Hate preacher faces ten year jail term

■ Anjem Choudary finally convicted after years-long game of cat and mouse with authorities

ONE OF BRITAIN's most notorious hate preachers is facing jail after being found guilty of supporting Islamic State.

Having avoided arrest for years despite his apparent sympathy for extremism and links to some of Britain's most notorious terrorists, Anjem Choudary was convicted at the Old Bailey on Monday after jurors heard he had sworn an oath of allegiance to Isis.

The 49-year-old, who has links to one of Lee Rigby's killers, Michael Adebolajo, and the Islamist militant Omar Bakri Muhammad, also urged followers to support Isis in a series of talks broadcast on YouTube.

Choudary and his codefendant, Mohammed Rahman, 33, told their supporters to obey Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, the Isis leader, who is also known as a caliph, and travel to Syria to support Isis or "the caliphate", the court heard.

They were convicted in July but details of the trial, including the verdict, could not be reported until now.

Choudary and Rahman face up to 10 years in jail for inviting support for a proscribed organisation. They will be sentenced on 6 September at the Old Bailey.

influence

Commander Dean Haydon, head of the Metropolitan police's counter-terrorism command, said: "These men have stayed just within the law for many years, but there is no one within the counterterrorism world that has any doubts of the influence that they have had, the hate they have spread and the people that they have encouraged to join terrorist organisations.

"Over and over again we have seen people on trial for the most serious offences who have attended lectures or speeches given by these men. The oath of allegiance was a turning point for the police – at last we had the evidence that they had stepped over the line and we could prove they supported Isis."

Haydon said 20 years' worth of material was considered in the investigation, with 333 electronic devices containing 12.1 terabytes of storage data assessed.

It can now also be revealed that Choudary was encouraged to support Isis by a notorious British Isis fighter who fled to Syria while on police bail.

influence

The court heard that shortly after Isis was proscribed as a terror group Choudary was in contact with an individual named as Siddartha Dhar – known on social media as Abu Rumaysah – who was arrested alongside Choudary before he fled to Syria to fight with Isis while on police bail.

Dhar encouraged Choudary to express support for Isis on social media. Following on from Dhar's encouragement, both defendants made their position on the newly declared caliphate clear in the "oath of allegiance".

Prosecutor Richard Whittam QC said: "The prosecution case is that whichever name is used, the evidence is quite clear: when these defendants were inviting support for an Islamic state or caliphate they were referring to the one declared in Syria and its environs by Ibrahim [Abu Bakr] al-Baghdadi at the end of June 2014.

hated figure

"Terrorist organisations thrive and grow because people support them and that is what this case is about. Do not confuse that with the right of he people to follow the abl religion of their choice or to proclaim support for a caliphate."

Choudary has become such a hated figure in the UK that both he and his wife have enjoyed taxpayer-funded police protection for the past few months. Not surprisingly, the British media greeted the news with almost unanimous delight.

"From the start, Choudary conducted himself with the cheery, arrogant imperviousness of someone who knows that he can say what likes, however abhorrent, because he is protected by the supremely tolerant. culturally nation he plans to destroy," wrote Allison Pearson in the Telegraph. ## Princess Eugenie and Jack Brooksbank to marry in 2017

- Andrew and Fergie said to be "overjoyed" at the news
- Newlyweds will move into 'cosy cottage' at Kensington Palace

PRINCESS Eugenie is to marry her nightclub manager boyfriend Jack Brooksbank.

The Duke and Duchess of York's 26-year old daughter plans to get engaged "by the end of the year" and will marry in 2017, according to friends who say she is "blissfully happy".

Prince Andrew and the Duchess of York have both been told of the plans and are said to be "overjoyed" their youngest daughter has found "the one".

A family friend said: "They have both grown to love Jack and think he is perfect for her. He is a very down-to-earth genuine guy and they have got to know him well over the past six years. As far as they are concerned if Eugenie is happy then so are they."

News of the royal wedding comes just a week after it was revealed Eugenie's older sister Princess Beatrice has split from her long-term boyfriend Dave Clark.

A close family friend said: "Everyone was a bit down about Beatrice and Dave ending it after 10 years but it's fantastic news about Eugenie and her sister is overjoyed for

The couple are to move into their first home at Kensington Palace where William and Kate and Harry will be close neighbours.

Eugenie and Jack, 29, will be living in Ivy Cottage, a threebedroom home right next door to cousin Harry's house Nottingham Cottage.

'cosy cottage'

Eugenie will move in by Christmas and Jack will join her officially after the wedding.

A Kensington Palace insider said: "It's a cosy cottage and an ideal first home. It was once lived in by the family of a soldier injured in the First World War and has also been used by staff. It needs some work and so it's going to take some weeks to do up.

"Harry is right next door so Eugenie will always be able to pop round and get some sugar. But seriously, they get on really well and they will both love being so close."

When the cottage is ready, Eugenie will move

The friend added: "She wants her own space and obviously wants to plan ahead for married life."

One Palace source said: "The Queen is delighted and thinks it's wonderful that there will be a family wedding in the year when she and Prince Philip celebrate their 70th anniversary!

"Everyone is looking forward to the great day. Eugenie, who is eighth in line to the throne, does not have to formally ask the Queen's permission to marry, but an insider said: "Of course out of respect and courtesy she will consult her before announcing anything."

"immediate attraction"

Eugenie and Jack started dating six years ago after they were introduced by friends in the Swiss ski resort of Verbier. At the time Jack was waiter but the difference in their social standing did not trouble

Eugenie. Besides, Jack had the benefit of a good education at top private school Stowe fees £11,000 a term – and looked like a young man who was going places.

One friend said: "There an immediate attraction and they have been together ever since."

While Eugenie furthered her career with a move to New York the two stayed in touch on Skype as Jack worked his way up in the hospitality business, first taking a job at the famed posh person's pub the Admiral Codrington in Chelsea before moving on to the nearby Markham Inn.

From there Jack got to know regular Prince Harry and his friend Guy Pelly, who lured Jack to run the trendy Mahiki nightclub where Jack worked 12 hour days.

He said: "I don't get much time to go out. After work I head home. People think we party a lot but for me it's a case of going back to watch a

'Nothing much has really changed'

- Lineker keeps his word; presents MOTD in his underwear
  - Twitter users complain his shorts aren't brief enough

Gary Lineker was as good as his word at the weekend, hosting the season's first Match of the Day in only white boxer shorts.

The former Foxes, Everton Spurs and Barcelona striker had promised last season that he would present the venerable show in his underwear if his beloved Leicester City won the Premier League title. Claudio Ranieri's 5,000-1 outsiders went on to finish 10 points clear of second-placed Arsenal and Saturday night Lineker was as good as his word - provoking a Twitter storm in the process.

The show opened with Lineker clad only in the shorts - which featured a large Leicester City logo - with the host deadpanning that 'nothing much has really changed' and making no reference to his attire – or lack thereof.

pundits Meanwhile and former England strikers Alan Shearer and Ian Wright could be seen giggling away in the background as Lineker read out his introduction to the programme's first game after the Premier League got underway.

'strangely terrifying'

Bit some on Twitter have criticised Lineker, 55, for opting for the large boxers, instead of the expected pair of skimpy briefs. Clearly many fans were expecting something a little more revealing.

Fifteen minutes before the show started on BBC One, Lineker tweeted 'this is strangely terrifying'.

And fellow Match of the Day presenter Dan Walker joked: '4,000 sit ups a day for 20 seconds on telly. Well played Gary Lineker. Were they pants or shorts though?'

"inside info"

The show's first game was Hull City against Leicester, with champions losing 2-1.

Lineker changed back to his usual smart shirt and trousers after 30 minutes in his pants.

His son George tweeted shortly after his father appeared in his pants. He had placed £50 on his dad wearing blue pants with odds at  $\frac{1}{4}$ .

George Lineker tweeted: 'How the f*** did I get this wrong? I had inside info.'

Another golden Olympics: what is the secret of British success?

■ The world weighs in as Britain's medal tally inspires envy - and conspiracy talk - around the globe

BRITAIN's astounding performance at the Rio's Olympics have not just electrified the nation, it has also got the rest of the world asking: how on earth have they done it?

been Britain has medals winning throughout the Games not just in their traditional areas of strength like sailing, rowing and track field, but they have also struck gold in sports traditionally considered off limits, including gymnastics, diving and field hockey.

Our bitter sporting rivals Australia have previously dismissed Team GB's success in the 'sitting down sports' of rowing, sailing and cycling, but the team's astonishing success this time round has finally earned some grudging support Down Under.

The Sydney Morning Herald noted this week that compared with Britain, Australia has not done very well in Games, despite the having adopted a similar funding strategy in its search for Olympic success.

"In all, $340m has been injected into summer Olympic sports using the national lottery funding model adopted by Great Britain in the lead-up to its home Olympics as an inspiration," the paper

"But while Team GB... are still enjoying the afterglow of London by punching well above their weight here, the jury is still out for Australia's program."

In a separate report, the paper said that when Cycling Australia boss Kevin Tabotta was asked what made British cycling so good, he replied: "If I had the blueprint, I'd be using it myself."

direct funding

An article on Sina's Weibo, the Chinese popular microblogging platform, also wonders what the UK's "secret" is, noting that direct funding from the National Lottery was "allocated to sports management and research institutions" for "a 'world-class project'".

business French daily Les Echos believes it has the answer.
Asking "Why do the British swipe so many medals?", it suggests that "to understand why Britain is doing so well this year", one needs to remember that its "direct competitor, the Russian heavily team. was penalized".

Raised eyebrows

A Russian sports news website, Sport Express, carries a report headlined "Britain sets medal record for non-domestic Olympics".

The brief report is followed by a somewhat jaundiced comment from a reader identified as "S-E fan", who asks: "What's so surprising about this? The British have seized key posts at Wada, IAAF, the Paralympic Committee. Their people are everywhere, they are securely covered and compete and train without hassle."

Several competitors in Rio have expressed astonishment at Team GB's performance.

'£ycling'

Australia's Olympic team captain Anna Meares was said to have "raised her eyebrows" at Britain's track cycling success, while Germany's champion cyclist Kristina Vogel asked how it was possible that Britain's cyclists could do so well at the Olympics after failing to score any other notable successes in the previous few years.

Anna Meares later took to Twitter to make it clear that she had not intended to suggest that the British team had been doing anything suspicious.

FLYING HIGH: Team GB'S performance has impressed the world's media

French ex-cyclist, excoach and now columnist Antoine Vayer has been posting a number of provocative tweets aimed at British cyclists, with the latest simply stating: "£ycling".

But the French paper Le Telegramme believes the British sprinters' superior muscle power is what gives them the edge over their competitors.

"Sprint is becoming above all a sport of strength, in which the emphasis is on muscle power - perhaps excessively so for the purists," it says.

Meanwhile, Englishlanguage Chinese sources are being magnanimous about Britain's Rio successes but the Chineselanguage papers are not happy about lagging behind Britain in the medals table.

Nationalist newspaper Huanqiu Shibao says there "British media excitement over gold overtaking medals China" but the paper stresses that this is only "temporary".

But then they would say that, wouldn't they?

The Night Tube gets rolling

The first Night Tubes rolled on to London Underground platforms past midnight on Friday almost three years since the plan was first announced.

Trains will run on the Victoria and Central lines on Fridays and Saturdays.

The plan announced in November 2013 and intended to begin in September 2015, but strikes over pay delayed the start by nearly another year.

Transport for London said there was a "huge demand" as passenger numbers on weekends had soared by 70% since Night Tube services are expected to add £6.4bn to the London economy by 2030, creating 500,000 jobs, TfL said.

Trains will run every 10 minutes on the full Victoria line and on the Central line between White City and Leytonstone. They will run approximately every 20 minutes between Ealing Broadway and White City and between Leytonstone Loughton/Hainault.

Unions staged a series of strikes during July and August last year before an agreement was finally reached in March 2016.

Before leaving office, the former mayor Boris Johnson, who had locked horns with the unions on ticket office closures and Night Tube plans, said he hoped services would get underway by July.

The new London Mayor Sadiq Khan plans to travel on the first Night Tube train on the Victoria line from Brixton late on

He said: "I'm really excited. Lots of people need to get to work late in the night or home from work - doctors, nurses, porters, security guards - but also it will be a massive boost to the night time economy.

"Think of the theatres, the live music venues, the restaurants. I'm really pleased and proud that finally the Night Tube is here.

"Boris Johnson deserves credit for talking about the Night Tube, but it was important to get the details right. I'm really pleased and proud that finally it's going to happen."

I can win over Tory Voters, insists Corbyn

Jeremy Corbyn has insisted he can reach out beyond his core supporters as his leadership rival said Labour was not on a "trajectory to win power".

At a hustings event, he said his policies would win over "some people that have been tempted to vote Tory".

He also would not commit the UK to providing military help to a Nato ally, should it be invaded by Russia.

Challenger Owen Smith said he did not believe Labour would win power under Mr Corbyn's "ineffective" leadership.

At the hustings in Birmingham, Mr Smith said: "I feel right now we are not about to win in Kingswood and Milton Keynes and Cardiff North and all of the 116 seats we have got to win from the Tories.

"And the choice for this generation is: Are we happy to sit back where we are or do we think we need to be a Labour government once more? I think we need to be a Labour government more and I think we need to be a Labour government very, very quickly."

The former work and pensions spokesman is challenging Mr Corbyn for Labour's top job, after the leader lost a no-confidence vote of his MPs.

But Mr Corbyn said his message appeals 'all across the piece, all across the country".

"If you are poor and up against it in Milton Keynes, in Shrewsbury, or anywhere else you are poor and up against it, therefore the message we are putting forward about an economy that doesn't accept the political choice of austerity, instead invests for all, I think is a very powerful one."

Probe launched as former Villa star dies after tasering

are under criminal investigation after the death of former Aston Villa star Dalian Atkinson, who died after he was shot with a Taser.

The West Mercia officers have been suspended pending the outcome of the probe by the Independent Complaints Police Commission, the force said.

Mr Atkinson died shortly after being shot following an altercation in Meadow Close, Trench, in Telford on Monday.

Α post-mortem examination was inconclusive.

IPCC Commissioner, Derrick Campbell, said the investigation would consider Mr Atkinson's death and the "level and type of force used" against him.

"criminal investigation does not mean that criminal charges will necessarily follow"

Police said the Taser was deployed at about 01:30 BST in Telford, Shropshire after officers were called to a report of concern for a man's safety at Mr Atkinson's father's house.

A neighbour described seeing the 48-year-old being Tasered after "stumbling towards" police.

'In shock'

Mr Atkinson went into cardiac arrest on his way to hospital, where he was pronounced dead at about 03:00.

Campbell said: "Two police officers will be interviewed under criminal caution by IPCC investigators.

In a statement, Mr Atkinson's family said they were "still in shock".

"We are determined to get justice for him which means getting to the truth," it said.

"We are looking to the IPCC to carry out a thorough and robust investigation that will ultimately provide transparency accountability. Dalian's memory requires nothing less."

Mr Atkinson was a top-flight striker in the 1990s, starting his career at Ipswich Town then playing for Sheffield Wednesday and Spanish side Real Sociedad before moving to Villa.

He scored 23 goals in 85 appearances for the Birmingham side between 1991 and 1995.

■ Punch and Judy booth to close after 130 years because puppeteer is fed up with kids throwing rocks at him

One of Britain's last remaining beach Punch and Judy shows looks set to end after 130 years as the puppeteer has become fed up with unruly audiences.

The traditional slapstick show has been a regular summer feature on Dorset's Weymouth beach since the 1880s but now Mark Poulton has had enough of children throwing rocks at his stall.

He claims the children's bad behaviour during shows, which also includes verbal abuse, often goes unpunished by the parents and performances are interrupted.

Mr Poulton, 43, has also cited members of the public not paying for their children to watch his shows as another reason to end the resort's long-standing tradition permanently.

Mr Poulton, one of only half-a-dozen Punch and Judy performers left in the country, said: "I have had kids throwing rocks at the show, and the parents just sit there and let them do it.

"We've always had people refuse to pay, but now they will argue with us and say 'you can't make us, this is a public beach'.

"We even get large of groups people sunbathing in front of the show, so people who want to watch can't sit there. It just destroys your faith in humanity."

Glyn Edwards, the Punch and Judy College of Professors and who runs Brighton's regular show, said there are less than six of the traditional beach performances still on offer in the UK.

He said: "It would be very sad to see the Weymouth show come to an end.

"It is always the case when you are out as a street performer that you are going to get some problems with drunks and yobs, but they tend to be the same drunks and yobs who cause problems for everyone in the town.

"I am very surprised that he has had a problem with children."

Cllr Jason Osborne, Weymouth and Portland council's tourism portfolio holder, said the council will do everything it can to help Mr Poulton turn the business around.

He said: "It would be devastating to see the show go. Punch and Judy is a key part of Weymouth beach."

Beverly Hills screening date set for Whisky Galore

THE St. Andrews Society of Los Angeles has joined with KCET to sponsor their US premiere screening of the new film Whisky Galore on Saturday, September 24th at the Writers Guild Theatre, 135 S. Doheny Drive in Beverly Hills.

Local News

KCET is strongly associated with Scottish themed programming including their top-rated series Shetland and actor Alan Cumming who introduces Masterpiece.

Whisky Galore, is based on the classic 1949 film of the same name adapted from the immortal novel by Sir Compton Mackenzie that tells the story of whisky shortage, ship aground with liquid cargo, and its theft by Scottish villagers who see the event as an answer to their prayers.

Faced with a ship run aground off their shore the villagers seize their opportunity in plundering the cargo before the authorities arrive.

The remake is directed by the accomplished Gillies Mackinnon, who uses the real life events of 1941 coupled with the rugged landscape of Scotland to make this retelling of the story a precious gem.

Following the screening members of the film's production team and cast will be present for a Q&A and to discuss the remaking of this classic.

It wasn't all bad...

On the island of Lundy, the puffin has come back from the brink. The bird (pictured, right) has been breeding Lundy, 12 miles off the coast of Devon, for centuries. But when its population was devastated by rats, who ate the puffins' eggs and chicks, it looked as if the population might be wiped out. In 2000, there were just five pairs left on the island. But following a cull of rats by the Lundy Seabird Recovery Project, the island was declared rat-free in 2006, and the bird is now thriving. Wildlife experts recently counted more than 300 puffins there, and about 100 are currently breeding.

What do you find the difference biggest is living here versus London and Paris?

Three things are different in here: the entertainment opportunities, educational cost and dating as a single woman. There are more TV and film opportunities here. There are more independent producers and writers allowing entertainers to become their own international brands. As I teach as a mathematics professor, I find the university education to be great.

OLYMPIA LEPOINT: loves the polo at the Will Rogers State Park

However, there is a high price tag associated with it. Lastly, dating in the U.S. is much different than in Europe. I typically find I enjoy gentlemen and European men like my late grandfather, whom I loved deeply.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Yes. In Los Angeles, I LOVE watching polo games. I truly enjoy visiting Will Rogers State Park on the weekend and the California Polo to watch excellent polo matches with some of my dearest friends. I also play polo myself.

What would you suggest to others who thinking about making the move here?

The experience alone is worth it. Word of caution: it is different than being in the U.K. And it takes strength to adjust. However, it you don't like it, you can always move back.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Expect good news in a matter of your feelings in regard to another. You may be sad or just relieved. Whatever it was, it is done and this week ends on a better note than for some time. Your boss Mars is moving in a positive direction.

TAURUS: By the end of this month you will be able to see your way to having space in your life for new people and projects - or both. What is definite this coming week is that you must lay low and rest. You will find out that wherever you are, there you will find yourself. GEMINI: You have been on a journey, either physically or emotionally. So take a deep breath and understand that it's up to you how you want your life to be now. Something is about to change for you for the better by the end of the month.

CANCER: Well! What happens now after the whirlwind of the last month? Do you hide out in your shell or face it head on and work through it? This is your decision and you have to get going soonest this week, otherwise it may pass you by.

LEO: If you look at your current unresolved situation then the faster you will change it. If you only knew what the other side of this was you would act...and swiftly. You are in your personal new year now, making it a good start.

VIRGO: This month coming up is your new year so make sure that what happens this week ahead is for your best and highest good overall. One of the best decisions you can make is to double your efforts to relax when you can. Happy Birthday.

LIBRA: You are ready to clear away all the past dead wood, which can mean many things to you, keeping healthy and feeling fit being the most important. Take action to put this in order. You are about to have a long visit from Jupiter, the gift bringer.

SCORPIO: This is the time of year when you are thinking of shedding away what the summer months have left you feeling or thinking. You fare better in autumn and as it's just around the corner get ready to jump start it now.

SAGITTARIUS: A problem in your work or family situation is just a storm in a teacup so lighten up, especially this weekend when you can relax with family or friends. Be sure you pay that bill that is outstanding or it will bite you back.

CAPRICORN: This week get rid of any stuff in your life (and this means all areas) and start fresh. Next month will bring some clearance for you in the financial area. The new moon signals that it is time to be ready for these changes.

AQUARIUS: Family situations heat up this week and as you already know what you should do make an effort and be the peacekeeper and the reward will be peace of mind. You are in a bit of an uneasy mind set currently. This will soon pass as Jupiter will shine his bright light on you.

PISCES: This week ahead will bring back to the front of your life thoughts or people from the past. Remember that thoughts are often intuition trying to bring things to your attention. Things you have forgotten or perhaps chose to ignore. In life it is always best to deal with things as they happen.

In Search of Mary: history's first feminist?

Exclusive interview with author Bee Rowlatt and her journey to follow in Mary Wollstonecraft's footsteps

Rating: ★★★

"In Search of Mary has taken me around world, meeting audiences from Glasgow to Moscow," says author Bee Rowlatt. "People regularly say they can't believe they'd never heard of such an extraordinary and influential woman. As a student I had marvelled at her courage and pioneering spirit. But, now the inspiration lay in the fact that she travelled and wrote with a baby in tow. She was the world's treasure-hunting, single-mum philosopher on the high seas."

Rowlatt goes on many trips of selfdiscovery. She writes about her experiences travelling with her son and compares it to Wollstonecraft's travels with her child. Critical of herself, Rowlatt compares her life to others who are less fortunate. She takes the same journeys and some trips that Wollstonecraft never got to take. Rowlatt gains insights into her own life and a deeper appreciation of her family.

Wollstonecraft is considered to be one of history's leading proto-feminists. She caused something of a scandal in the 18th century as a woman travelling without male protection. An early advocate of women's Wollstonecraft rights, travelled with her maid and her baby daughter Scandinavia and authored A Vindication of the Rights of Women and Letters Written During a Short Residence in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The book became a bestseller, an inspiration for Romantic writers and poets. But she suffered terribly after moving to Paris by falling in love with the rakish Gilbert Imlay, who betrayed her repeatedly.

Rowlatt's book begins with Bee Rowlatt feeling in a rut. Happily married and a mother of four, she talks to her husband about going on a journey to find herself. She will take the same journey that Wollstonecraft took and with her youngest, who is about the same age of Wollstonecraft's's baby. Rowlatt travels first to Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Rowlatt has wonderful time with her son Will on her trip, and plans two more, one to Paris and then to California in search of herself and her feminism.

"Several years ago I rediscovered my old copy of Mary Wollstonecraft's 1796 travel book Letters from Norway," says Rowlatt. "So, I took up the challenge to recreate her travels."

Rowlett read she could about Wollstonecraft's life and legacy. "I found a lot of help in the brilliant biographical writings of Lyndall Gordon and Charlotte Gordon...no relation. I combined this with actually going to the places that she wrote about, and trying to channel her words and her feelings in the same locations. I'm a journalist not an academic, and my goal was to bring Wollstonecraft to new audiences and make her more accessible to the reader. Perhaps the most ridiculous part of this was to attempt to retrace her footsteps with my own baby. That took the adventure to a whole new level."

Rowlett co-wrote the best-seller Talking about Jane Austen in Baghdad which was dramatized by the BBC. She's regular feature writer for the BBC and other print media. She's published in the Virago anthology, Fifty Shades of Feminism. In Search of Mary was recently awarded the UK Real Life Reads 2016 prize.

Adrian Sington is Rowlatt's agent. "I love her voice," says Sington. "It's funny, observational and intelligent. When I met her a first thought was that I could sell her first book, which I did to Penguin.

"It's been a huge joy to see Mary Wollstonecraft finding so many new friends," says Rowlett. "I'm part of a campaign to promote her legacy and raise a statue of her in London, where over 9 out of 10 statues are of men."

Rowlatt is currently in the early stages of writing a novel, plus doing her usual BBC journalism.

She lives in London, and is currently based in New Delhi, India, where her husband is the BBC's correspondent for the region. She was born in Yorkshire.

Brits in LA

Happy Birthday to Us!

Brits in LA turned 9 years old this week!

As we enter our 10th year it is a good time to reflect and consider what the next decade will bring. Our community on Facebook started off with a handful of friends and now averages three new members a day. At last count we have 10,000 Brits and non-Brits who just want to be part of a like-minded group. We do limit the people who join by making it a closed group, but you can send us a request, via this link if you haven't already: facebook.com/groups/ Britslovela. You will get automatic approval if you have friends in the group.

If you don't know anyone we ask that you drop us a line so we can try to verify that your intentions are honest and you are not just joining so you can tell everyone about your amazing Juice/Cosmetics/WeightLoss multilevel marketing scheme that will guarantee Brits in LA members are millionaires by the end of the month!

Our Facebook page is the go-to spot if you ever have a question or a quandary and have nowhere else to turn. And it is also the place for friendships, networking, jobs, housing and everything in between. Craig and I can't take all of the credit, as without you we would just be called Two Brits in LA! We get so much pleasure from providing a forum where people get to help each other, but we would certainly love to hear your thoughts on what we could add or change to make it even better. Brits in LA is all of us, so we really want it to reflect everyone's ideas. Email us at BritsinLA@gmail.com if you have something you would like to say!

And since a picture is worth a thousand words, we figured the art for this week's column should be some photos of memorable moments in BiLA's history. To those of you pictured on this page (and everyone else too): thanks for joining us on the journey has Τt certainly been a good week for celebrations, as the Brits are doing rather well at the Olympics in Rio second in the medal table as I write this. Considering that the current number one, USA, have over three times the population we are doing pretty amazing! Lots of our favorite venues are screening the games including Ye Olde Kings Head, The Lost Knight and The Pikey (who have cable now rather than streaming!).

Brits in Rio

Defend it like Beckham?!

■ No problems at home, insists celebrity couple

When David Beckham Victoria (above) decided to sell their luxury pad in France, the news immediately prompted tabloid rumors that the duo were having marital issues.

Not so, said Victoria, telling leading glossy Grazia that they're beyond fine; they're wonderful and that couple's decision to unload their Cote D'Azur getaway has nothing to do with the status of their marriage.

And retired soccer legend David echoed his missus' sentiments about their "pretty easy" relationship in his recent interview with ABC "We've News. been together for 18 years, we've been married for 16 years,"the athlete, 40, reflected in an interview last month. "So you trust each other's judgment. I think that has worked for us."

In fact, he praised Victoria for 'incredible' committment to her work. "My wife, you know, she's a hard worker," David noted. Indeed, the one-time pop star debuted her Spring 2016 collection at New York Fashion Week, where David and their eldest son, Brooklyn, were seated front row.

The non-story started with a non-source who went on record with RadarOnline that the couple were having marital problems, prompting the "David & headline: Victoria List $3 Million French Estate Amid Rumors," Divorce adding, "hardly ever would you see Victoria queuing for a croissant in the village boulangerie."

How camp!

The Beckhams have been married for 16 years and share four kids, Brooklyn, 16, Romeo, 13, Cruz, 10, and Harper, 4. According to Victoria, David is so much more than her spouse and the father of her children.

The webloid goes on to point out that the selling of their home comes after David was spottedf "flirting with two different brunettes while at a SoulCycle class in Los Angeles," while also pointing out how "the Beckhams also severed their business ties to each other."

But fear not folks and Beckham lovers, because a source super close to the duo tells me that this story is "total bull".

Looks like Team Beckham will not be a man down anytime soon!

Our 'Enry reveals why he'd make a SUPER James Bond!

Henry Cavill may be Superman, but IRL (in real life), he's just a regular guy - albeit, a very, very in shape regular guy...

The Man of Steel star covers the September issue of Men's Fitness, discussing how he keeps his work-life balance as well as balance in the gym, which he frequently documents on Instagram.

"I was very fit, then I was not very fit, then I was very fit again, then I was not very fit," he said. "Now that I'm fit again, I think I've found a comfortable balance, which is enjoyable because we all like to go out for drinks and have pizza and have dinners and all the nice things in life, and not being a complete gym psycho."

In fact, one of the 33-year-old's challenges as a superstar is maintaining a friendsand-family-centric life in London, having shunned the trappings Hollywood and its mega stars and mega

"If I ever become an egomaniac, then I've messed it up," he joked. Cavill even shrugged off having an ego if he ever lands the role of James Bond, a character he's expressed wishes of playing.

"It'd be awesome to play Bond, a classic really," Bond, "I wouldn't mused. play the same kind of Bond as Daniel Craig that's because amazing Bond, and I don't think I'd be the person to outdo Daniel Craig at doing Daniel Craig's Bond. I would love to do a different version and just have enormous amounts of fun with it."

has outdone all of my expectations and I am proud to say I have made history. The Olympic Games only come around once every four years and that is what makes it so special.

"It was always going to be tough for me to medal on the floor and I knew I had to go for it so I'm delighted I managed to pull out one of my big scores. I just take things as they come and that is why I could focus on the pommel horse. The potential has always been there in the pommel horse but the floor was different and gold didn't seem possible so I am so pleased.

"Louis congratulated me coming out which I really appreciated. We are one and two in the world and that is a great place to be."

Over the past four years UK Sport, a government-backed body, has pumped about £350m into the training of potential Olympic medal winners. Cycling is one of the best funded sports, gaining roughly £30m over the past Olympic cycle. On the final day of track events, four Britons won medals. Laura Trott defended her omnium title, becoming the first British woman to win four Olympic golds. Her fiancé Jason Kenny won the men's keirin to collect his third Rio gold, adding to three titles from previous games.

GB's success; it's also the ruthless way it is shared out. Funding is only given to sports that can demonstrate medal potential in the next two Games - and one poor Olympic result can lead to funding being altogether. Take cut women's indoor volleyball team. It rose more than 60 places in the rankings to reach the world's top 20 in the four years prior to the 2012 London Games, but lost all its funding when it failed to win a medal. The UK did not even send a volleyball team to Rio this year.

GB GOLD RUSH!

■ Stunning week in Rio leaves British team eyeing historic medal tally - again!

THE BRITISH OLYMPIC team have enjoyed another golden week in Rio, notching one astonishing success after another to leave them perched in SECOND place in the table at press time, having amassed a jaw-dropping 55 medals.

The official target in Rio was 48 medals, one more than its previous best at an overseas Olympics, in Beijing in 2008. But British athletes passed that target in the middle of the week, and set themselves the more ambitious target of bettering the 65 medals they won in London in 2012.

Sunday went down in history Britain's best-ever day at the Games, even eclipsing the memories of 'Super Saturday' in London four summers ago when Team GB won three gold medals in an hour. This time round, the team romped home to five gold medals and three silvers, with victories for gymnast Max Whitlock, who won gold in both the men's pommel horse and men's floor event, Mo Farah, who survived a tumble on the track to get a gold in the 10,000m, Justin Rose in the golf and Andy Murray in the men's tennis.

And the success continued as the week wore on, with Britain enjoying gold and silver in the triathlon courtesy of the Brownlee brothers, Alistair grabbing the gold ahead of brother Jonny, while compatriots Hannah Mills and Saskia Clark triumphed in the 470 dinghy sailing.

brother Jonny, 26,

The Yorkshiremen were close throughout the swim and cycle stages before Alistair pulled away halfway through the 10km run and finished six seconds ahead.

He said: "I was pretty confident we would get first and second but I didn't know which way round it would be."

'best feeling ever'

Mills and Clark needed only to finish Thursday's medal race to win gold in the women's 470 sailing event.

They duly did so - finishing eighth to improve on the silver medal they won at London 2012.

"I can't believe it," Mills said. "It has actually been the best feeling ever.

"We have forgotten all about London. We are so proud to come back after it and we've worked so hard to get the upgrade to gold."

Liam Heath and Jon Schofield won silver in the men's 200m kayak double while Marcus Ellis and Chris Langridge took bronze in the badminton men's doubles.

Elsewhere, Nicola Adams reached the women's flyweight final as she attempts to become the first British boxer to retain an Olympic title for 92 years.

Great Britain's Justin Rose became golf's first Olympic champion since 1904 by seeing off Henrik Stenson in a thrilling final round at Rio 2016.

Rose, 36, was level with Stenson on 15 under par after 17 holes but the Swede bogeyed the last while Rose sank a birdie putt to win by two shots.

The 2013 US Open champion hit a four-under-par 67 to win on 16 under.

"That felt better than anything I've ever won," said Rose.

"It was the best tournament I've ever done. Hopefully we've shown Brazil what golf is about. I'm glad it was close. Not for my nerves, for golf."

Andy Murray made history on Sunday by beating Juan Martin del Potro to become the first ever tennis player to win twoOlympic singles gold medals.

Defending Olympic champion Murray overcame Del Porto in Rio de Janeiro in a four-set thriller to cap a stunning 2016 in which he has also won Wimbledon title and finished runner-up in two other Grand Slams.

Gymnast Max Whitlock made history after being crowned a double Olympic champion in Rio.

Max, 23, had already made history when he became the first British gymnast to medal in the men's all-round competition, earning a bronze.

However, he surpassed this achievement with two fantastic routines within a couple of hours of each other – first on the floor, and then edging out teammate Louis Smith on the pommel horse.

Speaking after his two victories, Max said: "This cont. on page 19, col. 4
