MP resigns over rent boy scandal

Labour MP Keith Vaz has stepped down as chairman of the Home Affairs Select Committee amid a sex scandal involving paid male escorts.

The married father-oftwo had been under huge pressure to stand down from the committee which probes issues such as immigration, drugs policies and sex workers after it was revealed he paid rent boys for sex at his flat.

As chairman of the powerful Commons panel, the 59-year-old has publicly said he was "not convinced" that men who pay for sex should face prosecution.

Announcing his resignation, the Labour MP said: "It is in the best interest of the Home Affairs Select Committee that its important work can be conducted without any distractions whatsoever.

He said: "It is in the best interest of the Home Affairs Select Committee that its important work can be conducted without any distractions whatsoever.

"I am genuinely sorry that recent events make it impossible for this to happen if I remain chair.

"I have always been passionate about select committees, having served as either chair or member for half of my time in Parliament. The integrity of the select committee system matters to me.

"Those who hold others to account must themselves be accountable."

Vaz added the decision to resign and stand aside immediately from the committee's business was "my decision, and mine alone" and "my first consideration has been the effect of recent events on my family".

"After He added: speaking to the House authorities, I will formally tender my resignation to Mr Speaker so that it coincides with the timetable for the election of other committee chairs, such as the Brexit Culture, Committee. Media and Sport, and Science and Technology, so that the elections can take place together."

At the weekend, the Sunday Mirror published pictures it said showed Mr Vaz with male sex workers in a flat in north London that he owns. Illegal drugs were mentioned during a secretly recorded conversation.

Another Labour MP will now be elected to replace him, with Conservative MP Tim Loughton taking over as interim chairman.

Speaking after Mr Vaz had informed committee colleagues of his intention to resign, Mr Loughton said a new chairman should be in place in October.

He said Mr Vaz had given a "very frank account of what had happened" and that the committee had accepted his resignation "with sadness".

Conservative MP Andrew Bridgen has said he would refer the matter to the Commons Standards commissioner and may also report Mr Vaz to police.

Married father-oftwo Mr Vaz said he was referring the paper's allegations to his solicitor.

Born in 1956 to Goan parents in Aden in what is now Yemen, Vaz went to Cambridge University where he studied law and then became a solicitor. He has been MP for Leicester East since 1987.

He is Parliament's longest-serving British Asian MP and has chaired the influential Home Affairs Select Committee since 2007. He was Britain's Minister for Europe under Tony Blair and said the vote to leave the EU was a "catastrophe".

Labour MP Chuka Umunna, who sits on the Home Affairs committee, said Mr Vaz had done a "fine job" as chairman, but said he had made the right decision in stepping down.

Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn said Mr Vaz's future on the party's ruling National Executive would be discussed when it meets.

Hate preacher sentenced: judge blasts extremists who live on the benefits while claiming to 'despise' the West

A senior judge has challenged Islamist extremists who live on benefits while claiming to "despise" Western democracy, as he sentenced hate preacher Anjem Choudary to fiveand-half years in prison.

Choudary has lived on benefits in the UK for the past 20 years, during which time it is understood he has claimed up to £500,000 from the state.

While living off the state - dubbing his benefits 'Jihadiseekers' Allowance' - Choudary became one of the country's most notorious radical preachers - professing hatred against the West.

'calculating'

But he managed to avoid a criminal conviction until he was charged last year with drumming up support for a terrorist organisation by pledging allegiance to Islamic State of Iraq and Levant (Isil).

On Tuesday he was sentenced alongside fellow radical Islamist Mohammed Mizanur Rahman after both being convicted of inviting support for the terrorist group.

Before sentencing them, Mr Justice Holroyde heard that the pair were both living off benefit

After hearing Mr Rahman's lawyer speak, the judge asked: "Is it not an anathema to be funded by the liberal Western democracy he so adamantly despises?"

MPs have now called for the Home Secretary to be given powers to block hate preachers from receiving benefits.

A former work and pensions secretary also spoke of his frustration at being unable to deprive terrorist suspects of state benefits.

The Old Bailey heard a "calculating" and "dangerous" Choudary had published an oath of allegiance to Isil knowing it was likely to encourage his vulnerable or fanatical followers to commit terrorist attacks.

Mr Justice Holroyde dismissed regret from the 49 year-old, saying he "knew exactly what he was doing".

The judge said Choudary had invited support for Isil while it was "engaged in appalling acts of terrorism".

He said: "At no point did either of you say anything to condemn the violent means by which [Isil] claimed to have established a caliphate."

CHOUDARY: the preacher took £500,000 in benefits during his time in the UK

The Old Bailey heard Choudary was an influential ideologue who had tens of thousands of followers on social media. He publicised his oath at a crucial time just as Isil had launched its self-styled caliphate in Iraq and Syria and many people were looking for guidance on its legitimacy.

Choudary's influence was so strong that Siddhartha Dhar, who is later believed to have succeeded 'Jihadi John' as Isil executioner, asked him for a "verdict" on the caliphate, saying his words "would be gold on Twitter".

JUSTICE HOLROYDE dismissed claims of 'regret' from the 49 year-old defendant

Choudary and Rahman, 33, each to five-and-ahalf years, Mr Justice Holroyde said they had shown "no remorse at all for anything you have said or done, and I have no doubt you will continue to communicate your message whenever you can".

Their supporters in the public gallery shouted "Allahu Akbar" as the two men were led from the dock.

Settled: Madonna and Ritchie's bitter custody battle

■ 16-year old Rocco will continue living in London with his filmmaker father

Ritchie have finally settled their monthslong custody battle over their son Rocco. The former couple came to an agreement in court on Wednesday.

According to New York Supreme Court documents, the pop icon and her filmmaker ex settled their legal battle, and there was "no appearance" in court regarding the matter.

Ritchie's lawyer, Peter Bronstein, said in a statement outside the court that Rocco, will continue to live with his father in London, according to the Associated Press.

in December 2015 after Rocco refused to return to New York to be with his mother for Christmas. At the time, the teen was living with his father in London.

Rocco is just one of Madonna and Ritchie's sons. The two, who were married from 2000 to 2008, also have an adopted son named David, who is 10.

Madonna and Ritchie took the battle to the courts, opening litigation in New York and London. In December a judge ruled that Rocco should return to his mother's custody, but decided not to issue a warrant to enforce the order. Rocco has since remained in London with his father and enrolled in a school in the capital.

During hearing Manhattan, Supreme Court Justice Deborah Kaplan had implored Madonna, 58, and Ritchie, 47, to settle the matter privately.

"No one is disrupting his household other than the inability of the parents to reach a resolution," Ms Kaplan said. "If they cannot resolve this matter then eventually the court will."

'very difficult'

Ellen Sigal, a courtappointed lawyer for Rocco, said in March that the dispute was causing the teenager stress.

"It's been a difficult time for him,"

Police smash 'significant' Isil-inspired terror plot

■ Two men planned Paris-style attack, say Met

Two men have been arrested on suspicion of plotting a Paris style marauding terror attack on the streets of Britain.

The pair, who are understood to brothers, were arrested in a dawn raid at a property in west London on Thursday morning.

Security sources said the raid had interrupted a "significant" terrorist plot aimed at bringing death and mayhem to Britain.

The plot was said to have been inspired by Islamic State in Iraq and Levant (Isil) and was believed to involve guns and possibly bombs.

Security sources suggested that rather than a "lone wolf" style attack, the plot was more widespread and serious in nature.

However, the suspects are not believed to have been in possession of weapons at the time of their arrests and the raids are thought to have taken place at what was an early stage in the alleged plot.

The arrests come just days after hate preacher Anjem Choudary was jailed for five and a half years for pledging an oath of allegiance to Isil.

had There been concern that Choudary supporters might try to mount some sort attack in revenge for the cleric having been convicted and jailed, but was not clear if the plot was connected.

ringleader

The two suspects aged 19 and 20 were being questioned on suspicion of preparing a terrorist act.

While the younger brother was said to be the ringleader of the alleged attack, the 20-year-old was also arrested on suspicion of funding terrorism and failing to disclose information regarding an act of terrorism.

In addition a third man was detained by counter-terror police in south east London, on suspicion of a religiously aggravated offence.

Theman, who was arrested at his home in south-east London, was born and raised in the Iraqi city of Mosul.

His father had worked for the military in Iraq and was forced to flee the country, travelling to Britain in 2007 with the rest of his family.

The 19-year-old was held on suspicion of a racially aggravated offence, relating a "separate matter", according to Scotland security However sources said the three arrests were linked.

'respectable'

The man lives in a substantial three storey property Victorian which is owned by the local authority, with his mother, father and two sisters, one who is in her 20s and the other of whom is of primary school age.

Neighbours said they were woken shortly after 5.30am by the sound of the front door being kicked down and

UK economy bounces back after Brexit shock

LONDON: bounce back Britain's economy from the initial shock of the Brexit vote has expanded to the country's recruitment and housing markets, according to two surveys which previously painted a bleak outlook.

The Recruitment and Employment Confederation - which last month said hiring was in "dramatic freefall" said firms increased permanent staff for the first time in three months, and were also spending more on temporary workers.

The Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors said its monthly house price index jumped to +12 in August from July's three-year low of +5, the first rise in six months, though still one of the lowest readings in the past year and a half.

"There are clear signs that the housing market is settling down after the initial surprise of the outcome to the EU referendum," RICS chief economist Simon Rubinsohn said.

Murphys • Newcastle • Old Speckled Hen • Paulaner Hef

The Bank of England's decision to cut interest rates in August for the first since 2009 contributed probably to the brighter mood, Rubinsohn added.

The recovery in the RICS and REC surveys follows a pattern set by surveys of the services manufacturing sectors which plunged in July, when Britain plunged political chaos by the Brexit vote, before rising sharply in August.

Housing retail firms also gave confident outlooks. Housebuilders Barratt and Redrow have also sounded upbeat.

Carphone, Dixons Britain's biggest electricals and mobile phone retailer, reported better-than-expected sales and said it had not seen no Brexit impact on demand.

Some economists have pulled back from forecasts of outright recession made in the wake of the Brexit vote, though almost all - including the BoE - still expect a sharp slowdown.

1666 AND ALL THAT: Londoners enjoy a blazing good night's fun on the Thames

A wooden replica of 1666 London was set ablaze on the River Thames on Sunday night to commemorate the 350th anniversary of the Great Fire of London.

The 120 metre long installation was lit up on Sunday in memory of the inferno that ripped through the City of London, destroying homes, businesses and iconic structures such as St Paul's Cathedral.

The large wooden model of the 17th century London skyline, titled London 1666, has been designed by American 'burn" artist David Best.

The event was the grand finale of the London's Burning festival commemorating the Great canons and high-pressure hoses to extinguish the flames at the end of the performance.

The 1666 blaze ripped through the heart of London for four days, leaving 80 per cent of the walled city in ruins.

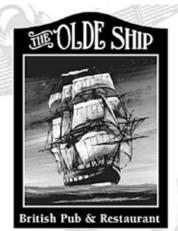

Called London 1666, the spectacular blaze has been captured on multiple cameras.

Those who were not able to make it down to the river, between Blackfriars and Waterloo Bridge, were able to watch it being live-streamed on YouTube.

The project was put together by artists David Best and the Artichoke organisation, retelling the story of a blaze that hit the capital 350 years ago.

It began on September 2 1666 at a baker's shop in Pudding Lane and raged for four days.

Let's work together for an amicable split, PM tells EC's Tusk Britain European Union should work together to smooth their divorce and forge a new strong relationship, Prime Minister Theresa May told European Council President Donald Tusk on Thursday.

May's spokeswoman said that the two leaders' first meeting since she became prime minister following the June 23 Brexit vote was friendly and that the British leader felt the EU understood her need to take time to form a negotiating stance before triggering the formal divorce procedure.

"The main points that the prime minister made were about working together so that there was a smooth process for the UK leaving the European Union, that is why we are taking time to prepare for the negotiations," spokeswoman reporters.

May also told Tusk that Britain would be a "strong player" while it remained in the European Union, and would continue to stand firm on sanctions against Russia over its action in neighbouring Ukraine.

Air China magazine condemned over 'racist' guide to London

■ MPs seek apology from ambassador after inflight guide states 'precautions are needed' in ethnic minority areas

安全: 到伦敦旅行很安全,但有些印巴聚集区和黑人聚集区相对较级。 夜晚最好不要单独出行,女士应该尽量结伴而行 Safety: London is generally a safe place to travel, however precautions are needed when entering areas mainly populated by Indians, Pakistanis and black people. We advise tourists not to go out alone at night, and females always to be accompanied by another person when travelling.

MPs have urged China's UK ambassador to intervene in a row over racist comments reportedly issued by a Chinese airline about ethnic minority areas of London.

An image of text from an inflight Air China magazine posted on social media (above) prompted outrage after it warned passengers that "precautions are needed when entering areas mainly populated by Indians, Pakistanis and black people".

The text, tweeted by Beijing-based producer Haze Fan of US news channel CNBC, added: "We advise tourists not to go out alone at night, and females always to be accompanied by another person when travelling."

Two MPs have urged Liu Xiaoming, China's ambassador to the UK, to secure an apology to their London constituents.

Virendra Sharma, Labour MP for Ealing Southall where 39% of the population is Asian, wrote to Liu to complain about "blatant racism" from the airline.

He said: "I am shocked and appalled that even today some people would see it as acceptable to write such blatantly untrue and racist statements.

"I have raised this issue with the Chinese ambassador, and requested that he ensures an apology is swiftly forthcoming from Air

China, and the magazine is removed from circulation immediately

"I have invited representatives of Air China to visit my constituency of Ealing Southall to see that a very multicultural area is safe, and would be of great value for those visiting London to see.

"I will await their response, and if an appropriate one is not forthcoming I shall feel forced to question whether Air China is a fit company to operate in the UK."

Rosena Allin-Khan, Labour MP for Tooting, which has one of the largest south Asian populations in London, said: "I think it is offensive to all Londoners, not just the ethnic minorities mentioned."

Speaking to the Evening Standard she said: "I am going to be writing to the Chinese ambassador to invite him to visit Tooting in London, where all races live side by side. Then they can see how we live and our wonderfully diverse community."

In her tweet, Fan asked what London's mayor, Sadiq Khan, thought about the comments.

Lambeth and Southwark London assembly member Florence Eshalomi also invited Liu to her constituency. She said this would show him "what an international city London is".

Bernie Eccleston's reign over Formula One could be reaching the finish line after an American entertainment tycoon agreed to buy the motorracing championship in a deal worth £6billion.

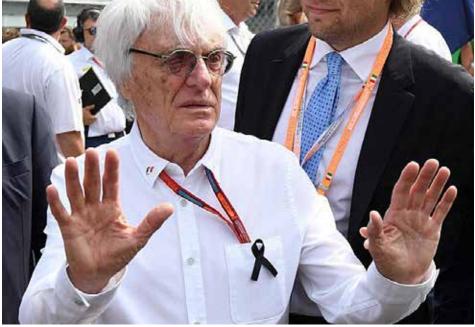

Liberty Media is buying 100 per cent of the shares of F1's parent company Delta Topco from the British private equity firm CVC Capital Partners.

Ecclestone, who has been part of Formula One ever since the 1950s, will remain as chief executive for three years but 21st Century Fox vice-chairman Chase Carey will become the new chairman.

Get a good start: it'll make all the difference!

HEALTH & FITNESS with Ricky Parcell

Getting a good start to the day often leads to having a good day in general, and here at the Body Camp in Ibiza we focus on starting the day the right way, by rising early, preferably at sunrise, to admire the view and admire the beauty of nature.

We've found that asocial, energetic or productive start sets the context for your day, but let's be frank, it's not always that easy.

On some days you may not get a good start for some reason. Perhaps you slept badly. Or the maybe grey skies and cold summer rain is dragging your energy down. Or you might have lost that positive momentum during a hard first part of the day and after lunch you feel tired, low or lost in a somewhat sad or uninspired funk.

Here's to break the negative mood and get a new start:

Appreciate what you have! This is the simplest of my most commonly used pick-me-ups. Take about 2 minutes and sit in silence. Tell yourself: OK, I might not feel so good right now, but what can I be grateful for and appreciate in my life? Come up with one simple thing like: my tasty food, my health or that you have a roof over your head. That one thing opens up the mind and redirects the thoughts from the negativity. Then build upon that one thing. Make mental jumps from the roof, to the warmth in our home, to the dog sitting beside us on the sofa, to that we can work from home.

Make those small mental leaps by just moving attention around the room you are in. Like skipping from stone to stone over a stream. Take the time to slowly appreciate all those things.

Act as you would like to feel: Emotions work backwards too. So if you want to become more positive or enthusiastic then act in the manner of a person who is positive or enthusiastic!

You might not feel like it. But do it as best as you can anyway. You may for example:

Think of the task in front of you as something exciting and fun.

Answer some emails or talk to someone in a positive and enthusiastic manner.

Assume that you have a rapport with the person you're going to meet if you feel unmotivated, negative or nervous before some kind of meeting.

Compliment another: Here's a fun one to use quite often and that will not only lift your own mood but that of another. You will feel positive and get positive feelings too from the complimented person.

Brits in LA

Meet a Member: Amber Hodgkiss

Meet Amber Hodgkiss from Wigan who moved to Los Angeles in January to pursue acting. Her UK credits include Grange Hill, Hollyoaks and Doctors.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I was ready to leave the UK, and LA was the best option to continue with my career. I also was lucky enough to have a project lined up here. A movie called 'Speak' which is doing extremely well on the festival front, so I think that made it easier to make the big move.

What do you miss most from home?

My momma and my sister! So much! English countryside, English weather (I think I'm one of the very few!) and English pubs! Oh and how could i forget.... digestive biscuits and super noodles!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since. If so, why?

It wasn't what I expected. I was very unsure and slightly disappointed at first. However given time that has totally changed, it's a crazy place, totally bonkers yet I love and appreciate every little bit of it. I feel I understand it more now. I recently spent a few weeks in Seattle filming the movie 11:11. I had a great time, and the locations were beautiful - however I was so excited to get back home to LA. I've never had that feeling before so that was really nice. I have met some of my best friends here in LA. I truly believe it's what you make of it.

What do you find is the biggest difference is living here versus Wigan?

The weather. The mentality is a huge difference. The accessibility to all things health and fitness. It's a shock when I go home having so much of this available here and little back there.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

PACE - a wonderful restaurant under the Canyon country mart on Lauren Canyon it is fabulous! Also the Canyon Country Mart has a little coffee stand there, that has fresh coffee 7-2. The lady that runs it is called Lilly, she is so lovely. Seriously you can't beat a morning coffee there. I love nothing more than sitting there looking over my scripts for work.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? If you want to do it, do it. I treat the whole thing as one big adventure and if you don't take it too seriously, are happy and have fun along the way then you're winning.

How can we find out more about you?

Visit www. amberhodgkiss.com or search Amber Hodgkiss at imdb.com.

Are you working on anything at the moment?

I just recently finished Wigan accer working on a pilot in full force!

called 'Don't Mess with Julie Whitefield' with Casey Wilson. Directed by a fellow Brit, Amy Barham. She was the executive producer on a show I worked on back home in UK, 'Bedlam' so that was great to reunite. Now I have a few weeks' break and then after that I will be starting work on a pilot for Freeform. The producers actually wrote the role for me, so I'm super excited about this and I'm sure the Wigan accent will be out

Between Worlds: where literature meets apps

Exclusive interview with author Skip Brittenham about his teen fantasy novel with creatures visible in augmented reality

Rating: ★★★

"We had already been augmented reality images and apps with the graphic novels I was involved in, Anomaly and Shifter, so it seemed natural to try to let the readers have the same type of high tech tools available with my young adult novel. I think that this generation wants more interactivity in every form of entertainment they consume." Those are the words of author Skip Brittenham, whose latest book focuses on how two teens learn to trust each other and themselves. There's an app that you download that utilizes your camera. Once downloaded, focus on the pictures in the book and you'll see 3D creatures pop up. There are also details about the creatures. This is an inventive way to learn more about the creatures. Some of the creatures have human traits. At times the creatures are trying to help them, but the kids in the book don't know and run into more danger. The fighting and death is violent, which can be a bit much for a young child to read. Instead of the violence, it could have had more emotional connection. What our young heroes learn when they are transported to the land of Nith gives them confidence. Along the way, they make a new friend.

Mayberry and

Marshall are two teens who don't quite fit the mold to be considered popular. Mayberry is a science geek from New York, who dresses Goth. She's moved with her parents to a small town so her mother can do Mayberry's research. only friend is Marshall, who's lived there all his life. His family used to be very rich, but was wiped out by bad investments. Marshall tells Mayberry about the wishing tree in Mystery Forest. They find the wishing tree and make wishes. Both fall asleep and awake in Nith where there are mystical and scary creatures. How they get home?

"The book has a lot of science backing up some of the story elements," says Brittenham. was researching the longevity of planets and animals and stumbled upon the quaking aspen trees size and age. I was also reading a book about string theory at the same time and put the two together....and watched my 15-yearold daughter consume entertainment and then communicate with her friends. I have never taken a writing class. I learned how to write by slogging away at it on my computer."

"Over the years I read a lot of scripts and watched them evolve into movies or TV shows so I became very familiar with various approaches to the creative process," says Brittenham who is an entertainment lawyer. co-written has two graphic novels, Anomaly and Shifter. Between Worlds has yet to be optioned for film or television.

Brittenham says he was reading and researching just for education general purposes, not for any book. "My theory about education is that you are either going up or down and if you are standing still you are going down. If you always talk about and live based on where and what you have been it is hard to discover vibrant fulfilling future."

Arianne Lewin is Brittenham's editor at Penguin.

"I submitted the book to Penguin and they wanted to publish it," says Brittenham. "They assigned Arianne to me and we went at it. She recommended that I eliminate a plot line involving the parents of the female lead character Mayberry because YA readers don't care that much about adults' problems. I thought about it and decided she was right."

Brittenham is based in Los Angeles. He was born in Port Huron, Michigan. He is currently writing an adult action adventure novel. The app for the book can be found at www. betweenworldsapp. com

Brits in LA

BAFTA's new digs, Polo, and Kickstarting success...

FIRST OFF there are three people whom I must wish Happy Birthday: my neice Megan, my great nephew William, (God, I'm getting old!) and last but most definitely not least, our esteemed BiLA member Tehmina Sunny.

Congratulations also to our friends over at BAFTA/LA who have moved into swanky new offices on Wilshire Boulevard boasting an incredible view. They invited their members to come and check out the new space on Tuesday night, so Brits in LA member Marcus Coneelly and I went along for a nosey and a long-overdue catch up. There we saw former Managing Director Don Haber, catching UKares with up award recipient, Katy Haber. Peter Foldy introduced us to a new British actor Sebastian, named who is contemplating moving to LA very soon, allowing Marc and I to offer him tons of advice. Also present: actor Clement Von Frankenstein who was sharing a drink with Big Bang Theory's Alice Amter and screenwriter and Toscars Noam Alumnus, Friedlander, chatting up a storm with BAFTA's Matthew Wiseman. We wish them good energy in these new offices. The west facing view is not only breathtaking, but inspiring.

Don't forget this weekend the Safety Harbor Kids' charity are hosting their annual Polo fundraiser (Sept 10 at the Polo Grounds at Will Rogers's Park, in Pacific Palisades, with Brit celeb Downtown Julie Brown and Albert Lee). It all kicks off at 1pm - we had such fun there a few years ago. Not only a fun day out helping a well deserved charity too.

And a big thank you to all those who have supported my Kickstarter project @ asst_. We've exceeded our target and are very happy to start the casting process. Eric Roberts, Jeffrey Postlethwaite (Peaky Blinders) and Oskar Rodriguez (East Los High) have all joined the cast so far so stay tuned for more news on this exciting project.

Finally: popular pub is back quiz - Sandro Monetti mc'd a packed house last week and congratulations to the winners who took home the kitty! Next quiz is scheduled for Sept 20th. Hosted by yours truly! Don't forget the quiz is always held at The Pikey on Sunset Boulevard, just east of Fairfax. And don't worry about coming solo, we're a friendly bunch and can always find a team for you to join.

Look forward to seeing you then! Cheers, Craig

THE BRITISH WEEKLY, SAT. SEPT. 10, 2016

Swift end to Tom and Tay's summer fling!

Summer Lovin' Had Me a Blast...Summer loving happened so fast?

Those were the first words that came to mind when I heard that American pop star Taylor Swift and British actor boyfriend Tom Hiddleston have called it quits after a three month romance. No word on if they're ever, ever getting back together.

The affectionately dubbed "Hiddleswift" seemed inseparable when they began dating in June but, everything has changed.

The split was reportedly 'amicable'. Public fascination with the couple may have contributed to the breakup, according to Us Weekly.

'surprise of the century'

The couple's romance was initially confirmed after UK tabloid The Sun published photographs of Swift, 26 and Hiddleston, 35, looking like a couple from a Nicholas Sparks film while walking along the beach on June 14 in Westerly, Rhode Island - just two weeks after the singer and musician Calvin Harris parted ways.

Shortly after, Harris called out Swift on Twitter after she claimed she was the sole writer of his hit single, "This Is What You Came For."

"I figure if you're happy in your new relationship you should focus on that instead of trying to tear your ex bf down for something to do," Harris wrote on Twitter, referring to Swift's relationship with Hiddleston.

Swift and Hiddleston outings over the summer were highly publicized.

In June, Swift met Hiddleston's parents in the U.K. after Hiddleston met Swift's family in Nashville. The two took part in a big bash in Rhode Island in July where Hiddleston wore a much lambasted "I [heart] T.S." tank top.

Some critics of the couple questioned whether they were in it for the publicity.

"The truth is that Taylor Swift and I are together, and we're very happy," Hiddleston told The Hollywood Reporter in July. "That's the truth. It's not a publicity stunt."

Despite their steadfast position of authenticity, Swift and Hiddleston's breakup did not seem unexpected to many on social media Tuesday.

"Now there's the surprise of the century," tweeted Kia Makarechi, a story editor at Vanity Fair.

Others suggested titles for a possible new album Swift could write about the "Avengers" actor - as the singer/song writer has been known to tap into her life experiences for lyrical inspiration.

I reached out to Swift's and Hiddleston's representatives and of course I will update you accordingly.

Ginger Spice: "I was immature when I left the Spice Girls"!

Geri Horner (formerly Halliwell), AKA Ginger Spice, says she quit the girl group because she wasn't comfortable being part of the group anymore.

Geri shocked fans in 1998 by walking off midway through their Spiceworld European Tour.

She now reveals: "There was a moment I decided to leave the band.

"I felt like it had grown into this huge monster, bigger than the individuals, bigger than the band itself.

"Obviously there was a bit of ruction in the band and I was like: 'I just don't want to do this any more."

Another thing that pushed Geri, 44, to the edge was the girls – she admits they weren't getting along.

She adds: "It was like:

She adds: "It was like: 'You're getting on my nerves and I don't know how to talk this through, so I'm out of here."

But the Watford-born lass now recognises she could have handled it better.

Geri says: "It was quite immature, looking back."

Geri, Mel B and Emma Bunton have reunited and are expected to perform new material in London's Hyde Park next July.

Can't wait for that!

WARREN GATLAND: the highly-regarded coach has made a surprise switch from Wales to the British Lions

Lions CAN beat the All Blacks, insists new coach Gatland

Warren Gatland, who was appointed as head coach of the British and Irish Lions on Wednesday, believes his side can beat world top-ranked rugby's team New Zealand next year.

The New Zealander will be seeking to lead the combined nations to their first back-to-back series success in more than 40 years, having been in charge of the team's last tour -- a 2-1 victory in Australia in 2013.

The Lions' only series victory against New Zealand was in 1971, followed up three years later by a triumph over South Africa.

Gatland, who is again taking a sabbatical from his role as Wales coach, admits it is "the biggest job in world rugby against the best opposition in world rugby."

Success in 2017 is about going to New Zealand and winning the Test series, and I honestly believe we can do that," the 52-year-old told the Lions' official website. "If we don't believe that, then we shouldn't even be getting on the plane.

"If there's players out there who have doubts. then make yourselves unavailable because we have to go down there as a squad of players and a group of people who believe 100% that we are good enough to go to New Zealand and win a Test series."

The last Lions team to tour New Zealand, in 2005, lost all three Tests under the guidance of coach Clive Woodward, who had led England to victory at the World Cup two years earlier.

The All Blacks have back-to-back Cups since World then, defending their title last year in England.

Gatland's Wales team lost in the quarterfinals, as did Scotland and Ireland. England failed to reach the knockout stage, but bounced back under new coach, Australian Eddie Jones, to win this year's Six Nations title.

Eden Hazard has become the second Chelsea player in two days to hail the impact of new manager Antonio Conte - while taking a scarcely concealed swipe at former boss Jose Mourinho.

The Belgian's indifferent form became one of the hallmarks of an utterly miserable last campaign at Stamford Bridge, with Mourinho dismissed in December following the team's woeful start to their title defence.

And hot on the heels of defender Gary Cahill labelling 2015-16 a 'disaster' for Chelsea, Hazard reflected on an 'ugly' season, while perhaps insinuating his former manager's lack of top-flight playing experience meant he didn't know how to treat his Premier League winning stars.

'Conte puts trust in his players and now we are good after an ugly season last year,' said Hazard.

'I've always been the same player but Conte

HAZARD: said new Chelsea coach Antonio Conte 'knows how to treat players having played at the highest level himself.'

Now Hazard takes a pop at Mourinho knows how to treat players having played at the highest level himself.'

Manchester United boss Mourinho paid with his job in west London for Chelsea losing nine of their opening 16 league games last season.

the All while speculation persisted regarding Hazard's apparently strained relationship with his Portuguese manager.

suggestions Those were only lent further credence when Hazard surrendered to a hip injury 31 minutes into what would prove Mourinho's final game in charge, a 2-1 defeat at Leicester.

Over the weekend Cahill had fired the first salvo at his former manager, claiming the team had lost its way during Mourinho's final months in charge.

needed 'We organisation. We went from winning the league to the disaster of last season. We lost our way tactically; everyone's head was in different directions,' the centreback told BBC Radio Five

'It is the hardest thing when everyone is not on the same wavelength. People talk as if you wake up one day and suddenly you're a bog-standard player. It doesn't happen.'

have retired after the Euros. It's not because he could break my record. Far from it. If he does and he plays well, fine."

Rooney did not touch the ball once in the Slovakia penalty area but England's captain and record goalscorer says the debate over his role in the team has been an "overreaction" following the 1-0 win in Trnava.

"I played in that role and helped us win the game," Rooney, who has scored 53 goals for his country, told Sky Sports I've never felt he is as good as a lot of people thought he was," he said.

Shilton also had harsh words for out-of-form 'keeper Joe Hart, who has recently moved to Italian side Torino on loan after being relegated to third choice at Manchester City.

"Obviously Hart's a good keeper but although he has great games, a keeper is judged by the amount of mistakes he makes and those have happened right through his career. In the Euros he made two mistakes in three games.

"What I don't understand about Joe is that he has 60-odd caps and yet people were saying he was getting too wound up before games in the Euros. If you don't know what you're doing after 60 caps, there is something wrong. I thought he was too wound up but apparently that is his style.

"He's under pressure now and he's come back to the pack. Joe was always looked upon as the No1 but now there is competition.

"It's all to play for now. It's up to the other keepers to make the shirt theirs.

"You need three or four keepers to choose from and then Sam makes his choice from there and stands or falls by it."

Big Sam thanks 'lucky coin' for England win

ALLARDYCE: winning start to tenure with 1-0 win in Slovakia

Sam Allardyce got his reign off to a winning start - and then thanked a lucky coin.

Liverpool midfielder Adam Lallana grabbed a dramatic 95th minute winner with his first goal in 27 caps as England overcame ten-man Slovakia at the weekend.

Allardyce then admitted his huge relief after they beat Slovakia who had captain Martin Skrtel sent off after a horrific stamp on Harry Kane - and revealed a fan gave him a lucky coin. England boss Allardyce said: "A father of a son in a wheelchair came to the hotel this morning and asked if it was okay to have a picture with his

"When we finished he said: 'Let me given you a lucky coin.' Here it is. I had it with me in my pocket, we won, so it'll stay with me.

"It was a huge relief for me, I'll tell you that now. You've got to beat 10 men when it comes around. I think that, finally in the end, we got the ball in the back of the net which was richly deserved based on us dominating the game.

"It was pretty nerveracking at the end because the 10 men scenario meant we must win. We got what we deserved in the end and won in the last minute. We have dominated the game and got a very important win."

Allardyce admitted his relief after his reign began with a victory and his sheer relief and joy was obvious afterwards as England overcame their hardest fixture. "It's the biggest job I've ever had. You know you're leading the nation forward. Everyone is looking at you. They want you to show the way forward and be successful," said Allardyce.

"It's that much bigger when the nation's watching you. I had a whole lot of messages today. It was impossible to try and attempt to reply to all the goodwill messages from across the country.

"In the end, everyone back home was waiting with baited breath and we scored the winer. Everyone back home is happy and can have an extra drink.

"The fans here were happy and the goal came in their end. We dominated the game and finally got what we deserved."

Hat-trick for Snodgrass

Robert Snodgrass scored a hat-trick as Scotland started their World Cup qualifying campaign by hammering Malta 5-1 at the weekend.

The Hull midfielder's cross-come-shot looped in to give the Scots the lead, but Alfred Effiong headed a reply.

Chris Martin's sidefooted finish restored the lead and Snodgrass added a penalty as Jonathan Caruana was controversially sent off.

Snodgrass tapped-in his third after Steven Fletcher's header, with Malta's Luke Gambin also sent off late on.

It was an up-and-down display for the Scots as they opened impressively, laboured after Effiong's equaliser then capitalised on Malta being reduced to 10 men.

The turning point was the penalty, when there looked to be little if any contact as Caruana chased Martin into the six-yard box while the Scotland striker was stretching to reach an Andrew Robertson cross.

Scotland took control as Malta lost their discipline in the closing stages and Gordon Strachan's side go top of Group F ahead of England, who won 1-0 in Slovakia, on goal difference after the opening set of fixtures.

Bale brace keeps Welsh on summer time

Wales started their 2018 World Cup qualifying campaign in confident fashion as they convincingly beat Moldova on Monday.

The Euro 2016 semifinalists initially faced spirited Moldovan resistance but led 2-0 at half-time thanks to goals from Sam Vokes and Joe Allen.

Gareth Bale seized on a woeful pass for the third, then netted a last-minute penalty for his second of the night.

Wales' win puts them top of Group D on goal difference ahead of Austria.

Welsh confidence has been at an all-time high since their superb performances over the summer and Chris Coleman's men will travel to Vienna for their next World Cup qualifier on Thursday, 6 October, hoping the feel-good factor stays strong into the autumn.

As the group's top seeds, Coleman's side had been expected to make light work of Moldova, who are ranked 154 places below them in the world rankings.

After a cagey first half hour they eventually did so with a flourish, becoming the first team to score three or more goals against the eastern European minnows since England's 4-0 victory in 2013.

Having led Wales to a first major tournament semi-final at Euro 2016, Coleman said he was "desperate" to follow that achievement by qualifying for the 2018 World Cup in Russia.

The former Fulham manager and his players want to ensure their summer exploits in France were not a one-off but a springboard to sustained success.

They were backed by a typically vociferous Cardiff City Stadium crowd of 31,731, close to capacity once again as a nation basks in its greatest footballing era. And although it came against limited opposition, this opening victory was an encouraging start as Wales aim to end an absence from World Cups that stretches back to 1958.

"That was the perfect start," former Wales international John Hartson said on Radio 5 live. "Moldova were awful, it was a comfortable win as you will see and great start to the qualifying campaign."

TENNIS: Nishikori fightback sends Scot tumbling out of US Open

Britain's Andy Murray made his earliest Grand Slam exit of the year as Japan's Kei Nishikori fought back to win their US Open quarter-final in five sets on Wednesday.

Murray, seeded second, led by two sets to one but eventually lost 1-6 6-4 4-6 6-1 7-5 in three hours 57 minutes.

The Wimbledon champion lost his rhythm after rain brought the roof across, then his cool when the stadium sound system interrupted a break point.

"It was too exciting on the court, but I tried to stay calm," said Nishikori.

Nishikori added: "I didn't start well - he has a great return - but I finished well.

"The rain delay helped me to change tactics. I tried to hit a few more drop-shots than usual today and it worked really well."

Murray, 29, had been on course to become only the fourth man since the Open era began in 1968 to reach all four major finals in the same year.

He was Australian and French Open runnerup before winning Wimbledon.

Murray began in terrific form, overpowering Nishikori in a 35-minute first set, but he lost control of the match when a passing rain shower led to the new roof being brought over Arthur Ashe Stadium.

Nishikori levelled at one set all and infuriated Murray by breaking

A RAGE IN FLUSHING MEADOW: Murray lost his cool when the stadium sound system interrupted play on break point straight back three times after losing his serve.

Murray's frustration only grew when he let a 40-0 lead slip at 4-4 in the third, but he looked to have finally taken control when the Scot took the next two games.

His momentum stalled dramatically early in the fourth set when he was seemingly in charge of a rally on break point, only for the stadium sound system to emit a loud noise that caused the umpire to halt the point.

Murray was furious, arguing with both umpire and tournament referee, but the point, the game and, within half an hour, the set went Nishikori's way.

"They stopped the point and I was just curious why that was and that was it," Murray said. "Did it affect me? Definitely."

A butterfly persistently fluttering around the net only added to Murray's annoyance as the 2012 champion lost seven straight games, but twice fought back from a break down in the fifth set to edge ahead at 5-4.

With 16 service breaks between them, there seemed every chance Murray would finally get over the finish line, but Nishikori played superbly to hold to love and it was the Japanese who then claimed the 17th and decisive break.

There was to be no final set tie-break as Nishikori proved the stronger with another nerveless hold that ended Murray's hopes.

Shilts blasts Roo AND Hart

■ Rooney 'should have quit after Euro 2016'
■ Hart 'not nearly as good as he thinks he is'

FORMER ENGLAND international Peter Shilton has blasted two of England's most senior international players, claiming neither Wayne Rooney nor Joe Hart were worth their places in the national team.

Rooney should have retired from international football after Euro 2016, claimed the ex England captain, analyzing the Manchester United star's performance for England in Sunday's World Cup qualifying victory over Slovakia.

Rooney's value to the team has become a hot topic after he spent most of the game playing in a deep midfield role.

"I don't think he's a striker anymore," said

Shilton, who won 125 caps. "We are trying to fit him in, but he's not a midfield player for me. Never will be."

Speaking to BBC Scotland, Shilton, 66, added: "He is spraying a few balls around, but I don't think he's being very effective.
