HANDS OFF THE ROCK!

■ Future of Gibraltar 'not up for negotiation' in Brexit talks, insists PM

Theresa May has told the European Council President Donald Tusk that Gibraltar's sovereignty is not up for negotiation in her first face-to-face talks with the European Council President since she triggered Article 50.

Mrs May welcomed Mr Tusk to Downing Street for lunch on Thursday eight days after giving him formal notice of Britain's intention to leave the EU.

Downing Street sources said they had "a general, broad chat", but the two leaders are understood to have agreed on the need for an early deal on migrants' rights to give EU citizens in the UK and Britons living in the EU certainty about their future.

Officials said the meeting was "very constructive". One insider said: "They both said 'let's get this done'."

Mr Tusk is not allowed to begin formal negotiations because the other 27 EU member states have not yet agreed guidelines for the talks, but Mrs May left him in no doubt that Spain must keep its hands off Gibraltar.

A Downing Street source said: "The Prime Minister really made her views clear that on Gibraltar, we are not prepared to do any deal on sovereignty, and we want a deal for the UK that includes Gibraltar."

EU sources said Mr Tusk and Mrs May had agreed that they would "seek to lower tensions that may arise, also when talks on some issues like Gibraltar inevitably will become difficult".

Spain has been accused of making a "land grab" for the Rock after it emerged that EU leaders want Spain to have a veto over whether the Brexit deal applies to the British Overseas Territory.

But Downing Street said in a statement on Mrs May's meeting with Mr Tusk: "The PM made clear that on the subject of Gibraltar, the UK's position had not changed: the UK would seek the best possible deal for Gibraltar as the UK exits the EU and there would be no negotiation on the sovereignty of Gibraltar

News From Britain

Defiant Farage blasts EU 'mafia'

Nigel Farage has been jeered in the European Parliament after accusing the EU of behaving like the mafia by holding Britain to ransom with "vindictive" demands in the Brexit negotiations.

"You're behaving like the mafia - you think we're a hostage. We're free to go!" the former Ukip leader said in Strasbourg.

His incendiary comments came as MEPs in the European Parliament began debating the EU's draft negotiating guidelines following the triggering of Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty by Theresa May last week.

It is expected the parliament will formalize their position on Brexit on Wednesday and set out its "red lines" - the first European institution to do so.

The former Ukip leader, who was referred to as a "demagogue" by one MEP before he gave his speech, added that last Wednesday was a "historic day" for Britain following the activation of Article 50. "An act that that he been cheered by hundreds of millions of people all over the world," he added.

He continued: "The response to the triggering of Article 50 has been all too predictable. Already you've made a series of demands that are not just unreasonable but in some cases clearly impossible for Britain to comply with."

Referring to the so-called divorce bill, he added: "You began by telling us we have to pay a bill - a cool 52bn sterling - a figure that has clearly been plucked out of the air, effectively a form of ransom demand.... You should be making us an offer we can't refuse to go."

"You've shown yourself with these demands to be vindictive, to be nasty. All I can say is thank goodness we're leaving. You're behaving like the mafia - you think we're a hostage. We're free to go!"

Mr Farage also told MEPs that if the EU tried to impose tariffs on exports from the UK, Britons could boycott European goods.

"If you wish to have no deal, if you wish to force us to walk away from the table, it is not us that will be hurt," he said.

"Do you know, we don't have to buy German motor cars, we don't have to drink French wine, we don't have to eat Belgian chocolate. There are a lot of other people that will give that to us."

Boot out 'anti-semitic' Red Ken, London Mayor urges Labour Party

Sadiq Khan has joined a chorus of leading figures condemning the decision not to expel Ken Livingstone from Labour and said there is no place for him in the party because his views were "anti-Semitic".

The Mayor of London said Labour has to "do more" after Mr Livingstone was handed a further year-long suspension, rather than expulsion, over controversial comments he made last year about Hitler and Zionism.

Mr Khan told LBC: "I think some of his views were anti-Semitic. Whether he is or not is a different issue."

"I think the Labour Party has got to do much, much more. And I also think there should be no hierarchy when it comes to racism."

"Racism is racism - you can't distinguish anti-Semitism from racism, it's a form of racism."

"And if we are going to be zero-tolerant towards racism, Ken Livingstone has got to go."

Livingstone famously suggested last year that Nazi leader Adolf Hitler was a Zionist - a supporter of the Jewish homeland - in the 1930s.

This was "before he went mad and killed

LIVINGSTONE: "Like sitting through a court in North Korea."

six million Jews", Red Ken said in an on-air meltdown.

He had been trying to defend the then newly elected Labour MP Naz Shah who was accused of authoring a string of anti-Semitic social media posts.

defiant

He was suspended from running from office from April 2016, with the April 2017 decision extending this ruling for another year last week.

A defiant Mr Livingstone - himself a former mayor of London, insisted he had simply been telling the truth and warned he would take legal action against the party if it tried to exclude him.

The veteran socialist and Corbyn ally argued he had evidence to back up his offensive views

SADIQ KHAN: The Mayor said there is 'no place for racism' in the party

— a claim dismissed by historians.

Mr Livingstone said: "I felt the whole thing was like sitting through a court in North Korea."

He told LBC: "If then there is another hearing, it does expel me, it will go for judicial review and it will be resolved in a court which is open to the press and public unlike these Labour disciplinary things which take place in private."

Pressure to expel Mr Livingstone from the party continued to grow after a disciplinary panel found he had brought the party into disrepute with his controversial remarks.

More than 100 Labour MPs have signed an open letter stating the sanction imposed on Mr Livingstone was a "betrayal" of Labour values.

The hard-hitting letter states: "We stand united in making it clear that we will not allow our party to be a home for anti-Semitism and Holocaust revisionism."

Shadow education secretary Angela Rayner said she was "shocked" at the leniency of the sanction and told BBC Radio 4's Today programme: "The Jewish community are really upset, and quite rightly so."

Ever upwards: UK house prices forecast to rise £61,000 in next four years

THERE WAS more good news for homeowners in the UK this week when new figures suggested the average property will still be worth £61,000 more by 2021 despite the headwind of Brexit and big buy-to-let tax increases.

According to the Centre for Economic and Buyout Research (CEBR), house prices will grow 4.4 per cent, or £9,000, this year, rising from £211,000 to £220,000, reported the Daily Telegraph.

This would be a marked slowdown from the 7.5 per cent for 2016, as tracked by the Office for National Statistics, while next year is expected to see growth slide further to 4.1 per cent.

But for the following three years, the growth rate will accelerate to 5.7 per cent and then beyond six per cent. By 2021, the average house price will be £272,000, says CEBR.

These figures will sound high to those who have been following private sector house price indices from the likes of Halifax, while Nationwide on Monday said prices rose by just 3.5 per cent in the year to last month.

The trend is the same, however, with house prices coming off rapid growth rates of recent years, but remaining in positive territory. Many believe that by private sector measures, growth will slow to around two per cent this year.

It had been widely predicted that Brexit would cause a prolonged correction for house prices, sending them into negative growth.

Added to that is the latest leg of the buy-to-let clampdown, which starts with a new tax year today and means that by the end of this parliament, higher-rate taxpayers will be able to deduct only half of the tax on mortgage interest they can deduct at the moment.

However, says the Telegraph, offsetting this is an ongoing shortage of homes, with the CEBR reporting that 40 per cent of councils do not know how they will meet housing demand over the next decade.

"By other measures the market is proving buoyant," adds the paper, with the number of mortgages issued running close to pre-crisis highs and low interest rates keeping borrowing cheap.

But the tide appears to be turning for London house prices, which until early last year were among the fastest-growing - and most unaffordable - in the world.

After being ranked the world's number 14 for house price growth in the first three months of 2016, the capital dropped to 55th place, according to estate agent Knight Frank's global index, reports City AM.

A UBS study last year also ranked London as the second most unaffordable place to buy a home of any city in the world.

Since then, however, an increase in stamp duty on second homes and the Brexit vote have taken some of the heat out of the market.

Prince Philip turns on the charm as he meets Kylie Minogue at Windsor Castle

ALL SMILES: Philip and Kylie at Windsor

The Duke of Edinburgh turned his charm on Kylie Minogue when he met the pop star during a private audience at Windsor Castle on Monday evening.

The pair appeared to get on famously, laughing and joking throughout the meeting, in which he presented the Australian singer with an award honouring her contribution to Anglo-Australian relations.

The star discussed her new album with the Duke and they chatted about how much effort goes into making a record. Kylie described the Duke as "charm personified" and said they had a "good old chat".

Kylie unsurprisingly opted for a more demure look than her trademark gold hotpants and was dressed in a floor length floral chiffon dress.

The Duke chatted to the Can't Get You Out Of My Head singer in the castle's grand White Drawing Room as he handed over the Britain-Australia Society Award for 2016 in his capacity as patron of the Britain-Australia Society.

Also present were the Australian High Commissioner Alexander Downer and chairman of the Britain-Australia Society Peter Benson.

On Tuesday afternoon, Kylie said on Twitter that she was "honoured" to have been given the award: "We are here in the quadrangle of Windsor Castle, which is terribly exciting," she said in an interview posted on the Royal Family's Twitter account.

"I was just presented with the Britain-Australia Award by His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, which was absolutely lovely. We had a good old chat. He was charm personified."

Philip is himself a Knight of Australia. But his award on Australia Day in 2015 provoked severe criticism of the then Australian prime minister Tony Abbott, with critics accusing him of creating a "time warp" by awarding a member of Britain's royal family the country's highest honour.

The performer, who already has an OBE, said after her award was announced at a reception at Australia House on Monday evening: "I'm a proud 'Aussie', but Britain has a very strong place in my heart having lived and worked here for many years."

"The Society does a wonderful job to promote the rich cultural ties between the two countries and I am honoured to be recognised by them in this way."

It is not Philip's first encounter with Kylie. He watched her perform at the Windsor Castle pageant in May last year, staged in honour of the Queen's 90th birthday, and met her during the red carpet line-up.

But he missed her stint on stage at the Diamond Jubilee concert in front of Buckingham Palace in 2012 while he was being treated in hospital for a bladder infection.

Kylie, 48, won the hearts of the British public while playing Charlene in the hit soap opera Neighbours in the mid 1980s.

She went on to launch a pop career with early hits including I Should Be So Lucky and Je Ne Sais Pas Pourquoi, before later remodelling herself from the girl-next-door to a sultry diva wearing gold hot pants with hit tunes such as Spinning Around.

It wasn't all bad...

The number of robins visiting British gardens has reached a record high. The figures, recorded in January for the RSPB's Big Garden Birdwatch, were the highest since 1986 - and up 12% on 2016. The surge has been attributed to the recent wet, warm summers, which have ensured plentiful supplies of worms and insects for the birds to feed on. Robins are now the seventh most commonly seen birds in British gardens; sparrows top the list. There was also a rise in sightings of waxwings, which migrated from Scandinavia over the winter when the berry crop failed, and other migrant birds such as redwings and fieldfares.

News From Britain

Scotland 'on the brink of recession'

Scotland is on the brink of a recession, with the nation's economy lagging far behind the UK as a whole in the wake of the Brexit vote, official statistics have revealed.

Scotland's economic output contracted by 0.2 per cent in the final quarter of last year, while that of the UK as a whole grew by 0.7 per cent, according to figures published by the Chief Statistician.

Holyrood's opposition parties claimed Scotland's economy was "facing a crisis" due to the extra uncertainty and instability caused by Nicola Sturgeon's decision to campaign for a second independence referendum.

Output was flat in the service sector and fell by 0.9 per cent in production and 0.8 in construction, the statistics showed. While Scotland's GDP grew by 0.4 per cent in 2016, the UK's as a whole grew by 1.8 per cent. The gloomy figures prompted calls for ministers to act to restore confidence and support businesses. If the Scottish economy contracts again in the first three months of 2017, it will officially have entered recession.

A political row immediately broke out over the causes behind the poor performance, with the Scottish Government blaming the Brexit vote and the Conservatives pointing the finger at the SNP's demands for independence.

"Before the EU referendum, the UK Government told us Brexit will make us 'permanently poorer'. What is now quite clear is the economic reality of the Brexit vote," said

Finance Secretary Derek Mackay.

"We have already seen significantly lower consumer confidence in Scotland since the vote last summer. Now we see that feeding through into our growth figures – and all of this is before the UK actually leaves the EU."

However, the Scottish Tories said the Brexit vote was not to blame, pointing out that the economy of the UK as a whole had been "powering ahead" over the same period.

"These are deeply worrying figures which show that Scotland under the SNP is now on the brink of a recession," said the party's finance spokesman Murdo Fraser.

"Nicola Sturgeon has made Scotland the highest-taxed part of the UK and created more instability and uncertainty with her threat of a second referendum."

Labour and the Liberal Democrats also said the threat of another referendum must be removed to reduce uncertainty, while the UK Government called on the SNP to use Holyrood's new powers to grow the economy. Scotland's leading economic research institute said the nation's poor performance in relation to the UK as a whole was a "serious cause for concern" – and cast doubt on whether Brexit could be used as an excuse.

"With any Brexit uncertainty affecting the UK as well, it's hard to argue that Scotland's relatively weaker performance can be explained by the outcome of the EU referendum," said the Fraser of Allander Institute.

Scientists at the University of Manchester have created a "sieve" capable of removing salt from seawater. Made from graphene oxide, the sieve could eventually be used to provide safe, clean drinking water to people around the world. An ultra-thin sheet of carbon atoms organized in a hexagonal lattice, graphene had previously been used to sieve large salt crystals, but not the forms usually found in sea water. The scientists hope to ultimately produce a low-energy filtration device.

Five in the dock over 'hate-crime' beating in Croydon

FIVE people appeared in court and two more suspects were charged this week over an attack which left a young asylum seeker fighting for his life.

Reker Ahmed, 17, a Kurdish Iranian, was savagely beaten after he was chased by a mob of up to 30 youths.

Prime Minister Theresa May condemned the attack as "absolutely despicable".

Reker was attacked in an estate where he is believed to live in Croydon, south London, on Friday night. He suffered a fractured spine, a shattered eye socket and bleeding on the brain.

Police say he is now out of intensive care and recovering but will be scarred for life.

George Walder, 20, his brother Jack, 24, Barry Potts, 20, Daryl Davis, 20 and his sister Danyelle, 24, appeared at Croydon magistrates court on Wednesday.

They are all charged with violent disorder. George Walder is also accused of racially aggravated grievous bodily harm.

All five will appear at Croydon Crown Court on May 1 for a pre-trial hearing. Walder was remanded in custody. His brother, Potts and the Davis siblings were released on bail.

Walder sobbed and wiped away tears as he entered the dock.

Danyelle Davis, who is in a relationship with Potts, wept throughout the hearing.

All five are from Croydon. The two further suspects charged with violent disorder were Kyran Evans, 23, of Croydon and a 17-year-old girl, who cannot be named.

A total of 16 people

Daryl, 20 and Danyelle Davis, 24 are two of the five people charged with violent disorder have been arrested so far over the attack.

Reker, along with Iraqi Kurd Dilshad Mohammed and Hamo Mustafa, were at a bus stop by The Goat pub when they were confronted by a gang of about eight people at 11.40pm on Friday.

brutal attack

The asylum seeker's two friends escaped with minor injuries but he was chased on to a nearby estate where several other youths joined in the brutal attack.

It is understood suspects yet to be traced by police were in the pub shortly before the incident.

Some residents expressed surprise that the attack has been labelled a "hate crime" as the community is so multi-cultural.

Reker, a student, has lived in Croydon for several months now since seeking asylum in Britain.

Detective Superintendent Jane Corrigan said: "Reker is being moved from intensive care to a mainstream ward. "His face did receive some significant injuries, that was the main focus of the attack.

"But what I can say is that without a doubt this will leave lasting scars."

Police are still trying to locate Reker's family to inform them of his ordeal.

and friendly meeting which lasted almost two hours".

The next major step in the negotiations comes on April 29, when the European Council will vote on whether to adopt Brexit guidelines drawn up by Mr Tusk.

He has indicated that talks on a trade deal could begin this autumn, but only if "sufficient progress" has been achieved in negotiations on the arrangements for Britain's withdrawal - widely seen as a reference to agreement on a "divorce bill" of an estimated £50 billion.

without the consent of its people."

The Prime Minister repeated her desire for the UK to retain a "deep and special partnership" with the EU after Brexit.

The statement added: "Both leaders agreed that the tone of discussions had been positive on both sides, and agreed that they would seek to remain in close touch as the negotiations progressed."

EU sources said the two leaders had "a good

Former lap dancer left in tears as boffin Sir Clive decides marriage no longer computes

■ Lady Sinclair 'too upset to talk' but friends claim computer tycoon has already moved on

When 76-year-old computer tycoon Sir Clive Sinclair married a lapdancer 36 years his junior, even his close friends raised a sceptical eyebrow.

And sadly - like Sir Clive's ill-fated C5 battery-powered car - his marriage to Angie Bowness has now run its course.

But it seems the millionaire inventor has wasted little time finding a new companion: it emerged at the weekend that he has rekindled his relationship with his devoted former secretary fellow pensioner Elaine Millar.

Though he insisted this week that he was 'currently single', Sir Clive has told friends he and Ms Millar, 69, are an item.

For 25 years the pair had an on-off relationship but it ended when Sir Clive met Ms Bowness, now 40, at Stringfellows nightclub where she worked as a dancer using the name Paris.

They married in Las Vegas in 2010 and afterwards Lady Sinclair announced she was 'over the moon'.

But this week when asked about the separation and Sir Clive's new love, the former model burst into tears saying: 'I can't talk about anything right now. I'm so sorry, I just can't comment.'

Sir Clive - inventor of the pocket calculator and a former Mensa chairman with an IQ of 159 - issued a statement through a PR firm revealing that the couple have already divorced.

It said: 'Following a prolonged hospitalisation in 2016, Sir Clive filed for divorce before his discharge from the hospital,' it said.

'The divorce become final in January 2017. Financial settlement proceedings are ongoing and Sir Clive has asked that he be allowed to conduct this matter in private.'

Prior to his marriage to Angie, Ms Millar helped Sir Clive run his business and the pair once lived in adjoining flats in the building on Trafalgar Square.

She accompanied him to public events and he showered her with expensive gifts.

But after his 2010 wedding Sir Clive and Ms Millar did not speak and she moved to a flat in Harrogate.

Last year Lady Sinclair resigned as a director of Sinclair's company, and a Home Rights Notice was placed on the couple's £5million Central London home.

This prevented Sir Clive

from selling the property without her consent.

Lady Sinclair was previously married to businessman Mark Thornton with whom she had a son, now 19, but they broke up just months after his birth.

While married to Sir Clive, she divided time between London and a house in Nottinghamshire which she shared with her mother Shirley.

At the peak of his career, Sir Clive was worth well over £100million having developed Sinclair home computers in the 1980s.

However his next project, the C5, never took off.

Of 14,000 made, only 5,000 were sold and its manufacturer went bust.

After 23 years of marriage, Sir Clive divorced his first wife, Ann Trevor-Briscoe with whom he had three children, in 1985.

He sold the Sinclair name to then rival Alan Sugar for £5million the following year.

America on the cheap

Two British women managed to cross 48 US states without spending a cent. After setting off from Boston last May, Lilly Quinn, 29, and Sarah Little, 25, hitch-hiked 13,650 miles over the next five months. Along the way, they stayed in the homes of strangers they connected with through the Couchsurfing social network, and also enjoyed six nights in hotels paid for by people they met. Most of the duo's meals were bought for them by strangers - although they did occasionally have to rifle through coffee-shop bins for food.

The spirit of the age...

Cadbury and the National Trust were accused this week of "airbrushing faith" from Easter for renaming their egg hunts. Cadbury-sponsored events at National Trust sites were previously called Easter Egg Trails; now, however, they have been rechristened Cadbury's Great British Egg Hunts. The confectioner said it wanted "people from all faiths and none to enjoy our seasonal treats".

Theresa May said she was disappointed, not just as "a vicar's daughter" but as "a member of the National Trust". Archbishop of York John Sentamu accused the confectioner of "spitting on the grave" of its Christian founder, John Cadbury: however, one of Cadbury's descendants, Esther McConnell, pointed out that he was a Quaker, so he didn't celebrate Easter.

Nanny at centre of Mel B divorce goes into hiding

■ Childminder's family denies affair - and pregnancy - with Spice Girl's husband

THE UNFOLDING drama of Mel B's divorce took a further strange twist this week as her children's former nanny – whom the singer blames for the breakdown of her marriage – went into hiding.

Lorraine Gilles has ducked out of public view amid allegations she became pregnant by Mel B's husband, Stephen Belafonte.

But Lorraine's sister Jacqueline Baartz has hit back at claims in divorce papers that Lorraine was in a sexual relationship with Belafonte, saying "We are very, very close and I would have known about this. I don't know where this is coming from."

She said Lorraine, 26, worked for the family for seven years "and had nothing but positive experiences", saying: "She loved those kids as if they were her own."

Jacqueline, who runs a riding academy, was also shocked at allegations of violence in Mel B's marriage.

She said: "My sister would have told me if there had been fights. But she never did."

Lorraine is believed to be still in the US with husband Michael Bleau. They married last year.

The Spice Girl has now been granted a restraining order against her ex as part of their bitter divorce.

Mel B has claimed Stephen Belafonte got their nanny pregnant - and then demanded she get an abortion.

It's one of a number of disturbing allegations the Spice Girl made on Monday, which led to a judge granting a restraining order against her ex as part of their bitter divorce.

Mel's suicide attempt in December 2014 came

SCARY FOR SPICE? Mel B has filed a restraining order against estranged husband Stephen Belafonte, claiming a history of domestic violence in the midst of filming for the X Factor finals, and seven months after Belafonte allegedly got their nanny Lorraine Gilles pregnant.

Mel alleges he "told me he wanted to have the baby and all three of us live together. I was shocked and in disbelief."

Mel goes on to claim he allegedly paid $300,000 (£241,000) of her money "for alleged nanny services", to undergo an abortion.

TEMPTATION: In court documents, Mel B claims her husband carried on a long affair with Lorraine Gilles Belafonte vehemently denied the allegations, saying "someone's set me up to look like a bad guy".

Mel also claimed Stephen pushed her to the floor and choked her on the night of her Dancing With The Stars finale in November 2007, and that he split her lip by punching her while she was filming a segment with Usher for The X Factor in 2012.

The TV judge also references her husband's alleged abuse continued in the bedroom, claiming he "demanded" that she participate in threesomes with "random women".

She states that she was pressured into these encounters after Stephen revealed he'd made recordings of their "sex life" and other "private moments", which he used as leverage to gain her consent.

Meet A Member: Jean T. Ritchie

Meet Jean T. Ritchie originally from near Barnsley, Yorkshire (as a teenager) and most recently from Sacramento, CA who moved to LA three years ago to pursue acting.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? Los Angeles is definitely the place to be regarding opportunities for acting in film and television. The weather is certainly an asset.

What do you miss most from home?

A bit of homesickness takes over whenever

I see the Yorkshire countryside in a movie or a photo.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression of LA was the busyness - freeways, people, streets, neighborhoods, and shopping centers. As a result I have entered the fray. However I have been quite surprised to find the opposite - quiet areas in unexpected places.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Yorkshire and Sacramento?

As mentioned, I've lived in the US for many years. However the biggest difference living here in Los Angeles and my hometown, actually village, of Elsecar is the pace of everyday life. It seems as though there's a palpable energy in the air here in LA.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

One of my absolute favorite places to visit in LA is the Los Angeles County Arboretum where I go to walk and to contemplate. There are 127 acres with plants, natural landscapes, wildlife, and historic buildings. It's a location I enjoy visiting throughout the year.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

My advice to others who are thinking about making the move to Los Angeles is to begin to embrace all that LA has to offer. Personally I like the multitude of choices here - studios, Griffith Park Observatory, Hollywood, parks, beaches, ethnic neighborhoods, museums, concerts, shopping centers, restaurants, botanical gardens, classes...

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Can't say the advice was the best but prior to moving here a friend said, "Whatever you do, don't take the 405." I do try to remember that advice but sometimes I have no choice but to take the 405! Make sure to join Brits in LA too. Through them I found Misha Crosby of Real Reels to do my reel as well as following up on an item with British American Talent Management and subsequently being signed with them!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

Are you working on anything at the moment?

You can find me at: IMDbPro - Jean T. Ritchie.

Brits In LA

Taxes sorted, I'm in full bloom

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is the income tax." - Albert Einstein, physicist.

I am feeling rather smug as for once I have filed my taxes early. We have had an influx of inquiries from Brits in LA members on this topic. Which leads me to believe the majority of you have been putting this off! If you aren't sure whether you are supposed to be filing taxes or not you can visit www.IRS.gov or I came across the website commontaxquestions.com that has a handy table that shows you what your 2016 filing requirements are. It is always wise to double check with a professional as tax laws change on a regular basis.

The deadline to get yours in is Tuesday

April 18th - you can file for an extension if you don't feel quite ready, however you cannot just ignore this deadline. If you have ties to another country it is very wise to visit a tax preparer who is knowledgeable in this area, as there are different requirements including the filing of Reports of Foreign Bank and Financial Accounts (FBAR) which has an earlier deadline of April 15th.

Brits in LA have also partnered up with VTax which is being heralded as the 'Uber of taxes' - you can file your taxes all from the comfort of your armchair - and rest assured that they are prepared by credentialed tax professionals and CPAs with the proper training and experience.

The other hot topic this week is of a more pleasant nature. The torrential rain may have gone for now (although I hear there may be April Showers this weekend), but they have left behind a wildflower superbloom across the desert. Anza-Borrego State Park in California hasn't experienced a bloom so prolific since at least 1999 according to park officials. Californians are like magnets when it comes to photo opportunities which is reflected on Instagram where the hashtag #Superbloom has over 50,000 posts associated with it!

This is a very rare event so if you want to catch it head to the desert, apparently mornings are best as the blooms close up when the afternoon heat kicks in. Tag us on Instagram @BritsinLA if you manage to get out there.

Getting steamy...Lady Victoria Hervey braves the chill at Iceland's Blue Lagoon!

Lady Victoria Hervey braved the cold in Iceland earlier this week to take a dip in a bikini.

The model and socialite has been spending time in the chilly country to take part in a series of fashion shoots and runway shows.

But the work had obviously taken its toll, as she clearly needed some down time opting for a spa day.

After hitting the catwalk for the RFF Reykjavik Fashion Festival for clothing label InKLaw, the 40-year-old LA based Brit headed for the country's famous Blue Lagoon.

Despite the cold air, the therapeutic geothermal spa helped keep Lady Victoria warm, as she slipped out of her toweled white robe to take a dip in a grey snake print bikini.

This one was as skimpy as ever, and showcased her slim physique, flat stomach and toned pins.

The fashionable, taupe-colored top half was joined in the middle, underneath her bust, with a gold ring feature.

Stepping into the water, she showed off her enviable washboard stomach and toned limbs – which drew quite a few admiring glances from her fellow bathers.

After taking a dip Lady Victoria made a quick dash for her white robe to get warm again as she continued with her day of relaxation.

I reckon Lady V looks rather hot in the cold... (smirk).

"Too smug" Tom out of running for Bond role!

This week James Bond bosses have ruled out Tom Hiddleston as the next 007 because they say, he's "a bit too smug".

And I couldn't agree more!

The actor, who made a real splash on both sides of the pond with last year's TV miniseries The Night Manager, had been the hot favorite to replace Daniel Craig in the iconic spy role so this must come as a big disappointment for the old Etonian.

According to insiders, a string of "embarrassing" stunts seem to have cost him the job.

A pal of Bond producer Barbara Broccoli revealed: "Barbara doesn't like Tom, he's a bit too smug and not tough enough for Bond."

She was also apparently neither shaken nor stirred by Tom's fling with Taylor Swift, not his cringe-worthy Golden Globes acceptance speech a few months back.

The British actor left the star-studded audience decidedly underwhelmed as he related a long-winded story about aid workers in South Sudan who wanted to "say hello (to him) because they had binged-watched The Night Manager".

Hiddleston later apologized that his speech was "inelegantly expressed" – but Broccoli's pal said it had made him seem "too fame hungry and shallow" to play Bond.

But whoever takes over the 007 role may have to wait. Craig, who has starred in the last four Bond movies, is in talks with Broccoli about a fifth – despite earlier saying he would rather "slash my wrists" than reprise the role.

When asked who might take over, he also said: "Look, I don't give a f."

But now Broccoli is said to have talked him into staying on as Bond after working with him on a recent New York stage production of Othello.

A source said: "They have a script and will go into production as soon as Daniel is ready to commit."

Daniel is still my hot favorite to return to the role...and I hope he does!

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: With all the planets lined up in your life there are good signs...and some warnings. Be sure you pay close attention to whatever you are signing this week. The one that will be positive will show up this next week or so. The rest is ok if you pay attention.

TAURUS: On the upside you can expect a call from someone from the past and this time you need to be upfront, honest and speak very frankly about your feelings. You will likely need a break away soon but wait until mid-May.

GEMINI: The sun in your cousin sign of Aries will bring out your mellow side and it favors getting a handle on any part of life that you have not resolved. Mercury your boss going backwards will put you in the right frame of mind to deal with it now.

CANCER: The self-deceiving Neptune in your cousin sign of Pisces can make you somewhat melancholy for a few days this week. Mercury moving backwards will bring to your attention what it is you need to change.

LEO: This month could end on a note of self-pity if you don't take action now. The sun in your cousin Aries can help you to reach or make some decisions these next few days. Mercury going backwards in Taurus will bring it to your attention.

VIRGO: It's time for a trip and short or long, near or far matters not as you benefit from the change of scenery. Just make sure you wait until mid-month as your boss planet Mercury is strolling backwards so be careful with your finances.

LIBRA: You have a few hefty planets in your opposite sign of Aries right now so first do not travel before end of the month. If someone asks for help or financial aid be sure you get the repayment terms in writing. Jupiter is going to help you this month with an important decision.

SCORPIO: It is not before time that some beneficial planets come to help you out this next week ahead with Venus and Mercury going backwards they will resolve a long-standing upset. It will be a good time to make up with a loved one and forgive whomever you should.

SAGITTARIUS: You may be feeling a little worried this week ahead. This is something to do with your financials. This is the time with Mercury going backwards in Taurus to resolve this part of your life. Do be flexible with anyone who may not be doing so well in life.

CAPRICORN: You could be feeling restless this last week or so. This is due to your boss Saturn moving closer to you. He is a teacher and showing you the area of your life that is not in alignment with your highest good. Use your intuition to figure this out - just relax and it will resolve in its own time.

AQUARIUS: Your judgment in a current situation involving family is somewhat out of whack. If you continue ignoring it nothing will resolve. Grasp the nettle and deal with it and by next weekend all could be resolved.

PISCES: Venus is in your life and traveling backwards. This can mean a couple of things for you. One is your relationships. If any thing is not working well in this area be sure to take this time to put things right. Secondly financial areas can change also only if you are willing to look at the facts.

How To Make A French Family

Exclusive interview: Author Samantha Vérant talks about her new memoir and learning how to become a family

"How To Make A French Family was inspired by all the changes I faced while becoming an instant immigrant stepmom," says author Samantha Vérant.

"How I overcame very frustrating obstacles, like learning to parent in a language in which I only had limited skills and adapting to cultural differences."

"My first memoir, Seven Letters From Paris, was the fairy tale romance of how I rekindled a relationship with Jean-Luc, a sexy French rocket scientist, twenty years after we'd initially met," says Vérant. "How To Make A French Family, my latest memoir, picks up where Seven Letters left off and grounds our relationship into reality. I became an immigrant, and, more importantly, an instant American stepmom to Jean-Luc's two children, ten-year-old Max and thirteen-year-old Elvire."

Newlywed Samantha couldn't wait to move to France with her new husband Jean-Luc, to be with him and his teenage kids. But once there, life is not what she thought it would. Samantha works to make her French fairy tale come true. There are culture clashes, faux pas, heartwarming moments in this memoir of a family learning how to become one.

"Sadly, all the language faux pas I make in this book are true," says Vérant. "All of the research comes from real life experiences."

For research, Vérant reviewed pictures of her family. "I take a lot of photos. Since this book takes place from 2010 to 2013, I referred to the photographs to refresh my memory."

When Vérant first started writing, she wrote for middle grade and young adult readers. Month9Books published her middle grade novel, King of the Mutants, about a sideshow attraction on the search for his identity. That was published one week after Seven Letters From Paris hit the shelves. Since then, she's focused on books for women.

Barnes & Noble featured Seven Letters From Paris recently under Fascinating Life Stories. Seven Letters has released in twelve countries. So far, four countries have picked up foreign translation rights for How To Make A French Family. Seven Letters is under option by a Hollywood studio, with first rights of refusal for How To Make A French Family.

Anna Michels at Sourcebooks is Vérant's editor. "She picked up my first memoir, Seven Letters, out of the slush pile in June of 2012," says Vérant. "Shortly after reading my submission, she made an offer for publication. Since then, I haven't looked back."

Vérant is currently working on women's fiction focusing on food, wine, and France. Upcoming book signings include the Santa Monica Barnes & Noble and maybe Chicago.

Vérant lives in Cugnaux, a small town south of Toulouse in southwestern France. She was born in Los NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. Not so Spursy!

Stunning late fightback keeps Pochettino's men in the hunt

Tottenham proved yet again on Wednesday night that they have finally discarded the term "Spursy" with a sensational late turnaround to beat a stubborn Swansea side 3-1 and keep intact their aspirations of winning a first Premier League title.

Despite dominating possession, Spurs fell behind to a neat close-range finish from their former winger Wayne Routledge.

The visitors were camped in their opponents' half for long periods but were frustrated by a combination of their own lack of a cutting edge and Swansea's diligent defending, before Dele Alli eventually broke through to convert Christian Eriksen's cross after 88 minutes.

Son Heung-min fired Tottenham ahead in added time, and then Eriksen completed the remarkable comeback with a curling effort.

While second-placed Spurs continue to breathe down the necks of leaders Chelsea, a third defeat in four games sees Swansea drop into the relegation zone.

Having cut Chelsea's lead at the top of the table to seven points with Saturday's win at Burnley, Spurs were aiming to further reduce that deficit with a fifth successive Premier League victory.

Yet for all that Mauricio Pochettino's side had impressed this season, that triumph at Turf Moor was only their fifth away league win - and their vulnerability on the road was evident at the Liberty Stadium.

Although they enjoyed near total control of possession and territory during a one-sided first half, Tottenham fell behind after Swansea's first attack of the game.

Jordan Ayew muscled his way into the visitors' penalty area and pulled the ball back to Routledge, one of four former Spurs in the hosts' line-up, and the winger squeezed his finish past ex-Swans keeper Michel Vorm.

Tottenham continued to boss proceedings but lacked a cutting edge in attacking positions, missing injured top scorer Harry Kane and frustrated by their dogged opponents.

But as they had demonstrated in their previous seven games without Kane - four wins and three draws - Spurs can cope in the striker's absence.

They left it late, with Alli tapping into an empty net from Eriksen's wicked low cross, before Son finished from close range to send the visiting Spurs fans into raptures.

Eriksen then added a third in added time to complete a stunning fightback and leave their opponents crestfallen.

Manchester United midfielder Jesse Lingard has signed a new contract at Old Trafford that could earn him £100,000 a week.

The 24-year-old England international is now committed to the Premier League club until 2021 and there is the option to extend the deal by a further year.

Lingard has made 70 appearances for United, who he joined as a seven-year-old, and won four caps for his country.

"Manchester United has always been a big part of my life," said Lingard.

"I feel great pride every time I pull the shirt on."

BLUES EDGE CLOSER

Chelsea maintained a seven-point advantage over Tottenham at the top of the Premier League with a hard-fought 2-1 victory over Manchester City in midweek.

Pep Guardiola suffered league defeats home and away to the same opponents in a single league season for the first time in his managerial career as City are left to fight for a top-four place.

Eden Hazard gave Chelsea a 10th-minute lead when his shot deflected off returning City captain Vincent Kompany past keeper Willy Caballero, who should have done better.

Chelsea keeper Thibaut Courtois was also badly at fault when his poor clearance to David Silva set up Sergio Aguero's equaliser after 26 minutes - but Chelsea were back in front before half-time.

They were awarded a penalty after Fernandinho tripped Pedro and even though Caballero saved Hazard's spot-kick, the rebound fell kindly for the Belgian to score.

City, who stay in fourth, had the better chances in a tense second period, with Kompany's header bouncing back off the bar and John Stones shooting over from six yards in injury time. Chelsea, however, held on for a win that was even more vital given Tottenham's dramatic late comeback at Swansea City.

Chelsea's progress towards the Premier League title has been a tale of almost unbroken serenity since manager Antonio Conte reworked his tactical approach after successive losses at home to Liverpool and away to Arsenal in September.

This was arguably their biggest game since as it followed on from the shock home loss to Crystal Palace and it was against a Manchester City side with the talent and capability to make this night at Stamford Bridge a real test of nerve.

And so it proved as City, with Silva the orchestrator supreme, putting Chelsea's defence and their supporters on edge right until the final whistle.

Chelsea emerged triumphant thanks to the mixture of talent and resilience that has served them so well this season and the celebrations at the final whistle reflected just what a significant night this might prove to be.

Hazard provided the flourishes but manager Conte proved his pragmatism with the introduction of Nemanja Matic for Kurt Zouma at the start of the second half to attempt to lock down the win.

It worked to an extent but Chelsea also enjoyed good fortune

KEY MAN: Eden Hazard scored both goals as Chelsea beat Manchester City 2-1 Wednesday night as Kompany's header bounced back off the bar and Stones somehow scooped an injury-time chance over the top.

In the final reckoning, Chelsea showed the bloody-minded defiance of champions - and this is the sort of result that will likely earn them that crown.

Pep: Conte may be the best

Chelsea manager Antonio Conte "may be the best", says Manchester City boss Pep Guardiola who says he has "learned a lot" from teams managed by the Italian.

Guardiola and Conte are both in their debut season in English football but the Italian again bested the Spaniard in Wednesday night's crucial clash at Stamford Bridge.

"My opinion about my colleague Conte is that he's superb," said the Catalan.

"He was able to make Italy play beautiful football - Juventus too - in a culture where it's so defensive.

"He's an excellent manager, I learn a lot when I see his teams - Juventus, Italy and now. I like to do that because you see what they want to do. Their teams control a lot of aspects.

"Maybe he's the best."

Guardiola took over at Manchester City last summer having won three successive Bundesliga titles and two German Cups with Bayern Munich between 2013 and 2016.
