and suggested they get a personality transplant.

The restaurateur from Coatbridge, North Lanarkshire, told another paying customer their review was 'repulsive'.

Ahmed claims too many customers are able to hold businesses to ransom via the influential social media site, adding that he should be allowed to fight his corner. The head of the family-run Shimla Cottage is equally robust in the way he runs his restaurant, suggesting customers should take no longer than 45 minutes over their £3.50 threecourse lunch.

Mr Ahmed, the latest in a line of business owners to counter attack customers on TripAdvisor, claimed some diners simply expect too much for their money.

The restaurant, in the town's Sunnyside Street, has been open for 15 years and has an average of four out of five stars on TripAdvisor, based on 362 reviews.

One of the most recent customers to get the Mr Ahmed treatment was Mari in Glasgow, who claimed that the chicken she was served was 'inedible' and accused the restaurant of bad customer service.

Ahmed replied: 'Your lack of appreciation of the great job my waiting staff and experienced hardworking perform day-in day-out is the "Bad customer Service" for me.

'Rather than go into the minutiae of your written excrement masquerading as a review, may I simply express my hope that you were able to set-aside the money we took off your bill for the inedible curry towards a personality transplant.

'Cheaper still, a brown paper bag for over your head will also do the trick.'

Ross T from Glasgow complained that he was rushed out the door by 'ignorant staff'. Ahmed hit back: 'We highlysuspect your dreadful review has zero validity and, or, malicious intent.' Referring to a rival Indian restaurant, he added: 'Or you're in some way connected to (our rivals), either way, we can't even be bothered to write more."

Another diner from Airdrie complained that her table was dirty and the food she ordered wasn't cooked correctly.

The manager replied: 'Dear faceless newly-TripAdvisor created account user.

Joseph Fiennes: A Passion for Risen

■ In an exclusive interview, Debbie Lynn Elias meet the acclaimed English actor, who stars in the newly released Resurrection tale, Risen

Now playing in theatres nationwide to both critical and public acclaim is director/co-writer Kevin Reynolds' resurrection tale RISEN.

Believers and nonbelievers alike know the fundamentals of the Easter Story; from The Last Supper to Judas' betrayal and Christ's arrest to the Crucifixion, Resurrection and Ascension. the faithful, the text as set forth in the Bible in chapters 14 through 16 of the Gospel of Mark, is the very foundation of the Christian faith. But what about the non-That very believers? question is what elevates Risen, setting it apart from other faith-based or Biblebased films, and tapping into a perspective able to resonate with all.

Starring Joseph Fiennes as the Roman Tribune Clavius, Tom Felton as his aide-decamp Lucius, Peter Firth as Pilate and Cliff Curtis as Yeshua (Jesus Christ), Reynolds takes us on a journey that follows in the vein of many of the best detective procedural shows on television today. Following the death and burial of Yeshua, the body has mysteriously disappeared. Murmurings begin among the followers that God has answered their prayers and delivered them his Son who is now risen. Pilate on the other hand, doesn't believe it and orders Clavius to find the missing body and the perpetrators who removed it from the stone crypt, lest there be an uprising among the faithful or, as Pilate calls them, zealots.

A quiet and gentle man, it's easy to see the passion Joseph Fiennes has for this project. His eyes sparkle as he engages with me on aspects of his character and the film as a whole, while he becomes animated, yet thoughtful and smiling, on discussing the philosophical aspects of forgiveness and redemption that permeate the fabric of Risen.

We kicked off this exclusive interview talking about Kevin Reynolds' storytelling approach and how that impacted Fiennes, himself a Christian, and his interpretation of Clavius in terms of identifying with the character and getting into the mindset of this intellectual Roman.

"He prays to Mars so we know he has a spirituality there. He is a Roman Tribune. He is pretty much the highest level in the Roman Army. The next place would probably be the Senate. He's probably at the end of his military career. Amazing that he survived. A lot of them didn't past their twenties. exhausted. He's probably suffering from some form of post-traumatic stress or borderline. He looks up to authority, to Pilate, but I think he's exhausted by

'wonderful collision'

Key to assuming Clavius' persona was the intensive training Fiennes undertook at gladiator school and in working with a police detective. "Out of that, I found at the gladiator school in Rome, they knew to the nth degree about the way the Romans fought; the warfare of the Roman. I got to look at some moves with the gladiator and the swords. They were like surgeons. They didn't slash and do all that. They were very precise. Like a boxer. Bam. In, out, take him out, move on. They had the gladius. It was small, it was a stabbing device. He's analytical by virtue of the way he fights. He would only go for the jugular or the tendon or something. He would go to places where it would take you out. Economical. Intelligent. And spiritual. The right man to go find the job, the body of Christ, who we know is a hoax."

As he continues,

Fiennes excitedly starts to relate key plot points as if reliving the film shoot. "We know that here's these zealots. They're going to promote the idea that he rose in three days and they're gonna cause more problems and get more people rallying behind them you've got to quiet. This is the man for the job. And what I love is we know the narrative. We know the crucifixion, the resurrection, ascension. We're gonna see that. [But] Clavius doesn't know that. So what we get as an audience member is that wonderful collision of events. Something's gonna happen! And then when [Clavius] is in the upper room and he witnesses what he witnesses, his world comes crumbling down. And I love that. Now, he's prepped for change in many ways because he's exhausted and, as you say, he's intellectual, and he's spiritual in the capacity of praying to a Roman god."

As part and parcel to Clavius' search for the missing body, Fiennes loves the interrogation scenes with townspeople. "He thinks they're all nuts. And they're not breaking. He's trying everything." working with a detective, Fiennes asked all the right questions for approaching the interrogations. "How do I break them? How am I ruthless? How am I empathetic? Any which way. Can't get in there? What is it? What is this

FIENNES ON RISEN: "We know the story, but we get to see it through the eyes of a non-believer. It's almost like we get to visit our own journey again from when we first heard the story to how it arrested us. " faith that they have?" And it's through that journey that Clavius' world comes crashing down. "And then he turns. And I love this journey."

Fiennes has many stand-out moments within Risen, particularly in scenes with Cliff Curtis and Steve Hagen. Hagen, who plays Bartholomew, adds lighter moments and light-hearted touches of wide-eved wonderment and joy to Risen as he brings this 1960's hippieesque flower power feel to Bartholomew, which in turns elicits wonderful tacit facial expressiveness from Fiennes. chemistry between Hagen and Fiennes is comfortable and easy, Fiennes something attributes to their prior work together. "I played Cyrano de Bergerac in a production and he played Christian, so there's that love triangle between Christian, Cyrano and Roxanne, so we already had an affinity. . . So we felt very comfortable with each other."

As for Curtis, Fiennes found him to be "my touchstone through those moments. I love that scene where Clavius kind of tries to threaten [Yeshua] with the nail of the crucifixion and there's that moment where [Yeshua] catches him and whispers, 'They're everywhere. [Where are your disciples?] They're everywhere.' I love that. And you're right. He's in touch and he's an untouchable and that's what Clavius can't understand. His authority cannot reach this man and that's an amazing thing."

As we reflected on some of Joseph Fiennes' prior roles, we couldn't overlook the fact that his choices are very deliberate and in several cases, tied to historical religious or spiritual figures, for one, Martin Luther. mentioned Martin Luther and there's one or two others that are really interesting in that they're the guys [who] raised the bar in terms of what they believe in. It's a faith and it's a positive belief and a moral code and conduct and we all live by that. Sometimes we let ourselves down. So it's lovely to look at rocks who weather the storm and who are isolated by their beliefs in the face of a greater authority who comes down heavy on them and they just remain solid and they stick to that. And I love that. I'm sort of gravitated towards those sort of voices."

Meet A Member: Hayley McLaughlin

Meet Hayley McLaughlin from Linlithgow, Scotland who moved to LA a year and a half ago to pursue her career in acting. She has just received her Green Card and is proud to call LA her home. Recently, Hayley has been up in Portland, Oregon filming 'The Librarians' for TNT.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

The US has always fascinated me; the vastitude of the place. I lived in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a year when I was 14, and I always had an inkling that I would come back one day.

The idea of living and working in the entertainment capital of the world has always been a dream for me. I have loved getting to know LA, all of the little quirks it has....oh, and sunshine!

What do you miss most each way and be in the from home? each way and be in the mountains, by the sea

Family... and a proper chippie... with the special brown chippie sauce... and Linlithgow Palace. But mostly family, I have a really close family so that is always tough. With technology these days it is so easy to keep in touch, and it makes it even more special when I do get to see them.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

Before I arrived, I had this vision of LA being like a catwalk; lots of beautiful people and chihuahua dogs in outfits. Even though it was so drastically different to what I had experienced at home or in London, it was nothing like this. There is far more to LA than chihuahuas and convertibles. I love that you can drive 40 minutes each way and be in the mountains, by the sea or in the desert. There is so much to explore, and every day I am here I appreciate it more and more. It takes time to see the real LA, I am so proud to call it home.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Linlithgow?

I guess for me it is work-related. I like that I am in a creatively competitive atmosphere; that excites me and drives me. I miss the people back in the UK so much, but I can make my living here doing what I love.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Yes, if you haven't been already then 'The Lake Shrine Temple' is truly magical. You forget you are in the middle of the city. If you ever feel alone or in need of a boost, this place just washes any doubt or worry away. It is amazing.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

You need a car! I would suggest doing research, and planning as much as you can beforehand. Also be prepared with a great immigration lawyer if you are serious about making the move. Like anywhere it takes time to settle, so just be prepared to stick it out and make the commitment. It takes time, but it is so worthwhile.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Always, ALWAYS take someone with you when buying a second hand car. Utilize great organizations such as Brits in LA. There are loads of people in the same boat as you, so just ask. The help is out there.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It's been kind of tough getting your new year on track as your boss Mars is traveling slower than he likes too. However, life will start to pick up speed by the middle of April when Mars starts revving his engines.

TAURUS: On the upside you can expect a call from someone from the past and this time you need to be upfront, honest and speak very frankly about your feelings. You will probably be feeling sluggish this weekend, however it's only temporary.

GEMINI: Your ruler Mercury is lazy around midweek and will bring out your mellow side, which favors getting a handle on any part of life that you have not resolved. Expect to be in the right frame of mind this week. CANCER: If you have not reconciled with a person or an issue which needs to be resolved you can expect the consequences to be long lasting. The self-deceiving Neptune in your cousin sign of Pisces can make you somewhat melancholy this week.

LEO: This has been a month of revelations in all (or most) areas. But if you examine your learning curve calmly you will likely feel pretty good. But remember to be kind to a family member who is not doing as well as you. VIRGO: It's time for a trip, and short or long, near or far matters not as you benefit from the change of scenery. Just make sure you wait until late in the month when the sun goes into Taurus your cousin sign.

LIBRA: You currently have the Sun in your opposite sign of Aries, so first do not travel before the end of the month unless you have to. If someone asks for financial aid be sure you get an IOU – it's for the best.

SCORPIO: Saturn in your money house is pulling your thoughts backwards and has put a damper on any plans you thought you had set. However, don't feel left out of the loop, this is good for you in some way or another. Changes start this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS: If you are worried about finances and are not doing anything to change the situation it will make you feel crazy. The good news is that Mars the fire cousin to you is going to start a new positive cycle for you this coming week.

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling a bit restless or not in balance this due to your "boss" Saturn in your subconscious. He is letting you know something in your life is ready to change. You will be right to listen to that inner voice.

AQUARIUS: Your judgment in a long-term situation is way out and this week if you allow yourself to go the same route as before you will just waste time. Be cool, wait and see if you can change your attitude and you can

PISCES: Your ruler Neptune is in your life for several years ahead and you will be both emotional and angry at times. This is merely a passing away of the old feelings you have lived with all your life. It's now time to release

Wars of the Roses: the original game of thrones

Exclusive interview with author John Ashdown-Hill and a review of his new book dispelling myths about England's civil war

Rating: ★★★

From 1455 and 1487 England experienced a series of small wars between two branches of aristocracy who were related by blood to the king. Each family wanted the throne of England. This conflict was known forever after as the War of the Roses.

"In the 1990s I had an article written questioning the existence of the so-called red rose of Lancaster," says The Wars of the Roses author John Ashdown-Hill. "Then my work on the story of Richard III showed me how full of myths are traditional historical accounts, so my exploration of the truth behind the socalled Wars of the Roses sprang from that."

Ashdown was recently awarded an MBE in recognition of the key role he played in the rediscovery of Richard III. Most people think the War of the Roses is just one war. Ashdown shows the war was actually many skirmishes over many years.

The wars between the Lancasters and the Yorks had many battles, disputes and traitors. However, unlike the Game of Thrones TV series it inspired, there were no dragons. In smashing old myths, Ashdown-Hill traces the lives of many familiar names from history: Edward IV, his wife Woodville, Elizabeth Richard III, Warwick the Kingmaker, the Princes in the Tower and Henry Tudor. Ashdown gives so much detail that many times when he says he will dig deeper into a fact later, you never realize when he does. As with any history of this time, you have to pay close attention because many of the players had the same names. This is great reading for learning the details of the Lancaster and York fight for the crown, with photos and lots of notes.

"While working on the book I realised that there were even more questions regarding the traditional accounts of the Wars of the Roses than I had ever realised,"

Ashdown-Hill. savs "For example, where is the evidence that Edward IV used a white rose badge? And why are the thirteenth and fourteenth century rulers of England called Plantagenets when there is no proof that any of them ever used that surname?"

"My research on Richard III, which led to the discovery his mitochondrial DNA sequence 2004, together with my disproving of the story that his dead body had been thrown into a river, and my discovery of solid evidence at The National Archives which showed that he had been buried at the Franciscan Priory in Leicester, all led to the rediscovery and identification of that dead king's remains," says Ashdown-Hill. "He was reburied with a rosary I gave him, and a crown I had made for him lay upon his coffin while his body awaited its royal reburial."

Ashdown-Hill doesn't have an agent. His books have yet to be optioned for TV or film, however he has worked with the BBC. "The 2010 publication of my earlier book, The Last Days of Richard III, led to the rediscovery of his long lost remains in 2012, and their reburial in a royal tomb in 2014. I've also taken part in a television documentary on the story of the so-called Princes in the Tower and what became of them."

Some of the prolific Ashdown-Hill's books include: Eleanor The Secret Queen, Richard III's Beloved Cousyn, Mediaeval Colchester's Lost Landmarks, Royal Marriage Secrets, The Dublin King, and The Mythology Of Richard III. He's also written many articles. He's currently working on two historical research projects that are followups from the search for the remains of Richard

Book Corner with Gabrielle Pantera

III and involve more archaeological scientific work. Another project is researching Eleanor.

Ashdown-Hill lives Colchester Essex. He was born in London. There's a list of his upcoming events and book signings on his

Groups, subgroups, prime groups: finding your tribe in a very dirty election year

Hey Britlings:

Are you over this election yet? Feeling the Bern or Berned out? Hots for Hills, or Trumping the Trump? Oh boy! I, for one cannot wait for it all to be over, so someone can run his cantankerous country.

To be quite frank, I'm actually over all of this 'America decides' phenomenon. From American idol, The Voice, to this political race... I don't ever remember the UK being this bad, but there definitely seems to be an obsession here in the USA. A sort of tribal calling. Facebook groups popping up like Bernie Bros and Bros4hillary, to crusing4cruz and the Trump Rioters, it seems like everyone is trying to find their tribe while at the same time trying to assimilate. So much for not putting people in boxes! It sometimes seems like social media is encouraging us to divide, rather than unite. Or perhaps social media is just giving us information overload.

And don't get me started on the lies – either little white ones or flaming big whoppers – that the candidates spout. Listen, I'm all for you supporting your candidate of choice, but a little fact checking will go a long way, I know I've been guilty in the past of enthusiastically posting, only to be called out by a 'friend' and told that my claim is fabricated (reaches swiftly for the delete button). Snopes has become my best friend now for fact-checking articles, images, etc...

We've all become experts on politics...or so we like to think. How I miss the more simpler times when social media was all about checking in to glamorous locations, posting food porn pics and describing your relationship status as 'it's complicated'. The best advice I've ever given was never read the comments. I truly don't know how these celebrities do it today!

Spam! Spam! Spam!

And then there's my email in-box. No matter how often I try to clean in out it's always full of come-ons from folks I've never meet, adverts for Mexican Viagra or penis enlargement emails.

All this causes me great anxiety that I'm never going to catch up. Arrrghhhh! Am I alone in this or do you feel it too?

Anyway I'm looking to you to help me step away from technology and I would love your advice. Shoot me an email at craig@britsin.la or send me a tweet at @craigryoung (is that ironic, or what?)

Anyway I noticed that in LA we have a lot of subgroups or neighborhoods and it got me to thinking of starting a petition to have an area named Little Britain. After all, if you can have a Little Bangladesh, why not a Little Britain? Would you be up for it and if so where do you think it should be? Join our Facebook conversation and let us know.

Congrats to pub quiz winners this week...we had a huge turnout at the Pikey on Sunset and also huge thanks to Centre Theatre Group for the raffle prizes to see 'A Gentleman's Guide to Love and Murder". I was lucky enough to see this last week and it was brilliant.

Thanks for reading and I hope to see you at one of our events very soon.

Cheers! Craig

British singing star Adele has only just returned from a threeyear hiatus but she's still keen to step away from the limelight!

According to my spies once her world tour wraps up later this year she'll stay out of the public eye for a while because wants to spend time with her three-year-old son Angelo.

Aw-diddums!

An insider told UK tabloid The Sun: "She has told her closest pals she will step away from the limelight for five years before she next brings out an album. She's still very new to motherhood and doesn't want to miss out on Angelo growing up. It will be a hard thing for fans to hear."

However, the 27-yearold singer had recently teased fans about the possibility of a new release by the end of the year. Speaking during her first gig at Belfast's SSE Arena in Northern Ireland earlier this month, she said: "There may be a new song towards the end of the shows," before adding: "I haven't written anything yet, though!"

Adele would rather be bringing up baby!

Adel is determined to do all she can to make Angelo, whom she has with partner Simon Konecki, proud of her.

She said: "In between my albums I popped out a baby. It is the greatest thing I ever did. Now I have complete purpose. I want him to be proud of me and understand why I do this."

Before her break back in 2012, Adele revealed why she didn't want to be constantly working. "If I am constantly working, my relationships fail," she told Vogue in an interview.

claimed that he had tell the Rocky star who the actor who defeated him was.

"Also, because he knew I was English, I had to tell him who Mark Rylance was. I talked him through all of Mark's performances at the Globe theatre.

"Good old Sly, I loved him in Creed. And I love Mark Rylance, so I had to remain pretty neutral about it"

Action man Jason has no 'hang-ups' about cross-dressing LG spot!

Statham is known mostly for his muscular, perpetually frowning characters he plays in action movies such as The Transporter, The Expendables and The Mechanic.

But, from April 1, and I ain't fooling' ya, we'll get to know Stath's softer side as the star of LG's promo campaign for the launch of the G5. And it looks like a doozy!

LG says that the "high-flying, highoctane" Statham will play every character in the spot, which is scheduled to air from April 1.

That's the date the LG G5 will go on sale globally; in the US, preorders are already open at the big four carriers and retailers like Best Buy.

LG already released two short clips, and in British hunk Jason one of them Statham is Statham is known wirtually unrecognizable, dressed as a well to do perpetually frowning lady enjoying brunch.

Maybe they should rename it the LGBT?

It's not clear how much dosh Jason was paid for starring in the commercial, but I can only imagine the amount of dollars it took for alpha male Stath' to dress up as a bird!

Ilook forward to seeing the full commercial this Friday. Let's hope Statham and director Fredrik Bond were able to deliver a funny and relatable clip for LG. Because, as HTC's experience with Robert Downey Jr. showed us, no amount of star power can fix a bad idea.! Just saying'...

Good luck with this ad Stath'... But I prefer you as the hunk we all know and love!

Stallone slams British comic's Oscar night 'lies'

Sylvester Stallone has attacked British comedian Jack Whitehall for creating "insulting lies" after he joked about consoling the actor after his loss at the Oscars.

The Hollywood star was reacting after Whitehall told the Daily Mirror the Creed star had cried on his shoulder after Mark Rylance won best supporting actor.

Whitehall was quoted as saying: "I had to console him about missing out on his Oscar, telling him there was always next year. Or maybe if he did Creed 2 he might get a nod. I think it reassured him."

While the comic's comments were obviously meant to be tongue in cheek, Stallone has not seen the funny side and has surprised many by retaliating.

"JACK WHITEHALL CONSOLED SLY AFTER

OSCARS' I NEVER met this young man Pity it has to be under these circumstances," he tweeted with a photo of a story about Whitehall's comments.

He then wrote on Instagram: "I was very proud of my nomination, worked hard for it, so why would anybody create insulting lies that only distort wonderful memories. Why do it?"

Whitehall had also

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ANN BETTS MORGAN CASE NO. BP171841

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested the WILL or estate, or both of ANN BETTS MORGAN

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DANIEL MONROE MORGAN in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that DANIEL MONROE MORGAN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

PETITION requests decedent's WILL and codicils. if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 04/12/16 at 8:30AM in Dept. 11 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent must file your claim the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult vith an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kent by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Washington stakes his claim as NI extend record

Conor Washington home marked his debut by earning Euro 2016-bound Northern Ireland victory over Slovenia in Monday's friendly at Windsor

The QPR striker, 23, charged his way through and turned to shoot low past keeper Jan Oblak in the 42nd minute.

Northern Ireland have now gone 10 games unbeaten for the first Slovenia had a chance equalise in the second half but veteran keeper Roy Carroll superbly saved Milivoje Novakovic's penalty.

The 66th-minute spotkick was awarded when West Brom defender Jonny Evans pulled back Miral Samardzic as a corner came into the area.

Notts County keeper Carroll made another fine stop in the 89th minute to keep out a low shot by Valter Birsa.

Washington, former postman who was playing nonleague football just over four years ago, earned his second cap after making his debut in Thursday's 1-1 draw in Wales

Boss Michael O'Neill has said the bulk of his squad will be made up by the players who got Northern Ireland to their first major finals for 30 years, so there are only a few places up for grabs.

Wales manager Chris Coleman says side's preparations for Euro 2016 will not be undermined by their recent indifferent form.

Monday's 1-0 friendly defeat by Ukraine in Kiev means Wales have won only one of their past six matches.

But, having qualified for their first major tournament since the 1958 World Cup, Coleman is not concerned about a possible loss of momentum.

"We're going of positivity, full of confidence," he said.

"The performances have been good."

Wales' only win in their past six games came against Andorra, with defeats by Bosnia-Herzegovina and the Netherlands.

Surprising England into Twenty/20 final

ICC World Twenty20 semi-final: Delhi New Zealand 153-8 (20 overs): Munro 46, Williamson 32, Stokes 3-26 England 159-3 (17.1 overs): Roy 78, Buttler 32, Sodhi 2-42

England won by seven wickets

England powered into their second World Twenty20 final as they hammered New Zealand by seven wickets in Delhi this week.

Batting first, previously unbeaten Black Caps raced to 89-1 after 10 overs, with Colin Munro blasting 46.

But England came back superbly to restrict them to 153-8, with Ben Stokes taking three wickets at the death as New Zealand scored just 20 off their last four overs.

Jason Roy hit a 44-ball 78 as England reached the target in 17.1 overs.

Eoin Morgan's side will play West Indies in Kolkata on Sunday.

Making it to the final completes a remarkable turnaround from last World year's Cup, England were where humiliatingly knocked out in the group stages, while New Zealand reached the final.

England captain Eoin Morgan has hailed the team's "amazing turnaround" after they reached the World Twenty20 final.

"Everybody involved has worked tirelessly to get us to this stage and to get us to play in this fashion," Morgan said.

"We've come out and we've delivered."

England have won 19 out of 31 limited-overs games since the World Cup - including nine out of 12 Twenty20 matches - with much of their improvement down to a more aggressive and enterprising approach, from especially batsmen.

And Morgan savs the team will be told to continue to play that way in the final on Delhi. "The later the stage you get to at a World Cup, the more licence you have as a team and as individuals to go out and express yourself as much as you can, so we'll be encouraging our guys to go out and do that," he said.

Batsman Iason Roy, who hit 78 in England's chase, described achievement "overwhelming".

able to right those wrongs and gain a few more people who back me."

■ Defensive failings cost England again as loss to Dutch dampens optimism following Berlin win

England boss Roy Hodgson said he was disappointed by his side's lack of creativity in their 2-1 defeat by the Netherlands at Wembley.

The loss came three days after England produced a thrilling comeback from two goals down to beat Germany 3-2.

"It was nothing like the performance I was after," said Hodgson. "We weren't as intensive or incisive as we were against Germany.

"We weren't as creative but we had control over the game."

He added: "It really is a high followed by a low."

England slipped to a first defeat at Wembley since November 2013 despite taking the lead through Jamie Vardy - the 100th goal of Hodgson's tenure.

The Leicester striker finished off a well-worked team move to add to his backheel goal against Germany.

But Vincent Janssen

scored from the spot after Danny Rose's handball before Luciano Narsingh scored the Dutch winner 13 minutes from time.

'Dinosaur' Hodgson upset at handball decisions

Hodgson thought the decision to penalise left-back Rose was harsh, and felt centre-back Phil Jagielka was fouled in the build-up to the winning goal.

"I think we were hard done by," he said. "I don't think we deserved to lose the game, the way the two decisions went against us.

"The second one in particular was exceptionally harsh. The first one is a decision that is given these days, which I unfortunately I don't agree with.

"I really do believe to give handball it has got to be absolutely deliberate and not hit the hand when people are trying to block the ball.

"I am becoming a dinosaur if I keep saying that because I see these decisions being given every week. Whether I agree with it or not, it doesn't make a lot of difference and it was given."

Hodgson will name his Euro 2016 squad on 12 May, 10 days before England face Turkey in a friendly at Etihad Stadium. They then host Australia on 27 May at Sunderland's Stadium of Light and Portugal on 2 June at Wembley.

And Hodgson felt the two matches against Germany and the Netherlands had helped him learn more about his players.

"I gave a lot of different players a chance to play. I've really aired the squad, if you like," said Hodgson.

"Hopefully that might be to my advantage in the future, when I am thinking about players and thinking about making decisions."

England will face Russia, Slovakia and Wales in Group B of Euro 2016, which starts on 10 June.

Villa and Garde part company

Aston Villa manager Remi Garde has left by mutual consent after just 147 days at the Premier League's bottom club.

The 49-year-old Frenchman (above) replaced Tim Sherwood on a threeand-a-half-year deal in November, but departs after six successive defeats.

His last game in charge was a 1-0 defeat at Swansea City on 19 March, a result that left Villa 12 points from safety with seven games remaining.

Villa won only two of their 20 league games during Garde's tenure.

A club statement thanked the former Arsenal player for his efforts "during a difficult period" and said Eric Black would take temporary charge.
