MPS: YES TO EU EXIT

■ Commons votes overwhelmingly to begin Brexit talks next year - but insists on the right to 'scrutinize' the Government's withdrawal plans

MPs have voted to back the government's plan to start formal talks on Brexit by the end of March next year.

They also supported a Labour motion calling for Parliament to "properly scrutinise" the government in its proposals for leaving the EU.

Wednesday's vote followed a compromise between Labour and the Conservatives, who had argued over the questions to be put.

The House of Commons' decisions are not binding on ministers.

MPs backed Labour's motion, saying the government should publish a plan and it was "Parliament's responsibility to properly scrutinise the government" over Brexit, by 448 votes to 75 - a margin of 373.

This followed another vote over the government's amendment to the motion, which added the proviso that its timetable for triggering Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty, getting formal talks with the EU under way, should be respected.

MPs backed this by 461 votes to 89 - a margin of 372.

After Labour proposed its motion, Prime Minister Theresa May had reportedly faced a rebellion by up to 40 Conservative MPs.

So, on Tuesday she offered to support it, in return for the Labour leadership backing a compromise government amendment to support the Brexit timetable.

During Wednesday's debate, Labour's shadow Brexit secretary Sir Keir Starmer said the government had refused "on every occasion" to give details of its plans, saying information about its negotiating stance was important because it "sets the scene" for Brexit.

'negotiation'

He said there must not be "a situation where the government seeks a vote in a vacuum, or produces a late, vague plan".

But Brexit Secretary David Davis responded: "The simple fact is that the mandate (in June's referendum) was to leave the European Union - full stop. We need to keep that in mind when we are going through that process."

He added: "This is a negotiation; it's not a policy statement. And, therefore, where you are aiming for may not be the exact place you end up."

The government's amendment was opposed by 23 Labour MPs and one Conservative - former chancellor Ken Clarke.

Five Liberal Democrat MPs, three Plaid Cymru MPs and 51 SNP MPs also voted against it.

And Labour's motion was opposed by nine of its own MPs, three of whom serve in party leader Jeremy Corbyn's frontbench team.

The government's

Brexit timetable means the UK will leave the EU in 2019, with negotiations lasting up to two years.

In June's referendum, UK voters backed leaving the EU by 51.9% to 48.1%

It is part of a campaign encouraging people to pay £2 or more to wear

UKIP vows to target Brexit rebel MPs

"These MPs have just written their own political epitaphs. Their action is a clear invitation to UKIP to remove them at the earliest possible opportunity".

UKIP has vowed to target the seats of MPs who voted against triggering Article 50 this week, despite serving constituencies who voted against Leave the European Union in June.

A total of seven MPs rebelled against Theresa May's plan to trigger Brexit on Wednesday, in a vote which supporters said gave the Prime Minister a "blank cheque" to take Britain out of Europe.

Ukip sources have said they will pour all their efforts into winning over the MPs' six English and Welsh constituencies in the next general election.

Gerard Batten,

Ukip's Brexit spokesman, told the Telegraph: "These MPs have just written their own political epitaphs. Their action is a clear invitation to UKIP to remove them at the earliest possible opportunity".

Responding to the vote, Andrew Rosindell, a Eurosceptic Tory MP, said: "Its a shameful kick in the teeth to their constituents and to British democracy."

Angela Smith, a former frontbencher and MP for the marginal seat of Penistone and Stocksbridge, defied the official position of her party and the 61.3 per cent of her constituency who voted for Brexit.

Another former shadow minister, Graham Allen MP, also made the decision to rebel, despite 63.8 per cent of his constituency choosing to leave the EU.

"MPs are accountable"

Just one SNP MP, Eilidh Whiteford and one Plaid Cymru MP, Jonathan Edwards, voted against a majority of their constituents Wednesday night.

Other Labour MPs who voted against their own party's position include Barry Sheerman, Chris Evans and Paul Farrelly.

89 backbenchers including one Tory and 23 Labour MPs opposed Mrs May's plan in a show of defiance against the EU referendum result.

The result of the vote was that 461 MPs sided with the Prime Minister and voted to commit the Government to triggering Article 50 by the end of March next year.

Andrew Bridgen, the MP for North West Leicestershire, said: "MPs are accountable and when we have a general election they are held to account.

"I am sure voters will bear that in mind, but it is for every MP to defend the way they vote."

Mr Sheerman, the MP for Huddersfield, told the Telegraph: "Bring it on. I was elected with a good majority to look after the long-term interests of my constituents and because of that I voted the way that I did on Wednesday night.

"Of course I took note of the very close Brexit vote, but look at the percentage of people who actually voted. There was a significant percentage of voters in my constituency who didn't vote. I will fight as long as I can to make sure we get the best deal possible."

Ms Smith said: "Those who voted yesterday against the government amendment did not vote against Brexit or indeed against triggering A50, but rather against an unrealistic timetable as far as Parliamentary scrutiny is concerned."

Dr Eilidh Whiteford MP added: "Clearly the vote in Banff and Buchan was very close, but with still no plan for Brexit, and real risks to local jobs and livelihoods, it would be a betrayal of responsibility to write a blank cheque for the so-called 'hard Brexit' the Government wants to pursue.

"We should remember that the North-east, like the rest of Scotland, voted Remain by a convincing margin."

Jonathan Edwards, MP for Carmarthen East and Dinefwr, also defended his position.

He said: "I am a democrat and respect the referendum result. But I am not prepared to give the UK Government a blank cheque and free ride to do whatever it wants without any information on how residents of Carmarthenshire and Wales be will affected."

MI6 boss: terror threat 'unprecedented'

The scale of the terrorism threat to the UK is "unprecedented", the new head of MI6 has said.

Alex Younger (pictured, right) said UK intelligence and security services had disrupted 12 terrorist plots since June 2013.

He said many of the threats came from ungoverned spaces in the Middle East - namely Iraq and Syria.

Mr Younger also warned that "hybrid warfare", which included cyber-attacks and subverting democracy, was becoming an "increasingly dangerous phenomenon".

"The risks at stake are profound and represent a fundamental threat to our sovereignty," he said. "They should be a concern to all those who share democratic values."

In his first public speech since taking up the post of "C", he warned of the impact of Russia's alliance with President Bashar al-Assad in Syria in casting all opponents of President Assad as terrorists.

"I believe the Russian conduct in Syria - allied with that of Assad's discredited regime - will, if they do not change course, provide a tragic example of the perils of forfeiting legitimacy," he said.

"In defining as a terrorist anyone who opposes a brutal regime they alienate precisely that group that has to be onside if the extremists are to be defeated."

He added: "We cannot be safe from the threats that emanate from that land unless the civil war is brought to an end."

The Islamic State group had exploited the situation in Syria to fortify its stronghold in the region and wage a war on the West, he told journalists at MI6 headquarters in London.

"We are delighted to support Save The Children by having our royal wax figures join in with the Christmas Jumper Day campaign in a seriously stylish way."

Helena Wiltshire, from Save The Children, said: "Who knows, maybe the Queen will feel inspired to do her annual speech in a more laid-back get-up this year?"

She said the campaign will help children at home and around the world who are most in need of support.

Jagger becomes a father for the EIGHTH time

■ Tireless Stones frontman sires baby boy with ballerina 44 years his junior

Rolling Stones frontman Sir Mick Jagger has become a father again at the age of 73, his publicist said.

The singer and 29-year-old ballerina Melanie Hamrick welcomed a son, Sir Mick's eighth child, in the latest addition to his brood on Wednesday.

A statement said: 'Melanie Hamrick and Mick Jagger's son was born today in New York and they are both delighted. Mick was at the hospital for the arrival. Mother and baby are doing well and we request that the media respect their privacy at this time.'

Sir Mick has a daughter, Karis Hunt Jagger, 46, from his relationship with Marsha Hunt and a daughter Jade Jagger, now 45, with his ex-wife Bianca. He had four children with his ex-partner Jerry Hall - Elizabeth, 32, James, 31, Georgia, 24, and Gabriel, 18. He also had a son, Lucas, 17, following a brief relationship with Brazilian model Luciana Gimenez.

Sir Mick is understood to have given Melanie a $150,000-a-year maintenance deal to help the ballerina raise their child.

He is also believed to be helping the New Yorker find a home in the US to raise the boy.

The $150k will be paid until the child is 18, with school fees also paid for. After secondary school a trust will help cover further education and expenses, which could be as much as £500k.

Even though Mick and Melanie are not planning on getting married, they plan to co-parent given his hectic work schedule.

A source told MailOnline: 'Mick wanted to make sure that the deals and money aspects were in place before Christmas and the birth of their child.'

'Mick is adamant that the kid will be cared for and the deal works out at 150k a year and then housing on top of that.

'It is a very fair deal for family to make sure they have adequate care and finances, and of course Mick is keen to help raise the child. Mick insists that he will be stand by Melanie throughout the child's first 18 years.

'After that they will make sure that the child's future is provided for too whether it be a career or seeking further education. This is a very amicable deal which has been agreed between a couple, who are not married, but are devoted to doing the right thing for the child.

'Mick is excited about the shows and has found a new found love for the band again.

'They will be pushing their new blues album out too during much of 2017. He is very excited about things that are happening with the band.'

SYMPATHY FOR THE OLD DEVIL? Melanie Hamrick has been dating the wrinkly rocker since 2014

'He's head over heels – we've never seen him so happy':

■ Lovestruck Prince Harry takes a 1,700-mile diversion to see Meghan Markle after his Caribbean tour

■ A friend said he couldn't bear being apart and was 'desperate to see her'

Prince Harry made a 1,700-mile diversion to see girlfriend Meghan Markle on his way back to Britain from his tour of the Caribbean, it emerged this week.

The lovestruck prince, 32, was scheduled to fly home to London from Barbados on Sunday in time for an official engagement.

But instead the royal stopped off in Toronto to spend the night with actress Miss Markle, who is based in the city while filming US legal drama Suits.

"head-over-heels"

The impromptu visit might explain why Miss Markle, 35, appeared in such good spirits as she bought fresh flowers on Saturday - just 24 hours before Harry boarded the plane.

A friend told The Sun: 'Harry just couldn't wait to see

'Really British' - or merely racist?

The owner of a shop in north London named 'Really British' has hit back at claims that his store, which stocks "quintessentially British items," is racist.

The shop, in Muswell Hill, opened to the public November 26 - and since then owner Chris Ostwald says he's received a barrage of complaints.

He told local newspaper the Ham&High: "The shop is in no way meant to be 'political' or 'pro Brexit', but we have had a lot of complaints saying it is or we are 'racist!'"

"A guy came in the other day and said, 'what's this, a charity shop?' and we said, 'no, not at all', and he said, 'well it's racist', and stormed out."

"People have been coming in and just tutting and walking out."

The shop, which sells items such as Union Jack tea towels, models of the Queen and traditional British condiments, has proven to be surprisingly controversial among local residents.

Speaking to the Independent Mr Ostwald said: "It began as soon as I started setting the shop up a few months

Robert the Bruce: hero and leper, scientists conclude

■ New technology allows scientists to recreate Scottish icon's skull

Robert the Bruce really did suffer from leprosy, scientists have concluded after reconstructing his face from his skull.

For years, historians have argued about whether the 14th century Scottish king was infected with the disease, with some believing there was a medieval cover-up so he would not have to relinquish the throne, while others suggest he was the victim of a smear campaign.

Recently, experts at the Robert The Bruce Heritage Centre said it would have been impossible for him to attend mass, hold court, or drink from his local well – all of which he did – if he had suffered from the illness.

But a new project to reconstruct his face by the University of Glasgow and Liverpool John Moores University (LJMU) has found that his skull shows the telltale signs of leprosy, including a disfigured jaw and nose.

Professor Caroline Wilkinson, director of the Face Lab at LJMU, who also reconstructed the face of Richard III, said:

"We could accurately establish the muscle formation from the positions of the skull bones to determine the shape and structure of the face. We produced two versions – one without leprosy and one with a mild representation of leprosy. He may have had leprosy, but if he did it is likely that it did not manifest strongly on his face."

Bruce's skull was unearthed during excavations at Dunfermline Abbey in 1818 and a plaster cast was taken for the Royal College of Surgeon's Hunterian Museum in London.

The illness is not specifically mentioned in documents from the period, nor do contemporaneous historians mention a disfigurement.

Images of Bruce, such as the statue at Bannockburn unveiled in the 1960s, and a terracotta model unveiled two years ago in the National Portrait Gallery, have always portrayed the king without the condition.

However records do recall that Bruce suffered from a mystery ailment which laid him low several times during his reign, and probably killed him.

In Ulster in 1327, he was said to be so weak that he could only move his tongue. The new reconstruction shows Bruce with a large, squarish head, supported by a muscular neck and stocky frame, suggesting he was a seasoned warrior.

The Scottish King, who ruled from 1306 until his death in 1329 aged around 55, launched campaigns throughout Scotland, England and Ireland, including the battle of Bannockburn in 1314 where he defeated the armies of Edward II.

No reliable visual depictions of Robert the Bruce were made when he was alive and written records tell us nothing about his appearance so it is the first time his face has been seen for more than 700 years. The skull was excavated in 1818-19 from a grave in Dunfermline Abbey.

Robert the Bruce ruled from 1306 to 1329

Nazi SS soldier leaves £400,000 to Scottish village that showed 'kindness and generosity'

A former Nazi prisoner of war has donated £400,000 to a tiny Scottish village because of the 'kindness and generosity' he was shown during his captivity.

Heinrich Steinmeyer was a member of Hitler's infamous Waffen SS and just 19 when he was captured in Normandy shortly after D-Day in August 1944.

He was classed as a hardline Nazi and ended up in the POW camp at Cultybraggan near Comrie, Perthshire.

But the experience transformed him and Steinmeyer said he was only shown kindness by the villagers, which he had not expected.

The experience had such an impact on him that he returned to Comrie after the war and made lasting friendships in the village.

He vowed to leave everything he owned for the benefit of the elderly of the tiny Scottish community, population less than 2,000, in the Southern Highlands near Perth.

His will read: 'I would like to express my gratitude to the people of Scotland for the kindness and generosity that I have experienced in Scotland during my imprisonment of war and hereafter.'

It specifically stated that the proceeds from the sale of his house and other possessions was to be used for 'elderly people'.

When he died at the age of 90 in 2014 his ashes were scattered in the hills above the camp where he had been held.

Two and a half years later, his bequest of £384,000 has now been gifted to the village's local community trust.

It has been transferred to a special Heinrich Steinmeyer Legacy Fund, set up by Comrie Development Trust as a separate account.

The money will be 'used exclusively to provide for local developments for older people, suggested by older people'.

'deep gratitude'

Mr Steinmeyer, who settled in Demmlenhorst, near Bremen, died a fortnight after the death of his close friend in Comrie, George Carson.

But Mr Carson had worked to see that Mr Steinmeyer's dying wishes were granted after he first mentioned them in 2008.

Andrew Reid from the Comrie Development

STEINMEYER: lasting friendships

Trust said: 'This story is about Heinrich Steinmeyer's gratitude for how he was treated and welcomed in this village and other parts of Scotland.'

'His gratitude will live on in the way that it will support older people in Comrie.'

Mr Reid added: 'Heinrich Steinmeyer wanted to express his deep gratitude for the way he was treated as a prisoner and for his time working in Scotland after the war.'

'He wanted to give thanks for his welcome back as a visitor to Comrie and Scotland.'

'Heinrich's personal history is an amazing story of friendship and appreciation, and people in Comrie will both honour and benefit from his legacy.'

Mr. Steinmeyer was born in 1924 and grew up in Silesia (now part of Poland), with only basic education.

He came from a 'very poor' family and worked as an apprentice butcher on a pitiful wage before joining the SS aged 17 and fighting on the Western Front.

After being captured Steinmeyer was held at Cultybraggan from September 1944 to June 1945.

From there he was sent to Watten, Caithness, another maximum security Nazi camp.

At the end of the war Steinmeyer was sent to a camp in Ladybank, Fife.

back. People would walk past and complain when they saw the sign saying 'Really British' that it was divisive.

"Since we opened things have got even worse. Yesterday was quite a low point. Four people came in and complained. Sales have gone down since when we opened.

'over-sensitive'

"A woman came in and said the word 'British' should be banned altogether because of murder of Jo Cox because her killer shouted: 'Britain First'. It's ridiculous. It's political correctness gone mad."

The controversy surrounding the shop has prompted fierce debate on local residents' Facebook groups.

One member of the Muswell Hill and Friends group wrote: "Chris, while I applaud you setting up a business in Muswell Hill and employing local people I'm curious as to why you decided to call your shop 'Really British' (besides the obvious point that you will sell British-made goods)?

"Like many people I live in London because of its international nature, and for me personally having a big sign on the Broadway saying 'Really British' makes me feel you're implying that other local businesses in the area are therefore somehow 'not really British'.

"Some will no doubt say I'm over-sensitive. But I can't help thinking that given the recent divisive referendum and the current political climate you might have chosen a more inclusive name in 2016."

Several others have defended the store. Holly Tassell echoed the views of many, writing: "I just cannot fathom how a shop selling things like Union Jack mugs can be considered racist? What EXACTLY is racist about it?"

Veteran actor Peter Vaughan dead at 93

'Porridge' heavy enjoyed late life success as Games of Thrones regular British actor Peter Vaughan, best known for roles in Game of Thrones and Porridge, has died at the age of 93.

He played Maester Aemon in the HBO series and Grouty in the TV sitcom.

His many other roles included parts in TV shows Citizen Smith, Chancer and Our Friends in the North.

His agent Sally Long-Innes said on Monday: "This is to confirm that very sadly Peter Vaughan passed away at approximately 10.30 this morning. He died peacefully with his family around him."

Vaughan began acting in the 1950s and became a recognisable face by playing numerous mainly supporting roles on stage, television, radio and film.

He specialised in characters with a tough edge - such as police officers, secret agents and authoritarian elders.

His best-known parts included:

- The menacing villain Harry Grouty in Porridge, which remained his most famous part, despite the fact he only appeared in a handful of episodes.

- The strict father of Robert Lindsay's girlfriend in the first two series of another 1970s comedy, Citizen Smith

- Town patriarch Tom Hedden in Straw Dogs, the controversial film made by Sam Peckinpah, whom Vaughan described as "one of the best directors ever"

- Felix, the dementia-suffering father of Christopher Eccleston's character in landmark TV drama Our Friends in the North, which earned him a Bafta nomination

- The ageing butler William Stevens, the father of Anthony Hopkins's character in

HELLO, GROUTY: Vaughan's menacing turn in Porridge was perhaps his most memorable role

Merchant Ivory's film The Remains of the Day

- Jon Snow's blind, scholarly mentor Maester Aemon Targaryen in HBO's epic fantasy Game of Thrones

Vaughan described himself as a character actor, saying he did not have the looks to play romantic leads.

"If you're a character actor, you don't need to wait for the next leading role," he once said. "But if you are a leading man you have to wait for the next part. Sometimes that means long periods without work."

He was never out of work for long, but Vaughan was not overly fond of only being recognised for Porridge.

"It bores me rigid," he once said. "I only did about four episodes and the film but never has a role been written that has had more impact."

'Lucky, lucky, lucky'

However Game of Thrones brought him a new level of fame with a younger audience at the age of 86, and he remained in the show for five years.

"I've been so lucky with parts," he told BBC Surrey recently in one of his last interviews in November. "They talk about actors resting. The only time I have ever rested in my 77 years as an actor has been when I've wanted to. Lucky, lucky, lucky."

Those paying tribute included Blackadder actor Tony Robison, who wrote on Twitter: "An amazing actor. I'll never forget his performance in Our Friends in the North."

Meanwhile, actress Kathy Burke posted a photo of Vaughan with Ronnie Barker in Porridge alongside the words: "Beautiful Peter Vaughan."

Former Doctor Who star Christopher Eccleston, who played Vaughan's son in Our Friends In The North, said he learned more from him than anyone else in his career.

"Peter was gladiatorial as an actor," he told BBC Radio 4's Front Row programme. "There was no more intense actor on that set."

Porridge writer Dick Clement said Vaughan "made Grouty his own", adding: "He had a wonderful quality of being menacing at the same time funny, not an easy thing to pull off."

Prog rock icon Greg Lake dead at 69

Guitarist was best known for his work with King Crimson and Emerson, Lake and Palmer

Greg Lake, who fronted both King Crimson and Emerson, Lake and Palmer, has died aged 69.

One of the founding fathers of progressive rock, the British musician is known for songs including In the Court of the Crimson King and his solo hit I Believe in Father Christmas.

He died on Wednesday after "a long and stubborn battle with cancer", said his manager.

Lake's manager Stewart Young wrote on Facebook: "Yesterday, December 7th, I lost my best friend to a long and stubborn battle with cancer.

"Greg Lake will stay in my heart forever, as he has always been."

"Another sad loss with the passing of Greg Lake," wrote Rick Wakeman, keyboardist in rock band Yes.

"You left some great music with us my friend & so like Keith, you will live on."

The news comes nine months after Lake's bandmate Keith Emerson died.

Born in Bournemouth, Lake was given his first guitar at the age of 12 and took lessons from a local tutor called Don Strike.

He formed a close friendship with fellow student Robert Fripp, with whom he created King Crimson in 1969.

Their debut album In the Court of the Crimson King featured such songs as 21st Century Schizoid Man.

It set a standard for progressive rock and received a glowing, well-publicised testimonial from The Who's Pete Townshend, who called it "an uncanny masterpiece".

But within a year, founding member Mike Giles quit and Lake refused to work with the band - although he stuck around long enough to sing on their second album, In the Wake of Poseidon, which was criticised for treading old ground.

The singer and bassist was then approached by Emerson, who had supported King Crimson on a North American tour and needed a singer for his new band.

Joined by Atomic Rooster drummer Carl

GREG LAKE: 'long and stubborn battle with cancer'

Palmer, ELP made their live debut at the Guildhall in Plymouth in 1970 before giving a career-making performance at the Isle of Wight Festival.

Unusually, the band combined heavy rock riffs with a classical influence. They scored hit albums with Pictures at an Exhibition, Trilogy and Brain Salad Surgery - many of them produced by Lake himself.

Tarkus, released in 1971, featured an opening track inspired by the fictional Tarkus character - a half-tank, half-armadillo creature that would appear on stage at gigs - that lasted more than 20 minutes.

The band went on to enjoy chart success in 1977 with their version of Aaron Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man.

The band sold more than 48 million records, and Lake continued to be an influential and popular touring musician even after the band wound down in the late 1970s.

Get the PH right: what Alkaline and Acid mean for your health

Health & Fitness with Ricky Parcell

ONE aspect of optimum body health which is often overlooked is the PH balance and the resultant acid/alkaline balance.

For the uninitiated, the regulation of acid-alkaline balance is one of the most important factors in homeostasis, or dynamic equilibrium in the body. Recent studies show that when the body's pH is too acidic, it's difficult for enzymes to function properly, which can lead to cancer, heart disease, diabetes, osteoporosis, and other inflammatory diseases.

The pH scale runs from 0 (pure acid) to 14 (most alkaline), with 7 being neutral. The human body functions optimally at a pH of around 7.4, which is just on the alkaline side of neutral.

As a general rule of thumb, foods higher on the PH scale are better. And (as usual) the culprit here is sugar, which is not only highly addictive but which can wreck your PH balance and with it your body chemistry.

Being addicted to sugar and flour is not an emotional eating disorder - It's a biological disorder, driven by hormones and neurotransmitters that fuel sugar and refined carb cravings—leading to uncontrolled overeating. This is not a limited phenomenon. It's the reason nearly 70 percent of adult Americans and 40 percent of kids are overweight.

In one study, Harvard scientists found that a high-sugar milkshake not only spiked blood sugar and insulin and led to sugar cravings, but it caused huge changes in the brain.

Sugar lights up the addiction center in the brain like the sky on the Fourth of July! Think "cocaine" cookies, "morphine muffins", or "smack" energy drinks.

The Standard American Diet (SAD) tends to be highly acidic, containing lots of processed foods, sugars, meats, dairy, grains, fast foods, coffee, and sometimes alcohol.

A typical anti-inflammatory nutrition plan (like the so-called 7.4 Alkaline diet), on the other hand, contains lots of fruits, greens and veggies, which are more alkaline or based in nature - therefore reducing risks of disease, low energy and cancers.

While the human body needs to remain on the slightly alkaline side of neutral, it's important to remember it's all a balancing act. If you strive for a low acidic diet for your health and eat only alkaline foods, your body can actually become too alkaline, or in a state of alkalosis. This can lead to a host of other symptoms ranging from light-headedness and confusion.

Many foods that you might think would be acidic, like lemons and limes, are actually alkaline once metabolized. So it's important to take into account which foods are acidic versus alkaline after they are metabolized, as that's what matters to the body.

Sugar and artificial sweeteners are highly acidic foods, which is one of the reasons the consumption of sweets has recently been linked to so many health ailments.

Here is a range of foods from the highly acidic (pH2) to the highly alkaline (pH10). You will note that foods with a PH rating of 1-5 are mostly processed, while healthy foods tend to be closer to PH10.

Highly Acidic (PH2-3): Lemon juice, vinegar, sodas, energy drinks, carbonated water, sweets, cakes etc. Medium Acidity: (PH4-5): Alcohol,

Spinach, broccoli and asparagus can be vital parts of an Alkaline diet coffee, black tea, cheese, milk, yogurt, distilled water, chocolate, flours, roasted nuts, beef, pork, wheat, pastas, pastries, breads and crackers.

Low acidity (PH6): Fresh fish, beans, coconut, brown rice, coconut milk, wild salmon, wild oats, cooked spinach. Neutral (PH7): Clean water (PH 7)

Low Alkalinity (PH8): Apples, almonds, tomatoes, mushrooms, olives, pineapples, strawberries, bananas, cherries. Medium Alkalinity (PH9): Avocados, celery, peas, sweet potatoes, blueberries, pears, grapes, kiwis, beets, melons, mangos, papayas. Highly Alkaline (PH10): Spinach, broccoli, artichoke, cabbage, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, cucumber, carrots, seaweed, asparagus, kale, most greens, onions.

Testing Your pH Levels
One indicator of the body becoming too acidic is an increased respiratory rate. In fact, if your body is too acidic, you won't be able to hold your breath for more than about 20 seconds.

The most common PH test is a urine test. While you can test your own urine using PH litmus test paper, it's more accurate and recommended to have your doctor do a urine test for you.

The takeaway? Think natural, eat natural and keep your body in balance!

Meet A Member: Marcus J. Freed

Meet Marcus J. Freed from Watford, who moved to LA six years ago to pursue acting, writing and spiritual/educational performance art.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

It chose me. Felt like intuition. The mix of a fantastic community, tremendous creative energy and great spiritual depths. I feel there is a 'hidden LA': most people get stuck at seeing the superficial levels, but there is a yin/yang principle at play - I have met some profound spiritual teachers here and there are great depths that balance out the superficiality. Lots more to say on this!

What do you miss most from home?

Jumping on the tube and going to the West End to see world-class theatre. Hands-down that's the biggest thing I miss. That and my nephews.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

I was struck by the fact that people come here from all over the world to pursue different dreams. There are a lot of accomplished people who have achieved things elsewhere but they travel to Los Angeles to magnify their message. One of my friends calls LA 'the throat chakra of the world' because much of the planet listens to what comes out of Los Angeles. So this is a great place to broadcast, whether it is performances, teachings or other kinds of art.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Watford?

When natives ask where I am from I say that Watford is an exotic twin city of LA - it's where they filmed Harry Potter, where Sir Elton John owned the football team, and there's a big shopping mall. The real differences between Watford and LA? I'd rather keep it diplomatic and say that both have their strengths...

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Nope. That's why it's hidden! But I do love Cafe Gratitude in Venice.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Do not expect Los Angeles to come to you. If you get a magical job offer then great. I found it worked best by showing up, meeting people, making myself available, and not expecting anything to happen. There is a great value to just getting here, shaking hands, and being around. My number one piece of advice would be to set up a pilot trip of two or more weeks - the longer the better - because LA opens up its arms when you show up to it. This is a very special city. I love it.

FREED FROM CONVENTION? "(LA) is a great place to broadcast, whether it is performances, teachings or other kinds of art."

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Always look for the good. See beneath the surface. Do not moan about the traffic but notice the sunshine and the amazing places that the roads can lead you towards. Do not complain about a lack (auditions, jobs) but focus on the amazing people here in LA, get collaborating and create something great!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

This weekend (Sat 10th & Sunday 11th) I am doing the last two performances of my play 'Solomon: King, Poet & Lover - A Tale of One Man & 700 Wives'. 50% discount for all Brits in LA members - use the code SOLOMON50 for $10 tix at www.solomonplay.com. The venue is Mimoda Studio @ Paper or Plastik, 5774 W. Pico Blvd, LA, CA 90019 (2 blocks east of Fairfax).

Since getting here I've published two books - The Kosher Sutras & The Kabbalah Sutras - the latter just won a bunch of awards which was great!

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

A Very Psychic Tea....

In the Tea Room at Ye Olde Kings Head with famed stargazer and psychic Annie Shaw. For bookings call (310) 392-1681

ARIES: You will be ready to settle down and work at whatever needs it. Your boss Mars in hardworking Capricorn is keeping your nose to the grindstone well into the holidays. Love is in the air by next week.

TAURUS: Be careful when a sometime friend tells you something they should be keeping quiet. The way out of this is to protest that you really can't keep a secret so they should not tell. Ignorance is bliss in this instance.

GEMINI: It has been as good as you expected this past week or so. Whatever that means to you be sure it will continue if you keep to the plans you made last month. Your unpredictable boss Mercury is going backwards soon...so get ready.

CANCER: If you are burning your bridges be sure you have an escape route as you will not get away Scot free. You still have unfinished business, it's going to be your responsibility to change this.

LEO: Don't imagine the worst as this is far from the truth. Life will turn out to be fine in the long run. Be caring and look at what you can do this week in a positive way, not at what could go wrong.

VIRGO: The holidays are almost upon us but you must finish up those overdue tasks. You can if you plan ahead. Your rascally ruler is going backwards until New Year so don't waste energy.

LIBRA: You are blessed to have the lucky Jupiter visiting you currently. With this energy surrounding you in general make sure you take advantage in any financial area. You will be in very good spirits this next week.

SCORPIO: By next week your wishes in some area will come true. Just be patient as all is not being revealed just now. The next week when Mercury goes backwards, who know what or who will turn up to delight you.

SAGITTARIUS: Your favorite time of year to travel is coming up; however you should have all the plans ready as Mercury is going backwards over the holidays and it's not the best time to travel. Be cool, calm and collected as Saturn is teaching you patience currently.

CAPRICORN: Mars is assisting you in your financial area currently, so there can be a pot of gold at the end of this week ahead. In the meantime it's not time to rest on your laurels, so best to not overspend in any area.

AQUARIUS: Any health-related problem could pop up again if you neglect your diet this next week ahead. With this in mind if you take care of this area you will be ready for a great holiday season on the 19th, when Mercury flips backwards, so be ready.

PISCES: Mars will be visiting you soon so be sure you keep a low profile especially with a family member you know can be a problem in a social setting. These past few weeks have been better for you overall and that will likely continue over the holidays.

Everything Love Is....and the choices we make to find it

■ Exclusive interview with author Claire King on her new novel about what happiness means

"When I first started writing this novel I'd been living in France for ten years or so," says Everything Love Is author Claire King.

"I was living a life that I would definitely describe as happy, but also unconventional. At the time I was working in and around Toulouse, a wonderful city in a beautiful setting, just north of the Pyrenees, but one that is often a hotbed of protests and cultural clashes. I guess the combination of these things, and having two young daughters whose happiness obviously concerns me, led me to explore the notion of happiness...what it is and the choices we make when we try to find it."

The story shows all the sides of love... the fun, the happy, the messy and the sad parts of love as it impacts people. As may be hoped, there is a happy ending to the book. The pacing of the story gets faster as it moves forward. Sometimes it's confusing as to who is talking. A wish is the lead character could be more vulnerable, more sympathetic to the reader.

Baptiste Molino is a man living on a houseboat on the Canal de Midi. His past is a bit of a mystery. He doesn't know who his birth mother was. All he has from her is a statue and a violin. Tattooed on her arm was one word, but we don't know what the word was. He's devoted his life to making others happy since he can't be happy himself. He's afraid if he tries to be happy something will ruin it. So why tempt fate? Sophie, a young waitress at the bar he frequents, wants to help him. As he uncovers clues about his mother, he realizes he has a choice to make.

"As I wrote, it became clear that this story couldn't be told without love being brought into the equation," says King. "Love and happiness are often inextricably linked...not just romantic love, but familial love, and love between friends. So in the end Everything Love Is became a grown-up love story. And, a meditation on happiness."

King was inspired by landscapes, cityscapes, people-watching, her own emotional response to events. "I can't pin down a single inspiration for the book," says King. "Although, I must say that I finally decided this was the story I wanted to write after having re-read Voltaire's Candide. There's a nod to this in the novel, in the naming of Baptiste's houseboat."

To research the topic of love, King interviewed many people. "It was extremely important to me that I handled the topic delicately and with respect, so I spent a lot of time getting under the skin of people with first hand experience of the subject and understanding their experiences as best I could. I can't say too much without giving away spoilers, but suffice to say that this novel touches on subjects that will be sensitive to many of my readers."

King's first novel, The Night Rainbow, published by Bloomsbury 2013, was a favorite with book clubs. "I'm told that there are common threads and themes in the two books," says King, "not least hope and the tenacity of the human spirit."

King writes short stories, with many listed for prizes. "The one closest to my heart is Wine at Breakfast, which is a story set in Kiev around the time of the Chernobyl explosion in 1986 and based on a true story."

King is currently writing a novel set in Yorkshire, England.

King was born in

Book Corner with Gabrielle Pantera

South Yorkshire and spent fourteen years in France. She relocated this year to Stroud, in Gloucestershire.

Our Crimbo bash: celebrating British style in the heart of Hollywood.....

IT'S NO SECRET that a Californian Christmas is a world a way from the ones most of us grew up with - many of us transplants don't have family around us, and when the weather is sunny and 60 degrees - kind of like a British summer day - it doesn't really help us get in to the festive spirit. Knowing that many Brits in LA members feel particularly homesick this time of year gives us all the more reason to do our best to get everyone together. And what better way is there to kick off the holiday season than with a good old knees-up? This year we opted for a sit-down dinner at Birch Restaurant on Cahuenga Boulevard in Hollywood, and British head chef and owner Brendan Collins, together with his GM Jimmy surpassed our expectations and laid on an excellent feast of roast beef and turkey, stuffing, roast potatoes, Yorkshire pudding, accompanied by tons of fresh veg topped with lashings of gravy. This was followed by Christmas pudding with a sauce so delicious that my fellow diners were fighting over the last drips. There was so much food available that some of our 60 guests were encouraged to take the leftovers home! It really was such a wonderful evening, everyone was very merry; pulling crackers, wearing paper party hats and having their photos taken with Father Christmas. A big shout out to Len Davies for donning the Santa suit once again for us. I can't decide whether it was the kids or the adults who were most excited to be dining with Santa. Craig and I can't thank everyone enough for attending, it was lovely to catch up with old friends and make some new ones. We even got to have a drink with BW editor Neil Fletcher as he broke the unwritten Westsider rule and ventured east of the 405!

Special mentions go to our longtime supporters Beltran Brito and Air New Zealand and to DJ Bas Elgharib for providing the music and not forgetting to play Wham's 'Last Christmas'. It wouldn't be a real Christmas party without that, would it?

For those of you

NICE AND NAUGHTY?: Marina Paganucci, Sandro Monetti and Sarah Farooqi-Thompson

who missed out on our gathering don't despair, as our Pub Quiz at the Pikey is back next Tuesday. This will be an extra special one as we will also be celebrating our quizmaster Sandro Monetti's birthday! If you don't have a team to play with just show up by 7.45pm and we will find you one to join. Not all questions are British so don't be worried if you aren't either. Everyone welcome! Details can be found at www.britsin.la or drop us a line at info@britsin.la

Can young Beckham "Cruz" to No.1 with debut pop single?

Not only has he just signed a huge deal with top US music manager Scooter Braun, but seriously folks, Cruz Beckham has officially revealed his debut pop single - a festive track called 'If Every Day Was Christmas'.

All was revealed earlier this week on popular British radio station Capital FM and the catchy song is already on Spotify... AND if this little publicity blast is anything to go by, then 'baby' Beckham, who is clearly following in his mom's footsteps, is surely on course for the UK Christmas No.1 spot.

Oo-er!

The station interviewed Becks junior about the track, with the young lad explaining his rationale behind the song: "It's two of my favorite things - singing and Christmas."

Cruz also announced the news on his Instagram account, writing: "IfEveryDayWasChristmas out now on @AppleMusic!! All proceeds to @globals_make_some_noise".

The tune features

11-year-old Cruz singing the line: "If every day was Christmas and I can't be with you, underneath the mistletoe, kiss you when nobody knows."

Sales from 'If Every Day Was Christmas' will benefit Global's Make Some Noise organisation - which funds charities across the UK.

The track is produced by Rodney Jerkins, who has worked with icons including Michael Jackson, Rihanna, Justin Bieber, Lady Gaga and, yes, the Spice Girls throughout his career.

Not that everyone is completely happy with the song, as Piers Morgan took the opportunity on Good Morning Britain this morning to accuse the Beckhams of 'pimping Cruz out,' later adding: "I'm trying to protect Cruz Beckham from his fame-hungry parents."

When Cruz joined Instagram this week he quickly attracted over 30,000 subscribers in just one hour, which is clear testament to his social media appeal.

Well, I must say, at least it's all for a good cause!

Red-hot Dornan set to light up the Green Lantern?

Is sexy 50 Shades of Grey star Jamie Dornan being tipped to play Green Lantern in the upcoming Justice League movie? That's the rumor doing the rounds!

A Twitter feed posted a "casting alert" that Dornan is in talks with movie giants Warner Bros to play the hero who's sworn to preserve intergalactic order in Justice League, directed by Zack Snyder.

At press time the rumors had not been confirmed, but they jibe with chatter that Dornan is to be replaced on the Fifty Shades of Grey sequel. But the Irish star is a talented lad I'm sure he could hold down both jobs at once...

If Dornan does sign on for Snyder, he'll be in some high-octane company. The movie, slated for a November 2017 release, will star Ben Affleck as Batman, Henry Cavill as Superman, Gal Gadot as Wonder Woman, Ezra Miller as The Flash, J.K. Simmons as Commissioner Gordon and Willem Dafoe as Atlantean, Nuidis Vulko.

Talk about a galaxy of stars!

Blame me for Foxes' humbling - Ranieri

| GROUP G | P | W | D | L | F | A | Pts |

| LEICESTER | 6 | 4 | 1 | 1 | 7 | 6 | 13 |
| PORTO | 6 | 3 | 2 | 1 | 9 | 3 | 11 |

Leicester City boss Claudio Ranieri accepted the blame for Wednesday's 5-0 defeat by Porto in the Champions League but felt some of his fringe players missed an opportunity to impress him.

With the Foxes already through to the last 16, Ranieri made 10 changes.

Those he selected struggled to compete with Porto as Leicester suffered the heaviest defeat by an English side in Champions League history.

"I decided to change the team - the result is my fault," said Ranieri.

"My players lost a very great chance to show me their best.

"I have no regrets because I wanted to give an opportunity to all my players."

Leicester had sealed first place in Group G with a game to spare after winning four and drawing one of their previous five games.

It gave Ranieri the luxury of being able to give first-team regulars like Jamie Vardy and Riyad Mahrez a rest, especially ahead of a tough game against Manchester City in the Premier League on Saturday.

The Foxes are two points above the relegation zone and Ranieri said facing Pep Guardiola's side was on his mind when he chose his team to face Porto.

If I needed to win or draw, I would bring all my first team to fight," he added.

"But when you know there is another difficult match Saturday against Manchester City and you are top of the group, why not give a chance to players who say 'why don't I play? We are losing in the Premier League, give me a chance'.

"For this reason, I give a chance to them. That's it. Then, the result is my fault but they missed a great chance."

Wembley win at last for Spurs

Tottenham finally ended their Wembley hoodoo with a convincing 3-1 win over CSKA Moscow on Wednesday to secure a place in the Europa League knockout stage.

Spurs, who needed to avoid defeat to secure third in Group E, went behind when Alan Dzagoev scored from Zoran Tosic's headed flick-on.

But Dele Alli, who had already missed two good chances, half-volleyed in Christian Eriksen's cross to level, before Harry Kane finished a stylish move to put Spurs in front.

Akinfeev gifted Spurs a third when he inadvertently guided Alli's header into his own net after making an initial save.

It means Tottenham will enter the Europa League for the sixth consecutive season after their first appearance in the Champions League for five years ended in disappointment.

But there were positive signs for Spurs as they created numerous chances in a performance inspired by Eriksen's creativity and range of passing.

But despite the home side dominating much of the proceedings, manager Mauricio Pochettino will be concerned with the defensive lapse which gifted the visitors the lead. Stand-in center half Eric Dier was clearly at fault as he missed Dzagoev's run and clearly lacks the understanding with Jan Vertongen that is the hallmark of the injured Toby Alderweireld.

Perez shines as Gunners book top spot

■ 'Less guilt' says Wenger as Arsenal avoid second place finish at last Arsenal finished top of Champions League Group A thanks to a Lucas Perez hat-trick in Basel and Paris St-Germain's draw with Ludogorets Razgrad on Tuesday.

PSG would have sealed top spot with victory, with anything less letting in the Gunners, who took control through two Perez tap-ins.

Perez drove in his third from the edge of the box and Alex Iwobi rolled in a fourth before Seydou Doumbia cut through for a Basel consolation.

A 2-2 draw in Paris left Arsenal top of a group for the first time since 2011-12.

Arsene Wenger's side failed to make it past the last 16 that year, and have fallen at the first knockout stage in each of the past six seasons.

Aside from breaking their run of second-placed group finishes, the Gunners have also gone through a group stage unbeaten for the first time since they reached the final in 2005-06.

"We wanted to do our job and got lucky with the PSG result," said Gunners manager Arsene Wenger after the match.

"We can still have a difficult draw," said Wenger. "But there's less guilt when you finish first in the group because you feel you have done your job and you play the second leg of the first knockout tie at home.

"It is what we wanted but, at the moment, the difficulty of the draw will not be much different."

Wenger also paid tribute to the sharpness of striker Perez.

"The first two were quite easy goals, created by the team," said Wenger. "But the third goal is a real striker's goal.

"He scored over 20 goals in Spain last year and tonight he showed why. He has a real eye for goal."

Arsenal will avoid Monaco and Barcelona, who eliminated them in 2015 and 2016 respectively, as well as Atletico Madrid and Napoli in Monday's draw.

However, teams they could still be paired with include Bayern Munich, who knocked them out in 2013 and 2014, and one of Borussia Dortmund or Real Madrid.

Mkhitarian shines as Red Devils dominate in Odessa

Manchester United have reached the Europa League knockout stages by beating Zorya Luhansk 2-0 on Thursday with Henrikh Mkhitarian striking a fine first goal for the club.

The Red Devils dominated in the Ukrainian city of Odessa, but long-range efforts from Wayne Rooney and Paul Pogba were their best moments despite having 76% of first-half possession.

But Mkhitarian, who has now started three games in a row, dribbled from halfway to apply a cool finish after the break.

A key save from Sergio Romero maintained the lead before Zlatan Ibrahimovic raced clear to slot home as United progressed behind Fenerbahce, who won at Feyenoord.

In Monday's draw, United will now face any of the other Europa League group winners or FC Copenhagen, Lyon or Besiktas, who all enter the last 32 of the Europa League having exited the Champions League.

Crowd trouble mars bore draw

Manchester City and Celtic played out a low-key 1-1 draw as their Champions League group phase concluded at Etihad Stadium Tuesday night.

This was a dead rubber with City already assured of second place in Group C and Celtic eliminated with no chance of Europa League football.

Celtic started in impressive fashion and on-loan winger Patrick Roberts gave them a fourth-minute lead against his parent club with a crisp finish - an advantage that lasted four minutes before Kelechi Iheanacho drove an angled drive high past Craig Gordon.

And Celtic almost cashed in but substitutes Leigh Griffiths and Gary Mackay-Steven wasted late opportunities.

City boss Pep Guardiola made nine changes from the team that lost at home to Chelsea on Saturday, including teenagers Pablo Maffeo and Tosin Adarabioyo.

Both Guardiola and Celtic manager Brendan Rodgers seemed satisfied at the final whistle, with the only dampener on the night being when scuffles broke out between a small number of rival supporters in the second half.

Uefa have charged Celtic in connection with the crowd trouble, making it the tenth time in the past five years the club have been charged by European football's governing body cont. on page 19, col. 4
