Eaton Square named UK's priciest street

London's Eaton Square has been named the most expensive place to buy property in the UK, with a home costing an average of nearly £17m.

The Belgravia address tops a list that shows every English region now contains "million pound" streets.

Research by Lloyds Bank also shows the most expensive street in Wales is Llandudno's Llys Helyg Drive, with an average property price of £1.064m.

The Scores, St Andrews, tops Scotland's list with an average of almost £2.2m Eaton Square made it to the top of the property stack based on recorded land registry prices.

Built in the 19th Century around a private garden, it features stucco white facades and is handy for Knightsbridge and Chelsea.

modest price rises

Outside of London, addresses in Surrey and Oxshott - the home of Wimbledon champion and Sports Personality of the Year Andy Murray - feature in the top 20 most expensive residential streets, along with Poole and Oxford.

North of London, England's most expensive address is Park Lane, Altrincham, with an average property price of just over £2m.

Wales has two streets with average property prices in excess of £1m - Llys Helyg Drive in Llandudno, where homes typically fetch £1,064m, and St Anne's Close in Swansea where average properties go for £1,029m.

Scotland figures were produced by the Bank of Scotland. Although the top spot went to a street

Forecasters at the Royal

Chartered Institute of Surveyors are predicting a 3% typical price rise for houses in the UK next year, in spite of Brexit uncertainties.

The Nationwide Building Society is more cautious, estimating prices will grow at 2%, fuelled by continuing low interest rates.

Not so bubbly: Champagne-mad Brits face higher prices

Champagne drinkers in Britain - the biggest export market for bubbly - face higher prices next year as the impact of the shock Brexit vote on the British pound takes its toll, champagne industry executives warned.

"The market in Britain is undergoing a period of adjustment. The brands have not yet factored in the effect of foreign exchange rates on their prices," said Charles-Armand de Belenet, marketing director for Pernod Ricard's Martell Mumm Perrier-Jouët champagne brand.

The June vote fo Britain to quit the European Union led sterling to slump to its lowest level since 1985 against the U.S dollar and to fall against the euro, although it has since edged back up from those lows.

The weak pound makes euro-priced products more expensive in sterling terms.

French champagne industry executives told Reuters that while they had managed to offset the Brexit impact to an extent this year, with some firms delaying price rises, they would have to raise prices in Britain in 2017 to protect their profit margins.

Bruno Paillard, who heads the Lanson champagne house, said that while Lanson's sales were showing signs of an increase from last year, exchange rates remained a worry.

"The question of exchange rates is a cause for concern, it represents quite a considerable loss of money," said Paillard.

Jean-Marie Barillere, president of the Union of Champagne Houses, said champagne firms that billed in euros were seeing their costs go up and their orders go down.

Taittinger head Pierre-Emmanuel Taittinger said his company had had a "good year, even in England," but Bollinger executive Jerome Philipon warned champagne drinkers of higher prices next year.

"The major brands will have to hike their prices from January onwards. But one price hike still won't compensate for the hits from the exchange rate," he said.

France exported 150.7 million bottles of champagne in 2015, worth 2.64 billion euros ($2.76 billion), according to an industry group. Britain accounted for nearly 23 percent of France's champagne exports by volume that year, equivalent to 34.2 million bottles.

Court gives go ahead to environmental activist to sue Trump resort for 'secretly filming her'

A court in Edinburgh has ruled that an environmental activist Donald sue Trump's golf resort near Aberdeen for breach of privacy and compensation after she was apparently filmed without her consent on the course.

A lawyer acting for Rohan Beyts, a long-time critic of resort's impact on the environment and community, accused Trump's staff of breaching the Data Protection Act by taking mobile-phone footage of her in April as she allegedly urinated behind a dune on the course.

The ruling raises the prospect of Trump facing a battle in the Scottish small claims court a few months into his first term as US president.

Guardian The newspaper revealed in August that Trump International Golf Course Scotland, which is wholly owned by Trump, had breached the UK's strict laws on data protection and privacy after it failed to register with the Information Commissioner's Office, despite operating an extensive CCTV system and handling data on thousands of golfers, guests, staff and suppliers. The resort insisted this was due to a clerical error.

Beyts's lawyer, Mike Dailly, said the result was "Although 'fantastic'. the defendant sought to have the case dismissed as incompetent, or transferred to the ordinary courts with unlimited expenses, or transferred to Aberdeen, all attempts to stop the case progressing were rejected by the sheriff," he said. "So now there is a case to answer, and witnesses will have to give evidence on behalf of TIGC".

Beyts, 62, said she was delighted with the result and looked forward to making her case.

The case arose from an incident last April when Beyts and a friend used a public footpath across the Trump course to reach the sand dunes and beach that border the golf links. Returning from their walk, the pair say there were challenged by resort staff and then photographed by a local newspaper photographer.

Three days later Beyts was visited at home by two Police Scotland officers who formally charged her with public annoyance. A third officer in charge of the complaint told her that two members of Trump's staff and a guest on the course had filmed her on their mobile phones as she ducked out of sight.

Her prosecution raised fresh accusations from Trump's critics that his staff were deliberately persecuting opponents and closely monitoring their movements on the resort.

The claim was heard before Sheriff Gordon Liddle on Thursday morning, who swiftly dispatched the arguments made by Paul Motion, the solicitor advocate acting for the Dailly argued that the case was a straightforward claim for invasion of privacy, on the basis that the resort had admitted it was not registered with the ICO, and that being filmed without her consent had caused distress to Beyts, for which she was seeking £3,000.

Motion questioned whether a small claims court was competent to deal with such a case.

Liddle concluded. however, that while he was aware that he was "dealing with ifs and buts, not black and white", nothing had persuaded him that the case was incompetent as a small claim.

When Motion argued that the case should be held in Aberdeen,

WATER HAZARD: Rohan Beyts was filmed having a tinkle on Trump's course near Aberdeeen closer to the golf course and relevant witnesses, Liddle quipped: "Should I transfer it to Manhattan?" before noting that there was no reason why Beyts could not sue a company in the place where it had a registered office, in this case, Edinburgh.

The next hearing is set to begin on 3 April and last for three days.

TEED OFF: Mr Trump's staff at the resort said they filmed Ms Beyts to protect their clients from 'such behaviour'

Centenarian jailed for historic sex crimes

■ Ralph Clarke 'used fear and intimidation' to control and abuse his victims, Crown Prosecution Service tells court

A 101-year-old man has been jailed for 13 years for committing 30 child sex offences.

Ralph Clarke, of Erdington, Birmingham, is thought to be the oldest person convicted in British legal history.

Judge Richard Bond QC said Clarke had been guilty of "systematic abuse" between 1974 and 1983.

He was found guilty of 21 counts of abusing two girls and admitted nine charges relating to a boy during his trial at Birmingham Crown

The court heard the retired haulier abused the girls at his home in Holly Lane, Erdington, his garden shed, and in the cab of his truck.

'No remorse'

The former RAF serviceman, who was born in March 1915, was given details of the sentencing by an intermediary.

Judge Bond said the passage of time did not mean abusers would escape justice.

He told Clarke: "You present as a fragile old man; however, what was plain to see was that, despite your guilty pleas, you have no remorse whatsoever."

The judge added: "Those who were sexually abused even in the distant past can rest assured that any complaint will be treated with sympathy and compassion."

The court heard Clarke is the "oldest person tried in English criminal court".

He had been able to follow proceedings because special arrangements had been made.

Passing sentence, Judge Bond said the effect of a jail term on him would be "enormous" and he would sentence in a "measured and reflective manner" due to his age and infirmity.

However, he said the case was so serious "only a lengthy sentence" was justified.

Clarke's victims reported the offences to West Midlands Police in August last year after seeing Facebook posts celebrating his 100th birthday.

Clarke admitted two counts of attempting to commit a serious sexual offence, two of indecency with a child and five indecent assaults on a boy.

The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) said Clarke's wellbeing age and considered but the serious nature of his offences, breach of trust and vulnerability of his victims meant a "prosecution was in the public interest".

"Ralph Clarke used fear and intimidation to control the victims and sexually abuse them," a spokesman said.

The police and CPS also praised the victims' courage and bravery in bringing Clarke to justice.

The NSPCC said: "Clarke not only inflicted

RALPH CLARKE: the oldest person tried in English criminal court appalling abuse on his victims, he put them through the harrowing ordeal of a crown court trial - and did not show a shred of remorse throughout.

"This case sends out a clear message that it is never too late for survivors of abuse to speak out."

Teachers at a primary school in Milton Keynes were told not to blow a whistle to mark the end of playtime because it is "too aggressive", and the noise could startle the children. Instead, staff at St Monica's Catholic Primary were asked to raise a hand in the air, and wait for pupils to notice the signal. However, teaching assistant Pamela Cunningham revealed that she still carried a whistle in case of emergencies.

WILTSHIRE: Police in Wiltshire were accused of wasting public money after they sent nine squad cars – sirens blaring – to a cul-de-sac in Salisbury, in response to a 999 call that a "madman" was on the loose with a "bladed weapon". The madman  $turned \, out \, to \, be \, a \, gardener \,$ trimming a hedge, but a spokeswoman insisted that the police's response had been correct, because every call should be taken seriously.

SOMERSET: A leading independent school has done away with traditional PE lessons and replaced them with "wellbeing" classes. Pupils at Wellington School in Somerset can use these sessions to do Pilates, yoga or Zumba, or to practise mindfulness. The headmaster, Henry Price, said that not all children enjoyed team sports, and that they shouldn't be forced into "an arms race of competitiveness that removes all the fun".

DORSET: "Disorderly" pensioners were reported to be wreaking havoc in the queue for a Dorset bus. A new breed of rude and aggressive OAPs were accused of pushing past other passengers to get on the Purbeck Breezer. One retiree mentioned a "relatively young OAP" who jumped the queue in Bournemouth - but nobody said anything, because he was "bigger than them".

NORTHANTS: Northampton couple treated their guests to a "freegan" feast - made up entirely of thrown-away food - when they tied the knot in August. For their wedding, sustainable Hedges Nicola Christopher McKenna hired a catering firm that only uses food discarded by supermarkets.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE:

Couples are having less sex because they're hooked on watching box sets, a Cambridge statistician has warned. The average couple now has sex just three times a month, down from five times in 1990 - a decline David Spiegelhalter blames on people bingeing on TV series instead of going to bed. In the past, he says, many couples had sex because there was "nothing else to do".

Ex-soldier jailed for Rooney raid

■ Wife Coleen tells of 'sleepless nights' after masked burglar struck

Robert McNamara arrives at Chester Crown Court ahead of being sentenced

A FORMER serviceman has been jailed for two years and eight months for attempting to burgle Wayne Rooney's mansion while the footballer played in a club testimonial match.

Robert McNamara, 25, from Scarborough, North Yorkshire, admitted attempting to enter as a trespasser at the Manchester United striker's family home in Prestbury, Cheshire, with intent to steal on August 3. In a victim impact statement read at Chester Crown Court, the player's wife Coleen said the incident had caused sleepless nights and had made her fear for the safety of their three children while playing in the garden.

Jo Maxwell, prosecuting, said McNamara had entered the grounds of the family's home at about 8.30pm and had activated the perimeter alarm system. CCTV showed him walking around the grounds, with his face covered by a balaclava, and trying a door handle. The court heard police searching the grounds later found a rucksack, containing items including cable ties, a head torch and a balaclava, which had McNamara's DNA on it. When police searched his home, after arresting him six days later, they found a second rucksack containing a ski mask with black tape over it, which the court heard could have been used as a blindfold. Police described seeing a man acting suspiciously when they arrived at the home but said he got into his car and drove away.

'worrying and watching'

In a victim impact statement which was read to the court, Mrs Rooney said: "After it happened it caused sleepless nights, worrying and watching security cameras fearing someone was there. "I feared for my children playing outside in the garden and still do."

She said it caused anxiety when her husband was away and she no longer felt comfortable in the home

ANXIETY: Coleen (pictured with husband Wayne) said she no longer felt comfortable in the home unless a friend or family member was with her unless a friend or family member was with her. She said the couple had spent extra money on security since the incident. Mrs Rooney said she and the family, including the couple's sons Kai, Klay and Kit, had been at the tribute game at Old Trafford for what was meant to be a "night of celebration", but she had returned home to find the house full of police.

She said: "I'm just happy the children were asleep and didn't have to see what was going on."

Taryn Jones Turner, defending, said McNamara had served seven years in the armed forces and had "not found life on Civvy Street as easy as he expected that it would be". She said since the incident he had been diagnosed with bipolar affective disorder and was receiving medication and was being supported by the Royal British Legion.

Sentencing, Judge Thompson Patrick said: "It's concerning as to what your intent would have been had you gained entrance to the property and come across somebody else. I find it was no coincidence that this was the night of Wayne Rooney's testimonial and you knew he would be away from the house."

This holiday season, learn to say NO!

■ Step out from fear and shame or worrying about not fitting in - or you'll be paying for all that extra food and drink well into the New Year...

"Commitment is an exclusionary process". Quite an interesting statement...but what does it really mean?

In our line of work here at The Body Camp in Ibiza, (thebodycamp.com) we've seen that saying NO has huge power.

Too often in life we say YES to everything, over committing, over indulging ourselves and even saying YES to please other people.

Which is why we make it a priority to discuss boundaries with our friends, hosts and guests, since they play an important part in our lives. Without them, we would say YES to everything and feel powerless, leading to devastating effects.

During the winter season and especially over the holidays, it's vital to remember that saying YES to many things, can lead to short term pleasure but long term discomfort, pain and consequences. We can say YES to many things in life and sometimes this can be "Commitment is an a good thing - on certain exclusionary process". occasions!

But saying NO can be very powerful too. When we say NO, we are remembering who's important (you) and understand that people or external events have no real power over us....it's how we think about the event or people's words that give them power!

We always have the choice to say NO to anything in life, which we feel will not benefit us - especially in regards to our health.

There are many reasons that people are afraid of saying NO.... fear of hurting someone's feelings - about health-related beliefs, or about better nutrition choices. Then there is fear of abandonment and of not "fitting in" with friends, who might all want to go out drinking. Fear of shame - of eating healthily in front of others, being seen as a 'health nut' or of people looking at you at the gym. Fear of being seen as bad or selfish – just for looking after yourself. Yes, the list goes on and on, but you have to eliminate not just the bad choices but also the mindset of shame. Because here is what can happen when we say YES too often....

Saying YES to that extra alcoholic drink at a social event can lead to worse decision making later!

Saying YES to a second helping of food at the buffet or at a family gathering - can lead to more body fat and bad feelings! (A moment on the lips, a lifetime on the hips!)

Saying YES to friends who wants you to go somewhere, instead of hitting the gym at night time!

But here are some examples of what happens when NO is used to powerful effect by you and others....

"NO, I do not want another large plate of food – again - thank you" (To say when the family are over-feeding you during the holidays).

"NO, I am not gonna to buy more sweets to fill up my cupboards - I will buy fruits instead!

"NO, I don't mind if you think I am a "health freak" - just because I drink a Bodycamp smoothie every day (forgive the shameless plug!)

Have a think about how many times you are saying NO - is it often enough to achieve your health goals? In the end this is about control, who is control of your body, you? Or external forces like peer pressure and shame. This holiday season, take control and see the benefits in the year to come!

Meet a Member: Archie Galbraith

Meet Archie Galbraith, who hails from a tiny village Glasgow named Lochwinnoch, and who moved to LA 11 years ago "to pursue the accumulation of wealth.... (unfortunately timed with the arrival of the recession so I had to put up with lifestyle improvements instead)."

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I was moving to join a start-up company and LA was where my first client was based. We were supposed to move to New Jersey but having lived there before, we decided to give the West Coast a try - thereby neatly avoiding issues like rain that turns into ice when it lands.

What do you miss most from home?

The Today show on Radio 4 as you drive to work; apple crumble; high quality TV advertising. The thing I miss the most is the Scottish habit of just dropping in to a friend's house. Not making appointments for dinner, just dropping by for a coffee and a chat unannounced that might turn into dinner, a trip to the pub or a friendly "sorry, too busy". And the relaxed approach to social life. Mind you - I missed that when I lived in London too.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

First impression - a huge sprawling mess with ugly above-ground power lines everywhere, ugly strip malls and the same shops over and over again.

My impression of LA has changed a lot. I have discovered nuances and character that I wasn't aware of at first. There are clear differences in the different parts of town - like any other large city I've lived in, so the trick is to find the part of town that reflects your style. The other thing I realized was that in-between all those chain stores are a myriad of independents offering just about anything you want. That's LA for me - anything you want as long as you have the cash and are willing to drive. Want to learn Kung Fu, Horse Riding, Circus Trapeze? – it's all here.

What do you find the difference biggest is living here versus Lochwinnoch?

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

The Theatricum Botanicum in Topanga. (theatricum.com) you remember Grandpa Walton? Played by Will Geer who was reportedly backlisted during McCarthyism and moved onto a parcel of land in Topanga Canyon shared with his friend Woodie Guthrie. Will's built an outdoor theater among the mature trees and streams of the upper canyon and it's still run by his family. Rivals the setting of any outdoor stage I've ever been to. It houses a professional theatre company that performs classic and modern works in a natural amphitheater. It's a center for the arts, culture and social expression.

would What you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? It can be a fantastic place to live. The weather and the opportunities for learning, hobbies and fun are outstanding. It can also be overwhelming because of its size. Just like any city, the places that are easiest to afford are not likely to be very close to the places you want to be and unlike London, there isn't likely to be a train to get you there. It's also a brilliant place for business.

You MUST have a job that includes family health insurance, be prepared to struggle at first to establish a credit history - start by putting cash in a local bank which guarantees a debit card. Use the card and replace the cash you spend. But trying to lease a car, get Cable TV or sign up for utilities are all made more difficult without a credit score.

HAPPY CHRISTMAS AND A TRULY MAGNIFICENT AND GLORIOUS NEW YEAR IN 2017 TO ONE AND ALL!

ARIES: Its time for some kind of change in your routine; whatever works - a short trip out of town or planning a family party. You will be much in demand and may be have to pick and choose. Have a great Christmas holiday!

TAURUS: On occasion you can pull the proverbial rabbit out of the hat and you will definitely get the chance this week when unexpected guests arrive for the holidays. Get out your holiday spirit and enjoy it all.

GEMINI: Your ruler Mercury is now strolling backwards in Earth sign Capricorn meaning it can be a somewhat difficult time, communicationwisse. If you are patient life will be more positive this week and over the holiday. It has been sometimes trying in some areas recently.

CANCER: The past month has not brought what you hoped (or perhaps expected) and for sure not what was your plan. However you have to remember the old saying about the greatest plans of mice and men, and whatever happens you will have Jolly Holidays.

LEO: Yes, this is a time for your inner strength to show itself for some of you who are not participating in life as you can, so as this holiday season progresses so take immediate action. Happy gatherings with friends will cheer you.

VIRGO: It's time for a trip, and short or long, near or far matters not as you benefit from the change of scenery. Just make sure you have backup plans as things are apt to change with your boss Mercury going backwards. Be good for Santa Claus.

LIBRA: By midweek or so you will have more time to relax, so do not rush around, you can get anything you need completed in the end. Then you will feel ready for the holidays. A happy time with old friends is on the cards.

SCORPIO: Here it is again, the holiday of the year in all of its finery. This year it's your time to dress up and be sure to be around people you can let your hair down with and who are on your favorites list...life is too short for grinches!

SAGITTARIUS: A new venture will brighten up your life in a few weeks and it's best to keep a handle on the finances until then. Be dressed and ready to be noticed this party season asyour lovely boss Jupiter is smiling on you currently.

CAPRICORN: The changes in life start with your thought process, so no Bah Humbug this year for you. The fact that Mercury is going backwards in your life and it's time to reflect on the good you have done, not what remains undone. Happy Birthday!

AQUARIUS: It's that time of the year to begin the celebrations, especially if you have been out if sorts or a little blue lately. It is likely you will have unexpected visitors stop by for some holiday cheer, so enjoy.

PISCES: Be ready for an unexpected change of plans this holiday season. It will be for the best overall if you set a financial limit this year. This is especially true for family members!

The sheer bliss of LA at Christmas

Are you staying in town for the holidays? If so, you are in for a treat.

Los Angeles becomes a ghost town and the city can be your oyster (I wonder if that is how London's travel pass was named?) This is the time to REALLY take advantage of the empty freeways and explore Southern California. You really can go skiing in the morning then watch the sunset over the ocean on the same day.

I am happy to report that we are expecting a lot more rain. This is not only good news as we are still in a severe drought, but it also means snowfall the mountains. Wrightwood's Mountain High resort (www.mthigh.com) is a 90-minute drive from Hollywood - whilst it might not be the best ski conditions California has to offer, the fact that you can easily do it all in one day is a blessing. I have been a couple of times and it really is a simple journey. If you have never attempted to ski you can book a lesson and they will have you on the slopes in no time. For an overnight trip check out Big Bear resort. Costco, AAA and even Ralphs often have deals on lift tickets so make sure to check before you purchase. Even closer to home is Snow Day LA by Dodger Stadium at The Old Lodge - they don't offer skiing but they have 10.000 acres of fake snow, tubing lanes, giant snowmen and an hourly snow blizzards!

Visit www. snowlosangeles.com and check out their offers section for an extra 15% off tickets.

If you would rather be beside the seaside goldstar.com. visit have brilliant discounts on tickets for whale watching, beach Segway tours and for most of the events on the Queen Mary including Chill; Alice in Wonderland for $20!

We have received a lot of messages asking for restaurant recommendations over Christmas - many booked weeks advance - the simplest way to find a last minute reservation is to go to opentable.com where you can type in your preferred location and time and they will instantly tell you what is available. If you just fancy a walk and a pint after you have watched the Queens Speech (available on the official Monarchy British YouTube channel) a few bars and pubs will be open including The Fox and Hounds in Studio City, The Pikey in Hollywood. Rock & Reilly's Irish Pub are hosting an 'orphan' Christmas for those of you at a loose end, and apparently everyone will get a present! # Craig and Bond: Never say Never - AGAIN?

It has been a little more than a year Spectre hit theaters and since then, the story of the next installment in the James Bond franchise has been a revolving door of confusion.

According to my sources, James Bond bosses are said to be 'panicking' over the proposed 2018 film as they've not yet got a lead actor... Oo-er!

Producers hoping Daniel Craig will return to the role but he's yet to confirm whether he wants to take part.

MGM executives are reportedly at a "stalemate" with the 48-year-old star – with little contact between the camps.

insider An "Daniel said: and MGM are currently at a stalemate with him having not spoken to them about Bond.

"They have offered a bigger wage deal, and asked about his filming availability to his reps in 2017, but as yet they have not spoken to Daniel.

"They want Bond 25 out in October 2018, but currently they have no Bond, film dates or knowledge of when that will change.

"Daniel's commitment is also a key part of whether Sony Pictures will come in to co-finance the film. So much is hanging in the air - and no-one knows."

BACK TO BOND? Daniel Craig is reluctant...

Sony and MGM have had a very successful partnership during the Daniel Craig era, with 2012's Skyfall being the high watermark of that partnership.

The movie was met with a ton of praise from fans and critics and was the first movie in the franchise to ever cross $1 billion at the box different story.

The flick was much more divisive among fans and critics and didn't quite match Skyfall's box office, but still brought in very respectable $880 million. perhaps more importantly, the shoot was exhausting and reportedly took a huge toll on Craig.

an interview In very shortly after the movie wrapped, he famously said that he would rather"slash his wrists" than do another Iames Bond movie. However, he more recently walked back office. But Spectre was a those comments and seemed more interested in returning - maybe.

The actor is currently working with Barbara Broccoli executive director of the Bond films - on Broadway in New York where he is starring in Othello.

Cushing resurrected in latest Star Wars chapter!

THE STAR WARS villain Grand Moff Tarkin, the 'governor' who watches from afar as the Death Star is assembled, has been resurrected the lastest Lucas Films installment - Rogue One: A Star Wars Story...

And I have to say, it's a genius piece of CGI!

The Imperial Commander, originally played by the late British actor Peter Cushing in 1977's 'Episode IV - A New Hope' has long been rumored to make an appearance in 'Rogue One', which takes place just prior to the events of that first film.

Now, at long last, the film has arrived, and I have to say, the filmmakers ahve produced an uncanny and breathtaking resemblance to Cushing's original role

The British actor may have died in 1994, but the character has lived on in comics, cartoons, and novels, and even walked the bridge of a Star Destroyer in the final moments of 2005's Revenge of the Sith. He was played in that movie by Wayne Pygram, in make-up designed to recreate Cushing's razorcheekboned appearance.

So it's fascinating to see just how Industrial Light and Magic have brought him back. John Knoll, the executive producer and visual effects supervisor for Rogue One, hinted at something revolutionary in a recent interview.

Asked what Holy Grail the visual effects designers were chasing with this film, which never-beforeseen bit of technology they innovated, Knoll said: "I have to tread lightly there because some of the fun bits of innovation are stuff that I've been asked not to talk about yet. You know, we want to hold that back."

Outside of Star Wars,

Cushing is best known for his role in the Hammer Horror films of the 1950s and '60s, often starring alongside Christopher Lee. Despite a career that included over 130 credits, he never received an Oscar nomination. In 1956, he did win a BAFTA TV Award.

"We're talking to a number of people to make sure we get this right. Nothing has been agreed."

In a statement, Pardew said: "Personally I have a lot of good feelings for this football club and am sad that my time there has ended.

"I feel that I have a special bond with the club and hope that hasn't been affected," added the manager, who made more than 100 appearances for Palace as a player between 1987 and 1991 and led them to the FA Cup final last

Cook to bail after India humiliation?

Alastair Cook is "very quitting close" to captain, as England believes former skipper Michael Vaughan.

Cook, 31, said he will 'go home and do some thinking" over his future after the 4-0 Test series defeat by India, which culminated in an innings defeat earlier this week.

"His body language over the last three matches was one where he looks like he might be thinking of calling it a day," Vaughan told BBC Sport.

However, Vaughan believes Cook is not certain to resign and said taking time to decide was the correct move.

"He's earned that right to have a period of time at home. We'll wait and see," the 42-year-old added.

"He's stubborn and mentally very tough. He's been through this sort of spell two or three times in his captaincy and carried

"But he has to be very honest with himself. Does he have the passion and energy to take the team forward through the seven Tests next summer?

1 QUEEN'S PRK (0) 1

And then through the Ashes next winter?

"If the answer is just 1% no, then he has to stand aside.

"Towards the end of my captaincy, I just was not enjoying the game. I could see from his face he just is not enjoying cricket.

"I would think it's very close to being the time to call it quits from his perspective."

But England assistant head coach Paul Farbrace said Cook had the support of players and management.

"If he chooses to step down, that would be a shame because we want him to carry on," said Farbrace.

"When you lose a series 4-0, of course people will talk about the leadership. We all know that.

"But there's nobody looking around the dressing room thinking 'ooh, I wonder who's in charge?' It's very clear who's in charge, and that hasn't changed."

Before the series in India, Cook hinted that he could step down as skipper after the tour.

Last week - with the series already lost - the Essex left-hander said vice-captain Joe Root was "ready" to succeed him.

Vaughan described 25-year-old Root as "a world class player, the best batsman in the team. thoughtful and tactically very astute".

"I do think he'll make a very, very good captain for England and if it's next year I think he'll do a very very good job."

Palace sack manager after dismal 2016

Come and See Santa on Christmas

Crystal Palace have sacked manager Alan Pardew with the club 17th in the Premier League.

Pardew was appointed on a three-and-a-halfyear deal in January 2015 but the 55-year-old has been dismissed after a run of one victory in 11 games.

Palace have taken just 26 points from the 36 Premier League matches they have played in 2016 and are only one point above the relegation zone.

Former England boss Sam Allardyce is the bookmakers' favourite to take over.

The ex-Sunderland, Newcastle and West Ham boss is among those expected to be considered.

Chairman Steve Parish told BBC Sport: "We all bought into the decision to play a more expansive style of football. We all believed in it. That hasn't worked. It's no-one's fault. The players have been running their socks off for Alan, the spirit is good.
