God's speed, Hilda Ogden

- Jean Alexander, Coronation Street's Hilda Ogden, dies aged 90
- Much-loved actor starred in the TV soap and Last of the Summer Wine

Former Coronation Street actress Jean Alexander, who starred as Hilda Ogden in the soap for over two decades, has died aged 90. Alexander, who was best known for playing Ogden in the soap but also starred in Last of the Summer Wine, passed away in hospital on Friday.

Her family had been hoping to celebrate her birthday this week, Alexander's niece Sonia Hearld told reporters: "She was a great person and she will be missed..... At the moment, it is a shock to the family and we are really just getting round to coming to terms with it. We were hoping to be celebrating her birthday this week, but that hadn't happened."

"She was in Coronation Street and Last of the Summer Wine. She had a very well-known face – she was once dubbed the all-time favourite soap star, I believe. She was part of people's lives. She was very well liked in her time."

Alexander has previously been quoted as saying that she was confused by her own popularity. "I think probably because she was a downtrodden, poor little soul. I think people were sorry for Hilda," she said in 2005. "She went plodding away, doing her best all the time, always aspiring to better things. I liked playing her. She was a gift to play, but I wouldn't want her living next door to me."

"sadly missed"

On Friday, Hearld said her aunt was a "very private lady" who was "dedicated to her work and determined to be professional". She added that Alexander was "very generous" with fans who approached her. "She was always very good to her fans – she said, 'They put me where I am.' People used to stop her just to say hello and how much they missed her. She was a great person and she will be sadly missed."

Hearld said Alexander was taken into hospital on Tuesday and was discharged after a couple of days and allowed to return to her nursing home. But on Tuesday, Alexander was readmitted to hospital, where she died peacefully on Friday. "I saw her last week when we went to see her in hospital. She was feeling a little bit poorly but she was talking to me and my husband quite happily," Hearld said.

"There was nothing telling us anything was wrong – she was just generally weak and under the weather. We have not had the details."

Alexander brought a lot of her own personality to her role and "was very observant about people", Hearld said. "She was very glamorous – I remember when I was

Battered MEP Woolfe quits 'death spiral' UKIP

A UKIP MEP who spent three nights in hospital after a row with a party colleague is quitting the party, saying it is in a "death spiral".

Steven Woolfe, who had been running to be the next leader, told the BBC there was "something rotten" in the party.

He also accused fellow MEP Mike Hookem of inflicting a "blow" to his face in the row at a party meeting.

Mr Hookem has acknowledged a "scuffle" but said he "categorically did not" throw a punch at his colleague.

Mr Woolfe was rushed to hospital after collapsing following the incident, which UKIP described as an "altercation", and came during a meeting to discuss reports the North West England MEP had had discussions about joining the Conservatives.

'Man to man'

In the BBC interview, Mr Woolfe said he had told Mr Hookem "let's go outside and discuss this man-to-man" after they clashed during UKIP's meeting in the European Parliament, saying he had been suggesting they discuss their differences verbally.

Asked what happened next, Mr Woolfe said: "He rushed at me. A blow to my face forced me back through the door."

He added: "I couldn't see whether it was a fist, whether it was an open hand... the point was it was a blow that impacted me."

Mr Woolfe said he was pushed back into the room and hit the back of his head against a wall and denied aggression towards Mr Hookem, saying: "It was too quick."

He said that while he was voting in the European Parliament later, he started getting a severe headache and sought medical help.

He said the doctors were "incredibly concerned" about him and that he was unconscious "for quite some time".

Had it not been for the medics, he said "things would have been a lot more severe for me".

According to Mr Hookem, Mr Woolfe suggested they "take it outside of the room".

Speaking to the BBC after the incident, Mr Hookem said: "When I walked in he approached me to attack me. He came at me, I defended myself. There were no punches thrown, there was no face slapping, there were no digs, there was nothing." Mr Woolfe was seen as a frontrunner to become UKIP leader after the surprise resignation of Diane James.

However, he said he was withdrawing as a candidate and resigning from the party immediately, "with a huge amount of sadness"

Furious MPS demand Sir Philip Green be stripped of knighthood

■ Former BHS boss derided as 'billionaire spiv'
■ Tycoon siphoned off over £500m from iconic stores

MPs have backed a call for former BHS owner Sir Philip Green to be stripped of his knighthood.

The motion is not binding as any final decision would have to be taken by the Honours Forfeiture Committee.

BHS was sold by Sir Philip last year, but then collapsed with the loss of 11,000 jobs and carrying a £571m pension deficit.

MPs backed the non-binding motion unopposed, meaning no full vote was needed.

A lengthy three-hour debate was held, during which Sir Philip was attacked from MPs across the parties.

'Billionaire spiv'

They did not hold back. Among the most notable criticisms was that he was like the autocrat Napoleon and the former boss of the Mirror group of newspapers, Robert Maxwell, as well as being an "asset-stripper".

Labour's David Winnick branded Sir Philip "a billionaire spiv who should never have received a knighthood. A billionaire spiv who has shamed British capitalism".

He added that his 'billionaire's lifestyle' was a "form of provocation" to BHS employees and pensioners.

Conservative MP Richard Fuller said: "Freedoms that are given to people who have enormous power over fellow citizens are based on people doing not only the legal thing, but the right thing."

Sir Philip bought the troubled chain in 2000 for £200m, saying he believed there was plenty of room for growth in one of the iconic brands of British retail. Over the next fifteen years he siphoned off over £550m from the company - enough to almost completely cover the pension deficit. And his extravagant lifestyle - he recently took delivery of a £150m megayacht - amid the company's collapse, have caused Sir Philip to become something of a hate figure to many Britons.

Frank Field, chairman of the Work and Pensions committee, had begun the debate about the collapse of BHS.

He said one of the main findings of his committee's report was that "literally nothing happened in BHS or Arcadia without Sir Philip knowing directly".

'huge sums'

Mr Field said Sir Philip could have solved the problem easily and been of help in building a stronger pensions regime.

"We are dealing with a man who has huge sums in wealth. He could have dealt with the pensions problem and walked away smelling of roses," he said.

"He would have helped us begin to set the debate about how we deal with pension deficits. He had nothing to say and couldn't help us lead the debate."

Green has refused to cooperate with the committee and has repeatedly called for Field's resignation, accusing the MP of being 'biased' against him and conducting a 'trial by media'.

Scotland issues second independence bill

Signalling its alarm with the British government ramping up towards implementing Brexit, the Scottish government has responded by issuing a bill on a second independence referendum....but the move does not mean another referendum will definitely be held.

But First Minister Nicola Sturgeon said Scotland should be ready to hold a vote before the UK leaves the EU if it is felt necessary to protect Scottish interests.

But this will likely put Sturgeon on a collision course with Westminster, as Prime Minister Theresa May has insisted she does not believe there is a mandate for another referendum on independence.

If Scottish Ministers decide a referendum is necessary it would then be for the Scottish Parliament - where the SNP and Scottish Greens form a small pro-independence majority - to consider the bill and decide whether a vote should be held.

The UK government would then be asked to grant a Section 30 order to make the referendum legally binding.

yes/no question

The draft Referendum Bill was formally published by Constitution Secretary Derek Mackay, despite the Scottish Parliament being in recess until next week.

It says that any future referendum would be held on a similar basis to the one in 2014, which saw voters reject independence by 55% to 45%.

The draft bill also says that:

It is currently expected that the same straight yes/no question would be used again - "Should Scotland be an independent country?"

But the Scottish government reserves the right to submit a proposal for different wording to the Electoral Commission for independent testing.

16 and 17 year-olds and

HERE WE GO AGAIN: Constitution Secretary Derek Mackay with the new bill

citizens of EU countries who have made Scotland their home would again be able to vote

The referendum would again not be subject to any minimum turnout requirement, and would be decided by a simple majority of voters

The proposals have now gone out for a public consultation, which will run until 11 January next year.

But pro-union opposition parties have already argued that there is no appetite in Scotland for another "divisive" referendum, and have pledged to fight it "every step of the way".

And a spokesman for the prime minister also dismissed the need for another independence vote, saying: "The prime minister and the government does not believe that there is a mandate for one."

"There was one only two years ago. There was an extremely high turnout and there was a resounding result in favour of Scotland remaining in the UK."

Scotland voted by 62% to 38% to remain in the EU in June's referendum, but the UK as a whole voted to leave - with Ms Sturgeon immediately instructing Scottish government officials to start drawing up plans for a fresh vote on independence.

However, opinion polls have suggested there has not been a major upsurge in support for independence since the Brexit vote, with a narrow majority still in favour of Scotland remaining in the UK.

Some senior SNP figures have cautioned Ms Sturgeon against "rushing into" another independence referendum before she could be certain of winning it.

You Rat: former bandmate sues Geldof; he doesn't like "Mondays" royalties

Bob Geldof is being sued after a former Boomtown Rat bandmate claimed he co-wrote the 1979 hit I Don't Like Mondays.

Pianist Johnnie Fingers, whose real name is John Moylett, says he wrote the music and some of the lyrics to the song but was pressured not to take credit at the time by Geldof, the lead singer of the band.

The song is about a shocking school shooting that took place while the band were in America.

The keyboard player, who now lives in Japan, states in a High Court writ that he came up with the famous piano riff in February 1979 after returning to the UK and that Geldof initially thought it sounded too classical.

Now aged 60, he is seeking two-thirds of the royalties accumulated over 37 years. Geldof, however, reportedly says he first played a version when the band was still in the States to a radio audience.

Fingers has sent letters

HAPPIER DAYS: Geldof and Fingers in 1979 to Geldof since 2004, but the case will now head to the High Court.

Geldof has called for the case to be struck out, claiming they were likely to be "a figment of his [Fingers'] imagination".

The song was written after 16-year-old Brenda Spencer fired shots in a playground killing her headteacher and the school caretaker. Eight children and a police officer were injured.

She said the reason she carried out the shooting was: "I don't like Mondays. This livens up the day."

Fingers claims that at the time Geldof warned him not to claim any royalties, promising he would receive his "fair share".

A date for the hearing is yet to be scheduled at the High Court.

Toddler Ben 'killed by a digger'

Ben Needham – the toddler from Sheffield who disappeared on the Greek island of Kos in 1991 – was accidentally killed by a digger driver working on a site next to the farmhouse his grandparents were renovating, UK police now believe.

A team has spent three weeks excavating the site, and though they found none of Ben's remains, they did unearth a toy car that his mother, Kerry believes he had with him when he went missing. A local witness claims the digger driver, who died last year, ran Ben over by mistake. He is presumed to have panicked and disposed of the body at a landfill site.

Soldiers quizzed over 'mistreatment' of Iraqi detainees

British soldiers are being investigated over allegations of mistreating two Iraqi detainees in 2003.

Faisal al-Saadoon and Khalaf Mufdhi were detained in Basra and accused of involvement in the deaths of two British soldiers, Staff Sgt Simon Cullingworth and Sapper Luke Allsopp.

An Iraqi court later decided there was insufficient evidence to try the men.

Allegations that the men were mistreated by British soldiers are now being investigated by the UK's Iraq Historic Allegations Team (Ihat).

CASUALTIES: Staff Sgt Cullingworth and Pte Allsopp were ambushed by Iraqi militiamen and later shot at a military base base and shot.

Mr al-Saadoon and Mr Mufdhi were formally charged in 2006 with murder and war crimes but the charges were later annulled by an Iraqi court on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

The pair were eventually awarded £36,000 in legal costs.

The criminal claims against British soldiers

FOG OF WAR? the allegations stem from British actions in Iraq from 2003-2009

were brought forward by Public Interest Lawyers (PIL), which closed in August after it was told it would no longer receive legal aid funding.

'industrial scale'

Ihat was set up in 2010 to look at allegations of abuse by the British military against Iraqis between 2003 and 2009.

In October, Prime Minister Theresa May said her government would take action over the "industrial scale" of claims lodged with Ihat using legal aid funding.

It is not known how many troops are being investigated over the treatment of Mr al-Saadoon and Mr Mufdhi.

The two men, now both in their 60s, were accused of murdering Staff Sgt Cullingworth and Pte Allsopp. An inquest found that the British soldiers were ambushed by Iraqi militiamen, taken to an Iraqi intelligence

SAS hero defends his 'mercy killings' in Iraq

MACLACHLAN: "Our motives were entirely humane"

AN SAS hero has insisted he had done nothing wrong after it emerged he is facing murder charges for the "mercy killing" of three Iraqi soldiers.

Sergeant Colin Maclachlan claimed he had put the men "out of their misery" after they suffered appalling injuries in the Gulf War.

The retired special forces veteran faces prosecution for the incident, described in a new book SAS: Who Dares Wins.

He said he shot the Iraqis for "entirely humane" reasons, when they began screaming in agony and begging to be killed.

Killing mortally wounded enemy soldiers on the battlefield to spare their pain is illegal under military law and contradicts the Geneva Conventions.

But Mr Maclachlan, 42, said the case showed the "harsh reality of combat" when personnel find themselves facing moral dilemmas.

He said: "Our motives were entirely humane. I'll happily go to court, I'll happily go to jail, if you think I've done wrong."

'greater good'

"But people should put themselves in my position first."

"Walk around in my boots, then judge me," Maclachlan told the court.

"I didn't enjoy killing those soldiers at the checkpoint but I had to put them out of their misery."

"I didn't want them to suffer any more."

The attack at Al Qaim, near the Syrian border, in March 2003, is included in a chapter entitled Handling The Dirty Work.

After firing rockets at three Iraqi army vehicles, the SAS squad found three Iraqi soldiers still alive – two who had been disembowelled and another who had lost three limbs.

Mr Maclachlan said: "Special forces operatives quickly put them out of their misery, rather than leaving them to die slowly and in agony."

"Our Iraqi allies told us they understood the dilemma – they realised our mercy killings were for the greater good."

"It was awful. The Iraqis could see our struggle as we tried to help enemy soldiers who were screaming, bleeding out and dying slowly."

The Ministry of Defence reported the claims to police after being asked to approve the book for publication.

It is understood that the Royal Military Police Special Investigation Branch is conducting the inquiry.

Mr Maclachlan, a father-of-two from Edinburgh, was captured and tortured during an SAS mission in Iraq in 2005.

He said: "I'm not playing the victim card for a second but after what I went through, there wasn't anyone or any lawyer going after my captors."

"And afterwards I accepted that as being part of war, par for the course."

"But everyone in our military, myself included, is held accountable for anything which the ambulance-chasing lawyers can define as a war crime."

'vexatious allegations'

After leaving the armed forces in 2006, Mr Maclachlan went to university and gained a first class honours degree before becoming a writer and actor.

He then became a household name as one of four former special forces instructors on the Channel 4 hit series Who Dares Wins.

The book, out next month, is based on the show which puts ordinary members of the public through gruelling exercises based on SAS selection procedures.

The mercy killings controversy is the latest to threaten British troops over the part they played in the Gulf War.

Last month, Prime Minister Theresa May ordered sweeping changes to stop the "industry of vexatious allegations" targeting the forces.

Alexander played Hilda Ogden in Coronation Street for 23 years to 1987 and, after leaving, took a role in Last of the Summer Wine as Auntie Wainwright. In 2010, she revealed that she had come under pressure to put back on her curlers and return to Coronation Street as Hilda, but had always turned the idea down.

too much sex

"It would be impossible for me to re-create Hilda," the Liverpool Echo reported her as saying. "She would be totally different from the scrubber who left the Street. My agent said they had tried a number of times to get me back, but the answer was always the same."

"I didn't hear anything about the money involved but no, I'm sorry, after 23 years I couldn't recreate that character as she would be now – and I didn't want to play her as she was."

Four years later, it emerged that she had another problem with the programme: there was too much sex in it. "The only stories they seem to have in mind is who is jumping into whose bed next. I lost interest," she told the Daily Mirror.

"Things have to move on, I know, but in the days of Hilda Ogden, Annie Walker and co, the Street was gentle, funny and human. The humour has all but gone out of it."

Alexander won an RTS award in 1985 and was nominated for the Bafta television award for best actress in 1988.

She was born Jean Hodgkinson in Liverpool in 1926 and reportedly worked as a library assistant in the city before beginning her acting career.

Breaking Bad fanatic killed police officer and dissolved his body in a bath of acid after Grindr sex date, court hears

A police officer was strangled and his body dismembered and partially dissolved in a bath of acid, a London court has heard.

The Old Bailey was told PC Gordon Semple, 59, had made a date with his alleged murderer Stefano Brizzi on the popular gay dating app Grindr.

The policeman then went to Mr Brizzi's flat in south London for sex on 1 April, the jury heard.

Mr Brizzi denies murder claiming the PC died accidentally during a sex game.

Opening the trial, prosecutor Crispin Aylett QC told jurors the case called for "broad minds and strong stomachs".

PC Semple, originally from Inverness, shared an interest in sado-masochistic sex with his alleged killer, jurors at the Old Bailey were told.

While he was on duty, the officer texted the Italian and arranged to go to his flat on the Peabody Estate in Southwark for "hot, dirty, sleazy" sex, the court heard.

They had also arranged for other men to come to the flat for a sex party, the jury heard.

The Old Bailey was told that hours later, Mr Brizzi was allegedly in the middle of throttling him when a man turned up on his doorstep.

'Globules of flesh'

The man was put off by the defendant by saying someone was "ill", the court heard.

Over the next few days, neighbours noticed a "revolting smell" coming from the flat and when one complained, Mr Brizzi put it down to cooking for a friend, the prosecution said.

By 7 April, a neighbour alerted police, who visited the flat and found Mr Brizzi wearing only sunglasses and underpants.

They also found a bath full of acid with "globules of flesh" floating in it, the court heard.

'Satan told me'

Mr Brizzi was said to be obsessed with the US television drama

PC Gordon Semple: Officer 'killed and dismembered on Grindr sex date'

Breaking Bad.

The prosecution told the court his attempt to dissolve the body in an acid bath was inspired by the plot from the hit drama.

He allegedly told an officer: "I've tried to dissolve the body ... I've killed a police officer."

"I killed him last week. I met him on Grindr and I killed him. Satan told me to."

However, jurors were told that the defendant was not claiming a psychiatric defence and now says PC Semple died accidentally during a "sex game gone wrong". PC Semple's last communication on Grindr was a few minutes before at 19:04, the court heard.

'Nutella' drug

Twenty minutes later, his partner tried to call his mobile phone but got no response. He later reported him missing.

The court heard that Mr Brizzi was a user of crystal meth - referred to as Nutella - which had led him to lose his job at US investment bank

Morgan Stanley.

He allegedly told a support group he believed in the Devil, and liked "satanic rituals".

The court heard he also liked to boast of his sexual exploits and told one meeting he had tied a man up, treated him like a dog and made him go into a cage.

Mr Brizzi denies murder but has admitted a second charge of obstructing a coroner in the execution of duty between 31 March and 8 April 2016.

The case continues.

Harry sick as a parrot after running over his missus...

Harry Redknapp's wife was seriously injured when she was run over by a Range Rover driven by the former football boss.

Witnesses described seeing Sandra Redknapp, 69, get her coat caught under the car as her husband pulled away.

The Sun newspaper reported Mrs Redknapp "yelling in pain" as she fell to the ground in Poole Road, Bournemouth.

The wife of the former Tottenham Hotspur manager was rushed to hospital on Tuesday after the "freak accident".

The Sun reported that Mrs Redknapp had been dropped off at the shops by her husband in his Range Rover when she got her coat and foot caught.

Mr Redknapp, also 69, had been dropping his wife off in Westbourne, which is four miles away from the couple's £5m home in Sandbanks and reportedly didn't realise that his wife was stuck and drove away.

Speaking to the BBC, the former Bournemouth, West Ham and Portsmouth boss said: "It was just a freak accident you know."

"Sandra went across the road and unfortunately she had gone behind the car to cross over the road and as I went to drive off

'FREAK ACCIDENT': Sandra and Harry had a spot of boover in the Rover...

I drove over her ankle.

"It's lucky, if the full weight of the car had gone over the ankle god knows what would have happened to her. We're ok."

"She had an operation on her ankle that went well."

South Western Ambulance Service confirmed crews were called to Poole Road, in the Westbourne area, at 11:49 BST.

Witness Rebecca Forrester from Bournemouth said she saw Mrs Redknapp's coat get caught underneath the vehicle.

She said: "People were really concerned and Harry was quite stressed, she was shocked and couldn't move her legs.

"It was obvious she was seriously hurt. I didn't realise until after who it was. It was obviously an accident."

The couple returned home 24 hours after the accident took place and Mrs Redknapp was pictured walking on crutches with her right leg in a cast.

Your Diet: forget the quick fixes, work towards long-term habits!

HEALTH & FITNESS
with Ricky Parcell

We all know diets work - for a short period of time!

But then the body adjusts, dieters lose motivation and all that weight piles back on again - often worse than before.

If you want to never go on a diet again you need to figure out why diets don't work in the long term. But take heart, because keeping up the momentum daily in your life and not going on a quick fix diet is easier than you think.

We all know the benefits of bringing your weight down to healthy level and building muscle, not fat: increased sexiness, higher energy levels, lower stress levels, improved sleep, reduced risk of disease diabetes and stroke, lower blood pressure, reduced chance of cancer, longer life, happier and more positive mindset...need I go on?

So if you're looking for a simple way to eat without going on a quick-fix diet, consider the following:

- eat minimally processed foods (live food)
- Drink water) not soft drinks, not diet drinks and not 'zero' drinks
- Fill most of your plate with fibrous veg
- Add lean protein to each meal when possible
- Add a splash of good fats, a few nuts, and some avocado when possible
- Include a little fibrous carbohydrate, like brown rice, and frontload your day with them.
- Keep portions small and eat regularly

Remember to look at your plate and ask these questions: is this real/live food? Is there a lot of veg in it? What about high quality protein? Are there simple carbs (pasta/ice cream/chocolate/wine) on your plate? If so, did you earn them. What about brown/live/complex carbs?

When shopping: do not shop hungry. Seek foods not in a packet. Always check the back for sugar content. If it has more than 2 ingredients - think twice about buying it!

Remember: there are no bad foods - only overloading yourself with a food causes you to be unhealthy!

Foods to Earn/ eat only occasionally: Pastries/donuts/sweet foods. Deep fried foods. Sodas and fizzy drinks. Processed foods. Cheap Foods. Highly processed and sugar cereals.

Meet a Member: Aletha Shepherd

Meet Aletha Shepherd from Wallington, Surrey who moved to LA 3 years ago to pursue acting.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

LA really is where all the big fish come to play. I wanted to take my career further and I knew this was the place to do that. I had gone to the Cannes film festival the summer before moving so I felt I had enough contacts to get my foot in the door when I landed. I knew I wanted to pursue a film and TV career and LA is where a lot of the greatest films and shows originate, especially those with diversity.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss my family and friends the most. I also miss the busy streets of London with its great architecture and interesting people. The ambience of the UK really is like no other, especially in central London where I lived for the last five years before I left. It's a magical city with a rich history.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

My first impression was that it would be easy to get a career started. A lot of people here make false promises especially to people who are new to the area. When nothing of what they say comes to pass, people tend to come across fake and in England we are a lot more straightforward and people won't mess you around as much. Fortunately, I managed to find my feet by getting a strong group of friends and this helped tremendously with the ups and downs of living in LA. My impressions remain the same however I now know how to overcome situations that arise and handle them differently.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Wallington, Surrey?

I came from a small village where life is a lot more simple and you have plenty of time to read great books and watch enough movies to your heart's content. LA is very different as there is always something going on and always somewhere to be. You can never get bored in this city and there is never enough time in the day.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I get a lot of work done at coffee shops, my favorite being Andante either the Silverlake or West Hollywood location, both have a great, easy going environment.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Step out in faith as life is too short to not take every opportunity that comes your way. Live your dreams and if you're lucky enough to get a visa in your speciality field of what you love, don't be afraid to take the plunge and give LA a real shot. It has taken me three years to really find my feet, so don't give up at the first hurdle and push through the hard times as the good days make it all so much more worth-while.

How can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

I just finished filming my third short film. My first short I produced and wrote actually won 'Best Short Short' at the 9th LA Indie Film Festival a few weeks ago. Off this success I have started scripting my first feature film that I'm currently working on. I also recently starred in a James Franco's feature film called Roxana, that comes out next year. I play Mrs Collins. You can see all my latest productions at the website www.aletheia.la And if you want to follow what I'm up to find me on Instagram and Twitter @alethashepherd.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

You've got to keep moving you, you can't stop.

Every tomorrow is a new beginning.

ARIES: This is a good time to take a closer look at your life in general and how you are feeling as the month progresses. You will move into next month in a better place than before. So with this in mind take a trip, even if it's only down memory lane.

TAURUS: With Venus your boss visiting a fire sign soon money and relationships will be on your mind. Whatever the priority is be sure you do start with the biggest issue that needs to be changed for the better.

GEMINI: You will be looking at the world in a different way than you have recently. In many areas things have changed and finances is likely one of them. But as the month progresses things will get easier.

CANCER: You are very intent this week or so on stating what is on your mind and probably if you are not careful it will rebound on you. Be careful about who or what is the target. It is possible that it will rebound on you now.

LEO: You will find this week that you are more able to reach out to others who you feel deserve some of your warm attention. Do not judge, just be there that's all that's needed right now. You are due a boost in finances by week's end.

VIRGO: Things could be a little faster-paced than you like recently, however this is only a test of how you handle yourself overall. Just take your time to get your ducks in a row and then you will be glad you were prepared.

LIBRA: If all in relationships is not as you wish this is the time to look in the mirror and ask yourself why. Actually the truth is easier than you think, it's possible you judge yourself and this reflects back to you. Go forward with a positive attitude now.

SCORPIO: The planet Jupiter who is the gift bringer in more than one way and the love planet Venus will be benefiting your sign through the end of the month. It's time to celebrate what you have learned about love and its many faces. Happy Birthday.

SAGITTARIUS: Life for you recently in part has not moved in the direction you would have wished for. Take heart, because you do not know what life is preparing for you, you often don't allow yourself to get the full benefit of positive thinking.

CAPRICORN: As you will soon discover, your life has been heading in the right direction even if you are not aware of it. The long term visitor Pluto is changing the many parts of your overall life in general...slowly but surely.

AQUARIUS: Time will tell if you are ready to give up something that you have held onto. Perhaps a grievance or hurt from long ago. You will have more joyful things to think about in the near future while your boss planet Uranus sitting in Aries will energize you.

PISCES: You are the only one who can set your own boundaries and take a leading role in who decides what. This should be sooner rather than later. Your boss planet Neptune is visiting you and shining over all parts of your life.

Jacobites: tales of rebellion and a certain Charlie

Exclusive interview with author
Jacqueline Riding, author of a new novel about Bonnie Prince Charlie and the Scottish rebellion of 1745

Rating: ★★★

"In 2007 I had been researching some pictures painted in the mid-1740s at London's Foundling Museum, the former eighteenth-century hospital for abandoned children," says Jacobites author Jacqueline Riding. "I was looking at newspapers published throughout 1745 to 1746. I noted down some odd and disturbing stories that were being reported, such as women killing their children for fear of the brutal Highlanders, strange carcasses being pulled out of moats and so on, and eventually, just out of interest really, I started writing a historical novel, a sort of Hogarthian caper-murder mystery, based on these snippets." Years later Riding would completely rewrite her unpublished first novel to make it into Jacobites.

Picked up on the Hebridean island of Canna, a schoolmaster tells a sea captain bound for Liverpool that a young man has arrived who is gathering thousands of clansmen. The highlanders call him Prionnsa Tearlach, in English, Prince Charles. When the news arrives in London the Lord Mayor, a suspected Jacobite sympathizer, and the banker Sir Richard Hoare can't believe it. Nobody can. No army is sent from London to fight Charles. The Prince and his men reach Edinburgh, but the city's famed castle is too heavily fortified to be taken.

Expect ambition, war, battles, treason and spying. Rider's precision in the details and the battles with Prince Charles move the story along at a brisk pace. Charlie's cousin, the Duke of Cumberland, is popular among the military before he gains a reputation as a butcher. The duke and Charles are both charismatic. War changes them both. Military and politically driven, the many eyewitness accounts in the book give the reader a balanced account from both sides of the battle.

"We know now that the rebellion failed," says Riding. "I wanted the reader to feel, even if they knew the history and how it ends, that maybe things might have turned out differently. I think writing the novel helped me to develop a style that was character and narrative led, and also in the moment. One decision I made from the onset was to avoid any sense of predetermination."

Riding uses the accounts from letters of protagonists and eyewitnesses, rather than the historian's viewpoint.

"Obviously, I selected and edited the material," says Rider. "But, I aimed to gently guide, rather than forcefully lead, to show not tell. As I was aiming to base the narrative on eyewitness voices, I focused my attention on primary sources, published and unpublished. My particular focus was the Cumberland Papers and Stuart Papers in the Royal Archives at Windsor Castle."

Far from being a prototype Scottish Nationalist, Charles wanted to restore his father James the III of England (also James the VIIIth of Scotland) to the throne. His insistence on pressing on to London led to the council of war at Derby where the Scottish clan leaders overrode the prince and insisted on retreating to their Highland fastnesses. The result was the grim and savage defeat at Culloden that ended as the last pitched battle on British soil.

Riding is the former Director of the Handel House Museum in London, where the composer G F Handel (1685-1759) lived for 35 years, composed his masterpiece Messiah, and where he died. "A key element of my job was to animate history and historical characters for many different audiences, whether general visitors, school groups or specialists," says Riding. "This is good training for writing history that is, hopefully, accessible, and of interest to as broad a readership as possible. The reviewer for BBC History Magazine said that Jacobites had 'an acute sense of person and place', which is exactly what I aimed for."

"Jacobites has opened up some new avenues for me," says Riding. "I'm writing for the catalogue of the forthcoming Jacobite exhibition at the National Museums Scotland... opens June 2017. And, I'm also working on the iconography of Charles Edward Stuart."

Riding has written many books about art and history. She has a Ph.D. in the History of Art from the University of York. She is currently writing a book about history.

Jacobites: A New History of the '45 Rebellion by Jacqueline Riding (Author). Hardcover: 608 pages, Publisher: Bloomsbury Press (July 5, 2016), Language: English ISBN: 9781608198016 $35.00

Donald Trump: the Honey Badger of American politics

"There, I said it, I won't apologize to you any more,

I'm a grown ass man, And I don't give a damn, I'm tired of living in the shadows

There I said it."

- Adam Lambert

Earlier this week I made a Facebook post regarding the nine women accusing Presidential nominee, Donald Trump of sexual assault, or at least sexual misconduct.

This came suspiciously close to the leaked audio tape of him talking candidly with Billy Bush of Access Hollywood, where he talked about getting whatever you want by being a celebrity. The grotesque "Grab them by the py" was the most memorable quote, one that had the general public and a lot of women up in arms, and rightfully so. In his defense he did apologize for his comments, but in the same breath dismissed it as 'locker-room' talk. Then later, described by his wife, Melania as 'Boytalk' who also claimed Trumped was "egged-on" by Bush (insert your joke here)

What followed was a rush of women coming forward to share their encounters with Mr. Trump, telling stories of gross misconduct, accusations of harassment, him forcing himself upon them and actual groping. Allegations made by Jessica Leeds and Rachel Crooks in The New York Times, Natasha Stoyneff in People, and Mindy McGillivray in The Palm Beach Post, and six others, came after Trump denied ever making unwanted advances when quizzed about it during the second presidential debate.

At one of his most recent rallies, he denied all claims and even brushed one off by saying: "Take a look," he said. "You take a look, you look at her, look at her words, you tell me what you think. I don't think so, I don't think so."

macho-bravado

Nine women, all with very similar stories, (some even Republicans), not getting paid to share their stories, but merely sharing them because they think it's the right thing to do. Now yes, we live in a country where accusations need proof (hopefully), and unfortunately it will probably come down to a 'he said/she said' scenario. But I think what bothers me most is his macho-bravado attitude, his demagogic stance, reminiscent of a former leader of Germany not so long ago. He simply comes across as that internet sensation the honey badger, an horny creature who doesn't give a tinker's cuss what you think of him. After all, he's invincible!

But seriously, it saddened me to see so many comments on social media shaming these women and dismissing their claims. As one person said, "They are just fame-hungry, gold-digging whores trying to VOTE FOR HIM? Have you seen him? I don't think so...

fk-up Donald's chances of making this country great again, Killary is probably paying them all through her charity."

Everyone has a right to their opinions and this country has freedom of speech, which is one of the reasons it's so great. I seriously wouldn't want it any other way. And I am neither judge, nor jury, nor executioner, and I believe in innocent until proven guilty. But here's where I will speak up, as to why sexual assault victims may often wait years to tell their stories. And with a personal story I've never shared before.

HONEY BADGERS? I LOVE HONEY BADGERS.
Nobody respects honey badgers more than I do...

For me it was 35 years ago. I was an eight-year-old boy when it first happened.

I don't have space in this column to say more,

TROP VITE!: Jean-Bernard and Cheryl wed in 2014 after a whirlwind courtship

French without tears? Chezza granted quickie!

You could almost hear the sound of Cheryl Tweedy skipping with joy after she was finally granted a divorce from Jean-Bernard Fernandez-Versini this week.

The couple have obtained a "decree nisi in their divorce proceedings", a spokesman for the Fight For This Love singer has confirmed. Chezza and Jean-Bernard tied the knot two years ago after just three months of dating.

However, their marriage came to a shock ending after just 18 months, with the former Girls Aloud singer splitting from the French hunk in January this year.

It later emerged that she started dating One Direction's Liam Payne in December, with their romance going public a month after her separation announcement.

And this week a court ruled that they could see no reason not to grant a divorce to Cheryl and JB.

It is believed Cheryl cited "irreconcilable differences" and no financial settlement has been made between the two, according to reports.

A source previously told The Sun Newspaper: "This has been the result of months of negotiations, but Cheryl and JB reached an agreement two months ago. And there has been no financial settlement. Lots of wild figures have been thrown about, but that is the truth, as the documents will show, that JB is not going to be paid any money by Cheryl."

The 33-year-old shocked fans after announcing that she had married the French businessman with an Instagram post in July 2014. The pair tied the knot on the exotic island of Mustique.

However, it was reported that the couple struggled with the language barrier, while Simon Cowell claimed Jean-Bernard's behaviour was "out of order" while visiting his wife on the X Factor TV show.

This divorce is sure to spark rumours of an upcoming wedding to Payne. The duo have been inseparable since hooking up – and fans even think that Cheryl is pregnant.

The Geordie babe has been seen sporting what appears to be a bump, while Directioners thought that a recent hashtag congratulating Liam on a new record deal was confirming the pregnancy news.

Watch this space for the next, erm, development on this one!

CATHOLIC TASTES? Jude Law stars as the chain-smoking pontiff Pius XIII

Jude Law hopes his 'Young Pope' role will spark debate...

Jude Law has insisted his new series The Young Pope does not judge the Vatican but welcomes discussion into conservative Catholicism.

The British actor plays the "troubled and conflicted" Pope Pius XIII in the fictional ten-part series – airing on Sky Atlantic later this month.

In an interview with the Radio Times, Law said he did consider whether it would cause offence but decided the series was not a critique of the religion.

"I'm sure someone somewhere is going to be offended by it, but that's what storytelling is about. Opening discussions, openly, freely and diplomatically ... I'm all for that," said Law.

The show follows the ascent of Lenny Belardo to the head of the Catholic Church, as a young, chain-smoking and Cherry Coke-swilling Pope struggling with responsibilities.

"It's not The West Wing in the Vatican," said the 43-year old actor when asked about the show's message.

"The themes are more about how an individual survives one's relationship with faith – as opposed to accurately portraying Vatican politics."

In the trailer released earlier this year, Law's pontiff is heard stating he is a contradiction: "I'm God. One in three and three in one. Like man, good and evil."

Sky Italia head Andrea Scrosati, who commissioned the programme, said they worked with consultants from the Catholic Church.

"I don't think they will find it offensive. They will find it challenging," he said.

"Those who have the most sincere faith are the ones that constantly question ... This is the story of the show."

The Young Pope premieres on Sky Atlantic in Britain this week. Viewers on this side of the pond will have to wait until February, when the show debuts on HBO.

I'm getting out my rosary beads already!

BRITISH WEEKLY SPORT

No happy returns for Pep

Lionel Messi scored a hat-trick Wednesday night as Barcelona punished 10-man Manchester City in the Champions League on Pep Guardiola's return to his old club. City were competitive in the first half, but made far too many errors against a ruthless Barcelona revelling in Messi's return from injury. A Fernandinho slip inside his own box put Messi clear for his first, then Kevin de Bruyne lost possession allowing Andres Iniesta to set up the Argentine for a left-footed strike into the bottom corner. The evening got worse for the visitors when goalkeeper Claudio

Bravo was sent off for handling outside the box and minutes later Messi struck again. Barcelona were also reduced to 10 men in the last 15 minutes as substitute Jeremy Mathieu was shown a second yellow card for a foul on Raheem Sterling, but by then the damage had been done.

Willy Caballero saved a late Neymar penalty, but the Brazilian scored from open play minutes later to complete a comprehensive win for the La Liga side. The victory maintained Barcelona's 100% start in Group C and extended their lead over City to five points. Barcelona had yet to hit the heights of last season this term, but one reason for that was the recent absence of Messi with a groin injury. The Argentine scored within three minutes of his La Liga return at the weekend, and in front of his old boss proved again what a magical player he is. He ruthlessly took advantage of Fernandinho's slip and revelled in the space created by Bravo's sending-off. He scored from three of his four shots and also created chances for others.

POGBA COMES GOOD!

EUROPA LEAGUE: Record signing grabs brace as United cruise to Fener win

Europa League
Manchester Utd....4
Fenerbahce.....1

Paul Pogba scored twice as Manchester United coasted to a comfortable victory over Fenerbahce and moved second in Europa League Group A on Thursday night.

With Wayne Rooney back in the team, United did not create much before the Turkish side gave away two cheap penalties.

World record signing Pogba smashed in after Simon Kjaer fouled Juan Mata before Anthony Martial converted following Sener Ozbayrakli's push.

Pogba guided a superb curling shot home from 20 yards with Jesse Lingard drilling home from similar distance to put the game out of sight after the break.

The second half was played out in an exhibition atmosphere and Robin van Persie's late consolation was applauded heartily as he met a low cross to mark his return to his former side with a goal.

United are level with Feyenoord on six points, two clear of Fenerbahce at the halfway point in Group A.

Pogba's performances since his summer move from Juventus have yet to reach the heights that would justify his £89m fee, but his confidence appears to be building on this display. With the composed Michael Carrick beside him, he was able to dominate the central third with his athleticism and energy.

Harder tests than a flimsy Fenerbahce side will come - not least the visit to Chelsea in the league on Sunday - but Pogba looks increasingly ready to meet and pass them.

"Two days ago he was the worst player in the Premier League and 48 hours later he's phenomenal," said manager Jose Mourinho, referring to criticism aimed at Pogba after his performance in Monday's goalless draw with Liverpool.

"He needs time. I'm happy with his performance because he gave us what we need."

Van Persie's return also evoked fond memories for the Old Trafford faithful.

The Dutchman finished as the Premier League's top-scorer the last time United won the title in 2013, but, like the team as a whole, his form faded in the following two seasons before his move to Istanbul.

His name was chanted as he walked out for kick-off, he was cheered as he came across to take Fenerbahce's corners and, after curling a long-range shot just wide, he turned in Emmanuel Emenike's cross to prompt an ovation from his former fans.

Pogba scored the second and third goals of his United career on Thursday

Wizardry of Oz brings Gunners rout

Champions League
Arsenal.....6
Ludogorets.....0

Mesut Ozil scored a hat-trick after stunning goals from Alexis Sanchez and Theo Walcott as Arsenal dismantled Ludogorets Razgrad in a ruthless Champions League display Wednesday night.

Sanchez got the first with a masterful chip from just inside the box.

Walcott powered a curling shot home after Ludogorets' Wanderson hit a post.

Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain smashed a loose ball into the corner for the third, before Ozil claimed the first hat-trick of his career.

The Gunners have won seven games in a row in all competitions - scoring 23 goals - and are unbeaten in 11 matches.

Their last defeat was at home to Liverpool on the opening day of the Premier League season.

Victory over Bulgarian champions Ludogorets means Arsenal top Group A ahead of Paris St-Germain, who beat Basel 3-0, on goal difference.

As Sanchez's drifting lob settled in the Ludogorets net, gleeful manager Arsene Wenger leapt from the bench in celebration. It was just the beginning.

The Frenchman's side were so dominant and full of confidence they perhaps should even have won by a greater margin.

Oxlade-Chamberlain certainly might have provided a better finish to Sanchez's beautifully disguised chipped through pass - the Chilean's second moment of genius on a night his hard running and quick mind came to the fore.

But the player who most obviously embodies Arsenal's new dynamic mood is Walcott. He impressively put two earlier missed chances out of mind when doubling the lead with a powerful strike that signalled the away side's slide towards heavy defeat.

It was the 27-year-old's seventh goal in his past six Arsenal games, having scored the same amount in his previous 42.

For 60 minutes, Walcott and Sanchez terrified the opposition backline with their pace, and he went off to huge round of applause when he was replaced by Lucas Perez.

With Swiss club Basel and Ludogorets six points adrift with three matches to play, Group A will surely be won by Arsenal cont. on page 19, col. 1
