■ PM savaged as ministers quit over Brexit deal ■ Tory rebels call for leadership vote

Theresa May's prospects of remaining in Number Ten looked bleak this week as she was left at the mercy of her remaining Brexiteer cabinet ministers following an attempted coup and a wave of resignations.

Barely 24 hours after out is the right one for forcing her Cabinet to endorse the Brexit deal negotiated by Dominic Raab, May was left stunned by Raab's resignation and that of Pensions Secretary Esther McVey who both quit in protest at the withdrawal agreement, along with two junior ministers.

To make matters worse, leadership hopeful Jacob Rees Mogg called for a vote of no confidence in the PM, after claiming she had broken her own red lines on Brexit.

The outspoken chair of the European Research Group (ERG) of Tory Brexiters, who rejected the prime minister's plan moments after it was published on Wednesday night, announced he was submitting a letter to the chair of the backbench 1922 Committee, Sir Graham Brady. If 47 other Conservative MPs follow suit, it will trigger an automatic no confidence vote in the House.

But May kept a stiff upper lip amid the storm Thursday, telling reporters: "I am going to see this through.

"The course I have set our country," she said.

Late in the day it emerged that Michael Gove has rejected Mrs May's offer to become the new Brexit secretary after she made it clear he could not make changes changes to the negotiated deal. Gove, who is currently Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs commonly known as Defra - is now considering his position and contemplating his own resignation.

speculation

Other sources suggested a wider group of ministers were discussing whether to try to force the PM to seek changes to the deal.

Mrs May spent nearly three hours fielding largely critical questions from MPs before holding a press conference in Downing Street to answer her further critics.

She acknowledged the agreement negotiated with the EU had entailed "difficult and sometimes uncomfortable decisions".

"I understand fully that there are some who are unhappy with those compromises but this deal delivers what people voted for and it is in the national interest," she said.

"We can only secure it, if we unite behind the agreement reached in cabinet yesterday.

"If we do not move forward with that agreement, nobody can know for sure the consequences that will follow.

'busy day'

"It will be to take a path of deep and grave uncertainty when the British people just want us to get on with it. They are looking to the Conservative Party to deliver."

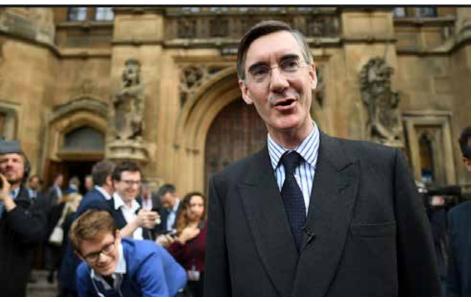

Asked if she would carry on as prime minister if she won a no-confidence vote by a single vote, Mrs May said: "Leadership is about taking the right decisions, not the easy ones."

She said her job was to "bring back a deal that delivers on the vote of the British people".

She added: "I believe this is a deal which does deliver that, which is in the national interest and

Rebellion in the air as Tories reject Brexit deal

FURIOUS Tory MPs this week branded Theresa May's Brexit deal a dangerous betrayal that would damage the country and lose her the support of millions of voters.

Former Ukip leader Nigel Farage described her as "not just the worst prime minister I've ever seen but perhaps the most dishonest one as well".

The Prime Minister insisted the agreement would allow Britain to "take back control of our borders, our laws and our money".

But the proposals left many of her MPs incensed and plunged her premiership into fresh jeopardy. DUP ramped up the pressure on the PM with warnings that the party, which provides crucial parliamentary support for her government, is poised to vote against the plan. Former Brexit Secretary David Davis issued a stark warning about the impact the deal would have. He said: "This deal would be a betrayal of the referendum result and have irreversible consequences for years to come.'

Conservative Peter
Bone warned Mrs May she faces losing the support of many Tory

MPs and voters. Tackling her directly during Prime Minister's Questions in the Commons, he said: "If the media reports about the EU agreement are in any way accurate, you will not be delivering the Brexit people voted for and today you will lose the support of many Conservative MPs and millions of voters across the country."

Senior Conservatives including Boris Johnson and Jacob Rees-Mogg urged ministers to reject the proposed agreement, which they fear could lock Britain in the EU's customs union indefinitely, blocking its ability to strike new trade deals elsewhere.

In a letter to Conservative MPs, European Research Group chairman Mr Rees-Mogg said they should not support the deal.

"The proposals released do not match the expectations set out in Theresa May's Lancaster House speech," he said.

"The proposed agreement will see the UK hand over £39billion to the EU for little or nothing in return," he said. The deal is "unacceptable to Unionists", will "lock us into an EU customs union and EU laws" and is "profoundly undemocratic".

"For these reasons I cannot support the proposed agreement in Parliament and would hope that Conservative MPs would do likewise," he said.

Conservative MP Nadine Dorries, who has previously called for Mrs May's removal as leader, said: "The Cabinet backing this deal is the quickest route to a leadership election. Cabinet members know this and for the more ambitious, it can't come quick enough."

'danger'

Scotland Secretary David Mundell made clear he had concerns about the direction Brexit could take. He was among the 13 Conservative MPs north of the border to sign a joint letter warning the Prime Minister they could not support a deal that failed to restore "complete control and full sovereignty" over the UK's fishing waters. They said: "We could not support an agreement with the EU that would prevent the UK from independently negotiating access and quota shares...We also cannot stay in the Common Fisheries Policy after December 2020."

DOMINIC RAAB: unable to support the deal.....which he himself negotiated

Conservative Andrew Bridgen insisted the exit agreement was a "danger" to the country and said he expected a leadership challenge "imminently".
"I'm deeply unhappy," he said. "These proposals, if implemented, are a danger to the Government, the Conservative party, our country and our democracy. Í do honestly think that dissatisfaction is so high that I wouldn't be surprised if there was an imminent vote of confidence in the Prime Minister."

Protesters from the Leave Means Leave campaign gathered near Downing Street, calling for the Government to "ditch the deal". Its co-chairman, John Longworth, said Mrs May's plan was the "worst deal in history", adding: "It doesn't fulfil the Brexit vote, will effectively hamper any benefits of Brexit flowing to the economy and will make Britain an effective colony."

After last year's general election, the DUP signed up to a pact agreeing to support Mrs May's government, including legislation that delivers Brexit. But the party has been dismayed by the way the exit deal has developed and fear it puts the future of the Union at risk. DUP leader Arlene Foster said she would not back a deal that left Northern Ireland "adrift in the future" and warned there would be "consequences" for Mrs May if she put forward proposals that threatened to break up the United Kingdom.

Explainer: what are the key terms of the deal?

BRITAIN can only break free of temporary ties drawn up to stop a hard border in Ireland if Brussels also agrees.

Theresa May was warned against signing up to a backstop deal that the UK could not walk away from, but the exit deal confirms both sides must agree before it can be terminated. The 585-page document has inflamed Tory backbenchers who say there is little to show for the £39billion divorce bill the country will have to pay. A separate sevenpage document outlines of the plan for future trading relations. Key measures in the withdrawal agreement include:

- Rights of more than three million EU citizens living in the UK and around one million UK nationals living in the EU protected
- A time-limited transition period that provides a bridge to the future relationship and allowing businesses to continue trading as now until the end of 2020.

- The deal includes provisions to extend the transition for a temporary period and an exit divorce fee for UK taxpayers estimated to be between £35-39billion to cover existing financial obligations
- A Northern Ireland "backstop" to ensure no hard border between Northern Ireland and Ireland. If more time is needed to finalize the future relationship, there are two options - the implementation period could be extended for a limited period of time or a "backstop" insurance policy could be activated. The backstop includes mechanism which either the UK or the EU can trigger to review the arrangements, which could ultimately lead to the backstop ceasing to apply. But the UK will not have the power to unilaterally withdraw from the backstop arrangements.

- A mechanism for resolving any disputes between the UK and the EU. First, disputes will be consulted on in a Joint Committee and, if no mutually agreed solution can be found, it will be resolved by an independent arbitration panel.
- Ending free movement and introducing a skillsbased immigration system.
- Visa-free travel for tourism and temporary business activity to ensure businesses can continue to provide services and move their talented people.
- A free trade area and deep co-operation on goods, with zero tariffs and quotas.

Charles: 'A Duchy original'!

■ Queen pays tribute to son at his glittering 70th birthday party

THE Queen paid a glowing tribute to her son and heir Prince Charles this week as he celebrated his 70th birthday at a glittering black tie dinner in Buckingham Palace.

In a warm and witty toast to some 200 guests in the ballroom Wednesday night, the 92-year-old monarch hailed the Prince of Wales as a "Duchy Original", in a reference to the organic food company he created in 1990. She also joked about his fondness for planting trees and praised Charles's second wife, the Duchess of Cornwall, for supporting him.

Earlier in the day Charles had been saluted by artillery guns, accepted a fun balloon and hosted a reception for 70 people who also turn 70 this year. His dinner in the evening was attended by an array of family, friends and European royalty.

The Queen told guests: "It is a privilege for any mother to be able to propose a toast to her son on his 70th birthday. It means that you have lived long enough to see your child grow up. It is rather like – to use an analogy I am certain will find favour – planting a tree and being able to watch it grow.

'charitable leader'

"My mother saw me turn 70, of course. And she was heard to observe that 70 is exactly the age when the number of candles on your cake finally exceeds the amount of breath you have to blow them out."

The Queen, who was joined by royalty from Norway, Denmark, Belgium and the Netherlands, described her pride in her son's life and work. She said: "Philip and I have seen Charles become a champion of conservation and the arts, a great charitable leader, a dedicated and respected heir to the throne to stand comparison with any in history and a wonderful father.

"Most of all, sustained by his wife Camilla, he is his own man, passionate and creative.

"So this toast is to wish a happy birthday to my son, in every respect a Duchy Original. To you Charles. To the Prince of Wales."

The day of celebrations had been kicked off by BBC Radio 4 playing the National Anthem at 7am. Gun salutes were fired at different locations including Cardiff Castle, the Tower of London and

Prince Charles – painted as a workaholic by his family - had a packed programme of meetings before his late afternoon engagement with other septuagenarians. and Camilla travelled the few hundred yards from Clarence House to Spencer House, the London home of Princess Diana's family which is now leased to a company. On his way in he stopped to speak to royal press reporters, who gave him a 70th birthday balloon and a container of Hot Nuts repellent designed to keep grey squirrels off bird feeders in his gardens.

He joked with reporters: "I didn't know you specialised in balloons. Where do you find these terrible things?" Asked how he was feeling he said: "Older. It's rather like indigestion – Many Happy Returns are not quite the same as you get older."

Camilla, 71, who had admitted last week struggling to think of a present for him, was asked if she found something in the end. She replied: "I did. But I'm not telling." Asked if he might start slowing down now, the Prince said: "You may see it, slowly but surely." Camilla interjected: "I doubt it."

At the reception the couple met guests who are volunteers with charities including The Prince's Trust, The Silver Line, Maggie's and Barnardo's. The group sang Happy Birthday before they all posed for a photo and sipped tea instead of bubbly. At the end Charles quipped: "I was asked just now outside whether I was going to slow down. I'm not sure I've got much alternative."

Michelle Obama: I hugged my friend the Queen because we were two tired ladies with sore feet

MICHELLE Obama has revealed she controversially hugged the Queen at Buckingham Palace because "we were just two tired ladies oppressed by our shoes".

She added in her new autobiography that "the Queen was OK" with the cuddle during a 2009 UK visit. Former First Lady Michelle, 54, also revealed her husband Barack has a soft spot for the Queen as she "reminded him of his nononsense grandmother Toot".

On a further visit in 2016, Mrs Obama said they were to be driven to Windsor Castle by Prince Philip, then 94, with Michelle in the front passenger seat, according to protocol. But their friend the Queen insisted she sit in the backseat with her. When the Obamas hesitated the Queen said: "Did they give you some rule about this? That's rubbish. Sit wherever you want."

Michelle is the great-great-granddaughter of a slave called Jim Robinson. In the autobiography, she talks about the agony of suffering a miscarriage and relying on IVF to have her two children. She adds she and Barack turned to marriage counselling in 2002. "Barack and I loved each other deeply but it was as if at the centre of our relationship there were suddenly a knot we couldn't loosen," Mrs Obama said. She branded Donald Trump "a bully" and ruled out a bid for the White House saying: "I have no intention of running for office, ever."

She also recalled a meeting with South African President Nelson Mandela in 2013 and said when she was introduced as the wife of the US President, Mr Mandela replied: "Oh lovely. Lovely."

"He looked at me with genuine interest, though I could have been anyone," she said.

Becoming: Michelle Obama, by Viking in hardback, is out now.

PC facing long jail term for rape of 13-year-old

■ Former Army veteran joined police "to gain the keys to a sweetshop" court told

A policeman described to five complainants "committed paedophile" has been convicted of raping a 13-year-old girl.

Naude, PC Ian joined Cheshire Constabulary "to gain the keys to a sweetshop" through access potential victims, Liverpool Crown Court heard.

The rape, which took place in his car, was filmed on his mobile phone. Footage of the attack was played to the

It has emerged Naude was already being investigated for sex offences when he became a student officer in April 2017.

Naude, of Market Drayton in Shropshire, was also found guilty of four charges of attempting to arrange the commission of a child sex offence and one charge of arranging a child sex offence, relating aged between 12 and 15.

The father of one, originally from South previously Africa, admitted 31 offences relating to grooming underage girls via a fake Facebook and Snapchat profile.

'enjoying it'

Cheshire Constabulary said Naude had passed the vetting process in October 2016 but that allegations of sex offences being investigated by two neighbouring forces in early 2017 did not get picked up.

During his two-week trial, Naude denied rape and sexual assault as he claimed the sex with the 13-year-old girl was consensual and that she "seemed to be enjoying

The court was told he met the girl after he was called to her house over a domestic incident in October 2017.

After looking her up on Facebook and exchanging sexual messages and photos, he returned to her home three days later.

He picked her up while her mother was out and drove her to a country lane where he attacked

Naude deleted more than 750 photos from his phone after an "administrative error" meant he had been copied into emails relating to the police investigation into his conduct.

He also concealed other devices including a second phone and a laptop in a field in Market Drayton.

Cheshire Constabulary said this had "frustrated" and "set back" the investigation.

Texts sent by Naude revealed a pattern, always starting with conversations "Hi, you look pretty Cheshire Police's Det Ch Supt Aaron Duggan said Naude "joined police intentionally to commit this type of offending.

"We know from our investigation that he's a sexual predator, a groomer and he's also a chancer."

Acting Chief Constable Janette McCormick said she believed Naude had been working alone but it would be "naive" to think there were not other offenders within Cheshire Police.

She has also said the force is now investigating other potential offences by Naude.

Naude he faced a "very significant sentence" and that even his defence conceded he had been "fairly depicted... as a cold, uncaring, selfish and cruel paedophile".

NSPCC An spokesperson said it was "evil" of Naude to "shamelessly label it [the rape] consensual".

Naude sentenced 13 on December.

Grindr cheat 'killed wife with Tesco bag'

A pharmacist suffocated his wife with a Tesco Bag For Life in an attempt to claim a £2m insurance payout and move to Australia with his boyfriend, a court has heard.

Mitesh Patel, 37, owned and ran the pharmacy business with Jessica, 34, who was strangled at their home in Middlesbrough in

He denies her murder. Jurors at Teesside Crown Court have heard Mr Patel cheated on his wife with men he met through dating app Grindr.

Nicholas Campbell QC, prosecuting, said the defendant claimed he returned home to find the couple's house burgled and his wife's wrists bound with duct tape.

However, Mr Campbell said, the intruder story was a "lie" and Mr Patel had applied the tape after killing her.

He left the house on The Avenue, Linthorpe, to create a false alibi and tried to stage-manage the murder scene by ransacking the home, jurors heard.

Patel had "Jessica been killed as a result of pressure being brought to bear on her neck. She was strangled," Mr Campbell said.

"The prosecution case was that a plastic shopping bag was used both as a ligature and to suffocate

Upon returning, Mr Patel attempted to hide a hard drive from a CCTV system in a suitcase under a mattress, the court heard, before calling 999.

He was found to have three scratches on his neck on the night his wife was killed, Mr Campbell said.

The court heard he was seen after the killing and noticed to be behaving strangely, by which time his wife had been dead for an hour.

Mr Patel had "ample" motive for the killing, jurors heard, as there were various life insurance policies in his wife's name worth £2m.

He planned the murder 'for some time" and researched the length of time it would take to die from strangulation, Mr Campbell said.

"He was planning to use the money to start a new life in Australia and that life would be shared with the person who he really loved, one who he regarded as his soul mate - another man," he said.

The case continues.

Pound falls sharply over Brexit row

The pound and shares in housebuilders and banks fell sharply on Thursday after cabinet ministers Dominic Raab and Esther McVey quit over Prime Minister Theresa May's draft Brexit deal.

Royal Bank Scotland sank 9%, with 7% falls for Persimmon, Taylor Wimpey and Barratt Developments.

Sterling fell 1.7% against the dollar and 1.9% against the euro.

A poll carried out for the People's Vote campaign suggests that 59% of the public back a second referendum on leaving the EU

'Majority' now back second EU vote

Campaigners arguing another Brexit referendum say that their "longest of long shots" is becoming shorter by the day.

A poll carried out overnight on Wednesday by YouGov for the People's Vote campaign suggests that 59 per cent of the public now back the idea.

The proposal still faces a series of significant hurdles before it has any hope of becoming reality, including parliamentary obstacles. Theresa May repeatedly rejected the idea of another vote this week, saying that the people made their choice in 2016.

Even the ardent supporters of a second vote admit, however, that there is still disagreement over a key issue — what the question would be.

When Jo Johnson, the Conservative minister, resigned last week, he suggested a complicated formula by which voters would be asked a series of questions. First they would be asked if they wanted to leave the EU. If the answer was yes, they would then be asked a second question on what terms they would choose for the EU

Others have suggested that there could be three questions on the ballot paper. The People's Vote campaign believes that the choice would have to fulfil three criteria: to be simple, clear and, because of the impending deadline on Brexit negotiations, guick.

In the end voters would be likely to be offered a choice between two options because the construction of questions would be decided by the Electoral Commission, which could be expected to demand that a vote at least resemble other recent refendums.

A spokesman for the People's Vote campaign said that the most likely

Brits in LA

Meet A Member: Gene Franklin

Meet Gene Franklin Smith from New York, who moved to LA in 1990 to pursue a career as a writer.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

The weather, naturally! was raised Boston, attended Wesleyan University in Connecticut, then lived in Manhattan for 11 years, and when I visited friends in LA who had relocated from New York, I finally said enough is enough with the heat and humidity and freezing cold! I'm guessing that most Brits in LA members concur!

What do you miss most from home?

Autumn. There's a reason why Barry Manilow wrote that corny but accurate song "Weekend in New England." When I lived in Manhattan, I used to walk through Central Park en route to work, and there's something so revitalizing about the brisk air and riot of autumnal color in the trees.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

I thought it was a bit of a cultural wasteland in 1990. Theater hadn't been quite yet revived, and there were only about a dozen decent restaurants. But by 1997, theater had rebounded, and so many New Yorkers moved here that there were suddenly fabulous new places to dine and dance. L.A.'s incredibly vital city, and I don't think even Woody Allen would complain about it now (well, maybe).

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus New York?

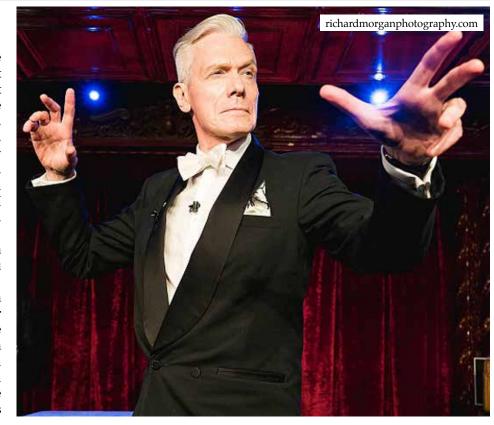

There's a lot more opportunities in L.A. As long as you have the drive, energy and passion, you can live your dreams here. It sounds so cheesy, but it's true. I've been able to have careers as a chef, playwright, director, producer, actor and now professional magician. None of it would have happened had I stayed in New York.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

It's actually not in L.A. but it's not a far drive: Emerald Cove Beach - it's between Newport Beach and Laguna Beach, and it really is one of the most beautiful stretches of beaches we have.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Don't let it scare you. I probably waited about five years before I decided to make the big change, and although I don't want to think

"As long as you have the drive, energy and passion, you can live your dreams here.- Gene Franklin Smith about what might've been, I still wish I had had the courage to move to L.A. sooner.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Ageism used to be pretty rampant in L.A., especially in the entertainment industry, but I feel there's a lot less of it now. There will always be the pretty young things arriving in droves here, but there's much more appreciation for experience and professionalism that only we older folks have. I literally changed my life when I was 58 by auditioning at the Magic Castle and being accepted in as a magician member. For the past four years, I've performed at many corporate events, private parties, in Las Vegas, and I'm a regular magician in the Magic Castle's showrooms, which I hope to keep doing till my next career move, say, in 15 or so years!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

My performance persona is Felix Jones, Mentalist, and you can watch videos of my performances on YouTube or on my website: felixjonesmentalist.com. You can follow me on Instagram@felixjonesmentalist

I will be performing at the Magic Castle the week of December 10-16 in the Peller Theater in "Egregiously Mismatched", a scripted magic and mindreading show I co-created with magic partner, HUBB. We also perform the show at private parties and holiday events.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO ALL!

ARIES: If life is not all it could be please look on the positive side of things; as we move into the new season there will be opportunities to open new doors. With lucky Jupiter in your cousin sign you will be ready for action. You may be reflecting on past mistakes; if so forgive yourself and move on.

TAURUS: Your general rule in life is to see is to believe. This week ahead it will better to go with your unseen feeling in regards to some area of life. It is more than a feeling; it is a knowing so use this to your advantage in some current situation that will set you up well for going forward.

GEMINI: Your boss planet Mercury is ready to go backwards in your opposite sign this week. You should let your true feelings come out for a healthy airing. Be ready to be open to a whole different way to resolve past emotions and along with this comes a glimpse of the good times again.

CANCER: You may be letting go of what you consider the past. Be sure to understand that sweeping stuff under the carpet is not helping. In your case hiding it in your shell it is not going to make it disappear. You will, however, enjoy a lucky streak for the next few weeks.

LEO: If you find your mind wandering far and away most likely you are ready for a break from routine. Find someone you like to spend time with, preferably someone who enjoys your interests and take time out with them. You will then deal with life as usual in a mellower way.

VIRGO: This past week or so has not been as easy as you would like, however with the back up from Venus in Scorpio assisting you it may be time to put your foot down. Something which has been in play for a while is about to be stopped in its tracks. Be cool and the answer will come swiftly.

LIBRA: Your house of money and partnership is currently on fire. This not the sort you should be even think about putting out. This can be a golden opportunity to go for a good upward leap in life. Do not hesitate in even just exploring anything that this could represent.

SCORPIO: Venus and the Sun shining directly over you this next week is paving the way to set a steady course ahead. This is in most areas and although for some of you it has been a difficult past few months rest assured the ship you looked for is heading towards you. Happy Birthday!

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss planet Jupiter is now in your life and will make you more relaxed and ready for new adventures in all areas of your life. It's not a time to lay low, make sure to be out and about this next week ahead. Be sure to have a Happy Birthday.

CAPRICORN: Opportunity is coming as soon as next week or so to make a long-desired change in your life. This weekend can be a hectic one overall so leave any new plans until later. You are ready to take on new responsibilities now, so make that space ready in your life.

AQUARIUS: You are probably busier than you like to be. Time to ask yourself what should be your priority now. Communicate to others what you are willing (or not willing) to do now. What do you envision the next few weeks of your life to be like? Make it a priority to start the ball rolling.

PISCES: With Venus in your cousin sign Scorpio your thoughts turn to love or money. Maybe a bit of both. You have lots of creative energy so take it and use it to your advantage. You should not be held back from improving your overall life by anyone or by any negative self-talk.

'Hollywood' Shaun Warrington lost to cancer

The local British community suffered a sad loss this week with the untimely death of 'Hollywood' Shaun Warrington (right), who has passed on after a battle with cancer.

A longtime fixture in the local expat scene, friends said Sean, a lifelong Wolves fan, 'was a trooper and upbeat to the end'.

BRITS IN LA

What a brutal week for California

It has been a brutal week they all managed to keep for California.

The wildfires are still not extinguished and the 'Camp Fire' in Northern California is already officially classed as the worst fire in recorded history for our Golden state. Thousand Oaks residents barely had a chance to catch their breath from the horrific shooting at the Borderline Grill on November 7th, as not even 24 hours had passed before the 'Woolsey Fire' reared it's ugly head. Its rampage continued towards the coast and as we all now know it decimated Malibu too. It is truly incomprehensible. Many of our friends and fellow Brits in LA members got evacuated and some even sadly lost their houses: but thankfully to the best of my knowledge, themselves out of harm's

I was surprised by the amount of messages I received from family and friends overseas frantically checking in on my wellbeing, as I live relatively far from the affected areas. Although, judging by the coatings of ash on my car I probably live closer than I think.

It made me realize how useful the Facebook Safety Check is. For those not familiar with this feature, Facebook notes that you are near a crisis zone and they give you an option to mark yourself as 'safe'. It actually didn't cross my mind to do it in this case, knowing I am 30+ miles away from the fires (and the shootings). But my overseas friends aren't to know that! It's also a very useful tool for those of us that are not in distress but near enough to offer our assistance, as also listed is what help is currently needed.

We've certainly had our fair share of disasters haven't we? I often find they leave many of us feeling a little bit helpless. Yes, we can donate money, supplies, clothes, share requests for help etc. but I know we would all like to do even more if we could. So I looked into it a bit further and discovered the Los Angeles Fire Department Volunteer Program.

You can google that phrase or Visit .lafd.org/ join/volunteer and you will find many options, including a free LAFD CERT PROGRAM which has been running since "The CERT course will benefit anyone who takes it and will help them be better prepared to respond to and cope with the aftermath of a disaster," according to the website.

To schedule a CERT class or other type of training, you can either visit the website above or call (213) 202-3136 or send an email to lafdcert@lacity.org. New courses start in January across LA County.

If Ham Radio is a hobby of yours you could be very useful to the Emergency Services during a crisis like this. Visit www.lafdacs. org for details.

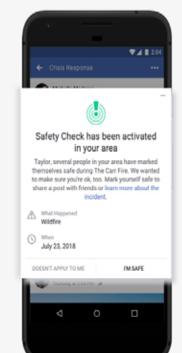

If you are aged 14-20 why not sign up to be a Fire Cadet? Visit bit.ly/ CadetRegister to find out more. I am sure once these fires are contained there will be a need for volunteers to help clean up. Keep an eye on our social media pages (@BritsinLA) as we will post there first.

You can also email us at info@Britsin.la if you have any questions or have any requests or information you would like us to share with our members.

In the meantime stay safe and Happy Thanksgiving for next week. We all have many extra reasons to be thankful I think.....

Cheers! Eileen

Tilda transformed!

British actress Tilda Swinton has surprised her fans with her latest character role in upcoming movie Suspiria.

The 57-year-old Hollywood star has opted for a dramatic change this time becoming a MAN.

Oo-er!

The horror film is set to star Dakota Johnson, Chloe Grace Moretz and Lutz Ebersdorf.

But it appears that Ebersdorf wasn't all he seemed, with Swinton lurking belief his misleading exterior.

After people started to notice a resemblance between the characters, the director dismissed suggestions that they were the same person.

By comparison, Tilda changed from a blonde woman with short hair and youthful skin to an elderly wrinkled man with grey hair – rendering her completely unrecognisable.

After the denials, Tilda has come clean about her role in "Suspiria," as she revealed all to the New York Times.

When asked why she posed as a different actor entirely, she said: "Undeniably, I would have to say, for the sheer sake of fun above all."

Director Luca Guadagnino has gushed over the casting, adding: "There will always be the element of femininity at its core.

"Being a film about the fantastic, it was important that we did not play by the book."

Fans of the actress have been in complete shock after it was announced that she had actually taken up the role of a Taking to Twitter, one user wrote: "Tilda Swinton is so elastic in her roles – I'm regularly flabbergasted."

Another added: "Tilda Swinton should pretend to be a man more often."

After it was confirmed that she even had a prosthetic penis put in, fans were praising her dedication to the role.

"Suspiria," is set to hit cinemas on November 16, and Tilda's showstopping role is likely to get a lot of attention.

I can't wait!

Red-hot Redmayne STILL 'nervous' about job prospects!

British star Eddie Redmayne is currently having a successful run in Hollywood, but there are days when he wonders if he will get employed again.

The Oscar-winning actor says he still remembers all the rejections he endured and that is what keeps him grounded.

"You never forget the rejections. You never forget the years of being told no. It is quite deeply in us. It is why lot of actors are neurotic and nervous," Redmayne reveals while promoting his film "Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald".

"I remember reading an interview of Rachel Weisz saying that she never believes that she will be employed again. That time I was a young and struggling actor and I was like 'You are Rachel Weisz. You are gonna be fine'.

"But now even though in some ways, I have had a successful run, I still feel the same. I really do feel the same. My concern is that I hope people enjoy this film and I hope I get to make another one of these films," added the actor on a candid note.

Redmayne, who grew up in London and worked as a waiter and at a pub before pursing his dream to become an actor.

"The worst job was being a waiter at the British

Soap Awards. There were many actors. I was about 21 and I had to take empty glasses and they had put many champagne glasses and that thing just crashed and I was laughed at. And I was like 'Maybe I will try to be an actor one day'."

I think Eddie made the right choice, don't you?

CLAUDIO RANIERI: unveiled as new Fulham boss this week

Ranieri takes over at the Cottage

Fulham have sacked manager Slavisa Jokanovic and replaced him with Claudio Ranieri, who guided Leicester to the Premier League title in 2016.

bottom of the Premier League table with five points from 12 matches.

Italian Ranieri, 67, has been given a "multi-year" contract by the Londoners.

"Making a change without having the right answer or succession plan was not an option," said Fulham chairman Shahid Khan.

"So having someone of Claudio's calibre ready to accept our challenge was comforting but, most of all, essential.

"Claudio is risk-free and ready-made for the Premier League, and particularly so for what we need at this moment at Fulham.

"His recent body of work with Leicester City is literally legendary, and then you look at Claudio's experience with Chelsea and big clubs throughout Europe, and it's pretty evident we are welcoming an extraordinary football man to Fulham Football Club."

Khan said he and his son Tony Khan, the club's vice chairman and director of football operations, spoke with a number of potential candidates over the past week.

"It is an honour to accept Mr Khan's invitation and opportunity to lead Fulham, a fantastic club with tradition and history," said Ranieri, who spent last season in charge of French club Nantes.

"The objective at Fulham should never be to merely survive in the Premier League. We must at all times be a difficult opponent and should expect to succeed.

"This Fulham squad has exceptional talent that is contrary to its position in the table."

Ranieri's first game in charge will see Fulham host Southampton at Craven Cottage on Saturday, 24 November.

"I know this team is very capable of better performances, which we will work on straight away as we prepare for Southampton at the Cottage," he added.

Wilder pledges to be Fury's 'worst nightmare' in Staples Center showdown WBC world heavyweight champion Deontay Wilder has warned he will be Tyson Fury's "worst nightmare" and show he is a "gift from God" on 1 December.

The American, 33, says he is "over prepared" for the Los Angeles bout against the British fighter and feels Fury has shown nerves in adding trainer Freddie Roach to his team.

Roach has said he will be Fury's cut man and work under trainer Ben Davison.

"They can instruct him, motivate him but there's only one man in the ring," said Wilder. "It ain't no team thing." "When you get multiples of trainers, for me that is nervous behaviour."

Former two-weight world champion Ricky Hatton and coach Asgar Tair - who was part of Fury's team when he beat Wladimir Klitschko in 2015 - will also be in the Briton's corner at the Staples Center.

Wilder - who has 40 wins from 40 bouts - told reporters that his fight against Fury will make clear who the world's best heavyweight is, despite Anthony Joshua holding three of the four major titles.

"Everyone will realise I am special. I am a gift from God. I'm going to be his worst nightmare." THE BRITISH WEEKLY, SAT. NOVEMBER 17, 2018

Rooney embarrassed at United end

Wayne Rooney said he was "embarrassed" to be a Manchester United player towards the end of his time at the club because of a lack of opportunities.

Rooney, the all-time leading goalscorer for both United and England, featured in 39 of the Red Devils' 64 matches in 2016-17 - his last season at the club.

"There are moments when you do doubt yourself," he told Sky Sports.

"I believe I was good enough to get back in the team, but I never really got that opportunity."

Rooney, who left United to rejoin Everton and then moved to MLS club DC United, was speaking before his farewell game for England against USA on Thursday.

The 33-year-old added: "I came on for one minute in the Europa League final. I was about to come on against Southampton in the League Cup final, and in those moments it was embarrassing.

"In the Southampton game, [manager Jose] Mourinho came to me and said: 'I want you to lift the trophy.' I was like: 'Well, I didn't even play in the game.'

"He was persistent with it, and I literally lifted it and moved it on. What was I doing? I need to move on and go somewhere else."

Deadlock as neighbors meet in Dublin

Northern Ireland failed to take their chances and had to settle for a 0-0 draw in the friendly match against the Republic of Ireland in Dublin on Thursday.

Two fantastic saves by Republic keeper Darren Randolph prevented wingers Gavin Whyte and Jordan Jones from taking good opportunities for the visitors.

Shane Duffy had the best chance for the home side but his first-half header was saved by Bailey Peacock-Farrell.

It was a fifth draw in 11 meetings between the sides.

The result means Northern Ireland have won just twice in 12 games, having lost all three of their opening Nations League Group B3 matches.

With Austria having drawn on Thursday night with Bosnia-Herzegovina, Michael O'Neill's men are relegated from the group before they play their final match against the Austrians at Windsor Park on Sunday.

The Republic's recent form has not been much better, with a 2-1 friendly victory over the USA in June now their only victory in their last 10 outings.

They are bottom of their Group B4 Nations League table, having drawn one and lost two of their three matches and will complete their campaign with a trip to Denmark on Monday.

Northern Ireland have been creating plenty of chances in recent matches without taking them and that was the case again in Thursday's friendly.

Oxford United winger Whyte had the first big opportunity of the night in the 14th minute when Liam Boyce released Stuart Dallas down the left with a hooked pass and he showed great composure to square the ball to Whyte.

The former Crusaders man, who has been in fine form since joining Oxford in the summer, took a touch and Randolph raced off his line to make a superb save at his feet.

Randolph had to show all of his awareness again in the 72nd minute to ensure a terrible mistake by defender Darragh Lenihan did not lead to a crucial goal.

player Kilmarnock Jones was not long off the bench when he pounced to rob Lenihan of possession to go through on goal, but his shot was too close to the advancing Middlesbrough keeper who once again made an excellent save.

Playing on the left of Northern Ireland's front three, Stuart Dallas was in sparkling form, particularly in the first

The two sides were meeting for the first time since 2011

The Leeds United man is always full of running for his country and that was the case once more as he made sure Republic captain Seamus Coleman had a busy night on his return to international football after a long-term absence.

The 27-year-old former Crusaders man showed great composure in the 14th minute to set up Whyte for his great chance - and twice came close to scoring himself.

He curled an effort from the edge of the box just wide on 25 minutes and four minutes before half-time he was played in down the left by Davis. He beat Lenihan for pace and advanced into the box before curling a low effort that just didn't have enough power and was saved well by Randolph.

Martina Cox said her husband "will require care for the rest of his life".

The father-of-three, from Dunboyne, Co Meath, was severely beaten outside Anfield on 24 April before the first leg of Liverpool's Champion League semi-final.

Rooney's final bow as England stroll to win

■ England's record goalscorer gets rapturous send off at Wembley in 3-0 win over USA

England celebrated Rooney's Wayne international with appearance comfortablefriendly win over the United States at Wembley on Thursday night.

Rooney, winning his 120th cap in a fundraiser charitable made a foundation. 33-minute appearance on a night England showed their appreciation for their 33-year-old record goalscorer.

He emerged to take the captain's armband with the Three Lions well in control in front of a healthy crowd of 68,155.

Gareth Southgate's side were 2-0 up thanks to two goals in two minutes midway through the first half -Jesse Lingard opening the scoring with a spectacular curling effort, and Trent Alexander-Arnold adding a low, angled drive for his first international goal.

And if it was a memorable night for Rooney, who was denied a dream goal by Brad Guzan's stoppage-time save, it was the same for Bournemouth's Callum Wilson when he crowned his debut with a nearpost finish 13 minutes from time.

It set England up nicely Sunday's UEFA Nations League game with Croatia at Wembley, which takes on great importance after the World Cup finalists' 3-2 victory over Spain in Zagreb.

If England win they will finish top of Group A4 and qualify for next June's semi-final and final. If they lose, they will be relegated.

For all the mixed opinions evoked by the Football Association's decision to give Rooney a sentimental final run-out for his 120th cap, there appeared no doubt in the minds of the Wembley crowd that this was a worthwhile exercise.

the When former England captain appeared before kick-off with his four children through a guard of honour formed both teams to receive a presentation from FA chairman Greg Clarke and Harry Kane, it was the start of a genuine show of affection.

And Rooney beamed in appreciation as he warmed up near the touchline when Liverpool youngster Alexander-Arnold another Merseysider - drilled in his first England goal.

The DC United striker was given a standing ovation when the big moment arrived, and he came on for Lingard for that final 33-minute appearance.

Rooney, who has excelled in Major League Soccer, looked trim and fit as the crowd cheered his every move, willing him to produce one more special England moment.

He almost delivered the dream finale in stoppage time when only the outstretched right arm of Guzan stopped him adding a 54th goal to his all-time England record. And, agonisingly, he was just unable to stretch enough to meet a cross six yards out seconds later.

Rooney took acclaim of the crowd at the final whistle as the curtain came down on his England career.

England's night may have been partly ceremonial as Wembley paid that final tribute to Rooney, but it was also a night of serious business for Southgate.

He and his players needed to build on the momentum delivered by the superb win against Spain in Seville, which was one of the factors leading to the criticism this was effectively turned into a Rooney testimonial.

Southgate can certainly be satisfied with plenty of what he saw, albeit against a United States side that looked very poor, despite Christian Pulisic forcing a fine save from Jordan Pickford at England, though much-changed, played with pace and there was certainly plenty to take from the new-look side, including a debut goal for the hard-working Wilson and a solid performance from Brighton defender Lewis Dunk on his first appearance, although he was barely tested. The same applied to Southampton goalkeeper Alex McCarthy as he won his first cap as a second-half substitute for Pickford.

"We wanted to use this game to look at young players," Southgate told BBC Radio 5 live. "We had a glimpse of the future, and were able to get Wayne on to show some wonderful touches.

"We had a really inexperienced team out there, so they've come through and learned a lot, and we've paid our respects to one of our greatest ever players.

Southgate is now likely to select his strongest available side for what is a winner-takes-all final Nations League fixture here against Croatia on Sunday.

Croatia inflicted that second successive defeat on Spain while England were winning so the equation is clear cut - and the World Cup finalists have demonstrated once more what a dangerous side they can be.
