Newlyweds opt for Cotswolds bolthole

■ Harry and Meghan sign lease on exclusive Oxfordshire retreat

NEWLYWEDS Prince Harry and Meghan Markle have secured a new weekend retreat in the Cotswolds, it emerged this week.

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex, as they are now officially titled, have quietly signed a two-year lease on a luxury home on the Great Tew Estate in the Cotswolds, a 90-minute drive from London.

The pair will spent their weekends at the property as they wait out the renovations at their centuries-old Nottingham Cottage at Kensington Palace, said a source, adding that Queen Elizabeth II will "most likely give them a house as a wedding present as she did with William and Kate ... but whichever one they get will need an update."

Their weekend home, called WestfieldLarge, is on the same verdant 4,000-acre grounds as Soho House's famed Soho Farmhouse and David and Victoria Beckham's country home.

"Meghan loves the Cotswolds and fell in love with the estate the first time she went," the source was quoted as saying in multiple media outlets.

"They recently had security cameras installed around the perimeter."

Harry, 33, and Meghan, 36, spent the weekend before their May 19 wedding at the property. The pair, who tied the knot at St George's Chapel at Windsor Castle, will return to the estate after their East African honeymoon, a location they picked because they "both want to be somewhere hot and sunny for two weeks," according to the source.

"She's excited to move into another property on the royal estate," the source adds. "She can't wait to decorate it like her own, where she feels like it's her home."

The area is known for its well appointed modernized country homes which feature all the benefits of English country life but within easy distance of the capital. Great Tew is known to have a thriving village community with excellent services including a village shop, cafe, cricket club, primary school and a 500-year-old pub.

The couple certainly seem to have wrong-footed the world's media with their honeymoon destination.

It was widely reported that the pair had chosen the African country of Namibia, but reports late this week suggested they had surprised pundits by travelling to the clean, fresh air of the Rocky Mountains in Alberta, Canada.

TMZ reported the pair are staying at the Outlook Cabin, which is part of the Fairmont Jasper Park Lodge complex, located in the Unesco World Heritage Site of Jasper National Park.

Their decision may have influenced by the couple's royal heritage. The Outlook Cabin is also known as the Royal Retreat and hosted the Queen and Prince Philip in 2005

MPs call for free vote on abortion reform in Ulster

■ Landmark vote in Republic spurs calls for similar change north of the border

Theresa May is under still illegal in Britain pressure to defy her DUP backers and give MPs a free vote to allow an abortion referendum in Northern Ireland.

Anne Milton, the skills minister, became the first member of the government to support the move, which is also privately backed by Penny Mourdaunt, the equalities minister.

Senior government sources said that the idea had also "not been ruled out" by Karen Bradley, the Northern Ireland secretary, and several other cabinet members.

Downing Street insisted it had no plans to offer MPs a vote and that the matter should be left to the Northern Ireland assembly. However, with the assembly suspended, MPs could table an amendment to the government's domestic abuse bill due to be published this year and offer voters in Northern Ireland the chance to align with Britain on the issue.

Labour said that it would support the move and the suspension of the assembly should not mean that women "have to suffer in its absence". Abortion is technically under the 1861 Offences Against the Persons Act. The 1967 Abortion Act, which does not have force in Northern Ireland, made abortion legal as long as it was signed off by two doctors and there was a threat of "permanent" damage to the physical or mental health of mother or child.

'same rights'

After Ireland took an historic steep last Friday by voting to create a more liberal abortion system, several former Conservative ministers said it was time to look again at the issue in the UK.

Maria Miller, chairwoman of the women and equalities committee, said: "The people of Northern Ireland deserve to have their voices heard through a referendum in the absence of a democratically-elected assembly. No one should deny [them] the opportunity to have the same rights on abortion as the rest of the UK."

Justine Greening, the former education secretary, said: "It's now time for debate and action to achieve the rights for Northern Irish women that we have as women across the rest of the UK."

Ms Milton told the that Northern Ireland's abortion laws were "an anomaly" and that if there were to be a free vote in parliament she would vote in favour of liberalisation.

Any attempt by the government to give MPs a free vote on the issue would be strongly opposed by the DUP on whose votes the government relies for its majority. One government source said that abortion was a "real red line" for the party and it would do everything it could to stop it.

'settled will'

Ian Paisley, a DUP MP, said Northern Ireland should not be bullied into accepting abortion on demand.

"The settled will of the people has been to afford protections to the unborn life and protect the life of the mother," he said.

Arlene Foster, the DUP leader, said: "Friday's referendum has no impact upon the law in Northern Ireland. The legislation governing abortion is a devolved matter and it is for the Northern Ireland assembly to debate and decide such issues."

US Steel tariffs 'absurd'

Trump fires first shots in trade war with allies

US tariffs on steel and aluminium imports from allies in Europe North America "disappointing" are and "absurd", the UK trade secretary said on Thursday.

Liam Fox questioned the US decision to impose a 25% tax on steel and a 10% tax on aluminium from the EU, Mexico and Canada, from midnight Friday, US time.

UK Steel said the tariffs will damage not only the UK steel sector but also the US economy.

The EU said it would retaliate with tariffs on products such as US

The tariffs apply to a wide range of steel and aluminium products such as sheets, plates, bars, pipes and "semifinished" products.

The new tariffs will make steel and aluminium from the UK more expensive in the US, which could lead to a decline in demand for it - potentially affecting thousands of jobs.

It comes as the sector is still recovering from the 2016 steel crisis caused by oversupply and slack demand.

According to UK Steel - the body which represents steel producers across the country - 7% of steel exports go to the US, worth £360m.

The organisation's director Gareth Stace said UK steel producers were "going to be hit hard".

US President Donald Trump justified the tariffs on national security grounds, arguing that global oversupply of steel and aluminium, China, driven by threatened American steel and aluminium producers.

Mr Fox said: "It's very disappointing that the United States has chosen to apply steel and aluminium tariffs... all in the name of national security.

"In the case of the United Kingdom, where we send steel to the United States that is vital for their businesses and their defence industry, it is patently absurd."

About 31,000 people across the UK work in steel production and many more in the supply chain. There are steel mills in the North East, East Midlands, Yorkshire, and Wales.

Tata Steel, which employs 8,500 people across the UK, has called for "swift and robust action" in response to the steel tariffs.

More than 7,000 Tata workers are employed in Wales, including about 4.000 in Port Talbot - the largest steelworks in the UK.

exports aluminium to the US are tiny, but in March the UK's Aluminium Federation said it was concerned about the impact 10% tariffs could have.

President Giles Ashmead said: "While the US is not a major export market for UKproduced aluminium, indiscriminate tariffs are a hindrance to free trade, and do little to secure a 'level playing field' for global commerce."

England GUARANTEED to have a presence in World Cup Final

...after all, the turf is made in Cumbria

THIS summer's World Cup final will be on plastic grass for the first time in history – and England are guaranteed to play a part.

It is all because the surface at the Luzhniki Stadium in Moscow, where the match is to be staged on July 15, is one of six Russia 2018 venues using a "hybrid" pitch made up of real and synthetic grass made by a British firm.

The new surfaces were developed in Cumbria and installed at the national team's training centre St George's Park in 2015, giving Gareth Southgate's men plenty of practice on the turf.

If England finish top of their group in the first round, they will have to play two knockout stage matches on hybrid pitches in order to reach the final.

Their final group stage match will also be played on one of the new pitches.

George Mullan, chief executive of developers SIS Pitches, said: "Having trained on it, it is going to help the England squad."

The synthetic surface was developed by SIS Pitches at its headquarters in Maryport, Cumbria.

Mr Mullan added: "It's the first time a World Cup final has been played on anything but all-natural grass and we're honoured to have been chosen to instal it.

"We have come so far to get this system to the pinnacle of world sport.

"The quality of SIS grass will ensure the pitches are resilient in all conditions. It's much more durable and stable than the pitches of the old days.

"I'm sure the 2018 World Cup final is one we will all remember."

The pitches consist of 95 per cent natural turf reinforced with synthetic fibres which are stitched into the ground to a depth of seven inches using a laser-guided system.

It took just seven days to instal the Luzhniki Stadium surface with "injection roller" machines worth £500,000. A special air system has also been installed which can remove excess water from the playing surface in just three seconds via underpitch pipes that can blow hot or cold air depending on the climate.

The synthetic grass was made in Dundee, Scotland, at a factory before being shipped to Russia.

Former FA head groundsman Alan Ferguson will be in charge of maintaining the £1million Luzhniki Stadium pitch during the tournament. Ipswich-based Mr Ferguson will be in charge of a sixstrong ground staff team including two other Britons and three Russians.

Mr Ferguson was formerly in charge of the Wembley Stadium pitch and the turf at St George's Park, where the England team are training ahead of the World Cup.

The Luzhniki Stadium will host the opening ceremony and the opening game, along with a semifinal match and the World Cup final.

The hybrid surfaces have also been installed at the Spartak Stadium in Moscow, the Mordovia Arena in Saransk, the Kaliningrad Stadium, the Rostov Arena and the Cosmos Arena in Samara.

In the group stages alone, 30 of the 32 countries taking part in the tournament will play on the revolutionary pitches. The 2018 World Cup begins on June 14. England, captained by Tottenham Hotspur star Harry Kane, begin their quest for glory in Group G alongside Belgium, Tunisia and Panama.

England have been training at St George's Park this week ahead of their final warm-up games as the countdown to the tournament continues.

The Three Lions face Nigeria at Wembley on Saturday and Costa Rica at Elland Road in Leeds on Thursday before heading to their base in Russia on June 12.

FEVER PITCH: "England going out early is not the big issue it once was."

Pubs prepare for World Cup bonanza

England may end up making their usual early exit from the World Cup, but that doesn't bother the boss of one of Britain's biggest pub companies.

Simon Longbottom, chief executive of the Stonegate Pub Company, said that the preponderance of foreign players in the Premiership meant that England fans would continue to watch the games right through the tournament.

"England going out early is not the big issue it once was," he said.
"People like to follow
Premiership players.
Once they get over the mourning, fans will follow the players they know who are playing for other countries."

Stonegate, which runs 700 pubs and bars, including the Walkabout and Sports Bar & Grill chains, is forecasting a boost of more than £6 million to its sales during the tournament. Mr Longbottom said that the company had invested heavily in its sports offering at about 450 of venues to attract fans for big sporting events, installing some stadiumstyle seating, serving "beer towers" and food platters. Its pubs offer booking options and table service to keep customers happy and to maximise

"People want to be served quickly," he said. "They don't want to queue at the bar or wait for service during the action. In the old days, you just showed the game and that was enough."

British far right leader jailed for breaking gag order on Leeds grooming gang case

FAR-right activist Tommy Robinson has been jailed for 13 months for potentially derailing a long-running trial by live-streaming on Facebook an hour-long diatribe outside a court.

A judge told Robinson, who appeared in court under his real name, Stephen Yaxley-Lennon, that his actions might result in the abandoning of the sensitive case. A retrial would cost the taxpayer "hundreds and hundreds of thousands of pounds", the court was told.

The case is subject to a reporting ban in the UK but not elsewhere, and it has since emerged that the case involved a 'grooming gang' of Muslim immigrants who targeted vulnerable young girls across Yorkshire for sexual abuse.

Robinson, 35, of Wilstead in Bedford, was arrested on Friday after naming defendants in the case, the charges they face and details of the allegations. He also filmed defendants and confronted them as they were entering Leeds crown court. The footage was viewed a quarter of a million times.

reporting restrictions

Robinson has repeatedly claimed grooming gangs are rampant across the UK and that local authorities are reluctant to prosecute for fear of being labeled anti-Islamic.

Robinson, who founded the far-right English Defence League, pleaded guilty to contempt of court. His barrister said that he felt "deep regret". A strict order remains in place that temporarily bans publication or broadcasting details of the case. At the time of the incident a jury was considering its verdicts after a six-week trial.

Reporting restrictions were also placed on details of Robinson's sentence but were lifted after a legal challenge on Monday. Following his arrest his supporters protested outside the gates of Downing Street and on social media.

Judge Geoffrey Marson, QC, said that the original order restricting reporting of the case had been made to ensure that nothing prejudiced the trial. He added: "He [Robinson] was expressing his views. Everyone understands the right to freedom of speech but there are responsibilities and obligations."

The judge said: "Not only was it a very long video but I regard it as a serious aggravating feature that he was encouraging others to share it and it had been shared widely. That is the nature of the contempt."

Matthew Harding, for Robinson, said that he would be in danger of being killed or seriously assaulted by other inmates while in custody and that there had been "a price on his head" during his last prison term.

Robinson previously been found guilty of contempt of court for filming outside another rapegang trial, one involving four Muslim men at Canterbury Crown Court in 2017. On that occasion Robinson was given a three-month prison sentence, which was suspended for a period of 18 months. Which meant he would be free so long as he did not repeat the offence.

Abramovich granted Israeli citizenship

CHELSEA FC owner Roman Abramovich has been granted Israeli citizenship after flying to Tel Aviv, it emerged this week.

The Russian tycoon had been facing long delays in renewing his British visa, which expired last month. Israel's interior ministry confirmed the offer of citizenship to Abramovich, 51, who was interviewed last week at the Israeli embassy in Moscow.

An Israeli spokesman said: "He filed a request to receive an immigration permit, his documents were checked according to the law of return, and he was indeed found eligible."

Israel grants citizenship to any Jewish person wishing to move there and a passport can be issued within hours. Those with an Israeli passport are also permitted to enter the UK without a visa for short stays, although they may require a visa if they intend to work. It is believed that Abramovich would have been required to make disclosures over his finances if he wanted his visa to be renewed.

Abromovich's failure to secure a new tier 1 visa, which allows anyone who invests more than £2million in the British economy to stay for 40 months, comes as relations between Moscow and London are at an all-time low.

Meet A Member: Jennie Morton

Meet Iennie Morton from London, who moved to LA two and a half years ago to develop the field of Performing Arts Medicine and to provide traditional Osteopathic treatment on the West Coast. Performing Arts Medicine is the equivalent Sports Medicine for performing artists, targeted, providing specialized healthcare for performance-related injuries.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

After living for a while in New York City, the West Coast presented the greatest need for coverage of Performing Arts Medicine specialists in the US. After many requests from colleagues to come to LA to help to plug this gap and to start building a Performing Arts Medicine network in LA, I decided to make the move. The weather was an added motivating factor in the decision! My work in treating performancerelated injuries and in providing performance coaching for the physical and emotional aspects of role preparation has found a good home in the City of Angels.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss the proximity of family and friends, and a nice piece of back bacon!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression of LA was that it was huge, spread out, and disconnected. However, I have now found that my connections that reach from Orange County, to Downtown, to West Hollywood, to Pasadena, Santa Monica/ Venice, to the Valley, and beyond are among some of the strongest I have experienced. Traffic is crazy, but I feel I have friends wherever I chose to travel on the LA map.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

The biggest difference is figuring out the geography. "Popping over" to see a friend computing involves some major algorithms! In London, I would just jump on the tube and let public transport do the work. Plus, I now consider anything below 70 degrees as chilly - that was a warm summer's day in London!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I live in South Pasadena the City of Trees. I feel that this area is like a little slice of Europe amongst the concrete craziness of LA. Small winding streets, local shops where they know you by sight, and the stunning Huntington Gardens, an incredible oasis of flora and fauna, right on my doorstep. All just a short hop from the bustle of Downtown.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Pack your dreams, your favorite possessions from home, some SPF, and get yourself here. If you have a plan that is based in passion, then there is no better place to nurture your potential.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

The Brits in LA page has been great in providing some practical tips like how to renew your passport, where to buy those favorites from home etc., but most of all it's the wonderful spirit of support that comes from knowing that there are others out there trying to figure out this crazy city too. It keeps you connected to your tribe!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

I am a UK Registered Osteopath (with a Masters in Psychology) providing support and treatment for a wide range of conditions from musculoskeletal/ biomechanical disorders, to immune, respiratory, digestive, and nervous system imbalances. I work from Harmony Studios in West Hollywood and specialize in treating performing artists, providing dedicated support to instrumentalists, vocalists, dancers, actors, and film/ TV crew, including advice on managing the creative mind. I am on the Board of Directors of the international Performing Arts Medicine Association also currently working with the Grammy MusiCares Foundation to develop free drop-in sessions for musicians with health concerns in the city. I am the Chair of Programming for this year's PAMA International Symposium that we are hosting at Chapman University (Orange Co.) this summer.

Traditional Osteopathy is hard to find out here, so if you are looking for a sensitive, holistic approach to healthcare, then you can find me healthyperformers. at com and on twitter @ HPerformers. Email me at info@healthyperformers.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It's time to speak out in a situation which has been in flux for some time. While your boss Mars is visiting mighty Capricorn your intuition should be on alert. The full picture will be clearer by the end of next week.

TAURUS: You can be sure you are on the right track career-wise this month when you listen to your inner knowing. Pay attention to what your wants are rather than what you need. You are probably over-stretched in some areas of your life. Uranus the power maker is visiting you currently so stay low key.

GEMINI: You have a lot of energy at your disposal this next week or so. However you should be careful not to put others on the defensive. You have a lot of different areas you are dealing with and you can achieve a lot by taking some time to relax. Happy Birthday!

CANCER: Chances are you have been a bit reclusive of late. While this is often a way of life for you, on occasions be sure you are seen out and about. Mars the fire planet visiting the area of communication is giving you some energy to get you motivated.

LEO: This is a time for being more understanding about others in your life and the way they conduct their lives. While life has its ups and down always remember the lesson in everything. Jolly events are about to transpire in your life so look for the positive in everything.

VIRGO: It's time for you to be actively looking for a healthier way of life. This may mean different things for some of you. Whatever area it is, physically or emotionally, make it a priority now. This is important for you to prepare now for the later part of next month.

LIBRA: Now that the Sun is in Gemini your cousin, it's time to consider all possible new business that can turn into real opportunities in any area of life. So do not be sitting around waiting be proactive, instead get up and be available for any new adventure.

SCORPIO: Usually you have plenty of energy - indeed more than most people, but if you have lately been feeling like taking a rest or a break from life, this is the time. You are very good at sensing what is going on with others around you, however not so much for yourself. By next week you will be ready to take on anything.

SAGITTARIUS: Now your boss planet Jupiter is going backward it's time for you to take a break. This should be outside of your normal comfort zone. This period is absolutely made for you adventurous souls, just remember to be cognizant of others' feelings as you move forward.

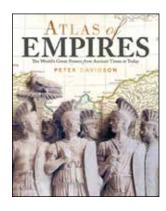

CAPRICORN: With Pluto living with you and sitting still it is not the best time to start to establish a new stream of income or change jobs. However if this has been in process for a month or more it would be fine to go ahead. With Mars resting currently you should take time to relax.

AQUARIUS: You are on the verge of a brand new cycle and you can actually achieve this week something you have long desired. Your boss Uranus is very powerful currently and will not take no for an answer. Go for your goal - it's a good time.

PISCES: Life has been a bit boring of late for some of you while for others it may seem upside down. Sometimes it is good to take a backseat and chill out. This week is the end of this cycle so just enjoy it and make ready for a trip out of town.

Atlas of Empires: how they rise and fall

■ Exclusive interview with Peter Davidson, discussing his new book which uses maps to examine the history and future of empires

"I've loved historical atlases since I was a kid," says Atlas of Empires author Peter Davidson.

"Back then I'd happily lose myself for hours in any kind of atlas. But the historical ones that showed where people came from and went to seemed to bring geography to life. The only problem was I never found one where the text pulled me along from map to map."

"The writing of this book really emerged from an earlier book," he goes on. "Some years ago I suffered a life-changing injury that removed me from the life I knew. I found myself looking at society from the outside and trying to make sense of what I saw. The result was a book I co-wrote about civilization."

Great empires rise and fall. Why? Atlas of Empires examines empires from the earliest of the Sumerians and Pharaohs to modern empires such as the USSR and the European Union. Empires came into being because of differences of opinion. religion, government, capitalism, greed and nationalism. Davidson examines how they advance - whether it's weapons, animals or nothing except a drive for power. With 60 maps, Davidson plots the ebb and flow of the empires. The book predicts the future of empires.

"What seems to happen to the largest empires... the Roman, the British and others...I find particularly interesting," says Davidson. "They seem unable to avoid gradually disintegrating... nonetheless managing to reinvent themselves in another form. I find it revealing to see how societies widely separated across space and time have worked their way through the same set of solutions in an effort to control ever larger territories and ever more diverse cultures. And to see this process continue into the present, whether or not the term empire is actually used."

"The first empires depended on irrigation agriculture," says Davidson. "The horse enabled vastly greater areas to be conquered. The ocean-going ship brought a clash of civilizations and threw a net of interdependence over the globe. Advances communications, weapons and money have always been gamechangers. But perhaps the thing that captivates me most is cultural fusion. That, outside America at least, conquerors have sometimes found themselves so changed by the societies they take over that it becomes unclear who is really in charge."

For research Davidson looked to books, academic journals, letters and inscriptions, first hand accounts, memoirs, official documents. As a broad introduction to the subject, his aim was to synthesize rather than conduct original research.

"For the maps, I began with comparing maps in other historical atlases," says Davidson. "But I mostly drew information from various more specialized maps as well as from lists. The shifting coastlines of the ancient Near East in particular involved a good deal of research into environmental change."

"My first port of call was the library of Birkbeck College, University of London, where I studied and later taught," says Davidson. "I was also able to get access to a surprising wealth of primary source material through academic and museum websites. More and more is being digitized, from EU reports to Mesopotamian clay tablets."

Most of Davidson's writing has been in the form of scripts for films he makes, commentaries for historical documentaries subjects from World War II to the history of flight. Davidson co-wrote Milestones of Civilization with Linda Blandford, published by New Holland. Atlas of Empires has yet to be optioned for film or television.

Davidson worked for some time as a restorer of antiquities. "The first piece I ever worked on was a 2nd century bodhisattva from what is now Pakistan. It was clearly Buddhist in subject but just as clearly Greek in style, and the society that could have produced such a thing began to fascinate me."

Davidson doesn't do social media. He is currently writing a script for a short film about the Order of St John of Jerusalem.

Davidson is based in London. He was born in Viborg, Denmark.

BRITS IN LA

Brits in LA: 14k is golden for us!

yet another thing to celebrate.....Brits in LA just passed the 14,000 member mark!

This is quite a landmark for us and we're especially proud that we show no signs of slowing down, with 4,000 members new members

This week we have just the last two years. If you are a member of our ever-growing Facebook group you already know that it is made up of people scattered across the globe. Not everyone is British and some don't even live in LA!

> If you come to our weekly Breakfast Club

It's Time For Tea...

Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Satil.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily at Cecconis or to our Pub Quiz at the Cat and Fiddle, you will meet a great cross section of people. Of course a large proportion do hail from the United Kingdom, but we are very proud that our community has also become a bustling mecca for many nationalities including Italians, Germans, Australians. Brazilians, Norwegians, Americans(of course!) and even a few visitors from as far away as South Africa have stopped in. Ranging in age from 1 to 91, some having arrived in LA only a few days before and others have been here for over 40 years, but the common bond we have is that we all are in need of a few friendly faces and a nice chat....and who doesn't?

Didn't we all hope that America was just like the TV shows we watched growing up? Turns out my version of the USA just like 'Cheers' Where everybody knows your name, and they're always glad you came.'

I'm quite relieved it turned out this way... as I was worried it was going to be more like the Dukes of Hazzard or The A-Team!

If you want to join in the fun you can find us across social media @ BritsinLA or email us BritsinLA@gmail.

com to get on our mailing list.

It's less than two weeks away until the World Cup! The football party kicks off with host country Russia v Saudi Arabia on June 14th and England open their campaign against Tunisia on June 18th at 11am local time. It's a Monday morning so we won't be planning an official event but we will post a list of all the bars that will be open for it. Email us if you want to let us know where you will be watching and who you will be rooting for. FIFA have put up a handy match schedule which can download here at tinyurkl.com/

whenisthematch

The past few World Cups have been a bit of a disappointment... do you think if we had a combined United Kingdom team we would be in with a chance of winning? Let us know!

Till next time! Eileen

Emma's got a new leash on life!

Ex-80's Wild Child Emma Ridley was spotted strolling through a leafy upmarket neighborhood in Beverly Hills, this week, walking her eight dogs.

The pups, a fun bunch ranging from four Malti-Poohs, a German Shepherd/Husky Mix, a Maltese, and a Springer Spaniel and a French Poodle are clearly Emma's pride and joy.

Animal lover Emma, is about to walk down the aisle for a FOURTH time this coming August when she'll marry TV's Dance Channel boss Michael Carter

In a recent interview with the Daily Star Online, Emma said: "I've never been addicted to anything. I'm not an addictive personality. I'm only addicted to experiences and having fun. I'm an adrenaline junkie, that's why I love the endorphins kick of working out."

Life for Emma is run at a much more slower pace these days, having just turned 46 last month. The former child star is currently judging and hosting Ballroom Dance shows for her future husband Michael's TV show Dance Live with co-host Dzianis Marasin of Dancing with the Stars fame.

Emma told the British Weekly, "I am on marriage number four. I've lost count of how many showbiz comebacks I've had... So I'm doing good for my age!"

We couldn't agree more...Oo-er!

Rita no diva! Ora 'slippers' into something more comfy!

The British pop singer Rita Ora opted for a comfortable exit after after her live performance on Britain's Got Talent earlier this week, choosing a pair of carpet slippers over style...

However, the star proved she can make anything she wears look classy leaving the show in a pair of white fluffy slippers.

Oo-er!

Rita had earlier wowed the audience and judges during the hit show with a performance during the Results Show before heading off out of the back door.

Still wearing her costume, which was thought to be inspired by the Garden Of Eden, Rita was all smiles as she made her way to a waiting car in her white slippers.

Rita was also clutching a bottle of water, complete with a straw, and gave photographers a grin as she climbed into her chauffeur-driven vehicle.

SO chic... But somehow I couldn't see this happening in Hollywood!

BRITISH WEEKLY

SOME WAY TO GO: White Hart Lane may not be ready for the new season

Spurs may seek renewed Wembley deal

Tottenham will need the agreement of the Premier League board if they want to carry on playing at Wembley for part of next season.

A deadline for Spurs to tell the Wembley authorities whether they want to continue using the stadium has been pushed back to the middle of June.

That is to coincide with the fixture announcement for the new campaign.

Spurs' new home is close to completion but they have yet to confirm if it will be open for the start of the season.

Chairman Daniel Levy has repeatedly stated the ground, built on land adjoining their previous home at White Hart Lane, will be ready to use next season and an NFL game is scheduled there for October. The plan remains for the ground to be in use in August, when at least one of the three test events that must be held before the ground is granted a safety certificate is scheduled to take place.

Next season, there will be a minimum of four Premier League matches played prior to the first international break in September and it is envisaged there would be no problem should Spurs request that each those games be played away.

But Premier League rules forbid clubs using two stadiums as home grounds, should the building work drag on until September.

Therefore, if Tottenham were to require special dispensation to use Wembley for an additional period next term, while still planning to relocate, it would require approval from the Premier League board

In theory, this could be requested at any stage, although once the fixtures are out, the situation becomes problematic due to clubs being able to sell tickets for matches and also the demands of broadcasters.

Manchester City are closing in on the double signing of Leicester winger Riyad Mahrez and Napoli midfielder Jorginho, with both deals possibly to be completed by the end of next week.

Mahrez will cost around £60m with Jorginho's fee anticipated to be £42m.

In January, City walked away from a potential deal for Mahrez because they were put off by Leicester's valuation.

It sparked a dispute between the 27-yearold and Leicester, with the player handing in a transfer request.

urges 'second chance' for Karius

Grobbelaar

Liverpool goalkeeper Loris Karius deserves "a second chance" after his mistakes in the Champions League final, says Bruce Grobbelaar.

The German, 24, has apologised after his errors helped Real Madrid win 3-1 in Saturday's match.

Retired goalkeeper Grobbelaar won the 1984 European Cup and six English titles in his 13 years with Liverpool.

He told BBC Sport: "They gave me two years of second chances, so why can't they give him a second chance after one game?"

Grobbelaar, who played for Liverpool between 1981 and 1994, added: "They should keep him in the spotlight from next season."

"First game back, get him back as soon as possible."

Karius' errors cost Liverpool in their attempt to become European champions for a sixth time, but Grobbelaar feels his former side are close.

"Liverpool can win the Champions League next year but need two more players to add to the squad," Grobbelaar added. "They need a centre-half and a striker."

Visa woes put new Blues stadium on hold

Chelsea's Russian billionaire owner Roman Abramovich has put the club's stadium plans on hold after delays to the renewal of his UK visa.

The estimated cost for a new 60,000 seat Stamford Bridge has increased to £1bn after delays, which included a dispute with a local family.

Abramovich is unwilling to invest in a major project in a country where he is not allowed work.

The 51-year-old's UK investor visa expired some weeks ago.

But it is understood that Abramovich's decision will have no impact on the running of the football team.

The delay in issuing him a new visa comes amid increased diplomatic tensions between London and Moscow after the poisoning of former Russian spy Sergei Skripal in Salisbury.

The UK government has refused to comment on his individual case.

Chelsea issued a statement saying the club had delayed work on Stamford Bridge because of "the current unfavourable investment climate".

It added: "No further pre-construction design and planning work will occur. The club does not have a time frame set for reconsideration of its decision."

Plans were under consideration to move Chelsea matches to Wembley stadium for the four years it would take to redevelop Stamford Bridge.

Although the future of Wembley is in doubt after Fulham owner Shahid Khan offered £600m to buy the stadium from the Football Association, it is not thought to be a factor in Chelsea's decision.

Christian Purslow, who left his role as managing director last year after three seasons at the club, said: "It's been a very difficult project. Costs have skyrocketed.

"I have thought for some time it's a project that would not get off the ground. It was always an extremely marginal project financially and a very difficult project practically. I think it's a really sensible decision to put this on hold."

Silva seeks 'great connection' at Everton

"Everton is a really ambitious club and that is what I want."

New Everton boss Marco Silva hopes to build "great connection" between the players and fans after being confirmed as Toffees boss on a three-year deal.

40-year-old replaces Sam Allardyce, whose style of play came under constant scrutiny. He was sacked at the end of the season after six months in charge.

"I know what our fans expect - they expect results but not only results," Silva explained.

"I want our fans to be proud when they see our team on the pitch."

Everton eighth under Allardyce last term but their fans frequently expressed their displeasure at the lack of attacking flair under the former England coach, who replaced Ronald Koeman in November.

Silva insisted: "We want to build a great connection between the squad and the fans, and I'm sure that with our attitude and demands of commitment then our style of play will see that, I believe. Everton is a really ambitious club and that is what I want. What we are seeing now are good changes at the club. The club is changing its approach.

"But one thing we and cannot change nobody wants to change is the huge history and ambition of the club.

"Everybody knows Everton's history. When you are a club like Everton, you only have one solution - to aim to

"In football it is impossible to win every match but we must do everything to show in every game that we have ambition.

"I'm excited and I'm really happy to take this big challenge for us as a club and for me as a manager."

Everton's major Farhad shareholder Moshiri described Silva as a "young, dynamic, energetic and modern manager".

Moshiri added: "His abilities are underpinned by a strong footballing philosophy and a fierce work ethic.

"His enthusiasm in embracing Everton, our values and our ambitions has hugely impressed me, as I hope it will each and every Evertonian."

Marcel Brands, Everton's new director of football, said: "One of the most important things is that he's a guy who wants to play attractive, attacking football and also wants to work in the structure we have at Everton."

Silva will be joined by long-term assistant manager Joao Pedro, plus goalkeeping coach Hugo Olivera, technical scout Antonis Lemonakis and fitness coach Pedro Conceicao.

Everton have also confirmed their former striker Duncan Ferguson will continue as part of the coaching team.

Silva was sacked by Watford in January, with the Hornets blaming the decision on Everton's approach for Portuguese in November.

Two days after leaving Hull he joined Watford in May 2017 and took the team into the top four during his first few
