30 years for 'Devil Incarnate' Bennell

"You stole their childhoods and innocence to satisfy your perversion"

SEX fiend football coach Barry Bennell is likely to die in prison after he was branded "the devil incarnate" by a judge on Monday.

Bennell, 64, who was jailed for 30 years, may have abused more than 100 boys, a court heard. He was ordered to attend court, having previously appeared via video-link throughout the five-week trial. He has cancer and is fed through a tube. The paedophile was charged with attacks on 12 victims as young as eight. Eightysix more men have come forward to say they were abused by him as boys.

Judge Clement Goldstone said he was repulsed by the delight former Crewe Alexandra coach Bennell took in grooming his victims. He said: "Your behaviour towards these boys in grooming and seducing them before subjecting them to degrading and humiliating abuse was sheer evil."

The judge told Liverpool Crown Court that Bennell had appeared to his victims as a god, adding: "In reality, you were the devil incarnate. "You stole their childhoods and innocence to satisfy your perversion. Each has suffered and now, more than 30 to 35 years after you ruined these boys' lives, continues to suffer."

'devious and scheming'

Bennell shook his head as he was sentenced but onlookers in the public gallery broke into applause. One victim Gary Cliffe, now a serving policeman, waived his anonymity and confronted Bennell in the dock, asking: "Barry. Why?" The detective constable with Staffordshire said in a victim impact statement: "I have had over 30 years to consider, reflect and make sense of what he did to me. Yet I still find it hard to effectively put into words the hell and mental suffering I have endured during this period."

BENNELL: the former Crewe Alexandra coach took delight in grooming his victims

GARY CLIFFE: spoke of 'hell and mental suffering'

Steve Walters, another victim, said that Bennell had not shown "one ounce of remorse, not one shred of decency". He added: "He is calculated, devious and scheming. He was then and he is now but he has finally been held to account for his horrific crimes against children."

Bennell, who was also a Manchester City scout, was convicted of 50 sex attacks dating back to the 1980s by a jury last week. The court heard how abuse had led to victims problems suffering including suicidal thoughts, alcoholism and depression. Bennell has already served three jail terms, totalling 15 years, similar offences involving 16 other child victims. In this latest case, Bennell committed "industrial scale" levels of abuse against vulnerable boys in his care. The jury heard he revelled in his "power hold" over them as they dreamed of becoming professional footballers. Another statement, read out by prosecutor Nicholas Johnson, told how one victim turned to drugs as a "means of escape". Player Chris Unsworth said: "Bennell abused, manipulated groomed me and destroyed childhood."

Corbyn dimisses Czech 'spy' claims

Jeremy Corbyn has dismissed as "nonsense" claims he gave information to a Communist party spy during the Cold War.

The hard-Left Labour leader also issued a threat to the media in a video posted on the internet Monday night, saying it should "fear" his party taking power. He suggested a future government under his leadership would carry out sweeping media reforms to "open up" the industry, saying: "We've got news for them – change is coming."

He went on the attack at a manufacturing bosses conference, rubbishing reports about his contacts in the 1980s with a Czech diplomat in London who was later expelled for espionage. It followed days of claims by Jan Sarkocy of links between Left-wing Labour MPs and the Czech secret service. Quizzed after a speech to the EEF manufacturers association in Westminster, Mr Corbyn said they were "nonsense" and had been "reproduced" in newspaper reports. Minutes later, he was asked by a BBC journalist: "Are you a Czech spy?" Laughing, Mr Corbyn replied: "No".

"They [newspapers]

have found a former Czechoslovakian spy whose claims are increasingly wild and entirely false. He seems to believe I kept him informed about what Margaret Thatcher had for breakfast and says he was responsible for either Live Aid or the Mandela concert, or maybe both.

"It's easy to laugh but something more serious is happening.

'powerful and corrupt'

"Publishing these ridiculous smears that have been refuted by Czech officials shows just how worried the media bosses are by the prospect of a Labour government. They are right to be.

"Labour will stand up to the powerful and corrupt and take the side of the many, not the few."

Mr Corbyn is under mounting pressure to authorise the release of Cold War files kept on him by the East German Stasi after Theresa May said he must be "open and transparent" about his links to former Communist spies. The Commons Foreign Affairs Committee is considering a request from Tory backbencher David Morris for Mr Corbyn to be questioned about the claims. When asked about the allegations earlier this week, Mrs May said all MPs needed to "be accountable for their actions in the past".

Mr Sarkocy claims he met Mr Corbyn at least three times in 1986 and 1987. The then outspoken hard Left backbencher was given the codename "Agent Cob" by Czech agents and was said to have "an active supply of information on British intelligence services", he claimed.

Earlier this week Mr Corbyn's spokesman said of the spy reports: "The claim that he was an agent, asset or informer for any intelligence agency is entirely false and a ridiculous smear.

"Like other MPs, Jeremy has met diplomats from many countries. In the 1980s he met a Czech diplomat. Jeremy neither had nor offered any privileged information to this or any other diplomat."

The claims brought a rare moment of levity from the Theresa May at Prime Minister's Questions on Wednesday, when she used a question to make a joke about the controversy at Corbyn's expense. Normally he comes here and asks me to sign blank checks," the Tory leader quipped.

"Now I know he likes Czechs but really!"

British sailor accused of murdering wife who went missing at sea

A BRITISH sailor has been charged with murdering his new bride who vanished during their honeymoon voyage off Cuba.

Lewis Bennett was issued with a second-degree murder complaint over the disappearance of mother of-one Isabella Hellman, 41. The charge was laid in Miami as Bennett, also 41, was sentenced to seven months in prison for smuggling rare coins worth £77,000.

Bennett, who claims American Mrs Hellman went overboard when their 37ft catamaran sank, must also complete three years of "supervised release".

Dorset-born mining engineer was arrested at the Florida state federal court after the murder charge was put to him. FBI Special Agent James Kelley said in the indictment Bennett had "knowingly and unlawfully killed" the mother of his daughter, Emilia. Under Florida law, second degree murder charges are brought either to killers' accomplices or suspects who kill without premeditation through a 'dangerous act".

Former public schoolboy Bennett, of Poole, Dorset, faces a maximum sentence of life in prison if found guilty. Before Monday's hearing, Ms Hellman's family wrote to the judge demanding the right to see the toddler, who Bennett has left with his family in Britain.

"We would like him to know how much it hurts us not to be able to see and spend time with our granddaughter and niece, Emilia, since he took her out of the country.

"Lewis knows that Isabella's mother was very much involved in caring for Emilia from the time of her birth here in Florida until she was lost at sea."

The smuggling charge was brought after Bennett, a Bangor University of Wales graduate, was rescued alone from a life raft off the Bahamas last May. He claimed that their vessel, Surf Into Summer, hit a mystery object during the voyage from St Maarten in the Caribbean to Key West, Florida. According to Bennett, he had gone to bed exhausted, leaving his wife at the helm, but was woken by a large thud to find her gone. Colombianborn Ms Hellman's body was never discovered despite a four-day search. FBI investigators grew increasingly suspicious of Bennett after he applied to have his wife declared cont. on page 3, col. 3

BAFTA stars underline solidarity with women - and even Kate gets in on the act

BRITISH STARS made it a night to remember at the Baftas on Sunday as they wore black in protest at sexual harassment in the industry.

And the Duchess of Cambridge tipped a subtle nod in support. Kate, who is due to give birth to her third child in April, wore a black sash beneath the top of her billowing low-cut dark green Jenny Packham dress. She teamed the outfit with an emerald necklace and earrings as stars staged the sartorial demonstration in recognition of the MeToo and Time's Up

The 36-year-old arrived on the red carpet with Prince William, who is president of Bafta, but had risked a backlash by failing to wear a full black dress. She was faced with walking a political tightrope due to royal protocol which restricts family members to remaining neutral. They usually only wear black at Remembrance events and funerals. In a written message of welcome in the event programme, William had shown his solidarity saying: "Levelling the playing field and ensuring

Gagged by hubby: comic sued by partner for talking about their marriage on stage

■ Louise Beamont, 31, who performs as Louise Reay, is facing paying her estranged hubby £30,000 for talking about their relationship on stage

award-winning comedian is being sued for £30,000 by her exhusband after using material about their marriage in a show at the Edinburgh Fringe.

Louise Beamont, whose stage name is Reay, has been accused by Thomas Reay of defamation and breach of privacy.

It follows her 2017 show called Hard Mode about freedom of speech, which was later performed in London.

Mr Reay is also understood to be seeking legal costs and an injunction against Ms Beamont.

The pair married in 2013, but separated before she wrote the script for the performance, which mentioned her previous relationship and focuses on what would happen if the BBC came under the control of the Chinese government.

Thomas Reay is also suing his wife for breach of privacy and data protection, is seeking also seeking legal costs and wants an injunction to prevent her publishing statements about him, she said.

Beamont, the 2015 Alternative New Comedian of the Year, said she would be bankrupted if she loses the case and has launched a crowdfunding page to raise money for her defence.

'free speech issue'

She wrote: "[Hard Mode] was a 50-minute show about censorship authoritarianism, asking the audience to imagine that the BBC had come into the control of the Chinese government.

"During that show, I referred to my husband a couple of times - perhaps two minutes' worth of reference in a 50-minute show. The main gist of those references was to tell the audience how sad I was that my marriage had broken down recently."

Beamont said that she removed the material from subsequent performances at the Edinburgh fringe last summer - without admitting liability when she received the first complaint from her husband but a writ was subsequently issued.

Beamont, who refused to comment beyond a post on her gofundme page for legal reasons, wrote: "As standup comedians, I believe it's the very definition of our job to talk about our lives and social issues. So this has become a free speech issue - and free speech means everything to me."

She launched crowdfunding page on Friday and by Monday had raised just under £3,000 of the £10,000 goal.

The case could have significant implications for comedians, who often use personal material in their shows. The comedian and writer Sarah Millican made her name in standup with material about her divorce.

LOUISE BEAUMONT: "As standup comedians, I believe it's the very definition of our job to talk about our lives and social issues."

Mark Stephens, a libel lawyer at leading City law firm Howard Kennedy, defamation law had been beefed up to strengthen defences for the likes of comedians. academics and scientists in the UK but ultimately the case could rest on the judge's sense of humour.

He said: "There's a long history of British juries – before they were abolished [in defamation cases | - not finding in favour of claimants when it's a joke. This will be the first time [the issue comes] before a judge. It's going to be a test of whether the British judiciary understands a joke - I mean that seriously.

600 KFCs closed in chicken crisis

FAST food giant KFC it will take to clear the about 600 of its 900 UK restaurants - after they ran out of chicken.

The fried chicken chain said "teething problems" at delivery company DHL, which took over the contract last week, were behind the disruption. It was unclear when the problems would be resolved, a KFC spokesman said. Workers are being encouraged to take holiday but would not be forced to do so, he added. "Our teams are working flat out all hours to get the restaurants back up and running as soon as possible – but it's too early to say how long has been forced to shut backlog." About 80 per cent of KFC outlets are franchises

KFC wrote on Twitter: "The chicken crossed the road, just not to our restaurants." "Sorry we're closed" signs outside branches read: "We've brought a new delivery partner on board, but they've had a couple of teething problems getting fresh chicken out to 900 restaurants across the country is pretty complex! We won't compromise on quality, so no deliveries has meant some of our restaurants are closed, and others are operating a limited menu or shortened hours."

KFC's chicken was previously delivered by African-owned group Bidvest, but after DHL took over many outlets began running out of chicken products. The distribution network uses software developed Quick Service Logistics.

DHL said: "Due to operational issues, a number of deliveries in recent days have been incomplete or delayed. "We are working with partners, and QSL, to rectify the situation as a priority and apologise for any inconvenience.'

Welsh school employs bird of prey to scare off gulls

WHILE AMERICA was convulsed this week with the issue of school safety, things were more parochial in Wales, where a primary school has brought in a falcon and a hawk to protect pupils from swooping seagulls.

Headteacher Carys Jones said the gulls had been "terrifying" children at Eifion Wyn primary in Porthmadog, north Wales. The novel solution comes after youngsters had to stay indoors on the hottest day of last year due to the aggressive seabirds.

KEEPING THE PEACE: Porthmadog's hawk councillor Dafydd Meurig said: "With gulls a protected species, the options available are limited. "We concluded the best way forward was to recruit the services of specialists." Birds of prey will now patrol regularly to keep the gulls away.

Ms Jones said: "As well moving the gulls on, the pupils are able to learn more and meet the birds of prey."

Cheryl and Liam 'on the rocks'

SINGER Cheryl Cole's relationship with Liam Payne is "on the rocks" with fears they could split up within weeks, it emerged this week.

The couple, who got together in 2016, have a baby son Bear who turns one next month. But less than a year after his arrival, their relationship is said to be strained due to the pressures of managing their busy work schedules. One sticking point is thought to be former One Direction star Liam's solo career which demands he travels the world. Cheryl, 34, has effectively been left alone in their Surrey mansion to raise their son single-handedly.

A source said the pair "tried very hard to make it work" and were "desperate" for the relationship to work out but "it's absolutely on the rocks".

The pair met when Liam, 24, auditioned for The X Factor and Cheryl was on the judging panel.

Born and raised on Tyneside, Cheryl shot to fame in 2002 after winning a place in the girl group Girls Aloud, after participating in the ITV reality show Popstars: The Rivals. Since then she's rarely been out of the public eye, marrying England footballer Ashley Cole and then suffering national humiliation when the star defender very publicly cheated on her. Cheryl then married - and divorced - French playboy Jean-Bernard Fernandez Versini, before hooking up with Liam two years ago.

The singer, who now prefers to go by the singular name Cheryl, has claimed that her main concern is Bear's welfare and making sure he remains "the happy little boy" he is now. A source added that the heart of the problem was that Liam was "away a lot" leaving the relationship "hanging by a thread". Meanwhile, Cheryl is set to make her prime-time TV comeback on new BBC show The Greatest Dancer later this year. The singer-turned-TV judge was seen earlier this month taking part in a run through in her role as a "dance captain". A spokesman for Cheryl refused to comment on the reports.

NO ROOM TO SWING A CAT: the interior (left) is cramped while outside (right) the tiny home fits neatly between two fisherman's cottages

Breathe in: 9ft wide house for sale at £225k

ONE of the narrowest cottages in Britain has come on the market ideal for a homebuyer keen to squeeze on to the property ladder.

The Doll's House, in the fishing village of Porthleven, Cornwall, measures just nine feet across at its widest and two feet at its narrowest. The one-bedder was built across what used to be an alleyway between two other houses. Despite the tiny size, the 339sq ft home boasts a big asking price of £225,000 – although that is reduced from last year's £250,000. According to the estate agents, it has "some very unusually shaped rooms" and its small size "provides a snug warm feeling".

Thanks to its quirky character and idyllic location, the little house once served as a local museum named the Box and Heater. It was renamed The Dolls House by the current owners who have rented it as a £515-a-week holiday home with views over the beach and harbour framed by the Lizard peninsula. Pete Courtis, owner of estate agents The Mather Partnership, said: "It's a very unusual property and its origins have been lost in the mists of time. "It's more than 100 years old, and there's no one around to tell us who built it and why. It would be a fascinating research project. "It's basically built in an alley, the builders put a roof on and constructed the inner walls. "It isn't a family home. However, the village is very lively and bustling and I think it will be bought very soon."

Health & Fitness

The very real benefits of cold weather training

THE PAST WEEK has seen local temperatures plummet, which may have kept some of you indoors. But in today's article we will be looking at 10 major benefits of spending a week exercising in cooler temperatures.

Reduce SAD (seasonal effective disorder)

The science is abundant that in winter people get SAD (seasonal affective disorder) But getting off the couch and taking part in indoor training in winter with a fantastic group of fun people for different fun workouts will help you soak up the beauty of nature and release endorphins – this boosts your mood and wards off symptoms of depression. Also it can combat the effects of not much sunshine for the pat couple of months and can provide your body with some much-needed

New training options and styles of workout

The winter weather opens up new options for training – indoors/outdoors and enables everyone to push themselves harder. You have a choice of either working out in an outdoor field or in our state of the art indoor gym – but either way it will be easier than doing so in the sweltering heat!

Cooler weather training gets you greater health gains

The cardiovascular system is pushed further in cooler climates and therefore gets greater gains. This is because the cardio system is forced to warm the whole body up and increase the blood flow to all the working muscles and the heart and lungs, in these type of cooler conditions with outdoor training.

You burn more fat

In cooler climates the body is forced into keeping its core temperature warm! As the body does this, our metabolism is raised and the body burns much more fat reserves than in warm weather. Also when the warmer weather comes, you will feel much more fitter and stronger, especially in the mind!

Get a head start in the battle of getting into shape after Christmas and the holidays

We all love the festive season, but we can overindulge. By hitting the ground running in February you will be helping your mind and body get into good habits and staying focused in our quest to be healthy.... and you'll see the results when the weather warms up

Set new goals and visualize for the year ahead

At the bodycamp we also focus on the mind and the body. We create realistic new exciting goals for the year and create what we want to achieve – in supportive workshops every day.

It's refreshing and wonderful to be outdoors with new friends!

Workouts outdoors in nature are invigorating. The air is crisp, sun bright and the trees look incredible. Try an early morning hike in one of the beautiful canyons of the Santa Monica mountains...on chilly mornings it can almost feel like Hampstead Heath!

It will make you mentally and physically tough!

Exercise outdoors in cooler climates creates a mentally stronger mindset for the future and the rest of the year.

Reduce risk of injury for the rest of the year and build the base!

By exercising and starting your year the correct way and building up good levels of health and fitness, you build up a "fitness base" for the rest of the year to be safe in the knowledge that you have built a foundation of health at the beginning of the first few months.

Increased blood flow around the body and reduced inflammation around the joints!

Exercising in the cooler climates promotes increased blood flow around the working muscles, due to the fact that warm ups are much more fun and intense. The cold also after exercise can also reduce swelling around the joints and after exercising outdoors, the body turns on its internal heaters as soon as you walk back inside – thus producing an incredible glow and after burn for the whole body and skin.

ARIES: This coming week keep a low key vibe and don't make waves over anything as an unresolved issue will remain just that at least until the end of next week. Only then can you relax and enjoy what your ruler Mars brings.

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler Venus just might help you out - especially in romance and relationships. You need to slow down and relax and enjoy the time out.

GEMINI: Jupiter in your house of relationships and creativity has had you squirming and without action on your end for weeks. You are being stubborn about this so it's best to start revving up for some kind of movement soon.

CANCER: Time to make peace (or amends) with anyone or thing that has caused you upset. Chances are you did not see the picture clearly. Getting anything achieved otherwise will not be as fast as you would wish until next weekend.

LEO: The good news is that whatever has been dragging on for a while in your overall life will change for the better soon. Good vibes from Jupiter will accelerate for you to take positive action. Your family events will be much in the limelight soon.

VIRGO: You may find yourself feeling less than stellar these next few days as Mars stirs up old emotions. So be kind to yourself and try very hard not to worry. By the end of the month all will resolved and you will be ready for new adventures.

LIBRA: Your lovely boss Venus is being a little stubborn just when you thought you were ready to prove your point. If this does not ring true for you this week it will by the end of the month. No big deal as Jupiter will sort it out in the best way for you.

SCORPIO: You have not done the best you can recently in sorting out your finances and matters pertaining. Now that all the planets that benefit you are gathering in Pisces do not get bent out of shape. Even if all is not as it should be in relationships, SAGITTARIUS: We all need to be reassured at times even if we know the truth. This next week be ready to make plans at short notice after something changes. This is actually a blessing in disguise.

CAPRICORN: Communications may be not clear in an ongoing family situation, but no matter how much you want to speak out now is not the time. Better be ready and willing to remain neutral. By month's end you will be glad you did.

AQUARIUS: The recent new moon in your sign highlighted for you what you should be putting your energy into. This is also the best time to plan ahead for a family or friends reunion. Enjoy the coming changes as they show up in your life.

PISCES: You are in a mellow energy time currently. This is going to change soon because of all the planets gathering in your sign. If you have any priorities get them over and done with ready for a merry few weeks ahead. Happy Birthday!

The Little Cottage on the Hill

"The BBC have recently run a series called the Victorian Farm," says The Little Cottage on the Hill author Emma Davies. "The setting where this was filmed is only about five miles from where I live. It seemed the perfect opportunity to write a series based on a traditional farm which has fallen into disrepair and is now being renovated, thus following the lives and loves of all the people who come to live there."

In The Little Cottage on the Hill, Maddie leaves

following a scandal at her PR agency. She scores a job to promote a new luxury ĥoliday retreat in the country. However, when she arrives it's far from luxurious. Maddie finds an oil painting by the original owner's wife. The new owner Seth is secretive. As Maddie helps get the cottage on the hill ready, a secret from her past threatens her newfound dreams.

"With this book I wanted to encompass my interest in traditional crafts and rural skills," says Davies. "I really enjoy writing seasonal books in evocative settings where I can fully explore my love of the countryside... colours, sounds, sights and smells. I'm lucky enough to live I spent a lot of time in a beautiful part of England, so inspiration is never far away."

"I find in the library that books have a habit of leaping off the shelves at me and providing just the thing I'm looking for, even if I don't yet know what that is," says Davies. "It's a wonderful source of inspiration."

"The inspiration for this series of books is a traditional Victorian farm," says Davies. "So a visit here was a must. The Internet is an enormous help... gardening in and particular vegetable growing feature heavily throughout this series, as do rural crafts, such as thatching, blacksmithing and greenwood working.

reading about these subjects and watching videos."

The Little Cottage on the Hill is Davies' fourth full-length book. Books five, six and seven will all follow this year as part of the same series. She's written a series of four novellas.

Her debut novel, Letting in Light was shortlisted for the Joan Hessayon Award. Davies has no agent. Jessie Botterill Bookouture is her editor.

Davies is currently working on the edits for book two of The Little Cottage on the Hill series, and at the same time writing book three. Books two, three and four will be published in May, August and October respectively.

"If you have an urge to create your own stories don't put it off, start today," says Davies. "Because you never know where it might lead. Go on, one word after another. And if you think you haven't the time, just consider this...the full length novel is somewhere around 80 to 100 thousand words. Sounds horrific, but if you write for just 15 minutes every day, you could add 200 words to your total, which each week becomes 1,400, which after 58 weeks becomes 81,200 words. So, in just over a year, that's your first book right there, all from 15 minutes a day."

Davies lives south of Shrewsbury, England, Shropshire.

FREUD'S LAST SESSION

Theatre Review by Catherine Siggins

If you enjoy intellectual conversations, thought provoking argument, and quick wit, then you will most certainly enjoy Freud's Last Session currently running at The Odyssey Theatre.

Inspired by a book by Dr. Armand M. Nicholi, Jr. called 'The Question of God', playwright Mark St. Germain has laid out a fictitious meeting between the father of psychoanalysis, Dr. Sigmund Freud (Martin Rayner), and the novelist and Oxford scholar, Lewis C.S. (Martyn Stanbridge) based on their actual writings. Freud had made his name debunking the existence of God as an "obsessional neurosis", while Lewis, previously an atheist, returned to God after experiencing an epiphany while riding in a motorbike sidecar, though he claimed he was "the most reluctant convert in England".

It's September 1939 and Britain has just declared on Germany, war sparking WWII. Freud has invited Lewis to his home. He is late as his train has been delayed due to evacuations of children, the sick, and prisoners from London. Much to Freud's annoyance, their meeting must be cut short as he is to be visited by his doctor, who is treating him for oral cancer that has destroyed his upper jaw and palate. The reason for the invitation, Lewis believes, because of a book he has written which satirizes Freud rather savagely as a 'vain, ignorant old man'. However, as the discussion unfolds we learn rather it is curiosity and respect for each other's work that has caused the meeting.

What follows is a often humorous exchange around the questions that have fascinated man since the dawn of time - the existence of God, Love, Religion, Faith, Morality, Free Will, Sexuality, Mans destructive nature and yearning for war, Jesus Christ the man or the myth, Hitler as the devil or god's tool. Both men are expert debaters, but where this play becomes truly dramatic is when they veer into each other's personal lives, histories, and family relationships as a way to illustrate a contradiction or bolster a point, often in a manner that is very blunt. Their discourse is only interrupted by the outside world inserting itself into Freud's cozy study through phone calls from his daughter or doctor, shocking radio news reports from the BBC, or most disturbingly by the howl of an air raid siren, which sends both men into a panic and a scrambling for gas masks. As the argument reaches a crescendo, Freud's illness, which he names The Monster, makes its presence forcefully known. Lewis must save Freud from choking on riveting, passionate, and a prosthetic palate that replaces his own, lost to the cancer. This is one of the most gripping scenes, more so as it follows a discussion on sexuality and oral fixation.

There is a real sense of urgency in this piece. From the start, time is in short supply, and for many it would run out with the arrival of war. Freud himself was to commit suicide two weeks later. One begins to wonder if the real reason Freud invited Lewis to his home was to see if his legacy could withstand the test of time, in the same way the once devout atheist Lewis could "abandon truth and embrace and insidious lie" of faith. Lewis for his part does a great job at psychoanalyzing Freud, goes even so far as to accuse him of being afraid to feel any emotion, and using his intellect as a defense against his fears. In truth, one man protects himself with faith, the other with intellect. In the end both confess that they are equally frightened of death.

Under the expert this exciting 75 minute exchange never drops its energy or focus. Both Martin Rayner as Freud, and Martyn Stanbridge as C.S. Lewis are exceptional, hitting each beat change with precision, and they are razor sharp in their delivery, be it a barb or a quip. Mr. Rayner, who returns to the role of Sigmund Freud, captures Freud physicality so that you feel he may keel over at any moment when he is not giving the younger Lewis a verbal thrashing.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA

It's the center of it all! The weather doesn't hurt either;)

What do you miss most from home?

I miss the food (green chili mostly) and the vast open spaces. I'm not a huge fan of the desert, but the vistas in NM are really something so special.

There's something really magical about the land there.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression upon moving here was the smell. It smelled so full and beautiful of flowers. I sort of take it for granted, but when I'm away and come back it hits me so hard. The smell of the ocean and the flowers.

What do you find the Derrick McDaniel, sound design by Christopher Moscatiello, and period accurate costumes by Kim Deshazo, it is very easy to feel you have traveled back in time.

This is indeed an excellent evening entertainment.

difference biggest is living here versus Albuquerque?

The inspiration. People are alive and inspired. They all came here for a purpose or a goal, and they have big dreams and visions. In Albuquerque, people are sort of in their lives and that's it. There isn't that spark in the air you find here in LA.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I love the fern dell in Griffith Park, it feels like a jungle and it's right here in the middle of LA. And the Trails Cafe there as well. The most delicious home made chocolate lavender scones and amazing setting among the trees.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

It's definitely not for everyone, but if you want some specific experience, you can most likely find it here. There are just so many people, so many different niches. LA is

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Surround yourself with positive and loving people. Don't give your life energy away too easily.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment? I'm releasing a new EP I'm very excited about! I'll be performing at the Hotel Cafe on April 19th, and releasing my music videos and singles for the album over the next few months. I'm also an actress, producer and a singer, so I'm always juggling and always creating. Alongside the EP, I'm developing a couple TV shows that I hope to sell this year. All these outlets inform one another, so each of my projects have some component that reflects that balance. that overcame Zenit 1-0 in the home leg, hoping for a similar level of performance, one that would carry some threat.

The imposing Krestovsky Stadium was expected to be a factor but the home crowd was far less than anticipated.

With the roof closed, that support still managed to generate a significant din, a noise that went through that roof when the home side netted early on.

Celtic's defence was culpable. Ajer was blocked off at a corner, allowing Ivanovic an unchallenged header which flew past De Vries.

It was exactly what Celtic wished to avoid, but at that stage they remained very much in the contest.

But any sense of hope among the travelling support swiftly evaporated when Kuzyaev let fly from distance.

De Vries appeared to take a step to his right but the ball turned to his left, straight into the centre of the goal.

He seemed at fault but was not alone, Kuzyaev's chance developing from a simple throw-in.

After half an hour, it looked a familiar European script away from home. Rodgers' side could not muster anywhere near level of pressure they did at Celtic Park, with goalkeeper Andrei Lunev largely untested despite the visitors enjoying a healthy share of possession.

Too often passes went sideways with Scott Brown operating very deep. There were few runs down the channels. Callum McGregor could not get beyond Moussa Dembele as he did to such effect in the first leg. James Forrest looked more like a right-back the impressive than threat he has been this Zenit were, in contrast, far more effective than seven days ago, more like the side that was billed as favourites.

They were quick to attack and support Anton Zabolotny. Without the ball, they regrouped and were compact. They were far from outstanding but did not have to be.

Rodgers tinkered at half-time with Rogic introduced for Eboue Kouassi. The Australian immediately shot at goal but it sailed way over.

Celtic were better -Ntcham sending in a low shot, Ajer heading wide from a corner - but still lacked threat in the final third.

At 2-0 down, a goal would have turned the tie completely in Celtic's favour.

But Rodgers as prepared to introduce Scott Sinclair in search of a precious away goal, Zenit inflicted the decisive blow.

Ivanovic crossed from the right flank, Mikael dallied Lustig and Kokorin tapped home at the back post. It was all too simple and effectively decided the outcome.

Defensive proved costly after the promise of the first leg.

To progress further in Europe, it is an area that Celtic will have to address.

"Something incredible" is on the cards at the Nou Camp, says Conte

Chelsea will "try to do something incredible" by knocking Barcelona out of the Champions League, said manager Antonio Conte after a drawn first leg on Tuesday night.

Willian put the Blues Stamford ahead Bridge, but Lionel Messi capitalised on an error to ensure the match finished 1-1 by netting 15 minutes from time.

Barcelona, who are seven points clear in La Liga, had barely threatened the hosts before their equaliser.

"We were close to playing the perfect performance," said Conte.

"We made one mistake. It is a pity and we are disappointed with the final result."

Chelsea twice the post with strikes from outside the area from Willian, before the Brazilian scored at the third attempt with another 20-yard effort.

However, minutes later, Andreas Christensen played a loose pass and Andres Iniesta linked up with Messi, who scored his first Champions League goal against the London

Christensen, 21, had made only three appearances for Chelsea before this season, but has played 31 times for the club this campaign.

After selecting him ahead of England centreback Gary Cahill, Conte defended the Denmark international.

"It was an incredible performance," said the İtalian. "We are talking about a very young player. It is great that he is able to play this game with maturity and personality. He was one of the best players.

"It is very difficult to mention one player but I think Christensen played a top game and I was very pleased with his performance.

"We made one mistake but we know against these opponents and players like Messi, Iniesta and Suarez, if you make a mistake you pay."

The return leg takes place at the Nou Camp on Wednesday, 14 March.

ABOUT TIME: Leo Messi broke his long barren spell against Chelsea with the equalizing goal fifteen minutes from time at Stamford Bridge on Tuesday there in 2011-12 and, despite having John Terry sent off in the first half, drew 2-2 to gain a 3-2 aggregate win in the Champions League semifinal. They then beat Bayern Munich penalties in the final.

"It won't be easy," added Conte. "We must be realistic because we are talking about Barcelona and they showed they are a really strong and fantastic team.

"But we also showed we are ready to work really hard in defence and have the right feeling when we get the ball to create the chances to

"We can try to do something incredible in the Nou Camp and we must play an intelligent game - we are not stupid."

United have De Gea to thank - yet again

David de Gea's stunning first-half save helped Manchester United claim a creditable draw at Sevilla in the first leg of their Champions League last-16 Wednesday night.

The Spain keeper had kept out efforts from Joaquin Correa Steven N'Zonzi before showing quick reflexes to produce a one-handed save on the stroke of half-time and deny Luis Muriel's header.

United, who were their playing Champions League knockout game in four offered little offensively, with Romelu Lukaku spurning their best chance when he volleyed well over early on before substitute Rashford Marcus dragged a shot wide in the closing stages.

Paul Pogba started on the bench for the visitors, but came on after just 17 minutes following an injury to Ander Herrera. Sevilla finished the game with 25 attempts on goal but a mixture of De Gea's saves and poor finishing from the hosts left them frustrated at the final whistle.

United Manchester will be the happier of the two teams heading into the return leg at Old Trafford on Tuesday, 13 March with Jose Mourinho's side winning 15 of their 18 games on home soil this season.

Once again, it was the absence of Pogba from the Manchester United starting line-up that dominated the build-up to the game.

missed Pogba Saturday's 2-0 Cup win Huddersfield because he was unwell but had been expected to return to the first XI in Seville.

£89m Instead, the midfielder was named on the bench, with Mourinho saying Pogba's illness "created some doubts" about whether he could start on Wednesday.

The France midfielder has struggled for form in recent weeks and had little impact on this game after his early introduction because of Herrera's injury.

However, it was not the sort of a game where his influence would perhaps be obvious.

United set up to defend deep, with Mourinho appearing to prioritise keeping a clean sheet over scoring an away goal. It wasn't pretty but it was an effective away performance.

As Sevilla pressed in the closing stages of the first half, the Spanish shot-stopper was alert to keep out Correa's placed effort before tipping over a header by former Stoke midfielder N'Zonzi.

De Gea saved his best for the stroke of halftime. Muriel found space

So impressive was that the Sevilla forward himself acknowledged it, embracing De Gea as the two teams headed for the tunnel at the break.

Goalie crocked by runaway cow

A Scottish Championship club is facing a selection headache after its reserve goalkeeper was hit by a runaway cow.

Oueen of the South's Sam Henderson, 19, hurt his shoulder in the incident on his father's farm.

First choice goalkeeper Alan Martin is out with a thigh injury with Jack eighfield standing in.

Henderson was on the bench for last weekend's draw with Morton and was expected to do the same against Dunfermline on Saturday.

However, the accident has meant he is facing a race to be fit.

Regular number one Martin is expected to be out for five to six weeks which meant Leighfield played at the weekend.

That saw youth team

Henderson keeper promoted to the bench last Saturday.

He was expected to take the same spot for the clash with Dunfermline this weekend which is vital to the Dumfries side's promotion play-off hopes.

The club confirmed Henderson had been struck by a cow and injured his shoulder and was now an injury doubt.

Feeble Gunners spiked by minnows

Europa League Arsenal.....1 Ostersunds FK.....2 (agg: 4-2)

Arsenal were booed off at half-time and full-time as they survived a huge scare against Swedish minnows Ostersunds FK to claim a place in the last 16 of the Europa League Thursday night.

The Gunners won the first leg 3-0 but one of football's great shocks looked possible at halftime after the visitors struck two goals in 70 seconds.

English manager Graham Potter's side, who have risen from Sweden's fourth tier since 2010, were on top in the first half and led 2-0 thanks to Calum Chambers' own goal - deflecting in Hosam Aiesh's shot - and Ken Sema's clinical strike.

But the Gunners - who named a reasonably strong side only three days before their Carabao Cup final with Manchester City - improved slightly after the break and Sead Kolasinac finished from Hector Bellerin's cross to relieve the sense of dread inside Emirates Stadium.

Ostersund are only the second team to win a game at the Emirates in the Gunners' last 28 matches a run dating back to March Arsenal boss Arsene Wenger made only three changes from the first leg and the Frenchman insisted the game was "not a formality".

But even with 21 years' experience at the club, surely even he did not foresee what was to come in the first half, with the hosts looking shellshocked and Ostersund fully deserving of the lead.

Chambers was arguably at fault for both strikes. For the first, he turned home Aiesh's shot and for the second he was beaten to the ball by Sema and then turned away from the winger's superb finish.

Things got better in the second half, although had they got worse this would probably have gone down as Wenger's lowest point as Arsenal boss.

Granit Xhaka replaced young midfielder Ainsley Maitland-Niles at the break and the Gunners looked reasonably comfortable Kolasinac took advantage of Ronald Mukiibi's airkick from Bellerin's cross to lash home.

Danny Welbeck had four chances to score, but he headed two straight at Aly Keita, chipped the other to the goalkeeper and shot straight at him again in the last minute.

Ostersund might be out - but a 14-game debut European campaign ending in a victory at Arsenal is a story for the

Their remarkable story has been told many times this season: since Englishman Potter's appointment in 2010, they have risen from the fourth tier to win last season's Swedish Cup and qualify for Europe.

Potter said before the game they needed a "miracle" and after 23 minutes, it looked like a genuine possibility.

Potter joins a select club as only the sixth English manager to win a game at the Emirates, along with Alan Curbishley, Phil Brown, Harry Redknapp, Michael Appleton and Garry Monk.
