BA "Worst Polluter" on Atlantic route

British Airways has been named as the most polluting transatlantic airline, amid concerns over its reliance on "inefficient" long-haul aircraft such as the jumbo jet.

by the A study International Council on Clean Transportation (ICCT) placed BA bottom out of 20 leading airlines, finding that the British flag carrier burnt more fuel per passenger than any of its competitors, and 22 per cent more than the industry average on busy flight routes between North America and Europe. In 2017 BA burnt 63 per cent more fuel on average than the best carrier, named as Norwegian.

Researchers criticised BA's over-reliance on "inefficient" aircraft such as the Boeing 747 and the Airbus A380 superjumbo.

Many other long-haul carriers are phasing out 747s and A380s in favour of smaller, more fuel-efficient planes. BA, by contrast, flies more 747s – jumbo jets – than any other airline, and is increasing its A380 fleet.

The report will add to concerns that airlines are failing to reduce their carbon footprint quickly enough, despite significant improvements in airline technology.

It also deals a further blow to BA's reputation after it was widely criticized last week when criminals hacked into the airline's website and app, stealing up to 380,000 customer bank details.

higher fuel burn

BA, which is the fourthbusiest transatlantic airline, behind Delta, United and American, defended its record. It insisted that the figures were skewed by the higher proportion of space on BA flights given over to business and firstclass travellers, making the airline appear less efficient than its rivals. It said it was on course to add more fuel-efficient aircraft to its fleet.

The ICCT report criticised BA's reliance on "inefficient Boeing 747 and Airbus A380 aircraft" which have higher fuel burn and lower seating density than other long-haul planes. "Airlines" that predominantly use large aircraft very Lufthansa and British Airways had the lowest overall fuel efficiency on transatlantic flights. This  $is \ largely \ because \ aircraft$ with four engines have generally higher fuel burn per passenger than those with two," it said.

"This, combined with the fact that fuel is typically the single largest operational expense for airlines, helps explain the industry-wide trend of retiring ageing Boeing 747 aircraft and the sluggish market for the superjumbo Airbus A380. Only British Airways is bucking this trend by wanting to purchase more A380s."

The study was based on an analysis of the number of passengerkilometres flown for every litre of fuel burnt.

It found that Norwegian, which relies

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT: BA is the fourth busiest transatlantic carrier on fuel-efficient Boeing 787 Dreamliners for transatlantic routes, was the most efficient airline, with 44 passengerkilometres per litre. This was 33 per cent higher than the industry average.

The figures are skewed by the fact that Norwegian, a budget carrier, squeezes more passengers onto flights than almost any other carrier. It also had the third-lowest share of premium seats, which typically take up much more space.

Salisbury poisonings: tourist claims 'deeply offensive', says government

■ Russian Suspects appear on state-run TV; poisoning claims met with denial and mockery

Claims the suspects in the poisoning of a Russian ex-spy were only in the UK as tourists are "deeply offensive to the victims", the British government has said.

The two men told the state-run RT channel on Thursday they had travelled to Salisbury on the recommendation of friends.

Downing Street described the interview as "lies and blatant fabrications".

The UK believes the men are Russian military intelligence officers who tried to kill ex-spy Sergei Skripal and his daughter Yulia in March.

The Skripals survived being poisoned by the nerve agent Novichok, but Dawn Sturgess - a woman not connected to the original attack - died in July after being exposed to the same substance.

"The lies and blatant fabrications in this interview given to a Russian state-sponsored TV station are an insult to the public's intelligence," Prime Minister Theresa May's spokesman said.

"More importantly, they are deeply offensive to the victims and loved ones of this horrific attack. Sadly, it is what we have come to expect."

Foreign Secretary Jeremy Hunt tweeted: "Time to stop the fake TV shows - the world has found Russia out on this."

Appearing nervous and uncomfortable, the men confirmed their names as those announced by the UK investigators - Alexander Petrov and Ruslan Boshirov. "Those are our real names," they said.

The men said they worked in the sports nutrition business and had travelled to London for a short holiday, fitting in a couple of day trips to Salisbury.

'normal blokes'

"Our friends had been suggesting for a long time that we visit this wonderful town," Mr Petroy said.

Mr Boshirov added: "There is the famous Salisbury cathedral, well known not just across Europe, but probably around the whole world.

"It's known for its 123m-tall spire. It's known for its clock, the first clock to ever be invented in the world, which is still working."

They said they only stayed an hour in Salisbury on Saturday 3 March because of the snowy weather conditions.

Mr Petrov said: "Of course, we went there to see Stonehenge, Old Sarum, but we couldn't do it because there was muddy slush everywhere."

They said they returned on Sunday 4 March to visit the sights.

The two men admitted they may have passed Mr Skripal's house by chance "but we don't know where it is located," Mr Petrov said.

When asked about Novichok, they emphatically denied carrying it, or the modified Nina Ricci perfume bottle which UK investigators say contained the substance.

"For normal blokes, to be carrying women's perfume with us, isn't that silly?" Mr Boshirov asked.

The two men told RT their lives had been "turned upside down" by the allegations.

"We're afraid to go out, we fear for ourselves, our lives and lives of our loved ones," said Mr Boshirov.

RT is Russia's staterun international broadcaster, and the pair were interviewed by its chief editor, Margarita Simonyan. "Their passports match and the photos and the information from the British side shows it's these people," she said.

But one veteran Moscow reporters described the interview as carefully choreographed and bizarre, pointing out that in tone and content it matched the whole Russian response to the case - flat denial mixed with mockery.

TWO SUSPECTS IN SKRIPAL POISONING SPEAK TO RT'S EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Alexander Petrov and Ruslan Boshirov: told RT their lives had been 'turned upside down'

British police believe the men to be officers of Russian military intelligence, GRU, who may have travelled on false passports to London from Moscow in March.

They say the purpose of the men's visit to Salisbury on 3 March was reconnaissance, and on 4 March they returned to apply Novichok to the Skripals' front door.

The Crown Prosecution

Service (CPS) says there is enough evidence to convict the two men, although it is not applying to Russia for their extradition because Russia does not extradite its own nationals.

However, a European Arrest Warrant has been obtained in case they travel to the EU, and Home Secretary Sajid Javid has warned that the men will be caught and prosecuted if they ever step out of Russia.

More bad headlines for Boris

BORIS JOHNSON was in the news again this week as it emerged he was splitting from his wife of 25 years, Marina Wheeler, amid rumors of an affair with a young Tory party staffer, Carrie Symonds.

Speculation is mounting as to whether his friendship with the young, blonde spin doctor, 24 years his junior, may have played a part in the split, after it was reported that they had enjoyed an intimate Valentine's Day dinner at Rules restaurant in Covent Garden, central London. A week earlier they had been photographed together at the Conservatives' fundraising Black and White Ball in the capital.

Mr Johnson, 54, also attended her 30th birthday party in March.

Mr Johnson is said to have bombarded Ms Symonds with playful text messages, and her friends have described how she showed off "mischievous" messages that she allegedly received from him while attending a wedding near his country home in Kent.

central London. A week It was suggested that he earlier they had been sent a car to pick her up photographed together later in the evening.

One senior Tory party member, said of Symonds: "The Tories love a social gathering and there were always a lot of parties for her to be at. The rest of us always wondered how she could afford all the dresses and designer handbags and the going out, on her kind of salary.

"Her friends were all beautiful. It looked like an episode of Love Island. But she didn't blow away any of us at No 10."

UK readies for cyber attacks from Kremlin

BRITAIN has bolstered Headquarters its cyber defences to protect key targets from Russian hackers, security experts say.

Intelligence chiefs confirmed this week the measures were introduced amid heightened tension between London and Moscow after the Salisbury nerve agent attack. Ciaran Martin, chief executive of the National Cyber Security Centre, said the Kremlin poses a "serious and sustained" threat to national institutions and businesses.

said: Mr Martin "We've been heightened alert since the horrors of Salisbury and have put in place various protective Russia measures. has been a serious threat to our cyber security interests for a considerable period.

"I can't really go into the detail of the day-today intelligence picture of what we are spotting, but let me be clear - we remain on high alert."

Mr Martin noted that Russia has tended to target "critically important" national assets rather than "consumer or citizenfacing" attacks.

The Centre part of Government Communications

Cheltenham. Its head, Jeremy Fleming, said Britain's cyber intelligence agency was ready to counter an "active and real threat" posed by the "brazen Kremlin". He said British spies are able to "deploy the full range of tools from across our national security apparatus" to target Russian agents.

After police named the two suspects in the poisoning of Sergei Skripal and his daughter, the revelation sparked suggestions Britain could retaliate with cyber strikes. Mr Martin said: "You would never comment on sources and methods that might be used...naturally, that detail is sensitive.

"Our job is to make the UK the hardest target possible and the most resilient target possible – whether that's from a Russian attack, another state attack, or from criminal groups who are going to damage the economy."

The Centre was set up in October 2016 and Mr Martin said: "In its first year, the NCSC registered 590 cyber "significant" incidents across the UK. Attack targets included key national institutions, businesses and other organisations.

Johnson:

The insider said that Ms Symonds "made quite a few enemies at Tory HQ because it never felt like she was a team-player . . . It always felt like she was scheming and plotting. It was, 'Where's Carrie?' 'Oh, she's off with Gove or some minister or other.' She was always playing the game. It never felt like she was doing it for the party. She's very, very cliquey."

Ms Wheeler, 54, a human rights barrister who was made a QC in 2016, helped to convince Mr Johnson to back Brexit.

She is Mr Johnson's second wife and mother to four of his children: Milo, Lara, Cassia and Theodore.

Few who know the famously unfaithful politician were expecting Ms Symonds to become the next Mrs Johnson.

"She's intelligent and pretty," a source said. "He's lonely and bored. Who knows, they may grow old together, but if she thinks she's struck gold she's in for a shock."

Oliver Hoare, former lover of Princess Diana, dies at 73

THIS WEEK saw the death from cancer of Oliver Hoare, a London art dealer and society figure who is best known for his love affair with the late Princess Diana.

A married father of three, Hoare was said to have begun his affair with the princess in 1991. Then 46, he was 16 years Diana's senior, but according to reports from both former royal protection officers and several of Diana's friends, the two enjoyed a natural rapport and strong sexual attraction.

According to Andrew Morton's book Diana: In Pursuit of Love (2004), by 1991 the princess was calling into Hoare's gallery in Pimlico a couple of times a week to see the married dealer. and on more than one occasion would pay secret visits to his Chelsea home when his wife was away for romantic trysts.

By 1994, according to Tina Brown's book The Diana Chronicles, the princess was dreaming of marrying Hoare, moving to Italy and raising a second family. On one occasion, when a nocturnal fire alarm went off in Diana's apartment in Kensington Palace, her detective found an unkempt Hoare hiding behind a potted bay tree in the hallway smoking a cigar. On another, Hoare was supposedly spotted climbing into the boot of her car.

To keep their affair under wraps, Oliver urged Diana to get rid of her royal protection officers.

But by the time she did, it was too late. The Prince of Wales had learned of his wife's recklessness and so, too, had Oliver's wife. This would prove fatal for their liaisons, as Oliver was so desperate to make his marriage to French oil heiress Diane de Waldner work.

bombshell book

While Diane was said to be furious, Prince Charles was perplexed by the relationship and even asked a mutual friend: "What on earth can they talk about?"

Some claimed at the time that Charles welcomed relationship for taking the heat off his own dalliances with his longtime lover and now-wife, Camilla Parker Bowles, which had been exposed in a bombshell book by Andrew Morton in May

'humiliating events'

But they continued to share their homes at Kensington Palace and Highgrove, still living under the same roof as William and Harry, then ten and eight.

Her former royal protection officer Ken needed him at every conceivable moment.

"She confided to me that he was the first man who had ever aroused her physically. That admission did much to explain the humiliating events that followed."

By 1995 Hoare was vacillating between the princess and his wife. Meanwhile, his household was being plagued by hundreds of nuisance phone calls, which the police traced to phone boxes in the Kensington Palace area, although Diana denied all responsibility. According to Sarah Bradford, the royal biographer, when the relationship ended Hoare wrote Diana a "charming letter thanking her for all the happiness she had given him and returning her present of a pair of her father's cufflinks".

Hoare never spoke a word of the affair.

Fenella Fielding, serious actress and Carry On Vamp, dead at 90

Actress Fenella Fielding has died at the age of 90 after suffering a stroke. She was a serious actress remembered for a single, stand-out comic performance in Carry On Screaming.

Although she played play Ibsen, Shakespeare and Euripides on stage, she is best known as Valeria: the camp vamp star of Carry On Screaming - draped on a divan in a skintight dress; her voice oozing with sex appeal and sporting eyelashes like upturned claws. It was in the 1966 film that she delivered the line "Do you mind if I smoke?" while literally steaming on a chaise longue, cementing her reputation as a comedic vamp. However, her career might have taken a very different turn.

Fielding was born

Fenella Marion Feldman about her moods. In in Hackney, London to a Romanian Jewish mother and a Lithuanian Jewish father. Though father Phillip managed a cinema, he was horrified at the idea that his daughter might appear on screen. Fielding attended drama school for just a year before her parents forced her to leave, fearing for her reputation. Nonetheless, pursued her dream and by the late 1950s she was already a star, appearing in Harold Pinter and Peter Cook's Pieces of Eight and Hancock's Half Hour.

Fielding starred in two Carry On films. Kenneth Williams played her brother younger in Carry On Screaming. He described her as "La Fielding" in his diaries, where he was unkind turn, she described him as "very difficult to work with. When he felt like it, it was just bliss. But he could be hideous."

Fielding was also a regular in the Doctor comedies and made guest appearances on Morecambe & Wise. But while she was making a name as a comedic icon, she also played Shakespeare and Ibsen, Chekov and Sheridan. She is rumoured to have kept the writings of Plato on her bedside table.

Italian film director Federico Fellini was captivated by Fielding's serious side and asked her to star in one of his films. She turned him down because she was already contracted to appear at the Chichester Festival Theatre. It was a sliding doors moment. Fielding told

SIGNATURE ROLE: Fielding with Kenneth Williams in Carry On Screaming

Independent: was gorgeous. But I'd already said yes to a play at Chichester. I thought it would be dishonourable to let them down. I would say that's the thing I really regret."

Fielding's later included variety of genres of television; a part in Rik Mayall and Adrian Edmondson's Guest House Paradiso, and a cameo in Skins. At 79, Fielding toured Ireland with a production of The Vagina Monologues. She also recorded an album with her take on Robbie Williams single "Angels" and Public Image Limited's "Rise". Last year, she published her autobiography. Remembering her most famous line, she called it, Do You Mind if I Smoke?

Submarines could be to blame for rash of Scottish whale deaths

A record number of whales dying close to Scottish shores may be linked to an increase in foreign submarine activity in the north Atlantic, it is claimed.

In just over a month, the carcasses of 43 Cuvier's beaked whales have washed ashore in the Outer Hebrides, Islay, Skye, Tiree, Mull and Ulva – 15 times higher than the annual average.

The scale of the loss has prompted the UK and Scottish governments to investigate the cause of the deaths.

Mariel Ten Doeschate. a data analyst with the government-funded Scottish Marine Animal Scheme Stranding (Smass), said that sonar signals from submarines or seismic surveys could be among the contributory factors.

It is thought that the sonar waves can frighten deep-diving whales, forcing them to surface too quickly and leading to symptons similar to decompression sickness, also known as the bends, in humans.

"This particular species is very sensitive to sonar because they dive up to three kilometres," Ms Ten Doeschate, said. "This could have a real effect on population numbers so we want to ask more targeted questions of the UK government following the investigation."

May Gavin Williamson, the UK defence secretary said that Russian submarine activity in the north Atlantic had increased tenfold. He said that in 2010 a Royal Navy ship was called on just once to respond to Russian navy vessels, whereas last year the UK had to react 33 times. Nato officials have said that Russian submarine activity is at the highest levels since the Cold War.

£50k fine for drink drive 'keeper

Cup-winning captain Hugo Lloris has admitted being more than twice the drinkdrive limit when he was stopped by police in central London.

The Tottenham and France goalkeeper was charged following a routine patrol stop in Gloucester Place, Marylebone, in the early hours of 24 August.

The 31-year-old, of East Finchley, pleaded guilty when appeared at Westminster Magistrates' Court.

He was fined £50,000 and banned from driving for 20 months.

The court heard police in an unmarked car spotted Lloris' Porsche Panamera driving at 15mph (24kph) in a 30mph (48kph) zone.

He veered his car parked "towards vehicles" before correcting himself and went through a red light, prosecutor Henry Fitch said.

When officers stopped the car.

Meet a Member: Janette La Bella

Meet Janette from Hastings who moved to LA 14years ago to pursue love.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

Well, it took a long time to find a bloke who had a good name and came from SoCal (I met one from SoCal, but his last name was Humpalot - another one with a nice last name, but he was from Detroit). No, I didn't really want to move, but I had to choose - and I chose to go to the USA, since my husband works for the US Forces, and his time in Europe was up.

What do you miss most from home?

My mum, my friends and family - and of course, chocolate and being able to travel to other countries easily!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

I was really scared! I would drive from home (Lancaster) to work (Torrance) in one lane, doing the speed limit and many Americans would say "oh, we must meet - I'll call you" and they never did. I started to wonder if I should start showering more, but then realised that's how a lot of people are. I tried to volunteer at an old people's home near my work, in Redondo Beach, but they shooed me out, saying they had enough people. I was very sad. I knew what it was like to be lonely and I thought it must be awful to be old and lonely and you can't get out. Then someone told me I should volunteer at the animal shelter and my life hasn't been the same since.

Oh, did I venture off the question? The other big difference is the food here. I love it - so much variety and so many fantastic places to go and eat!

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

I would say, if it is in your heart, then do it. You only live once. You don't have to stav here forever.

I don't know if I will stay here forever, but I'm enjoying life, a day at a time.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your boss Mars is visiting powerful Aquarius currently which can make your life chaotic for a while. Bear in mind nothing lasts forever and new doors can open unexpectedly. The next couple of weeks ahead are much busier - so pace yourself.

TAURUS: You need to look long and hard this week ahead at where you are heading. If it is the right direction with some creative project you should move forward swiftly. Do not waste time if you know this right for you. Only by taking the bull by the horns will you succeed.

GEM INI: With Saturn the karma maker about to turn in a positive direction it's very possible that any financial situation will heat up. Keep your mind focused on the expected outcome and do not back away from your goal. You can move out of an extended time frame of uncertainty by mid next month.

CAN CER: You may or may not be looking forward to coming changes. Due to positive energy about to move into your life open up to the possibilities if you can. Either way get ready, you have Saturn opposite you currently and he will move you in the right direction.

LEO: As this month ends you could find yourself stretched beyond your financial limits. One thing to remember; you can only do your best. It's going to get easier before the middle of next week to budget. Keep smiling - you look good!

VIR GO: Any task you take on will be easier to deal with and will likely last only until the end of the coming week. Be on the safe side - make it a priority to complete any thing outstanding because you will be busier next month. Happy Birthday.

LIBRA: Travel is much on your mind and this can make you stressed or feel limited. The clue is to make an effort to keep busy. Venus in your money area currently is bringing you better cash flow ultimately and will leave some unexpected gifts.

SCOR PIO: Pressure in some emotional areas may have got you frazzled. However now you have Venus in your house visiting you the pressure is already lifting. Jupiter is set to be busy bringing love in many ways in your life and times. This the highlight for the next few weeks.

SAG ITTARIUS: Whatever way you having been trying to move forward is not going to harm your end result now that Jupiter your boss is in a positive light for you. However do not take any short cuts financially, as Saturn is still active.

CAPRICORN: It is time to tell the truth, either for you or someone you know who is not. Mars in Aquarius can and will stir up your emotions. Do not let this get to you, especially this weekend. Best to lay low for now.

AQUARIUS: Social groups and gatherings will be much on your agenda these next few days or so. You will benefit from other people's input, so be open to what your close friends or family tell you. It will much to your advantage in your general life.

PISCES: This week you have the lovely Venus in your cousin sign Scorpio and she is assisting you to move onwards and upwards. Be low-key and spend time alone for a few days. This will help to keep you from feeling overwhelmed until you are feeling more sociable next week or so.

So what is a short form digital show? They used to be called web-series - but they got all fancy when web series started getting a bad rep. Usually, these are lowbudget and labour-oflove vehicles. Hardly anyone gets paid, but it's a great way to work on your craft and work with good people, hence the above. It's also a great way for actors to become SAG-eligible. And now you can be Emmy nominated, which means all the hard work can be recognized and appreciated.

This week, a few fellow actors and I have started a Monday morning admin class where we get together and see how we can support each other in goal setting and making things happen for each other. Support is something that seems to be missing a lot in a town like this - there's a lot of jealousy, secrecy and back-stabbing. But there is also plenty of good people willing to help and support. I first started this process about 18 years ago as part of the Beverly Hills Playhouse. You have worksheets to fill out each week so you can start monitoring your progress. Let me know if any of you are interesting in joining us. It's free and takes an hour of your time.

Elba teases on Bond; will it be a license to thrill?

There has been much speculation as to who will take over as James Bond when actor Daniel Craig, 50, steps down.

And the frontrunner by a country mile appears to be Luther star Idris Elba.

And far from shying away from the attention, the London-born talent took to Twitter this week and added fuel to the fire.

Alongside a closeup picture of his face, Idris penned the captioned: "My name's Elba. Idris Elba."

Needless to say, the teasing update sparked frenzy among the actor's 2.5 million followers.

In response to the post, one fan queried: "Does this mean what I think it means?"

While another quipped: "Ticket sales for women aged 18 to 74 for the James Bond movies just maxed out."

Sharing their excitement, one female follower noted: "If you're the next Bond, it'll be the first Bond film I ever see."

Eager to make things official, a straight-talking viewer remarked: "Please be 007. Don't tease us like this. Get that contract signed."

Seemingly taking Idris' cheeky post as confirmation, a hopeful Twitter user stated: "It's happening."

However, only last month Elba squashed all rumors he'll play Bond with a firm "no" so this news is confusing.

When asked if he'll be the next actor to take on the iconic spy role, Elba replied, "No," he told Good Morning Britain's reporter, bluntly.

And when further pressed if he prefers a martini shaken or stirred — a reference to the Bond films — the 45-year-old joked, "Stir fried, actually."

The 46-year-old actor is as British as they come. Born in Hackney in 1972 he started his professional life as a DJ before turning to acting and getting bits parts on TV, including a memorable turn as a gigolo in Absolutely Fabulous. His big break came when he landed a supporting turn on a 2001 episode of Law & Order, which in turn led tohis starring role in the landmark HBO drama series The Wire playing savvy drug kingpin Russell "Stringer" Bell, the role for which he is best known on these shores

And producer Barbara Broccoli, 58, seemed to be in his corner when she spoke recently about the possibility of the casting of James Bond becoming more diverse, saying, "Anything is possible."

So what is the truth? I will keep you all posted as updates come in!

the goalscoring burden on captain Harry Kane and proving what an important future role he has to play under Southgate.

He was England's biggest threat against Spain, scoring their goal in the 2-1 defeat and also having chances to add more - and he was lively again here.

Everton's Iordan Pickford firmly established as England's first-choice goalkeeper after his brilliant World Cup in Russia - but this was an opportunity for Stoke City's Butland to demonstrate why he can be regarded as his closest challenger.

It was a difficult night for the 25-yearold in the early stages when he miscued a clearance across the face of his own goal then played Tarkowski into trouble, Shaqiri wasting that chance to give Switzerland the lead.

Weekend Football Results

Southgate sets great store in his goalkeeper's ability with his feet and Butland's uncertainty was in sharp contrast to the confidence shown by Pickford and the manner in which he sets the tone for playing out from the back.

Butland made amends with a couple of blocks with his feet but, even though he has many qualities, he did not produce a performance that will put Pickford under any additional pressure.

More Irish controversy for Keano

ROY KEANE has been accused of a foulattack mouthed on Cardiff midfielder Harry Arter.

The Republic of Ireland assistant manager (above) allegedly called Arter a "p****" and a "c***" because he was injured and unable to train in May. Keane was also apparently involved in a bust-up with Jon Walters around Ireland's friendlies with France and USA.

A leaked WhatsApp audio of Stephen Ward surfaced this week in which the Ireland and Burnley defender discussed the clashes. Ward said: "Apparently he [Arter] was getting treatment in the treatment room and Roy walked in and was like, 'When are you going to train you f****** p****?'.

"Harry was like, 'What?', and he was like,

'Any chance of you training?'.

He explained the situation again and Roy was going off, going, 'You're a c***, you don't even care, you don't want to train'.

Ireland manager Martin O'Neill deflected repeated questions about Keane at his post-match press conference following the team's 1-1 friendly draw in Poland, saying the result showed a squad with "high morale".

"In terms of morale, it is still very, very high," O'Neill told Irish broadcaster RTE after Tuesday's game.

These players want to play, and I think tonight they showed it.

"They wanted to play on Thursday as well but we took a beating and they made some daft mistakes during the course of the game.'

"I thought there was some superb performances out there, notably young O'Dowda, but I have to say, on his debut, O'Brien did brilliantly for us.

"I have seen a lot of him over the last couple of year and the one thing you will get from him is that old word, the shift."

His first over in Test cricket cost 17 runs but in his third he bowled opener Mark Vermeulen.

He finished the innings with 5-73, the first of 26 five-wicket hauls in his Test career.

Anderson now has 564 Test wickets to his name, meaning only spinners Muttiah Muralitharan, Shane Warne and Anil Kumble have taken more.

England legend Cook exits on a high

■ Record-setting batsman scores 147 in final innings as England beat India at The Oval

ALASTAIR COOK marked the end of his distinguished England career in perfect style this week with victory over India and an imperious batting display at the Kia Oval, telling reporters that the fairytale ending was proof that "dreams come true"

The opener marked his 161st and last appearance with 147 as Jimmy Anderson surpassed Glenn McGrath's fast bowling record of 563 Test wickets on a landmark day for two England legends.

Cook's 33rd Test century saw him become the first England player to make a hundred on his first and last Test appearance and only the fifth man of all time.

But he insisted that his return to form will not change his mind about retiring. "It absolutely confirms my decision to retire. This is not just the culmination of three or four low scores, or bad games in a Test series," he said.

"It's weird because it was a really easy decision for me. Over the last 12 or 18 months things have started to creep into my mind. Losing that edge which has definitely happened in training that decision was made

"But it was obviously a big decision because chasing your dreams and playing for England is all I've really known.

"It's just time. It's time for me - it's time for my

"It's always nice people wanting a little bit more rather than trying to kick you out, and to go on your own terms makes it even

"I don't know how I've managed to go out on a high to be brutally honest but it is nice that it's happened.

"I've seen a few people go out not on their own scoring 147 in his final knock your own terms when your last-ever innings for England was a hundred is pretty special.

And Jimmy Anderson also proved that a man in his mid 30s can still compete as a fast bowler, as his five wickets took him past Australia great Glenn McGrath and on to 564 wickets.

Anderson made his debut as a 20-year-old against Zimbabwe Lord's in 2003.

Rashford gets England back to winning ways

A 54th minute strike from Marcus Rashford England ended their run of three successive defeats with victory over Switzerland in a scrappy and subdued friendly at Leicester's King Power Stadium on Tuesday night.

Manager Gareth Southgate made nine changes from the side that lost 2-1 to Spain in the Uefa Nations League game at Wembley on Saturday - and for long periods it showed.

Switzerland were the better side in the first half and Liverpool's Xherdan Shaqiri should have given them the lead early on, only to strike the post after England goalkeeper Jack Butland's clearance played James Tarkowski into trouble.

England, as they had to do, improved after the break and the decisive goal came in the 54th minute when Rashford arrived at the far post to turn in Kyle Walker's cross after Switzerland failed to clear a corner.

Manchester United's 20-year-old forward has only played 122 minutes for his club this season, has not started since the opening game against Leicester and was sent off after coming on as a substitute in their last game at Burnley.

Rashford put all that behind him to emerge as one of the big winners in these two England games, showing he has the potential to ease cont. on page 19, col. 1
