Cameron blasted for Libya debacle

■ 2011 campaign lacked 'accurate intelligence' and a 'defined strategic objective', says damning report from Foreign Affairs Select Committee

The bloody collapse of Libya – which triggered a refugee crisis and aided the rise of Isis – was this week blamed on David Cameron's blunders when he intervened to overthrow Colonel Gaddafi.

A damning report by MPs condemns the 2011 military campaign for lacking both "accurate intelligence" and a coherent strategy for the aftermath of removing the dictator.

The disastrous results were "political and economic collapse", tribal warfare, the refugee crisis, widespread human rights abuses and the rise of Islamic State (IS) in North Africa, fuelled by weapons abandoned by the Gaddafi regime.

The Foreign Affairs
Select Committee concluded: "Through his decision-making in the National Security Council, former prime minister David Cameron was ultimately responsible for the failure to develop a coherent Libya strategy."

The scathing verdict comes just one day after Mr Cameron's sudden announcement that he will leave Westminster immediately, breaking an earlier pledge to stay on as a backbencher.

In the report, MPs said:

- •They saw "no evidence that the UK Government carried out a proper analysis of the nature of the rebellion in Libya".
- •There was no "defined strategic objective" which meant a limited intervention to protect civilians "drifted into a policy of regime change by military means".
- •There was no attempt to "pause military action" when Benghazi was secured and seek a deal to protect civilians and reform Libya, with the UK instead "focused exclusively on military intervention".
- •Mr Cameron should have used Tony Blair's "contacts and influence" to try to secure Gaddafi's exit and a "negotiated solution".
- •Many Libyans had taken part in the Iraq insurgency and fought with al-Qaeda in Afghanistan, which meant the rise of militant extremist groups "should not have been the preserve of hindsight".

- •There was "insufficient action" taken to secure weapons abandoned by the Gaddafi regime, which contributed to the turmoil and "increased terrorism" across the region.
- Mr Cameron should have been required to issue a formal "ministerial direction" to intervene, noting the Chief of the Defence Staff, Lord Richards, "dissociated himself from that decision" in evidence to the inquiry.

worst mistake

Just six months after sending in the RAF and the Navy, in alliance with France – after the regime threatened to attack the rebel-held city of Benghazi – a triumphant Mr Cameron was mobbed by cheering Libyans on a visit with French president Nicolas Sarkozy.

The two leaders pledged support for

David Cameron: the former Prime Minister, who stepped down as an MP this week, was blamed for the power vacuum in Libya which aided the rise of ISIS

the future, proclaiming: "Your friends in Britain and France will stand with you as you build your country and build your democracy for the future."

But the promise proved empty as Libya collapsed into a power vacuum, allowing Isis to seize control of part of the country and peoplesmugglers to send migrants towards Europe in rickety boats.

Barack Obama has called Libya the worst mistake of his presidency, apparently criticising Mr Cameron personally for the UK's role in allowing the country to become a "s show".

Crispin Blunt, the Committee's Conservative chairman, said: "The UK's actions in Libya were part of an ill-conceived intervention, the results of which are still playing out today. Other political options were available. Political engagement might have delivered civilian protection, regime change and reform at a lesser cost to the UK and Libya."

The international community must now get behind the United Nations-backed Government of National Accord to prevent the country descending into all-out civil war, Mr Blunt added.

Curry and claret-proof cash: Bank of England debuts the plastic fiver

IN YET another sign of the times that some will find depressing, cash machines across the UK have begun dispensing the Bank of England's first "plastic" banknote, with the launch of the revamped five pound note on Tuesday morning.

Bearing the image of former prime minister Winston Churchill and the quotation "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat," the new fivers - printed on thin, flexible polymer plastic - will be able to withstand all of these.

BoE governor Mark Carney noted the fiver is capable of surviving "a splash of claret, a flick of cigar ash, the nip of a bulldog and even a spin in the washing machine", and demonstrated its resilience in person by dipping it into a tray of chicken curry at a London food market. He made no comment when asked about the possibility of the fiver ruining the curry.

The notes are expected to last two and a half times longer than their paper counterparts, and according to Mr Carney "can better withstand being repeatedly folded into wallets or scrunched up inside pockets".

IT CAN TAKE THE HEAT: Mark Carney dips a new plastic £5 note into a tray of food as he buys lunch at a Whitecross Street market stall in London.

As well as a host of additional security features that will make the notes harder to the fiver's counterfeit, anticipated five-year life cycle will reduce the future costs of banknote production, the BoE said. About 440m of the polymer notes have been printed, and can be recycled into plastic products when they are withdrawn from circulation.

more durable

The launch follows several years of research, public consultation and preparation by the UK's central bank, which intends to launch a polymer £10 note in mid-2017 and a £20 version by 2020.

Social reformer Elizabeth Fry features on the paper £5 note, leading to protests about its withdrawal because she is the only woman (apart from the Queen) to feature on UK banknotes. Jane Austen, however, will feature on the new tenner.

Fans of polymer banknotes argue they are cleaner and more durable than the paper version, less likely to distribute harmful bacteria and harder to counterfeit. Some respondents to a public consultation held in 2013 by the BoE complained they were too slippery, according to the central bank's website.

Victoria Cleland, the bank's chief cashier, whose signature will be on the banknotes, insisted the fivers were "not that slippery — and when you fold them they will stay in your pocket".

The polymer fivers are also 15 per cent smaller than the paper notes. The BoE said it was

CONTINUITY AMID CHANGE: Churchill gets pride of place on the new £5 note working with the cash industry to "facilitate machine readiness" for those using the notes in vending machines, but it warned this was a significant task and not all machines would be ready from day one.

Canada, where Mr Carney formerly ran the central bank, began circulating plastic notes in 2011 in what it said was a bid to combat counterfeiting. Israel began printing polymer notes in 2008.

In Britain, paper fivers will stop being legal tender from May 5 2017. "The last print run was well over a year ago," said Ms Cleland.

Cameron steps down as MP

Former Prime Minister David Cameron has stood down as an MP, triggering a by-election in his Oxfordshire seat of Witney.

Mr Cameron, 49, who resigned as prime minister after June's EU referendum, said he did not want to be a "distraction" for new PM Theresa May.

He said Mrs May had "got off to a cracking start", while she praised his "great strides" on social reform.

Mr Cameron, 49, has represented Witney since 2001, becoming Conservative leader in 2005 and PM in 2010.

Speaking in his constituency, he said it had been a "great honour" to be an MP for the area, but said it would be difficult for him to remain on the backbenches without becoming "a big distraction and a big diversion" from the work of the new government.

He denied his a n n o u n c e m e n t was related to the government's moves towards allowing new grammar schools, a policy he rejected as PM.

He said the timing was coincidental, adding that there were "many good things" in the proposed education reforms.

"Obviously I'm going to have my own views about different issues," he said.

"People would know that and that's really the point. As a former prime minister it is very difficult, I think, to sit as a backbencher and not be an enormous diversion and distraction from what the government is doing."

Mr Cameron said Mrs May - his former home secretary - had been "very understanding" when he told her of his decision.

Asked about hislegacy, and whether he would be remembered as the prime minister that took the UK out of the European Union, he said he hoped his tenure would be recalled for a strong economy and "important social reforms" and that he had transformed Conservative Party that was "in the doldrums" into a "modernising winning force".

Murdoch ex-wife Wendi Deng

Former Labour PM Tony Blair

Murdoch 'devastated' by Blair-Deng friendship

MEDIA baron Rupert Murdochwas"devastated" by the close friendship between his wife Wendi Deng and former prime minister Tony Blair.

Journalist Chris Mitchell said the tycoon was left "lonely and struggling" after he split from the former actress nearly 40 years his junior.

Mr Mitchell, former editor of The Australian newspaper, owned by Mr Murdoch, said his boss heard about the friendship from his domestic staff.

He said Mr Murdoch, now aged 85 and married to Texan model Jerry Hall, 60, treated him as a confidante at the time of their divorce.

Mr Mitchell says in his memoir Making Headlines:

"He was frank about his sleep problems and the hurt he was feeling about what had happened between Wendi and Tony Blair."

"It was clear that my boss had been devastated by the closeness he found between his wife and his former friend."

Billionaire Mr Murdoch filed for divorce from Miss Deng – his third wife and mother of his two youngest children – in 2013 citing irreconcilable differences.

Her friendship with Mr Blair emerged a year later when it was claimed the former prime minister visited her at Mr Murdoch's Californian ranch without him knowing.

Now it's The Great Bake Off rebellion as stars quit

■ Mel and Sue exit after show's shock move to Channel 4

Perkins dramatically quit in protest at the show's move to the rival broadcaster, saying they were not following the money after the BBC was gazumped during negotiations and lost hold of the hugely successful programme.

The amateur cooking contest's future is now shrouded in doubt as judges Mary Berry and Paul Hollywood have yet to sign new deals.

In a joint statement Mel and Sue said: "We were very shocked and saddened to learn that Bake Off will be moving from its home. We made no secret of our desire for the show to remain where it was "The BBC nurtured the show from its infancy and helped give it its distinctive warmth and charm, growing it from an audience of two million to nearly 15 million at its peak.

"We've had the most amazing time on Bake Off and have loved seeing it rise and rise like a pair of yeasted Latvian baps. We're not going with the dough. We wish all the future bakers every success."

Channel 4 has signed a three- year deal with the show's makers Love Productions.

Mary, 81, insisted she had played no part in the decision.

She said: "I have no idea – anything that happens is nothing to do with my choice."

It emerged the BBC was at least £10million shy of the money required to keep hold of Bake Off.

The corporation i understood to have offered £15million a year but Love Productions would only listen to offers of £25million or above.

Channel 4 is said to have tabled a three-year £75million offer.

The channel switch sparked a chorus of criticism led by broadcaster Danny Baker who said: "So Bake Off has gone to tawdry, giggling, studenty Channel 4."

Apprentice star Lord Sugar said: "I feel sorry for the BBC, they invested years in making Bake Off popular and the greedy disloyal format owner has sold it to Channel 4."

And former Channel 4 chief Lord Grade told BBC Radio 4: "Channel 4 has shot itself very seriously in the foot...the BBC were quite right not to over-pay for this product."

Twitter was also awash with disappointed viewers, with one saying: "Bake Off moving to Channel 4 is like dunking a biscuit in a cup of tea and having it sink to the bottom."

Another added: "Which prat thought it was a good idea to sell The Great British Bake Off to the awful Channel 4?"

Channel 4 will begin showing the programme next year kicking off with a celebrity charity edition.

A Love Productions spokesman said: "We would like to thank Mel and Sue for bringing their unique humour to the tent over the past years."

It said it was "saddened" by the outcome because it wanted the show to stay with the BBC but the money was not enough.

The corporation said Bake Off was "a quintessentially BBC programme" but its resources were "not in Grito"

Warsaw sends police officers to Harlow after killing of Polish man

■ Deployment of two officers follows death of Arkadiusz Jóźwik and spike in hate crime directed at Poles

Two Polish police officers have been sent to patrol the streets of Harlow in Essex following the killing of a Polish man in the town and a spike in hate crime directed at Poles in the wake of the vote to leave the European Union.

Harlow's sizeable Polish community is said to be "scared and worried" after the killing last month of Arkadiusz Jóźwik, 40, by a gang of teenagers in what is being treated by Essex police as a possible hate crime.

Jóźwik and a second Polish man, who survived, were allegedly the victims of an unprovoked attack. Three other Poles have also been attacked in separate recent incidents in the town.

The officers, second lieutenant Bartosz Czernicki and chief sergeant Dariusz Tybura, started work on Wednesday and will initially be on patrol for a week.

They will have no formal police powers, but the move is designed to ease community tensions and reassure Poles, according to a spokesman for the Polish embassy in London.

'appropriate measures'

"They are there to assist with community relations for Essex. They will be helping to foster dialogue with the Poles and to help them feel more safe and secure in the area," he said.

Two Polish officers are also currently on secondment to the Metropolitan police in London.

After a visit to Harlow last week at which the deployment of the officers was discussed, Col Rafal Batkowski, director of international cooperation with state police, Polish "We wanted to get an assurance that appropriate measures are being taken to ensure that the Polish community in Essex feels safe and secure."

Eric Hind, a Harlowbased Pole who organised a protest march in the town after Jóźwik's killing, was sceptical about the move.

"I welcome everyone who wants to help with this complex problem, but I haven't noticed the difference. I really hope I can see them back on the street at 11pm tonight actually doing something for the community, dealing with things and not just posing for selfies." Hind pointed out that Poles were still being attacked in the UK.

"Many feel let down by the British government. We made the UK our home, but we don't feel welcome here anymore. People are scared and worried."

Four teenage boys have been arrested following an allegedly racist attack on a Polish man in Leeds. They will be questioned over an attack on a 28-year-old man who was kicked and punched by a gang in Armley on Friday night.

The Polish embassy said it was aware of more than 29 attacks on Poles in the UK since the referendum. They include an arson attack on the home of Polish family in Plymouth in July and the assaults of Polish men in Yeovil and St. Lygo.

The Polish embassy is encouraging Poles to report all suspected hate crimes to the police.

Poland's ambassador UK, Arkady Rzegocki, welcomed Juncker's remarks. He said: "We appreciate that European commission shares our concern for the safety of the Polish nationals in the United Kingdom. We hope that more could be done to inform and educate about the positive contribution of EU migrants to the British culture, society, and economy."

Grandmother and mother jailed over pitbull that killed baby

■ Susan Aucott and Claire Riley sentenced to two years each after fatal mauling of six-month-old Molly Mae by family dog

The mother and grandmother of a six-month-old girl who was mauled to death by an American pitbull have been jailed.

The dog picked up Molly Mae Wotherspoon by her head in a "sustained attack" at her home in Daventry, Northants on 3 October 2014. The child suffered injuries including a fractured skull and bites to all four limbs and died of blood loss.

Northampton crown court heard that Molly

Mae was being looked after by her grandmother Susan Aucott, 56, while her mother, Claire Riley, 23, went for a night out with friends.

The dog, called Bruiser, escaped from its cage in the kitchen and opened the door to the living room, where Molly Mae was on the changing mat.

The prosecutor, James House, said: "He was an aggressive and dangerous dog and should not have been left in the house with a person who could not control him.

"The attack was sustained. Susan Aucott simply was unable to bring Bruiser under control or remove Molly Mae from the situation."

One vet who had previously seen Bruiser described him as "one of the most aggressive dogs she had ever seen", House

Aucott was sentenced to two years in prison. Riley, also of Northampton, was sentenced to two years in prison after admitting to owning a dangerously out of control dog.

Speaking after the sentencing, James Allen, head of the complex casework unit for the Crown Prosecution Service East Midlands, said: "Molly Mae's death was a tragedy for all concerned.

"Sadly, the simple truth is that her death in October 2014 was entirely avoidable. Molly Mae's death would not have happened if two of the people closest to her had acted, as any reasonable person would have done, and never allowed such an aggressive and dangerous dog to be in the same small house as a young and vulnerable child."

Sleepy village gets knickers in a twist over gran's frilly undies

■ Grandmother, 65, who hung her frilly undies on the line had them posted through her letterbox with a note saying they may offend children

Residents of a sleepy West Country village have become embroiled in a bizarre row - over a pair of frilly knickers.

The inoffensive underwear was hung out to dry on a washing line by grandmother Rozamund Perrin, 65, who lives opposite a primary school in Stokeinteignhead, Devon.

But the pair were promptly whipped off the line by the unnamed resident who then posted them back through her letterbox with an angry, handwritten note.

The knicker nicker, wrote: 'It is total inapropiate (sic) for this type of garment to be displayed opposite the village primary school.

'There are members of this community that would welcome a halting of this.'

An image of the offending knickers - and the accompanying letter - were posted by Ms Perrin's daughter Charlotte Wilkinson on Facebook.

knicker-gate

It has prompted a flurry of responses, poems and even other women to post their smalls to OAP Roz as a message of support.

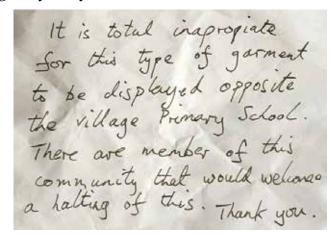

In the post a shocked Ms Wilkinson labelled the as-yet unnamed villager a 'prude.'

And Ms Wilkinson said the row - which has been dubbed knicker-gate - has left her family fuming.

She said: 'Feeling shocked. Seriously the small-minded prudishness of this village is unbelievable.

'My mum found this note and her knickers posted through the door this morning.

'I didn't know there was a law against hanging your knickers on the line?? The prude can't spell either.'

Among those to comment on the post was James Hannaford who wrote: 'Omg this is so funny.

'So they saw them from a distance, climbed into private property, took them without consent and wrote that. Loving that the village has a pant patrol.'

Ms Perrin, who is divorced and lives alone, hung up the knickers on a washing line in a small yard which is closed off by a farm gate.

Her daughter revealed that it is not the first time her mum's knickers had been the subject of controversy - and had even been an agenda item at a meeting of the parish council around ten years ago.

She said: 'This like red rag to the bull. She's had all of her under-crackers stolen before and worse still her underwear was a subject at a Parish Council meeting.

'It was about ten years ago. Sometimes I did wish she'd be less excessive with her pegs to thong ratio but not after this.'

But councillors have claimed they have no memory of the debate.

Chairman of the parish council Bill Dagworthy said he had been on the council for 16 years and couldn't remember ever discussing Roz's knickers.

He added: 'It has not been a parish council issue to my knowledge.

'I have not attended every single parish council meeting for the last 16 years, but I have been to most and I can not remember anyone raising Roz's knickers.

'If they did I think I would chuckle and then dismiss it.

'odd little fracas'

'I would not say the village is prudish. It is no different to the majority of villages in England. It is just a mix of people and a wide spectrum of everybody.

'There is the odd little fracas but everyone just gets along all right.

'I can honestly say noone has come knocking on my door to talk about Roz's knickers.

'No-one has yet mentioned it to me but we have a parish council meeting tonight and if it is all over Facebook now maybe it will be the talk of the pub tonight.'

Vice chair of the parish council Claire French added: 'Roz's knickers certainly amused all the locals when she first moved to the property as they are very visible form the local pub.

'I think it is more banter than anything else."

Charlotte Wilkinson, who is the daughter of Rozamund Perrin, is pictured hanging up washing at her mother's home in Devon

UK: serious scorchio (when it's not raining

BRITAIN'S FREAKY 2016 weather showed no sign of calming down this week, with some parts of the country enjoying record heat while others were deluged with rain of almost biblical proportions.

There was plenty of late summer sun in the south on Tuesday, as Britain baked in the hottest September day for 105 years after temperatures hit 94F in Gravesend, Kent.

But things were damper in up north, with Manchester suffering a torrential afternoon downpour on Tuesday, leading to the postponing of a Champions League match at the Etihad Stadium.

And about 20,000 homes in the North were without power on Tuesday night as flood alerts were issued across parts of Britain.

And a tornado-like "funnel cloud" was spotted on Wednesday afternoon as storms ravaged Yorkshire.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Keep it all low key this week and don't make any waves over anything as the situation will be here for at least a week ahead ahead. Then it's time to enjoy and relax and enjoy what your ruler Mars brings you in powerful Sagittarius.

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler Venus just might be helping you as the month progresses, especially in romance and relationships. You need to slow down and relax.

GEMINI: Time to deal with what has not been completed so far this month in any area.

Mercury your boss is still in an adverse position and is hanging out in the area of family / friends and close relationships.

CANCER: Time to make peace or amends with anyone or anything that has caused you upset. Chances are you did not see the picture clearly! Getting anything achieved otherwise this month will not be as fast as you would wish.

LEO: Good news for that one outstanding issue that has been bugging you; if you take control it will be sorted completely before another week goes by. Any trip taken before mid-month will delay things further and Mars the fire king in Sagittarius can rouse your famous temper.

VIRGO: If any area of life is currently not going as smoothly as you expect, let go of worry about the outcome, all will be well in the end. Please find something to change that needs your help; there is always something. Happy Birthday!

LIBRA: The main lesson of this month is that it's time to make decisions - not something Libra is good at. However you have the magnanimous Jupiter visiting for a whole year ahead and he will assist you in many ways.

SCORPIO: After the events of the past few weeks (the big build up and fast let downs) you would think enough is enough for even the strong-willed Scorpio. Well, let's hope you have learned your lesson. That is if you don't take care of yourself, not many others will.

SAGITTARIUS: Take the bull by the horns. This week should be the right time. If you have any financial situation pending gear up and get moving. While you are waiting keep a low profile as you have Mars watching your every move.

CAPRICORN: If you are hanging on waiting for some kind of decision from another...don't! Take action on your own behalf and make the result you are looking for. You are the motivating force now in a good way. You can buy anything you want after next weekend.

AQUARIUS: What will happen in life if you sit around and wait for something to happen? Nothing. Go out and make waves as this part of the year is ripe for you to make the changes. This is the time and you are the force to make it move forward.

PISCES: It's all work and no play for you this week so do what has to be done and do not allow others to tell you how or what to do. It's time to make life a bit more interesting and it's right around the corner if you want to look.

Breaking Cover: insider knowledge adds heft to spy yarn

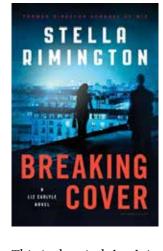

Exclusive interview with author Stella Rimington about her ninth novel featuring super-spy Liz Carlyle

Rating: ★★★

"I had always been an avid reader of thrillers, spy stories, mysteries and books of that kind," says Breaking Cover author Stella Rimington.

"What struck me was that the whole genre seemed to be male dominated. James Bond, George Smiley, Lord Peter Wimsey, John gentlemen Buchan's spies. I thought it was time to rescue the genre from the men, to have a heroine. That's how Liz Carlyle was born."

Rimington knows how government intelligence works, operates and how investigations are undertaken. She's a former M15 agent, and was the first female Deputy General of MI5. Her plot idea is strong.

This is the ninth book in the series.

The novel begins with civil rights activist Jasminder Kapoor being saved from a mugger by Laurenz Hansen. She gives him her number. They start dating. He's not what he seems. When Kapoor gets a communications job at MI6 her troubles start. Meanwhile MI5, Liz Carlyle and her fellow agents are trying to protect Russian dissident Sergei Patricov, who lives in England. Liz Carlyle faces threats ranging from terrorism espionage subversion. Unable to talk about what she does, she finds it difficult to form new relationships outside her world of secrets.

Rimington joined MI5 in the early 1970s by chance. "In those days British Intelligence had no formal process," recruitment Rimington. savs "Recruitment was by a tap on the shoulder, which is what happened to me when I was in New Delhi, India. I was there as the wife of a British diplomat and was targeted for a job as a part-time clerk and typist to the small MI5 office there. When we returned to London I was accepted as a full time employee and found I had joined a maledominated organization. Women, even those with degrees and previous careers, as I had, were limited to the role of assistant to the men."

Women at MI5 took a stronger role in the early 1970s, recruiting and running human sources, and handling investigations and operations. "Liz Carlyle is a modern female MI5 officer, who takes for granted the advantages we won for her in the 1970s," says Rimington.

"But, she still resents being patronized by men and bites back if and when it occurs...as it still does from time to time. Liz is a sparky, sharp, intelligent woman who likes to get to the bottom of problems and is not easily deterred. But, like everyone who works in a secret organization, has rather unsatisfactory private

"In Breaking Cover, I have moved away from terrorism, which I have dealt with before in several books," says Rimington. Breaking Cover combines two issues which are of current concern to MI5 and Western Intelligence services in general. One, conflict between the civil liberties with individual privacy, and the work of security agencies to monitor the communications of those who are a danger or threaten us in an increasingly complicated digital world. Two, the increasingly aggressive stance of Putin's Russia towards the West.

Breaking Cover is the ninth in a series of books featuring Liz Carlyle. The first book in the series was published in 2004. But Rimington's first book was her autobiography Open Secret, published in 2001. "When I first left MI5 I was contacted by several publishers wanting to publish my memoirs," savs Rimington. declined on the grounds that there was nothing I could write that wasn't too secret to publish. After a few years I realized there was considerable interest. particularly amongst women in the work-life balance. I was a classic example of managing the seemingly impossible, a single parent with two daughters and a career in the secret world which was very far from a nine-to-five job. So in writing my autobiography that's what I focused on, though its publication still caused something of a storm."

Rimington lives in a historic village in Norfolk with her Labrador Molly.

Brits in LA

Are you prepared?

September is National Preparedness Month so I thought I'd spent this week's column writing a little something about the need to be ready for the worst.

The downside to living in our lovely Golden State is that we are more likely to get hit with a natural disaster – whether it's a big earthquake, winter floods or the fires and drought have been ever present for many a month now. The looming 'Big One' means that taking a bit of time out to prepare now may prove a lifesaver down the road.

The Red Cross have a useful list of things you should have on hand for the 'just in case' - Water being at the top of the list. As our supply could be affected long after the aftershocks have stopped.

details For tinyurl.com/ RedCrossPrepared for a comprehensive list plus an option to order an emergency pack. I have water purifying tablets and a water filter on hand too but maybe I am over thinking!

One very important thing to do is to designate an out of state contact for you your and family/ flatmates to check in with. As if the power fails it will be far easier to report to someone not directly affected. Also consider having a chat to make a plan with your neighbors - especially if they are elderly or have small children. The first time I thought about getting supplies together I felt a little bit silly as it all seemed rather extreme; but I realized I would feel more stupid if the day arrived and I was not ready - or even worse, reliant on others all because I couldn't get my act together. As the mantra goes: Don't Delay - Get A Kit - Make A Plan - Stay Informed.

Representin'

I went along to the LA Galaxy Night of Nations last weekend - we teamed up with the British Consulate to represent Great Britain! It was a really fun night and it made me think we should organize another Brits go to the Galaxy trip soon - especially now that Ashley Cole and Steven Gerrard are both team members.

We have two more great competitions for you this week - up for grabs are two pairs of tickets for Bloc Party at the Hollywood Bowl on September 25th - plus entrance to a roller disco before the show!

Then we also have tickets and VIP after party passes for one of my all-time favorite singers, Scottish songstress Angela McCluskey. She is at Troubadour on the September 30th, where she will be reuniting with the Wild Colonials - email us at BritsinLA@ gmail.com put to your name in the hat. Winners will be drawn at random at noon on Monday September 19th.

You have until next Tuesday to get prepared for our Pub Quiz at the Pikey - Craig Young will be hosting this one, so make sure to follow him on Twitter @CraigRYoung as I am sure he will be throwing out a few hints on the rounds he has in store for you. Not all questions are British and get there at 7.45pm if you need a team to join.

Make sure to follow us on Twitter @BritsinLA if you want to keep up to date with all our news and events.

Cheers!

Calvin Quits?!?!

Hit DJ reveals he won't be making any more albums!

If there was a degree in creating blockbuster singles, then "master of mix," Calvin Harris would graduate summa cum laude!

The Scottish Record producer's epic consistency in the charts has led him to rethink the way he releases his music - and his idea is one that could spark a cultural shift in the industry.

I hear Calvin will now opt for putting out songs when they are ready - starting with the new single My Way, out this Friday - rather than waiting to release an album.

The change in tack is a knock-on effect of the increasing importance of streaming on music sites including Spotify, Apple Music and Tidal.

music "Calvin said: has always been a forwardthinker and believes just releasing singles is the way forward.

"Albums don't sell how they used to and artists are now seeing streaming as the future.

"Albums are timeconsuming and limit artists to cycles rather than having a persistent presence in the charts.

"Calvin is one of the most-streamed artists in the world so it would make sense to exploit that success."

In 2014 hit DJ Calvin became the first British musician to reach one billion Spotify streams, and recent hits including summer smash This Is What You Came For have only increased his dominance on the site.

Streaming edged past downloads as the most valuable music format last year, and the royalties Calvin receives from sites such as Spotify will only get bigger with their popularity.

I also hear Calvin's pal John close Newman will follow a similar path by releasing a glut of singles instead of an album.

He intends to start with six, and if they're successful, an album will follow.

Calvin was spotted in LA on Sunday night accompanied by a number of women - en route to watching Drake.

The superstar and former boyf' of singer Taylor U.S Swift tweeted what appears to be artwork, with the along message "16th," which could be a clue to this Friday, Sept. 16. for his release of 'My Way'...

Zayn Malik's 'explosive' autobiography due in November!

IN A MOVE THAT Direction – including is sure to upset pop Svengali Simon Cowell, former One Direction singer Zayn Malik will publish his 'explosive' autobiography November.

Oo-er!

The British star has detailed his actionpacked journey from X Factor contestant to chart topper as part of One his sensational exit from the hunky boyband - in his first literary offering entitled 'Zayn'.

How original!

Talking of his reported life story, a source said: "This book is going to be explosive and Simon (who first signed the band for his SyCo label) will be furious with Zayn and may even try to stop it coming out. But Zayn is determined to reveal the secrets behind the clean image that was always so fiercely protected by the band's publicity machine."

Previously, the insider told MailOnline the text would delve into "every intimate detail" about his five years in the hit group with fellow bandmembers Liam Payne, Louis Tomlinson, Niall Horan and Harry Styles.

The lads were swiftly signed up by X Factor head honcho Simon after failing to win the talent show in 2010 - yet his revelations are said to be potentially worrying for the music tycoon.

Zayn made waves for the One Direction ship after he left on bad terms, slamming their style.

He told Fader magazine: "As much as I was in that band, and I loved everything that we did, that's not music that I would listen to."

I think this tale is about to get a lot cattier!

THE curse of Wembley European games there 16 Bernado Tottenham Wednesday night as they stumbled to a 2-1 loss to Monaco to open their Champions League campaign.

Just as Arsenal had found the national stadium a "nightmare" they played years ago, Spurs found the wide open spaces of the national stadium way too hard to handle.

The stadium was colours but Monaco were far from overawed. In fact they were two up in half an hour through Lane on a European

Before the match, a relaxed Pochettino had dismissed worries about Wembley lacking the fervour of White Hart Lane on a European

A record crowd of 85,011 - the biggest to watch Spurs in a 'home' game and the most to watch an English club in the Champions League went home bitterly disappointed.

Pochettino has to rouse his team for a tricky trip to Moscow in two weeks' time to meet CSKA, or face the prospect of only their second ever Champions League campaign fizzling out way too early.

Another loss for lackluster United Manchester United produced a lacklustre display as their Europa League campaign began with a 1-0 defeat at Feyenoord on Thursday.

Jose Mourinho made eight changes from the team beaten by Manchester City and an Anthony Martial shot going wide was their only first-half chance.

Zlatan Ibrahimovic came on for the visitors and headed wide as he failed to turn around his side's fortunes.

Instead, Nicolai Jorgensen, who was offside. crossed for Tonny Vilhena to drive in Feyenoord's late

The defeat means United have lost four successive European away games in a row for the first time.

There was better news for Southampton as Charlie Austin scored twice as the Sains secured their first win under manager Claude Puel by beating Sparta Prague in the Europa

Austin opened the scoring with a controversial penalty after Costa Nhamoinesu was harshly adjudged to have handled while challenging the striker.

Dusan Tadic had to be ushered away after arguing about who should take the penalty but celebrated with Austin.

Austin's header made it 2-0 before Jay Rodriguez added a late third.

Celtic won a penalty against the run of play when Dembele was brought down by Marc-Andre ter Stegen, but the striker had his effort saved by the Barcelona goalkeeper.

After that, floodgates opened.

Messi's second came after he and Neymar combined to bamboozle the Celtic defence, Messi walking it in for number two. Barca's speed of thought and movement was delicious.

Neymar's 50th-minute free-kick made it three, Celtic goalkeeper Dorus de Vries getting a touch but not a big enough touch. De Vries should have done better.

The torture just got worse. Iniesta came on at the break and scored the fourth, thumping Neymar's cross on the volley past De Vries.

Celtic's brains were spinning. Within 76 seconds the fifth had arrived, Suarez putting it into the box for Messi to slide in for his hattrick goal.

Suarez added the sixth, taking down Neymar's dinked pass on his chest before turning and rifling it home.

This was Celtic's heaviest ever defeat in Europe even before Messi assisted once again for the seventh, which Suarez. scored.

Celtic are just another in a long line of Barca victims. The Catalans have done this kind of thing to so many teams in the recent past and that is the only consolation for the visitors.

Celtic manager Brendan Rodgers said on Monday that great players always find space no matter what their opponents try to do to stop them.

Barca had the freedom of the Nou Camp - and they revelled in it to make Celtic suffer.

Celtic: Foxes find another fairytale

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE Club Brugge.....0 Leicester City.....3

Leicester City celebrated the first Champions League match in their history by cruising to victory against Club Brugge in Belgium on Wednesday.

Marc Albrighton scored with the Foxes' first shot after a defensive error from right-back Luis Hernandez's long throw.

Rivad Mahrez curled in a masterful free-kick for 2-0 before half-time.

Mahrez smashed in a penalty after Jamie Vardy was brought down by the keeper, before Brugge's Jose Izquierdo hit the post, adding to his bad miss at

There will be more difficult games than this, but the Premier League champions displayed a maturity and composure that suggests potential to achieve more success at the elite level of European club football.

This was only Leicester's ninth European match, and their first win since a victory over Glenavon of Northern Ireland in the preliminary round of the 1961-62 Cup Winners' Cup, when Gordon Banks

- who won the World Cup with England in 1966 was in goal.

Leicester could have won by more on Wednesday.

Danny Drinkwater went close with a dipping volley struck on the turn with the ball almost at ground level from outside the box, while Robert Huth might have added a fourth from another of Hernandez's several long throws.

Debutant and record signing Islam Slimani should have made more of a terrible Benoit Poulain pass, and was booked for shoving Bjorn Engels in the back, with the Belgium defender forced off with what looked like a dislocated shoulder.

In the other match in Group G, Portuguese club FC Porto drew 1-1 at home to FC Copenhagen of Denmark.

It's impossible to win the Champions League," Leicester manager Claudio Ranieri said on Tuesday. "There are so many big teams. To win it we have to write another fairytale."

Eight years ago this September, Leicester

HE'S BACK: Riyad Mahrez scored a sublime free kick Wednesday night supporters might have been looking forward to a decent run in the Johnstone's Paint Trophy after beating Hartlepool in the first round (they eventually lost to Rotherham in the Northern Section quarterfinals).

Now they are in with a good chance of making the Champions League knockout stages, but even if the Foxes do not make it out of the group, the fact they have made it to Europe's elite competition - and as champions of England - remains remarkable.

The hundreds of fans revelling under the historic gabled roofs of Brugge's sun-drenched squares may not have been able to explain how this moment had arrived, but there was plenty of infectious optimism. That same feeling was nurtured by Ranieri as he willed them to "keep dreaming" after last season's shock Premier League title win.

Sanchez the key as Arsenal get out of jail

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE PSG.....1 ARSENAL.....1

Alexis Sanchez salvaged a point for Arsenal from their limp Champions League opener at Paris St-Germain on Tuesday.

Edinson Cavani glanced PSG ahead after 42 seconds and should have had a hat-trick before half-time. firing wide after rounding David Ospina before slipping to fluff a simple finish.

Sanchez rifled in the rebound from Arsenal's first shot on target.

Alex Iwobi might have had a late Arsenal winner before Olivier Giroud and PSG's Marco Verratti were sent off.

Substitute Giroud was brought on to enliven a tame attacking display and picked up two yellow cards in his 27 minutes, the second for an altercation in which Italian midfielder Verratti also picked up a second yellow.

The Gunners were often exposed by the pace of Cavani, Angel di Maria and Serge Aurier and relied on their Colombian goalkeeper Ospina preferred to Petr Cech - to keep them in it.

Iwobi's low shot was tipped away by Alphonse Areola after Sanchez's equaliser, while PSG would have had a 94thminute winner had defender Marquinhos not wastefully headed wide from close range.

Anything more than a point for Arsenal would have been harsh on PSG, who outperformed their Premier League opponents but failed to take their chances.

In the other match in Group A, Swiss side Basel were held to a 1-1 draw at home to Ludogorets Razgrad of Bulgaria.

Ospina was the hero for the visitors for but he had little chance of stopping Cavani's deft, glancing header.

After the break, as

Arsenal struggled improve, he continued to be unnecessarily exposed by sloppy play in front of him and was forced into making a series of blocks perhaps the most crucial being to deny Cavani three minutes after the equaliser.

But it was not a totally convincing performance. When Cavani took advantage of an error by Nacho Monreal, Ospina was rash in coming off his line and lucky to see the Uruguayan shank his effort wide.

Beyond the selection choice in goal - Wenger said it was not his intention "to surprise" - Theo Walcott was left out of the squad with a minor injury described by the Arsenal boss as "very short term".

Wenger said of the game: "We wanted to start at a high pace and after a minute we are 1-0 down. For 20 minutes we were outpaced, they started much better than us but we were resilient.

"We played much better in the second half, they dropped a bit as well. We pushed very high and were vulnerable to the counter attack but it's a good point for us."

Aguero unstoppable as City demolish Monchengladbach in Champions League opener

AGUERO SERGIO continued his irresistible start to the season with a hat trick Wednesday night as Manchester City opened Champions their League account in fine style.

After the fixture with Borussia Monchengladbach was postponed due to a downpour of biblical proportions Tuesday night, the game itself 24 hours later proved the calm after the storm as the home side romped to a 4-0 victory.

The control City exerted was brought about by Sergio Aguero's second three-goal haul of the season, the first two goals coming inside in the first 28 minutes, but owed everything to the principles Guardiola is instilling into his charges.

with In concert Raheem Stirling and de Kevin Bruyne, Aguero mesmerized the visiting defence, and there was also a striking debut from Ilkay Gundogan that backed up the suspicion City have bought well. It would have been just like Guardiola to change a team that never played simply to spring a surprise. In the event, his hand was forced.

Any disappointment at David Silva dropping out of the match-day squad as a precautionary measure with a minor knock sustained training on Wednesday was eased by the chance to finally clap eyes on Gundogan.

A chance for the £21million summer recruit from Borussia Dortmund to instantly ingratiate himself and round off a flowing move was to be spurned by a sprawling stop from Yann Sommer.

Gundogan's soon became obvious and that 12th- minute miss did not hamper a fluent City side already in the ascendancy.

Monchengladbach defender Andreas Christensen, on loan from Chelsea for a second season, caught on his heels for a split second, but that was enough.

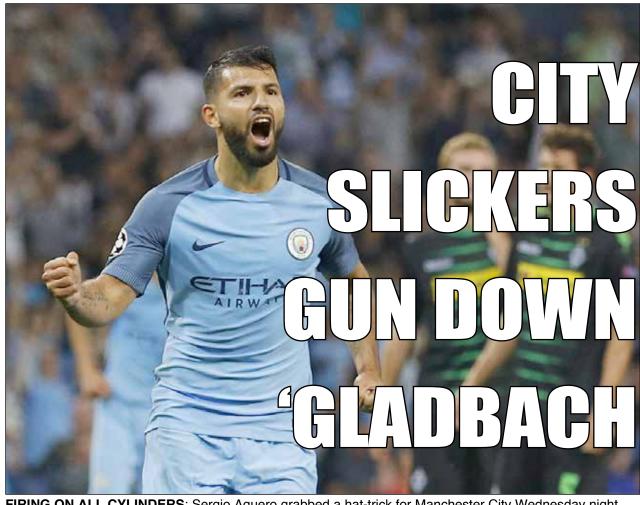

Aguero darted in front and dispatched the chance with the aplomb of someone who has started the season in a rich vein of form.

A seventh goal in five games became eight after 28 minutes when he converted a penalty won when Christoph Kramer was undone by Gundogan's speed after he had pounced on a ricochet and moved into the area.

The speed with which City now play, the instinct of everyone is to pass forward, coupled an unrelenting ethic work makes their football appear a different brand to that which Manuel Pellegrini peddled.

near post just before the interval from a Tobias Strobl shot, the sight of City caught napping at a corner leaving Guardiola gesticulating furiously, but it was a fleeting moment of real threat.

The only surprise was that City were forced to wait until the 77th minute for Aguero to claim his treble when he rounded the keeper after a smart pass from Substitutes Leroy Sane and Kelechi Iheanacho then combined in injury time with Iheanacho netting the fourth.

Wednesday night saw Lionel Messi score his sixth Champions League hat-trick as rampant Barcelona inflicted a 7-0 battering on Celtic - their heaviest ever European defeat.

The Argentina forward cracked in an early first goal in the Group C match.

Moussa Celtic's Dembele had a penalty saved before Messi poked in his second.

In the second half,

Neymar's free-kick sailed into the net, Andres Iniesta volleyed a fourth, Messi slid home the fifth and Luis Suarez scored with a volley and then a side-footed finish.

In their two full seasons together at the Nou Camp, Messi, Neymar and Suarez have scored a combined 253 goals and assisted 120 more.

Those numbers are rising quickly in the early weeks of this season - 266 goals and 128 assists - and in this latest masterclass, Messi got a hat-trick and Neymar a goal and four
