Latest royal 'behaving himself,' says proud papa William

Prince William says his newborn baby is "behaving himself" so far but provided no updates about what the child will be named.

Everyone back home is "in good form, luckily," William said Wednesday during his first engagement since the baby's birth.

"Sleeping's going reasonably well," he said while meeting with dignitaries at a Westminster Abbey service honoring members of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corp on Wednesday.

Asked about how mother and child are doing, the prince responded: "They're very well, thanks."

William and his wife, Kate, the Duchess of Cambridge on Monday welcomed their third child. The 8-pound, 7-ounce young prince joins big brother, George, 4, and 2-year-old sister, Charlotte.

The couple have yet to reveal what they have named their baby, but an announcement was expected shortly. Both George and Charlotte's names were revealed just days after their birth.

At Westminster Abbey, William was joined by his brother along with Harry's fiancée, Meghan Markle, who are scheduled to get married May 19.

The trio were there as part of a service of commemoration and thanksgiving to mark ANZAC Day, which honors the first major military battle by Australian and New Zealand forces during World War I.

Seven hours after giving birth and looking immaculate in a vibrant red Jenny Packham dress with a white lace collar, Kate gave the world a cont. on page 2, col 1 first glimpse of their third child, a new Prince of Cambridge.

His name is likely to be announced imminnently. Standing on the steps of the private Lindo Wing at St Mary's Hospital, in Paddington, west London, Kate cradled her new son who was wrapped in a white lace shawl with a matching hat and moved his tiny fingers.

'thrice the worry'

Her outfit was a patriotic red and white as she made her first public appearance with her St George's Day baby.

Minutes after the brief photocall, the couple headed home with William emerging with his son in a car seat and holding Kate's hand.

"Thrice the worry now," a smiling William said, holding up three fingers.

Earlier, he had brought Prince George, four, and Princess Charlotte, who turns three on May 2, to see their new brother.

Asked how they felt, he said: "They're very happy. We're delighted."

Kate, 36, gave birth to the 8lb 7oz baby boy at 11.01am after being admitted to hospital just before 6am Monday in the early stage of labour.

"We didn't keep you waiting too long this time," William reporters afterwards.

Asked whether they had decided on a name, the second in line to the throne added: "You'll find out soon enough."

William, 35, is expected to spend much of the next fortnight at home on what is effectively paternity leave although palace officials declined to use the term.

A spokesman said: "He has got some meetings in the next week but for the next couple of weeks his focus will be on supporting his wife and family. He will be focusing on supporting the Duchess."

He and Kate already have the help of a Spanish nanny, Maria Teresa Turrion Borrallo, and have no plans to employ any extra help in the foreseeable future, according to Kensington Palace.

She has often dressed

George and Charlotte in Spanish clothes but for the new baby's first public appearance the Cambridges stuck to royal tradition.

His shawl from GH Hurt & Son Ltd, a company with longstanding connections to the Royal Family. Other royals who had the firm's shawls include William, George and Charlotte.

During their visit it was George, a future King, who looked apprehensive in front of a bank of photographers and television cameras, while confident Charlotte turned to wave at the press as she led the way up the steps holding her father's hand.

Kensington Palace said: "Their Royal Highnesses would like to thank all staff at the hospital for the care and treatment they have received."

Waiting royalists overjoyed as latest Prince makes his debut

THROUGH rain and shine, blistering heat and numbing cold, they waited...some as long as 15 days.

And on Monday it paid off for the devoted royal fans camped outside St Mary's Hospital in Paddington, west London, hoping to catch a glimpse of the new baby Prince. Many, wrapped in the Union Flag, were there long before the world's media arrived when the Duchess of Cambridge went into labour - on St George's Day. John Loughrey, 63, who is part of a group who have been camped outside the hospital, said he was delighted. "We are so pleased," he added. "We have been here for 15 days. I'm so pleased it's St George's Day."

'good for our country'

Mr. Loughrey, from Streatham, south London, said he plans to celebrate the birth with flags and fish and chips. "It didn't matter whether it was a boy or a girl as long as it's a healthy baby and a healthy mother," he added. "It's very good for our country and of course Her Majesty the Oueen."

Terry Hutt, who is another member of the group, was also thrilled. Mr Hutt, who will be celebrating his 83rd birthday at the end of the month, had been hoping to share his birthday, and said: "It's fantastic to have another newborn baby."

"If they were born on my birthday, I would have got a birthday cake."

royal memorabilia

Before the baby news broke, Maria Scott, 46, from Newcastle, added: "I think it's going to be a boy and I think it's going to be quick."

The group set up a makeshift camp, which was covered in royal memorabilia and a Union Flag tent.

When the moment came, town crier Tony Appleton, 81, unofficially announced the birth on the steps of the Lindo Wing, marking the moment by saying "God save the Queen".

Crowds also gathered at the gates of Buckingham Palace to glimpse the presentation of a bulletin, placed on a golden easel, to announce the arrival of the fifth in line to the throne. The ritual has been taking place since 1837 when the palace become official residence for the monarch. It was at 2.30pm that senior footman Olivia Smith and footman Heather McDonald headed across the gravel in front of the palace to a roar from the waiting crowd. The bulletin had details of the birth, including the 11.01am delivery time, along with the signatures of the senior medical team who cared for the Duchess.

'never forget the date'

It said: "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge was safely delivered of a son at 11.01 today. Her Royal Highness and her son are both doing well."

Luigi Ritacca, who was among the crowd and celebrating his 31st birthday, said he felt happy to share the day with baby royal. "I'll never forget the date, that's for sure," he said.

"Of course, it's stolen my thunder a little, but as long as they don't name him Luigi, I'll be fine," he added.

In а statement. Kensington Palace said: "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge was safely delivered of a son at 11:01hrs."

Donald Trump to 'meet the Queen' on flying visit

Donald Trump will visit the UK on Friday, 13 July, the White House and Downing Street have confirmed.

It will be his first visit to Britain since he was elected in 2016. He had been due to open the new US Embassy in London in February but cancelled the trip.

Theresa May's spokesman said the US President will hold bilateral talks with the Prime Minister, with further details to be "set out in due course".

The trip is only being billed as a "flying visit" rather than an official state one, which would have seen Mr Trump hosted by the Queen.

But the US leader will still reportedly meet Her Majesty on the 24hour trip, which will follow a NATO summit.

The visit will be held predominantly outside London, amid the fear of protests, The Telegraph reported.

The newspaper said Mr Trump will stay overnight and hold talks with Mrs May at her countryside retreat of Chequers.

Mr Trump had been urged earlier to stay away from London because there is a risk of "major protests, crime and disorder".

In a letter, six conservative groups who support the US President suggested he visit his "ancestral home" of Scotland instead.

Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson hailed the "fantastic" news of Mr Trump's visit.

"Looking forward to seeing our closest ally and friend on the GREATest visit ever," he wrote in a post on Twitter.

Windrush families to get UK citizenship for free, says Rudd

Frantic damage control after huge immigration blunder leaves Caribbean nationals who have lived in the UK for decades facing deportation

THE GOVERNMENT moved quickly this week to assure thousands of people from the so-called Windrush generation that they will be fast-tracked to formal British citizenship, with Amber Rudd announcing she is waiving the usual fees.

The pledge comes amid a ntional uproar over the plight of Caribbean nationals who came to Britain legally between 1948 and 1973 but have lost jobs and homes, been denied medical treatment and travel documents and been threatened with deportation. They were snared by laws aimed at illegal immigrants when they could not produce paperwork to prove their legal status.

Ms Rudd insisted to MPs on Monday that Labour as well as Tory failures had contributed to the problem. She declared: "I want to enable the Windrush generation to acquire the status they deserve – British citizenship – quickly, at no cost and with proactive assistance."

She will waive fees of at least £1,300 charged to those who want to apply for a passport, and children seeking British naturalisation, whether or not they have documentation. Citizenship applicants from the group will also be exempted from language and UK customs tests. Ms Rudd admitted: "We were too slow to realise there was a group of people that needed to be treated differently, and the system was too bureaucratic when these people were in touch."

The Tories' so-called "hostile environment" policy towards potential terrorists has come under focus as a result of the affair but Ms Rudd said successive governments have introduced measures to combat illegal immigration since the 1980s.

She said: "This is a failure by successive governments to ensure these individuals have the documentation they need and this is what we must urgently put right. Because it's abundantly clear that everyone considers people who came in the Windrush generation to be British."

People from the Caribbean stuck in their home countries while visiting for a holiday after decades of living in the UK will be helped to return to Britain as part of "putting this right".

Labour Shadow Home Secretary Diane Abbott said MPs and others had warned for years about the problems for Windrush migrants, but had been ignored. She said similar problems could be in the pipeline for other Commonwealth citizens falling foul of the Tory crackdown.

Labour former minister David Lammy stressed that every person in the Caribbean was there because of the European slave trade and Commonwealth citizens were in the UK because they were born under the British empire. Former children's TV presenter Baroness Benjamin, a Lib Dem peer who came to Britain as a child in 1960 from Trinidad, told the House of Lords: "The British public are furious at the Governmentcreated Windrush fiasco. It's a matter of national shame."

A NEW BEGINNING: The Empire Windrush docking at Tilbury in London in 1948. The boat brought the first of tens of thousands of Caribbean immigrants to the UK at the invitation of the British government, which was desperate to fill manpower shortages in both the NHS and London Transport

Two Italians charged over Anfield attack

Two Italians have been charged after a man was seriously injured in an attack before Liverpool's Champions League match with Roma on Tuesday.

Merseyside Police said Filippo Lombardi, 20, has been charged with violent disorder and inflicting grievous bodily harm against the 53-yearold on Tuesday evening.

Daniele Sciusco, 29, has been charged with violent disorder.

Both men have been kept in custody, and were due to appear at South Sefton Magistrates Court on Friday.

Sean Cox, a father of three from Dunboyne, Co Meath, suffered serious head injuries when he was assaulted outside Anfield stadium.

Bear named Hamish

The first polar bear born in the UK for 25 years has been called Hamish after more than 33,000 people took part in a public vote.

The male cub, now four months old, was born in a special enclosure at the Highland Wildlife Park near Kingussie in the week before Christmas.

His mother, Victoria, mated with Arktos - one of two male bears at the park.

The Royal Zoological Society of Scotland (RZSS) drew up a shortlist of four names - Hamish, Artor, MacKinnon and Poulsen.

Hamish was the runaway winner, claiming 21,000 of the 33,000 votes cast.

The park's head of living collections, Douglas Richardson, said it was "clear from the first day of voting" that the eventual winner would be most popular.

It was an "ideal" name for a "polar bear born in the Highlands", the zoological society said.

UK becomes 'staycation nation'

Homebody Brits shunning foreign vacations in record numbers, new figures show

BRITAIN has become a "staycation nation" with more than half the country planning to take their summer holiday in the UK this year, new figures have revealed.

With many families feeling the pinch, some 57 per cent of pinch, holidaymakers stay on home soil this tourist season. And the "staycation" craze is set to boost the UK economy by a whopping £31 billion. A traditional jaunt to the seaside remains a firm favourite, with 55 per cent flocking to Britain's beaches this year. For the fourth consecutive year, Cornwall tops the chart as Britain's top holiday destination. Devon takes second position and Bournemouth third. The UK's rural landscape is also seen as a jewel of our national heritage and is the second most popular destination for a summer holiday for many Britons. This year, a third of adults are taking a rural break, with the top destinations the Lake District, Scottish Highlands and the Cotswolds. City breaks are the third most popular type of holidays, with London, Edinburgh and Bath being top destinations this year.

The annual holiday report by Travelodge surveyed 3,000 British adults, and found the UK tourist industry is flourishing. Shakila Ahmed, of Travelodge, said: "Our annual holiday index confirms that we have become a staycation nation.

"More Britons than ever are exploring what makes Great Britain so great, which is great news for our economy.

"We are seeing more Britons booking threein-one holidays. This includes taking a city, rural and coastal break as part of a one-week holiday."

NO PLACE LIKE HOME: the 'Staycation' boom will inject £31bn into the UK economy this year

LELANT BEACH:,: Cornwall remains the number one choice for British holidaymakers

COTSWOLDS CHARM: a third of Brits will take trips to the countryside this year

Britons are also taking shorter breaks, with the average length of the summer staycation now just one week. But while choosing to remain on home soil, the study shows British holidaymakers are spoiling themselves, splashing out a little extra on their summer break. The average spend on this year's stay at home vacation will be £823 – an increase of 37 per cent from last year. It is also the highest spend since Travelodge started its annual holiday index in 2011, when the average spend was £399.

The research found 85 per cent of Brits now take three staycation breaks a year on average. The report also revealed that 38 per cent of Britons want to holiday in the UK rather than Europe in order to support their economy. The UK's top staycationers are from Newcastle, with 82 per cent from the city revealing they are taking a staycation break this summer, with the average spend at £762. People Wolverhampton took second place, with 77 per cent of residents spending £788 on their staycation summer break. Separate studies have revealed that our holiday choices tend to be governed by when we were born. Millennials - those aged between 16 and 34 – tend to still shun staycations. While most other age groups are increasingly taking advantage of the chance to holiday at home, figures from Visit England show this younger generation still prefer to go abroad. The tourist board statistics showed that, while more and more of us like to holiday at home, the number of millennials choosing a staycation has dropped by 1.4 million over the past decade.

US tycoon in daring £600m swoop for Wembley stadium

Auto parts billionaire seeks to turn national stadium into home for NFL team

An American billionaire has bid £600 million to buy Wembley stadium from the Football Association.

The audacious offer by Shahid Khan could make the 90,000-capacity national stadium home to an American football team.

The Pakistan-born tycoon has reached an outline agreement with Martin Glenn, chief executive of the Football Association (FA), was being discussed by the governing body's full board at press time Thursday.

The new Wembley stadium was opened in 2007 at a cost of almost £800 million, with the FA receiving £161 million of taxpayers' money for the project.

Mr Khan already owns Fulham Football Club in west London and the Florida-based Jacksonville Jaguars, which is reported to be considering using Wembley to host half the 16 games it plays each season.

The deal could lead to the England football team playing more matches at stadiums around the country and the FA Cup semi-finals being transferred to other neutral venues. The FA Cup final would remain at Wembley.

grassroots sports

The Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport, which helped fund the new stadium, said it wanted a guarantee that Wembley would "remain the home of English football for generations to come".

The FA is reported to have pledged to use the proceeds of the sale to invest in grassroots football, with reports that it could pay for 1,500 new artificial, full-sized pitches across England.

The association would retain control of the "Club Wembley" seats and the debenture scheme which has been estimated to be worth about £350 million and generates revenue of about £40 million a year.

Football's governing body said in a statement after news of the bid was broken by the Evening Standard:

"We can confirm that the FA has received an offer to buy Wembley stadium."

The current stadium opened in 2007 and replaced the privately owned venue that hosted the 1948 Olympics and the 1966 World Cup.

The FA received a £120 million Sport England grant from the National Lottery to buy the old stadium, £21 million from the London Development Agency and £20 million to improve surrounding infrastructure from the Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport.

It was unclear if any money would be returned to the public bodies but the FA was reported to be seeking an agreement that the grants would not have to be repaid if the proceeds of the Wembley sale went into grassroots sport.

Mr Khan, 67, who made his fortune in car parts industry, said on Thursday: "I understand the responsibility and accountability that would be ours to accept, and at all times we will be guided so the stadium and Wembley brand are both protected and enhanced.

"We will take excellent care of Wembley stadium in every respect, and at all times be good citizens and neighbours here in London and beyond.

'victory for everyone'

"I am grateful for all of my experiences and investments in London, and am privileged to have this opportunity with the FA to forge an agreement that I am certain will be a victory for everyone."

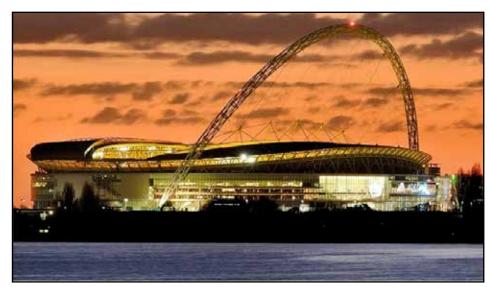

Mr Khan arrived in the United States aged 16 with just $500 in his pocket. His net worth is now estimated by Forbes at $7.2billion (£5.2bn), placing him among the 250 richest people in the world.

He stressed that the Jacksonville Jaguars' matches at Wembley were vital to the financial stability of the team. The Jaguars have played regular home games at Wembley in each of the past five seasons and will continue to do so at least through to the 2020 season.

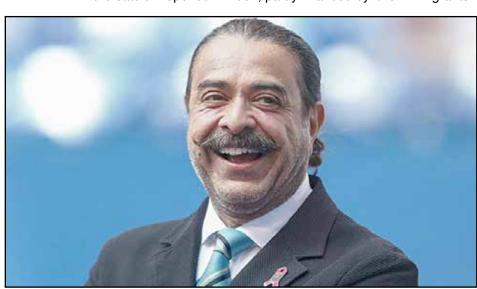

'very ambitious'

"If my ownership interests were to include Wembley stadium, it would protect the Jaguars' position in at a time London when other NFL teams are understandably becoming more interested in this great city," he said.

Mr Khan sought to reassure to reassure supporters of Fulham FC, which he bought in 2013, that the Wembley bid would not mean the club leaving its Craven Cottage ground on the banks of the Thames in west London.

Slaviša Jokanović, the Fulham manager, said today: "Mr Khan told me about his plan a year and a half ago. He's very ambitious."

A Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport spokesman said: "We would like to hear more detail about the way in which such a deal would help the development of the game in this country from the grassroots up. We also want to be reassured that Wembley would remain the home of English football for generations to come."

A Sport England spokeswoman said: "Sport England invested £120 million of National Lottery money into the development of Wembley stadium. We look forward to hearing more detail about how such a deal would work and whether it would benefit grassroots sport."

The NFL has a deal with Tottenham Hotspur football club for two games a year to be played its new White Hart Lane stadium in north London for the next 10 years.

The NFL said in a statement: "We are very happy for Shad Khan and the Jacksonville Jaguars. The potential purchase of Wembley stadium is a further powerful sign of their commitment to the UK and their vision to help us grow the sport. Having stadium options in London has always been critical to the NFL and, in tandem with our ten-vear partnership with Tottenham Hotspur, this new relationship would allow for even greater flexibility in scheduling future NFL games in London."

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: With Mars and Saturn visiting mighty Earth sign Capricorn, there's a lot of powerful energy with you now. While this can appear to some as a power trip it's is up to you to figure it all out. You have a golden opportunity to manifest good stuff.

TAURUS: Your boss planet Venus is in your life currently and she can bring up powerful situations for review. With this knowledge be ready to take a deep breath if confronted with any negative feedback. Remember; he who hesitates is lost.

GEMINI: You are coming to the end of a tiresome, roller-coaster of difficult times in some areas. This coming week ahead will bring resolutions and you will come to terms with the fact that you are not always honest with yourself about how you feel.

CAN CER: You will gradually start to feel much more in control of your overall life this coming week or so. It's time for you to let go of what you need to from the past. Venus is in a positive place for you and is feeling mellow and will help you to relax and enjoy life.

LEO: You will be feeling very upbeat and ready to do anything you want. You have positive planets assisting you. However, if you are dealing with anything in a personal area you would be wise to keep your words or thoughts to yourself.

VIR GO: Starting this week ahead you will not be lacking in motivation to complete or indeed start anything productive. This is a perfect time also for shedding old skins and letting go of anything (or anybody) who is not for helping your highest and best good.

LIBRA: Your boss Venus is visiting your area of foreign affairs. This can bring up thoughts and people from the past. The fact that your boss planet Venus is in a earth sign currently is also important as this can be a sensitive time for you. Be positive in thought and action.

SCORPIO: With Mars and Pluto your power bosses in your career area this is the time to put anything not connected to this on a back burner. Before this next week is over life will be moving forward in most areas. While you still have unfinished business in relationships, surprises indeed are on the way.

SAGITTARIUS: You could be offered some new work or some other opportunity this coming month. Saturn is still in your money area and since now he is about to travel backwards you would be smart to watch your outgoing cash. This area should improve by mid month.

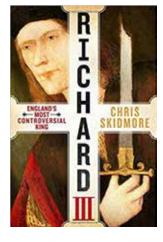

CAPRICORN: Foreign affairs and distant past situations are much on your mind. This is all well and good if you can afford to follow the call. Most likely it is your subconscious need to avoid any more of the recent stressful situations. This is not going to last forever.

AQUARIUS: You are may be struggling with relationship problems with someone in your life. This is not as it appears to you. It is entirely possible you have not been aware of the whole truth of the situation. It is best you stay detached from the outcome.

PISCES: With Venus in your cousin sign now it's time to learn to leave the past few weeks behind and know you did your best. Now it is possible to spend time doing what you enjoy - being out and about socially with those you love to be with.

Richard III: has history been unkind?

Exclusive interview with author Chris Skidmore on his biography of Richard III, the king found under the parking lot, who is most infamously accused of killing the princes in the tower

"The rise of the Tudors could not be properly understood unless you also looked at the downfall of Richard III, England's most controversial king," says Richard III author Chris Skidmore.

"When I looked at what had been written about Richard, there wasn't actually a comprehensive modern narrative biography of the king. The last author who attempted to do this was Paul Murray Kendall in 1955. There have been so many discoveries in the archives since then, not to mention the discovery of Richard's body in 2012. In the UK, Richard III has been consistently nominated as the most interesting character in British history. So, I thought there was no better time to write a complete and comprehensive life of the king for the twenty-first century."

Richard immortalized by Shakespeare's play, but was he really as portrayed, a physically murderer? deformed In 2012 his skeleton was discovered under a parking lot in Leicester, fittingly enough under a parking spot labeled "R". As a historian Skidmore writes the authoritative biography of Richard III, a man praised as a saint and cursed as a usurper

The War of the Roses between the Yorks and Lancasters was raging from the time Richard is born. To keep the crown did he kill his nephews, the princes in the tower? Or was it clever propaganda, fake news by the Tudors? Richard became king under suspicious circumstances. And he was the last English king to die on the battlefield at Bosworth field.

"My last book, The Rise of the Tudors, focused on how the Tudor family rose from relative obscurity in Wales to challengers to the throne," savs Skidmore. "I looked at the remarkable young career of Henry Tudor, who defeated Richard III at the battle of Bosworth in 1485. Henry was exiled in France from a young age, but then came back to seize the throne. The English nobility turned against Richard III after he had decided to take the throne from his nephew Edward V, one of the princes in the tower."

Skidmore's interest in the history of his country started as a child, with his local church and its history spanning centuries. His Westminster overlooks Hall, built in fourteenth century and that hosted coronation the banquets of Richard III and Henry VIII.

Skidmore says there are thousands of documents in the National Archives in Kew, near London, that have yet to be cataloged, and that some remain unread.

"I love looking for new material in the map room there," says Skidmore. "I order up a box at a time. It's a case of going through, paper by paper. Like panning for gold, but it's worth it for the nuggets of new information. There is obviously all the secondary reading and primary source material that has to be covered, but I believe the whole point of writing a new history book is that you must have something new to say, and ideally new information to publish."

It took Skidmore four years to research and write this book. At the same time he's been a government minister, fought two general elections, married and had two children.

Richard III is Skidmore's fourth book. He wrote his first book at age 26, ten years ago, a biography on Edward VI, then Death and the Virgin Queen about Elizabeth I and her relationship with Robert Dudley, then Rise of the Tudors. Richard III is shortlisted for Best Non-Fiction Book at the Parliamentary Book Awards hosted by the Publishers Association. Death and the Virgin Queen was commended for the Johnathan Rhys Llewellyn Prize. Richard

BOOK CORNER with Gabrielle Pantera

III has yet to be optioned for film or TV. Death and the Virgin Queen was made into the documentary The Virgin Queen's Fatal Affair, that won a Royal Television Society Award for Best Documentary Specialist Factual.

Skidmore is currently writing a book on Henry VII. Skidmore is based in London and Bristol, and is the MP for Kingswood, South Gloucestershire. He was born in Bristol, where his family is still based.

BRITS IN LA

Royal Wedding: Amid the chaos, some welcome continuity

The (Dis)United Kingdom seems to be in a right two and eight at the moment.

The powers that be are still faffing around with EU negotiations and have now even managed to mess up the lives of people who emigrated to the UK 50 years ago. The Windrush generation are innocent victims caught up in the current Brexit crossfire. They were invited to Britain after World War II to help rebuild the country, travelling at first from the West Indies on a ship called the Empire Windrush, which then became a symbol of British Caribbean history. We desperately needed their labour in the NHS and London Transport. They were given citizenship but somehow over the years the Home Office 'mislaid' their records.

This only came to light because the government recently required the NHS and employers to do the job of Border Patrol and check everyone's papers. It's not something you expect to get asked when you've been living and working in a country for 50+ years. It's all such a disgrace, it makes the 1980s TV show 'Yes, Minister' look like a documentary....although the USA isn't doing a much better either...

Thank goodness for babies being born. I know some of you aren't fans of the Royal family but at least, for the most part, they can be a pleasant distraction.

Some of you may be interested to know that Princess Charlotte (the daughter of Kate & William) also made history on the day of the birth. As for the first time in 900 years, the newborn prince will not jump ahead of his elder sister in the line of succession. This is due to a change in the law back in 2013. The amendment only impacts those born after 2011, so it won't affect Princess Anne, even though she is older than Andrew and Edward.

Royal celebrations are a great excuse for the community to get together for a knees up. I'm really looking forward to our Wedding Viewing party at The Cat & Fiddle. I'm not so fussed about the actual marriage but do enjoy us all coming together. It's especially nice when we are synchronized with our family and friends back in Britain, it really does make them feel slightly less far away. The party will go on all night (nuptials are at 3am, the early hours of May 19th), pajamas are welcomed but not required. Tickets are available to purchase through The Cat & Fiddle Pub via Eventbrite. You can find full details either or on our Facebook page or at www.britsin.la

A massive thank to our event sponsors, immigration firm Beltran Brito Casamayor LLP and also Air New Zealand who will be also giving away a pair of Roundtrip tickets to London on the night!

If you have any questions or comments you can drop us a line at info@britsin.la

Have a great week. Cheers! Eileen

Meet A Member: Victoria Parks-Murphy

Meet Victoria Parks-Murphy from Dublin/ London who moved to LA four years ago to pursue home ownership!

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I'm originally from the States, a small town in Illinois called Galesburg, but I spent 15 years living in Dublin and then London. After my son was born I had a yearning to come back to the States and be closer to family after living abroad for so many years, however small town life wasn't really going to be a good fit for my husband and me. He was gaining lots of success with his TV writing career and was spending more time in LA on work trips. I was working a corporate sales job for Apple in London at the time and was starting to burn out due to all the travel. We were desperately trying to buy a home in the Ealing area and just kept hitting obstacles every time we tried to buy something. After a trip to LA my husband pitched the idea of a move, complete with a web presentation of homes we could afford to live in that had large back gardens and swimming pools. I had never been to LA before but it looked amazing. I've always been one for an adventure so I quit my steady job, we packed up the cat and the baby and headed to LA! The first day I had ever visited LA was the day we moved here! We were so lucky to have wonderful friends here who loaned us their home for several months while we took time to buy our house. The first year felt like a constant holiday and we haven't looked back since.

What do you miss most from home?

We have wonderful friends in London, but we still get back once a year for regular visits, which is great. I also miss shopping on Regent Street. My office was right in Oxford Circus and on my lunch break I would often have a quick wander through H&M, Liberty, Esprit or one of the shops on Carnaby St.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

LA was magic from the moment we arrived. The mountains, the sunshine, the palm trees...of course we've settled more into the reality now. There is the high cost of living, traffic and the totally messed up healthcare system. One thing I've realized living in three countries over the years is that you'll always have trade-offs no matter where you are. You just have to prioritize what matters to you most. Those things change over time so who knows where we'll end up, but we are still loving the LA life right now.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

Iloved the public transport system in London. I know Londoners complain endlessly about it, but after living in LA you have to admit that the underground is a minor miracle. We didn't own a car for the first four years we lived in London. We did buy one eventually, but the fact that it was possible to exist without car payments, insurance and petrol costs... Distant memory these days!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

There are so many! We love Blue Jam cafe in Sherman Oaks. It's only a block from our house so we walk up there almost every weekend for brunch. If you've little ones I recently discovered Hugs". "Giggles n' There's one in Glendale and one in Thousand Oaks. It's an indoor play center where you can actually get a GLASS OF WINE!!! (I believe that bottles of wine should be standard issue at play

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Plan carefully. You'll end spending more money in the first few months than you initially plan on. Research housing costs and where you want to live. I know everyone wants to be in the hip areas $of\,Hollywood, Silver\,Lake$ and Los Feliz but I have to say that the Valley has been an amazing place to be while raising my two sons. Great restaurants, population, diverse affordable housing and good public schools what's not to like? We've also carefully constructed our lives within a five mile radius of our home so that we don't go mad sitting in traffic.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

During our brief time living in Hollywood I did cling to Bette Davis' famous words of wisdom about the best way for a young woman to get into Hollywood - "Take Fountain"

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

Since moving to LA I've changed careers and now work in the real estate industry for Berkshire Hathaway Home Services. I've loved helping other expats navigate the home buying and mortgage process so they can realize their dreams of home ownership just like we did. You can find me at www.lahomes101. com or on Facebook: Victoria Parks-Murphy Real Estate @lahomes101 I have a lot of great videos on mortgages, interest rates and pre-approval so be sure to check it out!

Salah scoops PFA gong

Liverpool forward Mo Salah has won the Professional Footballers' Association (PFA) player of the year award for the 2017-2018 season.

The prize was awarded to Salah Sunday night by his fellow Premier League players, beating other big names such as David Silva, Kevin de Bruyne, David de Gea and Harry Kane.

"This is a great honour, I'm very happy to win it," Salah said in a response.

The 25-year-old Egyptian forward has scored 31 goals in 34 matches this season so far, tying him with Alan Shearer, Cristiano Ronaldo and Luis Suarez for the record.

With four games left, Salah has the opportunity to become the sole record holder for most goals scored in one Premier League season.

It is Salah's first season at Liverpool after he transferred from AS Roma last year for more than $51m, making him the most expensive player ever bought by Liverpool.

Salah, who also plays for Egypt's national team, has quickly become a darling of the English football community.

His prolific debut has season led to comparisons with Suarez, who moved from Liverpool to Barcelona in 2014 after helping the Merseyside club come close to winning the league title with 31 goals in 33 matches.

Currently, Liverpool lie third in the Premier behind League, Manchester City Manchester United.

During Sunday's award ceremony, the PFA also awarded the prizes for best young player and female players.

Leroy Sane Manchester City scooped the award for best young player.

And Salah celebrated his award in fine style Tuesday night another astonishing performance as Liverpool beat Roma 5-2 in the first leg of their Champions League semi final

On a memorable European night at Anfield, the Egyptian scored twice and made two more goals as Liverpool tore through the Italian defence. Salah now has 43 goals in 47 appearances this season - a record that does not look out of place next to the elite attacking players in the game: Lionel Messi, Cristiano Ronaldo and Nevmar.

And there have been calls for him to be the next winner of the most prestigious individual accolade in world football.

"You've got to give him the Ballon d'Or," former Wales midfielder Robbie Savage told BBC Radio 5 live following Salah's second goal on Tuesday. "He is that good.

Former Liverpool striker Robbie Fowler, who was nominated for the award in 1996, described Salah as a "phenomenal player".

"The form and confidence he's in at the minute, to have the class and style to score those goals just speaks measures of the man," Fowler told BBC Radio 5

Ten man Atleti punish Gunners

EUROPA LEAGUE: Antoine Griezmann punished Arsenal's lax defence late on as 10man Atletico Madrid salvaged a 1-1 draw from the Europa League semifinal first leg at Emirates Stadium Thursday night.

The visitors were on the back foot for almost the entire game after defender Sime Vrsaljko was dismissed for two yellow cards in the first 10 minutes.

With Atletico's furious manager Diego Simeone sent to the stands shortly afterwards, the Spanish side survived unscathed to half-time with Alexandre Lacazette clipping the post with a half-volley in the hosts' best chance.

Lacazette nodded in Jack Wilshere's cross just after the hour to apparently edge the Gunners closer to a Europa League final send-off for outgoing manager Arsene Wenger. But with eight minutes remaining Griezmann

latched onto a long ball forward, shrugged off Laurent Koscielny and stabbed into the net at the second attempt for an away goal to swing the tie Atletico's way going into the second leg in Madrid next Thursday.

Arsenal's fans were left ruing a familiar combination of wasteful finishing and costly lapses in concentration as the teams departed to a muted response in Wenger's final home European game.

Their team now must breach Atletico an that defence has conceded just four times at home in La Liga this season to have any hope of extending Wenger's 22-season spell in charge to the final on 16 May.

In contrast to Arsenal, Madrid's Atletico defensive discipline has served them well in recent continental campaigns, grinding out victory in four of their five European semifinals over the past nine seasons.

But the Spaniards' usual pragmatism deserted them as they self-combusted in the opening 13 minutes.

Croatian right-back Vrsaliko was booked as he caught Jack Wilshere late in the second minute and, instead of showing the requisite caution, blundered into Lacazette with his studs up eight minutes later.

in the So early contest, Atletico may have expected referee Clement Turpin to limit punishment to a stern and final warning.

But the 35-year-old Frenchman judged the challenge rather than the occasion and showed Vrsaljko justified a second yellow.

Simeone was exasperated by decision and incensed by Turpin opting not to book Hector Bellerin shortly after. The Argentine was dispatched to the stands after aiming a stream of invective at the official.

If any side is suited to surviving such a

ANTOINE GRIEZMANN: late leveller for the visitors Thursday night precarious situation though, it is Atletico.

Midfielder Thomas Partey slotted back into defence, forward Griezmann dropped deeper and their whole side set about absorbing Arsenal's pressure and running down the clock.

The visitors rode their luck at times, with Lacazette grazing the post with an awkward half-volley, but had chances of their own in the first half with Griezmann thumping a fierce shot straight at David Ospina.

As Simeone impatiently in a gangway high above and his assistant German Burgos orchestrated from the sidelines, their threatened to throttle the life out of the game.

The tightest defence in La Liga - with only 18 goals conceded in 34 games - was finally undone as Wilshere dug out a cross and Lacazette hung above Lucas Hernandez to score his 16th of the season.

With Griezmann lurking though, Atletico always retained the power to land a sucker punch.

The France international was played onside by dawdling Nacho Monreal before he hustled Koscielny into a swiped, unsuccessful clearance and applied the finish to spark delirium in the away section.

England's Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain will miss the World Cup this summer after injuring a knee during Liverpool's Champions League tie against Roma.

The 24-year-old midfielder was taken off on a stretcher in the 15th minute of Tuesday's match at Anfield after challenging Aleksandar Kolarov.

He had a Wednesday which revealed a knee ligament

"Absolutely devastated to have picked up this injury at such a crucial time," Oxladesaid Chamberlain.

He also said the injury "pales in comparison" to the news of a man being left in a critical condition after being attack outside Anfield before the match.

It is understood Oxlade-Chamberlain spoke to England manager Gareth Southgate to inform him about the injury.

"The extent of the injury means Oxlade-Chamberlain is set to miss the remainder of the campaign for Liverpool, as well as the World Cup in Russia with England," Liverpool said in a statement.

"Oxlade-Chamberlain begin now rehabilitation programme to enable him to reach full fitness again as soon as possible, returning to action next season."

The Reds added there would be "no specific timescale" on the former Arsenal player's return.

Oxlade-Chamberlain, capped 32 times, joined the Anfield side from the Gunners last summer for £35m and has made 41 appearances in all competitions, scoring five goals.

Liverpool beat Roma 5-2 in the first leg of their Champions League semi-final tie, with the return leg in Italy next Wednesday.

England will face Belgium, Panama and Tunisia in Group G at the World Cup, which begins on 14 June.
