ARCTIC BLAST BATTERS BRITAIN

■ Britain set for fortnight of heavy snow in longest freeze for 70 years

WINTER HAS arrived with a vengeance in the UK with an Arctic anti-cyclone delivering a cascade of freezing air across Britain, expected to trigger a two-week snow deluge amid what could be the longest whiteout in almost 70 years.

Polar conditions will super-freeze the nation through the start of this month and into the festive season amid warnings for blizzards, ice storms and deep snowdrifts. A perfect storm of atmospheric conditions will open the floodgates to a torrent of numbing air from the Arctic Circle into northern Europe, experts say. It will meet milder, moisture-laden air sitting over the UK bringing widespread icy flurries and heavy snowfall to parts of the country. UK weather charts reveal a growing risk of wintry showers in parts of the country from next week through to the middle of December.

Models show a colossal wall of snow from the east bulldozing Scotland before sweeping northern and parts of central England.

An extended cold snap could see freezing temperatures largely hold out into the start of next year, long-range forecasters warn. Britain could be heading towards one of the snowiest winters since 1950 when parts of the country froze under a blanket of white for 102 days.

A huge area of high pressure, or so-called anticyclone, sitting over Greenland will steer cold air from the Arctic region towards Britain through next week.

Low-pressure north of the British Isles will help drive the bitter flow as forecast models reveal winter will kick off to a cold and snowy start next week.

Recent milder but stormy weather will give way to a cold plunge from the North Pole kick-starting a two-week winter blast, weathermen warn.

James Madden, forecaster for Exacta

Weather, said: "After this brief interlude of milder weather there will be a quick reversal back to cold conditions accompanied by wintry weather and some notable snow showers, particularly, across the north.

"This will pave the way for a number of further snow events during the early to mid part of December, some of these could be severe enough to cause disruption.

"Parts of the country are facing the first major snow event of the season during the start of December and these could be severe in nature, this risk will continue through the first part of the month.

"There will be a risk of potential ice storms with strong winds and snowfall bringing blizzards to exposed regions."

No-deal Brexit 'would be worst crash since 1930s'

■ Bank warns of deep recession, says house prices could fall by a third, but governor is attacked over analysis

Britain would be plunged into its deepest recession since the 1930s under a disorderly no-deal Brexit, the Bank of England warned on Wednesday.

House prices could fall by 30 per cent, interest rates rise to 5.5 per cent and the economy shrink by 8 per cent - a greater contraction than after the 2008 financial crisis - its worst-case scenario showed.

Ben Broadbent, one of the Bank's deputy governors, said that this would be worse than any crisis since "we went back on gold" and the economy subsequently crashed in 1930. In the 2008 financial crisis the British economy shrank by 6.3 per cent.

The Bank gave its assessment hours after a Whitehall analysis suggested that the economy would shrink under all versions of Brexit.

Philip Hammond, the chancellor, said that, in a "purely economic sense", Britain would be worse off than if it stayed in the European Union. In the Commons, however, Theresa May said the cross-government analysis did not mean that the country would be "poorer in the future than we are today".

The Bank and Whitehall analyses, which were branded "fraudulent" and "unrealistic" by Brexiteers, set out various Brexit scenarios, including if parliament could not agree a way forward on Brexit and Britain left the EU in March without a divorce deal or transition period.

'Project Fear'

The Whitehall analysis showed that the economy would be up to 3.1 per cent smaller over a 15-year period even if Mrs May was successful in getting her deal passed and secured a "frictionless" relationship with the EU. The document acknowledged that Mrs May could struggle to achieve the latter, given that the EU had rejected her Chequers trade plan. Under a no-deal scenario, the economy would be up to 10.7 per cent smaller and under a Canada-style trade deal it could be 8.1 per cent smaller, it said.

Brexiteers reacted with fury to the assessments, accusing Mrs May and Mark Carney, the Bank of England's governor, of resurrecting "Project Fear" - the dire warnings made during the 2016 referendum campaign.

Steve Baker, a leading Brexiteer MP, declared that "the reputation of government economics is in the gutter" after the publication of the Whitehall report. David Henig, a former government trade official, condemned the Treasury-led analysis as "fraudulent", saying that it was based on "unrealistic" scenarios designed to flatter Mrs May's plan.

'bogus forecasts'

Andrew Sentance, a former member of the Bank of England's monetary policy committee, led the criticism of Mr Carney. "The reputation of economic forecasts has taken a bad blow today with both the UK government and the Bank

Mark Carney, the Bank of England governor, said that Britain was not ready for a no-deal Brexit. His analysis was dismissed as 'fraudulent' by Brexiteers appearing to use forecasts to support political objectives. Let's debate Brexit - which I strongly oppose - rationally without recourse to bogus forecasts," he said.

The findings will be seized upon by Mrs May in her attempt to persuade MPs to back her Brexit plan. But with 13 days until the Commons vote there seemed little sign that the prime minister was winning over her critics. Sir Robert Syms on Wednesday became the 99th Tory MP to declare publicly that he could not sign up to the plan.

Amid growing nerves in government, Mr Hammond appeared to undermine Mrs May by admitting that the cabinet would consider "other ideas" in the case of a Commons defeat.

John McDonnell, the shadow chancellor, gave the strongest hint to date that Labour could back a second referendum when he agreed that it was "inevitable".

The Whitehall analysis found that the northeast, northwest, Northern Ireland and West Midlands would be hit hardest by a no-deal Brexit or a Canada-style agreement, while the pain would be more evenly spread under the scenario closest to Mrs May's deal, with London hit worst. The Bank said Britain was not ready for a no-deal Brexit.

"There are a number of frictions for which the system is not yet prepared. The proportion of business with contingency plans remains a fraction of the whole," it said. Its outlook assumed that under no deal there would be severe disruption at the borders, no new trade deals and a net 100,000 people leaving the country every year.

Mr Carney said that the Bank would have to raise interest rates, reversing its response to the financial crisis, because the hit from Brexit would be "a supply shock". Its analysis is likely to stoke accusations that it is endorsing government policy.

He said: "Parliament has demanded this analysis. We have to do it and we've done it. There is nothing more here than that.

'deeply politicised'

"We know from our contacts with business, others know from their contacts, that less than half the businesses in the country have initiated their contingency plans for a no-deal Brexit. All the industries, all the infrastructure of the country, are they all ready at this point in time? And, as best as we can tell, the answer is no."

Jacob Rees-Mogg, chairman of the hard-Brexit European Research Group, told The Daily Telegraph: "This is Project Hysteria. Before the referendum, we were threatened with the plague of frogs. Now they warn of the death of the firstborn." He told Sky News: "Mark Carney is a second-tier Canadian politician. He's been deeply politicised to the damage of the Bank of England's reputation."

Responding to the Bank of England's warnings, Arlene Foster, the DUP leader, told the Today program "I have to look at the whole economy, including the impact this deal will have on consumers, because if the backstop is implemented there will be checks between Great Britain and Northern Ireland in terms of agricultural goods, food and manufacturing and that will mean extra costs for the people of Northern Ireland."

Andrea Leadsom, leader of the House of Commons and one of the cabinet's firmest Brexiteers, backed Mrs May's deal, warning that its defeat in parliament could put Brexit at risk.

Mrs Leadsom told her constituents that the deal "delivered" on the referendum result, according to the Daily Mail. She said: "Two things are certain - first, that this is the only deal on the table, and second, that it means we will leave on 29th March 2019. Therefore my conclusion is that I must support the deal."

No-Show Zuckerberg roasted as MPs seize Facebook documents

■ Regulation of social media giant edges closer as 'frat boy billionaire' snubs committee probing company's role in Brexit disinformation

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT is ratcheting up the pressure on social media giant Facebook to explain its data breaches amid growing concern about the company's role in spreading Russian-originated 'fake news' ahead of the pivotal 2016 Brexit vote.

The customary weekend calm at Westminster was shredded on Sunday when it emerged that Damian Collins, chairman of the House of Commons Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Committee, had obtained private Facebook emails linked to the Cambridge Analytica scandal via an usual use of the House of Commons' Sergeant At Arms.

The emails, part of a trove of sensitive documents seized by Parliament, could reveal whether Facebook knowingly allowed firms to exploit flaws in its privacy policies to target millions with political advertising. British regulators fined Facebook earlier this year for the security lapse, though the company has said it intends to appeal.

Mr Collins used 'unprecedented' parliamentary powers to get hold of the documents from Ted Kramer, the founder of US app developer Six4Three, over the weekend. Kramer's firm acquired the files as part of a US lawsuit against Facebook over a change to the social network's privacy policies which led it to shut down its app, Pikinis.

The MP discovered that Mr Kramer was on a business trip to London last week and sent a representative of Kamal El-Hajji, the House of Commons serjeant-at-arms to Kramer's hotel room to seize the documents, giving him a two-hour deadline to comply.

When Mr Kramer refused, he was escorted to Parliament and threatened with fines and imprisonment.

Shortly thereafter Collins was warned by Lord Richard Allan, a Liberal peer and Facebook's Head of European Policy, that the documents were "sub judice before a court in California" and are "sealed".

But Mr Collins dismissed the warning, pointing to the irrelevance of US law on UK soil and stating: "Under UK law and parliamentary privilege we can publish papers if we choose to."

'they don't get it'

The extraordinary move by parliament comes just a month after Facebook appointed Nick Clegg as head of global affairs and communications. Sir Nick is the former UK deputy prime minister and was responsible for giving a peerage to Lord Allan.

Things got worse for the California-based company on Tuesday when founder Mark Zuckerberg failed to appear at an International Grand Committee hearing in Westminster where Collins joined lawmakers from eight other countries. Instead it was Allan who bore the brunt of the committee's fury during a gruelling 165-minute hearing...and they didn't hold back.

Canadian MP Charlie Angus kicked things off by asking whose decision it was for Zuckerberg to "blow off" the hearing.

"While we were playing on our phones and apps our democratic institutions, our formal civil conversations, seem to have been upended by frat-boy billionaires from California," he said.

Canada's Bob Zimmer also laid into Zuckerberg for not showing up. "To not have your CEO sit in that chair is an offence to all of us," he said.

At a press conference after the hearing, Collins said "the buck stops with Zuck." Zimmer added: "It's a high-school company collecting adult paychecks."

"To me they don't get it," he said. "I still don't think they get it."

The panel repeatedly savaged Zuckerberg for not appearing, and likewise, Allan was repeatedly told that he was not senior or knowledgeable enough to answer questions. He acknowledged it was "not great" that he, a member of the UK Parliament himself, was there and not his CEO.

In the most damning section of the hearing, Collins produced documents which he said proved Facebook where aware of security vulnerabilities which were being exploited by Kremlin-backed 'bot' farms.

"An engineer at Facebook notified the company in October 2014 that entities with Russian IP addresses had been using a Pinterest API key to pull over 3 billion data points a day through the Ordered Friends API," he said.

Later on Tuesday the nine countries signed a set of "International Principles for the Law Governing the Internet," signalling even greater scrutiny of Facebook and other social media companies still to come.

For months, Zuckerberg has resisted testifying in Britain as members of Parliament probe the spread of misinformation and the role played by political consultancy Cambridge Analytica around Britain's vote to withdraw from the European Union.

One lawmaker from Canada suggested taking apart the social network and the services it owns, including WhatsApp and the photo-sharing service Instagram.

"Perhaps the best regulation is anti-trust," Angus said. "Perhaps the simplest form of regulation would be to break Facebook up or treat it as a utility."

It is a utility."

The £18m lottery winners who can't bear to leave their family semi

"We can't exactly go jetting off on a round-the-world adventure at our age, can we?"

THEY could have bought a mansion but Britain's oldest lottery winners are returning to their modest home of 57 years – after spending four months living in a budget hotel.

Dennis Banfield, 87, and his wife Shirley, 83, have been married for 60 years and lived in the same house for most of that time.

They scooped an £18million jackpot in February but rather than couple have opted to totally renovate their semi-detached home in Winterbourne, near Bristol.

It is where they brought up their two daughters after buying the three-bedroom property in 1961 when the average home in the area cost just £2,000. It is now worth £316,000.

They have been staying in a £66-a-night hotel while the builders moved in – and hope to be back home in time for Christmas.

Shirley said this week: "We decided to stay and just have the whole of the inside of it completely redone. We know the area, the house is not overlooked and it's got a lovely big driveway."

The generous couple split their £18,139,352 winnings three ways to include their two daughters, Tina, 54, and Karen, 51, and have given much of their share to charity.

Dennis said: "The girls have been such a support. They've been to see us frequently while we've been here and have helped us with our washing and things. They have both bought new houses.

"It means a lot to us to know they are looked after. All that has ever mattered to Shirley and I is that the girls are OK.

"To know they are financially secure is a wonderful feeling," Shirley added: "We've given a lot away in lump sums.

"We've been able to give to cancer units, to the children's hospital, as well as helping out our community in 11, added: "We haven't thought about moving house. We've lived here for more than 57 years – and while I didn't think I would be interested in a new car, it is rather tempting.

"Although with my dodgy knee, I might need to get a chauffeur to go with the car!"

Meanwhile, 11 lotto millionaires have dipped into their fortunes to throw a Christmas party for 80 older folk. They all chipped in to take them down memory lane by booking a Rat Pack tribute group for the party at the Bear Hotel in Cowbridge, Vale of Glamorgan.

The pensioners clapped and danced as they were entertained by lookalike Franks Sinatras, Dean Martins and Sammy Davis Juniors. Former hospital dinner lady Julie Amphlett, 51, part of a syndicate that won £25million a year ago, said: "We all feel it's good to put something back."

Former postman Matt Evans, 38, who won £2.6million three years ago, said: "We wanted to put a smile on their faces. It's been a tough year with Brexit and the bad weather so it was lovely to give them a day out and they really enjoyed it."

Burglars target Beckhams' country mansion - again

Family 'shaken' after second attempt on £6m Cotswolds retreat

BURGLARS have targeted David and Victoria Beckham's £6million Cotswold mansion for the second time in a month, police confirmed this week.

The couple were said to have been left shaken by the latest burglary attempt on their Chipping Norton home after a balaclava-clad gang tried to break in last month. Officers said the former England footballer, 43, and fashion designer, 44, were not at home when a man was chased off by security staff and guard dogs last Wednesday. Both incidents are thought to be the work of a local gang targeting their home when they are away.

A source close to the family said: "Luckily they had laid on extra security after the last incident, including several staff and dogs, who were able to protect the property, otherwise this could've had a very different outcome.

"They are re-evaluating their security again and will bring in more if they need to."

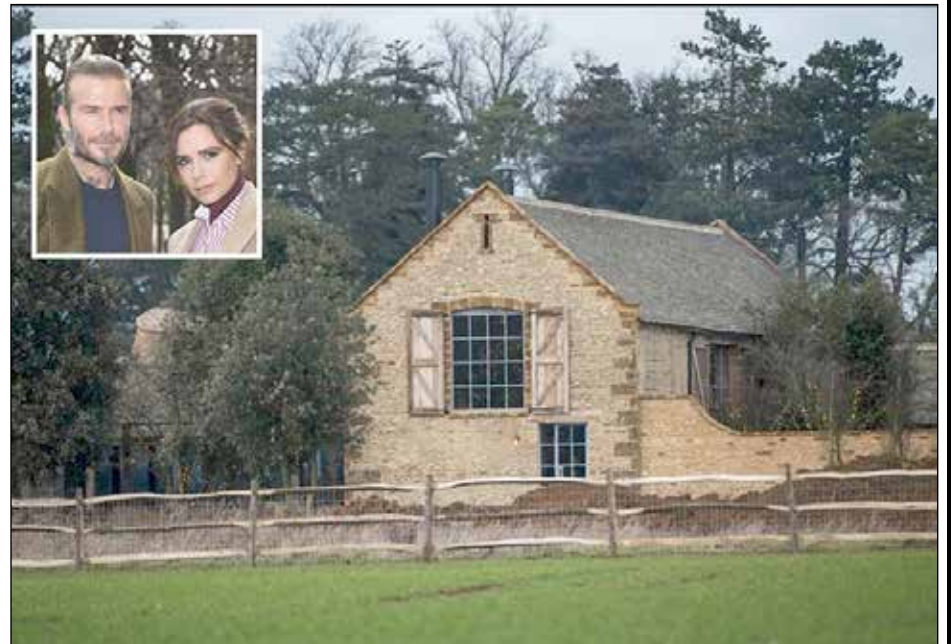

distressed

On Monday a Thames Valley Police spokesman confirmed officers were called to reports of a "man behaving suspiciously" near the property on November 14 at 6.15am and are investigating. No arrests have been made.

The last attempted break-in was on October 19 when the Beckhams' security surveillance team noticed a gang of men wearing balaclavas on the property's CCTV. They were also spotted by neighbours, who ran after them before they could get any closer.

David and Victoria were understood to have been on their way to Australia with sons Romeo, 16, Cruz, 13, and daughter Harper, seven, at the time. Victoria was pictured soon after looking distressed. It was later revealed the mother-of-four was terrified the gang had been so close to getting inside her home. A friend said at the time: "It has been so tough for Victoria. She and David are absolutely devastated by this. They are extremely protective of their family and their home life, so the thought that people would intrude on that is so upsetting for them.

"David would love to be normal but his number one priority is to protect his wife, children and wider family. "He is furious that he now has to increase his security even more."

Gerry Marsden finally retires - after almost 60 years of touring SIXTIES pop legend Gerry Marsden, famous for his version of You'll Never Walk Alone, is hanging up his guitar after almost 60 years of touring.

The 76-year-old lead singer of Gerry and the Pacemakers announced his retirement on his website, telling fans he wants to spend more time with his family. The post read: "Gerry would like to say a special thank you to all his fans for the unconditional support down the years, and will sadly miss them all. He looks forward to this new chapter in his life."

An insider close to Gerry said the star, who has had two heart operations, was not retiring because of health reasons. The friend said: "He properly retired months ago. He's decided it's time to hang the guitars up."

Gerry has been married to Pauline for 53 years and they have two daughters, Yvette and Victoria. The band, who were the second group to sign to manager Brian Epstein after The Beatles, were the first to have their initial three singles – How Do You Do It?, I Like It and You'll Never Walk Alone – reach No 1. The feat was not equalled until the 1980s, when fellow Scousers Frankie Goes To Hollywood managed it. Gerry's hits also included Ferry Cross The Mersey. The band split in 1966 but was reformed by Gerry in 1974. Last year he was forced to cancel two shows after he collapsed on stage in Newport. Gerry and the Pacemakers performed for the last time together in Portsmouth in March.

Comedy duo's lost episodes discovered

TWO missing episodes of The Morecambe And Wise Show, which have not been seen for 50 years, have been found in a derelict cinema in Sierra Leone.

The shows were thought to be lost forever after being wiped in a BBC cost-saving plan to reuse video tape. But the cherished episodes featuring one of Britain's best-loved comedy duos have been saved for the nation. At the height of their fame, Eric Morecambe and Ernie Wise attracted prime-time audiences of nearly 30 million for their Christmas specials. And the pair will be back on our screens this festive season after being recovered in a remarkable international rescue operation.

Archive preservation expert Philip Morris

IMCOMPARABLE: most of the duo's shows are gone discovered the tapes gathering dust more than 4,000 miles from home in the wrecked building in the West African country's capital Freetown. He said: "This is historically important for British TV. These things are national heritage, it belongs to us all."

The tapes had been sent to Sierra Leone in the hope the country's broadcasters would buy the full series. Mr Morris found the tapes after a tip-off from a local contact that a stash of old TV programmes had been unearthed in the abandoned cinema. The building contained "stacks and stacks" of films most of which were damaged. But both Morecambe and Wise episodes were in perfect condition.

Like many programmes of the time, the episodes were only shown once on TV, when first broadcast in 1968. They were screened on BBC Two where the duo had returned for their first series after seven years with ITV.

Emily Blunt: "I'll make Mary Poppins my own"

ACTRESS Emily Blunt is making her role as Mary Poppins her own – after deciding not to use "iconic" Julie Andrews as her example.

Emily, 35, (above) says she is not "intimidated" by screen legend Julie's performance as a magical nanny in the 1964 Disney classic.

Julie, now an 83-year-old dame, won a Best Actress Oscar for playing the mysterious visitor who flies in on an umbrella to take charge of two children in 1900s London.

Emily knew it was a hard act to follow – so she decided to do her own thing for Mary Poppins Returns, which is due out just before Christmas.

In an interview with fashion magazine Harper's Bazaar, the British-American actress said she resisted the urge to study Julie's performance as the "practically perfect" nanny.

Instead she set out to craft one that was entirely her own for the new £150million film, which is a sequel and not a remake. Emily, who appeared in a photoshoot for the magazine with umbrella, said: "Even though I'd seen the film as a child I decided not to watch it when prepping."

"She was so clear to me that I decided not to be intimidated by the iconic Julie Andrews in the iconic role, and just approached it as I would any other part."

The film is set decades after the original with a backdrop of 1930s Depression-era London. British stars Ben Whishaw and Emily Mortimer play a grown-up Michael and Jane Banks struggling after the death of their mother.

Like in the original, Mary makes her entrance by brolly – this time to help raise Michael's three children in the old family home on Cherry Tree Lane.

Emily, who has daughters Hazel, four, and Violet, two, with actor husband John Krasinski said of the scene: "I was 50ft in the air hanging from a crane, having to look effortless... then one of the camera guys said, 'It was really emotional, seein' 'er come back'."

Dame Julie reportedly turned down a huge sum to appear. But Hollywood veteran Dick Van Dyke, who played chimney sweep Bert, has a cameo role at 92 as a tap-dancing banker.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: PAUL ARAS CASE NO. 18STPB09467

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of PAUL ARAS.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DANIEL JANULAITIS, TRUSTEE OF THE PAUL ARAS TRUST U/A/T DATED APRIL 28, 1990, AS AMENDED in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that DANIEL JANULAITIS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act . (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 12/11/18 at 8:30AM in Dept. 4 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Meet a Member: Jenny Mosely

This week's Meet a Member is Jenny Mosely who is originally from London and has lived in LA for two years.

How did you end up joining Brits in LA?

When I first moved here, my son was only six months old and my daughter two and a half. I was looking for resources of information and I found Brits in LA quite by chance. It was brilliant to discover there was a network of others going through similar cultural and transitional changes. I found it excellent for finding out places to go, general tips and it also provided a sense of a community.

What was your first impression of LA?

I found driving a completely different experience! Aside from the technicalities, I was used to a gentle wave and someone letting me into a lane back in the UK. No chance here, you have to be swift and aggressive when in your car, otherwise you're not going anywhere!

I also noticed how many young and old people were incredibly fit, working out in parks or the beach. It inspired me to recertify in personal training with the US National Academy of Sports Medicine *(NASM) to be on the cutting edge of fitness.

Do you have a hidden gem that you want to share with us?

For a truly authentic Chinese martial arts training look no further than the Shaolin Temple on Ventura Blvd. in Sherman Oaks. (13457 Ventura Blvd.) It's an official branch from China run by Venerable Abbot Shi Yan Fan, a Shaolin warrior monk. I have a couple of other favorite spots including Paradise Cove in Malibu. It's on a lovely beach and they serve great food. Serviced with loungers, fab cocktails and also great for families. If you're looking for a peaceful oasis in the urban jungle, go for a walk through the Mildred E. Mathias Botanical Garden's on the UCLA campus in Westwood. It has a wonderfully diverse collection of plants from around the world.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Be patient, it takes time to find genuine friends, but there really are some marvelous people here.

Make the effort to go to the beach, you always feel good afterwards.

Get yourself a trainer. The RIGHT trainer is not just your coach, they are your educator, confidant, your source of motivation and encouragement. This will have a positive effect on all aspects of your life.

How can we find out more about you? What are you working on right now?

I've been a personal fitness trainer for many years and I'm a 35th generation Shaolin disciple, my dharma name is Shi Heng Feng. I train in martial arts, qigong and mindfulness. I teach at workshops/ retreats and private sessions as well as regular classes at the Four Seasons hotel in Westlake Village.

I also compose music for commercials and I paint.

THEN AND NOW: Koo Stark today and (right) how she looked when dating Prince Andrew

Andrew's ex Koo issues threat over TV portrayal

A FORMER girlfriend of Prince Andrew has threatened The Crown makers with legal action over her portrayal.

Koo Stark, 62, dated Andrew in the early 1980s but their relationship ended after news emerged that she had appeared in the erotic film Emily before meeting the prince. She is worried about how she will be shown in the hit Netflix drama which is shooting its third series about royal life, including Princess Margaret's affair with Roddy Llewellyn, which led to her divorce from the Earl of Snowdon in the 1970s. A fourth series would cover the time of Ms Stark's romance with the Duke of York before he married Sarah Ferguson.

American Ms Stark has instructed lawyers to issue the program makers with a warning. A source said: "Koo has spent years trying to rebuild her life after going out with Andrew. She has no wish for all of that to be dragged up again."

"She is a photographer and has moved on with her life. The last thing she wants is an inaccurate picture of her being painted. She tried to contact the people making The Crown. All she wanted was an assurance that she would be consulted to make sure any historical inaccuracies were eradicated, but she didn't get a response."

ARIES: With Mars and the sun and moon all visiting your cousin Sagittarius there's a lot of powerful energy in your life now. While this can appear to some as power trips it's up to you to figure it all out. You have a golden opportunity to manifest good stuff.

TAURUS: Your boss Venus is in sexy Scorpio and she can bring up powerful emotions in and around you. With this knowledge be ready to take a deep breath if confronted with any negative feedback. It's only the others' opinion.

GEMINI: You are coming to the end of a time somewhat roller-coaster-like of difficult times in some areas. The news few weeks will bring resolutions and you will come to terms with an outstanding emotional situation much to your benefit.

CANCER: You will gradually start to feel more in control of your overall life this coming week. It's time for you to let go of what you need to from the past. Venus is visiting Scorpio your cousin and is feeling mellow and will help you to relax and enjoy life.

LEO: You will be feeling very upbeat and ready to do anything you want. You have three planets (Mars, Sun and the moon) all assisting you. However, anything in any personal area you would be wise to keep to yourself.

VIRGO: Starting this week ahead you will not be lacking in motivation to complete or indeed start anything productive. This is a perfect time for out-with-the-old tasks ready for your in-with-the-new late next month.

LIBRA: Your boss Venus is visiting your area of foreign affairs. This can bring up thoughts and people from the past. The fact that Venus is in a water sign is also important as this can be a sensitive time for you also. Be positive in thought and action!

SCORPIO: With Mars and the sun and Mercury all in the area of your finances, this is the time to put anything not connected to this on the back burner. Before this next week is over life will be moving forward in a positive path. While you still have unfinished business in relationships this soon can be resolved.

SAGITTARIUS: You could be offered some new work or some other opportunity this coming month. With Jupiter in your life now nothing can really stop you, - only you. With this in mind you can bring any unfinished area to the fore of your life to finally be resolved.

CAPRICORN: Foreign affairs and distant places are calling you. This is all well and good if you can afford to follow the call. If (like most of your sign) you currently are not able to for various reasons, bear in mind that this is only on hold.

AQUARIUS: You are may be struggling with relationship problems with someone in your life. This is not as it appears. It is entirely possible you have not been privy to the whole truth of the situation. If you are holding secrets, it is best to own up.

PISCES: With Venus in your cousin sign now it's time to learn to leave the past few weeks behind and any confusion with it. Anything is possible currently and it's time to be seen out and about socially and NOT be a wallflower!

BRITS IN LA

From fire season.... to mudslide season

DOES this weather remind you of home?

It's raining as I write this, quite heavily in fact. Whilst the wet weather is a welcome relief to many of us, sadly it also means that mudslide warnings have been issued to our neighbors in Malibu. As if they haven't suffered enough with the horrific Woolsey Fire, and now to receive news that they may have to contend with another battering. Thank goodness for our supportive community, who are brilliant at coming together at times like this.

I think we are all more than ready to get into the holiday spirit and prepare to embrace the new year with open arms. Last year I compiled a list of Christmassy pop-up places to visit, which many of you seemed to appreciate. However, I did get told off by a few of our readers, who were annoyed that I had left it so late. To be fair it did go out a couple of days before Christmas, the main complaint being, was that everything was pretty much over or sold out. I welcome a bit of constructive criticism, and have to concur that the start of December is a much smarter choice.

So back by popular demand, (but in a more timely fashion) are a few of our favourite places to get your festive feelings started:

If you want to have a picture with Santa AND meet his reindeer then we recommend LA Zoo's 'Reindeer Romp 2018' Runs through till January 6th. (lazoo.org/reindeerromp).

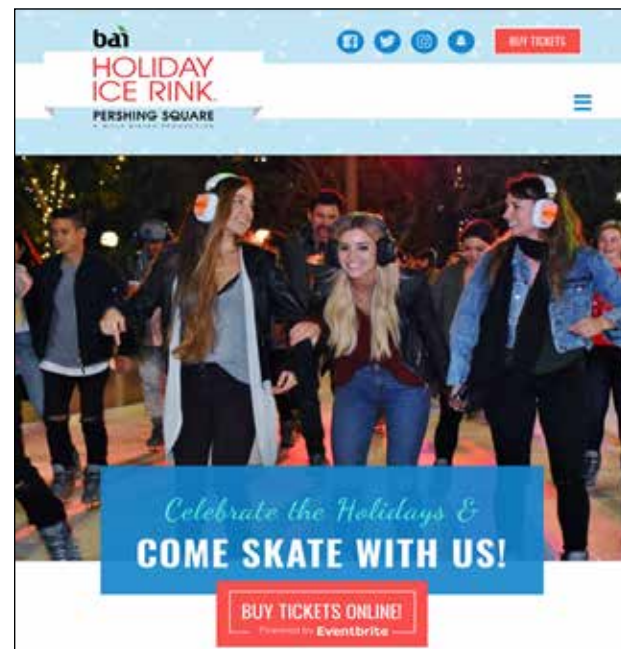

The Grove at Third and Fairfax and its sister mall, The Americana at Brand (in Glendale) both have gorgeous grottoes complete with Santa & Mrs Claus, as well as spectacular Christmas lights and REAL FAKE SNOW every evening at 7 & 8 pm, through December 25th. There is no admission charge for this Winter Wonderland event but if you want a photo with Santa there is a fee for that (americanaatbrand.com + thegrovela.com).

Ice Skating Rinks are now in session! The popular Pershing Square in Downtown LA runs through till January 21st - they have also scheduled some Silent Disco Nights. For those not in the know, this is where you put headphones on, listen to music and dance like no one is watching! For info visit: holidayicerinkdowntownla.com Westside readers, don't worry I haven't forgotten you; ICE at Santa Monica is back, located at the corner of 5th Street and Arizona Avenue, a short walk from the Promenade. You have plenty of time, as they are open until January 21st, and don't close until midnight on weekends. If you are a bit unsteady on your skates you can even book a lesson. (downtownsm.com/ice-at-santa-monica).

I saw a few of our members visited the Queen Mary in Long Beach last weekend, I think it's definitely top of my list as I quite fancy skating on an historic ship. I am not sure how true it is, but according to queenmary.com "legend states that the Cunard directors went to ask King George for his blessing of the ship's proposed name saying, "We have decided to name our new ship after England's greatest Queen," meaning Queen Victoria, the King's Grandmother. Upon which the King is reported to have stated, "My wife (Queen Mary) will be delighted that you are naming the ship after her."

Honorable mentions go the LA Kings holiday ice rink and the Rink in Burbank, as I hear they are both excellent. Let us know your thoughts if you've been to any.

Also a lot of fun are the holiday boat parades put on by local marinas. One favorite for Westsiders is the Marina del Rey Holiday Boat Parade, scheduled for December 8th, (with a fireworks show), starting 5:55 p.m., followed by "Holiday Water Wonderland", featuring holiday theme-decorated boats circling the main channel of MDR from 6-8 p.m. Visit mdrboatparade.org for details.

Be sure to visit www.britisn.la to keep in the loop and check out this column at british-weekly.com for a longer list of fun holiday events.

Cheers!

Star Wars hero gives big-ups to former co-star Jodie!

British actor John Boyega says he is "so proud" his former co-star Jodie Whittaker becoming the first female Doctor Who.

Oo-er!

The two starred alongside each other in Joe Cornish's 2011 sci-fi film Attack the Block, in which a neighborhood is invaded by aliens.

Speaking at Google's Pixel 3 Curiosity Rooms on Friday (November 25), The Star Wars star said: "I'm so proud of her when I hear that she is the first female Doctor Who.

"That's what I'm talking about! It's brilliant to see a character – that can change and morph into and gain new life in search of time and history – is being revamped again."

Whittaker became the first woman to portray the Doctor in the BBC One show's 55-year history, and has garnered positive reactions in her debut season.

However, there's bad news for anyone wishing to see Boyega make an appearance in an episode of the venerable show, as

John and Jodie starred in Attack the Block

Look at her now: Jodie Whittaker as Doctor Who the actor all but dismissed the idea. But he did say he'd love to work with Whittaker again.

When one hopeful member of the audience asked him if he'd be open to the possibility, he replied: "I don't know about Doctor Who but I would love to work with her again.

Definitely. 100%."

Earlier this year, Boyega hinted at a possible time jump for Star Wars: Episode 9. The actor stated that he'd be growing out his hair for the role of Finn, which could suggest a significant amount of time has passed since the events of The Last Jedi.

Fake it till you make it!

Bohemian Ben could 'Hardy' play the drums before nabbing Queen role Former Eastenders heartthrob Ben Hardy, who plays Queen member Roger Taylor in the hit movie Bohemian Rhapsody, has revealed the truth behind his convincing performance as the star drummer.

Oo-er!

It seems Ben worked extremely hard to get it just right, despite not knowing his way around the instrument until he got the part. Mainly because he told a little big white lie to the film bosses and told them he could play before he actually could.

Speaking recently on ITV's This Morning he said: "I was a little bit naughty, actually – I told them I could play the drums [when I couldn't]. 'That's what they say, isn't it – "just tell them you can do it and work it out later!"

Having worked with director Bryan Singer before on X-Men Apocalypse, Hardy emailed him when he heard about the role, eager to play the rock-and-roll star.

Hardy admitted that he had his reservations though because, although "you can cheat the other instruments with camera angles," it's not that easy with drums because "in the wide shots you can see if the drum is out of sync."

In a separate interview, he explained a little more about preparing for the audition: "They [the producers] asked me to play a song as part of the audition so I went away and had drum lessons every day. 'I bought a drum kit and managed to just about pull off one song.'

Pep praises 'toughest' Lyon

Pep Guardiola says Lyon were "one of the toughest teams" Manchester City have ever faced after the teams shared a 2-2 draw in France.

Lyon twice took second-half leads Wednesday night before City rescued a 2-2 draw which ensures qualification for the last 16 with one game to spare.

The French side wasted several clear-cut chances before Maxwell Cornet rifled in an angled drive to give them an early second-half lead.

City defender Aymeric Laporte quickly levelled with a header but Cornet fired in again to put Lyon on top of Group F.

However, Sergio Aguero reacted quickest to flick in a header two minutes later to ensure City remain in pole position to top the group.

"We are so delighted and so happy," Guardiola said. "It is a big compliment for the team.

"We played one of toughest teams we've ever faced. They are physical, strong, they counter-attack incredibly.

"We reacted after 1-0 and 2-1 and we are in the final stages. This was our target.

"Now we must try to get a point to finish first in the group stage, but it is so important to go through."

Even without the point, Guardiola's side would still have clinched their place in the knockout stage for the sixth successive season after Shakhtar Donetsk snatched a late 3-2 victory at Hoffenheim.

But it meant City know a draw in their final game against the already-eliminated German side will be enough to progress as group winners.

Finishing top would ensure City will not be drawn against another group winner - with the likes of Real Madrid, Bayern Munich and Juventus currently topping their groups - in the last 16.

Lyon looked set to join City in qualifying for the knockout stage with the draw, until Shakhtar's late winner in another breathless finish.

The French side still need a point in their final game against Shakhtar in Ukraine to progress.

ROBBIE KEANE, the former Tottenham and Republic of Ireland striker, has announced his retirement.

The 38-year-old captained his country for a decade and scored 325 goals in 737 appearances for 10 different clubs during a 23-year playing career.

"After 23 wonderful years, I am formally announcing my retirement," said Keane.

"From Crumlin United around the world to the likes of Milan, London and LA, I could never have imagined the path my football life would take. It has exceeded all the hopes I had as a football-mad boy growing up in Dublin."

Keane played for Wolves, Tottenham, Inter Milan, Leeds, Liverpool and LA Galaxy.

Root celebrates rare whitewash

JOE Root hailed the transformation of his team from "one-trick ponies" to Test cricket thoroughbreds after a history-making whitewash in Sri Lanka.

Root oversaw a stunning 3-0 series win, just the third away from home in English cricket history, thanks to a 42-run triumph on Sunday in Colombo built around a final day assault from his spin kings.

And it was fitting that Moen Ali and Jack Leach should both finish the series with 18 wickets apiece as part of a spin attack that claimed 49 of the 60 Sri Lankan wickets to fall.

Ben Stokes managed to take five wickets of his own with his wholehearted pace bowling to illustrate his outstanding all round abilities that also included nine catches, two run outs and two valuable half-centuries.

And with Root skipping the side with a touch of flair and the same positive sensibilities that he asked his team to play with, all bases were covered with a multi-talented and easily adaptable squad.

In an era where wiThe last time England had a whitewash in a series of three Tests or more was in New Zealand 55 years ago. They won 3-0 there, too, with the third Test in March 1963.

"It's been a fabulous tour from start to finish," said Root.

"I'm very proud of everything we've achieved and the manner we've done it in. The way we've played has been exceptional and a great motivator to keep doing what we are, to keep looking to get better and drive each other on."

Fellaini makes the difference

Marouane Fellaini's injury-time winner gave Manchester United a dramatic victory over Young Boys and sent his side into the last 16 of the Champions League.

With Juventus beating Valencia to remain top of Group H, United knew victory on Tuesday would send them through too but an all-too-familiar unconvincing home performance had seen them struggle to make the breakthrough.

As the board was put up to signal three minutes of injury time, United were still looking for their first goal at Old Trafford in Europe this season.

It arrived seconds later, when Fellaini collected Romelu Lukaku's flick in the box from Luke Shaw's pass, held off Loris Benito and, with the ball touching his hand in the process, turned to fire into the bottom corner.

The goal brought a delirious reaction from United boss Jose Mourinho, who flung a basket full of water bottles to the floor in celebration.

"For me it was not handball. I controlled the ball, if it touched my hand it was not on purpose," said Fellaini.

His goal came from United's 21st effort at goal, after Marcus Rashford and Fellaini had wasted good chances and the hosts appeared to have run out of ideas as the game entered its closing stages.

Fellaini came to the rescue, meaning United can go to Valencia for their final game with their progress secured and with a chance of topping the group.

Mourinho accused his side of lacking "heart and desire" in Saturday's draw with Crystal Palace and reacted by leaving Pogba and Lukaku on the bench.

His players did react to his demand for more urgency at the start of the game but, following Rashford's early miss, their intensity faded.

That was matched by the apparent apathy in the stands - there was no repeat of the booing that came at the end of the Palace game - but there was little enthusiasm on display from the United fans either.

They attempted to urge their side forward late on but most of the atmosphere during the game was provided by the 3,000 travelling Young Boys fans, who were decked in matching yellow jackets and did not stop singing throughout.

PSG stun Reds Spurs:

Liverpool face a nervy battle to reach the Champions League knockout stage after a damaging 2-1 defeat against an impressive Paris St-Germain.

Jürgen Klopp's side, who were beaten finalists last season, are third in Group C and need to beat first-placed Napoli at Anfield next month to have a chance of progressing, with the Serie A side defeating Red Star Belgrade 3-1 in the other game.

The Premier League side were outplayed for large periods of Wednesday's game in Paris and James Milner's penalty on the stroke of half-time was their only shot on target in a lacklustre showing.

By that point, they had already fallen two goals behind as Juan Bernat squeezed home the opener after Virgil van Dijk's poor clearance, before Neymar started and finished a swift team counter-attack to double the advantage.

PSG could have had a more comfortable scoreline in the second half but Marquinhos had a goal disallowed for offside, and the defensive midfielder also had a header kept out by Brazilian compatriot Alisson.

Liverpool's all-action attacking football took them to the final in the last campaign, where they were beaten 3-1 by Real Madrid.

But this season in Europe they are yet to reach the heights of that wonderful run and are battling to remain in contention with one game left to play and avoid the ignominy of dropping into the Europa League.

Trondheim on Thursday.

Scott Sinclair headed home the only goal from a sumptuous James Forrest cross three minutes before half-time.

With RB Salzburg beating RB Leipzig to qualify as group winners, Celtic have their destiny in their own hands.

They need a point against the Austrians in their final group game on 13 December to guarantee qualification.

Leipzig - who finish at home to Rosenborg - remain in contention for second spot, but Celtic will fancy their chances of progress after their first Europa League away win - at the 17th attempt - since the competition was rebranded in 2009-10.

Their sixth victory from seven matches - the other a draw - since losing 2-0 to Leipzig on 25 October, gave their swelling confidence a further boost leading into Sunday's League Cup final against Aberdeen at Hampden.

a chance of staying in the Champions League.

They left it late in both games to secure the wins they needed and this one here, against a well-drilled Inter defence, was a real triumph for resilience and persistence.

Spurs had only themselves to blame for putting themselves in this perilous position by casting aside winning positions to lose away to Inter and draw at PSV - but they deserve huge credit for pulling themselves around to still have a chance going into that final game away to Barcelona, who beat PSV 2-1 to win the group.

They could have been forgiven for thinking the fates were against them as Winks hit the bar and Vertonghen somehow headed Eriksen's free-kick - the Dane's first touch after coming on - wide from right in front of goal.

Instead, they kept pressing and were rewarded with Eriksen's breakthrough to give them the result that keeps them right in the hunt for a place in the last 16 before the trip to Barcelona.

"Barcelona are one of the best teams in Europe and they have unbelievable players," Pochettino said. "We have big respect for Barcelona, but we have belief that we can win."

250m FOR GREAT DANE!

Spurs slap huge price tag on Danish star to deter Madrid bid

REAL MADRID have been told they must stump up an astonishing £250m euros if they want to bring Christian Eriksen to the Bernebeu.

Spurs chairman Daniel Levy is desperate to keep his squad of young stars together as the club makes the move to their new stadium and attempts to break into the very top tier of European football.

Real see the Dane as the natural successor to Luka Modric – the Croatian playmaker who Spurs very reluctantly sold to the Spanish giants back in 2012 for what now seems the measly sum of £30m. Although Eriksen has been troubled by a midsection injury this season, he has frequently been Spurs' most influential player in matches against the elite over the past few seasons.

Eriksen came off the bench to score a late winner against Inter Milan at Wembley on Wednesday night to keep alive their hopes of reaching the Champions League knockout stage going into their final game at Barcelona.

Spurs needed the win to retain any hope of emerging from Group B into the last 16 and for long spells it looked like their ambitions would flounder on the rock of the Italian side's resilient defence.

Harry Winks struck the bar and Jan Vertonghen headed wide as Spurs pressed but it took the introduction of Eriksen to make the crucial breakthrough as he was the beneficiary of good work by Moussa Sissoko and Dele Alli to score at the far post with 10 minutes left.

Inter had opportunities of their own with Spurs keeper Hugo Lloris saving from Ivan Perisic – but the Premier League side closed out the win and must now match Inter's result at home to PSV Eindhoven when they travel to the Nou Camp on 11 December to go through.

Spurs had no room for manoeuvre when presented with two home games against PSV Eindhoven and Inter Milan to give themselves

Eriksen's 80th minute strike secured a win for Spurs on Wednesday night

Europa League Round Up

A youthful Arsenal side scored three first-half goals to cruise past Vorskla Poltava in Kiev and secure top spot in Europa League Group E on Thursday.

The match had initially been in doubt because of security concerns in Poltava, but Uefa intervened and moved the tie to the Ukraine capital.

Teenage forward Emile Smith Rowe scored his second goal in as many European starts, before Aaron Ramsey converted his first penalty for the club.

Nineteen-year-old Joe Willock claimed his first senior goal for the club four minutes from half-time in below freezing conditions.

Arsenal will now avoid the four best teams dropping down from the Champions League in the last 32.

Olivier Giroud (above) scored twice as Chelsea saw off PAOK Salonika 4-0 on the evening they secured top spot in Europa League Group L.

The Frenchman curled home from Pedro's pass before burying a volley from Cesc Fabregas' lofted through ball to give the hosts a two-goal lead at the break.

The Greek visitors had been down to 10 men since the seventh minute with Yevhen Khacheridi dismissed for diving in and denying Giroud a clear goal-scoring opportunity.

A depleted PAOK tired further in the second half and 18-year-old Callum Hudson-Odoi found the net before substitute Alvaro Morata headed in the youngster's cross with his first touch off the bench.

Chelsea play Hungarians MOL Vidi on 13 December in a final dead-rubber group game.

CELTIC moved to within a point of reaching the Europa League knockout stages with an efficient victory over Rosenborg in
