

STAY OUT OF THE SUN!

As Britain swelters amid record temperatures, Met Office advice stuns millions

BRITONS WERE this week warned to stay indoors and shelter from the blazing sun until Friday after the hottest day of the year saw the Mercury soar to a sizzling 91F.

The Met Office issued an amber warning – one step away from declaring a national emergency urging people to remain inside and close the curtains to keep buildings cool. The sizzling heat made parts of the UK hotter than Barbados at 84F, Magaluf at 84F and New Delhi 90F. The Met Office amber alert was issued for the Midlands, the East, South-east and London. Yorkshire and the Humber and the South-west had a yellow warning. The amber -Level 3 – warning is just one step away from the red "national emergency" alert, meaning there is a 90 per cent probability of heatwave conditions. A red alert is issued when a heatwave becomes so severe or prolonged that "illness and death may occur among the fit and healthy, not just in highrisk groups"

Met Office deputy chief meteorologist Matthew Lewis said: "The heatwave conditions will continue across much of England through this week, with temperatures possibly into the mid-30s [90sF] in places on Thursday and Friday. "More changeable conditions are expected across Northern Ireland and western Scotland, with showers or longer spells of rain at times and maximum temperatures nearer normal."

Dr Thomas Waite of Public Health England urged people to keep an eye on vulnerable friends and relatives. He said: "Temperatures may leave older people, young children and those with long-term conditions struggling to adapt to the heat.

'not vampires"

"To beat the heat, try to keep out the sun from 11am to 3pm, walk in the shade if you can, apply sunscreen and wear a hat if you have to go out. Also try to carry water with you when travelling." The heatwave is the result of the "Mediterranean melt" – a blast of hot air from Spain – expected to deliver temperatures of up to 101F.

But thousands of sunseekers cheerfully ignored the advice to seek shelter flocking to beaches, rivers, parks and lakes. One defiant sunbather tweeted: "As long as you stay hydrated and wear the proper sun protection, you should just about survive. We are not vampires!

"Several months from now you will all be complaining about how cold it is when the winter comes back."

Another added: "You're kidding... I've been waiting since 1976 for this weather!"

Tommy Roberts said: "State of this country. Instead of telling people to enjoy an excellent summer, we are told to stay indoors?!

"We pay thousands to go on holiday where they have this climate as standard and now we have it, you're telling people to stay indoors."

The record for the hottest temperature of the year so far was broken again on Tuesday when the mercury hit 91.9F in Santon Downham, Suffolk. Locations including Heathrow, Cambridge and High Wycombe have now experienced 54 consecutive "dry days" of less than 0.04ins (1mm) of rain. Coastguards have also warned holidaymakers to be careful when attempting to cool down after three people were saved from drowning in a riptide on Saturday.

Darren Tortice was swimming with his 19-year-old niece and seven-year-old daughter in shallow water at Sea Palling, Norfolk, when they were swept away in a matter of seconds. When pulled from the water, the teenager was not breathing and had to be resuscitated by rescue workers. One coastguard said: "The weather might be boiling, and everyone wants to get in the water to cool off, but don't pay with your life."

As usual the bookies are looking to make a killing, with bookmaker Coral cutting the odds on this August being the warmest on record from 2-1 to 6-4 amid long-range forecasts hinting at a month of sweltering heat.

Ladbrokes now makes it odds-on at 1-2 that the mercury will hit 95F anywhere in the country by the end of the week. The odds that the highest temperature on record – 101.3 (38.5C) at Faversham, Kent, in August 2003 – will be broken have also been slashed to 7-4.

Home Secretary drops objection to death penalty for Isis Britons

Isis fighters Alexanda Kotey and El Shafee Elsheikh likely to be sent to US for trial

The home secretary's came under fierce criticism this week for his decision to abandon Britain's opposition to the death penalty in the case of two British Islamic State fighters.

Sajid Javid's stance means that two Isis fighters who are being held by US-backed Kurdish forces in Syria can be sent to the United States to face justice.

ministerial Some sources have made clear they were unhappy the with decision. "This is contrary to all government policy, and negates over a decade's FCO unequivocal statements and DFID programme spending principles. He is trying to be muscular. This proves his serious limitations. It must be reversed today," the source said.

Carlile Lord of Berriew, a crossbencher and former independent reviewer of terrorism legislation, said Sajid Javid's letter was "extraordinary, а dramatic change of policy by a minister, secretly, without any discussion in parliament. It flies in the face of what has been said repeatedly and recently by the Home Office including by Theresa May when she was home secretary."

Britain had threatened to withhold any evidence it held about Alexanda Kotey and El Shafee Elsheikh unless America provided assurances that they would not be put to death.

However, Mr Javid wrote to Jeff Sessions, the US attorney-general, last month to say that the UK would not demand the usual assurances over the pair, according to The Daily Telegraph.

departure

A second document seen by the newspaper, which was prepared for Whitehall, indicated that the government was aware that the men could be sent to Guantanamo Bay.

It marked a departure from the UK's previous position, which was that they should be prosecuted in a civilian court rather than the prison in Cuba. The briefing document said that ministers would lobby not against possibility but the acknowledged that there were risks given Britain's position that the US detention centre should close.

Kotey, 34, and Elsheikh, 29, both from London, were stripped of their British citizenship after they joined Islamic State in Syria. They were caught in January this year as they attempted to flee Syria as the coalition against Islamic State swept through the country.

In the letter, dated June 22, Mr Javid said: "I am of the view that there are strong reasons for not requiring a death penalty assurance in this specific case, so no such assurances will be sought."

He added: "I have instructed my officials to set out the terms of our assistance and to work with your officials to action the request. As you are aware, it is the long-held position of the UK to seek death penalty assurances, and our decision in this case does not reflect a change in our policy on assistance in US death penalty cases generally, nor the UK government's stance on the global abolition of the death penalty." Alexanda Kotey and El Shafee Elsheikh are being held in Syria

UK's goal was for the pair to face justice "in the most appropriate jurisdiction which maximises our collective chances of a successful prosecution", he acknowledged that intelligence implicated the two men in the kidnap and murder of three Americans and two Britons.

The terrorist cell, which gained the nickname the "Beatles" because its members had British accents, carried out the beheadings of the US journalists James Foley and Steven Sotloff and the US humanitarian worker Peter Kassig, as well as the British aid workers David Haines and Alan Henning.

The leader of the group, Mohammed Emwazi, who was nicknamed Jihadi John, was killed in Syria in 2015.

The move aligns Mr Javid with Gavin Williamson, the defence secretary, who has said that Britons who have fought for Islamic State abroad should be hunted down and killed.

It could cause clashes, however, with Ben Wallace, the security minister, who said last month: "This country does not believe in the death penalty — we don't execute people."

George Michael 'didn't want to save himself' - says Elton

SIR ELTON JOHN reckons George Michael's tragic fate was sealed because he didn't want to save himself.

Sir Elton, 71, (pictured above with the late singer) says of his failed attempts to help the former Wham! frontman, who died on Christmas Day 2016 after years of heavy drug abuse took a fatal toll on his body: "I tried to put my arms around him. I tried to help but you can't help people who don't want to help themselves.

"I've learned that as an addict and I'm 28 years clean and sober. When people told me when I was using that I was doing the wrong thing, I was so angry and I just told them to go away or I used stronger language than that."

After taking more than a decade himself to admit he had a problem Sir Elton adds that he was not offended when George publicly lashed out at him in 2004.

Terror police boost security for MP Sarah Champion over criticism of Asian sex gangs

"If Labour wants to keep her seat, they need to get rid of her pretty quick."

An MP who received death threats after condemning the sexual abuse of girls by groups of British Pakistani men has been given increased security amid fears that hard-left and Muslim opponents are trying to force her from office.

Sarah Champion was accused by activists in her Rotherham constituency "industrial-scale of racism" for highlighting "common ethnic the heritage" of most of those implicated in the town's sex-grooming scandal.

Criticism of the former Labour frontbencher has been led by a racial justice charity that claims to speak on behalf of the local Pakistani community. Its main funder is the Joseph Rowntree Charitable Trust, a Quaker organisation that was widely criticised in 2015 for donating more than £300,000 to Cage, a human rights group that described Mohammed the Islamic Emwazi. State murderer known as Jihadi John, as a "beautiful young man".

FriendsofMsChampion say that far-left activists and leading members of the town's Pakistani community seem to be trying to destroy her reputation. They are said to want a Muslim member of Rotherham council to replace the MP if she gives up her seat or is deselected. South Taiba Yasseen, а Momentum supporter and until recently a member of the Labour-run local authority's cabinet, is viewed as a potential successor. She is seeking a Westminster seat and has publicly condemned Ms Champion for "betraying an entire ethnic group". Ms Yasseen, 43, was dropped from the Rotherham cabinet in May for reasons the party has declined to reveal, but supporters of Ms Champion say that the decision was prompted by concerns that she was trying to discredit the MP. The councillor said any suggestion that she had attempted to undermine Champion was Ms "categorically untrue".

The strongest public attacks on Ms Champion, who campaigns for the victims of child sexual exploitation, have been made by a Rotherhambased racial justice charity, Just Yorkshire.

charity's leader The has accused the MP of "industrial-scale racism" and "inciting and inviting hatred against minorities". One of its leading figures is a radical academic, Waqas Tufail, whose research Recent tweets by Dr Tufail, who accused Ms Champion of "promoting racism", congratulated the new Duchess of Sussex on "joining the institution that epitomises white supremacy". He also mocked the England football team during the World Cup, describing its three lions emblem as a colonial legacy that would more appropriately be of "three hedgehogs".

Rotherham gained international notoriety 2014, in when an independent inquiry found that over 16 years at least 1,400 local girls were targeted for sexual exploitation by organized groups of men. Most victims were Their abusers white. were said to be "almost all" of Pakistani origin. The scandal led to sexgrooming prosecutions across the country and farright marches in the town.

Tensions increased last August when Ms The Champion told Sun that Britain "has a problem with British Pakistani men raping and exploiting white girls".

The furore forced Ms Champion to resign from the shadow cabinet. She later accused some on the left of cowardice in refusing to acknowledge the significance of race

Spate of acid attacks prove corrosive to public purse

■ Horrific attacks cost taxpayers £60m in 2017

ACID attacks have trebled in three years and threaten to cost Britain £500million by 2020, research revealed this week.

As victims suffer the long-term physical and psychological impact from appalling injuries, taxpayers are facing a mounting bill for increased spending on medical, police, prison and legal services. More than half the attacks were committed in London, leading some to label it the acid attack capital of the world. Victims, police and politicians are now calling on Government ministers to draw up a long-term strategy in a bid to halt the menace.

Former Scotland Yard detective Mick Neville warned yesterday: "Corrosive substances are becoming a weapon of choice for gangs. I fear it will get worse."

Research carried out for Acid Survivors Trust International (ASTI) has revealed the wider costs behind the shocking crime. Last year alone, taxpayers forked out  $\pounds 60$  million – around half of it in London where there were 470 attacks. That represents a four-fold rise in just three years. Last July was the worst month on record, with 91 offences investigated by the Metropolitan Police – an average of three every day. Across Britain, the number of acid attacks increased from around 300 in 2014 to nearly 1,000 last year.

ASTI, which campaigns for the rights of survivors, commissioned research from consultants Frontier Economics, which estimated each acid attack costs Britain at least £63,000. It is the first time such research has been carried out and puts the total annual cost at around £60million.

Victim Katie Gee, 22, who was attacked in 2013, said: "We often recognize the physical, psychological and emotional toll that an acid attack has on a survivor, their family and friends.

"Yet the economic burden such attacks have on society and the government as a result is often overlooked.

'personal responsibility'

"In 2017, a shockingly high £60million in the UK was spent. This can be avoided.

"As a survivor, I feel a personal responsibility to ensure that all necessary measures of reform are taken to eradicate violent acid attacks."

Jaf Shah, ASTI executive director, said: "As well as making a moral case for intervention, the latest figures allow ASTI to evidence an economic argument for a long-term and integrated approach

Gold prospector finds record 86g nugget in Scottish river

Scotland is bracing itself for a rush of gold prospectors after Britain's largest nugget was discovered in a river.

The 85.7g (3oz) )find, which has been dubbed the "Douglas Nugget", is the width of golf ball and worth at least £50,000 — and potentially much more.

The British precious metal collector who found it wishes to remain anonymous but has spoken of the moment that he made the discovery of a lifetime. The man, who is in his forties, said that he had been using a snorkel to search a riverbed a technique known as "sniping".

He said: "I was following a crack in the bedrock and found around 2g in fine gold. This then led to a pocket where I uncovered the nugget. I called over my friend to have a look and we both assumed it to be around 5g to 7g. It wasn't until I removed it that we realised just how big it was."

He added: "I took off my glove and picked it up, jumped out of the water and screamed 'bingo!' to my friend. We were both stunned and couldn't believe it. I've never seen anything like it in my lifetime."

The finder is keeping the nugget in a safety deposit box and has not decided what to do with it.

Leon Kirk, a gold panning expert based in Dumfries and Galloway, was astonished by the find, which was made two years ago but has been kept under wraps until now.

"It is as rare as it comes," Mr Kirk said. "I never thought I'd see a nugget of this size found in my lifetime.

Bryan Ferry tells of shock after ex-wife Lucy Birley dies alone on holiday

Lucy Birley, the former model and society beauty who was once married to the Roxy Music singer Bryan Ferry, has died at the age of 58.

Ms Birley, formerly Lucy Helmore, died on holiday in Ireland on Monday, according to a statement issued by her family. The cause of death has not been disclosed.

Her family said that she died "surrounded by her beloved dogs, Daisy, Peg and Daphne. Her husband, Robin, and her sons are understandably devastated and request that their privacy be respected during this difficult time."

Ferry, 72, said Tuesday evening: "I'm much saddened and shocked by this tragic news of Lucy's death."

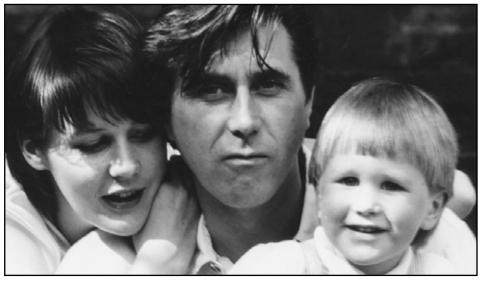

Her death comes less than a fortnight after her friend and fellow socialite Annabelle Neilson died of a heart attack, aged 49. Both were among the London fashion set that included the magazine editor Isabella Blow, who killed herself in 2007, and Alexander McQueen, the acclaimed designer who took his own life in 2010.

The daughter of a

Lloyd's of London underwriter, Ms Birley was considered one of the most dazzling figures in London society in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

She married Ferry in 1982 when she was 22 and was credited with helping to rescue him from cocaine addiction. She appeared on the cover of Roxy Music's eighth and final album, Avalon. They were married for 21 years and had four sons, Otis, Isaac, Tara and Merlin, before divorcing in 2003.

Their eldest son, Otis, a passionate supporter of foxhunting, is best known for storming the House of Commons in 2004 while MPs were debating a ban on hunting with dogs. He later spent four months in prison awaiting trial on a charge of perverting the course of justice, which was then dropped. His mother was also involved in pro-hunting protests, receiving a conditional discharge over a demonstration outside the Houses of Parliament in 2004. "We are disgusted by Mr Blair's lies and we can bring this government down," she said at the time.

She married the businessman Robin Birley, the son of Lady Annabel Goldsmith and the nightclub owner Mark Birley, in 2006 and largely retreated from public view.

Brits in LA

Meet A Member: Sabine Sighicelli

Meet Sabine Sighicelli from Rousset-les-Vignes, France, who moved to Los Angeles 20 years ago to pursue her dreams

What was the reason you chose Los Angeles?

I was in love with someone who had moved here. Filmmaking was somewhat attractive but I didn't care for the studio industry. It wasn't until I attended a packed screening at LACMA of a film by Robert Bresson, the antithesis of Hollywood, that I thought I could find my people here too.

What do you miss most from home? My family, lavender fields, quiet nature, cicadas, and biking on country roads.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? At first lots of palm trees, very exotic! then LA seemed more like a big ugly suburb. Now I've learned to see beauty in this noman's-land cityscape. I've also discovered the hidden side of LA, its innovative center for the arts, its indie film community, great friends and great hiking trails.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Rousset-les-Vignes? Tiny village, everybody knows you vs. huge city, lost in the crowd

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

The Self-Realization Fellowship Mother Center on Mount Washington and the Lake Shrine in Pacific Palisades. It is said you receive a blessing each time you walk through these grounds. Also Prajna Yoga studio in Montrose with Brit Iyengar instructor, Sue Darling.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Don't move here now if you don't have some legal work status or a work visa. and if you do, remember the high cost of living, fires, earthquakes...you have to have a sense of adventure. and if you do, you may love it.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Don't take life too seriously and be authentic!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?_

These days ľm freelancer in а documentary development through post-production, and a collaborator of Production company ShootCutDeliver for which I write, copywrite, produce, cast...product promos, website reels, documentary, and event coverage for a variety of clients. I also maintain a foot in my French culture by teaching French privately, editing grad students' French papers, recording French voice overs for tech companies, anything that lands websites, brochures, and by translating on my desk (articles, subtitles).

ARIES: Take this week's energy and move it in a positive area for you and make it work and then some. This rare and positive planet full moon eclipse now will bring so many opportunities for releasing what no longer works and this is in general.

TAURUS: He who hesitates is lost should be your mantra this week ahead, especially if you waste time remembering how things used to be. The planets are forcing you out of that old comfort zone. Best to let the past go and move to a positive future.

GEMINI: Seems as though all around you are procrastinating - including you. If you do not make a decision this week it will continue on hold. Your boss Mercury is going backwards now so be open to releasing old hurts. You have a quiet work week ahead.

CANCER: Your inability to face your own downside, which is hiding under the shell of your crab-like nature will in the end be your own enemy. This is not going to last if you make positive decisions overall. The next couple of weeks are quiet.

LEO: This time of year is a reflective one for Leo as the sun passes through your sign and signals the beginning of your personal new year. The full moon and eclipse prepares you for new beginnings. In order to get the best results going forward make a decision and stick with it. Happy Birthday. VIRGO: You have a busy month ahead and so this weekend take a time out and get away from the madding crowd and as the middle of the week ahead comes round you will be fit and happy and be ready to be on the go. Take time to visit a friend or relative.

LIBRA: You cannot second guess anything with this planetary energy and it is best to not assume that you can. The full moon and eclipse this week can open doors you may not have expected to enter, be sure you know what is on the other side.

SCORPIO: The rare full moon eclipse will be a new beginning as it brings up some most enlightening situations. If this does not happen now be prepared for it in a week or so enjoy a much more upbeat frame of mind. It will only be for the best overall.

SAGITTARIUS: Jupiter your boss planet is moving forward in a jaunty fashion. With this in mind take a chance and make the decision you have had on hold. You are in the right place at the right time. It is not time however to buy any large item.

CAPRICORN: The recent full moon eclipse should have made you aware of something lacking in your overall life. This does not mean you missed out on something; it simply means you are ready for changes. So take the chance early next month .

AQUARIUS: You will be ready waiting for the moment to take some kind of action. Wait until later next month as the rare full moon eclipse in your sign could mess your plans now. This is the time to let go of anything or person that's is not good for you.

PISCES: The full moon eclipse will bring up the best and worst of people around you. This includes you, so be low key and don't overdo anything that can wait for a better time, this will not last forever.

This Week's Pub Quiz Winners...

Unstoppable? That's three wins in a row now at Brits in LA pub quiz for God Save The Team (pictured here with quizmaster Sandro Monetti) who scored the $75 winnings and the rare hat-trick despite some tough competition at the Cat and Fiddle on July 24 where questions included rounds on Disney films and places in Los Angeles. It's a fourth straight win for Michael DiSciullo, who was on a different team previously, who is holding the trivia dragon, which he won in recognition of that unique achievement. The trivia fun continues on July 31 at The Cat. Who will stop the champs? It could be you.

Best place to beat the heat? Up on the roof!

With the weather been blooming marvelous of late it's time to let you know about some of my favorite rooftop spots in Los Angeles. From poolside to hidden gems to restaurants in the hills and bars at the beach. LA has you covered....in SPF.

1. My all-time favorite rooftop for food and good cocktails has to be MAMA SHELTER on Selma Avenue in Hollywood. It has a cool vibe about it, the Mexican-inspired menu transports you to Tulum, and it's a perfect place to watch the sun go down while stretching out with good friends on their lounging area sipping on a mojito. They don't serve food on the roof during the day. And it's pretty hard to get an actual reservation for the roof. (Open table is avail for the downstairs restaurant) It helps if you make friends or be nice with the door people. Money helps. Slip the maitre'd a twenty and you most likely find yourself first in the elevator and up on the roof enjoying the beautiful crowd of young Hollywood hipsters and of course, allow some time to take in the 360 view.

2. Let's go downtown to a really fun place called PERCH. Aptly titled due to being high up at least 20 stories high. And at night has an eerie Gotham City vibe to it. Inside it's decorated with old-fashioned obscurities with a rust palate on the walls giving it a real lived in, vintage feel. The food is good and the cocktails even better. They usually have live music playing, and book a real eclectic mix from around the world. Jazz to Moroccan beats.

3. This may seem strange but it's one of West Hollywood's hidden gems. Located opposite the famous Urrth Cafe sits a furniture store called Restoration Hardware. Grab a coffee or pack some drinks and take a friend up the stairs to the rooftop garden. A well-curated space using samples of Dimitris for sale. They have created little seating areas with patio furniture and nested tables. Take your laptop up and work all morning, while the sun crosses above you. A few of the tables are covered with shades, but if you don't bag one that is be sure you slather yourself in sunscreen.

4. The Highlight Room. Located right above the Dream Hotel in Hollywood this is a pool area by day and a dance floor by night. Complete with cabana for rent and a delicious restaurant at the back, you can hardly go wrong in this spot. Our friend and fellow Brit Zen Freeman is known to DJ here on any given Thursday night. If it gets too hot you can always nip downstairs in the alley and grab a refreshing drink at Beauty and Essex, a fabulous bar / restaurant. Following LA's trend of secret entrances, enter through a Pawn Shop, where you can actually purchase their wares, mainly jewelry and oddities.

5. Ready for the beach? The Shangri-la Hotel is a gorgeous Art Deco Hotel right on Ocean in the heart of Santa Monica, boasting a spectacular beach and ocean view. Perfect for private parties or functions. This time of year in particular, it's great to be by the ocean as the temperature is a little cooler than Hollywood or Downtown. They have a nice pool area on the ground floor too if you fancy a dip and if you've had one too many libations, you could also see if you can book a hotel room in one of their modern minimalist bedrooms. Cocktails are a little pricey but, worth it to be so close to the beach.

And finally at the end of the year, H.Club promises to have one of the best rooftops LA will ever witness. A private members' club founded by Eurythmics' Dave Stewart and Paul Allen and erected in the heart of Hollywood, opposite Capitol Records. The place will boast two roof tops with two high end restaurants. Other amenities will include swimming pool, gym, recording studio, spa, meeting room and 36 bedrooms. Having been lucky enough to attend the hard hat tour, I can already tell this is gonna be the sweet spot and the place to beat. For membership opportunities you can fill out an application at hospitalclub.com.

I hope to see some of you high above the chimney tops at one of these spots in the next few weeks, because that's where you'll find me, getting my tan on!

Cheers, Craig

Double O behave! Henry thinks he'd make a 'super' 007

After watching him in that awful film Man from Uncle a few years back, Henry Cavill is convinced he's the perfect person to play the next James Bond because he has so much stunt experience from 'Mission: Impossible – Fallout'.

Oo-er!

The 35-year-old British actor – who plays CIA assassin August Walker in the action film – auditioned for the role of the suited and booted spy in 2005 but lost out to Daniel Craig, and with his rival expected to bow out of the franchise after the next movie in the series, he's hoping his past movie experience will make him stand out.

Speaking to Yahoo UK, Cavill said: "I would love to do it of course. I think Bond would be a really fun role. It's British, it's cool. I think that now that I have my 'Mission: Impossible' badge we can do real stunts and really amp it up as well...

"Not to say they weren't doing real stunts I'm just saying it would be fun for me to actually take what I've learnt on this and carry it through to a movie like Bond.

"I'd love to play a Brit. I don't get to play a Brit very often. So yes, I would love the opportunity and if they were to ask I would say yes."

But, although it's believed Cavill is still in the running for the role, former Bond director Martin Campbell previously suggested he would be ideal for the role when he got older.

Big thumbs down from me!

Brooklyn finds 'inkspiration' in Dad's tatts!

B r o o k l y n Beckham clearly looks up to his famous father after getting an angel tattoo on his chest similar to David's famous etching.

Drawing some "inkspiration" from one of David's tattoos, the eldest Beckham child debuted his new piece of body art of three cherubs on his chest on Instagram and was clearly chuffed with himself as he flipped a cheeky V sign to the camera.

Oo-er!

The cherub design is easy to spot in the topless snap standing out on his upper left chest.

They are not identical to the 43-year-old football star's intricate family scene but they are in the same position on his left pec. His mother Victoria Beckham would certainly approve, apparently the ex-Spice Girl turned fashion designer is a huge fan of angels.

Becks commissioned his large chest piece back in 2011 and it displays an image of himself as a Jesus-figure.

The three cherubs surround him represent his three sons, Brooklyn, Romeo, and Cruz.

Brooklyn's first tattoo, inked in April 2017, was a portrait of a Native American on his forearm. He added to his collection a year later with a tattoo of a dark-haired 40s style pin-up.

Back in March, he was accompanied by his dad to see celebrity tattoo artist Sanghyuk Ko at the studio and got a dancing woman in an old-fashioned dress and curly locks inked on his leg. David started off the father and son tradition of getting matching tattoos when he went under the needle to get a tribute to his father.

Under his right armpit he has a ship at full mast – which is identical to a piece his dad has.

Brooklyn has honoured his mum and dad with 1975 etched into his right hand to represent his father's date of birth, and a heart with the word Mum inked on his bicep.

Tatts a lot of ink... Dontcha think?!

Arsenal midfielder Mesut Ozil has quit international football, citing the "racism and disrespect" he has faced Turkish roots. The 29-year-old (pictured, above) was criticised after being photographed with Turkish president Recep Tayyip Erdogan at a being was World Cup.

"I am German when we win, but I am an immigrant when we lose," Ozil said.

The German FA dismissed Ozil's claims, but Chancellor Angela Merkel "respects" his decision as he has done much for the national side, her spokesperson said on Monday.

The third-generation Turkish-German was born in Gelsenkirchen and was a key member of his country's 2014 Cup-winning

He has 92 caps and has been voted the national team's player of the year five times since 2011 by fans.

However, the team failed to get beyond the group stages of the recent World Cup in Russia, despite being one of the favourites.

Ozil said his recent treatment made him "no longer want to wear the German national team shirt".

In a lengthy statement posted on social media, he said he did not feel accepted in German society despite paying taxes, donating to good causes there, and being a World Cup winner.

Germany's football association, the DFB, was among those to criticise Ozil after he had his photograph taken with Erdogan.

"It is with a heavy heart and after much that consideration because of recent events, I will no longer be playing for Germany at international level while I have this feeling of racism and disrespect," the player said.

"I used to wear the German shirt with such pride and excitement, but now I don't. I feel unwanted and think that what I have achieved since my international debut in 2009 has been forgotten."

The head of Germany's football association responded by saying he regrets that the body's criticism of Ozil over the photograph.

DFB president Reinhard Grindel said in a statement: "We live our values, and that's why we as the DFB have critically questioned the photo."

He added: "Mesut Ozil's decision to step down from the Germany national team has triggered a debate about racism in general and about football's capabilities integration for in particular."

Tottenham 'disadvantaged' insists Pochettino as team win

Tottenham manager Mauricio Pochettino says his side are "disadvantaged" this pre-season despite beating Roma 4-1 in San Diego.

Spurs were missing nine players after the World Cup semi-finals, but a brace apiece from Fernando Llorente and Lucas Moura handed them victory in San Diego.

With all the goals coming in the first half, Spurs fought back aft er Patrik Schick gave Roma a third-minute lead.

"The players need to rest and recover after more than 12 months of competition," said Pochettino.

"We cannot delete the start of the season. It starts earlier than other leagues and other countries.

"Of course, it's a massive disadvantage, but I'm not complaining and I need to adapt."

Llorente equalised with his head in the ninth minute before the Spanish striker, 33, added a second from close range for Tottenham, who begin their Premier League campaign at Newcastle on 11 August.

Moura headed in their third goal and the 25-year-old Brazilian rounded off the scoring from the edge of the box as Spurs began their US tour with a win.

Pochettino refused to discuss the future of Llorente following the Spaniard's two goals, but he did say the absence of South Korea forward Son Heung-min for the upcoming Asia Games, which run from 18 August to 2 September, will "hurt".

"I'm not going to talk about individual situations and I'm trying to provide every single player with the best tools to improve," said Pochettino.

"I cannot change the reality [about Son] even if it is hurting us - but I'm not going to cry."

Egyptian star on the scoresheet as Reds beat City 2-1 in New Jersey

Mohamed Salah wasted no time in returning to goalscoring form as Liverpool came from behind to beat Manchester City 2-1 in New Jersey on Thursday.

The Egypt forward, who scored 44 goals in 52 games for the Reds last season, equalised Leroy Sane's second-half goal barely a minute after coming on as a substitute in front of a 52,000 crowd.

Salah had another header cleared off the line and hit the bar. Sadio Mane's injury-time penalty won the International Champions Cup match.

Salah and Senegal

forward Mane were both playing for the first time since their countries were knocked out of the World Cup at the group stage.

City's Bernardo Silva - whose Portugal side went out at the last-16 stage - made his first preseason appearance, but the Blues are still without 15 other players who were on duty in Russia.

"It is incredible what we have done with the players we have for 75 minutes against the Champions League finalists," said City boss Pep Guardiola after the game.

Lukas Nmecha went close for City and Curtis

The action livened up after after Mane, wearing the number 10 shirt he has been given for the new season, and Sane were introduced. When City countered quickly after Dominic Solanke's strike had been ruled out for offside, Sane outpaced the Liverpool defence before shooting into the far corner.

Salah equalised virtually straight after he replaced Jones, heading Rafa Camacho's cross in after being left unmarked.

Mane won it from the spot after Solanke had been fouled.

The game was played on a poor pitch in a stadium which had hosted a Taylor Swift pop concert at the weekend. Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp said: "I was not worried about the pitch, I was more worried for the pitch - we killed it completely.

"The stadium is great. The dressing room is as big as Anfield. The crowd is sensational. The pitch is not perfect."

Karius eyes Liverpool exit

LORIS KARIUS admits he may have to leave Liverpool after being dumped as their No1 goalkeeper.

The German was shocked by Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp's decision to bring in Alisson in a £65million world record deal to replace him as first choice.

Karius, who joined Liverpool from Mainz two years ago, wants to play regularly and knows he may need to quit Anfield to do so.

"This is not perfect for me," he said. When asked if he would leave before the transfer window closed, he replied: "I don't know. There's still some time left."

Karius has also been stunned by the level of abuse aimed at him on social media because of his continued blunders since his nightmare in the Champions League final. He was at fault again for Borussia Dortmund's third

Karius posted a message on Instagram and urged his critics to let go of their ill-feelings. "To those who take joy in seeing other people fail or suffer, I feel for you," he said. "Whatever it is that is happening in your life to hold this much anger and hate, I pray that it passes and good things come to you."

Meanwhile, Jurgen Klopp says he "doesn't care" about the "increasing pressure" at Liverpool after spending nearly £170m on four new players this summer.

The Reds have signed goalkeeper Alisson and midfielders Naby Keita, Fabinho and Xherdan Shaqiri as they look to close the gap on Manchester City.

Liverpool finished 25 points behind Premier League winners City last term.

"We have not bought a team whilst the others have sold theirs, it is not like this," manager Klopp told BBC Sport.
