'I just want to say I'm truly sorry for what happened. I'm ashamed and mortified..... I let myself down..'

TV presenter Ant McPartlin has been fined £86,000 and given a 20-month driving ban after pleading guilty to drink driving.

Speaking outside Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Monday, he said: "I let myself down, I let a lot of people down. For that I'm truly sorry."

He also said he was "thankful no-one was hurt" in the three-car collision in Richmond, London, on 18 March.

The court heard he had been more than twice the drink drive limit.

In a letter read out in court, McPartlin also said he was "ashamed and mortified" and "accepts full responsibility" for what happened.

The fine is thought to be one of the largest handed down in a British court for a drink driving offence.

The mother of the Britain's Got Talent and Saturday Night Takeaway presenter was in the passenger seat of his Mini at the time of the collision, the court heard. In a witness statement, the driver of one of the cars said he and his wife "could have died as a result of Mr McPartlin's reckless driving".

The court heard McPartlin had 75 micrograms of alcohol in 100 millilitres of breath when he was breathalysed - the legal limit is 35 micrograms per 100 millilitres of breath.

District Judge Barbara Barnes described McPartlin as a "wellknown and successful entertainer", taking his weekly income of about £130,000 into consideration when calculating the fine.

Sentencing him, the district judge said: "At the time when it happened you were struggling with various personal problems and also alcohol issues for some months.

"This incident happened, sadly, when it seems you suffered a brief relapse."

She described McPartlin's previous "exemplary character", adding: "I think it will have quite an impact on you to know you're no longer a man of good character."

She added: "Because of the seriousness of this offence, the financial pain must be imposed on you as on any other offender."

McPartlin's driving ban can be reduced by five months, to a total of 15 months, if he completes a drink-drive referral programme by mid-May 2019.

Katie Prosecutor Sinnett-Jones told the court the incident happened at around 3.50pm on 18 March on Lower Richmond Road.

She said McPartlin was driving around a "sharp bend and lost control" and then ended up on the wrong side of the road.

HITTING ROCK BOTTOM? TV star Ant McPartlin outside court this week

He collided with another Mini car before driving "straight into the front of an oncoming car" McPartlin's vehicle "came to a halt and was no longer driveable due to the damage caused", she added.

In a statement read to the court, the driver of the other Mini said: "Myself and my family were in deep shock as we believed we could have died as a result of Mr McPartlin's reckless driving."

'Sorrow and regret'

McPartlin's barrister Liam Walker said his client has expressed both his "sorrow and regret" and knows the consequences could have been much worse. The presenter knows people in the public eye should provide a positive example to others and his court appearance is a "turning point" for him, the lawyer added.

The Metropolitan Police previously said that a number of individuals were treated at the scene for minor injuries, and a child passenger from one of the cars was taken to hospital to be checked as a precaution.

Partlin's barrister said his client had been seeking help for "alcohol and emotional issues" at the time of the crash.

He told the judge the incident was down "a brief relapse" to unbeknownst to McPartlin's mother.

"Anthony McPartlin is sorry and is doing everything he can to ensure this never happens again," Mr Walker said.

"He hopes that in time he can make himself better and that he might be forgiven by all of the many people he knows and he feels he has let down terribly."

After he was charged, his publicist confirmed McPartlin was taking time off from his TV commitments. He currently seeking is treatment.

His presenting partner Declan Donnelly hosted the final two episodes Saturday of Night Takeaway alone and will also host Britain's Got Talent on his own, although McPartlin was seen on the ITV show over the weekend as the talent show aired its prerecorded audition shows.

Plastic stirrers and cotton buds to be banned

Plastic stirrers and cotton buds are to be banned alongside straws, Michael Gove announced on Thursday.

The move, expected to come into force as early as next year, is designed to curb "society's addiction" to throwaway products, the environment secretary writes in The Times. The UK uses 13.2 billion cotton buds a vear, more than any other member of the EU, as well as 44.1 billion stirrers and 42 billion straws, according to the World Wide Fund for Nature.

A consultation on how to outlaw the items will begin this year. Industry will be given time to develop and manufacture less harmful alternatives, the environment secretary says. Explaining why cotton buds, straws and stirrers have been singled out, he said:

"We have targeted these products because they are already available (or can be developed) in alternative forms but when discarded they remain a polluting presence for hundreds of years. Their legacy can be lethal.

"Once our need for them has passed, far too many are flushed down the drain before finding their way into rivers and seas. There, they have been found blocking the noses of sea turtles and perforating the stomachs of penguins."

The ban in England is the latest in a series of measures to reduce single-use plastics as ministers take advantage of a change in public sentiment prompted in part by the BBC's Blue Planet series, which highlighted marine pollution. Mr Gove initiated plans last month to require retailers to impose a deposit on plastic bottles and has extended the 5p tax on plastic bags to smaller shops.

'world leader'

Moves for an industry levy aimed at reducing the use of products such as takeaway food cartons are also underway in the Treasury. Many retailers have already taken action to reduce or replace plastic straws before any legal move and Scotland is already committed to banning them.

Speaking on BBC Radio 4's Today programme, Mr Gove said that the government would be announcing more policies later this year to help businesses use less plastic.

With the enthusiastic backing of Theresa May, Mr Gove is said to believe that the issue helps reconnect the Conservatives with former supporters angry over Brexit.

The timing of the announcement to coincide with the Commonwealth heads of government summit is also designed to underline the UK's leadership on the issue.

In a statement issued Wednesday night, the prime minister said that the ban would confirm the country as a "world leader" in the battle against pollution of the seas.

"Alongside our domestic action, this week we are rallying C o m m o n w e a l t h countries to join us in the fight against marine plastics, with £61.4 million funding for global research and to improve waste management in developing countries.

"The Commonwealth is a unique organisation, with a huge diversity of wildlife, environments and coastlines. Together we can effect real change so that future generations can enjoy a natural environment that is healthier than we currently find it."

The government says there are more than 150 million tonnes of plastic in the oceans and every year one million birds and more than 100,000 sea mammals die from eating and getting tangled in plastic waste.

BRITAIN roasts in hottest April temperatures since 1949

TURNED OUT NICE AGAIN: grabbing some rays in St. .James's Park, London

Temperatures this week soared to over 84F in parts of London, making it the warmest April day for nearly 70 years.

The unusually warm weather across the UK is the result of low pressure over the Atlantic and high pressure over western Europe drawing in warm air.

Thursday's high of 29.1C was recorded at St James's Park in central London during the afternoon, making it the hottest UK day in April since 1949.

The average maximum temperature for the UK in April is 53F.

The highest recorded temperature for this month was 85F back in 1949 in London.

Pollen levels are high throughout much of the UK, with BBC Weather warning it could be "uncomfortable" for hayfever sufferers. Runners in Sunday's London Marathon have been warned to expect hot weather, with suggestions it could be the hottest race on record.

Event director Hugh Brasher said contingency plans were already in place which included providing extra water supplies along the route for drinking and for competitors to douse themselves with.

Trump didn't make me do it!

THERESA May this week insisted air strikes against Syria were in the British national interest and not launched as a result of pressure from Donald Trump.

The Prime Minister told parliament: "We have not done this because President Trump asked us to, we have done it because we believed it was the right thing to do, and we are not alone. There is broad-based international support for the action we have taken."

She said she did not seek a green light from parliament for the attacks due to the need to act quickly. And she insisted her decision to order RAF Tornados into the US-led assault on three of dictator Bashar al-Assad's chemical weapons facilities was "legally and morally right".

During more than three hours of Commons debate, the Prime Minister said: "We cannot go back to a world where the use of chemical weapons becomes normalised.

cyber attacks

"I am clear that the way we protect our national interest is to stand up for the global rules and standards that keep us safe.

"That is what we have done – and what we will continue to do."

On her decision not to seek parliamentary approval for the air strikes, Mrs Mav said: "I am absolutely clear, Mr Speaker, that it is Parliament's responsibility to hold me to account for such decisions-and Parliament will do so. But it is my responsibility as Prime Minster to make these decisions. And I will make them."

Meanwhile, British and American security chiefs issued an unprecedented joint warning of a surge in 'malicious" cyber attacks from Vladimir Putin's Russia.

Syria air strikes were my decision, insists PM

The National Cyber Security Centre joined the FBI and the US Department of Homeland Security to alert businesses and public services, including the NHS, about attempts to hack computer systems to "lay a foundation for future offensive operations".

They said "multiple sources" had reported suspected Russia infiltration to bring havoc to computers and several other devices.

The aim was to undermine the "safety, security and economic wellbeing" of Western societies.

The UK-US warning follows fears of a devastating wave of Russian cyber attacks in revenge for the allied missile strikes on President Putin's ally Syria.

'major priority'

Mrs May said the Government had "enhanced our capability" to combat cyber threats following the increase in tensions with Russia.

However, this latest warning set out the dangers posed to industry.

It said the Russian statesponsored hackers were using "compromised routers" conduct to spoofing "man-inthe-middle" attacks to "support espionage, intellectual extract maintain property, persistent access to victim networks and potentially lav a foundation for future offensive operations".

Cyber security centre chief executive Ciaran Martin explained: "Russia is our most capable hostile adversary in cyberspace. So dealing with their attacks is a major priority for the National Cyber Security Centre and our US allies. This is the first time that in attributing a cyber attack to Russia, the US and the UK have, at the same time, issued joint advice to industry about how to manage the risks from attacks.

"It marks an important step in our fight against state-sponsored aggression in cyberspace. For more than 20 years, GCHQ has been tracking the key Russian cyber attack groups. Today's joint UK-US alert shows that the threat has not gone away. The UK Government will continue to work with international allies and industry partners to expose Russia's unacceptable cyber behaviour, so they are held accountable for their actions."

The joint statement made it clear that the targets of such attacks have been primarily government and privateorganisations, sector critical infrastructure providers and internet service providers which support these sectors.

'great courage'

Russian foreign minister Sergei Lavrov said air strikes had made East-West relations worse than in the Cold War. He said: "During the Cold War there were channels of communication and no obsession with Russophobia, which looks like genocide by sanctions.'

MPs overwhelmingly backed Mrs May over RAF involvement in the air strikes, but Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn faced Tory cries of "shame" as he said: "The Prime Minister is accountable to this Parliament, not to the whims of the US president."

A string of Labour MPs distanced themselves from their leader's continued questioning of whether Syria was to blame for the chemical attack on Douma earlier this month. To cheers from Tory MPs, former shadow chancellor Chris Leslie said: "Pinpointing and degrading Assad's chemical weapons was necessary. Intervening to save civilians from future gas attacks was absolutely the right thing to do. Those who would turn a blind eye, who would do nothing in pursuit of some moral high ground, should also be held accountable."

And Tory MP Richard Drax said: "Leadership takes great courage. The Prime Minister has that in spades."

26 years for rapist who pretended to be a ghost

A rapist who manipulated a girl into having sex with him by pretending to be a ghost has been jailed for 26 years.

Liam Clarke knew she was terrified of evil spirits and used that to exploit her, Exeter Crown Court heard.

Clarke, 35, of Crediton, Devon, was convicted of four rapes, three assaults by penetration, sexual activity with a child, and eight counts of indecency or indecent assault.

Judge David Evans said: "Your offending across the years was monstrous."

The court heard how Clarke's victim was petrified of the occult following a bad experience during an Ouija board game.

He made strange noises at night which left the 15-year-old girl terrified and pushed notes under her bedroom door claiming to be from the ghost.

Pretending to be the spirit, he then made threats to the teenager and told her the only way of getting rid of the demon was by having sex with him.

Sentencing Clarke, Judge Evans said: "She said she did not want to have sex with you but you threatened her repeatedly. "You made deliberate use of her deep fear of ghosts and spirits." The offences took place between 1997 to 2016 in Torquay, Crediton and in Hampshire.

Clarke was arrested in July last year and found guilty at trial in March.

He also repeatedly abused two young girls in Southampton by putting coins in his underwear and getting them to play hide and seek.

Clarke was put on the sex offenders' register for life and made the subject of a Sexual Harm Prevention Order, which restricts his future contact with girls.

Sir Patrick Stewart lends voice to demands for another referendum

The actor even said his fictional X-Men character Charles Xavier would have supported the Remain campaign.

Veteran actor Sir Patrick Stewart has joined a campaign to demand another referendum on the final Brexit deal.

Speaking at a rally in Camden, north London this week, Sir Patrick, 78, told a crowd of over 1,200 people that he "will not stand idly by" whilst Britain's "future is at stake"

Opening the London launch of People's Vote – a new grassroots movement campaigning for a referendum on the final deal – Sir Patrick said Brexit will mean he will show his new Blue passport "with less pride".

The actor, famous for productions including Star Trek and X-Men, even said his fictional character Charles Xavier would have supported the Remain campaign. Charles Xavier standing here in front of you – although I can assure you that if he was, he would have voted Remain. And why? Because unity, common cause, wellbeing of society and debate were paramount to belief of this fictional character.

"Since the 2016 referendum, there has been a concerted effort by many – including government – to shut down debate about Brexit and to tell us that we should simply trust ministers to get on with it because Brexit is an irreversible process.

"That we shouldn't worry about the cost and complexity of it or the litany of broken promises. Well today we say that's not good enough.

SIR PATRICK: criticized what he called "a concerted effort.... to shut down debate since the 2016 referendum"

"That is why I support a UK people's vote on the final deal." UK

Sir Patrick told the crowd that the day Britain joined the EU on January 1 1973 was one of the best days of his life.

"I was working with the Royal Shakespeare Company. My wife and I owned a tiny little cottage in Warwickshire. We had a young son and a daughter on the way," he said.

"But the reason for the joy on that New Year's Day was because the UK had finally become a member of the European Union," he added.

Sir Patrick went on to discuss his upbringing in working-class Yorkshire, where he witnessed the aftermath of the Second World War.

He said: "The cost of war was everywhere and many never recovered from it.

"That was the Europe I grew up in and that is why when Britain joined the [European Economic Community] in 1973, that date was so special to me. "When the UK and Ireland were brought in I felt for the first time in my life that the brutality of both World Wars could never happen again."

Speaking at the event alongside Conservative MP Anna Soubry and Labour's Chuka Umunna, Sir Patrick said: "Now that we are learning the real cost of Brexit, I want to urge that we think again and insist whether we accept the Brexit deal is a matter for the people."

Corbyn blasted for suggesting Charles should not be next Commonwealth Head

JEREMY Corbyn provoked anger this week by suggesting Prince Charles should not become the next head of the Common wealth.

The hard-Left Labour leader claimed the position should be rotated around the heads of the 53 nations.

He also urged Theresa May to use this week's Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting to make amends for Britain's "immoral" behaviour in its imperial past.

Mr Corbyn's remarks came as Commonwealth leaders flew into London. They will discuss who follows the Queen as the organizations' head.

"The Commonwealth ought to really get a chance to decide who its own head is," said Mr Corbyn.

"The Queen is personally verv committed to the Commonwealth, but after her maybe it's a time to say well, actually Commonwealth the should decide who its own president is on a rotational basis."

The Queen had earlier spoken of her wish for her eldest son to succeed her.

Mr Corbyn added: "It's very important that Britain recognizes its historical role in many issues, such as the treatment of people in Kenya during the uprising in the 1950s.

"The Government should also acknowledge the "wrong and brutal" treatment of inhabitants forced to leave an Indian Ocean territory by 1973 to make way for a US military base.

'shocking'

"It's important that the British Government just recognise what Britain did to the Chagos Islanders was immoral, was wrong and brutal – put it right and give them their right of return," he said.

Tory Party chairman

CORBYN: spoke of the 'wrong and brutal' treatment of the Chagos Islanders in the 1970s

Brandon Lewis called Mr Corbyn's remarks about the Prince of Wales "shocking" and accused him of suggesting "a downgrading of our monarchy within the Commonwealth".

Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson said no one in the Commonwealth was pressing for an apology for the colonial era, adding that the next head "is for the 53 to decide".

Meanwhile, Prince Harry is to be made a Commonwealth Youth Ambassador to build links between young people and youth leaders across the 53 member nations.

Billions in profit for Premier League

PremierLeagueclubsreportedrecordrevenuesof $\pounds 4.5bn$ inthe2016-17season, andalsoreturned toprofit.

Clubs collectively reported £500m in pretax profit, also a record, having posted a small collective pre-tax loss in 2015-16, according to Deloitte.

Wage costs rose by 9% to £2.5bn, a significantly lower growth rate than the 25% hike in revenues.

The Premier League's three-year TV deal which came into effect in 2016-17 was the main factor in revenue growth.

A record £5.13bn was paid to the league by Sky and BT for the 2016-19 UK broadcast rights. But the latest domestic rights auction, for the 2019-22 cycle, did not reach those heights, bringing in £4.464bn for the league's 20 clubs.

"Despite the lack of growth in domestic broadcast deals announced to date, we still expect to see overall revenue growth in the coming seasons, and if this is complemented with prudent cost control, we expect that pre-tax profits will be achieved for the foreseeable future," said Dan Jones, head of Deloitte's Sports Business Group.

And he said that "restraint shown by clubs to control their wages has translated broadcast revenue success into healthy operating and pre-tax profits".

Mr Jones added: "Although we anticipate wage costs will continue to rise in the coming seasons, we do not foresee increases to be at a level which can jeopardise the profitability of the Premier League as a whole." The famous "Hampden Roar" lived up to its name during the Old Firm clash last weekend as the noise generated by fans was said to be the equivalent of a real lion. The sound experts Vanguardia recorded a peak volume of 115 decibels at the national stadium during the Celtic v Rangers cup semifinal on Sunday. This is equivalent to the roar of a lion from less than a metre away or being in the front row of a music concert and just short of a jet engine at take-off from 25 metres, they said.

The impact of the Hampden Roar was measured as part of a fact-finding mission to safeguard the future of the Glasgow stadium. Peter Dallas, managing director of Hampden Park, said: "Sunday's William Hill Scottish Cup semi-final reaffirmed why Hampden Park is Scotland's national stadium.

■ Old Firm clash produces

ear-splitting 115db roar

"The tie was beamed to households across the globe but these readings show there is no substitute for experiencing the atmosphere inside the stadium. We are pleased that the experts at Vanguardia have validated our firm belief that the Hampden Roar is unrivalled in Scottish football."

'passion'

Celtic's 4-0 victory over their rivals recorded crowd noise peaks as the teams emerged from the tunnel (109 decibels) and immediately after each goal (115 decibels). The average ambient noise level in the first half was 98 decibels and 96 for the second half.

Recent measurements

MAKE SOME NOISE: the Hampden Roar dwarfs the sound in English stadia at all 20 English Premier League stadia pale by comparison. A study in 2014 put Old Trafford top with a reading of 84 decibels at the start of the match, compared with Hampden's 109.

Matt McIlroy, senior acoustic consultant at Vanguardia, said: "The noise levels from the moment the players walked out on to the pitch were incredible and it really shows the passion of the fans that those levels did not significantly change throughout the match.

"It's also worth noting that these levels were registered trackside: imagine how loud it would have been in amongst the fans."

The Hampden Roar originated with the Celtic player Jimmy McGrory, who in 1933 was playing for Scotland against England in a rare appearance for the national team. With the match tied at 1-1, he scored a superb winner and the phenomenal noise that greeted his goal became known as the Hampden Roar.

Guinness World Records recognises 142.2 decibels as the loudest noise ever recorded in a sports stadium, during a Kansas City Chiefs v New England Patriots American football game at the Arrowhead Stadium, which holds 76,416 fans, in 2014.

Tributes to the star, who hosted the popular British game show in the 1990s, quickly flooded in.

Comedian Les Dennis tweeted: "So sad and shocked to hear that Dale Winton has died.

"He was a lovely, warm man who exuded charm. RIP"

West End star Michael Ball tweeted: "So sad to hear that the true gentleman, the charming and so kind Dale Winton has been taken from us far to soon. RIP lovely man. Xx"

London-born Winton started his career as a DJ in the 1970s before joining Channel 4 in 1987. He began hosting Supermarket Sweep on ITV in 1993. He also hosted the Saturday night show Pets Win Prizes. But despite his fame and showbiz friends like Cilla Black the gay star suffered from mental and physical health issues.

He revealed on Loose Women in 2016 that he had regularly battled with depression. Speaking on the ITV show, he said: "I should have taken myself off the TV but I didn't. Listen, there are worse things in the world – but I had depression and I didn't realise.

DIFFICULT CHILDHOOD: Dale Winton

"I always thought, 'get over yourself'. But my mum died of it."

He presented an upbeat, cheerful, public image despite tragedy early in his life. His father, Gary, died when Dale was just 13, leaving his mother Sheree, an actress, to raise him on her own. She took an overdose of barbiturates after suffering from depression for many years when Dale was just 21. He found her body, with a "do not disturb" sign hanging outside the door of her bedroom.

This year he returned to TV, presenting Dale Winton's Florida Fly Drive on Channel 5. Speaking in an interview about the show in January, he said: "I've kept a low profile because I had about four surgeries. "I had a shoulder problem and a knee problem, so I took a break to get myself sorted.

"But then when I was asked to do this show I thought it would be fun."

Winton did not come out publicly as gay until 2008. He said then: "The truth – it's absolutely the truth – is that no one ever asked me. I did countless interviews over the years and I was always waiting for the question. "It never came. I actually don't believe it's important."

Meet A Member: Samantha Powell

Meet Samantha Powell from Pontypool, (Sjae) South Wales, who moved to LA 10 years ago 'to pursue a better quality of life'

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

When I was younger, I was signed to RCA Records and they used to send me to LA a lot on writing trips. I fell in love with the place the minute I got off the plane and honestly, the 'shine' still hasn't worn off! I had been living in London and was so over the expense, the weather and the general rat race. I was producing records and writing songs for major artists (under the name Sammy Jay), but I just wanted a better quality of life, where I could still make a living from music, as I was in London. But frankly, I would have been happy doing anything! Fortunately, I was able to maintain and grow my work as a songwriter and music producer here in Los Angeles, as well as having a truly wonderful life experience. I find it a really good place to maintain that work/life balance.

What do you miss most from home? Marks & Spencers Food Hall!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? My first impression was based on the people I first connected with, which were insanely talented musicians and spiritual soul mates. I was luck to find 'my tribe' early on and so have gravitated to the same things throughout my can be a really spiritual and soulful place, that encourages you to be true to yourself.

I've heard a lot of horror stories from people regarding fake and flaky people etc, but if you're not pursuing those types, and can keep an eye on what's really important in life, LA is a wonderful place to fall in love with. I've certainly neighborhoods seen change, the gentrification of the east side (Echo Park and Silverlake), and the way tech money has influenced the Westside (Santa Monica/Venice), but I really do love every single part of this city!

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Pontypool and London? Other than the weather?

life here. I still think LA One thing that keeps me grounded is that I look at the Whole Foods Parking lot and every car is a Mercedes, BMW or Range Rover, and I think 'This looks a bit different to the Tescos car park in Ponty haha!

I also think that the biggest difference is encouragement for entrepreneurs. If you have an idea, no matter what it is, someone in LA will get out their phone with a 'I know a guy who knows a guy who can help you with this!' People do 2-3 things for a living here and it's embraced, not sneered at. So that British cynicism that sticks its nose into your dreamscape every now and again gets replaced by hope and encouragement. It's in the air here.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? Lake Shrine Temple in Malibu. What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Definitely an see immigration lawyer for a consultation before you even think about making any plans. Immigration is no joke and needs to

ARIES: If life at work is not all it could be look on the positive side. As we move into May the planets will open new doors, which should please you. You will be still celebrating your birthday for the rest of this month.

TAURUS: Your emotions are probably in a mess regarding some area of family life. It is more than likely a past situation that has brought things up and this should be resolved once and for all now before your birthday.

GEMINI: You would be wise to not use up all your energy before mid-week as then life gets hectic. Mars and Venus in your sign make you feel emotional over the past. If this is the case best to resolve it now.

CANCER: You may be letting go of what you consider the past. It may be for you, not for others, so be cool when asked to explain something It won't go away and so it is always best to face things head on. It will be easier for you in the end.

LEO: You may be in the mood to get far from the madding crowd and you will as soon as what you must take care of is finished. By then you will have sorted out your priorities and will be in a much better head space.

VIRGO: This past week or so for you has not been as easy going as you would like or need. This is because everything seems overwhelming to you, however next week starts out better. You will be glad to take the time to relax.

LIBRA: This is spring cleaning time for you and it can be in any area of life. A new business venture or job will lighten you up overall by the end of May. In the meantime be at peace that all will be as you had planned.

SCORPIO: You have over extended yourself recently, leaving you a bit frazzled and before this gets too much for you, take time out with good friends and relax this weekend. If you are ready to make long term changes, next month is better.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is sitting in Leo your cousin sign, so be good as he will be watching your latest adventure. At some social gathering expect to receive a work-related opportunity.

CAPRICORN: The sun in Aries will assist you to get the job done as this week ahead is a great opportunity to complete an overdue project that has been neglected; it's probably in your home base. Start to plan now any new project for May.

AQUARIUS: You are probably feeling like a break away, so even if you can't get out of town take time out in the garden or enjoy a walk on the beach. If you can swing a weekend away this is the time.... as next month will be much busier.

PISCES: The family is much on your mind and if you learn to live in the moment things will work out quicker and with less stress. A situation you were worried about is not going to be so bad as you expected If you are worried about anything you are simply wasting your energy!

The Darkling Bride: murder most Gothic

Exclusive interview with author Laura Andersen discussing her new Gothic novel with castle murder mysteries separated by a hundred years

The Darkling Bride LAURA ANDERSEN MATTER ANDERSEN

"I worshiped Mary Stewart and Victoria Holt," says The Darkling Bride author Laura Andersen.

"I was a huge reader of gothic suspense in my teens. And, I have continued to love the genre conventions of isolated manors, dark secrets, hints of the ghostly, and the curious outsider who drags everything into the light."

Deeprath Castle in the Wicklow Mountains of Ireland has been the home of the Gallagher family for seven hundred years. In 1880, gothic author Evan Chase goes Nat to Ireland and winds up at Deeprath. There he falls in love with the daughter of the house, Lady Jenny C Gallagher. When she dies unexpectedly she leaves in th behind her husband and child. Evan had been a well-known writer but to i he never wrote again after her death. That is where the legend of the starts. In 2015, cold case detective Sibéal McKenna wants to know who killed the current Viscount's parents. He and his sister Kyra were children when their parents both died. Their father died in the library. Their mother fell from the bride tower of the castle. Their deaths were violent and the case was never solved.

Darkling Bride and the haunting of the castle

Both Aidan and his sister avoid the family castle. Aidan has decided to donate it to the National Trust. Bit he has to go back for the first time since his parents' deaths.

Concerned for the family books and papers in the family archives, his aunt hires Carragh Ryan, scholar and book lover, to inventory the historic library. Aidan and other members of the family are a bit eccentric, making her job more difficult. Carragh wants to find out what happened to Evan Chase's missing Victorian manuscript. She gets caught up in haunting of the castle that started with the Darkling Bride. She is helping to solve the murders of Aidan's parents. But will she be the next victim?

The book has mystery, romance, historical details and drama and is a good fit for readers who like gothic novels.

"If you've read my previous books, then you already know that I live and die by the Tudors," says Anderson. "Honestly, I'm terrified the thought at of writing a completely contemporary book. Besides, there's a distinct shortage of opportunities to write about gorgeous gowns and swords in a strictly contemporary tale. I've always felt I have a more oldfashioned, slightly formal style that is an easier fit in historical fiction. But beyond that instinct of self-preservation, I do have an abiding passion for secrets that resonate through generations. Some of my favorite books are multitimeline...The Thirteenth Tale by Diane Setterfield and The Historian by Elizabeth Kostova."

For online research, Anderson pored over Irish newspapers from the Victorian era. She wanted the language and layout to feel authentic for the period newspaper reports of Jenny's death. She also re-read Gothic novels by favorite authors, including Carol Goodman and Kate Morton.

"The best part of research, hands down, was a day trip to Glendalough while in Ireland for a week," says Anderson. "My daughter and I fell headlong in love with all of it."

The Darkling Bride has yet to be optioned for film or TV. Anderson's first books are the trilogy, The Boleyn King, The Boleyn Deceit and The Boleyn Reckoning, follow an alternate historical timeline in which Anne Boleyn did not miscarry her son in January 1536 but bore a live Prince of Wales and was consequently never executed. Anderson's second trilogy, beginning with The Virgin's Daughter, continues the alternate timeline in the 1580s and adds a daughter for Elizabeth I.

BOOK CORNER with Gabrielle Pantera

Romantic Times awarded Best Historical Fiction in 2014 to The Boleyn King.

Anderson is currently her next gothic suspense novel, also set in Ireland.

Anderson has lived in the Boston area since 2011. She was born in Oregon, but was adopted as a newborn and grew up in Seattle, Washington.

Her website is lauraandersenbooks. com. She's also active on Twitter, Facebook and Pinterest.

TAX INVASION!

Most of you by now have done your taxes - or if you are bit disorganized (like me), you may have filed for an extension. Which means you can buy a little time and have them complete and filed by October.

Navigating tax filing for foreigners can be somewhat of a daunting task, in fact a lot of Brits don't bother filing (big mistake)...read on for more info about that.

Let me start by saying I'm not a tax specialist, so for proper advice seek out a tax accountant, enrolled agent or a lawyer for more comprehensive and detailed advice.

April 15 is usually the yearly deadline to file your taxes but this year it was April 17, because once in a while, the regular date is disrupted due to a weekend or a holiday celebrated in the nation's capital.

You are filing taxes for the calendar year previous - i.e. in April 2018 you file your earnings (profit and loss) for Jan.1 2107- to Dec 31 2017.

One main difference is that even if you are employed by a company you are still required to file yourself. There is no PAYE here. Also when filing out your start up paperwork for an employee, you will be asked how many dependents you are claiming. Note here that the more dependents you list the less tax will be taken out of your paycheck each week. But if you list 1 or 0 - you will probably have a lot of tax taken out of your paycheck each week, however the chances of receiving a tax refund after filing are greater.

KEEP ALL RECEIPTS! - Take a photo of them in your phone and file them, so you can retrieve them easily - or use one certain credit card for all business transactions, so you can just check the statements each month too. I prefer to use a bookkeeper or a site called quickbooks, (www.quickbooks.com) that links up to my bank. This way each month it details my income and expenditure as I go along. This makes it SO much easier than spending days weeks in March trying to catch up.

I seek out the help of a Tax preparer to do my taxes each year - for two reasons - firstly its considered a business expense (so I can write it off), and secondly if ever, (God forbid) am audited then the preparer has to come with me or go on my behalf to the meetings with the IRS and answer any questions, or negotiate if there are any discrepancies.

Be careful to whom you entrust your taxes as there are plenty of dodgy operators out there who will charge you a low fee, but file incorrectly and disappear. Ask for referrals from friends or check out Yelp!

Also make sure you go in to the tax preparer organized with your top P&L (profit and loss) sheet. They won't be too happy if you show up with three carrierbags of receipts, they won't have the time to sort through your affairs and you will probably have to rescedule your appointment. Now it gets a little tricky if you are self-employed and do business both here and in the UK. Or have assets and own property back in the UK. It is my understanding that there is a tax treaty between the UK and USA but a form called an F-BAR must be filed declaring your worldwide earnings and assets. (Perhaps FUBAR would be more appropriate) Failure to do this can get you in a lot of trouble. visit irs.gov to fill out the form.

Its always a little tricky knowing what to do each year, that's why it's best to seek out an accountant that understands the tax rules in both countries.

Bottom line? Taxes are a pain but avoidin them now will bring greater pain later on. So try tostay focused on the task, breathe and sort your expenses by category and not month by month, it will save a lot of time, trust me!

Brief encounters prove just the tonic for Mark and Michelle!

Long distance relationships often prove to be pretty tricky - especially in Tinseltown.

But British host Mark Wright has told ITV's Lorraine Kelly Show that he and Michelle Keegan have a special routine to make sure their marriage is kept alive.

Many may speculate on how they get by but after spending months apart, but the former 'Towie' star, who is now a presenter on showbiz news show Extra explained there's really only one thing that they can do – have secret love visits.

Oo-er!

The former reality star told Lorraine: "I'm a bit jetlagged today as I've just come off a flight a few hours ago as I've just been home for the weekend.

"When I get a couple of days off I fly there and when she gets a couple of days off she flies here.

"It's easy enough – we just make it work as we're young."

Of course, Lorraine wondered why the media don't see them together as much, as asked about speculation that their marriage has been strained.

He responded as diplomatically as possible, saying: "We're together – we don't always report when we see each other but we make it work.

"We don't have kids yet and while we're young and chasing our dreams we make sure things are good." The couple got married in 2015, but there has been a great deal of speculation about the future of their marriage. Since arriving in Los Angeles, Mark and Michelle have been mixing business with pleasure by heading out on a series of dates including a swish Oscars bash and a trip to Universal studios. Michelle has also been seen attending castings in the city as the actress starts her bid to crack the US.

Mark also works as a celebrity reporter for Lorraine's ITV show, giving gossip about celebrities from across the pond...

And we love having him here!

They've named a date! Craig returns as Bond in November 2019

Seems like a lifetime away, but James Bond will return to cinemas for the 25th time on November 8, 2019, with Daniel Craig reprising his role as the super-spy 007.

No UK date set in stone but I hear it will be EARLIER than in the US. Oo-er!

The franchise released the news via Twitter, telling fans: "James Bond will return to US cinemas on November 8, 2019, with a traditional earlier release in the UK and the rest of the world."

Danny Boyle will be directing and is currently working on the latest script. Speaking to Metro US at a screening of his new TV show Trust, Boyle confirmed his involvement in Bond 25, explaining: "We are working on a script right now and it all depends on that really."

He added: "I am working on a Richard Curtis script at the moment.

"We hope to start shooting that in 6 or 7 weeks. Then Bond would be right at the end of the year. But we are working on them both right now."

Craig said recently on a US TV show: "I have been quite cagey about it. I have been doing interviews all day and people have been asking me and I think I've been rather coy.

"But kind of felt like if I was going to speak the truth I should speak truth to you."

Craig went on to say he had known he would be playing 007 again for a "couple of months".

Naomie Harris is expected to return as Moneypenny, Ben Whishaw as Q and Ralph Fiennes as M, although no official announcements have been made.

An astonishing plot leak has revealed that Bond 25 will see the famous spy completely transform his life.

Page Six claims the leaked plot summary reads: "Bond quits the secret service, and he's in love and gets married."

The plot then sees his wife get killed, which brings him back into action – which sounds similar to the plot of On Her Majesty's Secret Service.

The woman that Daniel Craig's Bond marries is apparently Dr Madeleine Swann, played by Lea Seydoux in Spectre. SOO(7) excited!

Joey Barton will become the new manager of League One side Fleetwood Town this summer one day after his ban for betting ends.

Barton, 35, was suspended for 18 months by the Football Association in April 2017 after he was found to have placed 1,260 bets on matches over 10 vears.

His punishment was reduced by five months on appeal and ends on 1 June.

"I'm very excited by the challenge," the ex-England, Manchester City, Newcastle and Burnley midfielder said.

qualification.

City duo De Bruyne and Silva are shortlisted for the PFA's Player of the Year award, along with club-mate Leroy Sane after all three helped their side win the Premier League. Kane, Salah and De Gea are also nominated, with the winner set to be announced at the PFA's annual awards ceremony in London on Sunday.

Wolves will be playing Premier League football next season after securing promotion, and have three players in the PFA's Championship team of the year. Goalkeeper John Ruddy, defender Willy Boly and Portuguese midfielder Ruben Neves, who scored a wonder goal in their recent win over Derby, all make the XI. The battle to join them in the top flight next season looks set to go down to the wire. Fulham head into the weekend's matches in third place, on the back of an impressive 21-match unbeaten Championship run. The Cottagers' defender Ryan Fredericks, wingback Ryan Sessegnon and midfielder Tom Cairney are named in the team of the year.

Walker: we're not perfect yet

Title-winning City aiming for years of dominance, says defender

Manchester City want to be regarded as one of the greatest teams in Premier League history, says defender Kyle Walker.

They won the title with five games to spare on Sunday when Manchester United suffered a surprise home defeat by West Bromwich Albion.

City have 87 points this season, 16 points ahead of second-placed United.

"There is still a lot of room for improvement," England international Walker, 27, told BBC Radio 5 live.

"I have read some articles that say we need to win things continuously for a number of years before we are classed as a great team.

"Every single one of us wants to be recognised as one of the greatest teams to play in the Premier League. City 5-1 aggregate to Liverpool in the Champions League quarter-finals.

"If we concentrate on ourselves then as a team we can go on to great things," said Walker, a £45m signing from Tottenham last July.

"But the Liverpool game showed us that we are not a perfect team."

City's title triumph came in manager Pep Guardiola's second season in charge, a campaign in which they also won the League Cup.

Guardiola won the Champions Leagues twice and La Liga three times with Barcelona, and the Bundesliga three times with Bayern Munich.

Speaking on BBC Radio 5 live's Pep Guardiola programme, Walker said: "Different managers have different ways of looking at things and the gaffer here is special.

"He has won everything you want to win. Bar three people in the dressing room, no-one has won the Champions League. He has done it on a number of occasions so you have to buy into his philosophy and his way of playing."

"It's just the detail and simple things that probably others mangers bypass but he keeps banging on about it and banging on about it, day in and day out, until the penny drops. It has shown in our performances.

"It's things like if the passes come in, you take it with the correct foot. As footballers we do get lazy sometimes and take the ball with our preferred foot to control it, but that split second of controlling it with your left foot and playing with your right can make all the difference in creating a chance or scoring a goal.

KYLE WALKER: fulsome praise for City manager Pep Guardiola

"There are also all sorts of things tactically. I don't get forward as much as I probably did at Tottenham but my defending has come on leaps and bounds here, where I have had to think a little bit more about my positioning and where I need to be on the football pitch.

"The first half of the season was where I had to really concentrate. I am still learning in training now.

"I spoke to Leroy Sane and he said it took him maybe eight or nine months before the penny dropped in training what he needs to do to get the better of people in the possession games."

"He put the faith in me to sign me and the first text message I sent him after he won the league was to thank him - thank him for bringing me here and for putting the trust in me to play for your team. He said never to thank him and it was us guys who did it ourselves. It makes you feel good."

Spurs Legend captured in Highland Park

FORMER SPURS legend Ossie Ardiles was left holding the baby this week at a lunch with Spurs fans at the Greyhound Bar & Grill on Figueroa Street.

For several years the Highland Park watering hole has been ground zero for local fans of the North London club, who frequently pack the place to the rafters to watch their beloved team play in the both domestic competition the Champions and Former League. Argentine international Ardiles (right), who was on a brief visit to the city, remains a cult hero among Spurs fans for his pivotal role in their successful teams of the early 1980s when the club won two FA Cups and a UEFA Cup trophy.
