

PUTIN? JUST LIKE HITLER, SAYS BORIS

Russian leader will use World Cup just like Hitler used the Olympics, says Foreign Secretary

BORIS Johnson has claimed Vladimir Putin is using the World Cup as a propaganda exercise like the 1936 Berlin Olympics under Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime.

The Foreign Secretary under is growing pressure from MPs to issue a clear warning to football fans about the risks of travelling to this summer's showpiece in Russia. In the aftermath of the Salisbury poisoning, Mr Johnson declined to rule out the Foreign Office explicitly urging fans not to attend unless their safety can be guaranteed.

He said: "There is an issue, I am not going to hide it, there is a discussion. We need to consider that issue."

This followed warnings of possible violent attacks by Russian thugs. Senior MPs have demanded that the Foreign Office urgently clarifies its advice because of the safety threat. Labour backbencher Ian Austin said: "Ministers must look at this urgently. "They must hurry up and clarify the situation because fans need to know whether it's safe to travel. "I think it could be very dangerous and people need to think about it very carefully."

Concerns over the World Cup reemerged this week as Mr Johnson was quizzed by the Commons Foreign Affairs Committee about the Government's response to the Salisbury outrage earlier this month. Former spy Sergei Skripal and his daughter Yulia are critically ill after being poisoned with a "military grade" nerve agent called Novichok, developed in Soviet laboratories during the Cold War.

'crucial importance'

SpeakingtoParliament'sForeignAffairsCommitteeOnWednesday,Johnsonagreedwith aLabourlawmakerwholikenedthe event toAdolf Hitler'suse of the1936 Olympicsas apropagandayehiclefor his regime.Johson said: "I think the comparison with 1936 is certainly right. "I think it is an emetic prospect, frankly, to think of Putin glorying in this sporting event."

The 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin has gone down in history for being exploited by Hitler to showcase his Nazi regime to the world and to promote his vile views on racial supremacy. German Jewish athletes were banned from competing at the event. The dictator was left embarrassed, however, when the black US athlete Jesse Owens finished as a four-time gold medallist. But while Mr Johnson ruled out the Government calling for a boycott of the World Cup, he acknowledged there were safety concerns for fans.

He added: "I think on balance it would be wrong to punish them or the team who have worked on this for a long time, given up their lives to it. I think it would be a pity for them. "But your point about the safety of fans is well made and well taken – this is of crucial importance to us.

"And we do indeed need to have an urgent conversation with the Russians about how they propose to fulfil their obligations under their Fifa contract to look after all fans."

retaliation

These worries had been exacerbated by the expulsion of the British Embassy official who had been put in charge of overseeing fan safety. He was among 23 UK diplomats expelled from Russia earlier this week in a tit-for-tat retaliation at sanctions imposed by Theresa May in response to the Salisbury incident.

Mr Johnson added: "We must have a proper discussion at a UK national level about how we proceed because one of the consequences of the expulsions we had from Moscow is that we lost the officer who was going to be responsible for the fans.

"You can't imagine anything more counterproductive for the UK's ability to help fans in Russia."

He also pointed out that only about 24,000 England fans had applied for tickets to the World Cup in Russia, compared with 94,000 who went to the last tournament held in Brazil in 2014.

"But there are still a considerable number who want to go and we have to think of their welfare," the Foreign Secretary said. Mr Johnson added that, despite the suspension of high-level diplomatic contacts between the UK cont. on page 2, col. 1

May vows to protect UK fisheries

THERESA May has pledged to "ensure" Britain takes back control of its waters and fishing rights by the end of 2020.

The Prime Minister made the promise in the Commons on a day when MPs joined a protest over the UK remaining in the "disastrous" common fisheries policy during the Brexit transition. A fishing boat with Nigel Farage aboard sailed up the Thames as part of a protest to be met by proBrexit and coastal MPs led by Jacob Rees-Mogg. The former Ukip leader helped to dump a tray of haddock into the Thames as a symbol of the tons of fish that are thrown overboard each year to allow for fishermen from other EU countries to plunder British stocks.

Mr Rees-Mogg, who did not board the vessel, said he believed Mrs May had made a mistake on the deal, which will lead to Britain effectively remaining in the EU's common fisheries policy until the end of 2020.

On what Mrs May could tell the Commons

FISHY BUSINESS: one Tory backbencher described the EU'S common fisheries policy as 'disastrous' for British fishermen to reassure them about the agreement, he said: "I think it's very important that the rules between our formal date of leaving and the end of the implementation period do not have an unfair effect on our fishing communities.

"I would prefer it, of course, if we left properly on March 30, 2019."

Mr Rees-Mogg said the protest was an effort to highlight the "plight" of fishing communities. He added: "We need to ensure that we have a vibrant fishing community and we want to make sure that it survives to the end of the implementation period to benefit from our being free of the tyranny of the European Union." Later, at Prime Minister's Questions, Mrs May was challenged by Tory backbencher Mark Francois, who said Britain should not rejoin the "disastrous" common fisheries policy. Mr Francois called for reassurance that the UK would "absolutely and unequivocally" be taking back control of its waters in 2021. Mrs May replied that the implementation period after Brexit day in March 2019 ensures businesses, including fishermen, "don't face two cliff-edge changes" in the way that they operate. She added: "One of the elements we'll be looking for is to ensure we do take back control of our waters."

1000 years later, bears set to return to the woods

A £5MILLION project to return bears to British woodland for the first time in a thousand years has been unveiled. The scheme, called Bear Wood, would see European brown bears, lynx and wolves introduced to the woodlands near Bristol. Experts at Wild Place Project believe their woodland is similar to that which covered Britain in the first millennium.

It is believed the wild bears became extinct in England around 1,000AD. Work on the ambitious project is expected to begin in the summer with an aim to open by Easter next year. Five European grey wolves, already at Wild Place Project, will be moved to a new home in Bear Wood. The wolves will share seven-and-ahalf acres with the brown bears.

Nigel Simpson, of Wild Place Project, said: "We are literally making history with this amazing project. We will transport people back in time to when the woodland was inhabited by bears, lynx and wolves.

"Bear Wood is about conservation of woodland. It is a story of what was, where we are now and what is still at stake."

Zoological Bristol has Society alreadv received donations towards the cost of the scheme but £2million is still needed. Christoph Schwitzer, director of conservation, said: "We are hoping people will be really excited by Bear Wood and want to support us. It will be an experience like no other. "For the first time people will be able to see brown bears in England in what would have been their natural habitat."

Rehab again: Troubled Ant to quit TV after drink-drive smash

■ TV host charged after three car smash leaves 3-year-old injured

TROUBLED Ant McPartlin sensationally quit TV this week after he was arrested for drink-driving following a crash that left a threeyear old girl injured.

The award-winning presenter announced he is stepping down from all his work commitments and is returning to rehab. The announcement comes after ITV said it is pulling Saturday Night Takeaway from the schedule this weekend. McPartlin, 42, has been presenting the top-rated show with sidekick Declan Donnelly for 16 years.

Making the announcement, Ant and Dec's publicist said: "Ant has decided to go back into treatment and step down from his current TV commitments. He has spoken with Dec and ITV today and asked for time off for the foreseeable future."

It came after McPartlin held crisis talks with his representatives at his mother's £2million detached home in Chiswick, west London. He has been staying there since splitting with wife Lisa, 41, after 11 years of marriage. Lisa, who lives half a mile away at the former family home, declined to comment, saying simply: "I'm sorry. I'm not interested."

The Bafta-winning star, who could face up to six months in jail if he is charged and convicted of drink driving, looked a disconsolate figure as he returned home shortly after 3am Monday morning following his release from police custody more than 11

Ant hours after the crash. hally He was arrested on for Sunday afternoon after he allegedly lost control of his £26,000 special edition Mini Cooper before smashing into two cars at around 4pm. The driver of one of the n all cars hit, restaurant boss ents Faheem Vanoo, had been hab. heading to work with nent his chef wife Shilpa, it is daughter Amaira, 4, and light two colleagues.

He said: "I hardly had time to react and turned in towards the kerb to avoid a head-on collision.

"Fortunately I was only doing 20mph, we were all wearing seatbelts and my little girl was strapped into a child seat. But it was still a big impact. I don't care whether he's a millionaire and I don't care whether he's a TV star - he could have put my daughter in a wheelchair."

Eyewitnesses described McPartlin as being "dazed" as he climbed out from behind the wheel of the car and was seen shouting at his mother Christine Woodhall. It is alleged the presenter became "agitated and argumentative" with a woman police officer who was called to the scene. Jake Spencer said: "The woman was trying to arrest him. He seemed to be trying to wriggle out of her clutches. He was not in a good way."

Witnesses claimed McPartlin's black Mini veered into the wrong lane after coming round a sharp bend near Mortlake, south-west London, around two miles from his home. The car hit a green Mini with a family inside before crashing into a BMW X5.

'DAZED' McPartlin was behind the wheel when he wrecked his Mini Cooper Sunday evening in West London

Police said "a number of individuals" were treated at the scene for minor injuries and a child passenger was taken to hospital for checks.

The crash happened just hours after the live broadcast of the latest episode of Ant and Dec's Saturday Night Takeaway. McPartlin was seen later that night relaxing at the London studios. Dressed in a white shirt, he was pictured enjoying a drink and a smoke and chatting with friends and colleagues.

An ITV spokesman said: "We very much hope that he gets the help that he needs."

Anthony McPartlin and his longtime comedy partner Declan Donnelly found fame on the children's television show Byker Grove, which debuted in 1989

Father pays tribute to 'idealistic' daughter killed fighting for Kurds

THE father of the first British woman killed fighting for the Kurds has told of his pride in his "beautiful and idealistic" daughter.

Anna Campbell was working as a volunteer in the Kurdish Women's Protection Units – known as YPG – when she died in Afrin in north-west Syria last Thursday. She was 26. Afrin was captured over the weekend by Turkish forces after a two-month offensive. Her family fear she was killed in a Turkish air raid. She is the eighth Briton to die fighting alongside the Kurds in Syria against both Islamic State and, more recently, Turkish forces. She is understood to have fought in the battle to liberate the last major IS stronghold of Deir ez-Zor, before asking to be transferred to face the Turkish incursion which began in January.

Her father Dirk, a folk musician, said: "Anna was very brave, she was very beautiful and was really idealistic. She was very intelligent and creative. She was a leading light in many areas and was very popular.

activist streak

"She went there knowing what might happen to her. When she told me I was alarmed because I knew she was likely to face lethal fire there, if not from Islamic State then from the Turks and the Syrian Army. "I told her that. I said, 'You could be killed' and she said 'I know – there's nothing I can do to reassure you about that'."

He added: "I had to let her do what she wanted to. I couldn't force her not to go. She was a grown woman, she could make her own decisions in life."

Anna attended the £10,000-a-year St Mary's Hall school in Brighton, Sheffield and then University, before moving to Bristol to work as a plumber. Her father said she got her activist streak from her mother, Adrienne, who died of breast cancer in 2012. Anna went out to Syria to join the Kurds last May. Mr Campbell, who admitted he was "in pieces", said:

ANNA CAMPBELL: killed in a Turkish air raid in northwest Syria

"She was determined to live in a way that made a difference to the world. "She was prepared to put her life on the line." He said he wanted her remembered as an "incredibly principled, brave, determined, committed woman who was an example to the rest of us". Friends held a candlelit vigil in her honour in Lewes, East Sussex. One mourner tweeted: "Anna Campbell was an exceptional woman who came from an exceptional family." Former YPG comrades praised her "revolutionary spirit". Commander Nesrin Abdullah said: "Campbell's martyrdom is a great loss to us. We express our deepest condolences to [her] family and we promise to follow the path she took up. "We will represent her in the entirety of our struggles."

Solved 80 years on, the riddle of the blackberry bush baby

A WOMAN abandoned as a baby in a blackberry bush this week said she has finally discovered the identity of her father – through DNA tests on a stamp.

Anthea Ring, 81, was just nine months old when she was found by a family who had heard her crying in 1937. Her hands were tied and she was covered in scratches and insect bites.

She was taken to a hospital but, despite a nationwide search for her parents, they never came forward. Six months after she was found in the bush on the South Downs in Sussex, she was adopted by a family in Surrey.

Mrs Ring found out she was the "blackberry bush baby" when she was 25. She was a big national story at the time and has spent the past 35 years searching for her birth parents.

She persevered despite numerous dead-ends and finally got her first breakthrough six years ago when DNA testing helped her find her mother, Lena O'Donnell, who was from Ireland. But Mrs Ring was still unable to track down her father until DNA technology recently revealed he was one of six brothers from the Coyne family in County Galway, Ireland.

'closure'

Newly discovered 30-year-old letters from a brother, Patrick, have now been tested and saliva on one of the stamps has confirmed he was her father.

Mrs Ring, a married grandmother who now lives in Bradford on Avon, Wilts, said: "I'm delighted to have found the final piece in the puzzle of my family history. Who would have thought that stamps from decadesold letters were the key to unlocking my story?

"I can now finally tell my children and grandchildren about their roots and where they came from. I feel like I have some closure. It's wonderful.

"There was a nationwide search. I was in every national daily.

DECADES-LONG SEARCH: Anthea Ring holding a picture of herself as a baby

Being able to finally track down my family after all these years has been incredible." Although Patrick has died, Mrs Ring is now in contact with his wider family.

Ringo on his knighthood: I'll wear it at breakfast

Beatles drummer Ringo Starr has been knighted for his services to music. The Duke of Cambridge bestowed the honour on the Liverpoolborn star at a ceremony at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday.

"It means a lot actually," the musician told the BBC. "It means recognition for the things we've done. I was really pleased to accept this." The honour comes 53 years after the Beatles were all awarded the MBE - and Starr said he had missed his bandmates' companionship this time round.

"I was a bit shaky today on my own," he said.

When The Beatles received their MBEs in October 1965, the occasion was not without controversy. Rock and roll was still viewed with suspicion by the establishment and several previous honourees returned their medals in disgust.

John Lennon later claimed that the Beatles were so nervous at the idea of meeting the Queen they sneaked into a bathroom at Buckingham Palace for a cigarette.

"Who said that?"

laughed the drummer after Tuesday's ceremony. "I'm not keeping that rumour going."

He arrived at the investiture with his wife, Barbara Bach, offering his trademark peace sign for fans and photographers.

Asked whether he wanted to be known as Sir Ringo, the musician, whose real name is Richard Starkey, replied: "I don't know yet. It's new and I don't know how you use it properly."

The 77-year-old added he knew exactly what he'd do with his medal. "I'll be wearing it at breakfast," he joked

His honour comes 21 years after fellow Beatle Paul McCartney was knighted.

Starr said the pair had met for dinner last week in Los Angeles, and Sir Paul had offered him some advice for the ceremony: "Keep smiling."

Other people receiving honours at Tuesday's ceremony included authors Jilly Cooper and Michael Morpurgo, former Scottish rugby player John "Ian' McLauchlan, Welsh rugby player Sam Warburton and foster carer Anne Shaw.

Uproar as it emerges post-Brexit passports will be made in Holland

BREXITEERS reacted with fury this week to claims that the iconic blue British passport will not be made in Britain after the country leaves the EU.

British company De La Rue is believed to have lost its contract to produce the nation's new identity documents. Instead Dutch firm Gemalto has reportedly won the contract in a £490million deal. It is said to have undercut rivals by about £50million.

Sir Bill Cash, chairman of the influential European Scrutiny Committee, said: "It is just completely unnecessary and in fact it is symbolically completely wrong. Leaving the European Union is the biggest thing that's happened in British politics for half a century and quite frankly I can't think of any reason why it should be given to any company other than a British one."

"This should be a moment we should be celebrating. The return of our iconic blue passport will re-establish the British identity. It is a national humiliation.

"I would urge Amber Rudd and the Government to look again at the powers they have to see what they can do."

A Home Office spokeswoman said: "We are running a fair and open competition to ensure that the new contract delivers a high-quality and secure product and offers the best value for taxpayers."

Londoner wins global best teacher prize

A teacher from north London has been announced as winner of a competition to find the world's best teacher.

Andria Zafirakou, who teaches art and textiles in a Brent secondary school, has won a prize worth $1m (£720,000).

She has spoken of the hardship and overcrowded housing conditions facing many of her pupils.

But in accepting the prize, she called for more support for the "power of the arts" in school, particularly for the "poorest communities".

Mrs Zafirakou becomes the first UK winner of the Global Teacher Prize, beating teachers nominated from more than 170 countries.

The prize, launched in 2015 by an education charity, the Varkey Foundation, was created to give more status to the teaching profession, with an Oscars-style awards ceremony in Dubai.

Prime Minister Theresa May sent a video message commending Mrs Zafirakou and said great teachers needed "resilience, ingenuity and a generous heart".

Meet A Member Meet a Member: Bailey Sugden

This week's Meet a Member is Bailey Sugden from Nottingham, who is visiting LA for the first time to fight in Glory 52, an international kickboxing event taking place at the Long Beach Convention & Entertainment Center on Saturday, March 31st.

To the uninitiated, the Glory World Series is a series of tournaments in six different weight classes that pits the world's best kickboxers against each other. Fourman tournaments are the standard, with eight-man tournaments also staged on occasion.

The fighters are true martial arts athletes, highly skilled in a wide array of combat disciplines, including Muay Thai, Kickboxing, Boxing, Karate, Kung-Fu, Tae Kwon Do and Capoeira, but the fight under one set of rules to determine who reigns supreme in the ring.

Live events take place globally and in some of the world's most prominent cities including London, New York, Istanbul, Tokyo and Rome.

Bailey will be fighting Zoukaria Zouggary, nicknamed 'Double Z'. For more details and tickets, visit glorykickboxing.com

Tell us tell us how you got into kickboxing and about your first visit to LA:

My dad had a gym when I was younger, and I always wanted to try punching people in the face and get paid for it. This is my first time in LA and I can't wait. A lot of my movie star friends live here so hope to catch up with them after I kick ass on Glory52. I had already made my mark on US soil with an impressive win at Madison Square Garden when I made my GLORY debut; where other Brits failed I conquered, and in LA I intend to do the same.

What are you most looking forward to doing while you are here?

First and foremost take care of Double Z then visit the Hollywood stars and decide where my star is going to go.

I see you are from Nottingham, what were your younger years like growing up there?

When I was younger, I did some acting and dancing but I could have taken the wrong route in life. I was really living up to my nickname BadBoy, but now it is my ring name, and I am focused on fighting for GLORY.

When did you start competing and what was the reasoning behind taking the sport up?

I started competing when I was six or seven years old but was always matched up against bigger and older kids my brothers Chad, and Regis was so good it was sometimes difficult for me to follow in their footsteps. I didn't take it seriously until a couple of years ago but now I am Number 1 in the UK in the Glory Top 10. I took up this sport because I am good at it and I love to fight. Plus with my brothers now in Pro Boxing and MMA, I wanted to take it one step further and pick up a GLORY as the reputation of crown and to create a my brothers Chad, and legacy in Kickboxing.

Are you afraid of anything?

Myself, I am the only person that can cause me any harm.

What is a typical training day like?

Hard. I normally train two to three times a day. With a technical session then a conditioning session at altitude followed by one of CONT/:

ARIES: A niggling financial problem will take precedence over most situations this week. If you let go of any worries about the outcome be assured Mars your boss will be more than prepared to assist you. Happy Birthday!

TAURUS: The sun in Aries will bring some help making a decision on a new direction you are more than ready to take. With your lovely boss Venus in watery Pisces now all can work to the best and highest good for your career.

GEMINI: Time to complete what may have weighed you down these past few weeks. You of all the signs must take some responsibility for dealing with something that is out of control in your life and will not be resolved without action.

CANCER: Be ready to be strong for yourself and to protect any situation in which you have invested energy. It's near time that all the hard work you put in last month will start to manifest. Jupiter in your cousin sign of Scorpio will assist you.

LEO: Beware of action in your cousin planet Aries this coming week which will affect your sign. Subliminal action going on may not show up immediately, but whatever you are hoping for (or dreaming of) can manifest if you believe.

VIRGO: Your boss Mercury has started to go backwards and it could cause frustration in several areas so do not bang your head against whatever is in front of you. It is best not to waste energy now as by next week life will go much smoother in the area you want it to.

LIBRA: In life all does not always go as smooth as you would like. This does not mean you can rest on your laurels. If you lack information it's up to you to seek whatever answer you require. Communication is the key these coming days either from you or others.

SCORPIO: Work or related situations are paramount for you these next few days. Bear in mind that you can be your own worst enemy. It has been a difficult all round time for you for many reasons, with this in mind you have to be aware that you are usually your own worst critic.

SAGITTARIUS: Be ready to make your life a little more exciting this week ahead. It's a positive time for you now the sun in Aries will assist to get where you want to go. The only thing to be aware of before you start any new venture is check the schedule ahead of time.

CAPRICORN: This week ahead could mark the end (or the beginning) of a better way of doing things. It's up to you what you make of this time frame. You are about to break away from a familiar pattern and even though it's a bit scary look forward now.

AQUARIUS: Fasten your safety belts ready for some kind of lift off. You have a rare and lovely blessed cycle about to begin. This can take you out of the normal situations you have come to expect; it's time to go onward and upwards.

PISCES: Venus the love planet in your life currently can bring much more contentment in the areas of life you have likely ignored or did not expect. Your life can be better overall so let this wave of energy move through your life and enjoy some sweetness.

When you enter the ring, what is going through your mind? The job in hand, dealing with my opponent in the way I have been trained to do it.

What do your family and friends back home think of you fighting? They think it's good and support me 100% in and out of the ring. I have family & friends traveling to LA from UK and Australia.

How can we buy tickets to support you?

Tickets are available on Ticketmaster. There's nothing like having some Brits in my corner - cheering me on - so please come along and bring some flags - It will help motivate me to win!

"I spent most of my twenties in Italy," says The Italian Party author Christina Lynch.

"So, it's also the place that shaped my adult sensibility. I think it seeped into my bones.

Italians seem to understand life in a way that the rest of us want to but don't. They understand that life is short and should be enjoyed, that food is to be savored, that quality is more important than price. They value time, and community, beauty, the arts and intellectual life. They have a lot of empathy, and style without arrogance, which are qualities in short supply elsewhere these days.

It's 1956 and American newlyweds Scottie and Michael Messina have moved to Siena. Michael, who seems to have a normal life working for Ford in Italy, is really working for the CIA to make a mayoral election go the way the Americans want. Michael's male lover Duncan is another secret he's keeping from his wife. Scottie hires a local teenager Roberto to teach her Italian. When he disappears she tries to search for him. Nothing as is it seems.

"Why 1956?" says "I Lynch. picked it because it was a year watershed in the perception of communism in Europe. I was intrigued by the problem of how to convey that in fiction. It's one thing to say things were not as great as you think in the 1950s and another to try to portray that in a way that's entertaining and thought-provoking."

Lynch researched the CIA extensively. She found Tim Weiner's landmark book Legacy of Ashes: The History of the CIA 'terrifically Reading helpful'. biographies was key to the era, she says with the standouts beging The Good Spy about Robert Ames, The Brothers about Allen and Foster Dulles and the two Sylvia Jukes Morris books about Clare Boothe Luce.

Lynch worked as a journalist in Milan for Fairchild Publications, publisher of M, W and Women's Wear Daily. After moving to Los Angeles she wrote many episodes of television series, on the writing staff of Unhappily Ever After, Encore, Encore, and Wildfire.

Lynch's first book was a riding manual in Italian, Il Cavallo da Fondo, which she wrote with her friend Franco Faggiani, also a novelist. As Magnus Flyte she wrote two books with another friend: City of Dark Magic and City of Lost Dreams.

Lynch was born in Massachusetts. She fell in love with the British horse world while living for a year in London at age 13. She lives in central California, in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains. She is currently writing

BRITS IN LA

Bidding adieu to my darling Dusty

I won't sugar coat this: this week I lost my right leg....and the left one too as I fell to my knees after hearing my darling dog Dusty had the dreaded C and it was inoperable.

Nothing prepares you for those words tumbling from the vet's mouth, I brought her in because I thought she had the 'doggie flu', that's been going around. And they'd give her a course of antibiotics and she'd be right as rain. And we'd go back home and snuggle again. Sadly that's not how this story ended.

I rescued Dusty 12 years ago, from a friend who lived in a shoebox in DTLA, She had been dumped on my friend by an actress who had found her roaming the streets like a vagabond. The first night I met her, she jumped into my arms and licked me all over, from head to toe and wouldn't let me go. I brought her home to Michael, who was a little dubious at first, but she soon melted his heart and with the promise of obedience training, she could stay with us. She had found her forever home. Other than a fondness for eating the occasional expensive stiletto, she was incredibly well behaved.

About ten days ago Dusty stopped eating her dry food, we'd had some guests staying with us and had been giving Dusty a lot of treats - she's a smart cookie and so we thought she was holding out for the good stuff. But 24 hours passed and she still wouldn't eat. We tried changing her diet – some of which came out both ends and decorated our tile floors, but then she seemed to be on the mend.

Just last Friday morning we drove out to Palm Springs. As usua Dusty rode shotgun, letting her furry face out the window to catch the wind. But this time she didn't stay at the window for long, She turned her back on her perch and curled up on the seat, head facing me on the arm rest. She looked forlorn and her breathing was a little labored.

So we drove to the VCA animal clinic in Palm Springs and after a four hour wait the vet checked Dusty's vitals and said "Yes, could be the flu, we can run the flu test for $300, or we can just give you some antibiotics to clear up any infection she may have." - I went with the latter as all the signs were there. We left, and later that night her breathing worsened. It became more shallow and she was struggling to get up and walk. This was not the flu.

So on Sunday I drove her half an hour away to the emergency animal hospital in Indio. X-rays and blood work were done. I left Dusty there for a few hours and they would call me when they had finished their investigation.

A few hours went by and the call came in. Dusty has fluid in her lungs and what looks like, some blood too. We decided we wanted a second opinion and called VCA Animal hospital West LA. I drove like the wind using the carpool lane and going over the speed limit a few times. Traveling on the long winding road playing Dusty Springfield on my Spotify, (clichéd, I know) I talked to her, letting her know how loved she was and how many amazing years she had given me. I stroked her favorite spot behind her ear. After a few miles, I saw a clearing up ahead. Coming to a stp I opened the door for here. She delicately climbed out, I removed her collar and leash and let her wander in to this field. She sniffed, she did some business and ate some grass. I sat down on this patch of green and she came over and snuggled, while I gently wept. At that moment I knew, the end was near.

When we reached the West LA VCA I was called into an empty exam room, where a young vet gave me the dreaded news. Our vet outlined our options - either let her go or subject her to risky and painful surgery that might give her another six months, if we were lucky. Our vet was he was kindly and gently letting wasn't a decision to be made. The most humane thing for us to do was to let our princess pass as comfortably as possible.

The staff at the VCA Animal Hospital in West LA were incredible. They have rooms with sofas and rugs where we got to say goodbye to our beloved dog before the dreaded needles come in. The first to sedate her, and the second to put her to sleep - FOREVÊR.

We took some locks of her hair and are planning a little memorial. We'll scatter some of her ashes up by the Wisdom tree, overlooking LA, where she loved to hike with me, and my friends, Richard, Tom, Victoria, Kimry, Marc and others. A lot of our friends dog sat for Dusty when we were away. Kim, Richard, Molly, Eileen, Sean, JT and Nick; Molly's mum Judee watched her once and couldn't believe we didn't have a photo up of her, she remedied that fast, and upon our return there sat a framed photo of our beloved up on the side table. I also realize that all those that she came in contact with grieve too. so my heart goes out to my friends and Dusty's pals too.

Thank you for loving her.

Liam opens up on the 'tension and struggles' with Chezza...!

WELL, we all knew this was coming former One Direction singer Liam Payne has admitted to 'tension and struggles' with his other half Cheryl after crisis talks over their relationship.

Oo-er!

The British star has opened up for the first time since news of their relationship woes surfaced and admitted they have had "struggles".

Having kept quiet amid the initial reports, Liam has now decided to speak out and admitted they have recently been through a period of "tenseness".

In an interview with the ES Magazine, Liam said things are not "fine and dandy" between himself and his girlfriend – who is mum to his son Bear.

Finally admitting that he and Cheryl have found themselves in the middle of a rocky patch, Liam added: "This part of our relationship was never not going to happen, there was always going to be a little bit of tenseness in the way we sort ourselves out, but tell me a relationship in the world that doesn't go through a spot like that?"

UPHILL BATTLE? love has not run smooth for singer Liam Payne and the former Cheryl Tweedy/ Cole/Fernandez-Versini and success of Liam's solo career, which has meant Cheryl has been left with Bear – who turned one this week – for weeks at a time.

But in his latest chat, has insisted Liam that Cheryl is "very understanding" about his work.

"I don't think anybody else could take it," he added.

He said: "You know, we have our struggles - like of course I'm not gonna sit here and say that everything's absolutely fine and dandy, because of course you go through different things, and that's what a relationship is.

"But we go through them together as a family and that's the most important thing for me."

Adele undecided over huge Vega$ payday!

Superstar Adele is reportedly 'in doubt' about going ahead with her Las Vegas residency as the singer is worried the desert climate could damage her voice.

The British hitmaker wassaid to have been lined up for a $500,000-a-show 12-month deal to perform at the Wynn Hotel but she's hesitatant to ink the deal as she's concerned the Nevada desert conditions could cause her vocal problems.

A source told the Daily Star Sunday newspaper in the UK: "Adele is always looking at potential work ideas. But the sandy, hot and dry winds could mean problems for her voice.'

And the 29-year-old singer - who pulled out of her final two concerts at London's Wembley Stadium last year because of damage to her vocal chords - is also said to be concerned about how the residency would suit her five-year-old son Angelo, who she has with husband Simon Konecki.

The source added: "Another thing on her plate is Angelo. She wants to spend time being a mother."

The reports come a few weeks after it was revealed the Wynn were hoping to make Adele Sin City's highest-paid resident with an offer that would also include VIP meet-and-greet packages, where wealthy fans splash out $25,000 a ticket to come face-to-face with their favourite musicians as well as seeing them perform.

A Wynn insider said recently: "The days of entertainers coming to retire at Vegas are a thing of the past....in the last few years, we have seen massive stars performing on the strip and every major hotel wants to say they have the biggest star as their resident. Caesars Palace had Mariah Carey, Planet Hollywood has Britney Spears, and we want Adele. Even at half a million bucks a show we are confident we would make a healthy return."

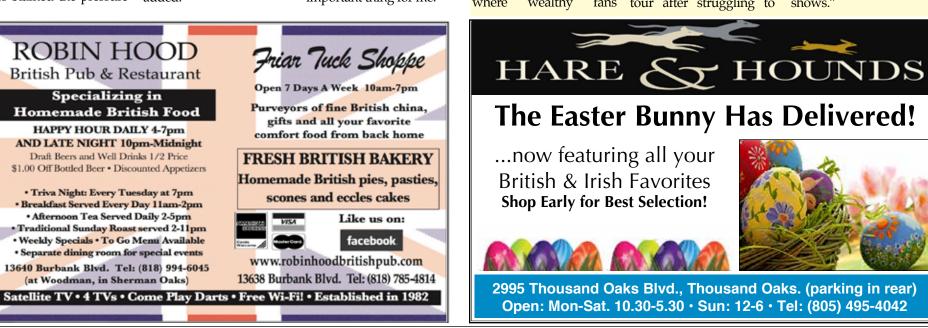

The singer previously revealed she was heartbroken to have to pull out of the final two dates of her world tour after struggling to perform during her other two London shows.

She tweeted at the time: "You know I would not make this decision lightly. I've done 121 shows and I have 2 left. 2 left! Who the fk cancels a show at Wembley Stadium?

"To not complete this milestone in my career is something I'm struggling to get my head around and I wish I wasn't having to write this.

"I have changed my life drastically in every way to make sure I got through this tour that started at the beginning of last year.

"To not be able to finish it is something I'm really struggling to come to terms with. It's as if my whole career has been building up to these four shows.'

More misery Down Under for England

CRICKET: Team like 'deer in headlights' - coach

England players were like "deer in the headlights" as they were bowled out for 58 by New Zealand in the opening Test, says head coach Trevor Bayliss.

In their first Test match since losing the Ashes 4-0 in Australia, England slipped to 27-9 before being dismissed in 20.4

England's lowest Test totals

"We were nowhere near good enough. New Zealand bowled well but we batted equally badly," said Bayliss.

"It was like deer in the headlights. Someone sneezes and everyone caught a cold today."

At one point England had looked on course for their lowest-ever Test total and to break a record that had stood for over 131 years.

Zealand had New reached 175-3 by the close, with Kane Williamson 91 not out.

Former England star Graeme Swann described the England display as 'horrific'.

"The players will feel utterly embarrassed by their performance today," said Swann. "Sometimes it just goes horribly wrong and there's nothing you can do about it.

"It was a horrific day

"In all of my time playing and watching cricket I've never quite witnessed anything like this morning. The first few overs passed without any incident and then it was just a snowball of England wickets."

Arsenal midfielder Jack Wilshere will miss England's friendly against the Netherlands on Friday after injuring a knee while training. The 26-year-old, who has won 34 caps, has not travelled with Gareth Southgate's squad to Amsterdam.

But Southgate said "hopeful" was he Wilshere would be fit for Tuesday's match against Italy at Wembley.

World Cup 2018: Nick Pope on his long journey from milkman to England squad

Burnley goalkeeper Nick Pope says an England call-up seemed a "far off possibility" when he was starting a milk round at 4am after being released by Ipswich Town as a teenager.

Pope, 25, is in the England squad for forthcoming their friendlies with Italy and the Netherlands after an impressive debut Premier League season.

But he was let go by Ipswich aged 16, and had to take part-time work while playing for nonleague clubs.

"It's been a hard ride," he said.

"I had a couple of jobs. I worked in Next and on a milk round. I was on an electric float, a 4am-er in Soham. It didn't pay much."

Pope joined non-league Bury Town after leaving Ipswich, and even after joining Charlton Athletic in 2011 had spells outside Football League the Harrow Borough, at Welling United and Aldershot Town.

"I've played in some cold, dark leagues," he said. "I was in Bury Town reserves in the Essex and Suffolk Border League. I think that was tier seven.

"Brightlingsea was a rough one... I hope the people of Brightlingsea don't mind! Little Oakley - some places you need a map. [It was] 10 people and a dog.

"You have to prove yourself at every level to get to the next one."

People 'with a brain' know we are a team in transition, says Mourinho

Manchester United manager Jose Mourinho says people with "a brain" and "common sense" appreciate the team is in a period of transition.

Mourinho has been repeatedly criticised for a style of play that perceived to be is unadventurous.

That intensified after last week's Champions League defeat by La Liga side Sevilla.

"T understand the sadness of being knocked out in the Champions League, but I don't understand anything more than that," Mourinho told CNN.

"In the history of football all around the world, not just in England, you had the biggest clubs with the moments of transition, you have the biggest clubs with moments of continuous and permanent victories, and these are phases in the club." United, in second, are 16 points behind leaders Manchester City in the Premier League and the title could be decided in the Manchester derby at Etihad Stadium on 7 April.

After United progressed into a record-equalling 29th FA Cup semi-final with a 2-0 victory over Brighton on Saturday, Mourinho accused his players of being "scared to play" and questioned their "personality".

On the eve of the game, the former Chelsea boss - who won the Europa League and EFL Cup in his first season as United manager - had delivered an impassioned 12-minute defending his speech record.

In his interview with CNN, he added: "Looking to us in the Premier League we have one team, one club clearly better prepared than us in the past few years to be first and we have 18 clubs behind us. One in front of us, 18 behind us.

"Of course, in the future we want to have 19 clubs behind us but this is the reality, and the reality is for people with a brain, with common sense, with knowledge of what sports is, we are in a moment of transition.

"And being in a moment of transition and still managing to do what we did last season, and win trophies, and to do what we are trying to do this season, which is still trying to win a trophy and trying to be second ... I think we are in a good position."

Southgate: we can't point finger on racism

England must not just point the finger at Russia for having a racism problem because their own under-17 team were subjected to "disgusting" online abuse, says Three Lions boss Gareth Southgate.

Southgate was addressing fears racism could overshadow this summer's World Cup in Russia.

He said England "must get our own house in order" on racism before making accusations about other countries.

"I don't think we should just talk about racism in Russia," said Southgate

Southgate said he had spent a "really interesting couple of hosurs" with Troy Townsend, education and development manager at anti-discrimination body Kick It Out.

"He showed a picture of our under-17s on social media," said Southgate. "The comments about that team were disgusting. They're part of our England family."

Bale breaks Weish scoring record

Real Madrid star ensures winning start for new boss Giggs

Ryan Giggs started his reign as Wales manager in spectacular style with Gareth Bale scoring a hattrick in a 6-0 thrashing of China to become the nation's leading goalscorer.

Real Madrid The forward, whose every touch was cheered by an enthralled home crowd on Thursday, put Wales ahead inside three minutes with a fine run and finish clipped into the top corner.

Bale slotted in a second soon after to move level with Ian Rush's mark of 28, before Sam Vokes' deft flick and Harry Wilson's excellent whipped effort on his 21st birthday gave the visitors a 4-0 half-time lead.

added Vokes his second and Wales' fifth after the break, and then Bale sealed his hat-trick and surpassed Rush's milestone with an assured low finish to complete the rout.

Giggs' men will now play in Monday's final of the China Cup friendly tournament, against the winner of the second semifinal between Uruguay and the Czech Republic on Friday.

when he described his appointment as the "proudest moment" of his life, no mean feat for a man who won 13 Premier League titles, two Champions League crowns and four FA Cups among others in a prodigiously successful playing career.

He also said he was more nervous about starting his managerial career in earnest - after four matches in temporary charge of Manchester United in 2014 - than he ever was as a player for United and Wales.

Amid the pride and trepidation, there was also excitement at inheriting the finest generation of players in Wales' history, having reached a first semi-final at a major tournament at Euro 2016.
