A warm welcome from Auld Reekie

Harry and Meghan wow 'em north of the border

Prince Harry and Meghan Markle were given the warmest of Scottish welcomes in Edinburgh on Tuesday on an official joint visit to the famous capital ahead of their marriage in May.

Crowds who had waited hours in the cold outside Edinburgh Castle, which dominates the skyline from a rock in the city centre, were thrilled with the smiling couple.

Harry, 33, and Markle, 36, were officially welcomed to the city by the Royal Marines Scotland Band at the castle, where they observed the firing of the one o'clock gun, a tradition that dates back to 1861.

The actress reportedly laughed as the couple were greeted by a Shetland Pony outside the castle, who appeared to try to bite Harry's hand.

Speaking of bites, the pair were also visiting Social Bite, a charity that runs cafes and distributes food to the homeless, as well as employing staff who have been homeless. The eatery has attracted visits from other high-profile names such as actors George Clooney and Leonardo di Caprio.

The royal couple's social work spoke highly of them, one 13-year-old onlooker said.

"I think it's great they do all this stuff for charity, that they are in power but they use their power for good," she said.

Grenfell visits

Later Harry Markle attended reception at the Palace of Holyroodhouse, meeting youth representatives from several charities.

"They are active in the community and they are not sitting up in a castle somewhere barking orders at people so I think this is a good generation for the royals," said Richard Aylward, a 46-year-old Australian visiting family in Scotland.

Queen Elizabeth's grandson, fifth-in-line to the throne, and Markle, star of the US TV legal drama Suits, announced their engagement last year and will be married on May 19 at Windsor Castle.

As part of a tour of Britain before their big day, they have also visited the English city of Nottingham and the Welsh capital Cardiff.

Although it has not been confirmed by Kensington Palace, there have been reports Markle has also been doing a solo tour of sorts; quietly making visits to the Al Manaar mosque, a place of worship for many affected by the Grenfell Tower fire, which saw 71 die in June 2017.

UK AND USA face off over fate of Isis suspects

■ Neither country wants responsibility for holding murderous duo

Britain was this week engaged in a diplomatic row with the United States over the fate of two Londoners suspected of being members of the murderous Islamic State cell dubbed "the Beatles".

James Mattis, the US defence secretary, has ruled out sending Alexanda Kotey and El Shafee Elsheikh to Guantanamo Bay, the US internment facility in Cuba, after they were captured in Syria, officials have said. He appears to favour putting foreign Isis fighters on trial in their country of origin.

But Gavin Williamson, the defence secretary, does not want the men to return to Britain to face trial. Kotey, 34, and Elsheikh, 29, were stripped of their British citizenship after joining Isis. "The day these barbaric terrorists turned their back on this country in pursuit of an evil agenda of bloodshed slaughter, thev forfeited their right ever to return," a Whitehall source said . "They are not British subjects and should pay the price for their crimes in Syria."

However, there is no judicial system in wartorn Syria that could try them, and the US does not Britain was this week recognise the jurisdiction engaged in a diplomatic row with the United Criminal Court in the States over the fate of Hague.

Mr Williamson and Mr Mattis met with defence ministers from the US-led coalition against Isis for a meeting in Rome this week, and high on agenda was the issue of what to do with a "huge number" of foreigners held by USbacked Kurdish forces in Syria on suspicion of belonging to Isis. The head of a Syrian-Kurdish militia holding the fighters, who are from Russia, Europe, China, Japan and Arab countries, has previously stated that none of their home countries wanted them back.

The US position raised uncertainty over what should happen to Kotey and Elsheikh, who grew up in west London. Their group is suspected of torture and involvement in the beheading of more than 27 hostages, including Britons and Americans. It would be an embarrassing setback if Britain had to accept responsibility for the men, sources said.

Kathryn Wheelbarger, the US principal deputy assistant defence secretary, said: "We're working with the coalition on foreign fighter detainees, and generally expect these to return to their country of origin for disposition. Defence ministers have the obligation to really explain to their other ministers or their other cabinet officials just the importance to the mission, to make sure that there's an answer to this problem."

That comment appeared to be directed to Mr Williamson. The US government has yet to make a decision on what it thinks should happen to the pair, the Department of Defence said.

Downing Street would have ultimate responsibility for any decision on whether Britain would take them, in consultation with the Foreign Office, Home Office and government law officers. Downing Street and the Home Office declined to comment.

"The Home Office find themselves in a mess," a Whitehall source said. "It is a bit of a pickle. I am sure that submissions are being written on how to get out of this mess. It would be very unpalatable to allow them back but they will not be the last."

Under Home Office rules, anyone stripped of citizenship has the right to appeal. It was not known whether Kotey, who has a Ghanaian father and Greek-Cypriot mother, and Elsheikh, who moved to Britain from Sudan as a child, would try to exercise this right.

About 850 Britons have joined Isis in Syria and Iraq since 2014. More than 400 have since returned and at least 100 are thought to have been killed. Tobias Ellwood, a defence minister, raised the idea last week of sending foreign fighters to face trial at the Hague.

Lord Carlile of Berriew, QC, a former independent reviewer of counterterrorism laws, said Britain was the "proper forum" for Kotey and Elsheikh to stand trial as their country of origin. "Their victims include British nationals and their families, who have a legitimate expectation that the UK government will use its best efforts to ensure that a trial to good 'rule of law' standards will occur."

Stormont deal 'still months away'

Northern Ireland

A deal to restore powersharing in the North could be months away, Arlene Foster said this week in comments that suggested an imminent agreement with Sinn Féin had stalled.

Mrs Foster, the leader of the Democratic Unionist Party, ruled out a standalone Irish language act. This is a key Sinn Féin demand and has been a matter of contention for the past year. Mrs Foster also said that while the visit of Theresa May, the British prime minister, to Belfast on Monday was welcome, it was also a "bit of a distraction."

Mrs May and Irish leader Leo Varadkar spent Monday in Belfast, stoking hopes that a deal could be brokered almost 13 months after the executive collapsed.

The Irish government defended its trip to the North, with a spokesman for the taoiseach saying that it had been a "productive and useful day". He also denied that Mrs Foster's comments represented a setback.

Mrs Foster rubbished speculation about the shape of Irish language laws that might emerge from Stormont's powersharing negotiations. She said that rumours about what legislation might look like were "not grounded in any sort of reality".

She also ruled out any laws that would require bilingual road signs in Northern Ireland, compulsory teaching of Irish in schools, or quotas of Irish language speakers in the civil service. She tempered expectations that a deal to restore devolution was likely this week. "I am hopeful that we will move toward devolution again," she said. "Whether it is this week, whether it is in a couple of weeks or whether it's in a couple of months what I must ensure is that we have an accommodation that everybody feels content with."

Mrs Foster also made clear that if devolution was restored she expected to be first minister of the new administration. Sinn Féin had ruled out her return to the post while an inquiry into a botched green energy scheme continued. "I am the leader of the Democratic Unionist Party so therefore I will be the person that's put forward by the party to be first minister," she said.

Mrs May has urged all sides to make "one final push" to strike a deal to salvage power-sharing. Mrs Foster said that the visit from Mrs May and Mr Varadkar had interrupted the negotiations. The DUP leader said that both governments had been told before their trip that "the deal wasn't done".

DUP, The which Mrs props up May's Conservative government, did not meet Mr Varadkar on Monday but Mrs Foster rejected the suggestion that recent frayed relations over Brexit was the reason. She said she did not feel it was necessary to meet Mr Varadkar because the negotiations were touching on matters within Northern Ireland.

Misery for holiday Brits as chopper crash kills three, injures two

■ Grand Canyon victims were on holiday of a lifetime

TWO families were left devastated this week after a helicopter crash in the Grand Canyon killed three Britons on the trip of a lifetime.

Stuart Hill, birthday was last Friday, was killed alongside his brother Jason, 32, and girlfriend, Becky Dobson, 27, when their sightseeing helicopter dropped into a remote ravine and burst into flames. Three friends on the flight were injured but survived. Ellie Milward, 29, and Jonathan Udall, 32, who married last year, were flown with Jennifer Barham, 39, to University Medical Center in Las Vegas with Scott Booth, 42, the pilot.

Sandra Hill, 63, Stuart and Jason's mother, said that she was proud of her children, who had saved for a year for the trip. "The highlight was going to be the helicopter trip," she said.

She added that her sons were sporty and very close. "They did a lot together. They supported one another. They both lived life to the full. Both were our wonderful sons who cared for us."

The Rev David Hill, their father, who is a hospital chaplain, said that "a light has truly gone out" but took some comfort from the fact that his sons were together at the end. Jason, a solicitor for Shoosmiths in Milton Keynes, and Stuart, a Mercedes salesman, grew up in Worthing, West Sussex.

Ms Dobson's parents learnt of their daughter's death as they returned from holiday in Turkey. Mr Dobson said that Becky had been looking forward to the trip. "They were going to fly across the Grand Canyon - it would have been spectacular," he said. "We're all a bit shell-shocked. I've lost a lovely, lovely girl, so full of life. She was always happy."

Ms Dobson was a receptionist at Vets4Pets in Worthing. On the company's website she wrote about her wish to qualify as a veterinary nurse and about her hobbies. "I also love to travel the world and explore what is out there beyond good old Worthing," she wrote.

Ms Barham, a friend of Jason, is a partner at the Bircham Dyson Bell law firm in London under her professional name, Jenny Dorricott.

Teddy Fujimoto, a Las Vegas photographer who was doing a wedding shoot at the time of the crash, said he suddenly saw people running toward the edge of a gulch. He checked out the commotion coming from about 600ft below. "In the gulch, there was a helicopter, flames, smoke," he said. "It was horrible." He said there were two or three further explosions during the incident, which happened at 5.20pm local time on Saturday.

Francis Bradley, chief of police for the Hualapai Nation in northern Arizona, said rescuers struggled to reach the site because of severe weather, including gusts of up to 50mph. "The terrain where the crash occurred is extremely rugged," he said, adding that darkness and difficulties in sending air support had hampered the rescue.

Mr Bradley said the survivors showed extraordinary resilience. "I've seen a lot of accidents, especially those involving car crashes and other types of traumatic injuries, and . . . the will to survive kicks in," he said. "It's a fight-or-flight syndrome that we have in every one of us, and I'm sure that had a lot to do with their survival."

The tour began in Boulder City, Nevada, and although a storm was approaching and weather conditions were not normal, there were no restrictions on the flight. The helicopter tour was run by Papillon Group. The company's website states: "With more than 50 years flying the Grand Canyon and beyond, Papillon is the largest and most experienced helicopter tour operator in the world."

Federal Aviation A d m i n i s t r a t i o n spokesman Allen Kenitzer said the Eurocopter EC130 crashed in unknown circumstances and sustained heavy damage. An investigation will take place.

The Queen goes green

Plastic straws and bottles banned from royal estates

The Queen has banned plastic straws and bottles from the royal estates as part of a move to cut back on the use of plastics "at all levels".

Buckingham Palace outlined new waste plans and said there was a "strong desire to tackle the issue" in the royal household, in a move thought to be inspired by David Attenborough.

"Across the organisation, the royal household is committed to reducing its environmental impact," said a spokesman for Buckingham Palace.

As part of that, we have taken a number of practical steps to cut back on the use of plastics. At all levels, there's a strong desire to tackle this issue."

The new measures include gradually phasing out plastic straws in public cafes and banning them altogether in staff dining rooms, according to the Daily Telegraph.

Internal caterers at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and the Palace of Holyroodhouse in Edinburgh will now reportedly only be allowed to use china plates and glasses, or recyclable paper cups.

The Queen is thought to have developed a personal interest in the issue of plastic waste after working with Sir David on a conservation documentary dealing with wildlife in the Commonwealth.

filmed She was laughing and joking with the documentaryduring the maker programme which discussed plants to create a network of national forested parks across the 52 countries of the Commonwealth.

The announcement comes amid a wider plastic strategy to tackle the issue of plastic waste across Europe, including plans by the EU to make all plastic packaging across the continent recyclable or reusable by 2030.

Other commitments include a reduction in consumption of single-use plastics and restrictions on the use of microplastics, such as microbeads found in some cosmetics.

Frans Timmermans, the European Commission's first vice-president, who is responsible for sustainable development, said of the plans in January: "If we don't change the way we produce and use plastics, there will be more plastics than fish in our oceans by 2050."

As it stands, Europeans produce 25 million tons of plastic waste every year, but less than 30 per cent of this is recycled.

Justice has been served, say victims as serial abuser Bennell is convicted

■ Former football youth coach found guilty of abusing 11 boys aged eight to 15

Three of Barry Bennell's victims have told how he turned their dreams into a "horrendous nightmare" after the former youth football coach was convicted of 43 sex assaults on boys.

Bennell, who worked at Manchester City and Crewe Alexandra, was found guilty of abusing 11 boys aged eight to 15.

Speaking outside Liverpool Crown Court on Tuesday, another victim, Andy Woodward, said "justice has been served".

It is understood 86 others have come forward to say they were victims.

The jury, which deliberated over five days, had been told of Bennell's abuse of 12 boys between 1979 and 1990

Before the case he admitted seven charges of indecent assault on three boys, two of whom were also part of the allegations he was tried on.

He was found guilty of 36 charges on Tuesday, and a further seven counts on Thursday. Bennell, who is now known as Richard Jones, appeared in court via videolink during the five-week trial due to illness.

He could be seen shaking his head and muttering when the final guilty verdicts were returned by a 10-1 majority.

He will be sentenced on Monday and will be produced from custody to attend the hearing. It was the fourth time Bennell had been convicted of abusing boys.

'united in justice'

The jury was told he had previously received jail sentences in the UK and in the US in 1995, 1998 and 2015.

Mr Woodward said he believed "the football clubs that were accountable for this... could have stopped this for so many years... And I think now's the time that that comes sort of out.

"And I would personally like after 15 months, an apology from Crewe Alexandra for what happened to us boys."

Ex-Manchester City youth player Chris Unsworth, who was abused by Bennell when he was a scout at the club, stood alongside Micky Fallon and Steve Walters as he read a statement.

'horrendous nightmare'

The three men are supporters of the Offside Trust, which was set up by ex-professional players to support abuse survivors.

Mr Unsworth said: "We stand before you today as men united in justice, but this is about so much more than us."

Mr Fallon, who was targeted by Bennell at Crewe, said: "We stand before you today as men united but, at the same time, we were very young boys. We were little boys with a dream and our innocence was shattered. Our dreams turned into the most horrendous nightmare."

Prosecutors described Bennell as a "predatory paedophile" who abused boys on an "industrial scale".

They told the trial he had a "power hold" over the aspiring professional players.

Boys were abused at his home - including a property in Derbyshire where he had arcade games and a puma and a monkey - on trips away, and in his car on the way to and from training, they said.

Det Insp Sarah Oliver, who led the investigation, said Bennell had betrayed the trust of the young players.

"As a football coach he should have provided nothing more than safety and support for the players in his care," she said.

"Instead he abused them. He also abused the trust of their families who had placed them into that care so they could pursue their dreams of being professional footballers. He has shattered those dreams and left them burdened for decades."

Oxfam facing loss of government support after sexual abuse revelations

More than 1,200 people have cancelled their monthly donations to Oxfam in response to revelations that its aid workers hired prostitutes for sex parties in Haiti while caring for victims of the 2010 earthquake.

Oxfam's director in the country at the time, Roland van Hauwermeiren, invited prostitutes to a hilltop villa rented for him by the charity; another property was used by aid workers for parties described by one insider as "young meat barbecues" resembling a "full-on Caligula orgy". An Oxfam internal report admits that some of the women may have been underage. An investigation by The Times has shown that the charity tried to hush up the scandal by allowing van Hauwermeiren to make a "dignified exit"; he went on to lead an Action Against Hunger mission in Bangladesh.

Oxfam, which received £32m from the Government last year, could lose all state support, said International Development Secretary Penny Mordaunt, if it failed to clean up its act. Oxfam has denied any intentional cover-up, but its deputy CEO, Penny Lawrence, has now submitted her resignation.

What the editorials said

"An organisation once admired for its moral probity stands accused of the rankest hypocrisy," said The Times. Oxfam workers "abused the misfortune" of the very people they were meant to be helping in the aftermath of a catastrophe that had left some 220,000 dead. It then let the senior culprit leave quietly, and (despite prostitution being a crime in Haiti) didn't even inform the Haitian police. Nor was this a single "aberration": last year, claims of sexual harassment were brought against no fewer than seven of Oxfam's 37 country directors. The fact Oxfam kept details of this affair secret, announcing only unspecified staff

"misconduct" to explain the sackings, makes matter worse, said the Daily Mail. What a "grotesque betrayal" of the principles that inspired Oxfam's founding fathers 76 years ago.

We shouldn't be surprised by all this, said Shaista Aziz in The Guardian. I spent more than 15 years working for aid agencies, Oxfam included, and met plenty of "brilliant people", but I also had to put up with a culture in which "bullying was rife, women were frequently belittled and racism was casual". Yet any time I reported cases of abuse to my superiors, I was seen as the problem. Let's be grateful that the "floodgates are open" and the truth can now be told. But will it be, asked Andrew McLeod in the Daily Mail. The grim truth is "that jobs in international aid attract paedophiles and other predators who benefit from the power the aid industry confers on

By Golly! Essex pub landord refuses growing calls to remove 'racist' dolls

A PUB landlord threatened with legal action for keeping 15 golliwogs behind his bar has pledged to keep the display.

Chris Ryley and wife Benice have run The White Hart in Grays, Essex, for 12 years and say many of the dolls are gifts from customers. The couple were shocked to receive a call from Thurrock Council asking them to remove the gollies after an anonymous complainant said the display constituted a hate crime. They now face a wait to see whether their licence will be affected but remain defiant and claim they have had many messages of support. The couple believe the complaint was from a council worker who came in for lunch. They claim the same person called the police to report a "racially-aggravated crime".

Mr Ryley, 59, said: "The head of licensing at the council phoned to tell me a complaint had been made and said the same person had also gone to the police. "He asked if I would consider taking them down. I was shocked. I told the council I would think about it but I cannot see how I have committed an offence so they are here to stay.

'two complaints'

"Since we have had them up behind the bar in the past three years, there have only ever been two complaints. "One was from a Canadian lady who said 'those would not be allowed back in my country' and another was from an Englishwoman.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Chris Ryley and Benice at the White Hart in Grays, Essex

"If the customers start complaining that would change my mind but it is our customers who brought most of them here for us as presents.

"'My phone has been full of messages of support saying 'Save the golliwogs'."

Mrs Ryley, 56, said she was upset at the complaint but backed her husband. She said: "For me, golliwogs are nothing to do with racism. "We will dig our heels in and will not be taking them down."

Local opinion was divided on social media. One person wrote:

"The landlord is a very nice man but I think it's obvious golliwogs belong to the past and will be offensive to a lot of people in this day and age." But a reply claimed: "People like you have created the namby-pamby society we now live in."

UK recruitment agency 'sorry' for 'No British' job posting

A recruitment agency has apologised to a man who was told he could not apply for a job "because he was British".

Michael Fowler, from Salisbury, Wiltshire, was going for a HGV driving job advertised by Wolverhampton-based recruitment company Blu Global.

When he did, he received an email from a company employee informing him their positions "exclude British candidates".

Since it was first reported in the Salisbury Journal, Blu Global has now apologised to Mr Fowler.

The 39-year-old cited his 12 years of driving experience when he applied for the job earlier this month but was astonished at the response.

Blu Global said it sent its "sincerest apologies for the appalling experience" adding it has taken disciplinary action against the individual responsible.

"We understand that you were informed by one of our European freelance based that the recruiters vacancy 'excluded' British applicants, this is not the policy of the company and we are shocked that this statement was ever made," the email said.

"No candidate is denied a chance of employment based on their nationality, age, race, gender or sexual orientation."

Mr Fowler said he has since got a job with another haulage company.

Dentist left down in the mouth after large negligence payout

A DENTIST has agreed to pay £33,500 compensation to a patient he treated for more than 20 years because he never warned that her teeth were beginning to decay. She ended up needing serious treatment.

Tracy Braham, 39, visited Dr Peter Moss's dental surgery for regular check-ups between 1993 and 2015. But when she moved to a new practice after Dr Moss retired she was diagnosed with needing extensive root canal treatment, fillings and implants. Her problems were caused by her previous dentist's failure to diagnose and treat decay at his surgery in Bolton, she said.

Mrs Braham from Colne, Lancashire said: "He'd been my dentist since I was 15 and I completely trusted him. I had some fillings and root canal treatments over the years, and in hindsight they always ended up needing to be repeated." In November the dentist paid £33,500 in an out-of-court settlement, without admitting any liability.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE FOR CHANGE OF NAME

SUPERIOR COURT OF

Brits in LA

Meet a Member:Serena Scott Thomas

Meet Serena Scott Thomas, from London and Dorset, who moved to LA 24 years ago

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? For my work

What do you miss most from home?

The green rolling countryside, my family and old and beautiful buildings.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

When I first arrived I loved Los Angeles. I found it exciting, dynamic and it really was a very happy place for me - plus sunshine always makes me happy.

Scott Yes! It has changed. Now ondon I just find it stressful. Perhaps I'm just too old for it :) I do think it's a young people's town.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus England?

Here there is a lack of respect for all sorts of things that really matter to me and this becomes clearer to me as the years go by. Everything is disposable - Buildings, marriages, friendships, houses, cars, furniture... it's turn and burn. It's as if our whole environment is a movie set. I find that very difficult. I love old buildings, I treasure my old friendships, I hate seeing trees cut down and countryside developed.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

The Ahmanson Ranch in the West Valley. Miles and miles of Open Space Preserve - beautiful, unspoiled countryside.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Bring buckets of lotion with which to moisturize your very thick skin!

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

The British Weekly Sudoku by Myles Mellor #325

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: If life is not all it could be it is likely because of you are filling up your time with stuff that is not a priority. Your boss Mars is in your cousin sign of Sagittarius and is going to bring you a much-needed wakeup call.

TAURUS: Your boss Venus in airy Aquarius is bringing up unresolved issues from last year. The best plan is to pay attention and try to forge ahead until all is completed. On the positive your work life is busier than for some time.

GEM INI: Your boss planet Mercury is breaking the rules again and will do until early next week You would be wise to use this time to resolve several unfinished situations in any area. Pay attention to an issue at home and make resolving it a priority.

CANCER: Lovely Venus is alerting you to something that must change on a deep level. As you are usually reluctant to let go of things do your best to be more fluid. Taking a little alone time is good for you now.

LEO: You are in the spotlight this week as the new moon eclipse opposite you is shining on an area that is ready to be highlighted. If you have felt neglected or ignored recently this is about to change. Anything that should go is going, doubt can hold you back but not for long.

VIRGO: Mercury is currently acting up and as he is your boss planet you can expect to get bogged down with minor details in life. Small things can look enormous and you can feel they are more important. Take note this is the best time of the month to complete anything.

LIBRA: Your boss Venus is visiting your cousin Aquarius, causing you to spend time looking at what could have been, not what is. Make sure you are getting the appreciation you deserve and enjoying the journey your life is taking. You will soon be getting more work attention.

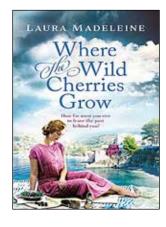

SCORPIO: With Mars and Jupiter watching over you life will take care of you, regardless. Even if you are feeling melancholy. This can be a confusing time for you so before it gets too much to handle take some time to be with those who care for you. You are on the verge of good positive changes and nothing is as bad it seems. SAGITTARIUS: Your boss planet Jupiter will ease your everyday life, if not now then in the coming week. Nostalgia is a good word to explain your current mindset, but just go with the flow. You could be offered an opportunity mid-month to increase your cash flow.

CAPRICORN: The recent arrival of your boss Saturn does not mean you cannot be in control of what transpires in your life. You can look forward to a period of calm next week. Wait until the latter part of the month before starting anything new.

AQUARIUS: Take the time to enjoy the influence of the recent new moon eclipse in your sign. It can bring benefits of which you are unaware. Know that any decisions you make will take a couple of months to come to fruition. You would benefit from time alone.

PISCES: With all the many planets in your sign soon you can expect family gatherings and meetings. Its best to remain detached in any of these discussion, for your overall peace of mind. Life sometimes throws you lemons so make lemonade. Happy Birthday.

Where the Wild Cherries Grow: sink your teeth in

"I love the detective work of research, of delving deeper and deeper into a topic," says Where the Wild Cherries Grow author Laura Madeleine.

"The kernel Emeline's story actually came from a story my mum told me about her godmother. Aunt Mimi, as my mum called her, was engaged to a young man who was sent to France to fight during the First World War. Mimi was an accomplished guitarist, and one night, in the middle of a concert to raise money wounded soldiers, she looked down at her as w hands and thought, man just for a moment, they and were covered in blood. emo

She said she knew in that moment that her fiancé had been hurt and would die. It was true. He'd been wounded in an attack and died on a hospital train two days later."

It's 1919 and Emeline Vane has lost much due to the war. Desperate to escape, she runs away. Emeline takes a train and ends up in a tiny seaside village in the South of France. Maman, the owner of a café, takes her in. Emeline learns that her secret follows her. Fifty years later, a young solicitor Bill Perch finds Emeline's diary. It leads him on a journey to find out what happened to Emeline.

"Her story brought with it the idea of a young woman, robbed of all certainty by the conflict, as well as a notion of the many women who were, and are, scarred by war emotionally, internally, battling alone in parlours, kitchens and bedrooms," says Madeleine.

"The character of Bill, on the other hand, has his roots a lot closer to home. He basically is my father. My dad was also a working-class lad from Essex, who struggled to find his place before going off on his own, quite different, adventure."

Madeleine did most of her reading research for Where the Wild Cherries online. Grow eternally indebted to the Internet Archive, and to Project Gutenberg. Being able to download 100-year-old, obscure, out-of-print titles as word-searchable ePubs is an absolute joy. I prefer primary sources: letters, diaries, newspaper articles. I read everything turn-of-thecentury travel guides, to the collected letters of Katherine Mansfield, to the first ever Catalan recipe book, the medieval Book of Sent Sovi. I also read more modern works, like Colman Andrews' invaluable Catalan Cuisine. W.G. Sebald is a big influence on me, especially The Rings of Saturn, in this instance."

■ Exclusive interview with author Laura Madeleine discussing her absorbing new novel about a woman in France haunted by memories of WW1

For research. Madeleine visited Cerbère with her mother, who fluent French. "We took the train from London to Paris, and then an overnight sleeper from the Gare d'Austerlitz all the way to the south. It wasn't glamorous, but it was wonderfully exciting. It was early April, and Paris was grey and cold when we left, but when I woke up at dawn and looked out of the train window, I saw the Pyrénées-Orientales rising in the distance, the sun hitting their peaks. Wild irises grew along the tracks, terraces of vines marched down the hills, dotted with white houses and cypress trees. It felt like another world."

Madeleine has written many historical books under pseudonyms. She has a new book out in the UK called The Secrets Between Us, set in the Alpes-Maritimes during the period of Italian Occupied France in 1943. Released as an ebook on January 1st, coming out in paperback in April 2018.

Madeleine is currently writing her fourth book for Transworld, another dual-narrative novel, this time set between the 1920s and 1970s in Cordoba and Tangier.

Madeleine is based in Bristol. She was born in Windsor and lived in

BRITS IN LA

BiLA: a great place to find friends you haven't met yet...

One of the things I LOVE about Brits in LA is the friendships that I have made.

Over the past 10 years through our group I've met some amazing people from all walks of life. I often think if it wasn't for Brits in LA that I wouldn't have had the pleasure of meeting such a heterogeneous mixture. It really is ironic, as many of the people that immediately come to mind hail from Ireland, Sweden, Hungary, and of course America.

Our group was officially started when an old friend (the lovely Mel Brown) introduced me to Craig. I actually found her through a search online on 'Friends Reunited'. It turned out

It's Time For Tea.

Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Satil.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery. Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily Ye Olde King's Head, 116 Santa Monica Blvd. Santa Monica CA 90401 • Tel: 310 451-1402 she was a very successful publicist and by chance was going to be working in Los Angeles the following month. She arrived a few days before Halloween and I invited her to a party. She asked if she could bring a friend. I, of course said yes and that was the start of my beautiful partnership with Mr. Young!

Serendipity strikes again

In spite of living in the UK Mel has been a very active member and supported us whenever she can. Last year Craig and I were in London at the same time and used the opportunity to catch up with Mel over dinner. Again she said 'can I bring a friend' - this time it was a client of hers, a very funny American comedian called Lucie Pohl, who was on her way to the Edinburgh festival. Serendipity stepped in again as we immediately became fast friends and as a result a few months later this led to us persuading her to host this years' annual Toscars! You may know Lucie from 'Red Dwarf' or 'Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them' or the gamers amongst you will recognize her voice from Overwatch.

It just goes to show when someone asks ' Can I bring a friend' that you should probably say yes, as you never know who is on the other end of that question.

There are still a few tickets left for the 11th Annual Toscars on Wednesday, February 28th - $100 gets you an open bar, food from Batterfish as well as a seat at our red carpet affair - we have a plethora of celebrity presenters lined up too. We also have our very first Lifetime Achievement award; which goes to Kerry Marlowe (née Finlayson). Visit TheToscars.com for full details or email us at info@britsin.la

Some of you may remember that Siobhan Fahey of Bananarama was a judge for the Toscars a few years ago? Well now she is back in LA with her old bandmates! They are performing a show at The Novo in DTLA on February 20th and we have a pair of tickets to give away! Email us at info@britsin.la to put your name in the hat.

Winner will be drawn at random on Monday at 10am. Funnily enough, I actually met Siobhan through Brits in LA too.

Hope you all ate lots of pancakes on Tuesday? Let us know what (if anything) you are giving up for lent. I saw that fellow member Katie Ames is giving up social media. Now there's an idea....

Cheers! Eileen

Need a saucy selfie? Liz Hurley keeps it strictly in the family...!

Actress turned modelturned-actress Elizabeth Hurley has some very sexy selfies on her Instagram page... But were they selfies?

This week the hot momma came clean on who actually takes the aforementioned pics, revealing that her 15-year-old teenage son Damian actually doubles up as her personal photographer – and takes the sexy bikini shots for her...

Oo-er!

Hurley's account is filled with saucy bikiniclad snaps of the star that are taken by the one man she can trust – Damian. The budding photog is responsible for some of the most raunchy shots that Liz posted on Instagram daily, much to the delight of her 823,000 followers.

Liz, 52, said: "He definitely takes some, but I do have other friends that I can torture for some too."

Speaking at the Dinosaurs In The Wild theme park preview at The 02 in London

AND HE'S A LOOKER, TOO: La Liz with Damian

on Tuesday, which she attended with Damian, Liz added: "I've been in the business for a really long time so my body is something I have to take care of and think about all the time. I use as much cream as possible on it."

Damian's dad is multi-millionaire US tycoon Steve Bing, who originally denied paternity when Liz became pregnant – until a paternity test proved otherwise Damian often accompanies Liz to showbiz parties and is a fledgling actor himself, with a role in Liz's 2015 cable TV series The Royals.

It is unclear which of Liz's Instagram snaps are by Damian, but some are a bit risqué for a teenager to take - so is Liz a token embarrassing mum - or is Damian rightly proud to have one hot mama?

I think it's too 'Hurley'

BLOOMIN' MARVELLOUS: Pop Svengali Simon turns his hand to Chelsea Flower Show project

The X Factor supremo Simon Cowell has taken an interest in gardening and is eyeing up a project for the Chelsea Flower Show swapping pop for roses.

Oo-er!

Green-fingered Cowell's company Syco is developing a new British movie about the famous West London horticultural event.

A close source revealed: "It's a light-hearted feel-good comedy set in the gardening world and focusing on the Chelsea Flower Show.

"Everybody loved the story when they heard it, including Simon, so it's now well into the development stages.

"A director is on board with a view to start shooting this summer."

Sounds like Simon is angling for a judging role at the show.

Of course, it's not Syco's first movie production.

In 2013 they brought the Paul Potts story to the cinema screens with One Chance starring James Cordon, as well as the One Direction movie, This Is Us.

However, the as-yetuntitled project is a new direction for the man best known for TV talent shows.

Our source went on: "The Brits have always loved their gardens, but today gardening is big business, you could call it the new rock 'n' roll.

"So it's no surprise that Simon has got on board so early."

Sounds like a great opportunity for Syco acts like Little Mix and James Arthur to write for the soundtrack.

So happy to see Simon branching out into new ventures...!

McLeish back as Scotland boss

Alex McLeish has agreed to become Scotland manager for the second time - 11 years after leaving the post.

McLeish, 59, will sign a deal until 2020 and is the unanimous choice of the Scottish FA board.

He replaces his former Aberdeen and Scotland Gordon team-mate Strachan, who left in October after the country did not qualify for the

The Scottish FA failed in its attempt to recruit Michael O'Neill, who instead chose to stay with Northern Ireland.

Walter Smith was also linked with the role, but ruled himself out of a return to the job he held for three years before leaving for Rangers in

McLeish's first games in charge will be against

Costa Rica and Hungary next month, followed by further friendly matches in Peru in May and Mexico in June.

His debut competitive games will be the Uefa Nations League encounters against Albania at home on 10 September, then in Israel on 11 October.

Scotland have not reached a major finals since the 1998 World Cup in France and the Scottish FA is currently looking for a new chief executive to replace Stewart Regan.

McLeish, who won 77 caps for his country, told BBC Scotland in December that "the national job is something that would interest me' and that he still has "a lot to give the game".

His appointment was officially announced on Friday morning.

McLeish succeeded Smith midway through the Euro 2008 qualifying campaign and came within one game of reaching those finals, only to lose to Italy.

However, after winning seven of his 10 games in charge, McLeish left for Birmingham City.

While there, he led the Blues to promotion to the English top flight and the 2011 League Cup.

Before that, he managed Motherwell, got Hibernian promoted, and won seven trophies including two league titles - during a near five-year spell with Rangers.

Since leaving Birmingham in 2011, he has managed Aston Villa, Nottingham Forest, Genk in Belgium and Egyptian club Zamalek.

Sunderland and Hibernian will pay tribute to former midfielder Liam Miller before their games this weekend.

The 36-year-old Irishman died last week following a battle with pancreatic cancer and two of his former clubs will hold a minute's applause before their games against Brentford and Aberdeen, respectively.

Miller played 60 times Sunderland and represented Hibs on 72 occasions during his career.

"At this sad time we would like to pay our respects and show our appreciation together - club and fans - along with our visitors from Brentford," Sunderland chief executive Martin Bain told the club's official website.

Cahill's tribute to Ryan Mason

Gary Cahill has offered his condolences Ryan Mason after the midfielder was forced to retire from football on medical advice following the head he suffered injury during Hull City's Premier League match at Chelsea in January 2017.

Mason, 26, sustained a fractured skull in a clash of heads with Cahill while defending a corner during his team's defeat and subsequently received treatment for around nine minutes on the Stamford Bridge pitch. He had surgery at St Mary's Hospital in London and was released eight days later but has since struggled with his recovery, admitting he had "no option" but to "Devastated to hear today's news from Ryan," read a statement from England defender Cahill on his Twitter account. "Competing for a corner is something we've done thousands of times and to see those consequences for a top professional like Ryan is heartbreaking. Sending all my love to him and his family, and wishing him the best for the future."

Mason - who was capped once by England against Italy in 2015 was inundated with good luck messages on social media after confirming that his career is over.

I have worked tirelessly in order to be able to return to the pitch," he said in a statement released on his Instagram account. "Unfortunately, having taken expert medical advice, I now have no option but to retire due to the risks involved given the nature of my injury."

Hull City added: "Ryan has sought the guidance of numerous worldrenowned neurologists and neurosurgeons who have all advised that a return to competitive football is not advised."

Spurs comeback stuns Old Lady

Champions League Juventus.....2 Tottenham H.....2

Tottenham produced a brilliant comeback to draw at Juventus after a disastrous start to their Champions League last-16 first leg in Turin on Tuesday night.

Mauricio Pochettino's side were 2-0 down inside 10 minutes after Gonzalo Higuain followed up a sumptuous volley with a penalty, awarded for Ben Davies' foul on Federico Bernardeschi.

Harry Kane started fightback after rounding Gianluigi Buffon following Dele Alli's threaded pass and Higuain then missed a penalty for the hosts with the last kick of the first half, following Serge Aurier's poor challenge on Douglas Costa.

Spurs dominated possession against the Italian champions and got their reward when Christian Eriksen's low free-kick evaded Buffon to give Spurs the edge going into the second leg at Wembley on 7 March.

Spurs remain unbeaten since 16 December, and Pochettino said: "We are more mature. The team is growing and have stepped up in this aspect. I think the team was amazing in the way they reacted.

In a pulsating game, Tottenham were a goal inside behind two minutes after Miralem Pjanic's chipped free-kick caught out the visitors' defence and Higuain beat Hugo Lloris with a firsttime finish.

Spurs looked anxious and their evening went from bad to worse when Higuain doubled the lead from the spot after Davies brought down Bernardeschi.

But the Premier League side then produced a comeback that will live long in the memory of their travelling supporters.

First Kane had a header saved from inside the sixyard box by Buffon, but the England striker was not to be denied for long, beating the veteran with a composed finish after Alli's pass.

The turning point arrived on the stroke of half-time when Higuain hit the bar from the penalty spot.

Lloris produced a fine save from Bernardeschi after the interval but Tottenham got the reward their hard-work deserved when Eriksen scored from a set-piece after Dele was fouled by the veteran Chielini on the edge of the Juve box.

Tottenham are now unbeaten in 13 league and cup games, as the business end of the season looms.

GREAT DANE: Christian Erickson's equalizer capped a great night for Spurs

EUROPA LEAGUE

Arsene Wenger praised his Arsenal side for the way they overcame unfamiliar surroundings as they easily beat Swedish side Ostersunds FK to more or less guarantee their place in the last 16 of the Europa League.

Thursday night's game was played in -4C temperatures on a 4G plastic pitch at the Jamtkraft Arena, but the visitors made light of alien conditions to win comfortably.

Left-back Nacho Monreal scored the Gunners' first from close range when Ostersund goalkeeper Aly Keita fumbled Alex Iwobi's strike.

Then the home side's centre-back Sotirios Papagiannopoulos diverted Henrikh Mkhitaryan's cross into his own net after the Armenian seized on a loose pass.

Ostersund improved after the break but any prospect of a revival was ended by Mesut Ozil, who made a well-timed run into the area and squeezed his shot past Keita for the third, before the hosts had a late penalty saved.

"I think we adapted quite well to the pitch," Wenger said after the game. "[Ostersund] were maybe a bit cautious at the start and we took advantage of it.

Arsenal host the second leg of the last-32 tie at Emirates Stadium on Thursday.

• Callum McGregor's second-half strike delivered a deserved 1-0 victory for Celtic in the first leg of their Europa league last-32 tie with Zenit St Petersburg on Thursday night.

The home dominated play but were ruing a series of missed opportunities until the midfielder's decisive finish gave the Hoops a vital 1-0 lead heading to the second leg in Russia.

Substitute Charly Musonda played a big role, setting up the chance, which McGregor lashed high into the net.

The victory was Celtic's first win at home in 12 European matches outside the qualifying phase.

This was a significant test for the Scottish champions after a fairly punishing Champions League group stage, which saw them concede 18 goals as they finished behind group-winners Paris St-Germain and Bayern Munich.

23rd minute, whipping a right-footed shot into the bottom corner from 20 yards with Vaclik rooted to the spot.

Gundogan curled City's fourth into the top corner 10 minutes after the break and was denied a hat-trick by Vaclik, who saved the German's shot from close range.

The return leg at the Etihad on 7 March should be routine for City, who lead the Premier League by 16 points and face Arsenal in the Carabao Cup final.

City enjoyed 74% possession against the reigning Swiss Super League champions and they made a mammoth 868 passes in the game, compared to Basel's 294.

The visitors were relentless in attack and the scoreline reflected an imperious performance by Guardiola's side.

But Basel were able to get at the heart of the City defence on a number of occasions.

It was the home side threatened first who striker Dimitri

Oberlin squandering an excellent chance on a counter-attack with only the onrushing keeper Ederson to beat.

Valentin Stocker saw his shot blocked when also through against Ederson, while Brazilian keeper had to make a finger-tip stop to deny Mohamed Elyounoussi from long range.

The chances kept coming for Oberlin in the second half as he missed a close-range header and saw a free-kick saved by Ederson.

At the beginning of February, Guardiola was lamenting City's injury list and he only named six substitutes for the 1-1 draw at Burnley.

But his bench in Basel showed that the injury crisis is nearing an end as both Leroy Sane and David Silva were named as substitutes.

With the game won, Guardiola was able to give valuable game time to that pair and rest his other stars.

Sane, who initially been ruled out for six weeks with an ankle injury sustained in City's FA Cup win over Cardiff on 28 January, came on for Sterling, while Silva made his return from a hip injury as a 62ndminute replacement for De Bruyne.

In defence, Fabian Delph returned to leftback after missing the last six games with a knee injury, while captain Vincent Kompany played his first Champions League game since May 2016.

This strength in depth will be crucial as the Premier League leaders continue to chase a historic quadruple.

REDS UNSTOPPABLE!

Five star Liverpool leave Porto shell-shocked

Sadio Mane scored a hattrick as Liverpool marked their first Champions League knockout game for nine years with an emphatic 5-0 victory at Porto in their Champions League last-16 first-leg tie Wednesday night.

Mane opened the scoring when home goalkeeper Jose Sa failed to hold his placed strike.

Mohamed Salah then showed wonderful composure to steer the ball home for Liverpool's second and his 30th of an incredible debut season at the club.

With two away goals scored, the visitors could have been forgiven for taking a more conservative approach but instead they went for more.

A swift Liverpool counter-attack ended with Sa spilling Roberto Firmino's shot into Mane's path and the striker made no mistake, before Firmino scored his 21st of the season, sweeping home James Milner's cross.

Mane got his third with a driven strike late on to become the first Liverpool player to score a hattrick away from home in Europe since Michael Owen in 2002, and the second ever. Porto had lost only two matches in all competitions this season prior to Wednesday's game but simply could not cope with Liverpool's unstoppable forward line.

Otavio had the Portuguese side's best chance towards the end of the first half, placing his shot just wide of the far post after he was put through on goal.

Liverpool will expect to complete the job when they host Porto in the return leg at Anfield on Tuesday, 6 March.

Liverpool boast a proud record in continental football having won the European Cup or Champions League five times - more than any other English side.

But this was their first involvement in the knockout stages of the competition since 2009, when they lost 7-5 on aggregate to Chelsea in the quarter-finals.

And it was like they had never been away as they made light work of a side that reached this stage of the competition last season and were quarterfinalists just three years ago.

Only PSG (25) scored more goals than Liverpool

(23) in the Champions League group stages and the Reds picked up where they had left off in December as their front three proved too much for a nervous Porto defence.

The hosts ultimately became the latest side unable to cope with Liverpool's pace on the counter-attack. This was the 17th time Liverpool had scored three goals or more in a game this season and the 10th time they have done it away from home.

They have also now scored more Champions League goals this season (28) than any other club and, on this evidence, are going to take some stopping in the competition.

Not surprisingly
Liverpool boss Jurgen
Klopp was all smiles
after the game, telling reporters: "It was a very good performance.
Exactly as good as necessary.

"I think everyone saw in the game all the moments when we were not as compact as we wanted to be and Porto were immediately strong. They had their moments and we scored fantastic goals in the right moment."

...and City make it look easy, too

Manchester City boss Pep Guardiola praised "extraordinary" Ilkay Gundogan as his side took a giant step towards the Champions League quarter-finals with a comfortable 4-0 win at Basel on Tuesday night.

City took command of the last-16 firstleg tie within half an hour in Switzerland as Gundogan, Bernardo Silva and Sergio Aguero all scored within a nineminute period. German Gundogan, who returned from a nine-month injury layoff in September, added his side's fourth - and his second - 10 minutes after the break.

"Ilkay Gundogan is an extraordinary player. Last season we missed him a lot with injury for six months and that's why we are so satisfied, not just the quality but personality to play," Guardiola told BT Sport.

Gundogan put City

in front on 14 minutes, heading in Kevin de Bruyne's corner at the near post.

Four minutes later Silva doubled the lead, cushioning Raheem Sterling's cross on his chest before firing a volley at Basel keeper Tomas Vaclik, who could only tip the ball into his own net.

Aguero then scored his 29th of the season and his 198th for City in the cont. on page 19, col 2
