Police probe 'poisoning' of rising tennis star

■ Rival player or coach, or even organized crime, could be behind bizarre case which almost killed 18-year-old prospect Scotland Yard is investigating allegations that a female tennis player was deliberately poisoned while competing at last month's Wimbledon Championships.

Rising British star Gabriella Taylor, 18, was forced to withdraw from the girl's tournament midway through her quarter final match, after being struck down with a mystery illness.

It was initially thought that she had contracted a virus while playing overseas, but after spending four days in intensive care, doctors eventually diagnosed a rare strain of Leptospirosis, a disease caused by a bacterium that can be transmitted through rat urine.

whether she could have been the subject of a malicious plot by a rival player or coach from the fiercely competitive junior circuit.

Miss Taylor's devastated parents, Paul and Milena, were struggling to come to terms with what had happened to their daughter after discovering that she could have died.

Mrs Taylor said: "Before the tournament she was in very good shape physically. She was totally healthy and playing very well.

"She was full of confidence and was looking forward to getting the title; that was her dream. Everything was going well.

"She got to the quarter-final, but then the next thing she is lying in intensive care close to death. When the infection team explained what it was we could not believe it."

Leptospirosis is a disease caused by a bacterium which is usually spread by animals and in the most cases only causes mild flu-like symptoms.

But some strains, including the one Miss Taylor is thought to have contracted, can be much more serious and in rare cases can cause fatal organ failure.

Miss Taylor's mother said the athlete had been staying at the National Tennis Centre during the tournament and had only been going travelling between there and The All England Club at Wimbledon.

Mrs Taylor said: "She was staying in a completely healthy environment. For her to get ill in these circumstances, with rat urine, was just impossible.

"The bacteria the infection team found is so rare in Britain that we feel this could not have been an accident. Her bags with her drinks in were often left unattended in the players' lounge and someone could have taken the opportunity to contaminate her drink."

Metropolitan police detectives have already been to visit the family at their home in Southampton and have taken away some of Miss Taylor's water bottles for further forensic analysis.

organized crime

Police launched a criminal investigation last week amid fears that she had been deliberately poisoned in an attempt to wreck her tournament chances.

One theory being explored is that Miss Taylor may have been targeted by an organized crime betting syndicate.

But the police investigation will also raise questions over

Bank of England sends key rate to historic low

■ Brexit vote results in gloomy forecast for next three years; economy may shrink by 2.5%

The Bank of England has cut interest rates to a historic low of 0.25%.

The Bank's governor, Mark Carney, said the cut – the first since the height of the financial crisis in 2009 – was needed to “cushion” the impact of the Brexit vote and avert recession. As part of a package of emergency measures, he also announced a £60bn boost to the Bank's programme of “quantitative easing” to pump more money into the economy, and the creation of a new £100bn fund to encourage cheap lending by commercial banks.

Carney insisted Britain could “handle” the impact of Brexit, but gave a gloomy forecast for the next three years: the economy could shrink by 2.5%, and unemployment rise by 250,000. A survey this week found that, since 23 June, the UK services sector had seen its steepest ever month-on-month decline. Manufacturing also fell to its lowest level in three years. Retail sales for July, however, rose by 1.1% on last year's.

What the editorials said
The Bank's move reflects “a dispiriting truth”, said

The Times. As economists always predicted, the Brexit vote has hit the economy hard. But sadly, “the Bank has a very limited ability to compensate for this”. With interest rates already close to zero, another small cut won't do much to encourage consumer spending or business investment. The Bank's strategy might even worsen “economic inequality”, said The Observer. Lower interest rates tend to push up inflation, hurting low-income households most of all. And pouring money into the economy will force up the value of assets, benefiting already rich homeowners.

Some short-term economic anxiety was inevitable after the Brexit vote, said the Daily Mail. So was it really wise of Carney to “rush through” his stimulus package so soon? Much is still unclear and there's a danger that his early “intervention” will only “heighten the impression of crisis shamefully whipped up by disgruntled Remain supporters”. The governor should have waited until “the dust had settled”.

What the commentators said

Congratulations to Carney for acting “more boldly than anyone could have imagined”, said Alex Brummer in the Daily Mail. It was just such prompt and “fearless” action by the Bank of England that rescued the economy after the financial crisis of 2008. With luck, the governor's “bumper package” will do the same today. Inevitably savers will suffer from the “rock-bottom interest rates”, but cheaper borrowing will surely encourage house buyers and consumers. Yet monetary policy can only provide a partial answer to our woes, said Michael Kitson on The Conversation. What's really needed is serious investment by the state to tackle our long-standing problem of “stagnant productivity”.

“A new Government offers a new opportunity to recast economic policy. So why not take advantage of those low interest rates to splurge on more house-building, improve our education system, and rebuild our failing national infrastructure?”

SPLIT: Bea and Dave had been together for 10 years

Beatrice splits with long-term boyfriend

Princess Beatrice has ditched her long time boyfriend Dave Clark after tiring of waiting for him to pop the question.

Hello! magazine reported that Clark, 32, and the Princess of York, who turned 28 this week, made their decision after taking a month-long break amidst a serious discussion about their future.

"After ten years together, Beatrice and Dave had to wonder why they were not married," a source close to Beatrice told The Mail on Sunday.

The same source also noted that the princess' mother Sarah, Duchess of York, is very sad about the split and 'feels as though she has lost a son'.

But it might be too soon to lose all hope — friends of the couple say the split was amicable and mutual and that they are open-minded about the future.

So who knows, we could be looking at a Will and Kate-style story. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge broke up for a few months in 2007 before getting engaged in 2010.

The Princess and Clark — who is now the senior advisor to the CEO of Uber — met during a study abroad program with the University of Edinburgh. However it was Prince William who introduced Clark to his cousin and they hit it off immediately.

Over the years, Clark and the Princess have been seen out and about in London, San Francisco and New York City with the Royal Family and celebrity friends like Uber investor Ashton Kutcher and his wife Mila Kunis.

Sprog #5 for TV chef Jamie

■ Proud father takes to social media to introduce new addition to the family

Jools and Jamie Oliver have become parents for the fifth time following the safe arrival of their new baby boy.

Proud mum Jools announced the happy news on Instagram, sharing a photo of her breastfeeding her tiny newborn. "Little boy Oliver has arrived, we are so very happy, blessed, grateful and totally in love all over again, and so very proud of our two eldest daughters who cut the cord," she wrote. "Jamie was my hero. (No name yet!!!) XXXX."

Jamie also shared the news of his son's safe arrival with his fans, along with a picture of the baby swaddled in a blanket, "And then this just happened guys!! IT'S A BABY BOY! Everyone in the Oliver family is very surprised and beyond happy," he wrote on Facebook.

"He arrived safely, mum/@joolsoliver was really really amazing, unbelievably composed, natural birth and my two eldest girls got to come in at the very end as the baby was born which was amazing to witness, very very emotional."

He continued: "8lbs (that's 16 packs of butter for you bakers out there) anyway we're all hitting

Chef Jamie and kids' clothing designer Jools, both 41, are already parents to Poppy Honey Rose, 14, Daisy Boo Pamela, 12, Petal Blossom Rainbow, six, and five-year-old Buddy Bear Maurice. Shortly after announcing Jools' pregnancy, Jamie confessed his family were shocked by the news.

He told the Mirror: "I love kids, my family keep me honest. I have a weird job, a weird life, but my family keeps me quite real. I thought we'd have a couple of kids, but that's about it."

Jamie also confessed he thinks this will be their last child, continuing: "I think so, yeah, I mean, it's getting ridiculous otherwise. This was not expected, I can't even believe I'm saying it. I think my own family were like, 'Really?!!' But we're all tuned into kids, it's good, it's carnage!"

Jools and Jamie have been together since they were 18, and married in his hometown of Rickling, Essex, aged 25.

May to end grammar school ban

■ Tory MPs hail decision as “victory for common sense”

Theresa May is planning to launch a new generation of grammar schools by scrapping the ban on them imposed almost 20 years ago, it was revealed this week.

In a move that will be cheered by Tory grassroots, the Prime Minister intends to pave the way for a new wave of selective schools.

Mrs May is understood to see the reintroduction of grammar schools - banned by Tony Blair in 1998 - as a key part of her social cohesion agenda.

The historic shift in education policy is expected to be announced by the end of the year, possibly as early as the Conservatives' annual party conference in October.

It marks a major departure from David Cameron's education policy, with the former prime minister repeatedly refusing to give in to pressure from backbenchers on the issue.

A government source said allowing new

BETTER THEN? in their heyday, grammar schools accounted for almost half the students accepted to Oxford and Cambridge grammar schools was about “social mobility and making sure that people have the opportunity to capitalise on all of their talents”.

Tory MPs who have campaigned for the change for years were jubilant, saying allowing more academic selection would be “fantastic” and a “victory for common sense”.

Around seven in 10 Britons want to see the ban lifted and eight in 10 believe grammar schools can boost social mobility when undecided voters are removed, research found.

The media greeted the news with surprise, with Allison Pearson in The Daily Telegraph writing: For four “shameful decades” - ever since Anthony Crosland vowed to “destroy every fing grammar school in England” - the political establishment has turned its back on “the greatest single engine of social mobility this country has ever known”. During their too-brief heyday, grammar schools helped transform the prospects of bright working-class children. In the mid-1960s, when there were 1,300 grammars in Britain, their pupils won half of all Oxbridge places. But the Left decided that selecting pupils on the basis of ability was “unfair”, and so the “all-must-have-prizes” comprehensive system was born. Since then, Britain has “sunk down the international education league tables, social mobility has stalled, and hundreds of thousands of our brightest children have been betrayed”. But at last we have a prime minister - grammar school-educated herself - who is prepared to reverse this terrible mistake.”

Judge Lynch shot back: ‘You are a bit of a c yourself. Being offensive to me doesn’t help.’

Hennigan, who was jailed for 18 months for insulting a black woman

‘You too,’ replied Judge Lynch.

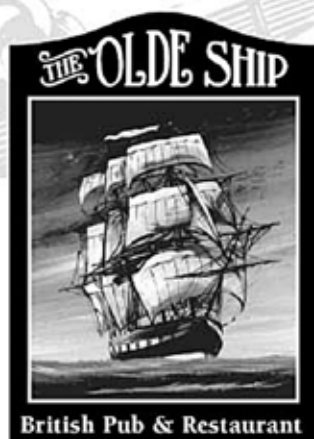

Hennigan had told Tanisha Ford that he didn’t ‘agree with interracial relationships’.

‘I like natural,’ he said. ‘I prefer white children.’

#OlympicNan wins nation's hearts as Peaty grabs gold

■ British swimming star's nan becomes unlikely Twitter sensation as she cheers young star on to historic win in Rio

THE grandmother of British swimming star Adam Peaty has become a Twitter sensation – after tweeting about his bid for Rio glory as he sensationally brought home our first gold medal.

Mavis Williams, 74 (pictured, far right), has gained hundreds of followers after describing herself in her Twitter bio as “Proud Nan to a World Champion Breaststroker”.

Williams, whose Twitter handle is @Mavise42Mavis, has developed a following of more than 3,000 and has even spawned her own hashtag, #OlympicNan, since she joined the social media platform in April.

Zuma the tortoise. The 90-year-old pet has been reunited with his owner following a massive search through 1,000 rubbish bags. When Zuma (pictured, right) went missing from Sarah Joiner's London home, she realised he had crawled into a bin bag – which had already been collected and was on its way to an incinerator. Joiner alerted her local refuse management operator, Veolia, which located the right rubbish van, and asked staff to help her trawl through 1,000 bags. After almost three hours, she pulled out Zuma, looking incredibly “indignant”. He is now recovering at home.

Farewell to the Union Jack

■ Paper served British readers nationwide for 34 years

THE BRITISH expatriate community in the USA has lost one of its most long-standing voices with the closure of Union Jack newspaper after 34 years.

A brief notice on the company's website states that the newspaper was forced to cease publication with the July edition and thanks the newspaper's 'thousands of readers throughout the US, and in Canada and the UK for your years of support and encouragement since 1982.'

The notice went on to say that after 34 years of constant monthly publishing, 'the UJ has become no longer practical nor viable to continue.'

The British Weekly and the Union Jack, while competing in the same marketplace, have always enjoyed a friendly rivalry and we here at the BW have always admired UJ publisher Ron Choularton's tireless work ethic, good humor and readiness to dispense advice and market intelligence. The paper will be sorely missed.

Britain's Future: Consul General weighs in on implications of Brexit

The Brexit decision in the June 23rd referendum shocked many in the UK, as well as in the rest of Europe and throughout the world.

Prime Minister David Cameron stepped down to be replaced by Theresa May, the first female British Prime Minister since Margaret Thatcher, and now she must navigate a political challenge that has not been seen in the history of the EU. Amidst fears of economic damage, growing animosity to immigrants and a split running through British society, how will May and her new Cabinet react? What are the potential scenarios for Britain's future relations with the rest of Europe?

On Thursday, August 25th British Consul

General Chris O'Connor (pictured, above) will speak to the Los Angeles World Affairs Council at the Intercontinental, 2151 Avenue of the Stars in Century City, addressing the challenges May faces as she negotiates leaving the EU and the potential global impact of those deals.

Chris O'Connor has been the British Consul General in Los Angeles since August 2013. He is the senior representative of the UK government in Southern California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii. Prior to his current role, O'Connor was British Ambassador to Tunisia from 2008-2013. He has also served as a British diplomat in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Canada, and at the headquarters of NATO. He was head of the UK Foreign Office Middle East Peace Process Team in London from 2003-2005. O'Connor speaks Spanish, French and Arabic.

A spokeswoman for the coroner said there would be no inquest because the cause of death was natural.

The duke was said to be the third richest person in the UK.

'courteous and humorous'

He became the sixth Duke of Westminster in 1979 and his fortune was estimated at $10.8bn (£8.3bn), according to Forbes magazine, making him the 68th richest person in the world.

A friend of the Royal Family, the Territorial Army major general's only son, Hugh Grosvenor, 25, is to inherit his title.

On the Grosvenor Estate website, a message posted read: "He was a passionate country man, committed soldier, an excellent shot, a true entrepreneur and, importantly, he went out of his way to be courteous and humorous with all people, regardless of status or wealth."

JEWEL IN THE CROWN: among the Duke of Westminster's huge property portfolio is Belgravia's famous Eaton Square

Lancashire Police said the duke had been walking in the Trough of Bowland when he was taken ill and later airlifted to hospital, where he died.

The duke owned 190 acres in Belgravia, adjacent to Buckingham Palace and one of London's most expensive areas, as well as thousands of acres in Scotland and Spain.

He supported a number of charities and good causes, including making a £500,000 donation to farmers during the 2001 foot-and-mouth outbreak.

Due to the rule of male primogeniture - which blocks women receiving hereditary peerages - the dukedom is passed to his third-born child, Hugh Grosvenor, instead of his older daughters, Lady Tamara and Lady Edwina.

Meet a Member: Carly Llewellyn-Ryan

Meet Carly from Thornton-Cleveleys who moved to LA seven months ago while her husband goes to music school.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

My husband is an American, from Colorado originally, and lived with me in the UK. It was his dream to go to the Musicians' Institute in Hollywood and so we made it happen. As someone who has a background in performing arts and is an aspiring writer the move made sense to me. Even though it was ultimately for him, we knew we both had the potential to get the most out of it.

By being out here I have the chance to work with some very talented people and to develop my career as a stage manager. I've been lucky to have already worked on a few stage shows and I'm looking for new opportunities every day. I gave up my retail team leader job as it was destroying my soul. That was a big risk as I'm the one supporting us both in a very expensive city so I'm always on to look out for jobs that work to my strengths or likes; theatre, creative studio work, something with animals, all three...

What do you miss most from home?

My parents and my cats. The hardest thing has been not being there for my parents; my dad got pneumonia last year, and both of them lost their mothers, my remaining grandparents. I'm going back in August for a few weeks and I can't wait.

I've always had cats in my life and we had to leave one with my aunt and two with my parents. Being here is the longest I've ever been without an animal around and I feel it every day.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

I first came to LA in 2006 and it was such a shock. There are almost as many people in one square mile in Hollywood as there are in my entire home town! The heat is pretty extreme too, and Hollywood is so dirty! In the UK I live near Blackpool and Hollywood Boulevard just reminded me of there, a tacky tourist trap, not very glamorous.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Thornton-Cleveleys?

Just the vast amount of people, the different classes and nationalities, oh and the traffic!

gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Galanga Thai Fusion on Santa Monica Boulevard at Vista St. A friend took me there many years ago when I didn't really know much about Thai food. Ten years later it's still there and now I actually know what to expect. I think it's one of the best, and is very reasonably priced. Dine

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Do it, be true to yourself, don't settle and get what you need from Craigslist. I got a super microwave for $10 when I went to get a side table (but don't go alone because some people are crazy). Talk to everyone you meet who they know or how they might help.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

"Tread softly because you tread on my dreams", which is taken from a poem by William B Yeats.

Arsenic with Austen: debuting a welcome new series

Exclusive interview with author Katherine Bolger Hyde about her new novel

Rating: ★★★★★

"The series concept was inspired by a combination of my love for traditional mysteries, especially those of the women writers of the British Golden Age, and my love for the literary classics," says Arsenic with Austen author Katherine Bolger Hyde. "The setting was inspired by a town on the Oregon coast where I spend a week every summer in a writing retreat."

In Arsenic with Austen, Professor Emily Worthing Cavanaugh is finishing her last class before summer break at Reed College in Portland, wonders if Beatrice's death might have been not be so innocent. Emily and Luke work together to find the killer.

Engaging. This is Hyde's first book in the new series, Crime with the Classics. There's romance, mystery, and strong character development, plus a hint of a religious theme of forgiveness. The main characters are a bit older than the typical romance, a bit of Tracy and Hepburn The Desk Set meets Jane Austen's Northanger Abbey.

"I had the first glimmer about four years ago," says Hughes. "I spent about a year developing the idea while working on other projects, then another year actually writing. I've learned that elements of the book that resonate with me... classics, cats, Victorian mansions, the Oregon coast...also resonate with many other people."

Hughes' research consisted mainly of rereading all of Jane Austen. She looked into the history of poisons, law enforcement practices, and inheritance laws. She visited the real town that Stony Beach, Oregon, is based upon.

Hughes has published a picture book, Lucia, Saint of Light, and has another one contracted.

Marcia Markland at St. Martin's Press is Hughes' editor. "My agent sent the manuscript to Marcia first as they were friends," says Hughes. "She thought Marcia would enjoy the book."

"I first met Katherine at a conference," says editor Marcia Markland. "I was introduced to her by her agent, Kimberley Cameron, whom I have had the good fortune to have known for many years. Our editorial board was immediately impressed by the cleverness of the series concept. We decided to make an offer right away."

Kimberley Cameron and Associates in Tiburon, California, is Hughes' agent. "I met Kimberley at the Book Passage Mystery Writers' Conference in Corte Madera, California, in 2013," says Hughes. I had submitted a proposal for her review, and she loved it and asked to see the full manuscript as soon as it was finished. I finished it, sent it to her, and received an offer of representation within a couple of weeks. We went through a brief edit, then she sent the book out. It was Kimberley's idea to add the quotations from Jane Austen at the beginning of each chapter, which was brilliant."

Hughes is currently writing the fourth book in the Crime with the Classics series. She's completed Bloodstains with Brontë, to come out next summer as the second volume of the series. She's also finished the third volume, Cyanide with Christie. Her YA fantasy, The Dome-

Hughes lives in a village in the mountains near Santa Cruz, California, where she's been for 24 years. She was born in New Jersey.

ANYONE FOR TENNIS?

After Murray's fantastic Wimbledon win and heading for Olympic gold this week, got me inspired to pick up the tennis racket once more. So far I've only played three times, but I'm hooked.

I was really pleasantly surprised at how many free public courts there are around the LA area. And good ones too. I played at Poinsettia Recreational grounds (7341 Willoughby Avenue), Plummer Park (7737 Santa Monica Boulevard) and finally at West Hollywood Park, which is up on the roof of the library's parking lot, where we lost a few balls over the top of the fencing...I hope they didn't land on anyone's motor! I am still very much a novice and trying to find my feet after a long time off, so if anyone is up for a game, give me a shout. Perhaps there might even be a Brits in LA tennis team in our future?

Try using Yelp! to find the best courts near you.

New blood in BiLA

I always love it when we get a batch of new Brits in LA. The rush of excitement, the nervous energy, and the wide-eyed wonderment of the new arrivals is so welcome and something I remember very well from first moving here 17 years ago. This week we welcomed a young chap who has moved here from Scotland and I have to give him major credit. He came here about a year ago to scope it out and make sure it was the place he wanted to live. He did! He got his working visa (he's a model and dancer), he sorted out his housing through our Facebook group (Brits in LA housing) and then he contacted me privately to see if he could pick my brains about the move. (I obliged) he asked great questions about what to expect. So when he finally arrived we went to dinner at Ceconi's (I swear I love this place) with some other friends and we all advised him about the pros and cons and some pitfalls to watch out for... especially when it comes to friendships.

LA by nature is a very transient place; people come and people go so naturally it has a reputation as being very flakey and full of plastic people. And from a distance this seems to be the case. But what people don't realize is that people who generally move to LA are on a mission, to succeed. Which is why the question "what do you do?" is usually one of the first things out of new acquaintance's mouth. To which I normally reply "I'm a conversation killer." Which is normally met with a blank stare. "I'm an actor", I explain. To which I'm met with an "Oooh" followed by awkward silence, this proving my point.

It's not that I think people are fake I just think they are very transparent. For the Brits out here, it takes a tremendous amount of guys, bravery and gusto to cross the Atlantic to set up a new life. Plus in the UK friendships mean a lot to us, so it can be harder for us to make real friends but when we do, they tend to be friends for life. So it's easy for Brits to get disappointed in people when they first arrive. For one night you can make the best "insta-friends", exchange numbers and never hear from them again.

Another lesson I learned early on was "let's hang out" doesn't mean what we think it means. If some one asks to hang out with you, they are probably looking for more than to JUST hang out. More Netflix and chill. The phrase itself really blurs the lines between friendship and romantic conquest, so it can be a little confusing for new arrivals.

mixed signals

And speaking of romance, dating can be very difficult in LA too, since so many folks out here have such a strong desire to succeed that plenty of them don't want distractions from their goals. So very often you will hear: "I'm seeing a few people right now", or "I'm not committed to any one person" or "I'm just having fun". Trust me I'm not judging here. It's just that your expectations may run high and you might be let down very quickly. But don't despair, there are some really great people here and it might take you some time, but eventually you will find your tribe, but in the meantime, join the party, get stuck in and have some fun for the first couple of years.

Finally, I'd like to give a birthday shout-out to Herb Ankrom, a longtime supporter of Brits in LA. We love you, man!

Have a great week!

Cheers
Craig

Adele: card declined at H&M!

Hello, it's... your credit card company?

When she's not on stage, singing sensation Adele is regularly snapped by photogs shopping at affordable stores, however just recently the British star told how her credit card was declined at H&M.

Oo-er!

"I went to H&M and my card got declined," the 'Hello' singer told the crowd during a performance in San Jose that evening. "Oh, my day's pretty embarrassing. Nobody knew it was me, but I was mortified."

Before the incident she was able to make purchases at Sephora, she added.

Well, that's almost alright then!

Adele pulled in a whopping $80.5 million in the last year, according to Forbes. Her hefty bank account landed her at number nine on the site's annual highest-paid celebrity list.

To make matters worse, she added that her dog embarrassed

ADELE: rolling in the dough...?

"My dog tried to claw another dog," she said. "My trip to H&M was great ... but no one knew it was me so I think I'm going to get away with it."

Though Adele is reportedly the U.K.'s richest female musician ever, the singer enjoys bargain shopping and has even professed her love for Target before.

"They have everything!" she told the San Jose crowd. "I spent $100 on stuff I do not need, I never need anything I buy at Target but it's amazing." So homegrown!

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF ANWAR BEGUM KHAN

Case No. 16STPB00178
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of ANWAR BEGUM KHAN

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Muhammad Rafi Khan in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Muhammad Rafi Khan be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on August 25, 2016 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Peaty:

that without access to an Olympic-size, 50m pool: over the past year he trained in 25m pools, often sharing a lane. That hasn't held Peaty back, and he will only improve: by the Tokyo Olympics, in 2020, he should be at his peak.

At 22, Tom Daley is just a year older than Peaty, said Rick Broadbent in The Times. Yet he already feels like one of Team GB's "elder statesmen". On Monday, he became the first British diver to win multiple Olympic medals when he and Daniel Goodfellow took bronze in the men's synchronised 10m platform. For Daley, it was "sporting vindication", said Barney Ronay in The Guardian. It's easy to be distracted by his "television burnish and celebrity six-pack". But in an era of Chinese dominance of the sport, he is a "bona fide diving heavyweight". He has struck up "an unusually tight bond" with Goodfellow, a 19-year-old Olympic debutant: Goodfellow even moved in with Daley, who cooked him breakfast each morning. The pair demonstrated their "plunging synchronicity" with their final dive, a stunning three-and-a-half somersault – and celebrated by plunging into the shallows, arm in arm.

Zlatan and Pog 'worth 10 points'

Zlatan Ibrahimovic and Paul Pogba will be worth an extra 10 points to Manchester United this season, according to a sport analytics machine.

Pogba, 23, arrived at United this week for a world record £89m fee, while Ibrahimovic, 34, joined on a free.

Statisticians at the University of Salford ran tests to see how many points Jose Mourinho's side would win with and without the two new signings.

They found the pair increase United's chances of winning the league by 4%.

SAM, the sport analytics machine designed by statisticians at the University of Salford's Centre for Sports Business, uses a series of algorithms to forecast the results of a variety of sporting fixtures.

Sunderland have signed Manchester United defenders Paddy McNair and Donald Love for a combined £5.5m.

The 21-year-olds have agreed four-year deals with the Black Cats.

McNair, who represented Northern Ireland at Euro 2016, made his United debut in September 2014 and played 27 times for the club.

Scot Love, who spent time on loan at Wigan last season, played twice for United, the first of which was against the Black Cats in February.

England hailed after 'sensational' session brings surprise win

CRICKET: The British Media were reaching for the superlatives this week as a dramatic turn of events in the fourth Test against Pakistan gave England a memorable – and surprising – victory.

"One sensational session... That was all it took" trumpeted Paul Newman in the Daily Mail, for England to "burst through Pakistan" and seal a "famous and quite unexpected" Test victory. After the first innings, when Pakistan took a lead of 103, England's prospects looked dismal; history suggested they had only a 3% chance of victory. But on the fifth day, the match "changed out of nowhere": six Pakistani batsmen were dismissed in 20 overs; four of those wickets were lost in a staggering 22 balls. Now 2-1 ahead in this "memorable" series, England are "closing in on the No. 1 world ranking".

In the second innings, England were "outstanding in the field", said Mike Selvey in The Guardian. The catching was "flawless", the bowling "relentless". It was a "team bowling performance", with the wickets shared equally between the five main bowlers. Most pleasing of all were the two wickets for Steven Finn, ending a 429-ball wicketless run for England that stretched back to June. If only the batsmen were more reliable, said Geoffrey Boycott in The Daily Telegraph. Apart from Alastair Cook and Joe Root, no one in the top five of the batting order has scored a century in the past year: Alex Hales, James Vince and Gary Ballance all remain liabilities. Further down the order, at least, most players are pulling their weight. Moeen Ali, in particular, has improved hugely in this series, scoring half-centuries in both innings of the third Test. But too often, the team find themselves having to "come from behind". Still, it makes for thrilling games, said Richard Hobson in The Times. As support for switching to four-day Tests grows, this was a reminder of how exciting five-day matches can be. Had it been limited to four days, it would have "petered out into a dull draw". At its best, traditional Test cricket remains "the pick of the formats".

All hail Peaty!

■ GB's latest Olympic hero romps to gold

Britain hailed a new Olympic hero this week as Adam Peaty swept aside all competitors to romp home to a gold medal in the 100m breaststroke at the Rio Olympics.

Having broken his own world record in the heats, Adam Peaty smashed it again in Sunday's final, his time of 57.13 seconds took another 0.42 seconds off the record.

Unsurprisingly, the British papers swooned over their new hero with Tom Fordyce of BBC Sport online gushing: "He may as well have been swimming on his own." In an event usually decided by the narrowest of margins, the 21-year-old finished a second and a half ahead of anyone else. Coming 28 years after a British male swimmer last won gold, it was "one of the great displays in British Olympic history".

At press time Britain had won four gold medals. In addition to Peaty's heroics, Joe Clarke won gold in the men's kayak slalom and Jack Laugher and Chris Mears clinched top spot in the men's synchronised 3m springboard diving, while the men's fearsome cycling team won their first gold in the sprint on Thursday.

By Thursday afternoon Team GB had won 16 medals, including a gold and a silver in canoeing/kayak, a gold and a bronze in cycling, a gold and a bronze in diving, a bronze in gymnastics and judo, a silver in rowing and the rugby sevens, two bronzes in shooting and a gold and three silvers in swimming.

But the real British story of the games so far is Peaty, who overcame a crippling fear of the water as a child in Staffordshire. He eventually overcame that to become a promising teenage swimmer, but lacked dedication – and in 2012, he didn't come close to making the Olympic team. Watching his friend Craig Benson compete in that tournament, however, Peaty realised what he was missing out on, and he decided to marry his incredible talent to an intense commitment to training. Peaty went to extraordinary lengths to prepare for Rio, said Sarah Rainey in the Daily Mail. He built up his strength by flipping tractor tyres; every day, he did at least 60 "flying" press-ups, pushing himself off the ground so his hands and feet lifted off the floor. In his "most brutal" training sessions, Peaty did a series of 50m sprints, with such short recovery times that he was at his maximum heart rate for every length.

Incredibly, he did

Stones seals City switch

Manchester City have signed John Stones from Everton for £47.5m, making him the world's second most expensive defender.

The 22-year-old England international has signed a six-year deal and is City boss Pep Guardiola's eighth signing.

Stones was earlier named in City's official Champions League squad, published on the Uefa website before the transfer was confirmed.

"It's an ambitious club with a great manager so I can't wait to get stuck in," said the former Barnsley player.

"I know it will be tough getting a place in this team, but I'm determined to become the best player I can be and help us to success."

In a short statement, Everton confirmed they had received a "record fee" for Stones, who made 95 appearances in three seasons, scoring once.

Champions hip side Barnsley, the Yorkshireman's first club, will get between £7m and £9m from a sell-on clause.

Everton sign Williams
Everton have had a £12m bid accepted for Swansea centre-half Ashley Williams, 31.

The Toffees had rejected a £40m bid for Stones from Chelsea last summer and rejected the player's transfer request.

Brazil international David Luiz is the most expensive defender in history, joining French champions Paris St-Germain from Chelsea for £50m in 2014.

Last year, City made Raheem Sterling the most expensive English player ever when he joined the club for £49m from Liverpool.

City have already signed Ilkay Gundogan, Nolito, Leroy Sane, Gabriel Jesus, Marlos Moreno, Aaron Mooy and Oleksandr Zinchenko this summer.

Their first Premier League fixture is at home to Sunderland on Saturday.
