REACHING HER SAPPHIRE JUBILEE, QUEEN JUST GRINS AND BEARS IT....

THE QUEEN could hardly stop smiling on Monday as she prepared to celebrate her sapphire jubilee, marking her 65 years on the throne.

The Prime Minister greeted the big day by remarking: "Today's Sapphire Jubilee marks yet another remarkable milestone for our remarkable Queen.

"I know the nation will join with me today in celebrating and giving thanks for the lifetime of service Her Majesty the Queen has given to our country and to the Commonwealth.

"It is a testament to her selfless devotion to the nation that she is not marking becoming the first monarch to reign for 65 years with any special celebration but instead getting on with the job to which she has dedicated her life.

"She has truly been an inspiration to all of us and I am proud, on behalf of the nation, to offer our humble thanks and congratulations on celebrating this Sapphire Jubilee."

The 41-gun salute was fired by the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery in Green Park at noon.

This was followed by the Band of the Royal Artillery playing a selection of celebratory music close to the firing position, and 89 horses pulling six First World War-era 13-pounder field guns into position in the park. Later, a 62-gun salute by the Honourable Artillery Company was also fired at the Tower of London at 1pm.

'matter of fact'

But despite the extraordinary milestone, there were no grand festivities to mark the head-of-state's achievement.

And the Queen herself was not out and about on official engagements during the landmark day.

Instead, as is usual on Accession Day, she spent it privately at her Sandringham Estate in Norfolk.

The Queen, who missed church over Christmas due to a heavy cold, is believed to have viewed the milestone in a 'matter of fact' fashion.

In 2015, when she thanked the nation for the kind messages after overtaking Queen Victoria to become the longest-reigning monarch in British history, she admitted bluntly that the royal record was "not one to which I have ever aspired".

She added: "Inevitably, a long life can pass by many milestones. My own is no exception."

The Queen celebrated her 90th birthday last year and had a busy schedule c o m m e m o r a t i n g the occasion, with a walkabout, beacon lighting and a black tie dinner for family and friends in Windsor on her actual birthday.

A weekend of national

NOT ONE TO MAKE A FUSS: Her Majesty this week

celebrations, including a party on The Mall, was held for her official birthday in June.

It is likely that any large-scale jubilee celebrations will be reserved for the Platinum Jubilee in 2022 - although any events will take into account the fact that Queen is due to turn 96 that year.

The Duke of Cambridge is about to become a full-time royal this summer and will increase his official duties on behalf of the Queen.

The anniversary of Elizabeth II's accession to the throne in 1952 is a poignant time for the Queen, marking the day her father George VI died.

She often spends Accession Day privately at Sandringham, staying there through the Christmas period. She usually makes her return to Buckingham Palace a few days later.

The Royal gun salutes were staged in London, as is the tradition.

A portrait of the Monarch by British photographer David Bailey was also reissued to mark the milestone.

In the photo, the Queen is seen wearing sapphire jewellery given to her by King George VI as a wedding gift in 1947.

Centenarian WW2 pilot flies again

One of the select group of female Second World War Spitfire pilots has celebrated her 100th birthday by taking to the skies once again.

Mary Ellis spent 15 minutes at the controls of a Spitfire last week as it swooped over West Sussex. "Wizard, this is wizard!" she yelled over the intercom. As one of just 168 women in the Air Transport Auxiliary (the "Ata Girls"), Mrs Ellis clocked up 1,100 hours of flying time, delivering hundreds of Spitfires, Hurricanes, Wellington bombers and other planes to their bases. After the War, she worked as a commercial pilot, and became MD of Sandown Airport on the Isle of Wight.

House speaker faces no confidence motion after he slams Donald Trump

■ Bercow faces vote after saying the US President should not be allowed to address Parliament

John Bercow faces a vote of no confidence in the House of Commons after a Conservative MP tabled a motion response to the Speaker's harsh criticism of Donald Trump this week.

Mr Bercow said the US President should not be allowed to address Parliament when he visits the UK for a state visit later this year.

Duddridge, James MP for Rochford and Southend East, described Mr Bercow's comments, which called out the Spirit), and appealed to "O Duchess, my billionaire businessman's "racism" and "sexism", as "wholly inappropriate".

Mr Duddridge tabled the motion after earlier writing to Theresa May to ask for the Commons to be given a free vote in the event of a vote of no confidence in the Speaker.

Labour has said it would oppose a vote of no confidence, with shadow Commons leader Valerie Vaz saying she welcomed Mr Bercow's "support for us and for the reputation of Parliament". She said: "When a person refers to a senator, Elizabeth Warren, as Pocahontas, who is then silenced by her party. When a person repeats the cry, 'Lock her up', of a candidate, when no offence has been committed.

Facing mounting criticism from within his own party, Mr Bercow was forced to defend his comments, which came less than two weeks after Mr Trump's state visit was confirmed. "I was honestly and honourably seeking to discharge my responsibilities to the House," the Speaker said.

He subsequently faced calls to resign on the grounds that he breached the neutrality expected of the Speaker.

But others, including members of Labour and the SNP, came to his defence.

Jeremy Corbyn tweeted: "Well said John Bercow. We must stand up for our country's values. Trump's State Visit should not go ahead."

Liberal Democrat leader Tim Farron responded: "This is the right decision by The Speaker.

"The Prime Minister might wish to kowtow to the nasty misogynist that now sits in the Oval Office but no-one else does. We do not want him to speak to us. He is not welcome."

Poll watch

When British voters were asked which words thev most associate with Donald Trump, "dangerous" was the most popular choice (50%), followed "unstable" (39%) (50%), and "bigot" (35%). 64% say they consider him a threat to international stability, and 44% expect him to be an 'awful' president.

Party girl Tara dies after battling brain tumor

■ Charles 'deeply saddened' by death of his old friend

Socialite Tara Palmer-Tomkinson has been found dead aged 45.

The star, who rose to fame in the 1990s as a hard-partying "It girl", received treatment in 2016 for a non-malignant brain tumour.

The Met Police confirmed a woman in her 40s was found dead at Palmer-Tomkinson's flat in Bramham Gardens, South Kensington, at 13:40 GMT on Tuesday.

Prince Charles, a close friend of the star's family, led tributes and said he was "deeply saddened" by her death.

Palmer-Tomkinson, a former Sunday Times columnist and reality TV star, was a regular on the London party scene in the 1990s and 2000s.

She made headlines for her social life, frequently appearing in the pages of society and celebrity magazines, before later appearing on reality TV.

As well as being a socialite, Palmer-Tomkinson was also a close friend of Prince Charles and attended the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge in 2011.

In a tribute, the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall said their "thoughts are so much with the family".

Television host and former Daily Mirror editor Piers Morgan paid tribute in a tweet that read: "RIP Tara Palmer Tomkinson, 45. A fun, feisty woman who battled many demons. Very sad news."

Cocaine battle

The tabloid darling also battled a high-profile cocaine addiction, which

GIRL. III the 1990s Tara was a gossip page stapie

WELL CONNECTED: Tara Palmer-Tomkinson was a close friend of Prince Charles, both on and off the slopes she discussed publicly on a number of occasions.

She was diagnosed with a tumour last January after returning from a skiing trip and was also suffering from an auto immune disease that caused acute anaemia, tiredness and joint pain.

Palmer-Tomkinson was the youngest of three children of Charles Palmer-Tomkinson, a Hampshire landowner and former British Olympic skier, and his wife, Patti Dawson, an Anglo-Argentinian former model who met her husband while working as a "chalet girl" in Switzerland. Tara's father taught the Prince of Wales to ski in the 70s and the family have remained regular skiing and holidaying partners of the prince and his sons ever since.

Tara's first brush with celebrity came when she was photographed by the paparazzi while giving the prince a chaste kiss at Klosters in 1995. She later boasted, inaccurately: "I have kissed Prince Charles every day since I was four," but she was a friend to his sons and counselled Kate Middleton during her temporary separation from Prince William in 2008 before their marriage.

Her society column in the Sunday Times was wildely popular but her unreliability was problematic for her editors. Advances against the column were used to fuel her cocaine habit, her credit cards were removed because of mounting debts, and in 1999 her parents paid for her to go into rehab in Arizona for a month. Later the drug habit would require the surgical reconstruction of her nose after the septum collapsed.

"Every time I come out of a loo cubicle people ask what she's been doing in there," Palmer-Tomkinson observed later, insisting she had not taken drugs for 10 years.

The partying was gradually replaced by other media appearances on television, in which she $\,$ displayed feistiness and wit. She was the runnerup in the inaugural series of I'm a Celebrity ...Get Me Out of Here in 2002 and followed this up with appearances on other popular TV shows such as Blind Date, Cold Turkey (about her attempt to give up smoking), Loose Women, Top of the Pops and Bognor or Bust.

Even as she cleaned up her act, there were still occasional appearances in the gossip columns, as in 2014 when she was temporarily arrested after creating a scene at Heathrow airport and having to be restrained, but last November she revealed - characteristically in the Daily Mail – that she had been diagnosed with a brain tumour and a growth on her pituitary gland and was scared of dying. She had become frail and reclusive and said: "I am not the person I was. I'm much calmer... the party world scares me. I am a very quiet person now. I have a better perspective on life."

First British woman to fight Isil in Syria says she's willing to die for the cause

A former Maths student from Blackburn has become the first British woman to join the fight against Islamic State in Syria and has said she is willing to die for the Kimberley "Kimmie" Taylor, 27, left the UK last March to join the Kurdish Women's Protection Units (YPJ), the all-female affiliate army of the People's Protection Units (YPG).

Miss Taylor, who has no military experience, travelled first Kurdistan in northern Iraq before crossing into northern Syria last October to take part in the battle for Ragga - the capital of Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant's self-declared caliphate.

She did not tell her parents she was travelling to the warzone until she arrived.

There are thought to be as many as 15 Britons currently fighting alongside the Kurds, but Miss Taylor, a selfstyled "revolutionary", is thought to be the first woman to join their ranks.

"Heading to the frontline in Raqqa," she posted on her Facebook page on Jan 31. Three days later she wrote "19km from Raqqa," next to a photo of some unexploded mines.

Speaking to the Telegraph from the group's base northeast of Raqqa, she confirmed she was with the YPJ and that she was safe.

"I'm willing to give my life for this," Miss Taylor, who now uses her Kurdish name Zilan Dilmar, told the Guardian. "It's for the whole world, for humanity and all oppressed people, everywhere. It's not just [Isil's] killing and raping. It's its systematic mental and physical torture on a scale we can't imagine."

'really tough'

The battle for Isil's major stronghold of Raqqa will be fierce and foreign volunteers will likely face stiff resistance. Three Britons have died in the last few months alone. Last month Ryan Lock, a 20-year-old chef from Chichester, west Sussex, took his own life after being surrounded by Isil fighters during a firefight.

The US-backed YPI took Miss Taylor on as a volunteer with their media team, taking photos of battles and compiling reports. But as fighting has become more intense in recent weeks she has had to pick up a gun.

"This is really tough because vou also have to fight as I'm in the middle of a war," she said. "Actually most of the time I'm not doing any videos at all, but fighting with the unit when we come under attack."

The YPJ has fought alongside the YPG since the beginning their combat operations against Isil in 2014, when the terror group established its 'caliphate".

Miss Taylor grew up near Blackburn but moved to Liverpool as a teenager. She studied maths at the city's university before travelling around the world in her early 20s.

She went on to study political science at Stockholm University and returned to the UK early last year.

During a trip to northern Iraq 18 months ago, she reported on the Kurdish women's movement for a Swedish socialist newspaper.

While there, she met members of the Yazidi leave his home without I made a promise to his two daughters, who were being held captive by the jihadis.

Ramsay's Bordeaux eaterie grabs second Michelin Star

For centuries, the French have prided themselves on being the crème de la crème of the culinary world.

But the long-running rivalry between French and British cuisine has taken a satisfying twist, after Gordon Ramsay became the first Briton to win two Michelin stars in the country.

The 50-year-old chef on Thursday announced he had been awarded his second star for Le Pressoir d'Argent, his fine dining restaurant in Bordeaux.

Opened in the heart of the city by Ramsay just 17 months ago, the restaurant combines British produce with French culinary style. Scallops and langoustine from Scotland often sit alongside Noir de Bigorre ham on the menu, while customers can even ask for a glass of English sparkling

> Speaking winning his second star, Ramsay said the French had been caught "sleeping" and, in recent years, had perhaps been satisfied with resting on their laurels.

"Britons constantly coming up with new ideas and being innovators," he said. "The French were there first, but I think this is a great turning point, not just for the cooks."

He added: "I took a lot of s--t when I brought over wines from Kent and venison from Scotland, but the French didn't turn their noses up at it. They are enjoying it. They were going to hang me upside down in the square but now they love it so much."

BBC suffers a mauling for 'racist' Six Nations ad

■ BBC Wales forced to drop rugby campaign amid complaints it was racist towards the English

It was intended as a lighthearted joke, but a promotional video for the Six Nations coverage has left the BBC red-faced and accused of racism.

A 30-second TV advert for this weekend's Wales v England rugby game asked "What's Good About England" and showed Welsh fans struggling to come up with an answer.

But BBC Wales' attempt at 'banter' backfired spectacularly when furious viewers described it as "racist" and "pathetic" in a series of complaints.

The trailer was made to promote the broadcaster's coverage of the Six Nations game in Cardiff on Saturday when Wales play the current Grand Slam holders.

Aggrieved England fans described it as "parochial rubbish" and "unacceptable", claiming the BBC would not dare to produce a similar video about the Welsh.

England supporter Alex Finlay, 29, said: "If England did this about another country it would be racist.

"The BBC put it out all over social media but it is not acceptable especially at these times when we are all being divided politically.

"I'm travelling from Exeter to the game in Cardiff and expect a bit of friendly banter - but this goes too far."

One angry viewer said: "BBC Wales why do you put this tripe out? It's not funny, it's embarrassing. Can imagine the fuss if the BBC put this out about Wales!"

Another wrote: "Embarrassing. Can tell you from experience English club fans are the most welcoming, gracious you could imagine."

It was posted on BBC Wales' social media accounts on Wednesday - but it was removed within hours in an embarrassing u-turn after a flood of protests.

The corporation said it was taken down when bosses realised it was not hitting "the right notes" with viewers.

BBC Wales has been criticiZed for its anti-English TV trailers in the run up to the rugby tournaments in previous years.

An insider said: "The

WHAT'S GOOD ABOUT ENGLAND? cue blank stares in the Six Nations ad which caused quite a stir in the UK this week trailers are seen as a bit of a wind-up and go down well with Wales viewers.

"But once they spread on social media they can cause offfence."

Wales Even equally fans were unamused. Wales Kai follower Owen tweeted BBCWales "Absolutely say: shocking advert. Hold your heads in shame."

One more said: "As a Welshman this trailer is an embarrassment. Not funny and not banter."

The BBC was desperately trying to withdraw the film from other websites where it has been posted and shared.

A BBC Wales spokeswoman said: "We decided to pull it because it didn't hit the right notes.

"There was no offence intended but we have taken it down after a number of complaints.

"It was one of a series of films which are part of our promotion in the run up the the Six Nations."

Rhun ap Iorwerth, a

Plaid Cymru member of the Welsh Assembly, said: "I'm not surprised they have taken it down it's a terrible advert.

"Surely this is not what promoting Wales and Welsh rugby is about, surely.

"The "as long as we beat the English" mentality needs to stop."

Wales fans regard the England match as the most important in the Six Nations calendar and are trying to stop the old enemy's run of going 16 matches unbeaten.

Getting in early for their Kanye swag...

Dozens of "sneakerheads" have set up camp outside a Nottingham shop selling a new limited edition of Kanye West trainers.

The Adidas Yeezy Boost trainers will go on sale on Saturday but some devoted fans have already been queuing for several days.

"This is the only shop in the UK that is doing a camp," said hopeful buyer, 19-year-old Humzah Najib.

The trainers are priced at £150 in the shops but can reach three times that amount in online auctions.

"As you get close to release time you get a real buzz around and people get real excited," Mr Najib added.

A spokesman for the shop, 18Montrose, said the demand was caused by "the power of the brand".

Those camping out have come armed with sleeping bags, warm clothes and fold-up chairs.

"Kanye is a giant of popular culture - and he is married to Kim Kardashian - so the hype around his brand is huge.

"But even though people say they they love them, they usually buy them to resell them for a profit.

"The trainers cost £150 but can be resold on the day for up to £500.

"Some of his earlier releases are now worth thousands of pounds.

"And this is a rarity to have an in-store release in a small city - you would expect most of them to be sold online or by lottery."

One man in the queue, Rohan, said: "You also need style if you are an 18-year-old boy - you look at people nowadays and everything is about what you look like."

Another added: "I think there are only about 19,000 pairs released worldwide so obviously everybody is going to try to come and pick up their first pair."

Use your head: a quick inversion brings numerous health benefits www.thebodycamp. com, we are going to talk about the benefits of headstands. They not only cool, they are very fun too!

Headstands also have health benefits and here are just ten.....

- 1. They encourage you to breathe! When you are upside down, you have to feed your muscles correctly with the right amount of oxygen...otherwise you can guess what happens!!!
- 2. They encourages you to focus: Focus is essential in this unnatural posture for obvious reasons.... therefore this brings improved concentration levels in other areas of life.
- In today blog from 3. They give you a mini facial and may prevent you going grey: We re-direct blood flow to the head and scalp, bringing nutrients with it! Notice how you go red after a head stand - good for skin because it gives you a glow and improves the appearance of skin!
 - benefit They Lymphatic the system: This directly stimulates the system by reversing it and therefore helping remove toxins from the body!
 - 5. Switches on the stabilizing muscles: The core and various muscles around the shoulders and the back are used - with massive benefits for us in terms of posture and balance in daily life (especially people who work in an office).

- 6. They promote the circulation and unblock your circulatory system: Any poor blood and air flow involving the heart and lungs will quickly be put to the test and involve the blood and air changing direction within the body, which can be good for the system.
- 7. Improved cardiovascular function: The heart and lungs will work together and be put under less stress, due to being in an "anti-gravity" state.
- 8. Stress relief: This move will relieve stress and enable you to take the weight off your feet, change the pressure of blood and air flow around the body and enable you to focus on the most important thing in life - you.

9. Strengthen arms, shoulders and the core: They build up the small stabilizing muscles found in these areas of the body and this will be felt in daily life when carrying or shifting objects like bags of shopping etc! 10. They improve digestion: reversing the digestive track, we create blood flow to important organs, cleaning out

and trapped gasses!!!

Warning! attempt if you are physically fit to do so! Go have some fun and be careful when you start up - begin with a partner and you can laugh with each other too! As you can see, there are many benefits to headstands

HEAD OVER HEELS: and it's good for you and when you attend the body camp, you will find out how much fun they actually are... Rick Parcell Intervention Coach TheBodyCamp.com

Slapton Sands revisited: Kneehigh does it again with 946: The Amazing Story of Adolphus Tips

THIS WEEKEND sees the opening of "946: Then Amazing Story of Adolphus Tips", the latest production from Britain's acclaimed Kneehigh Theatre Company at the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts in Beverly Hills.

Based on the novel by "War Horse" author Michael Morpurgo, the show is set in WW2 Britain in the sleepy Devon village of Slapton Sands – a name which still brings discomfort to Britons of a certain age, and offers an intimate snapshot of life on the homefront. While the war rages elsewhere, Grandpa Tregenza (Mike Shepherd) and his daughter plough on in the fields, and 12-yearold Lily (Katy Owen) is as mischievous as ever, forever chasing after her pet cat Tips. Life, as they say, goes on.

And yet, everything changes. The war is never far away as fathers are absent and rationing cuts deep. A trainload of evacuees arrive, and then US soldiers in rehearsal for a certain cross-channel invasion that is now just weeks away. The soldiers bring music, life and energy, but then it all goes wrong, the tragic death toll at Slapton Sands evident in the play's title.

In the meantime there is laughter and music and coming of age, young love blossoms and friendships form. The show is as much about keeping up morale and the comforts of everyday life as it is about the shock of the new, the realities of life and death and how this remarkable little community manages in a most singular time.

The imaginative staging and infectious enthusiasm of Kneehigh production is the hallmark of its former leader Emma Rice, now the artistic director at Shakespeare's Globe, but it doesn't neglect the somber side of war. The company twist domestic items and playthings into images of war. School desks become barricades, and toy boats in bathtubs become the English

Ncuti Gatwa as Adi and Nandi Bhebhe as Harry in 946: The Amazing Story of Adolphus Tips, now playing at the Wallis Annenberg Center in Beverly Hills

Channel on alert. There's plenty of fun, and lots of dark somber moments. This is war, after all.

'906' runs through March 5th at the Wallis, which is located at 9390 North Santa Monica Boulevard in Beverly Hills. Box office: 310 746-4000 or visit www. thewallis.org.

Britain's acclaimed 'Coroner' comes to KCET

A WELCOME RECENT import to television on these shores is The Coroner, which debuted last Sunday on KCET and continues Monday nights 8pm in the weeks to come.

The British drama focuses on former highflying solicitor Jane Kennedy (Claire Goose), who after yet another failed relationship, returns to take up the post of Coroner in the small South Devon seaside town of Lighthaven she left as a teenager. She finds herself working with Davey Higgins, the boy who broke her heart and is now the local Detective Sergeant for the South Dart Police.

Jane and her daughter Beth (Grace Hogg-Robinson), move back in with her mum, the excellent Beatie Edney who was so thoroughly enjoyable in Poldark. The main cast is perfectly rounded out by Mick, the publandlord, played by the equally charismatic Ivan Kaye. The set-up allows for three substantial female leads and a Moonlighting-style detective duo, often pushing and pulling goodnaturedly in opposite directions.

The backstory is all in place when we meet the Kennedy family and hardly any of it is spoken aloud. The relationships are clear from the off and already infused with an unforced warmth.

Abbott sets and solves a mystery, accounts for every character, keeps the dialogue natural and exposition light while feeding that audience need for a likeable world to invest in, all in 45 minutes. The show is perhaps most reminiscent of the late lamented Lovejoy, the Ian McShane vehicle which set a standard that few shows of this type even aspire to, let alone reach.

KCET-TV is public television for Southern California. Check your local listings for details.

Close as Desmond: it was right up my Boulevard!

Greetings Britlings!

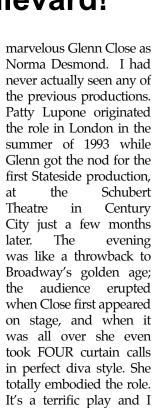

This past week I was in New York City editing my film @asst_ so being locked up in a darkened edit bay for 12 hours each day didn't give me much room for inspiration.

However I did get a chance to get out and see a couple of Broadway shows. The first was an amazing new musical "Dear called Hansen" - a story of how even the smallest of lies can have the hugest impact.

It's a wonderful show that I highly recommend and not just for the main actor Ben Platt, whose physicality and emotional journey will have you mesmerized from start to finish. I smell Tony in his future for sure. The other play I saw was the classic revival of "Sunset Boulevard" with the Theatre in The loved that they have the orchestra on the stage the whole time too. Definitely worth seeing if you are in devilish flu! So as to not infect my loved ones with the lurgy I have reverted to walking around with a mask in the style of Michael Jackson....or a Japanese tourist. I am a conscientious sicky. I might look silly, but at least I'm cautious. I also went to the doc and got a course of antibiotics and cough syrup, I'm taking plenty of vitamin C, fluids and rest.

After a couple of days back in the City of Angels I'm suffering from some

Not to get all political, but it seems like Saturday Night Live are having a whale of a time being satirical, Trump and his band of merry men are providing oodles of source material for them Melissa McCarthy's portrayal of Sean Spicer was spot on last weekend and it seems Rosie O'Donnell is working on her impression of Chief of Staff, Steve Bannon. Can't wait to see that one. Because let's face it, in times like this we all could do with a good laugh.

Which leads me nicely to The Toscars. I am very honored to be hosting the show this year, following in the footsteps of Jai Rodriguez, Brian Dunkleman, Candis Cayne and Alex Newell. The event is set for Feb 22nd at The Renberg Theatre, located on McCadden Place in Hollywood. Tickets are priced at $100 and include open bar, food, screening, awards and laughter. Celebrity presenters include Lily Tomlin, Cynthia Bailey from the Real Housewives Of Atlanta and others currently being added to the mix. The sponsors are Beltran Brito Immigration Attorneys, Deep Eddy Vodka and Final Draft. Thanks to Cole Haan and Tikkun Spa for prizes for the winners. For tickets to attend visit www.toscars. eventbrite.com.

We look forward to seeing you there and celebrating our tenth year of silliness!

Cheers, have a good week and stay healthy! Craig Young Rosie in the family way?

Baby on board?! Rosie H u n t i n g t o n - Whiteley has fans speculating she's pregnant with her first child. The supermodel, 29, first ignited the rumors after she posted a serene-looking photo of herself with a horse on January 2.

"Here's to fresh starts and exciting prospects for the new year. Wishing everyone a happy and healthy 2017..♥," the actress captioned the photo, in which she wears an oversize poncho.

Then on On Jan. 24, the leggy blonde strutted through LAX in a long dark coat, covering her midsection. Earlier in the month, she threw social media for a loop by wearing an over-sized poncho in an Instagram snap. Prior to that, she was spotted in London on January 10 wearing a cream-colored trenchcoat that also kept her stomach concealed.

Are you pregnant?" one person commented on the snap, while another fan noted that Huntington-Whiteley allegedly deleted their comment after they also speculated that she may be expecting. "I asked her that question but she deleted it," the person shared.

Though Huntington-Whiteley's camp has yet to comment, a source said recently the "Mad Max" beauty appeared "noticeably pregnant" at a recent shoot.

However the rep confirmed back in January 2016 that the former Victoria's Secret model IS engaged to longtime boyfriend Jason Statham.

Huntington-Whiteley debuted her stunning engagement ring at the 2016 Golden Globes, flashing her gorgeous diamond while posing on Statham's arm.

The couple, who have been together for six years, met on the set of Transformers in 2011.

Elton's touching tribute to George...

There are times when it's OK to be a little emotional in public... and this is one example.

I was devastated when I learned that George Michael had tragically passed away on Christmas Day at his home in Goring-on-Thames, Oxfordshire.

He was the last person I thought would die – and so young too. I knew him (sort of)... well I did, actually.

I had met George many times in my life – we grew up in similar circles, danced on the same dance floors in top nightclubs around the world, I attended his private parties and I knew many of his close friends and even some of his relatives. A light went out in the music world when George Michael died.

So it is quite fitting that (finally) Sir Elton Johnhas paid tribute to George hailing him "one of the best vocalists ever". He was, George Michael was one of the best singers of our time... You couldn't beat him at his best.

Sir Elt' shared a special bond with the former Wham! star and says he should be remembered for his "wonderful music" and generosity. Indeed.

Speaking about the 'Careless Whisper' singer on his Apple Beats 1 radio show, the 'Tiny Dancer' hitmaker said: "I wanted to do a little tribute to him on the show because not only was he a good friend, but he was probably one of the most brilliant songwriters this country's ever produced, and certainly one of the best vocalists ever. One of the best in the world."

On the close friendship they shared: "It was an amazing friendship based on music to start with, and I remember sitting in the car just off of Hyde Park listening to a cassette of 'Wake Me Up Before You Go Go' and I said, 'George, that's the nearest record I've heard to a Motown record for years and years'.

"It was such a great record, and he and I became great friends."

Since his death many people have been coming forward to share the Last Christmas singer's secret acts of kindness, and Elton, 69, says his "humanity" will be sorely missed.

He added: "I just want to remember him for his wonderful music and his kindness, which people are commenting on."

"He was the kindest, most generous man, and did it without wanting any publicity.

"I've seen him being so kind to so many people. I'll miss him so much for his music but more than anything his humanity."

It was previously reported that Elton was planning to sing at George's funeral, reminiscent of his tribute at Princess Diana's memorial service. However, the funeral has experienced continued delays as the singer's body is yet to be released with the coroner conducting further toxicology tests to determine the cause of his death.

Reports now suggest the late hitmaker's funeral may not take place until March.

R.I.P George Michael.

Horoscope/Book Review

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your financial situation could be getting a boost as early as this week. Look for an opportunity to add to your bank account and your feisty boss Mars will be assisting you for a while ahead.

TAURUS: The sun in Aquarius will provoke you and bring to head a situation that has been unresolved for some time now. Therefore it's best to deal with this now rather than wait. Jupiter the luck planet will assist you.

GEMINI: You will be travelling (emotionally or otherwise) to a place where you can put things in order. This week ahead starts a cycle of a month or two of new beginnings for your life so be of good faith and remain positive.

CANCER: Be strong and understanding and be honest most of all with yourself. It has been a transition period these last few months and you are due to make some decisions. Just remember your inclination as a crab is to hide under your shell.

LEO: Tackle what must be done and make it your priority to spend time relaxing, not stressing. The best weekend of the month is next week so catch up on work until then. You have to cool it a little with any stressful situations which are catching up with you.

VIRGO: Ask yourself if you are working on your particular plan for the New Year. If not, Mars the action planet is moving in powerful Aries and he will wake you up with a not-so-gentle nudge. He is only keeping you on your toes!

LIBRA: Be prepared to be surprised and perhaps a little uncertain as life is shaping up much faster then you can handle it. Saturn is moving in a part of your life that wants attention until spring, so be prepared to make some kind of move.

SCORPIO: Jupiter the luck bringer will be assisting you these next few days as he moves backwards and he will bring something unfinished up in your life. This can be very unexpected and positive for you.

SAGITTARIUS: Watch that temper if things do not always go the way you planned. Life is full of adventures if you open yourself up. Make sure that those you are close to understand your need for space sometimes. Mars in your cousin sign Aries brings good luck.

CAPRICORN: This can be the time that life comes together for you or it can go another way. This is entirely up to you. Be sure you do not listen to anyone who tries to talk you out of your decision. Listen to the inner voice; that is the clue.

AQUARIUS: You mostly get back what you put out in life therefore it will be best for you to keep a low profile currently while Mars is in Aries. Keep your thoughts and judgments to yourself currently. Have a Happy Birthday.

PISCES: Jupiter sitting in your money area currently for a couple of weeks ahead can bring back an important issue regarding your finances. The time is right for you to finally get back on track after a difficult few weeks.

Wenna: mining romance Down Under

■ Exclusive interview with author Virginia Taylor about her new novel, a historical romance set in colonial Australia

"Wenna is the fourth of my historical romances set in Adelaide, South Australia," says Wenna author Virginia Taylor.

"During this Adelaide that settled, the being in Cornwall mines were beginning close down. The outof-work miners were desperately needed to help the country gold, Tin, prosper. and copper had been found in abundance. ancestors among the original settlers who came here from Cornwall to mine copper."

To choose a form of deprivation in order to make a better life in the end was an amazing sacrifice," says Taylor. "Not that anyone knew that before they left England. The new migrants gambled on South Australia being the Utopia of the South as it was touted. In contrast to the stories of convicts sent to New South Wales, the free settlers who migrated to South Australia bought land. Within twenty years the city of Adelaide, a port, municipal buildings, hotels, and country townships had been built and industries had been established. Part of the population lived in rural areas, running cattle or sheep, or growing grain. Hard work made fortunes."

In colonial South Australia, lady's maid Wenna Chenoweth is dismissed from her job after a guest at a party flirts with her. Aristocrat Devon Courtney is at a house party to see Miss Patricia Brook. Flirting with Wenna was harmless fun on his part. He never intended to get Wenna dismissed. He likes her and offers a bold proposal. Marriage. It would solve problems for Wenna and himself. Two different worlds are about to collide. "Like the others in the South Landers series, Wenna features the first generation born in my country," says Taylor. "Usually Australian stories of a historical nature are set in the state of New South Wales. being Traditionally, transported via convict ships and beaten into submission by guards, or speared by natives.... Regardless, I found the tales of the first settlers every bit as romantic as those of the convicts in the other states. All this wandered through my mind before I began my series of historical romances set in South Australia. I wanted to tell stories of enthusiastic settlers and the various industries they began in this abundant country."

"I contacted the fire station in the city to find out about the fire fighting equipment they used in those days," says Taylor. "I did this by phone. The fireman at the other end of the line was flirty. I'm only human. I imagined he looked like one of those hunks on the fireman calendars. He gave me all the information I needed. I had a lovely time on the phone, until he decided I ought to come into the station to meet them all. I wriggled out of the visit. The other romance writers in my group were very disappointed in me for refusing to take them on a group tour to meet these gorgeous guys."

Taylor says she's been inspired in her writing by Winston Graham's book series Poldark. "The heroine, Demelza, completely charmed me. She rose from the bottom of the social strata to the top. Not because she was beautiful, but because she worked hard to achieve any of her aims. She never let anyone mess with her or her family. Another of the characters in the series is named Morwenna. I thought that name was glorious and so red-headed Wenna was born in my mind, using a strong woman like Demelza together with my own family's heritage."

Book Corner with Gabrielle Pantera

Taylor's next series of books is Design for Romance, three contemporary stories related by the heroines' interest in design.

Taylor was born and still lives in the state of Adelaide, in South Australia.

We can keep Lukaku here, insists Toffees boss Koeman

Everton's improved performances can convince striker Romelu Lukaku to stav at the club, says boss Ronald Koeman.

The Belgium international's agent has said a new deal at Goodison is close to being agreed.

"If players see a future in the club and the team is improving and getting stronger every day that is always a plus for them to stay," Koeman said.

"That is what we need to show him so he is convinced the short future is at Everton."

The Toffees ninth following defeat by local rivals Liverpool on 19 December but have since gone seven league games unbeaten and sit seventh.

Earlier season Koeman said Lukaku would need to leave Goodison Park to fulfil his potential but in December the player's agent, Mino Raiola, said a contract extension was 99% done.

The 23-year-old is the Premier League's top scorer with 16 goals this season and scored four against Bournemouth on Saturday.

"I didn't speak to the board about Romelu. If his agent mentioned he likes to stay and he will sign a new deal that is perfect for Everton," Koeman said.

"We know everyone has their own ambition - that's only human but we want to keep the good players and he is one of those.

one won. Jones insists that the matter has not been in his thoughts at all during the week as he looked to work out ways to pick up his side's performance following their lacklustre 19-16 win over France last weekend, a victory that took them to an English record of 15 successive wins. Even so, Jones was not happy with his own coaching in the build-up nor in several aspects of England's play and has insisted his team will be better in this week's game against one of their biggest rivals for this year's trophy.

But Jones insistent he was taking nothing for granted.

"It's a opportunity to play in one of the great experiences," added. "But the Welsh are a cunning lot, they have got goats, they have got daffodils, we are preparing for anything.

England are playing a relatively inexperienced row against Wales, with Maro Itoje, who started last week at blindside, and Jack Clifford, who replaces Tom Wood at openside, either side of Nathan Hughes.

The trio only have caps between them, with the Welsh triumvirate of Sam Warburton. Justin Tipuric and and Ross Moriarty boasting 130 a collective international appearances.

"We have a nice blend of experience and youth and we feel we have got the balance right," said Jones.

Cook stands down

■ England 'stagnating under my leadership, says batsman, who plans to stay with the team as Root is tipped to be new skipper

Alastair Cook has stepped down England cricket captain, saying his team was "stagnating" under his leadership and needed a fresh voice as captain.

As Cook spoke for the first time about his reasons for resigning after an unrivalled 59 matches as Test captain, he was perhaps inevitably required to reflect on the axing of Kevin Pietersen back in February 2014 - an episode he acknowledges put cricket in the spotlight for the wrong reasons.

But much more recent history was the telling backdrop to his own departure.

England's record runscorer took almost six weeks after England's 4-0 defeat in India to confirm his decision to step aside, but concedes that deep down he knew his time was up once they lost the final Test in Chennai by an innings and 75 runs.

Speaking on Tuesday at Lord's, Cook described Joe Root - the man by far most likely to succeed him - as "an outstanding candidate", but gave honourable mention too to several other contenders for the captaincy.

At The Oval only six months ago, England were within one more win of going top of the International Cricket Council's Test rankings.

They had already endured a patchy 2016, however, and after losing for the first time to Bangladesh and then journeying on without success to India, their eight Test defeats in a calendar year equalled an unwelcome national record.

"We've kind stagnated if we are being brutally honest,"

"There is a lot of work to be done and I felt I just didn't have that energy to do it."

Characteristically, he does not dodge the conclusion that he might be part of the problem. He said: "That's part of the parcel of being captain, you responsible.

"The dressing-room has been fantastic; the support of the players has been brilliant. It's just, I think, that hearing a new voice could help."

Cook can look back on two Ashes wins on his watch, as well as notable series successes in India in 2012 and then South Africa just last year.

His tenure however, been up and down, and he admits the end of Pietersen's international career after England's 2013/14 Ashes whitewash defeat remains a low point.

"I do wish it was done differently," he said.

"Obviously, decision was what we thought was the best for

HIGHS AND LOWS: Cook enjoyed two Ashes wins as well as series wins in India and South Africa before this winter's dismal tour of India

English cricket."

He does not believe it was the wrong call, just that the issue could have been resolved more sensitively.

"The fall-out was not very good for English cricket," said Cook.

"It was not great to see and be part of it when it was all over the front and back pages and social media.

"The responsibility as a captain and a player is to get cricket in the public for the right reasons ... for that six months it kind of wasn't."

Of the 59 Test Matches in which Cook captained England, he won 24, lost 22 and drew 13.

■ Six Nations: England coach cagey ahead of Welsh match

Eddie Jones has struck the first blow in the battle to take the honours in the muchanticipated Wales-England clash Cardiff this weekend by insisting that the Principality Stadium roof remains open.

Many feel that an enclosed stadium enhances atmosphere the in ground but Jones gave short shrift to that theory, telling reporters: "I'm not an entertainer. I'm a coach."

Wales had requested that the roof be closed for every home match during the Six Nations Championship the protocol is such that there has to be agreement between the two unions. Jones had indicated throughout the week that he was not fussed either way, stressing even Thursday lunchtime that he had not even thought about the matter and would only do so at the appropriate time. That make-yourmind-up moment came only a few hours later with Jones having to fall into line with due process that stipulates any preference has to be declared 48 hours before kick-off (4.50pm Saturday).

Jones took it to the wire, declaring wanted it open just six minutes before the cutoff point, although the management Welsh probably expected the England coach to take the line that he did, they would be well aware of the brinkmanship involved.

Even though England have a pretty good record at the Principality Stadium with five wins in 10 visits, their return with the roof closed drops to four lost and
