Knife-wielding maniac kills British backpacker

French kickboxer held after frenzied attack; another Briton is left fighting for life

A 21-YEAR-old British backpacker's trip of a lifetime was cut tragically short this week when she was brutally murdered in an Australian youth hostel by a knifewielding maniac who had become infatuated with her.

condition.

Ayliffe-Mia Chung . Belper from in Derbyshire, ĥad psychology studied and childcare before travelling to Surfers Paradise, in the state of Queensland, where she worked as a nightclub waitress. She had more recently moved to a hostel in the quiet town of Home Hill, about 60 miles south of the city of Townsville, where the attack took place on Tuesday night.

Tom Jackson, a 30-year-old British man who rushed to her aid and was also attacked is in hospital in a critical Police arrested a 29-year-old Frenchman, Smail Ayad at the scene. According to witnesses, Ayad, who was staying at the same hostel and had developed a 'delusional obsession' with his victim, yelled "Allah Akbar" – Arabic for "God is great" - during the attack and after he was arrested.

"terrible scene"

According to a report from the local paper The Townsville Bulletin, Ayad had fawned over Mia for several days and had told other backpackers at the hostel that the pair were deeply in love and married.

District Superintendent Ray Rohweder said witnesses left investigators in no doubt that any romantic feelings Ayad had for Miss Ayliffe-Chung were not reciprocated.

He said: "Certainly from Mia's point of view, there was no romantic connection. I don't believe there was any romance between them, there's no doubt about that."

Ayad is alleged to have attacked the woman after dragging her from a bunk bed in a shared dormitory and leaving her to die on the floor.

Mr Jackson was stabbed as he tried to rescue Miss Ayliffe-Chung by shielding her from the blows.

Police superintendent Ray Rohweder told reporters: "Police were confronted with a terrible scene when they arrived. There were up to 30 people who witnessed the incident."

GRISLY END: Ms Ayliffe-Chung died in the attack and several others in the hostel, including those who came to her aid, were injured

Australian officers said they had to use a Taser and pepper spray on Mr. Ayad whose passport lists his profession as kickboxer.

And Australian officers also told reporters that Ayad hit out at cops in a police van as he was being transferred from hospital to the police station for questioning. Two policemen suffered bite injuries in an attempt to calm him down before managing to handcuff his hands to his legs, reporters were told.

'gorgeous personality"

Officers said it took several officers to get the suspect into a padded cell.

Miss Chung's identity was confirmed by local media in Surfers Paradise, where her workmates described her as "bubbly".

She reportedly travelled north from Surfers Paradise ten days ago to work in a rural area to extend her Australian visa.

Farage at Trump rally: 'I wouldn't vote for Clinton if you paid me'

Amid faltering campaign, Republican presidential hopeful rolls out former UKiP leader

FORMER UKIP leader found himself at the center of the US presidential race this week, drawing big cheers at a Donald Trump rally.

Farage was introduced by the Republican presidential contender as the man behind the Brexit vote, which Trump has repeatedly praised during his campaign.

Trump described Brexit as a bid for autonomy and drew parallels to his own campaign, declaring a Trump presidency would bring 'American independence'. The tycoon has sought to freshen up his campaign after a series of gaffes and his faltering popularity in the polls.

'self-respect'

He introduced Farage as the leader of Ukip who stood up to the EU "against all odds". And although most of the crowed clearly had no idea who he was, Farage soon won them over by proclaiming: "We reached those people who have never voted in their lives but believed by going out and voting for Brexit they could take back control of their country, take back control of their borders and get back their pride and self-respect."

Farage drew loud cheers when he added that Brexit was "for the little people, for the real people".

Farage's involvement is part of Trump's latest strategy that centers on his new campaign chair, Stephen Bannon. Bannon was the head of the Breitbart website before Trump hired him, and is an enthusiastic supporter of Brexit.

Amy Browne, 19, from the Gold Coast, who worked as a bartender at the Bedroom Lounge Bar where Miss Ayliffe-Chung (pictured, right) was a waitress, told the Press Association: "Mia was honestly the most bubbliest and most caring girl I knew.

"She got along with everyone she met, she just had that gorgeous personality that everyone seemed to enjoy.

"She always had a smile on her face, so innocent and full of life and love. Our memories will be cherished forever and I know she'd want us all to stay positive in the darkest of times. Rest in peace my beautiful friend, heaven has truly gained another angel."

Her former Australian boyfriend Jamison Stead said she had not wanted to leave her waitress job on the Gold Coast to work on the farm but wanted to stay in Australia.

Mr Stead said: "She didn't initially want to go but we told her it would be an adventure and experience, so she saw the bright side in the opportunity.

"She had fallen in love with the country and its people. She wanted to get a sponsorship in the Gold Coast or Melbourne and live in Australia after she returned from her farm work.

"It's sad knowing that she won't be able to do those things. "Mia was a beautiful soul who was always looking out for people. Mia was a girl who lived life as spontaneously as possible. She had a passion for life and it was contagious if you knew her.

"She was a beautiful girl who had her whole life ahead of her. My heart goes out to her and her family. I am truly devastated by her sudden and violent death."

"It's something you hear about but never think that it would happen to someone you were close to."

Golden touchdown for Olympic heroes

Stars of Rio fly home as Team GB celebrates best Olympic performance in over a century

Team GB's Olympic heroes arrived home on Tuesday with the promise of even more success at the Tokyo Games in four years' time.

The recordbreaking team was welcomed by cheering ground staff as they landed at Heathrow on a specially chartered British Airways jumbo jet.

Boeing The 747, complete with а gold nose cone and a "victoRIOus" livery, carried 320 athletes and support staff who stayed in Brazil for Sunday's closing ceremony, as well as 77 bottles of champagne and luxury three-course meals.

Britain won 67 medals at the games - the country's biggest medal count in more than a century and two more than the remarkable haul in London four years ago, putting Team GB second in the medal table.

'very competitive'

And the country's athletes will be able to perform at Rio levels for the next eight years thanks to an increase in funding, the vice chairman of the British Olympic Association said.

Sir Hugh Robertson said that a 29 per cent increase in funding for elite athletes at the last public spending review, combined with National Lottery investment, would allow similar success in the future.

He said: "The combination of those two things will offer us security through to Tokyo and beyond and enable us to invest in athletes in the way that we've done in the past to deliver success."

He added: "This is a very competitive business - the time margins that separate success and failure at Olympic sport are tiny - but set against this, nobody ever thought that we would do better in Rio than we did in London and by the same token there is no reason, given the fundamental structure of British Olympic sport and the way it is geared to deliver medal success that we shouldn't have a very, very good games indeed in Tokyo.

"fit for heroes"

Gold medallists Nicola Adams and Max Whitlock were the first to appear at the plane door, before the rest of the athletes emerged, waving and posing for

The journey home was extra special for the team's 27 gold medallists, who were given upgrades to First Class.

Among them was world record-breaking swimmer Adam Peaty, 21, and rower Helen Glover, a double Olympic champion - who revealed Team GB's athletes stood up for a rendition of God Save The Queen as it played over the Tannoy before the plane left the tarmac.

There will now be a huge event in London in October as well as a parade through the streets of Manchester to recognise the success of Britain's Olympic and Paralympic stars.

Prime Minister Theresa May said: "It will be a celebration fit for heroes - and rightly so, because that is exactly what they are."

London mayor Sadiq Khan said: "Our athletes have performed heroics in Rio and their exploits have gripped the entire nation.

Authorities baffled as five die at 'safe' beach There are no massive rip currents, it's all very much unexplained"

AUTHORITIES were searching for answers this week after the tragic death of five men in the waters off Camber Sands.

The deaths came on the hottest day of the year and shocked beachgoers at the popular East Sussex seaside town, which is famous for its calm seas and shallow waters.

It was the culmination of a deadly week on British beaches, with seven other people dying around the UK coastline since Friday.

The first alert came just after 14:10 when coastguard helicopters, a lifeboat, rescue teams and an air ambulance were sent to the scene after reports three men were in need of urgent medical assistance.

The beach was cleared and the public were asked to stay away while the emergency services dealt with the incident. The three men, later identified as Nitharsan Ravi, Kenigan Nathan and the latter's brother Kobi Nathan, were pronounced dead at the scene.

And in a macabre twist, the receding tide revealed the bodies of two more men stuck in the sand some hours later. This led to suggestions the pair may have caught in quicksand, and other reports suggested that all five deaths may be linked to jellyfish.

The other two were later named as Kurushanth Anna and Inthushan Sri. All are believed to be good friends from Sri Lankan communities in the capital.

Kenigan Nathan was 19 and his brother Kobi Nathan was 22 years old, and their friend Nitharsan Ravi was also aged 22.

The sea around Camber Sands has no especially dangerous features and the deaths remain "very much unexplained", said an RNLI worker positioned further up the coast.

"There are no deep shelves there and the beach is known to be very, very safe," they told The Independent.

"And there are no massive rip currents. It's all very much unexplained. If you see photographs of the sea at the time, it's very calm.

"It might be they had medical conditions, or they were very hot and got cold water shock – we just don't know."

Eyewitness Natalja Taylor, 30, said she saw three people being pulled out of the water, apparently by "regular people, not emergency personnel".

"There were so many people there. They were still on the beach when we left," she said. She said police drove on to the beach with a loudspeaker telling people not to go into the water until further notice, and also taped off "a huge chunk of the beach so no-one could get near it".

She said: "It's pretty scary. I'm not sure how it happened. We decided not to go into the sea after seeing warning signs about some kind of fish.

"It wasn't particularly windy down there, it was just a hot, sunny beach day."

Charlotte Frederick, from London, who saw the rescue operation take place, said: "One was taken away on a rescue truck and the other two were left behind."

She said she realised later that the other two men had also died.

"We saw them take up a blanket and then after that we saw them taken in a body bag. It was really distressing," she said.

Camber Sands is a popular destination for beach-goers and Rother District Council provides beach patrols there throughout the summer.

A council spokesman said: "While it's very upsetting to see two similar, tragic incidents this summer, over the years these kind of incidents are

Police Scotland approves hijab as official uniform to boost number of Muslim women joining force

■ Move comes 15 years after Metropolitan police introduced optional hijabs for officers in London

Police Scotland has announced that the hijab will become part of its official uniform as it aims to create a more diverse force.

The force said they hope the move will "encourage women from Muslim communities, who may previously not have seen policing as a career option, to reconsider".

In the past, Muslim police officers in Scotland were allowed to wear the hijab, but only once it was approved by senior staff members.

The Metropolitan Police introduced the hijab as an optional part of the force's official uniform in 2001 as part of a similar drive to recruit a more diverse mix of officers. In a statement, chief constable Phil Gormley said: "I am delighted to make this announcement and welcome the support from both the Muslim community, and the wider community, as well as police officers and staff.

"Like many other employers, especially in the public sector, we are working towards ensuring our service is representative of the communities we serve. I hope that this addition to our uniform options will contribute to making our staff mix more diverse and adds to the life skills, experiences and personal qualities that our officers and staff bring to policing the communities of Scotland."

The announcement was welcomed by the Scottish Police Muslim Association (SPMA), a group that aims to build links between Muslim communities in Scotland and the police.

Fahad Bashir, chair of the SPMA said: "This is a positive step in the right direction, and I am delighted that Police Scotland is taking productive steps in order to ensure that our organisation is seen to be inclusive and represents the diverse communities that we serve across Scotland.

"No doubt this will encourage more women from Muslim and minority ethnic backgrounds to join Police Scotland."

Police Scotland's diversity drive follows statistics from the Scottish Police Authority released earlier this year which showed just 127, (2.6 en per cent) of the 4,809 ty applications to join the in force were from people with ethnic backgrounds.

In a statement, chief constable Phil Gormley said: "I am delighted to make this announcement and welcome the support from both the Muslim community, and the wider community, as well as police officers and The announcement was welcomed by the Scottish Police Muslim Association (SPMA), a group that aims to build links between Muslim communities in Scotland and the police."

Meet A Member: Michele D'Acosta

Meet Michele D'Acosta from London who moved to LA twenty years ago to pursue her dream to make movies, produce art, and to help children like her who had been orphaned at an early age.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

As a Brit, I imagined that in order to fulfill my destiny I needed to Go West! The first leg of my trip took me from London to New York (I lived in NYC for several years) until one day I upped sticks and obeyed my inner voice to go to the West Coast. When I was young woman trying to break into the film industry in North America, one of my ambitions was to work with the Los Angelesbased film director, Nick Broomfield. I was blessed to achieve this goal. Furthermore, my godfather, Eric Reed, was a Hollywood cameraman. He bought me my first camera when I was eight years old.

What do you miss most from home?

To be honest, I commute back and forth between London and Los Angeles.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

My first impression of LA was meeting Nick Broomfield at Los Angeles International Airport; we hated each other on sight! Has my impression of LA changed since that day? Yes. My perception of Los Angeles is a city that's at a crossroads between the dystopian visions of the author Philip K. Dick and the Technicolor fairy tale of L. Frank Baum's Emerald City. I identify myself as a mashup of Toto, Tin Man and Rachael not knowing that she is a replicant.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? Pet cemeteries fascinate me. The Los Angeles Pet Memorial Park, one of the largest and oldest of its kind on the West Coast, offers bereaved pet owners a sense of community.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Always go with your gut instinct, however, if you're in two minds about moving to LA, don't do it. Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given? The best piece of advice I've been given is by Nick Broomfield who said to me: "Don't second guess yourself."

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your finances could be getting a boost as early September. Look for an opportunity to make extra money, as this could be something completely different and fun. It's a good week for a gamble of sorts.

TAURUS: The sun in your cousin sign of Virgo will bring an unresolved situation to a head. Therefore it's best to deal with this promptly rather than procrastinate.

GEMINI: It's time again for your boss Mercury to turn backwards. He will complete what has transpired in your life these past few months, so you will be travelling (emotionally or otherwise) to a place where you can put things in order or to rest.

CANCER: Movement is good for you and this week it's all around you and in the family also. Be strong and understand you are not weak if you admit to a change of mind. Since you do tend to hide away in your shell when upset or stressed, let that certain someone know what you are doing.

LEO: Health issues could hold you back from enjoying these last weeks of summer, so tackle what must be done and don't sweat the small stuff. Make it your priority to spend time relaxing. Your personal New Year has begun, so make it good.

VIRGO: As this coming month is the start of your new year be sure you are ready and willing to get going on your particular plan for the new year. If it is a change of work or home this will be best after September as your boss Mercury is moving backwards now. Happy Birthday!

LIBRA: Mercury will be going backwards next week and for a while ahead and it's in the part of your life that's not always on show to others. With this in mind be sure you do not get caught up in any old emotional baggage. As next month moves forward Jupiter is heading your way. Happy Days!

SCORPIO: You are likely concerned about health or about that of another you are close to. Best to take control and let go of any stress as this is most likely the problem after a challenging earlier part of the year. The autumn months are looking excellent overall.

SAGITTARIUS: You could be feeling a bit moody or out of sorts due to Saturn digging deeper into your life. As he is in your area of deep feelings be aware that you are best to not always believe what your mind tells you. Overall this would be a good time to start working on a more positive state of mind.

CAPRICORN: Your financial situation is still not what you want, however in order to achieve a positive flow of money you have to assume it is already here. This means to not act or think in lack of anything in life. Wake up every day and work on it being better than yesterday..

AQUARIUS: A family member is much in your life currently. It's your responsibility so set your own boundaries in your life now. Be sure of this; if you don't know set a limit on how much you do for your family or friends, someone will always want more.

PISCES: Health is on your mind - either yours or of another close to you. This week to help the situation get an exercise plan going for your self and encourage others to join in. If they don't then at least you can rest easy knowing you tried!

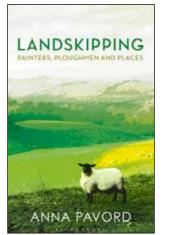

An absorbing look at Brits and their land

Exclusive interview with author Anna Pavord about her book exploring remote locations in the UK

Rating: $\star \star \star$

"Walking is the only way to understand the detail of a country as diverse and complex as Britain," says Landskipping author Anna Pavord.

"So I take the reader to my birthplace in the border country between England and Wales, to the Lake District where I explore the beginnings of the tourist industry in this country, to the Highlands of Scotland where much of Landskipping was written, in a cottage I have rented for years on the Attadale Estate. The final section of the book explores the sense of place and is very much based in West Dorset where we have lived for nearly fifty years."

Pavord's knowledge of the British landscape and her observations of the Brits' love of their land is inspiring. Her descriptions of plants and the seasonal changes to the landscape paint a vivid picture. She explores Britain's most iconic landscapes through artwork and literature, past and the present. A personal she has story, а connection to the places she's writing about. A book to keep for years that you can pick up and put down as you become interested in different places. Makes you think about what home really is.

Thirty years gardening the as correspondent for The prepared Independent Pavord for writing Landscaping. She had a weekly column that began with the founding of the paper in 1986 and finished with the last print edition on Easter Saturday of this year.

"Landscape as a theme for a book has been in my mind for years," says Pavord. I began with the notion that I would just explore the subject more deeply for my own pleasure, not necessarily for a book. But after four years of fairly intense and fascinating work, I decided there might be a book in the material I had, if I could organize it to my satisfaction. It took me another year to isolate the three themes...another year to actually write the book. It's the most personal book I've ever written, with much of it based on my own experiences and memories."

During her research on the first section of the book, about the first British artists to paint British landscapes, three places: the Lake District, the mountains of North Wales and the Highlands of Scotland, quickly emerged as favourite subjects.

The second section of the book drove Pavord to research the way that farming has shaped the land, the activities of agricultural "improvers" at the end of the 18th century. "I got hold of most of the reports commissioned by the Board of Agriculture which the government of the day set up to find out about how Britain was farmed and how things might be done more efficiently," says Pavord. "Reports came in from each of the 54 counties of England and Wales. Buying antiquarian books is a great weakness. I think I can justify it because I need them for research, but actually it's because I just love to have them on the shelf and be able to go back to them frequently A real book on your own shelf is a much quicker and more satisfying way to research than trawling around on the Internet."

For the third part of the book, based in West Dorset, Pavord turned to her local library. "Our magnificent Dorset History Centre," she says. "Researching the background of one Powerstock, village, through tithe maps, which were commissioned in 1839 and the first census which happened in 1841. Through these documents, you can discover people and the landscape, and know what was being grown, how people earned a living.

Pavord has written twelve books, the most notable of the others being The Tulip (1999) and The Naming of Names (2005). "Because of my book The Tulip, a best seller, I came on four book tours in the U.S. which I loved. On book tour, you have an opportunity to meet so many people."

Pavord has a home in West Dorset. She born in Abergavenny, a small market town in Monmouthshire, on the border between England and Wales.

Let's get it kickstarted...

Let's face it, Kickstarter campaigns can be a real pain in the rear end, right?

I know I'm guilty of sighing each time a new update comes in. But so many of my friends are raising money to fund their dream-come-true projects these days, that I actually think it's kind of wonderful. Some people have really gone on to do wonderful things, like Brits in LA member Jake Thornton, who used Kickstarter to raise funds for a short film called "Blood Soldiers." He has now gone on to sell some major Hollywood scripts and as just bought his first home for his family. Gayle Day has funded a few albums. Many are funding plays and ideas. I just funded a new comfortable way to travel - a neck brace, that fits over the airline seat and cradles the face... genius!

Anyway, think of a Kickstarter fund as not only a good way of supporting your friends, but supporting the arts and helping people who can't use traditional ways of getting noticed or cannot sneak in through the tiny openings of those verytight Hollywood gates.

Which leads me nicely to introduce our latest artistic venture: @asst (AKA The Assistants). A comedy show about the lives of six friends who also work as celebrity assistants, with many trials and tribulations, navigate their thev way through the lives of the rich and famous while trying to live their own lives too. We have a target of $10,000, which will make sure our cast and crew get paid and funds the equipment rental, locations and insurance. We realize that the traditional way of fundraising can get lost in the saturated market, so decided we would actually give free content every other day to thank our backers and supporters, which you can view by visiting our Kickstarter page. Visit www.kickstarter.com and put @asst_ in the search function. You may recognize Brits in LA member Jeffrey Postlethwaite (from Peaky Blinders) - and me - as his boss. We've had SO much fun making these short films for you, which is just a tiny taster of what's yet to come. So any pledge you can make will not go unnoticed as we have some fun perks for you too. I hope you will support us and the art!

If music be the food of love...

We are very blessed that the city which we now call home is one of the world's great music cites, and this summer we've been spoiled for choice, with SO MANY great British acts playing recently.

Top of my list is probably Adele at the Staples Center. She sounded amazing, however she had to cancel a show in Arizona a few days later due to a cold (she actually posted a video were alsofantastic and invoked real nostalgia in me, as I remember being five on a holiday in Margate, being paid to STOP singing the only song I knew... "Brown Girl in The Ring -Tra-la-la-la-la". Other Brit acts coming this week include Chesney Hawkes, Angela

Titus Andronicus: lessons for the modern world at the Theatricum Botanicum

Theater Review by Catherine Siggins

America is approaching a crossroads.

In November, her citizens will decide which direction they will take politically and socially. Will they hold onto the current political structure, though it's in need of refurbishment, or will they follow a course based on one person's self-interest, personal gratification, prejudices, and sense of shotgun justice, regardless of the consequences to the greater whole? Worse then that, are you suffering from Game of Thrones withdrawals, and don't think you survive without can beheadings, mass killings, and graveside humour until Spring 2017? There is a remedy!

> As part of the Summer Repertory Season, Will Theatricum Geer's Botanicum are staging Shakespeare's tragedy Titus Andronicus. General Andronicus (Sheridan Crist), returns to Rome with his captives, Queen Tamora (Marie Francoise Theodore), her three sons (Nima Jafari, Kelvin Morales, Miebaka Yohannes), and her Moorish lover Aaron (Michael McFall), after a 10-year war against the Goths. He mercilessly demands the sacrifice of Tamora's eldest son as tribute for the sons he has lost in the war, which starts a terrible cycle of revenge. At the same time, Rome is in need of a new Emperor, and the sons of the old one, Saturninus (Christopher W. Jones) and Bassianus (Turner Frankosky), are vying for the throne. The people of Rome want Titus to rule, much to the anger of Saturninus, and though Titus refuses the honor, he takes this as a personal insult, and a hatred for Titus and his family is born. When Saturninus takes Tamora as his queen, she is free to have her revenge unconstrained, which make this the bloodiest of all Shakespeare's plays.

Titus is a cautionary tale about abuse of power, and examines what happens when personal desire and

Scotland's Tannahill Weavers set Altadena date

Scotland's Tannahill Weavers will bring their dynamic and traditional Celtic music to The Coffee Gallery Backstage in Altadena on Monday, 19 September at 7:30 pm.

They will also bring their brand new DVD "Piping Live", documenting an exciting concert with not one but five Tannahill Weavers pipers performing the show. Four extra pipers, to celebrate 40 years of the Tannies touring with the bagpipes.

The Tannahill Weavers are one of Scotland's premier traditional bands. Their diverse repertoire spans the centuries with historic weaving industry fire-driven instrumentals, topical songs, original ballads and lullabies, and humorous tales of life in Scotland. Their music demonstrates to old and young alike the rich and varied musical heritage of the Celtic people. These versatile musicians have received worldwide accolades consistently over the years for their exuberant performances and outstanding recording efforts that seemingly can't get better...yet continue to do just that.

Born of a session in Paisley, Scotland and named for the town's and local poet laureate Robert Tannahill, the group has made an international name for its special brand of Scottish music, blending the beauty of traditional melodies with the power of modern rhythms. Over the years the Tannies have been trailblazers for Scottish music, and their tight harmonies and powerful, inventive arrangements have won them fans from beyond the folk and Celtic music scenes.

self-interest supplant the agreed-upon sociopolitical structure. Though lacking dragons, deadly creatures the that inhabit this world are of the human kind murderers, rapists and filicides- and in total they manage to cause 14 killings, two beheadings, five amputations, one multiple-rape, one live burial, one case of insanity, and an act of cannibalism.

Set in a near future, Ms. Geer has created a Rome where politics is not far from a game show, where the citizens' cheers and applause are demanded on cue cards, and the music and fanfare of the court sound like cheap advert jingles. She has dressed oppression in a shiny suit, and given it an ultrawhite smile. Even before the start of the play, the long strains of fraught violin strings, part of an outstanding original music score by Marshall McDaniel, evoke a sense of epic foreboding.

Sheridan Crist plays Titus with great energy and agility, easilv tackling emotional shifts from prideful rage to deepest loss. His vocal command and use of the language is a delight, and his Titus is deeply inventive and entertaining in his journey from hubris to madness. It's obvious he is enjoying the role. Michelle Wicklas is heartbreaking as poor Lavinia, dragged away powerless, to be viciously used by Tamora's two sons. One feels real injustice when her father in the name of family honour ultimately kills her. Michael McFall, like a beefier Samuel L. Jackson, takes no prisoners as Aaron the Moor, Tamora's lover. The delight he takes in his vengeful and villainous acts is gripping.

Besides the obvious brutal goings-on, this production riveting is deeply moving and surprisingly funny, which will have you shocked one moment and laughing the next at some very dark Under situations. director Ellen Geer's expert hand the effect on the characters of these extreme situations gives rise to some very comic moments amongst the bloodletting, while ensuring her excellent cast is well grounded in the reality of the situations. Not for the squeamish, it's not to be missed!

Titus Andronicus runs continues through Oct 1 in rep. Recommended for mature audiences: adult themes and graphic violence.

Two more new signings on the way for Gunners Arsenal have agreed a deal to sign Deportivo La Coruna striker Lucas Perez and are close to reaching an agreement with Valencia for centreback Shkodran Mustafi. Spaniard Lucas, 27, scored 17 goals in 37 games last season and Arsenal will meet a 20m euro (£17.1m) buyout clause.

Germany international Mustafi, 24, is set to join for a fee in excess of £35m.

It would take Arsenal's spending to almost £100m since last season.

They have added midfielder Granit Xhaka, defender Rob Holding, forward Takuma Asano and midfielder Kelechi Nwakali to their squad this term.

Everton were closing in on a deal for Lucas before Arsenal declared their interest.

Arsenal boss Arsene Wenger has said he is not reluctant to spend money in the transfer market after being criticised by fans. He is currently in the final year of his contract with the Gunners and has endured a difficult start to the season, with only one point after two games.

Hammers tumble out

West Ham failed to reach the Europa League group stage as Astra Giurgiu knocked them out in the qualifying round for the second year in a row on Thursday.

After a 1-1 away draw last week, West Ham went behind when Filipe Teixeira precisely finished a swift counterattack by the Romanian champions.

After the break West Ham's Jonathan Calleri and Winston Reid missed good chances and Ashley Fletcher went close.

But West Ham could not avoid a first competitive

The home fans left the Premier League club's new 60,000-seater ground within seconds of the fulltime whistle, although the small pocket of Romanian supporters remained to celebrate with their jubilant players. The result leaves Manchester United and Southampton as the only English sides in Friday's draw.

Pep's going back to Barcelona!

City draw Catalan giants in Champions League group stage

Manchester City Scottish will meet champions Celtic manager Pep and former Guardiola's club Barcelona in the Champions League group stage.

German side Borussia Monchengladbach will be the other team in Group B.

Premier League champions Leicester will play Porto, Club Brugge and FC Copenhagen in their debut campaign.

Arsenal have been drawn alongside Paris St-Germain, Basel and Ludogorets, with Tottenham facing Monaco, CSKA Moscow and Bayer Leverkusen.

Spanish side Real Madrid beat neighbours Atletico on penalties in last season's final, becoming European champions for a record 11th time.

Zinedine Zidane's side meet German outfit Borussia Dortmund, Portugal's Sporting Lisbon and Legia Warsaw of Poland.

who Guardiola, replaced Manuel Pellegrini at the end of last season, is Barcelona's most successful boss, leading the Spanish club to 14 major trophies between 2008 and 2012. He helped the Catalans, who are five-time European champions. win the Champions League in 2009 and 2011.

After leaving the Nou Camp, the former Spain midfielder took charge of German side Bayern Munich and lost to his former side in the 2014-15 Champions League semi-finals.

City, who lost to champions Real Madrid in the semi-finals last season, qualified for the group stage thanks to a 6-0 aggregate win over Romania's Steaua been drawn against, it Bucharest. was always going to be

As well as facing Barcelona for a third time in four seasons, City also return to Monchengladbach, whom they beat home and away in last season's group stage.

"It is not a nightmare draw because we are in a wonderful competition - but it is a very tough group," City director of football Txiki Begiristain said.

"Pep knows the group very well obviously Barcelona but also Borussia Monchengladbach from his time in Germany."

Leicester produced one of the great sporting shocks to win last season's Premier League title and qualify for the Champions League for the first time.

The Foxes' last involvement in European football saw them knocked out of the Uefa Cup in the first round by Red Star Belgrade in 2000.

Claudio Ranieri's side could have been drawn in a group with last season's beaten finalists Atletico Madrid, Dutch champions PSV Eindhoven and Turkish league winners Besiktas. Although they face Portuguese champions Porto, who have reached the group stage for a sixth successive season, Belgian title winners Club Brugge and Danish champions FC Copenhagen have shown little Champions League pedigree in recent years.

Brugge are competing in the group stage for the first time since 2005-06, while Copenhagen are 81st in Uefa's club rankings.

"With the history of all the clubs we could have been drawn against, it was always going to be an interesting draw," said Foxes director of football Jon Rudkin.

"These are three very established European football clubs and strong teams."

Russian side Rostov - the only other Champions League debutants this season - face Atletico and German champions Bayern Munich.

Return for Spurs

Tottenham mark their return to European football's top competition for the first time in six seasons, while Arsenal will aim to qualify for the knockout stages for a 13th successive year.

Spurs, who reached the quarter-finals in 2010-11 with wins over both Milan clubs, have avoided the European heavyweights despite being drawn in pot three. With White Hart Lane's capacity reduced as work begins on a new stadium, Tottenham will play their Champions League games at Wembley this season.

Their toughest test is likely to come against Russian champions CSKA Moscow, the 2005 Uefa Cup winners.

"We know very well that Russia is always difficult and CSKA are sure to have a very good team," said Spurs manager Mauricio Pochettino.

Arsenal, who reached the last 16 last season, and PSG will be favourites to progress from Group A.

French champions PSG knocked Chelsea out in the last 16 before losing to Manchester City, but have not met Arsenal since the 1993-94 Cup Winners' Cup semifinal.

HAPPY RETURNS? Manchester City boss Pep Guardiola guided Barcelona to Champions League glory in 2009 and 2011
