MAN CHARGED IN PLOT TO KILL MAY

■ 20 year-old accused of planning bomb and knife attack on Downing Street

A LONDON man has been charged with planning to use an improvised explosive device to blow up the gates of Downing Street before entering No 10 and making an attempt on Theresa May's life.

Naa'imur Zakariyah Rahman, 20, allegedly planned to launch a bomb attack on the security gates outside Downing Street before detonating a suicide vest in Number 10 in a bid to kill Theresa May.

Rahman has been charged with preparing acts of terrorism and will appear in court alongside Mohammed Aqib Imran, 21, of Birmingham, who is accused of trying to join Islamic State.

Both men appeared at Westminster Magistrates' Court on Wednesday and were remanded in custody.

Details of the alleged terror plot were set out to Cabinet members on Tuesday during a briefing by Andrew Parker, the head of MI5. Mr Parker revealed that British intelligence had foiled nine terror plots in the past 12 months.

The disclosures about the charges came just hours after an official report into the Manchester terror attack revealed that the suicide bomber had been flagged for closer scrutiny by security services and that the atrocity could have been averted "had the cards fallen differently".

internal reviews

MI5 investigators misinterpreted intelligence on Salman Abedi earlier this year and it was disclosed his case was due to be discussed at a meeting scheduled for nine days after his May attack at the Manchester Arena.

Internal reviews into the police and MI5's handling of the four terrorist attacks in Britain this year also revealed one of the London Bridge attackers had been under active investigation by the Security Service.

The Westminster Bridge attacker, Khalid Masood, had also watched suicide attack videos on YouTube in the days before he carried out his assault.

David Anderson QC, a former terrorism law reviewer asked by the Home Secretary to independently check the secret internal reviews, said they were "no cause for despair" and that most attack plots continued to be broken up.

In response to his 61-page report, Amber Rudd, the Home Secretary, said the blame for the attacks "lies squarely" with the terrorists.

The reviews found that 22-year-old Abedi had previously been a

MI5 suspect, but was not under active investigation when he blew himself up among the crowd at an Ariana Grande concert.

In advance of the attack, officers had on two separate occasions received unspecified intelligence on him "whose significance was not fully appreciated at the time" and which could have led to his case being reopened.

"In retrospect, the intelligence can be seen to have been highly relevant to the planned attack," the report said.

concluded that while it was "unknowable" if reopening the investigation would have thwarted Abedi, it was "conceivable that the Manchester attack in particular might have been averted had the cards fallen differently".

Between March and June, London and Manchester experienced four attacks killing a total of 36 people and wounding another 200.

Abedi had first become an MI5 "subject of interest" in 2014, but it transpired he had been mistaken for someone else and his case was closed. It was reopened the following year on mistaken intelligence that he had contacted an Islamic State figure in Libya.

But though his case remained closed from that point, Abedi "continued to be referenced from time to time in intelligence gathered for other purposes. In two separate instances before the attack, intelligence was received that was "assessed at the time to relate not to terrorism, but to possible non-nefarious activity or to criminality".

Christine Keeler dies at 75

■ Showgirl's affairs with Russian diplomat and MP John Profumo caused one of UK's biggest scandals of 20th century

CHRISTINE Keeler, the former model at the centre of the Profumo sex scandal, has died aged 75.

The former model had been ill for several months with lung disease. She passed away in hospital in Farnborough, Hants, on Monday night.

Aged just 19, showgirl Keeler prompted fears of a Cold War intelligence leak after having affairs with British Cabinet minister John Profumo and Russian diplomat Yevgeny Ivanov at the same time. Profumo, Secretary of State for War in Harold Macmillan's Conservative government, was forced to resign in 1963 after lying to Parliament about the affair.

Born in Uxbridge, Middlesex, Keeler worked as a dancer at Murray's Cabaret Club in Soho when she met osteopath Stephen Ward.

Ward, known as a "man about town", took her to parties attended by VIPs and aristocrats.

And in 1961, she was introduced by Ward to Profumo, then 46. The couple began an affair which lasted several weeks. But she was also sleeping with Russian intelligence officer Ivanov, who was the Soviet Union's naval attache in London. Gossip around the corridors of Westminster forced Profumo to make a statement to MPs, where he denied ever having sex with Keeler claiming: "There was no impropriety whatsoever." Newspapers were desperate to get her story. The Daily Express scooped them all, finding her in hiding in Madrid. She admitted she had met Profumo "on several occasions" and failed to deny they had sex.

'notoriety'

Profumo was forced to resign from the Cabinet in 1963 after admitting lying to Parliament about his relationship with Keeler. Ward was arrested and put on trial for living off immoral earnings, accused of pimping Keeler and other girls. Keeler, who denied being a prostitute, attended the trial with her friend Mandy Rice-Davies, famous for saying in evidence when told a lover denied having an affair with her: "Well, he would, wouldn't he?"

The trial led to Ward taking his own life and Keeler went to jail for perjury in another case. Later she changed her name to Sloane in a bid to avoid the limelight because she found her "notoriety" difficult. Her son Seymour Platt, 46, told how the scandal had a profound effect.

He said: "There was a lot of good around Chris's rather tragic life. I think what happened to her back in the day was quite damaging.

"She was a good, decent person, and she got a very unfair label that was hard for her to live with."

Mr Platt added: "Chris was feisty. And she would never shy away from a fight. She had a terrific sense of fairness. She would stand up against anybody she thought was doing the wrong thing.

"And that is something I am very proud of. And hopefully, if there is one lesson I can learn from her, it would be that."

Keeler married twice and had two children, both boys. She said in 2012 that she had become estranged from her children because of her past. "It's awful but that's the way it is," she said.

Mr Platt said she should not have felt any "great shame". "She shouldn't have because, looking back, there was real good that came out of what happened," he added. "It did pull the curtain back and there were changes in society that were needed. "She was just a young girl having fun during the burgeoning of sexual liberation."

Labour MP Emma Dent Coad has been ridiculed for using a picture of an American homeless woman to criticise the Conservative Government's record.

Ms Dent Coad retweeted a picture of an elderly homeless lady (right) alongside text saying: "Work all your life, pay into the system all your life. This is what the

It's Christmas with the royals for Meghan

■ Queen planning to break with protocol by inviting royal fiancée to open presents with the family at Sandringham

MEGHAN Markle is expected to spend Christmas with the Royal Family at Sandringham.

Meghan and her fiancé Harry, 33, are expected to join other members of the Royal Family, including the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and Prince Charles and Camilla, for a Christmas Eve black-tie dinner.

They will also have a full English breakfast on Christmas morning before going to church and a pheasant shoot on Boxing Day.

They will be at the Norfolk estate from Christmas Eve until Boxing Day, it is believed.

She will also become the first royal fiancée to open presents with the Queen before becoming a member of the family. Sources suggested Prince Harry asked the Queen to make an exception so Meghan could join them at Sandringham for the festive period.

Kate Middleton was not invited to the Norfolk estate after she got engaged to Prince William in November 2010. She spent that Christmas with her parents in their family home in Bucklebury, Berkshire.

A friend of Harry's said: "Now they are engaged it was unthinkable they would be apart for Christmas."

"The Royal Family have fully welcomed Meghan into the fold."

Royal commentator Richard Fitzwilliams said: "It is expected Meghan will join Harry and the rest of the family for Christmas on the Queen's estate in Sandringham in Norfolk this year."

"Now they are engaged and she will shortly be a senior member of the royal family, it is pivotal that she feels an integral part of it as soon as possible."

'bag of nerves'

"Kate and the younger members will help her through the strict protocol of the royal festive celebrations which take place over three days and which can be daunting."

A source said last week: "Kate was a bag of nerves the first time she did Christmas with the Royals, so she knows exactly how daunting it must be for Meghan."

Harry and Meghan are understood to be planning to stay with the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and their two children, George and Charlotte, at Anmer

POPULAR CHOICE: Meghan wowed the crowds during her first public engagement with Harry in Nottingham last week

BOLT HOLE: set in 20,000 acres in Norfolk, Sandringham has been the private home of four generations of British monarchs since 1862.

Charlotte and George set to play 'central role' in royal wedding

PRINCE George and Princess Charlotte will play key roles in the wedding.

Their father Prince William is expected to be his brother's best man for the wedding at St George's Chapel in Windsor next May. But the Duke of Cambridge's children George, four, and Charlotte, two, are expected to follow Meghan up the aisle after the two stole the show at the wedding of their aunt Pippa Middleton in May.

The royal children are said to have met Meghan on "many occasions". A spokesman for Kensington Palace said: "The wedding will be a family event. You can expect the family to be involved."

Royal expert and author Marlene Koenig said: "It is very likely that Prince George and Princess Charlotte of Cambridge will be a page boy and a bridesmaid."

Prince Harry was best man for Prince William's wedding to Kate Middleton at Westminster Abbey in 2011. Meghan's best friend Jessica Mulroney is due to play an important role in the wedding, as well as helping the bride choose her dress. The daughters of Benita Litt, another of Meghan's friends, could also be flower girls. Meghan has described the two girls as her "fairy goddaughters".

But the Duchess of Cambridge is not expected to be part of Meghan's bridal party.

Ms Koenig said: "She is the future queen consort when William becomes king after his father and would be unlikely to be an attending person to another royal bride."

Charlie van Straubenzee, who is Harry's best friend, and his older brother Thomas are also reportedly being considered for roles as ushers. Hugh Grosvenor, the 7th Duke of Westminster and godfather to Prince George, Adam Bidwell, a former Welsh rugby player who joined the Prince on his trip to Las Vegas in 2012 and Mark Dyer, a former Welsh Guards officer, are also expected to play key parts.

Hall on the Sandringham Estate.

Harry and Meghan are also said to be planning a holiday in the New Year and may travel to California to see Meghan's mother Doria Radlan.

Kensington Palace has confirmed Meghan plans to visit friends and family in America before settling down with Harry in Nottingham Cottage at Kensington Palace.

The American actress, 36, delighted crowds as she appeared alongside Harry for their first official public engagement together in Nottingham on Friday.

In her retweet, Ms Dent Coad added: "God help us all this is appalling."

The homeless lady featured in Ms Dent Coad's retweet was, however, living in California when the photo was taken and she is pictured holding a dollar bill.

Hundreds of twitter users promptly pointed out this inaccuracy to Ms Dent Coad who took several days before deleting the tweet.

When a Twitter user suggested that Ms Dent Coad should check sources before retweeting content, Justin Madders, another Labour MP, responded saying: "The instant gratification of twitter can be an impediment to such precautionary behaviour."

The 97-year-old Bessie Mae Berger had been living rough in Los Angeles when the photo was taken. She passed away in 2010.

Ms Berger was profiled by the LA Times and her case has been featured widely across US news websites alongside stories chronicling the country's problem with elderly homelessness. Her picture is also available on Getty Images.

Ms Dent Coad has been at the centre of a number of controversial social media stories in recent weeks.

She was criticised after sharing a post which implied that Theresa May was ugly and for referring to black Conservative politician Shaun Bailey as a "token ghetto boy".

accused of sharing a photograph of Prince William's four-year-old son and the silhouette of a jihadi fighter. The picture was captioned "even the Royal Family will not be left alone" and the address of George's school was said to have been included in the material.

Details of the charges levelled at Rashid, 31, emerged when he appeared before Westminster magistrates' court this week. Rebecca Mundy, prosecuting, said Rashid used an encrypted message service to communicate with IS followers. Describing one message, she said: "There was a photo of the young Prince George at the beginning of the school term next to a silhouette of an IS fighter."

Bearded and bespectacled Rashid, who appeared in grey prison issue jogging top and bottoms, stared impassively ahead as the prosecutor summarized the case. He spoke only to identify himself at the hearing but indicated that he would plead not guilty to the charges. The defendant is also accused of calling for attacks on the Jewish community and British sports stadiums and planning to leave the UK and fight for IS in Syria. He is charged with one count of preparing to commit terrorist acts and one count of assisting others to commit acts of terror.

Referring to the first charge, Ms Mundy said: "That relates to his intention to travel to Syria to engage in the fighting out there." Turning to the second, she said: "It is alleged this defendant has set up a number of channels on which he broadcasts material to assist terrorists. They actively provide practical assistance and the intention is that readers will go on to commit acts of terrorism."

Rashid, of Nelson,

Lancs, was remanded in custody for a hearing at the Old Bailey on December 20. Chief magistrate Emma Arbuthnot said: "I'm sending this case to the Central Criminal Court."

Rashid was arrested last month during raids by Lancashire Police and Counter Terrorism Policing. An officer said at the time: "I want to reassure people that our information and intelligence lead us to believe that there is no immediate threat to local people."

Woman 'ripped man's testicle out with her teeth'

■ Drug and drink-fuelled attack came after he refused her offer of a threesome, Edinburgh court hears

A woman has been ordered to pay compensation to her former boyfriend after ripping a testicle out of his scrotum with her teeth.

Nunzia Del Viscio, 43, carried out the attack in her victim's flat in Edinburgh in May last year.

Now she's been found guilty of assaulting 44-year old Marcello Palma to his severe injury at his home on May 23.

Cops raced to the scene after ambulance crews were called by the victim.

Sheriff Peter McCormack heard those involved in the incident were Italian nationals, all working in restaurants in Edinburgh and that they had met up after work in a nightclub.

All had been drinking and Del Viscio admitted to having taken some drugs in the toilet.

When the nightclub closed, Del Viscio, Palma, Massimo Torrice and Luisa Bragaglia, went in a taxi to Palma's flat.

Palma said the atmosphere was lovely: "We were happy to be together."

"We went back to the flat to keep the night going".

Asked what he thought was going to happen, he replied: "sexual relations".

He and Massimo were pals, and Palma had been in a sexual relationship with Del Viscio.

When they got to the house, however, he and Luisa went to one bedroom and Massimo and Del Viscio into another.

Around 4am, Del

NUT JOB: Nunzia Del Viscio

Viscio came into his bedroom naked, jumped on the bed and said she wanted a threesome. He said "No" and she began screaming saying that his pal was no good in bed.

Del Viscio went into the bedroom where she had been with Massimo and began "destroying it".

The victim told her to calm down and get out of his flat.

He told the court in Edinburgh: "I took her clothes and threw them at her.

"We were insulting each other and she came against me and bit my left testicle. I threw two or three punches and had a finger in her eye to push her away."

"She drew her head back and my testicle came out".

He said he tried to stop the flow of blood with a towel and called for an ambulance.

He was taken to Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, where his testicle was put back into the scrotum and he was given 15 stitches.

Police found Del Viscio outside the flat with blood on her teeth and face.

'Fairly distraught'

She had injuries to her eyes and bruising on her face, and told officers that she had been hit by Mr Palma.

Police said he had been "fairly distraught", and that a bedroom was in a state of disarray, with pools of blood on the floor.

She claimed she had been acting in self defence, but was convicted of assault.

Del Viscio has been placed on a restriction of liberty order for six months, which means she must stay at home between 22:00 and 06:00.

Appearing for sentence at Edinburgh Sheriff Court, she was also ordered to pay her victim £500 compensation.

Louise and Jamie to divorce as they fail to save 19-year marriage

■ “Strictly” curse strikes again as former WAG rediscovers her love of the limelight

LOUISE Redknapp has called time on her 19-year marriage to ex-footballer husband Jamie after realising that their hopes of reconciliation were futile, friends have said.

Reports emerged this week that the couple had come to a “mutual agreement” that their marriage was over and that Louise had filed for divorce.

Despite living separately since July, Louise, 42, continued to wear her wedding ring and as recently as October insisted that she still loved Jamie, 44. She said that neither of them had any plans to “push for a divorce”. But a friend has revealed that the former Eternal singer, whose showbusiness career was revived when she was runner-up on the wildly popular Strictly Come Dancing TV show last year, realised some time ago that the marriage was over.

“They were no closer to getting back together since they first split,” the source said.

“In the end Louise decided to bring the marriage to an end.”

The source added that the couple hoped to have an amicable divorce for the sake of their sons Charley, 13, and Beau, nine.

Jamie was spotted without his wedding ring last week at Heathrow as he returned from a golfing trip. He has not spoken publicly about the split but according to friends was upset by rumours that he had held Louise back from her career. The former England midfielder was apparently particularly wounded when she said in an interview that she felt like a “Stepford wife” – a reference to the film about a town full of perfect women who turn out to be robots.

But insiders are pointing to another chapter of the so-called “Strictly Curse”, which has seen over a dozen relationships break up for contestants on the show.

Due to the harsh schedules, sexy dance moves and close quarters with their partners, the off-screen romances of some participants sometimes suffer as a result.

A source close to the former England footballer told reporters this week that Jamie was concerned about Louise’s growing friendship with dance partner Kevin Clifton.

STRAINS SHOWING? The couple, who have two sons together, split in July

The friend revealed: “Jamie was very concerned about his marriage and had become aware of Louise sending text messages Kevin.

“He made the decision to call Karen (Kevin’s wife) without Louise’s knowledge, which was a very hard thing for him to do.

“He asked Karen if he thought their partners were having an affair.”

The singer made no comment about her marriage, preferring to tweet excitedly about her forthcoming appearance at west London nightclub Under The Bridge. “Only 3 weeks to go before my first live show in 15 years!!!” she said. The show, which sold out in less than 10 minutes, will kick off her solo tour.

Louise’s life has seen a remarkable transformation in the year since Strictly. She has said the show was the first “selfish” thing she had done since becoming a mother and that it caused her to rethink her life. Her original plan was to do Strictly, tone up and lose some weight and then try for a third baby with Jamie. But her increased profile led to her landing the part of Sally Bowles in a touring production of Cabaret starring alongside Will Young.

Louise said in October: “It was only when I agreed to do Strictly Come Dancing that I realised I couldn’t just go back to that. I didn’t want to continue running around after everyone else, and occasionally promoting a yogurt or doing a little TV presenting job. I wanted to sing, I wanted to perform.”

HANDS ON: Louise had grown close with Strictly co-star Kevin Clifton

Meet a Member: Alex Harden

Meet Alex Harden who was born in England but grew up in South East Asia (Singapore, Tokyo and Hong Kong) before attending The University of Bath and then moving to LA six years ago to pursue a new life in the U.S.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I first visited Los Angeles in 1997 and at nine years old I fell in love with the city. My parents and I stayed for a week and I was lucky enough to spend that week attending an NFL game, a Lakers game, Kings game, visiting Disneyland and Universal Studios as well as exploring the city and beaches. Hard not to fall in love with a week like that.

We visited a few summers more and by the time I was ready to turn 21 I knew it was where I wanted to celebrate. From that, I decided upon graduating university it was where I wanted to move to.

What do you miss most from home?

Pubs, family and friends (in that order haha)

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

Not a bit. It always felt like a world of wonders waiting to be explored and in many ways I feel like that today. I think it is a hugely entrepreneurial city with opportunities for anyone that is willing to work hard and take chances.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

The obvious answer is the weather. In truth, I do think that plays a big part in how you approach your day-to-day life and gives a level of positivity that doesn't always exist in the U.K. That said, it is a melting pot of people, which is exciting, but you do have to be careful to whom you give your energy and time.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

The Sunset Tower Bar (not exactly hidden but such a lovely setting with the genuine feel of old Hollywood). Kings Road Coffee (kick starts my heart daily).

My mom's kitchen (invite only but the best food in LA, hands down. Also makes a mean G&T)

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Go for it, but understand it takes a while to find your bearings and the area you live in has a significant impact on your lifestyle. Most people I know move 4+ times before settling on their neighborhood.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

ARIES: It's the time to speak out in a situation that has been in flux for quite some time. While your boss Mars is visiting the water sign Scorpio your intuition will be on high alert. The full picture will be clearer by the end of next week, it's best to wait until then.

TAURUS: You can be sure you are on the right track overall this week when you listen to your intuition. Pay attention to what your desires are rather than what you need. Life is somewhat hectic lately, so block out anything that is not relevant.

GEMINI: You have a lot of energy but can feel a bit frustrated. This is due to your boss planet Mercury going backwards. You have something (or someone) you are putting on the back burner again. This is not something you can ignore, you would be wise to make overtures soon.

CANCER: Chances are you have been a bit reclusive of late. While this is often a normal way of life for you on occasions be sure you change this pattern soonest. Mars the fire planet visiting your cousin sign Scorpio is giving you some steam to get you motivated.

LEO: This is a time for being more understanding about others in your life and the way they conduct their lives. Holidays bring out the best of your nature and certain events are about to transpire in your life so look forward to fun times.

VIRGO: It's time for you to be looking for a way to lighten up in most areas of life. This may seem drastic and can mean different things for some of you. Whatever area it is physically or emotionally make it a priority now. This is due to your moody boss Mercury in a funky mood.

LIBRA: Do not be sitting around wishing or dreaming for possible opportunities that may seem too far away for you. Get ready and be proactive and available for any new adventure. Your lucky star is waiting to shine on you to move up a ladder or two.

SCORPIO: You may feel you are hanging on to some area of life by your fingertips. While this can be uncomfortable it is a necessary in order for you to make a move in an ongoing situation. This should be credited to your boss Mars, who just arrived for a visit.

SAGITTARIUS: Now your boss planet Jupiter is going direct it's time for you to take some chances. This time is absolutely made for you adventurous souls, just remember to be open and ready to make a move in the right and open path that's waiting for you. Happy Birthday!

CAPRICORN: With the warrior planet Mars visiting your cousin Scorpio this week you should not be sitting around waiting for anyone or anything. It's time to get going on setting a course for the rest of the week ahead. What is unfinished should be your priority.

AQUARIUS: Your unpredictable boss Uranus is very powerful currently and you would be wise to listen to your intuition for an answer to a recent problem. You are often unpredictable but you always come through for your closest family and friends. Do not make them wait for the answer.

PISCES: Life has a habit of showing you the way through many situations. Some times it is easy to ignore the signs and to take a backseat and chill out. This week someone is relying on you for a little happiness; if you are complacent and turn your back you are missing a good time.

London's Triumph: the making of a capital

■ Exclusive interview with author Stephen Alford about his new book on sixteenth-century London

"With London's Triumph I wanted to make sense of the city as a city," says author Stephen Alford. "What it looked like, felt like to live there, how it grew, its landmarks, its people. But also, to trace how it encountered an ever-growing world, in terms of London's merchants sending out ships, and later colonists, to Russia, Persia, the East Indies and America. As well as how ordinary Londoners read and heard about those far-off places in books printed in the city."

In London's Triumph, the sixteenth century is a time of growth for England. The British ruled the sea, their ships navigated the globe, visiting the New World and Russia. They opened trade routes that helped merchants gain exotic items to sell. Sailors went on adventures to new lands. They were searching for rare and exotic treasures to bring back that would make their fortunes and fame.

"The persuasive nudge to write this book came from my London agent, Peter Robinson, over lunch in Notting Hill," says Alford. "In a sense it has been shadowing for me a while. As I remember it, Peter wondered about a book that tried to crack the mystery of how Tudor London grew so unexpectedly. I scribbled down my ideas and responses as I went back to Cambridge on the train. Some of those ideas... London's cityscape, its people, its poverty and riches, its massive growth...have stuck with me and the project. Others themes, the space I give to voyages and trade, for example, grew with the book."

Alford has been researching London for his book projects for years, from the British Library, the National Archives at Kew and the London Metropolitan Archive. Work in the Brotherton Library at Leeds and Cambridge University Library helped hugely. On a research trip to Leiden in the Netherlands, he found the University Library has an immaculate edition of The Principal Navigations (1598-1600) by Richard Hakluyt. Hakluyt's huge work, 1.7 million words in three volumes in an effort to print everything possible on English navigation across the globe, became a major source.

"The most memorable thing about ordering up the volumes was to find that Leiden's copy had the world map that Elizabethans could buy separately if they wanted to," says Alford.

"It's huge and stunning. The librarians kept a very close eye on me as I folded it out section by section to its full extent. The interesting thing about it is that it's a hydrographical map. It concentrates on coastlines and the places that had been discovered along them. This means that where other late sixteenth-century maps show us the whole globe as if Elizabethans knew everything about it, the hydrographical map gives us the reality."

London's Triumph is Alford's sixth book. The first two were scholarly monographs (Cambridge University Press), the third a biography of William Cecil, Lord Burghley (2008), the fourth The Watchers (Penguin and Bloomsbury 2012), and the fifth a short biography of King Edward VI (Penguin Monarchs series 2014). His Burghley book was shortlisted for the Marsh Prize in Biography. London's Triumph is being considered for UK TV. The Watchers is being adapted to film by British production company Water & Power Productions.

Alford teaches sixteenth and seventeenth-century British history at Leeds University. He lives in the Yorkshire Dales, with Brontë country and Haworth to the south and the Lake District to the northwest. He was born in Shropshire.

Alford is currently developing a book about the English and Dutch East India Companies in the seventeenth century.

London's Triumph: Merchants, Adventurers, and Money in Shakespeare's City by Stephen Alford. Hardcover: 336 pages, Publisher: Bloomsbury USA. December 5th, 2017. Language: English. ISBN: 9781620408216 $28.00

Wildfires, ash clouds and general mayhem...

Welcome to the Wild Wild West - one wonders whether wild fires contributed to this California moniker.

This year has been brutal and possibly the worst season ever. As of December 6, fire officials tallied 8,747 fires that burned through more than 1 million acres and killed 43 people throughout the state for 2017!

Fires at this time of year are quite rare. But there are at least six active wildfires burning in Southern California right now. That's nearly the total of all large December wildfires from 2000 to 2015, according to Cal Fire statistics.

The strong winds and the ongoing drought are what cause small brush fires to spread so rapidly, this is why regular brush clearance is vital and mandatory, (yes, in spite of the amount of rain we have we are not completely out of the woods; visit www.drought.gov/drought/states/california for our current status)

It is difficult to immediately say how the wildfires start, but some experts believe that the ones we had earlier this year could have been sparked by a malfunctioning power line or transformer. Faulty machinery, unauthorized campfires and tossed cigarette butts are other probable causes.

New transplants are often surprised that bonfires are not allowed here, as on first glance Los Angeles looks so green and lush, which is very misleading seeing as really we are a desert, with the majority of our water being piped in. A few years ago a British friend of mine stupidly threw a cigarette butt out of his car window and was baffled when a cop on a motorcycle pulled him over and gave him a serious talking to and ticket plus a date in court.

This is a very serious offense and my friend had to pay $2000 in fines plus do eight hours of community service, and was given the rather fitting job of picking up litter in Hollywood. So please take heed and be mindful as a stupid action can lead to the catastrophe we are currently experiencing.

On a happier note our Christmas party Wednesday night was a lovely event, although sadly a few of our members had to cancel their tickets due to the mandatory evacuations. If you have been affected and need some help or advice, please don't hesitate to get in touch - you can email us at britsinla@gmail.com.

Posh goes downmarket to fashion some dosh!

It was only a matter of time before Victoria Beckham came to her senses ... There isn't any real money to be made from high-end couture!

Now, I hear Posh is planning to take over the high streets with a new clothing line that's more affordable.

Oo-er!

The ex-Spice Girls singer turned fashion designer wants to open a chain of shops to sell her successful clothes range.

Beckham, 43, wants to expand the business she has been running since 2008 after securing a £30million investment in her luxury brand.

The cash injection will enable her to bring her high-end designs to the high street.

"It means opening more stores where my customers can see the brand through my eyes," said the Wannabe fashion empire boss.

"There's so much I want to do! Investment will mean we can take our digital presence to new heights, enhancing the website, while expanding our retail network."

'more affordable' clobber is on the way from VB

The former pop star has secured the money from Neo Investment Partners, a London private equity firm.

"I am incredibly excited by what the future holds now I have a new partner in Neo," said the mum-of-four.

Victoria, her former football ace husband David, 42 and former Spice Girls manager Simon Fuller, 57, remain the majority shareholders in the firm.

Her company would have made a £3.8m loss in 2014 if David had not bailed her out with £5.2m in cash.

"I started my brand from a small room in Simon Fuller's office with him and David believing in me and supporting my vision," she said.

"I now have an additional partner showing that same belief."

The new funding will likely be used to pay off debts.

Her flagship store in Mayfair, west London, is said to cost £650,000 a year in rent alone.

Experts believe that Victoria will then look to finally turn a profit in the next two to three years with a designer alternative to high street favorites such as Topshop, H&M and Miss Selfridge.

Root on latest England loss: no worries, it won't be a whitewash

WHAT ME, WORRY? England captain Joe Root put an upbeat gloss on the loss

■ With The Ashes going up in smoke, the England skipper remains surprisingly upbeat

ENGLAND are left with a mountain to climb to retain the Ashes after losing the Second Test by 120 runs in Adelaide this week.

English hopes of a unlikely comeback were dashed as Australia took six quick wickets on Tuesday to take a commanding lead in the five-Test series.

But England captain Joe Root and head coach Trevor Bayliss insisted that England remain competitive and claimed that the tour should not be likened to the one four years ago, which ended in a 5-0 defeat.

"I don't think we are in a situation that we were last time we were here," Root said. "We are in a much better place. We have been in control for periods of the game where I don't think necessarily that was the case last time around. We have to try and harness those periods and expand them and make them last for longer periods."

With the third Test less than a week away, England will relax their curfew for selected nights. It was brought in after the first Test in Brisbane, when it emerged that Jonny Bairstow had headbutted Cameron Bancroft in a Perth bar in the opening week of the tour. The restriction is understood to have annoyed some senior players, who felt that they were being treated like children.

And Root defended his controversial decision to ask Australia to bat despite winning the toss, claiming his men had fought back well after the hosts amassed a large first innings lead.

"I thought we showed a lot of character," he said. "It is about finding a way to do it over five days. The way that we went about the second innings proved to everyone really we are still massively in this series. If we can get things right and perform to our ability for longer periods of time we will win games."

Bayliss said that England had seen "frailties" in Australia's line-up to exploit. "You never want to lose 1-0 let alone 5-0," he said. "If we keep playing the way we are, there's enough frailties in the Australian team, and our guys have seen enough in them, that we can exploit that. Where they have been better than us, Nathan Lyon has been outstanding, and they have had guys score hundreds. They are certainly beatable. Smith scored a hundred and [Shaun] Marsh batted well for one too. The other guys have been in the same categories as us - 20s, 30s, 40s, 50s. We are getting confident that we have a better idea of where to bowl to them."

The players in his own side to whom Bayliss was referring are the batsmen new to Test cricket — Mark Stoneman, James Vince and Dawid Malan. "They have scored 30s, 40s, 50s," he said. "If you have made a fifty you've just got to do it again. I don't think there is a real need to panic, the guys have shown the capabilities we have got. We have just got to find a way to do it for longer."

Australia have added Mitchell Marsh, the Western Australia all-rounder, to their 13-man squad for the third Test in place of Chadd Sayers, the uncapped seamer.

PEP GUARDIOLA welcomed Manchester City's shock defeat in Kharkiv as his side's 20-match winning run finally came to an end Wednesday night.

Goals from Bernard and Ismaily were no less than Shakhtar deserved after ripping the visitors to shreds with some impressive attacking play. The setback is not ideal ahead of City's crucial derby clash at Manchester United on Sunday, but Guardiola believes losing for the first time this season will be good for his side in the long run.

"It hurts. It's never nice to lose and we always play to win," he said.

"But we've lost and it's part of our profession. You can't win every game.

"We needed to lose a game. It will be good for the club, the media, everybody.

"We had done the job in the Champions League one month ago. Now we prepare for Sunday and then think about Swansea and Tottenham after that."

Whatever happened here, City were guaranteed to win the group, so Guardiola made seven changes from the side who beat West Ham last time out. England Under-17 World Cup winner Phil Foden was handed his first Champions League start and, at just 17, became the youngest player to start a Champions League game since Cesc Fabregas for Arsenal in 2004. This was Guardiola's 100th Champions League game as a manager, becoming just the sixth to reach the landmark.

Shakhtar were the first to threaten when Taison surged forward but he sliced his shot wide and moments later, Taras Stepanenko set up Facundo Ferreyra whose shot was blocked. Marlos threatened next for the Ukrainians, waltzing through feeble tackles only to shoot straight at Ederson. City were riding their luck but it ran out after 26 minutes when Bernard fired Shakhtar ahead with a sublime strike, curling an unstoppable effort into the top corner.

Moments later, it took a smart save from Ederson to stop Bernard, but Ismaily doubled Shakhtar's lead after 32 minutes. A curling pass exposed Danilo and when Ederson came charging out but was beaten to the ball, Ismaily had a simple finish into an open goal.

It took City almost 40 minutes to fashion a chance as Ilkay Gundogan saw his shot well blocked by Ivan Ordets. Shakhtar goalkeeper Andriy Pyatov did well to foil Gabriel Jesus moments later as City tried to wake from their slumber.

Deep into injury-time, the visitors did grab a consolation as substitute Sergio Aguero converted from the spot after Bohdan Butko fouled Jesus in the box.

Everton enjoyed a comfortable victory, with Ademola Lookman scoring twice as the Toffees beat Apollon Limassol to end their failed Europa League campaign with their only win on Thursday.

With Sunday's Liverpool derby in mind, the Toffees made 11 changes from the victory over Huddersfield, while manager Sam Allardyce did not travel because of a medical appointment.

Lookman headed in Nikola Vlasic's cross from close range and fired in a 25-yard second for the already eliminated Toffees, who gave debuts to five youngsters.

Vlasic added a late third, nipping the ball past Apollon's defence to slot home.

Everton have won three games in a row, all under different managers - caretaker boss David Unsworth, Allardyce and, in Cyprus, newly appointed first-team coach Craig Shakespeare.

Victory allowed them to overtake winless Apollon, and avoid becoming the first English team to not win a Europa League group game.

REDS:

they got a fourth with the best of the night. Milner sent over a cross from the left and Mane launched himself into the air to score with a stunning volley in front of the Kop.

Coutinho's hat-trick goal came from a deflected shot off Salvatore Bocchetti before substitute Daniel Sturridge teed up Mane for the sixth and Salah pounced from close range for the seventh.

Having beaten Brighton 5-1 in the Premier League on Saturday, Liverpool have now scored 12 goals in two games.

Celtic stumble into Europa League

CELTIC suffered more embarrassment Tuesday night as they scraped into the Europa League by the skin of their teeth.

Jozo Simunic's 62nd-minute own-goal handed a 1-0 victory to Anderlecht and though the teams finished level on points, Brendan Rodgers' men will stay in European competition thanks to their previous 3-1 win in Belgium.

Rodgers said: "Overall, the best team won, but the bigger picture was to get through to the Europa League and that would be massive.

"We were the fourth seeds coming into this and there is immense pride that we got the job done.

"We have a lot of work to do at this level, but we can look forward to the Europa League in February."

Anderlecht did not look like a team without a single point and only one goal from their previous five group games. They overran Celtic at times before Simunic deflected a cross into his own net.

Bayern Munich won the battle of the big guns in Group B but their 3-1 victory over Paris Saint-Germain was not quite enough to pip the French champions to top spot. A header from Robert Lewandowski and Corentin Tolisso's double was not enough as Kylian Mbappe hit a vital goal for PSG.

Former Chelsea winger Juan Cuadrado and Federico Bernadeschi scored in Juventus' 2-0 win over Olympiakos but they still had to give way to Barcelona, who topped Group D after Paco Alcacer and an own-goal by ex-Barca star Jeremy Mathieu handed them a 2-0 win over Sporting Lisbon.

Llorente off the mark at last

Fernando Llorente scored his first Tottenham goal in his 17th appearance for the club as Mauricio Pochettino's side rounded off their Champions League Group H campaign with a routine 3-0 victory against Apoel.

Spurs had already secured first place in the group before Wednesday's game and Pochettino opted to give some of his fringe players a start.

Llorente, a summer signing from Swansea, was one of those to come in and he opened his Tottenham account midway through the first half, turning smartly inside the box before hooking the ball into the net.

It was a deserved goal for Spurs after a dominant start to the match, with Georges-Kevin N'Koudou having had an early effort cleared off the line.

Son Heung-min added a second before the break, curling in from the edge of the box after playing a one-two with Llorente.

Cypriots Apoel, who needed to avoid defeat to have a chance of claiming a Europa League spot ahead of Borussia Dortmund, offered very little throughout.

Praxitelis Vouros had the visitors' best chance early in the second half when his deflected strike flew just wide of the far post.

Instead, Spurs added a third late on through N'Koudou's deflected finish.

Tottenham, who finished with the highest points tally in this season's Champions League group stage with 16, can now look forward to Monday's last 16 draw, which takes place at Uefa's headquarters in Nyon, Switzerland at 11:00 GMT.

Llorente, 32, joined Tottenham on transfer deadline day after an impressive debut campaign in the Premier League last season, scoring 15 goals to help Swansea avoid relegation.

The Spanish striker, a World Cup winner in 2010, was the first player Pochettino had signed over the age of 30 since the Argentine became Spurs boss three years ago.

Llorente has largely failed to justify Pochettino's decision to go for experience over youth - a terrible close-range miss against Leicester last week - a particularly low point - but his goal and overall performance on Wednesday could prove a turning point in his Tottenham career.

He looked anything but like a player who had gone almost seven hours without goal when he opened the scoring, trapping Serge Aurier's low ball superbly before turning and finishing in one move.

Pochettino will no doubt be delighted to see the striker get off the mark but also encouraging for the Spurs boss was the way Llorente linked up with Son. The two combined for Tottenham's second and generally showed a good understanding throughout.

With Tottenham's Premier League form faltering - they are without a win since 5 November - and with progression to the knockout round already assured, Pochettino opted to give some of his key players a rest for this game.

Harry Kane, Christian Eriksen, Eric Dier, Kieran Trippier and Hugo Lloris were all absent but notable for his inclusion was Dele Alli.

The midfielder scored 18 goals in 37 Premier League games last term but his form in the opening few months of this season has been mixed. This game represented an opportunity for him to shine in a relatively pressure-free environment.

This was Tottenham's first Champions League game at Wembley since they impressively beat Real Madrid 3-1. Alli was arguably the best player on the pitch that night, scoring twice as Spurs fans chanted "we've got Dele Alli" while he tormented the Spanish giants throughout.

There were no such chants during this game as Alli struggled to make an impact, although the England international appeared to be struggling after taking an early knock to his knee.

But bigger tests lie ahead next spring, with Spurs certain to face either Basel, Bayern Munich, Juventus, Porto, Sevilla or Shakhtar.

Resurgent duo give Wenger selection headache

Jack Wilshire and Theo Walcott hope they have given manager Arsene Wenger a "selection headache" by impressing during Arsenal's comfortable 6-0 Europa League win over Bate Borisov Thursday night.

Neither midfielder Wilshire nor forward Walcott have started a Premier League game for the Gunners this season, but both found the net as Arsenal finished their Group H campaign with a comprehensive victory.

"There is plenty of competition when you play for Arsenal. We are doing our best to give the manager a headache to pick us for the team," Walcott said.

Wilshire, who scored his first goal since May 2015, added: "All we can do when we get our opportunity is give the manager a headache."

Wenger said: "Jack's

IS JACK BACK? Wilshire produced a man-of-the-match performance on Thursday moving forward. He's sharp, incisive and moving forward. For 70 minutes he was dominant in midfield on the creative side and that's very good news for us."

The Gunners, who had already secured top spot, went ahead with an angled finish from defender Mathieu Debuchy.

Walcott added Arsenal's second with a close-range finish and Wilshire then scored a fine goal after he cut on to his left foot inside the penalty area and arrowed the ball into the net.

Bate defender Denis Polyakov put Walcott's low cross into his own net after half-time before striker Olivier Giroud converted from the penalty spot following Nemanja Milunovic's trip on Walcott.

Mohamed Elneny added a sixth with a curling effort after being set up by Wilshire.

In the wake of Arsenal's 3-1 home defeat by Manchester United, this fixture represented a chance for some of their fringe players to impress.

Bate had a chance of qualifying for the knockout phase but did not present much of a test for the Gunners, who did not have to exert themselves to secure a routine victory.

REDS PHIL THEIR BOOTS!

■ Coutinho the star as Klopp's boys put seven past shellshocked Spartak

PHILIPPE COUTINHO led the way as Liverpool went into seventh heaven to progress to the Champions League knock-out stages in spectacular style Wednesday night.

In a perfect warm-up for Sunday's Merseyside derby, Coutinho, made captain for the night, scored a hat-trick to ensure Jurgen Klopp's men go into the last 16 for the first time since 2009 – and as group winners – with a 7-0 thrashing of Spartak Moscow.

Sadio Mane scored twice, including a spectacular volley, while Roberto Firmino and Mo Salah also got on the scoresheet as Liverpool hit seven for the second time in Group E.

In truth, it could easily have been double figures as they outclassed the Russian club and on this evidence it is going to take all new Everton boss Sam Allardyce's defensive know-how to stop them.

This seven-goal haul followed five at Brighton at the weekend and takes Liverpool's goals tally to 61 in only 24 games in all competitions.

An astonishing 29 of them have come in just eight Champions League games, including the qualifying round against Hoffenheim.

Klopp had built it up as "an all- or-nothing" night but Liverpool were effectively home and hosed inside the first 18 minutes.

It took them only four minutes to take the lead thanks to defender Georgi Dzhikiya pressing the panic button when faced by in-form Salah. Salah had his back to goal in the penalty area but Dzhikiya was so concerned about him turning he pulled him over, leaving referee Symon Marciniak with no option but to point to the spot.

Coutinho indulged in some mind games as he shaped up to take the spot kick, hesitating before sending Aleksandr Selikhov the wrong way.

The early goal eased any anxiety around Anfield and Klopp's men proceeded to tear Spartak apart.

The so-called 'fab four' of Mane, Salah, Firmino and Coutinho quartet combined for the second after 15 minutes. Mane started the move with a ball up to Salah. He flicked it on for Firmino, who rolled a pass into the path of the advancing Coutinho to stroke his shot into the far corner. It looked so easy.

And they only had to wait three more minutes for the third. Mane's shot hit Serdar Tasci and dropped kindly for Firmino to fire a first time shot past the helpless Selikhov.

It could have been more before half-time. Mane fired into the side-netting, Coutinho had a curling effort kept out of the top corner by Selikhov, who also saved a disappointing effort from Salah.

Mane was then guilty of a bad miss himself after Salah had put him clean through and the Egyptian himself was inches away with a curling effort from the edge of the penalty area.

Spartak finally weathered the storm as Liverpool eased off the pedal as the break approached and the Russians threatened to pull a goal back when Ze Luis had a shot blocked by Ragnar Klavan.

The one blot for Klopp was when Alberto Moreno limped off before the break with an ankle injury and was replaced by James Milner.

Liverpool could have sat back and given themselves a breather ahead of Sunday's derby but that is not Klopp's style and within two minutes of the restart
