Mosque attacker 'troubled but not racist', say family

Relatives of the man held by police over the Finsbury Park attack has expressed their shock, saying he was "troubled [but] not a racist".

Darren Osborne, a 47-year-old father-of-four from Cardiff, was arrested after pedestrians were targeted by a man driving a van near a mosque in north London early on Monday morning.

At least one person has died and 11 others were injured following the attack, which police are treating as terror related.

Witnesses described seeing Osborne shouting "I'm going to kill all Muslims" and saying the attack was "for London Bridge" as he was arrested and dragged from the scene by police.

The man was initially arrested on suspicion of attempted murder but Scotland Yard said he was later arrested for the commission, preparation or instigation of terrorism including murder and attempted murder.

In a statement on behalf of the family, Osborne's nephew Ellis Osborne, 26, said: "We are massively shocked; it's unbelievable, it still hasn't really sunk in.

"We are devastated for the families, our hearts go out to the people who have been injured."

Mr Osborne added his uncle was "not a racist" and said he had never Heatwave featured at Glastonbury...

POOLING THEIR RESOURCES: Sunburn was more a concern for revellers this week than the infamous Glastonbury mud, as the famed festival kicked off on Wednesday amid 90-degree heat. Much of Britain sweltered amid record temperatures - and bad air warnings - in midweek. (see page 2)

Heat wave roasts the UK, bringing hottest June day for 40 years

■ Temperature at Heathrow tops 94F

THE GREAT BRITISH SUMMER made a surprise appearance this week as temperatures hit 94F at Heathrow and the government issues health warnings of toxic air for large parts of southern England and Wales.

Britain experienced its hottest June day for 40 years on Wednesday as the mercury topped out at 94 degrees at Britain's busiest airport.

It was the highest June temperature since the 96F recorded in Southampton on 28 June 1976. It was the hottest day of the year so far and the first time the mercury hash it 86F or over on five consecutive days in June since 1995.

But while many have been basking in the sun, the heat has also brought health warnings.

NHS England has urged the elderly, children and those with medical conditions to keep cool and hydrated during the heatwave.

Three people have died after getting into difficulty while attempting to cool off. Spencer Hurst, 15, died on Tuesday evening after failing to resurface when swimming in a lake near Walsall. On Monday, another teenage boy drowned in a reservoir outside Rochdale, Greater Manchester, and a woman in her 80s died after being pulled from the sea at East Wittering beach in West Sussex.

The heatwave has led to roads melting in some areas, and speed restrictions and cancellations on train lines due to the risk of tracks buckling.

'real threat'

Transport for London reassured concerned customers that softening of sealant on the capital's tramline was harmless.

The London mayor, Sadiq Khan, triggered the capital's emergency air quality alert on Tuesday, with a warning that areas near busy roads would be particularly affected.

Dr Taj Hassan, the president of the Royal College of Emergency Medicine, said air pollution levels posed a "real threat to people's health and will place extra stress on an already stretched NHS".

Researchers said the toxic air was caused by high ozone levels brought up from industrial parts of France by a southerly wind. They also warned that particulate levels – from motor vehicles and other fuel burning – were expected to be "moderate, with high [particulate levels] again a strong possibility".

Simon Birkett, from the Clean Air in London campaign, said the government had failed to issue alerts in two areas where the ozone level had breached EU directives and two more had been delayed. He accused the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) of trying to play down the health threat posed by air pollution.

"The government is clearly failing to warn people about the threat posed by air pollution," he said, adding that the government should do more to warn people about the dangers of what was a "perfect storm" of ozone, particulates and high temperatures.

However, Defra dismissed the claim,

saying two alerts – for St Osyth, Essex, on Monday and Yarnar Wood, Devon, on Tuesday – had been delayed because of "technical problems with the data feed from monitoring sites to the UK Air website".

While people took cover from the heat in southern England and Wales, in the north people sought shelter from heavy rain and even lightning.

The Met Office issued a yellow weather warning over the threat of "sudden localised flooding of transport routes, homes and businesses" in southern Scotland and northern England, with the possibility of it spreading over a larger part of England and Wales later on Wednesday.

Eyebrows raised as Corbyn urges Grenfell homeless to 'occupy' empty properties

Families made homeless by the Grenfell Tower fire should be free to occupy any empty properties they like across London's wealthiest borough, Jeremy Corbyn has appeared to suggest.

The Labour leader has said ministers must do more to find homes for the families who lost everything in the devastating blaze.

Last week he said that vacant properties in the borough should be requisitioned for those made homeless by the fire.

On Sunday, he went further by appearing to suggest that people should be allowed simply to occupy vacant flats and houses wherever they could find them across the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea.

Mr Corbyn, who has won praise for his response to the disaster, was accused of going too far and using the event to further his own political agenda.

'preventable accident'

In a television interview, he said: "There are a large number of deliberately kept vacant flats and properties all over London – it's called land banking. People with a lot of money buy a house, buy a flat, keep it empty."

Asked by ITV interviewer Robert Peston if he would "seize it forever, or just take it for as long as they're needed", he replied: "Occupy, compulsory purchase it, requisition it, there's a lot of things you can do."

The term "occupy" has links to the Left-wing Occupy movement whose members camped in a park near Wall Street, New York City, protesting against corporate greed in 2011.

The movement subsequently spread around the world, including an encampment set up in the shadow of St Paul's Cathedral in the City of London.

One senior Government minister told The Daily Telegraph: "They are on the cusp of encouraging insurrection and hijacking a truly awful event."

It comes amid fears that Corbyn supporters are planning to capitalize on Theresa May's vulnerable position and launch civil unrest in a bid to force her from power.

Meanwhile, the devastating extent of the damage inside the burnt-out Grenfell Tower flats was revealed by the police.

Sadiq Khan, the London Mayor, said the Grenfell Tower disaster was a "preventable accident" caused by "years of neglect" by the local council and successive governments. After attending a service for victims, Mr Khan said the fire was a national disaster requiring a national response.

The tragic events of last week, in which at least 79 died and hundreds more were left homeless, have become increasingly political in recent days.

Mr Corbyn insisted he was not seeking to score points against Mrs May, who has faced intense criticism for her response to the tragedy. He said: "The real issue is not about what we as individuals feel, Theresa May, me, anybody else, it's what those people are going through."

Emergency inspections of tower blocks ordered as combustible cladding identified as key cause of disaster

■ Seven blocks out of 600 tested found to use the same deadly material

AS THE DEATH TOLL from the Grenfell Tower fire climbed to at least 79, the government has ordered emergency inspections of similar blocks across the country to determine if they also use the combustible cladding which contributed to the scale of the disaster.

At press time at least seven tower blocks of the over 600 tested had been found to use the same material – meaning that thousands of people are living in potential death traps.

Seven tower blocks in four different local authorities failed emergency tests, Downing Street said, but they have not yet been identified.

'further testing'

"Failing this test does not necessarily mean that your building may be declared unsafe," Theresa May's deputy spokeswoman said.

"It will be subject to further testing that is undertaken by the fire services to do that and, if that is the case, then we will be obviously working with local authorities and the landlords to make sure that nobody stays in a building that's proved to be unsafe."

It is possible that some buildings could be deemed habitable even with combustible cladding, if they have barriers to prevent fires spreading quickly, for example, or if the cladding only covers some of the block.

And not all have the blocks under suspicion have the aluminium composite material (ACM) panels attached to Grenfell Tower, with disastrous consequences.

Camden Council, in DEATH TRAP: combustible cladding used to improve the Grenfell Towers' appearance has been cited as a key cause of the large death toll in the fire

London, has said it is removing cladding from five tower blocks, but those five – or not all of them – are not thought to be included in the Government figure.

The four local authorities where the blocks are located will only be named after they have reported that they have informed residents first.

The Building Research Establishment, in North London, has the ability to test 100 samples a day, with results produced "within hours".

It is not known how long the Fire Service will take to carry out the further tests, to determine whether buildings are unsafe.

The No 10 spokeswoman was unable to say whether having combustible cladding on high rise towers was illegal in every case, because it depended on individual circumstances such as height or environmental factors.

Local authorities have been urged to send samples of cladding in "very quickly", she said, adding: "Many of them are coming in as we speak."

"This is a matter of urgent priority for everybody so there will not be delays in the checks being carried out and residents being informed."

FIGHTING BACK TEARS: firefighters observe Monday's minute of silence for the Grenfell victims

Honoring the 79 victims...

A minute's silence was held at 11am on Monday, as firefighters, politicians and police officers joined members of the public in honoring those killed and injured in the fire at Grenfell Tower in west London last week.

Some of the firefighters appeared close to tears during the tribute to those caught in the inferno, which left dozens dead and many more injured.

As of Monday morning the number of people dead and missing presumed dead after the disaster stood at 79. Five of those people have so far been formally identified.

Earlier in the day Metropolitan Police Commander Stuart Cundy fought back tears as he told reporters about the scene inside the 24-storey tower in north Kensington.

Footage from inside the gutted building has been released, showing the extent of the damage caused by the blaze.

The Government has announced those left homeless by the fire will be given at least £5,500 from an emergency fund.

May offers EU citizens the same rights as Britons after Brexit

■ 'Settled Status' on offer as exit negotiations open in Brussels

EU citizens legally resident in the UK should have the same rights as British citizens after Brexit, Theresa May has told EU leaders.

"No-one will face a cliff edge," the Prime Minister said at a Brussels summit on Thursday.

A new "UK settled status" will grant those who have spent five years in the UK equal rights on healthcare, education, benefits and pensions.

Guaranteeing EU citizens' rights is the top priority for the EU delegation negotiating Brexit.

thorny issues

Before Mrs May's offer, the EU proposed that EU citizens in the UK and the estimated 1.2 million Britons living in EU countries should continue enjoying the same rights, enforceable by the European Court of Justice (ECJ).

There are two other thorny issues that have to be resolved early on - the UK's divorce bill and the Northern Ireland border.

An estimated 3.2 million EU citizens live in the UK and there is much nervousness - some even fear deportation.

Mrs May sought to reassure the UK's 27 EU partners, saying the UK "does not want anyone here to have to leave, nor does it want families to be split up".

Her offer brought a cautious response.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel described it as "a good start" but said many other issues around Brexit still had to be resolved.

A senior EU official said that when the full details of the UK proposal were published on Monday, they would go through them "line by line".

MAY AND TUSK: the EC President repeated his wish that Britain stay in the EU

Mrs May's Brexit statement took up little of the summit's time. There was no debate as the EU is anxious to avoid any splits emerging.

exit deadline

The recent general election has left Mrs May seriously weakened, heading a minority government, which has fuelled uncertainty about the whole Brexit process.

The UK's exit deadline is 30 March 2019. A cut-off date for obtaining "UK settled status" is yet to be announced.

EU citizens who settle in the UK before Brexit will get a grace period to reach the five-year minimum for residency - but only if they arrive before the cut-off date.

The UK is anxious to start negotiating a new trade deal soon, but the EU has already won the argument that its Brexit priorities must be addressed first.

As the summit got under way, European Council President Donald Tusk emphasised that the door to the UK staying in the EU was still open. Quoting John Lennon's Imagine, he said: "You may say I'm a dreamer, but I'm not the only one."

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte said that as an Anglophile, "I hate Brexit from every angle."

"It is crucially important we know what Britain wants from Brexit," he warned. The Netherlands is one of the UK's closest EU allies, with a similar stance on free trade.

legal pressure

Mrs May has vowed to take the UK out of both the EU single market and the customs union. But there are many voices - including in her own party - pressing for a softer approach.

"I hope we'll come to some form of continued [UK] membership or relationship with the internal market," Mr Rutte said. "I absolutely believe the UK will be hit in the economy and the pound very hard."

Counter-terrorism has also been a key issue at the summit which comes in the wake of an attack in Brussels on Tuesday.

Several EU states have been attacked in recent weeks, including the UK, France and Sweden, and Mrs May said that an attack against any member state was an attack on all.

The 28 leaders agreed to put legal pressure on internet giants like Google, Twitter and Facebook to remove jihadist content faster and more proactively.

Mr Tusk said the bloc was calling on social media companies to do whatever was necessary to prevent the spread of terrorist material and was prepared to pass new legislation. "This means developing new tools to detect and remove material automatically," he said.

The EU wants the industry to help tackle the problem of attackers slipping under the radar by using apps with end-to-end encryption.

expressed any racist views. He added: "Its madness. It is obviously sheer madness."

Osborne's mother, who has not been named, later gave an interview to ITV News where she said he was a "complex" man.

The Telegraph reported Osborne had become radicalized following the recent terror attacks in London Bridge and Manchester.

'so normal'

He is allegedly to have hurled insults at his Asian neighbour's 12-year-old son and was allegedly thrown out of his local pub the night before the attack for "cursing Muslims". He is believed to have hired a van from local rental firm before driving to London.

Neighbours of the 47-year-old has expressed their shock at his alleged involvement.

Osborne is believed to have moved to the area from Weston-super-Mare around 10 years ago with his partner and four children.

Neighbour Khadijeh Sherizi said: "I saw him on the news and I thought 'oh my God' that is my neighbour."

"He has been so normal. He was in his kitchen yesterday afternoon singing with his kids."

"He was the dad of the family. He has kids. He lives next door. He seemed polite and pleasant to me. I just can't believe it."

Scotland Yard said in an initial statement overnight that Osborne was taken to hospital as a precaution and "would be the subject of a mental health assessment in due course".

Osborne has subsequently been taken into custody at a south London police station and formally arrested on suspicion of attempted murder and the instigation of terrorism.

Harry: nobody wants to be the monarch

■ In a frank interview Prince criticizes being made to walk in the 1997 funeral procession for Diana

No-one in the Royal Family wants to be king or queen, Prince Harry has told a US magazine, but added: "We will carry out our duties at the right time."

"Is there any one of the Royal Family who wants to be king or queen? I don't think so," he told Newsweek.

And he said the royals were doing it "for the greater good of the people".

The prince also spoke about walking in the funeral procession for his mother, Princess Diana, when he was 12, saying no child "should be asked to do that".

In 1997, Harry joined his father, the Prince of Wales, grandfather, the Duke of Edinburgh, 15-year-old brother, the Duke of Cambridge, and uncle, Earl Spencer, in the procession through the streets of London.

Harry, who recently said he had received counselling to cope with the death of his mother in a car crash in Paris, said: "My mother had just died, and I had to walk a long way behind her coffin, surrounded by thousands of people watching me while millions more did on television."

"I don't think any child should be asked to do that, under any circumstances. I don't think it would happen today."

The Prince also talked about the role he and his brother are taking in what he called "modernising the monarchy".

He also paid tribute to his "remarkable" grandmother for letting the younger royals do things their own way.

"The Queen has been fantastic in letting us

HARRY ON THE MONARCHY: 'We don't want to dilute the magic' choose," he says. "She tells us to take our time and really think things through."

Prince Harry told the magazine, which says it was given access to the prince for nearly a year, that he was "involved in modernising the British monarchy".

"It's a tricky balancing act. We don't want to dilute the magic. The British public and the whole world need institutions like it."

Harry praised Princess Diana for playing a part in showing him an ordinary life, saying people would be "amazed" at how ordinary his and Prince William's lives were.

"I do my own shopping. Sometimes... I worry someone will snap me with their phone. But I am determined to have a relatively normal life and if I am lucky enough to have children, they can have one too."

"Even if I was king, I would do my own shopping."

Noel Edmonds reveals huge financial losses led to suicide bid

■ Former TV host says he tried to take his own life as his company crumbled after falling victim to bank fraudsters.

Noel Edmonds has described how paramedics saved his life after he attempted suicide when his business fell victim to financial fraudsters.

The former Swap Shop and Noel's House Party host (pictured, right) revealed in an interview that he tried to kill himself in 2005 as Unique Group collapsed.

He claims the company was among firms affected by a historic £245m loans scam by HBOS employees in Reading, who were jailed earlier this year.

It emerged last month the TV star was seeking £50m compensation from Lloyds

Banking Group, which rescued HBOS at the height of the financial crisis in 2008.

The entertainer said: "Until these criminals took me to the brink of emotional annihilation, I had always felt those who opt out by taking their own lives were selfish and cowardly."

"But having been cast into that bottomless dark space devoid of logic and reason, I have a much deeper understanding of life without hope."

"I seek no sympathy and feel no shame in admitting that on the evening of 18 January 2005 I attempted to end the overwhelming mental pain which had consumed my whole being.

"The fact that I did not become another suicide statistic is solely due to the swift response of a Devon ambulance crew and the compassionate support of the Priory in Bristol."

Lloyds said in April

it would begin making compensation offers to fraud victims in May from a £100m pot, with payments expected to begin in June.

However, Mr Edmonds has repeatedly urged Lloyds to speed up the process and says his demands for a meeting with the bank's chief executive and chairman have gone unanswered.

A spokesman for the banks said: "Our customers' safety is of paramount importance to us."

"We have a clear policy that if a customer says that they are considering taking their own life that we must take the statement seriously and take action to protect them."

TV host Ant checks into rehab

Ant McPartlin, one half of presenting duo Ant and Dec, has checked himself into rehab for a prescription drug and alcohol problem, according to The Sun on Sunday.

The TV star says he has been going through a “difficult time” and the newspaper says he will now spend a couple of months getting treatment.

“The first step is to admit to yourself you need help,” Ant said.

“I feel like I have let a lot of people down and for that I am truly sorry.”

According to the newspaper some of Ant’s problems began with a knee injury that didn’t heal properly, leaving him in pain.

It’s thought the medication he took to deal with that pain, and he then developed a dependency on painkillers.

“I want to thank my wife, family and closest friends for helping me through this really difficult time,” said Ant.

“I’ve spoken out because I think it’s important that people ask for help if they’re going through a rough time and get the proper treatment to help their recovery.”

Ant and hosting partner Declan Donnelly, first appeared together as teenagers in BBC children’s show Byker Grove and went on to have a brief pop career.

They’ve since gone on to host a variety of entertainment shows, including Britain’s Got Talent, Ant and Dec’s Saturday Night Takeaway and I’m a Celebrity... Get Me Out of Here.

Last month they won a Bafta for best live event for fronting The Queen’s 90th Birthday Celebration in May 2016.

Appearing at Glastonbury, Depp hints at Trump ‘assassination’

Actor Johnny Depp appeared to threaten US President Donald Trump during a speech at the Glastonbury Festival on Thursday.

“Can you bring Trump here?” he asked the audience, as he introduced a screening of his film The Libertine.

After receiving jeers from the crowd, he added: “You misunderstand completely. When was the last time an actor assassinated a president?”

“I want to clarify,” he added, “I’m not an actor. I lie for a living [but] it’s been a while. Maybe it’s about time.”

JOHNNY DEPP: the actor is promoting his film The Libertine at the famous festival in Somerset

‘Just a question’

The star acknowledged that his comments - which may have been a reference to the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln by actor John Wilkes Booth in 1865 - would prove controversial.

“By the way, this is going to be in the press and it’ll be horrible,” he said.

Despite his comments, the Pirates of the Caribbean actor was given a rock star welcome at Worthy Farm.

Wearing distressed jeans and a black fedora, he was mobbed by fans as he arrived; and his comments about President Trump were met with laughter, mixed with a little shock.

Speaking to the BBC afterwards, one fan was more concerned with meeting her idol than analyzing his politics.

“I don’t even know what to say. I’m going to die,” said Jess Gallagher.

“He reached out and touched my hand and I don’t know what to do.

“He’s an amazing actor and I’ve loved him ever since I studied him in year 11 in A-Level drama. I can’t cope!”

Meet A Member: Evelyn Cantacuzène-Spéransky

Meet a member: Evelyn Cantacuzène-Spéransky from Calvin (Geneva, Switzerland) who moved to Los Angeles earlier this year.

What made you decide to move to LA?
After chilly Geneva I am happy to be in a warmer climate. And I am able to continue my work as an independent curator and events organizer.

What was your first impression of Los Angeles?

I loved the positive attitude and energy that one finds here. It is very stimulating to be surrounded for the most part with people in the creative industries. When in London, I was "mother to 3,000 drunken artists" and chief bottle washer at the Chelsea Arts Club, a private members' club for artists' and it is great to be back amongst likeminded individuals in this little liberal bubble.

What do you miss most from home?

What I do miss about Geneva is the beauty of the lake, the ferry that takes you from one side to another and in London the green parks, the latter I have now swapped for the desert landscape of Runyon Canyon. It has always puzzled me that Los Angelenos refer to going on a hike as opposed to a walk!

Do you have a hidden gem you'd like to share with us?

My hidden gem is the Museum of Jurassic Technology (www.mjt.org), where the real meets the imaginary, in a cabinet of curiosities housed in a labyrinth of rooms in a neo-gothic mansion. Tea and biscuits are also part of the entrance ticket. The best "happy hour" in town is at the Hammer Museum Courtyard Café. The museum also has an amazing free lecture/music/film series, as well as being a platform for cutting edge art. Being a foodie and coming from London, the food capital of Europe, one is spoilt for choice in LA; from the yummy food at Gelina's (Venice), to vegan Mexican at Gracias Madre (Larchmont), vegan Japanese at Shojin (Koreatown and Culver City) and for the carnivores, Gjusta Deli in Venice. My vice is ice cream, I love the goat's cheese and fig at Salt and Straw (Venice) or the non-diary ice cream at Kippy's (Santa Monica).

I love the New York feel of Downtown and the Notting Hill ambience of Abbot Kinney.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom – what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

That one can exist in LA and not drive. I live in Santa Monica, which has pavements that people actually walk along and window shop. There is a simply wonderful Farmers Market every Saturday and Sunday with live music. I have discovered the Big Blue Bus and the Metro, which goes Down Town into the heart of the Arts District. I am always touched by the kindness of the bus drivers, especially when they help the disabled on and off the buses. Riding public transport is a much needed reality check in the City of Fantasies.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

I have just curated an exhibition of the photographs of British photographer Carinthia West, who recorded iconic moments and people of the 70s www.kmfinearts.com. In the pipe line, in October is the screening and ensuing Round Table at Santa Monica College of Revolution: A New Art for a New World, on the centenary of the Russian Revolution, by the British film maker Mary Kinmoth. And I am also curating a mini-festival of shorts around the

Every three and half to four years, the British residence gets a brand new Consul General and Deputy Consul General.

About a month ago we bid farewell to Bernie Greene and welcomed Collette Weston, who has jumped right into the thick of things. She has already been to our weekly Breakfast Blub to meet members and she hosted a wonderful celebration for gay pride at the Abbey earlier this month, as well as attending a screening of British short films at the Soho House. Collette has even enjoyed an evening at the ballet. The new C-G seems to settling in nicely and I'm glad we are all making her feel welcome.

It was also time to say goodbye to Chris O'Connor who has not only thrown some fabulous parties at his home for the last number of years but has also supported some of our wonderful causes and organizations. To be the first foreign

The rumor currently swirling is that Celine Dion has reportedly met up with Adele while in London for her UK tour to discuss the possibility of singing together.

Oo-er!

Can you imagine?

Would they begin with Hello? Maybe follow with That's The Way It Is? End with Someone Like You before breaking our hearts again with My Heart Will Go On?

Pop fans may erupt with excitement... I know I would!

'Adele made the trip to meet her idol and the music legends both embraced in a private room backstage before the gig and told each other how much they loved each other,' a source has revealed of the moments before Dion took the O2 Arena stage on Tuesday night.

However the source added that although the conversation was friendly, Adele would be too terrified of singing live with Dion to make the moment come true.

Speaking to The Sun, the insider added: 'Adele said she would love to sing with her on stage at some point but she would be too scared.'

Later on stage, performing to a sold-out crowd, Dion spoke to Adele, who was sat in the crowds: 'I want to move here. If I do, do you think if I move here I can meet Adele and you can help fix this for me?'

The source also claimed that the twosome discussed teaming up during their backstage meet up, just months after Adele presented Dion with an award at the 2017 Grammys.

The latest speculation comes shortly after Celine admitted during an appearance on British TV show Lorraine earlier this year that she wants to do a duet with the singer and even challenged her to a team-up.

'I was wondering if you can sing a song with me. Anywhere, any time,' Celine told Adele.

Please make it so!

MASTER STROKE: John Simm in welcome return to Dr Who!

LOCK THE DOORS, turns off the phone, give the dogs a juicy bone...John Simm is returning as The Master in this weekend's Doctor Who and I for one will be glued to the TV!

Who-er!

Doctor Who's tenth series (since the Russell T. Davies reboot in 2005) has been hailed by critics and fans alike as one of the show's best in recent history, with many devotees thoroughly enjoying Peter Capaldi's final outing as the iconic Timelord.

The BBC has released the trailer for 'World Enough and Time' - the eleventh episode of the season - featuring Simm's return as The Master, the Doctor's longtime antagonist.

"Give us a kiss," the newly goatee'd character says after a montage of clips heavily featuring Michelle Gomez's incarnation of The Master.

I must quickly point out though, there's a welcome return for two classic foes of The Doctor when the two-part series finale kicks off this weekend.

It will see the Doctor and Bill played by Pearl Mackie facing the original and menacing Mondasian Cyberman, while Missy meets The Master, played again by John Simm for the first time since 2010.

The Doctor and co arrive on a huge spaceship that's 400 miles long and 100 miles wide and about to be sucked into a massive black hole. Viewers will find out far more about The Master's earlier history with The Doctor over the two episodes, and The Master is in particularly menacing form.

"Thanks to the power of time travel I'm back as The Master," said Simm. "It's always a pleasure to work with this great team of people and I can't wait for fans to see what The Master gets up to."

The shock return inevitably means the Master comes face to face with Missy, even though they're the same person. As fans will know, Missy is a later incarnation of the Time Lord after he regenerated into her.

As both are time travellers, it's led to the two incarnations finally meeting up, something which executive producer Steven Moffat, who's written this adventure, had been keen to make happen for a long time. "I'd always thought it would be fun to have a story where two versions of the Master meet," he said. "It's not often you get to see a solo personality clash between characters, and it's been a huge pleasure to have fan favourites John Simm and Michelle Gomez face to face in the same role."

The show will air on BBC America over here. Can't wait to watch!

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Money worries (yours or those of someone close) will take a few days more to sort out. If you can let the worry go the situation will manifest quicker in a more positive way.

TAURUS: The sun in Cancer will bring to a head a long-simmering issue in your life...therefore it's best to keep your cool. On the bright side is your boss Venus is here for a visit of love. GEM INI: It's time to close the loop on an event which has dominated your thinking these past few weeks. The reality is that may have made a small event too large by overthinking it. Take a deep breath and let it go...by month's end you will recognize it for what it is: small potatoes.

CANCER: Movement is good for you and this week it's all around you and in the family also. Be strong and all the hard work you put in last month will bear fruit this coming week. Mars in your life now will assist you. Happy Birthday.

LEO: Financial issues could hold you back from enjoying this weekend and even if it seems unlikely to resolve immediately at least tackle what you can. Then spend time relaxing, not stressing.

VIRGO: As this coming week or so you have Mars in a low-key mood you may not get what you want. Understand that banging your head against a brick wall will only get you a headache, so with this mind do what you can.

LIB RA: In the part of your life that's not always on show or situations that are unresolved be prepared to be surprised. You find that all is not as it appears and it actually is better. Jupiter in your life will help you to complete anything by mid-month.

SCORPIO: There are some things you know and somethings you just suspect. As one of the most intuitive signs you are the only one who can figure this out. However do not mistake your fears for the truth. Mars your boss in watery Cancer will assist you.

SAGITTARIUS: We all deserve the finer things in life although it is not always possible to indulge ourselves. This week ahead at least treat yourself as though it is. Jupiter in a positive direction in your life will be helping you along.

CAPRICORN: You may feel as though some kind of a cloud is hanging over you these past few days. This is due in part to Mars in watery Cancer opposite you and causing you to reflect. This mood will pass in a few days so stay away from anyone or thing that could make you upset. AQUARIUS: If you refuse to acknowledge something it does not mean it will disappear. It will probably not be as bad as you think so take the bull by the horns and get going on sorting out the problem. Doing a good turn for another will help you and them.

PISCES: If you don't keep up with the times they gallop away and that is not a good idea for your life overall. You have the power this week to transform someone or something in to a positive outcome for all around. So start the ball rolling in that direction!

Llewellyn's Little Book of Psychic Development

■ Exclusive interview with author and psychic Melanie Barnum about her new book

"I've always written about psychic development," says Llewellyn's Little Book of Psychic Development author Melanie Barnum. "It is where I am most comfortable. I wanted to write something a bit lighter, something that wouldn't take too long to write, but that would occupy my writer's brain. I contacted my editor and asked if they wanted another book. Coincidentally, they had just discussed wanting to do the second book in their series of Llewellyn's Little Books, and it was this topic."

This pocket-size book aims to help you connect with your intuition. Barnum relays her personal experiences and as a psychic reader, those of her clients. The book features exercises to help you get in touch with yourself and build a more positive life.

"Before I had published books, I did a few readings a year for people who lived out of the United States," says Barnum. "But now, I do them often, and for many different countries. One of the most interesting things that has happened as a result of writing my books has been the difference in my clientele. Reading for people all over the world, over the phone or Skype has become more of the norm."

"It's exciting to me to learn about different cultures through the readings and to understand that simple things I take for granted," says Barnum. "Like biscuit... means something totally different to someone else. In one of my readings I kept psychically seeing someone eating a cookie. But, I was hearing the word biscuit. It took a few minutes for me to realize it had nothing to do with dogs, which I typically associated with biscuits, but instead, had to do with English tea time and cookies."

For research, Barnum loves to read books on the subject she's writing about. She also reviews her client session notes, to see what stood out and how she received the impressions.

"I draw on my own experiences and try and share my own knowledge from my almost twenty years of practicing as a professional psychic," says Barnum. "I also watch, because I love it... analyze other psychics and mediums in person or who have shows on television. Most importantly though, I pay attention to what questions people ask me. I like to know what my readers want to know about. I researched this latest book, and all of my books, by asking them what they are interested in and tried to incorporate the answers into my books."

Barnum has written four other books: The Book of Psychic Symbols, The Steady Way to Greatness, Psychic Abilities for Beginners, and Psychic Vision. She writes the "Psychic Symbols and Other Psychic Stuff" column for Bellesprit Magazine. She created the Psychic Symbols Oracle Cards, a deck of 44 symbolic and brightly colored cards used for readings. Her books have been translated and reprinted in other languages for other countries.

"When I first decided to submit a book query proposal to publishers, I actually tuned into my own intuition," says Barnum. "Asked to see psychically what the spine of my book would look like. I wanted to see what publisher's symbol, if any, was printed there and what color it would be. What I saw was surprising. I doubted it because I didn't think one of the top publishers in this genre would be interested in my book. I saw Llewellyn's moon logo."

Barnum lives in Bethel,

STRIKE ONE: Demarai Gray opened the scoring for England on Thursday

England ease into U-21 semis

England reached the semi-finals of the European Under-21 Championship for the first time since 2009 after comfortably beating 10-man Poland to finish top of Group A on Thursday.

Demarai Gray opened the scoring early on with a long-range effort before substitute Jacob Murphy tapped in.

Poland rarely threatened and had defender Jan Bednarek sent off late on for tripping Tammy Abraham in the box.

Lewis Baker converted the resultant penalty to complete the win.

The victory against the hosts means England top the standings with seven points but will have to wait to find out who their semi-final opponent will be, with Groups B and C still to be completed.

England's first 135 minutes of football at the tournament did nothing to suggest they were capable of avoiding a third successive group-stage exit.

They were unadventurous and ponderous in the opener against Sweden, managing just a single shot on target, and were equally poor for the first 45 minutes of their second game against Slovakia, in which they trailed 1-0 at the break.

However, they showed grit and determination to fight back and win that game 2-1, putting them in control of their own destiny, and they came out fighting in an intimidating atmosphere against Poland.

Goalkeeper Jordan Pickford once again showed why Everton paid Sunderland £30m for his services with a confident and assured display, while the Leicester pair of Ben Chilwell and Gray were also excellent.

Chilwell dominated down the left, snubbing out Poland attacks while getting forward quickly to create chances, and it was from his excellent pass that Gray scored the opener.

But in truth there were standout performances all over the pitch for England.

Southampton midfielder James Ward-Prowse provided a threat from set-pieces that is so often lacking at senior level, while Alfie Mawson was a dominant presence in defence as well as offering an aerial threat in attack.

The Swansea defender was only denied adding his name to the scoresheet by an excellent Jakub Wrabel save.

Manchester City boss Pep Guardiola could turn to Juventus' Dani Alves to strengthen his full-back options.

City do not have an experienced right-back after releasing out-of-contract duo Pablo Zabaleta and Bacary Sagna.

Guardiola has been linked with Tottenham's Kyle Walker but is understood to be considering whether to bid for 34-year-old Alves, who played for Juve in their Champions League final loss to Real Madrid on 3 June.

Swans hope to snag Terry

Swansea City chairman Huw Jenkins has claimed that manager Paul Clement is working hard to convince John Terry to join the club.

The 36-year-old (right) is mulling over his options after ending his 22-year association with Chelsea at the end of last season.

Aston Villa and Birmingham City are two of a handful of clubs interested in the defender, but Jenkins is hopeful that Clement's relationship with the player will help Swansea's case.

Clement is well aware of Terry's qualities having spent numerous years with the centre-back during coaching spells.

"I know Paul has spoken to John and his agent," The Mirror quotes Jenkins as saying. "I don't know what his preferences are because he has options and will go with what suits his family."

"We are well covered in that area and quite strong but I know there is interest with Paul and he spoke with John and his agent himself.

"When Paul knows a player well it is an obvious one for us. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't but we will always try and do that."

De Boer close to Palace job

Crystal Palace are close to appointing Frank de Boer as manager.

The former Netherlands international, 47, (above) has been offered the job and negotiations are at an advanced stage.

It is understood he was the first choice of Palace chairman Steve Parish and informed the south London side they were his preferred option.

De Boer is set to succeed Sam Allardyce, who left after helping Palace avoid relegation from the Premier League last season.

De Boer, who won 112

caps for the Netherlands, has been out of work since he was sacked by Inter Milan in November 2016 after only 85 days in charge.

Between 2010 and 2016 De Boer managed Ajax, winning the Eredivisie four years in a row between 2011 and 2015.

He stepped down days after missing out on a fifth league title to PSV Eindhoven on the final day of the 2015-16 campaign.

De Boer is thought to have impressed the Palace hierarchy with his knowledge of the club and his footballing vision.

It is said the respect and humbleness he showed was striking, especially given how much he achieved as a player.

The ex-Ajax, Barcelona and Rangers defender is understood to have committed to giving players from the existing squad a chance to impress before looking to make new signings.

Palace have invested heavily in recent transfer windows, but will back De Boer and have made him aware of their budget.

Salah completes Reds switch

■ Klopp describes £34m winger as 'a really exciting signing for us'

Liverpool have completed the 39m euro (£34m) signing of Roma's former Chelsea winger Mohamed Salah.

The Egyptian, 25, has signed a five-year deal and has been a prime target for manager Jurgen Klopp.

At current exchange rates, the fee is short of the club record £35m paid for Andy Carroll in 2011 but matches the sum they spent in 2016 to make Sadio Mane the most expensive African player.

Salah almost joined Liverpool from Basle in 2014 before moving to Chelsea.

Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp said Salah has "the perfect mix of experience and potential", adding: "This is a really exciting signing for us."

"I have followed him since he emerged at Basle and he has matured into a really good player."

"His pace is incredible, he gives us more attacking threat and we are already strong in this area. I like that we will make it even more competitive."

Salah will wear the number 11 shirt, with Roberto Firmino moving to number nine.

After only six Premier League starts following his £11m move, Salah had loan spells at Fiorentina and Roma before joining the latter in a permanent move for about £15m last summer.

He was a key figure as Roma finished second in Serie A last season, scoring 15 goals in 31 league appearances.

Liverpool have already signed Chelsea's 19-year-old striker Dominic Solanke, who was top scorer as England won the Under-20 World Cup and will join on 1 July.

That fee will be decided by a tribunal after he rejected a new contract at Stamford Bridge, with the fee expected to be about £3m.

SECOND TIME LUCKY?: Salah struggled to make an impact in English football after signing for Chelsea in 2014. He moved to Roma two years later.

O'Mahony named as Lions First Test skipper

Ireland flanker Peter O'Mahony will captain the British and Irish Lions in the first Test against New Zealand in Auckland this weekend.

Wales flanker Sam Warburton, made tour captain by head coach Warren Gatland, will be on the bench at Eden Park.

Welshman Liam Williams and England's Elliot Daly are surprise inclusions in the back three, alongside another Englishman, Anthony Watson.

The Lions play three Tests against the world champions.

The All Blacks announced their side earlier on Wednesday, with number eight Kieran Read named as skipper after returning from injury.

The second Test takes place in Wellington on Saturday, 1 July, before the teams return to Eden Park on Saturday, 8 July.

Munster flanker O'Mahony was not a regular pick for Ireland in this year's Six Nations after losing his place following a long-term knee injury.

The 27-year-old's solitary start came when he was recalled for their final match against England, but only after Jamie Heaslip was injured in the warm-up.

O'Mahony was named man of the match as Ireland beat Eddie Jones' side to deny them a second successive Grand Slam.

He captained the Lions in Saturday's win over Maori All Blacks - the final tour game before the opening Test - and impressed in the back row alongside Taulupe Faletau and Sean O'Brien.

"It's a reward for how the back row has gone. There is a nice balance there," said Gatland, who named the same trio for the Test. "Peter has done a good job."

Warburton, 28, struggled with a minor ankle problem earlier in the tour, but returned to captain the Lions in the defeat by the Highlanders before coming off the bench against the Maori All Blacks.
