TORIES AT WAR OVER BORIS BURKA BAN

Provocative MP unrepentant after saying wearing the burka 'makes women look like letter boxes'

BORIS JOHNSON was at the center of another huge row in Westminster this week after he told reporters that Muslim women wearing the burka "look like letter boxes".

The former foreign secretary and darling of the party's right wing was under pressure to apologize for remarks late this week, with one leading Tory, Dominic Grieve, the ex-attorney general, said he would quit the party if Mr Johnson became leader.

Ex-Tory chairwoman Baroness Warsi said Mr Johnson's remarks could trigger a rise in hate crime. Senior Tories have urged him to apologise but he has not done so, and has stood by his comments.

In an article for the Daily Telegraph, Johnson said full-face veils should not be banned, but it was "absolutely ridiculous" women chose to "go around looking like letter boxes". He also compared them to looking like "bank robbers".

A source close to the former London mayor has said: "We must not fall into the trap of shutting down the debate on difficult issues.

"We have to call it out. If we fail to speak up for liberal values then we are simply yielding ground to reactionaries and extremists."

But, speaking on BBC Radio 4's The World at One, Mr Grieve - a former Remain campaigner who has previously clashed with Mr Johnson over Brexit - said his behaviour was "very embarrassing".

Mr Grieve said he would "without the slightest doubt", quit the Tories if Mr Johnson became leader, "because I don't regard him as a fit and proper person to lead a political party".

The leader of the Scottish Conservatives, Ruth Davidson, has also backed calls for an apology over what she called "gratuitously offensive" comments.

Speaking at an event in North Berwick, East Lothian, she said: "This wasn't an off-the-cuff slip, he wrote a column, he knew exactly what he was doing and I think it crossed from being provocative and starting a debate and actually it became rude and gratuitous.

"It's also not been shown through history that when men make sweeping statements about what women should or shouldn't wear that it goes well for them.

"I think he should apologise for them."

Earlier Culture Secretary Jeremy Wright said there was no reason not to have a "robust conversation" about the subject, but added: "We're not talking to our friends in the pub. We are public figures and we have an additional obligation to be careful."

Aformer Tory chairman, Lord Pickles, said Mr Johnson, who was foreign secretary until resigning last month over Brexit, risked "closing down" the debate with his "illiberal language".

Supporters of Mr Johnson say the row is politically-motivated and that other senior Tories have made similar remarks without such criticism.

Lord Sheikh, a senior Tory peer and former adviser to David Cameron, called for Mr Johnson to have the whip removed over the comments. He told BBC2's Newsnight: "Take the whip from him. Why not? He's not a super human being, he's a member of the party. The party chairman, the prime minister has the right to take the whip."

Anti-semitism and Labour: the story that just won't die

■ Party flack insists Hodge apologized for calling Corbyn an anti-Semite, her lawyers insists she didn't Labour's ongoing row over anti-semitism racheted up this week amid a growing row between leader Jeremy Corbyn and Dame Margaret Hodge.

The party dropped its inquiry into Hodge's recent confrontation with Corbyn during which she allegedly called him a 'fking antisemite' and her subsequent refusal to apologize for the incident. The party claimed she had apologized, a claim her lawyer vehement denied on Wednesday.

Journalists were briefed the decision to drop the inquiry had been taken after she expressed "regret" to Labour chief whip Nick Brown for her conduct.

Dame Margaret hit back on Monday, insisting she had done no such thing.

Α strongly-worded response from her lawyers Labour to general secretary Jennie said Formby that although the "decision is welcomed, the basis on which you seek to explain your belated volte face is entirely disingenuous".

The letter said Dame Margaret "did not express regret" and that was a misrepresentation in order to "save face in your necessary climb down".

The investigation was launched after a heated exchange last month in which Dame Margaret was said to have called Mr Corbyn an "anti-Semite" and a "racist".

'legally sound'

Mr Corbyn has been criticised by Jewish community leaders and some of his own MPs over what they see as his refusal to take allegations of anti-Semitism in the party seriously enough.

It centres on the Labour Party's code of conduct - which includes an internationally recognised definition of anti-Semitism but omits four of the 11 examples of "contemporary anti-Semitism".

Labour says it has "expanded and c o n t e x t u a l i s e d " the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance examples to provide "legally sound guidelines that a political party can apply to disciplinary cases".

And Mr Corbyn has insisted anti-Semites have no place in the Labour Party and acknowledged the party has not been quick enough to deal with those who have spread "poison" in the party's name.

Labour MP Ian Austin is still facing disciplinary action from Labour over claims - denied by him - that he screamed abuse during a row over the code of conduct. He has called the new code of conduct a "disgrace".

Mr Corbyn, a longstanding supporter of the rights of Palestinians, has defended Labour's decision not to include one of the IHRA examples - which warns against "claiming that the existence of a State of Israel is a racist endeavour".

He said this had "sometimes been used by those wanting to restrict criticism of Israel that is not anti-Semitic"

Some Labour figures, including the shadow defence secretary Nia Griffith, had called for the investigation into Dame Margaret to be dropped - and shadow chancellor John McDonnell said Labour needed to "move on"

MARGARET HODGE: The Labour MP lost family members in the Holocaust

Dame Margaret previously said she had chosen to confront Mr Corbyn in anger at what she said was the party's "arrogance" over its new code of conduct on anti-Semitism.

She accused Labour of "playing around" with the international definition, and said she had gone to tell Mr Corbyn he was "perceived as being anti-Semitic". She denied reports she had sworn at him.

STICKY WICKET: Ben Stokes outside Bristol Crown Court on Tuesday

Cricketer 'main aggressor' in fight

England cricketer Ben Stokes was the "main aggressor" in a fight outside a nightclub, a court has heard.

The Durham allrounder is one of three men accused of fighting in Bristol on 25 September.

Bristol Crown Court previously heard Ryan Ali, 28, and Ryan Hale, 27, were knocked unconscious by 27-yearold Mr Stokes, who denies affray.

Mr Ali and Mr Hale have also pleaded not guilty to affray and are on trial alongside the cricketer.

Witness Mark Spure, an off-duty police community support officer (PCSO), said that after he left Mbargo nightclub he spotted "three to five" people involved in a "scuffle" on a nearby street.

In a statement, Mr Spure said he had tried to separate Mr Stokes and Mr Ali, with the others continuing to row behind him.

"The individual seemed to be the main aggressor or was progressing forward trying to get to another individual," he told the

"In my statement I describe him as a gentleman with ginger or light brown hair. He had a green T-shirt on."

Mr Ali "seemed to be trying to back away or get away from the situation" before he was punched by Mr Stokes, he added.

Mr Spure told the court he had tried to move Mr Ali out of the road, as there were passing cars, but he was "completely unable to move".

The jury heard he then identified Mr Stokes to police officers, who arrested the cricketer.

Mr Stokes first hit Mr Hale, knocking him to the ground, before rendering Mr Ali unconscious in the punch seen by the PCSO, jurors have been told.

with a bottle during the altercation, while it is claimed Mr Hale broke off a metal pole from a nearby road sign after being allegedly knocked out by Mr Stokes.

The jury heard Mr Ali had suffered a fractured left eye socket, a cracked tooth and cuts and bruises, while Mr Hale suffered bruising and a cut to his forehead.

Footage from a body camera worn by PC Stacey Alway, who arrested Mr Stokes, was shown to the jury.

She told the court the cricketer had been "squaring up" to a group of men at the side of the road as she approached them.

"I didn't know who these males were because I was unable to identify them," PC Alway said.

"From the moment I approached [Mr Stokes] he calmed down and he was completely compliant with me."

The court heard that when PC Alway said to Mr Stokes "a guy over there was covered in blood and I've been told you punched him", he replied "because he was abusing my two friends for being gay".

Nottinghamshire batsman Mr Hales told PC Alway he had not seen the alleged fight, the court was told.

"I came after you guys turned up," he told her.

After Mr Stokes had been put in a police car and PC Alway told Mr Hales to leave, he replied: "I feel bad. He's my best friend. I saw him after everything happened."

In a statement Mr Stokes gave to police after he had been arrested, he said he had acted in self-defence when he punched Mr Ali and Mr Hale, after seeing them verbally abuse two gay men, Kai Barry and William O'Connor.

The trial continues.

US ready to impose 'draconian' sanctions for Skripal poisoning

The US has said it will impose fresh sanctions on Russia after determining it used nerve agent against a former Russian double agent living in the UK.

Sergei Skripal and his daughter Yulia were left seriously ill after being poisoned with Novichok in Salisbury in March, though they have now recovered.

A UK investigation blamed Russia for the attack, but the Kremlin has strongly denied any involvement.

Russia has criticised the new sanctions as "draconian".

In a statement released on Wednesday, the US state department confirmed it was implementing measures against Russia over the incident.

S p o k e s w o m a n Heather Nauert said it had been determined that the country "has used chemical or biological weapons in violation of international law, or has used lethal chemical or biological weapons against its own nationals".

TheBritishgovernment

has welcomed the move. "The strong international response to the use of a chemical weapon on the streets of Salisbury sends an unequivocal message to Russia that its provocative, reckless behaviour will not go unchallenged," a UK foreign office statement said.

The Russian embassy to the US hit back on Thursday morning, criticising what it called "far-fetched accusations" from the US that Russia was behind the attack.

Russia had become "accustomed to not hearing any facts or evidence", it said, adding: "We continue to strongly stand for an open and transparent investigation of the crime committed in Salisbury."

The new sanctions will take effect on or around 22 August, and relate to the exports of sensitive electronic components and other technologies.

The state department said "more draconian" sanctions will follow within 90 days if Russia fails to give reliable assurances it will no longer use chemical weapons and allow onsite inspections by the United Nations.

An official said it was only the third time that the US had determined a country had used chemical or biological weapons against its own nationals.

Previous occasions were against Syria and against North Korea for the assassination of Kim Jong-nam, the half-brother of leader Kim Jong-un, who died when highly toxic VX nerve agent was rubbed on his face at Kuala Lumpur airport.

Following the incident, the British government said the military-grade nerve agent Novichok, of a type developed by Russia, had been used in the attack.

Relations between Russia and the West hit a new low. More than 20 countries expelled Russian envoys in solidarity with UK, including the US. Washington ordered 60 diplomats to leave and closed the Russian consulate general in Seattle.

Three months after he Salisbury attack, two other people fell ill at a house in Amesbury, about eight miles from the city. Dawn Sturgess later died while her partner, Charlie Rowley, spent three weeks recovering in hospital.

After tests, scientists at the UK's military research lab, Porton Down, found the couple had also been exposed to Novichok.

Mr Rowley told ITV News he had earlier found a sealed bottle of perfume and given it to Ms Sturgess, who sprayed the substance on her wrists.

Sterling slumps over fears of no-deal Brexit

BRITISH holidaymakers were counting the cost of a brisk sterling sell-off this week amid fears that Britain will leave the EU without a deal, which sent the pound to its lowest level against the dollar for almost a year.

Travellers exchanging currency at Heathrow were being offered as little as \$1.08 or €0.93 for £1. On the markets, sterling fell by 0.5 per cent to \$1.286, a loss of more than 10 per cent against the American currency since the middle of April. It had a similar slump against the euro, down to a ninemonth low of $\in 1.11$.

Traders said there was no obvious catalyst other than growing anxiety over the lack of progress on Brexit before a series of meetings between the EU and Britain starting next month.

It has emerged European leaders are preparing to negotiate a deal that would let Britain remain in the single market for goods cont. on page 4, col. 1

100 years later, Duke and PM commemorate Battle of Amiens

■ Allied offensive widely seen as marking the beginning of the end of World War One

The Duke of Cambridge and the prime minister have attended commemorations in northern France to mark the centenary of the Battle of Amiens - the beginning of the end of World War One.

Prince William and Theresa May both paid tribute at a service at Amiens Cathedral on Wednesday.

They also spoke to descendants of soldiers who fought in the battle.

In a reading, the duke said he was "delighted" to mark the centenary in the "historic cathedral".

He added the purpose of the service was to "honour the fallen of all nations" involved in the war.

In her message printed in the official programme, Mrs May paid tribute to the "courage, bravery and skill" of troops who fought at Amiens.

She added it was important to "reflect on the fear and hardship experienced by the people of this city and the surrounding battlefields".

At Wednesday's

service, the story of the battle was told through contemporary letters, diaries and poems read by guests from the 2,000-strong congregation.

The British-commanded Fourth Army was involved in the battle, heralding the start of the Hundred Days offensive.

General Sir Henry Rawlinson had learnt the lessons of the bloody Somme offensive and employed improved tactics and new equipment.

More than 500 UK tanks were deployed, alongside 1,900 British and French aircraft, and more than 2,000 guns from the Royal Artillery.

A string of military victories by combined air and land forces from Britain, Australia, Canada, France, and the US followed, leading to the surrender of German forces and the end of the conflict on 11 November 1918

Armed Forces Minister Mark Lancaster and Chief of the Defence Staff General Sir Nick Carter also attended the service. Gen Carter said the Battle of Amiens was a "remarkable achievement... moulding a new citizen-based force into a very accomplished fighting force, against a backdrop of rapid technological change".

Kevin Sherlock, 58, a retired Rolls-Royce engine inspector from Derby, said his 19-year-old great uncle Ernest Harm, who was killed towards the end of the battle, "paid the ultimate sacrifice", helping to bring peace to Europe.

He said the teenage soldier, also from Derby, was killed, possibly by machine gun fire, going "over the top" on 11 August 1918.

Mr Sherlock added: "I think as I've got older I've thought about it more really, he was only 19, just a lad really, never experienced anything in his life.

"So there's sadness but also pride that he took part in a key battle that brought ultimately the Allied victory and no doubt about it, shortened the war as well."

meeting of all 28 leaders in Salzburg next month. It marks the first significant divergence between the public position stated by Michel Barnier, the EU's chief Brexit negotiator, and the European Council.

identical relationship

Mr Barnier has repeatedly stated since Chequers that Mrs May's proposals would "undermine our single market" and that Britain cannot pick and choose which parts to be in. But British officials have pointed out that the EU currently has an almost identical relationship with Jersey and other Channel Island Crown dependencies which have third-country status for all matters except goods.

The so-called "Jersey model" has worked in practice for many years at a much smaller scale.

Sources at the highest level of Brexit negotiations between EU governments in Brussels said that European leaders would listen if Mrs May adopted the Jersey model wholesale. However, this would require Britain pledging to adopt all future EU environmental and social protections.

The Prime Minister, pictured with the Duke of Cambridge, paid tribute to the "courage, bravery and skill" of the troops who fought at Amiens.

Member states have let it be known that they could abandon one of the bloc's ideological red lines in return for more Brexit concessions from Theresa May. They expect her to replicate all new EU environmental, social and customs rules in addition to those set out in the Chequers white paper.

The long-serving soldier. who was convinced he was going to die after a terrifying mid-air ordeal February 2014, has settled his claim against the Ministry of Defence.

Soldier B, who joined the army in 2002, was one of 187 passengers in a RAF Voyager aircraft flying from RAF Brize Norton to Camp Bastion in Afghanistan. 33,000ft. plane suddenly plummeted towards the ground. Some passengers were pinned to the ceiling due to the force of the descent.

The accident was caused by the Pilot's personal camera which he had brought on board which became jammed in flight-deck equipment.

But after Flt Lt Andrew Townshend regained control of the aircraft, he allegedly lied in both a

The pilot's Nikon DSLR camera was positioned in front of his arm rest and became jammed with the plane's controls when he moved his seat forward in the incident. The camera wedged between his arm rest and the 'sidestick' - a joystick used to control the plane which pushed it forward, disengaging the autopilot and causing the plane to nosedive.

Tour winner gets hero's welcome in hometown

Tour de France winner Geraint Thomas enjoyed a hero's welcome in Cardiff on Thursday, thousands of people turning out on the streets of the capital.

The 32-year-old was congratulated by First Minister Carwyn Jones at the Senedd before travelling to a celebration outside Cardiff Castle.

Thomas became the first Welshman to win the gruelling 21-stage race after it culminated in Paris last month.

He said he had been "blown away" support from people in his home city.

Mr Jones Thomas on the steps of the Senedd at about 16:30 BST, and described the triumph as "a stand-out moment in our sporting history".

"I believe Geraint's thrilling ride to Paris is the greatest individual performance by a Welsh sport star," he said.

"His success - and wonderful, Welsh sense of humour throughout the gruelling race - is an inspiration."

Thomas follows in the footsteps of two other former Whitchurch High School pupils in being recognised in the city.

In 2012, then Welsh rugby captain Sam Warburton enjoyed a Grand Slam celebration at the Senedd, while Gareth Bale and Wales' football heroes brought Cardiff to a standstill with a Euro 2016 homecoming after reaching the semi-finals.

Thomas' achievement saw immortalised in the same way as the great Welsh rugby players in the 1970s, with performer Max Boyce penning a poem about him.

Following short appearance the on Senedd steps, Thomas, who has also won two Olympic gold medals, led a peloton of young riders up St Mary Street, in the city centre.

Welsh tourist 'stuck in Dubai' over £36k speeding fine

The family of a Welsh tourist who was fined £36,000 ($46,000) for speeding in a Lamborghini say he is being forced to stay in Dubai.

Farah Hashi, 25, from Newport, cannot afford the fines, his brother said.

The dealership where Mr Hashi rented the Lamborghini Huracán told the city's newspaper, The National, he left his passport as a guarantee.

But his brother Adman, 50, claims his passport was seized after he had driven the £155,000 supercar.

Hashi reportedly broke the speed limit on one of Dubai's busiest roads dozens of times in the early hours of Tuesday.

The total cost of the fines came to 175,000 dirhams (£36,000; $47,600).

The fines were issued after he triggered every speed camera on the Sheikh Zayed Road and reached a top speed of 150mph (240 km/h).

Adman Hashi, said: "They came to his hotel and demanded he hand it over after the speeding ticket came through and out of fear he gave it to them.

"Now they say he must pay £40,000 it is ridiculous. There is no way he has that money. He is out of work at the minute and went to Dubai to visit friends."

He added that his brother has had to borrow money to pay for the extended stay in his hotel and the family do not know how he will get home. "He didn't even pay to hire the car. One of his friends had sorted it out for him. He was caught doing 200 km/h but he didn't know the laws over there," he said.

Dealership partner Faris Mohammed Iqbal said: "We can't pay this amount should the car be taken into impound, it's still with the tourist, parked at his hotel and I won't be trying to take it back."

Meet A Member: Caroline Langford

Meet Caroline Langford from Brighton (and then Tel Aviv), who moved to LA 12 years ago 'to pursue sunshine, work and happiness'!

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? The weather. Beforehand I was living in New York and I couldn't take the long winters with the blizzards.

What do you miss most from home?

Family of course, but also the food and the sense of humor/humour!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

12 years I have been here, it stays more or less the same. Hot!

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Tel Aviv?

The sense of belonging, where everyone is like a family member. Here it is easy to go a long time before seeing friends.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Oh Fancy That! British shop with all the goodies in Tarzana. Jean, who runs it makes you feel like she has just arrived from England, even though she's been here for years.

CAROLINE LANGFORD: "Have a good amount of money saved up beforehand. Unless you're twenty, roughing it isn't fun.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Have a good amount of money saved up beforehand. Unless you're twenty, roughing it isn't fun.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Don't take anyone seriously if they promise something!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It's time to speak out in a situation that has been in flux for quite some time or deal with any unfinished business. While your boss Mars is visiting Aquarius your intuition will be on alert. The full picture will be clearer by the end of next week.

TAURUS: You can be sure you are on the right track career-wise this month when you listen to your inner knowing. Pay attention to what your wants are, rather than what you need. Maybe your life is somewhat hectic lately, so block out anything that is not relevant.

GEMINI: You have a lot of energy at your disposal this next week or so. However you should be careful not to put others on the defensive. You have a lot of different areas you are dealing with currently and you can achieve a lot by taking some time to relax.

CANCER: Chances are you have been a bit reclusive of late. While this is often a normal way of life for you, on occasions be sure you are seen out and about this next week. Jupiter in your cousin sign Scorpio will help.

LEO: This is a time for being more understanding about others around you and the way they conduct their lives. While life has its ups and down always remember the lesson in everything. Family events will improve after this new eclipse this week so look for the positive. Happy Birthday.

VIRGO: It's time for you to be actively looking for a healthier way to be in your life. This may mean different things for some of you. Whatever area it is, physical or emotional, make it a priority now. This does not have to be boring - just refreshing.

LIBRA: Now that your boss Venus has turned backwards it's possible recent chance encounters can turn into real possibilities in any area of life. So do not be sitting around waiting for the opportunities to appear; be proactive and available for any new event.

SCORPIO: You may likely be having situations appear out of the blue regarding home areas. This is due to the recent eclipse that affected this area of your responsibility. Do not panic; all will be in order and running smoothly again by this week ahead.

SAGITTARIUS: Now your boss planet Jupiter is going direct it's time for you to take some chances. This should be outside of your normal understanding of this. This period is absolutely made to do just about anything you want.

CAPRICORN: With Pluto and your boss Saturn living with you and going backwards it is not the best time to start a new stream of income or change jobs. However if this has been in process for a month or more it would be fine to go ahead.

AQUARIUS: You are on the verge of a brand new cycle and you can actually achieve something you have long desired. The powerful eclipse of last month and the one this weekend both in your sign will be holding you back a wee longer.

PISCES: Life has been a bit boring of late for some of you, while for others it may seem just uneventful. Sometimes it is good to take a backseat and chill out. This week is the end of this cycle and this weekend will liven life up.

BRITS IN LA

How to exercise in LA - for FREE!

Are you spending too much money on your gym membership? What about your spin class? Or the latest boxing craze, "Rumble"?

If so, I have good news. You can now try all the local gyms out by downloading the app @ classpass (use my referral http://class.ps/ jO5fW) and once you are signed up, you can pass on your own code to start topping up those credits for free classes. These week I've done circuit training Downtown at Sanctuary and a TRX class at Yogaworks.

Failing that why not get a tan while you exercise in this perfect California sun? Below are some of my favorite places to exercise for free in LA:

1. Hike Griffith Park

Located in the Los Feliz neighborhood of Los Angeles, Griffith Park covers more than 4,300 acres - making it the second-largest city park in the state, after San Diego's Mission Trails Preserve. It's home to the famed Hollywood sign, the original Batcave (formally known as Bronson Cave) from the 1960s Batman Griffith series. Observatory and numerous hiking trails for all ability levels. Trails we like include:

For beginners: Berlin Forest. This flat and shady path is .3 miles round trip and can be walked in about 30 minutes.

For intermediate: Western Canyon. Sycamore trees and laurel sumac shrubs line this 2.1-mile roundtrip trail, which carries a 571-foot elevation gain. Hikers in moderately good shape can expect to take about 1.5 hours to complete this trail.

For advanced: Wisdom Tree and Cahuenga Peak This challenging hike to the Hollywood sign is 3 miles round trip with 875 feet of elevation change. Hikers in good shape will take about 3 hours to finish this trail.

2. Climb the Baldwin Hills Stairs

Baldwin The Scenic Overlook is a tiny hilltop park overlooking downtown LA. It features hiking trails and a new visitor center, but it might be best known for its staircase — 282 giant steps leading to the top of the overlook. You can do them once, and then as you build up strength and endurance, try for two, three or even four rounds of stair-climbing. You're rewarded at the top with spectacular views of Los Angeles.

3. The Mural Mile

More than 50 murals adorn city walls in a onemile stretch along Van Nuys Boulevard in the Pacoima neighborhood of the San Fernando Valley. This is a great walk for those not up the any of the more strenuous workouts on this list, and you also get to support this community's efforts to revitalize their city and create a cultural landmark. Take a peek at the artwork you'll see along the way on the Mural Mile website.

4. Take a donation-only yoga class

FRIDA VIEW: one of the many murals in Pacoima's Mural Mile

Yoga is the perfect practice for people of all ability levels. You'll improve muscle strength, gain greater tone and flexibility, lose weight, reduce stress and just generally feel better about yourself. Ideally, you'd would give a little something to take one of the following yoga classes, but it's not required: Yogala in Echo Park offers at least one donation-only yoga class every weekday; Yoga Circle Downtown offers a number of donationonly classes, as does Santa Monica's Power Yoga. Runyon canyon also offers donation only yoga!

It might be a little late to get that summer beach bod you desired, but you

for next year :)

can at least get a head start See you out there! Craig Young

Jamie happy to be 'weekend dad'

TV chef doesn't see the children for five days - and says they're 'fine with it'
Food mogul explains how he's 'flat out' from Monday to Friday

He appears to be a hands-on dad, posting loads of adoring pictures on social media.

But Jamie Oliver says he's happy not to see his five children during the week and would rather be a 'weekend dad'.

The TV chef, whose offspring with wife Jools are aged between one and 16, blamed his hectic work schedule and thinks his brood are 'fine' with him not being present.

In an interview with Good Housekeeping magazine, the 43-year-old said: 'It is chaos in our house. In a nice way. You have teenage emotions, you have nine-year-olds, you have babies in nappies.

'I'm mainly a weekend parent – I will get to the key school events but I'm flat out Monday to Friday and normally see the children a couple of nights during the week. I'm happy with that, I think they are fine with it'

Oliver, who lives in an £8.9million North London mansion and runs a £240million cooking empire, also revealed he had to set alarms to tell him to go to sleep after only getting three hours of sleep a night.

The healthy eating campaigner said: 'I have to treat going to the gym as work, or I won't get there.

'I treat sleep like work, too. I have to set alarms to tell me to go to bed – at the age of 43! It is pathetic but it works.

'I put on a little eye mask, I get the room the right temperature and I open the window. It works brilliantly and I have improved my sleep massively.

'I had five years where I was getting three hours' sleep a day and your optimistic Jamie was getting less optimistic. That was not me and so I fixed it.'

The star, who recently celebrated his 18th wedding anniversary, did not rule out having more children despite already being a father to Poppy Honey, 16, Daisy Boo, 15, Petal Blossom, nine, Buddy Bear, seven, and one-year-old River Rocket.

He said: 'I honestly thought I would have two children. Jools probably would like another child.

'I think we are done, but you never know with Jools – she has a very powerful, magic spell that can grow on you.'

Mel B finalizes divorce with a scary payout to ex-hubby

Mel B has finalised her divorce from Stephen Belafonte, bringing an end to an acrimonious split.

A judge in Los Angeles ordered the former Spice Girl to pay $350,000 (£270,000) of her exhusband's legal fees - as well as a monthly sum of $5,000 (£3,800) in child support for their six-year-old daughter Madison.

The couple split in 2017, with Mel B accusing Mr Belafonte of being physically and emotionally abusive towards her and her children.

Those allegations, which he denied, were dropped during the court case. However, the couple agreed to stay 200 yards away from each other after Judge Mark Juhas threw out a restraining order they had each tried to put on the Exceptions will be made for Madison's school events, including extracurricular activities and teacher conferences, after the couple agreed to share custody.

The pair were also ordered to set aside $1.5 million (£850,000) when they sell their former marital home to pay back taxes they

After the hearing Belafonte said in a video: "Getting out of my horrific, disastrous divorce court right now. Once again, all allegations dismissed," he said

"I went through a long year-and-a-half, two years of almost being asked to give up the rights to my daughter, financial things. And you know what? I stuck with it. There was nothing but lies told about me ... That means, that guess what? It's settled, done.

BRITISH WEEKLY

Transfers: Premier League ins and outs

The transfer window closed on Thursday evening and probably the biggest story is what didn't happen. Tottenham Hotspur became the first team in the Premier League era to bring in no extra players in what some observers have called an alarming lack of ambition, given their roster of young stars and their much-coveted manager, Mauricio Pocchettino.

Elsewhere Liverpool were among the clubs whose activities were most ambitious, although they got most of their business done early, with Fabinho (£39m) arriving from Monaco, Alisson from Roma for £66m, Naby Keita from Leipsiz for £48m and Xherdan Shaqiri from Stoke for £13m.

 $C\ h\ a\ m\ p\ i\ o\ n\ s$ Manchester City also limited their dealings, with the only marquee signing being Riyad Mahrez, arriving from Leicester for £60m. Across town at Old Trafford Manchester United failed in a late bid to sign Toby Alderweireld from Spurs, mainly thanks to his whopping £55m price tag. He was deemed too expensive for a star with just two years left on his contract. The Red Devils could land their man for just £25million in 12 months' time, though.

They did however secure Fred from Shakhtar Donetsk £47m earlier in the summer, along with Diogo Dalot from Porto for £19m.

Arsenal splashed the cash on Bernd Leno and Lucas Torreira for £19m and £26m, respectively, and also let go Calum Chambers (Fulham), Jack Wilshere (West Ham) and Santi Cazorla (Villareal).

Everton were among the busiest of the sides in the market, snapping up Colombia defender Yerry Mina, 23, from Barcelona for £27.19m, while agreeing to sign Mina's team-mate Andre Gomes on loan. The Toffees have also signed Brazilian winger Bernard on a permanent deal.

West Ham have also made their fans happy with raft of signings, including Spanish striker Lucas Perez and midfielder Jack Wilshire from Arsenal, Colombia midfielder Carlos Sanchez from Fiorentina, Lukasz Fabianski from Swansea, Ryan Fredericks from Fulham and Andriy Yarmolenko fro Borussia Dortmund

Perez has signed a three-year deal with the Hammers and Sanchez moves to the London Stadium on a two-year contract.

Down at Craven

Cottage newly promoted Fulham also signaled their intent to keep up with the big boys with Calum Chambers, Andre Schurrle (Borussia Dortmund), Aleksandar Mitrovic (Newcastle) and Alfie Mawson (Swansea) all arriving, along with Joe Bryan from Bristol City on loan and Sergio Rico from Seville.

Cardiff and Wolves, promoted alongside the Cottagers, have also spent significant sums this summer .

After breaking their transfer record on Wednesdy to bring in Adama Traoré, the winger, for £18 million from Middlesbrough, Wolves were expected to take their summer spending to £81 million. Nuno Espírito Santo snagged Leander Dendoncker, the Anderlecht midfielder, within a few hours of Thursday's deadline.

Up at St. James's Park, Newcastle's long-suffering fans had some reason for optimisim with the arrival of Fabian Schar [Deportivo La Coruna] for £3m, and Martin Dubravka [Sparta Prague] Ki Sungyeung [Swansea] Kenedy [Chelsea] Yoshinori Muto [Mainz] and Solomon Rondon [West Brom] on a combination of loan deals, free transfers and undisclosed fees.

KROENKE:

shareholders values
the Gunners at £1.8bn.
Acquiring Usmanov's
shares for £550m means remaining shareholders would be legally obliged to sell theirs to Kroenke.

The KSE statement to the London Stock Exchange said taking the club private will help to further Arsenal's "strategy and ambitions".

"KSE's ambitions for the club are to see it competing consistently to win the Premier League and the Champions League, as well as the major trophies in the women's senior game and at youth level," it added.

Arsenal have a new manager in charge this season after Unai Emery took over from Arsene Wenger, who had been Gunners boss for 22 years.

In Wenger's final season, Arsenal finished sixth in the Premier League as they missed out on the Champions League but qualified for the group stages of the Europa League.

The Gunners start their Premier League campaign against champions Manchester City on Sunday.

While Kroenke says taking sole ownership will benefit the club, the Arsenal Supporters' Trust (AST) called the news "a dreadful day" for the Gunners.

"Stan Kroenke taking the club private will see the end of supporters owning shares in Arsenal

USMANOV: the Uzbek-born magnate has been locked in a power struggle with Kroenke for several years and their role upholding custodianship values," said an AST statement.

AST added that by becoming the 100% owner, Kroenke would be able to take "detrimental actions" such as paying "management fees and dividends without any check or balance".

It added: "The AST is also extremely concerned to note that this purchase is being funded by a loan.

"The AST is wholly against this takeover which marks a very sad day for Arsenal football club."

Kroenke will be raising the capital to take control of the club with £45m of his own money and borrowing £557m, which he says will not be against the club.

"The offer is not being funded by way of any debt finance (bank loans, payment in kind loans or other debt or quasi debt interest bearing obligations) for which the payment of interest on, repayment of, or security for any liability (contingent or otherwise) will depend on the business of Arsenal," said KSE's statement.

In the offer document, each of Arsenal's 62,217 shares are valued at at £29,419.64.

KSE currently has 41,743 of those, with Usmanov holding a stake of 18,695, which would be worth £550m under the offer.

Acquiring Usmanov's shares would move KSE past the 90% threshold at which, under the Companies Act, they would be able to compulsorily purchase the remaining 1,779 shares, which are valued at £52.3m.

Apart from Arsenal, Kroenke's assets also include NFL side Los Angeles Rams, the NBA's Denver Nuggets, the NHL outfit Colorado Avalanche, MLS side Colorado Rapids and Colorado Mammoth of the National Lacrosse League.

Misfiring Celtic face uphill battle in Athens

Dominant Celtic will have to score in Greece after being held to a draw by 10-man AEK Athens in the first leg of their Champions League qualifier on Wednesday night.

Callum McGregor smashed in the 17thminute opener from a tight angle, but the Greeks drew level before the break through Viktor Klonaridis' away goal.

K o n s t a n t i n i s Galanopoulos was dismissed after receiving two bookings in seven second-half minutes.

But Celtic could not convert their numerical advantage into a winner.

Olivier Ntcham and substitutes Leigh Griffiths and Scott Sinclair came closest to providing Brendan Rodgers' men with that fillip.

The decisive meeting takes place next Tuesday, and Celtic must find the net to stand a chance of progressing to the play-off round.

The Greek champions spent most of the first half repelling wave after wave of attack from a home side who looked increasingly hungry.

Kieran Tierney and McGregor were the architects of everything that was good for Celtic - including the goal. Tierney terrorised right-back Michalis Bakakis and his team-mate provided a special, driven finish.

The message from Rodgers looked clear:

overrun Athens in a shock-and-awe show of strength from the first whistle. After the opener it looked like it would work, but AEK refused to buckle.

Their goal was completely avoidable from a Celtic point of view after a number of warnings that a leveller could come. Klonaridis pounced on indecision in the home defence and rifled past Craig Gordon.

It gave Athens the shot in the arm they needed and injected some nerves into the stands of a packed Celtic Park.

In the end, it was the perfect defensive display from a side who will fancy their chances in the baking heat of Greece next week.

Courtois makes Real deal

Keeper heads to Madrid as Blues pay world record fee for his replacement

Chelsea have agreed to sell Belgium goalkeeper Thibaut Courtois to Real Madrid, with midfielder Mateo Kovacic arriving on loan from the Spanish club.

The Blues say the deal is still subject to Courtois agreeing personal terms and completing a medical, but the formalities were expected to be completed by Friday, after press time.

presented the Real 26-year-old, who will sign a six-year deal, as their new signing at noon on Thursday.

Athletic Bilbao's Kepa

Arrizabalaga is set to arrive as his replacement for £71m - a world record for a goalkeeper.

And Croatia midfielder Kovacic, 24, will have a medical on Wednesday before joining on a season-long loan.

He has spent the past three campaigns at Real since joining from Inter Milan, and played in Croatia's run to the World Cup final in July.

Courtois has been a Chelsea player since 2011, when he signed from Genk.

He was immediately loaned to Atletico Madrid, where he played until 2014, before returning as the Blues' number one, ousting longtime fan favorite Peter Cech.

On Monday he was absent from Chelsea's Cobham training ground, where he was due to take part following his involvement at the World Cup.

Courtois was voted goalkeeper the tournament, with Belgium beating England in a third-place play-off. Courtois played a total of 154 appearances for Chelsea, winning the Premier League on two occasions.

COURTOIS: Real Madrid agreed a reported £31m fee that will also see Mateo Kovacic spend a year on loan in London.

Courtois also boasts ample experience in Spain, having made identical number appearances of Atletico which included a starring role in the Colchoneros' 2013-14 Liga triumph.

Courtois may have to wait long to face his old club, with Real Madrid set to face Atletico in the UEFA Super Cup on August 15

WINNER TAKE ALL: Kroenke has bid £550m for Arsenal

Stan Kroenke set to gain total control of Gunners shareholder Alisher Usmanov says he will accept rival Stan Kroenke's bid to buy him out for £550m and take full control of the club.

American billionaire Kroenke owns 67% of Arsenal through his KSE company announced on Tuesday he had made an offer to buy up the rest of the shares.

Usmanov has confirmed he has agreed to part with his 30% stake in the club.

"I have decided to sell my shares in Arsenal, which could be the best football club in the world," he said.

Despite

shareholding, Usmanov is not part of the board or the decision-making at Arsenal.

The metal magnate made a £1bn bid to buy the Emirates outfit in May 2017 but this was rejected by Kroenke.
