

Home Office strips jihadi bride of citizenship after she shows no remorse ISIS BRIDE TOLD: YOU ARE NO LONGER BRITISH

JIHADI bride Shamima Begum is to lose her British citizenship, the Home Office have informed her family.

The 19-year-old, who fled the UK four years ago to join Islamic State, will be stripped of her passport by Home Secretary Sajid Javid. The family's lawyer said they would explore "all legal avenues to challenge this decision".

Begum was at the centre of a national row over whether she should be allowed to return with her newborn son. A letter obtained by ITV news reportedly sent to Begum's mother by the Home Office read: "Please find enclosed papers that relate to a decision taken by the Home Secretary, to deprive your daughter, Shamima Begum, of her British citizenship.

the "In light of circumstances of your daughter, the notice of the Home Secretary's decision has been served of file today (19th February), and the order removing her British citizenship has subsequently been made."

The letter asked Begum's mother to inform her daughter of the decision, if she was able to make contact. It also advised the family of Begum's right to appeal via the Immigration Special Appeals Commission. Under the 1981 British Nationality Act, a person can be deprived of their citizenship if the Home Secretary is satisfied it would be "conducive to the public good" and they would not become stateless as a result.

'full of hate'

It was reported that Begum can be stripped of her British citizenship because she has dual British and Bangladeshi nationality. The move comes after Mr Javid said last week that he would try to stop Begum returning home.

"We must remember that those who left Britain to join Daesh [IS] were full of hate for our country," he said. "My message is clear - if you have supported terrorist organisations abroad I will not hesitate to prevent your return."

Begum's family's lawyer, Tasnime Akunjee, posted a statement online. In it, he said: "Family high profile television interviews, she explained that she now wants to return to Britain "for the sake of my child".

"A lot of people should have sympathy for me," she said. On Monday in an interview with the BBC, Begum appeared to justify the Manchester Arena bombing by comparing it to military strikes on IS strongholds. She was one of three schoolgirls from east London who left the UK to travel to Syria in February 2015. The trio flew to Turkey and then travelled overland to Syria aged just 15.

The other two were Kadiza Sultana, who has reportedly been killed in an air strike, and Amira Abase, who is thought to still be with IS. Once there, Begum married Yago Riedijk, a Dutch Muslim convert who joined Islamic State and is a wanted terror suspect in his home country. After surfacing at al-Hawl refugee camp in northern Syria last week, Begum insisted she was just a housewife and mother and had not taken part in IS atrocities. But she admitted to knowing that IS thugs were carrying out beheadings, executions and other atrocities.

'legal precedence'

Tory MP Andrew Bridgen welcomed the decision last night, saying: "There is going to be a huge groundswell of support for this from the public.

Labour in crisis as eight quit over 'anti-Semitism'

THE ANTI-SEMITISM which been row simmering in the Labour Party ranks for the past few months erupted into a full blown crisis this week as no fewer than EIGHT MPs quit the party to join the breakaway Independent Group, accusing leader Jeremy Corbyn of "presiding over a culture of anti Semitism and hatred of Israel".

Umunna, Chuka Luciana Berger and Chris Leslie, were among the leading lights of the group who walked away on Monday claiming Britain's main opposition party had been irretrievably taken over by hardline socialist fanatics.

'old fashioned politics'

Announcing their intention to sit in the Commons as "The Independent Group", they urged MPs from across the political spectrum to join them in forming a new centreground movement. In an echo of the 1980s Labour split that bred the breakaway Social Democratic Party, Mr Umunna said: "It's time we dumped this country's old-fashioned politics. "We've taken the first step in leaving the old, tribal politics behind and we invite others who share our political values to do so, too." Mrs Berger, a target for vile antiSemitic abuse by Corbyn-backing activists, said she had become "ashamed and embarrassed" to be a Labour Party member.

"I cannot remain in a party that I have come to the conclusion is institutionally anti-Semitic," she said. All seven MPs - who also included backbenchers Ann Coffey, Mike Gapes, Gavin Shuker and Angela Smith – resigned in emails to the party before the launch of their group in a news conference at central London's County Hall.

The group of pro-Brussels MPs cited Mr Corbyn's reluctance to resist Brexit and support a second EU referendum as a key reason for their departure. Mr Corbyn shrugged off the departure of the seven moderates.

"I am disappointed these MPs have felt unable to continue to work together for the Labour policies that inspired millions at the last election," the Labour leader said.

However, his Watson deputy Tom acknowledged other Labour MPs were poised to quit to join the new grouping. In an apparent jibe at Mr Corbyn and his allies, he said Mrs Berger had been the "first casualty" of a "virulent form of identity politics which has seized the Labour Party".

On Wednesday the seven were joined by Joan Ryan, MP for Enfield North since 1997, who told reporters she could not "be part of a party that allows racism to flourish". She said Corbyn had introduced anti-Semitism to the party and was "a danger".

'lazy smears'

"It's obviously not a delight, it's painful. But it is a duty," she said. "I wasn't elected as a Labour MP to watch this happen and I have no choice but to stand up to it. For me this is a moral issue."

In a tweet, Ms Ryan added: "After four decades, I have made the terribly difficult decision to resign from the Labour Party. It is the greatest honour of my life to represent the people of Enfield North.

"I will continue to represent and speak up for them as a member of the Independent Group of MPs."

Earlier in the day the party was plunged into a fresh anti-Semitism crisis after an MP suggested the Independent Group was backed by Israel. Ruth George was forced to apologise for her "poorly worded" attack after being accused of "lazy smears". Seven MPs quit on Monday over the leadership's failure to tackle anti-Semitism in the party as well as the direction it is being taken under Jeremy Corbyn. The Independent Group, which includes Jewish MP Luciana Berger, is not yet a political party so does not have to disclose how it is funded.

Ms George, a keen supporter of Mr Corbyn, suggested it was "possible" the group was being supported by the Israeli government. The MP for High Peak in Derbyshire posted on Facebook: "Support from the State of Israel, which supports both Conservative and Labour Friends of Israel, of which Luciana was chair, is possible".

Conservative MP Simon Clarke said Ms George's comments were "staggering". He added: "All the lazy conflation of smears about Israel, Jewish MPs and those who dare to criticize the hideous state of the Labour Party on display in full Technicolor."

Uproar as Songs of Praise is bumped

THE BBC has come under fire from viewers over a decision to move Songs Of Praise from its prime-time slot.

The Church of England complained about the "marginalisation" of the longrunning show which will now be broadcast at 1.15pm instead of 6pm on Sundays. Fans took to social media to complain that the earlier slot means they will not be back from church services in time. Others pointed out that elderly fans in care homes will miss the programme, because it will clash with lunchtime and they would not be able to access iPlayer. One viewer tweeted that the BBC "would be glad to see the programme totally scrapped".

A petition on website Change.org accused the BBC of interfering so the show would have less of an audience in order to justify funding cuts.

"Many people would have sympathy with the idea of stripping British citizenship from anyone who supports groups that have 'declared war on the British state'.'

Adding a note of caution, MrBridgenwent on: "I have considerable concerns about the legal precedence for this and whether it's going to stand up." There are currently plans to change the law to make travelling to certain terror hotspots a criminal offence, but this would not apply retrospectively to Ms Begum. Around 425 suspected jihadi fighters are thought to have returned to the UK from Syria so far.

The Home Office declined to comment.

News From Britain

Young Brits the most unhealthy among leading EU nations

YOUNG people in Britain are more likely to be obese, suffer poverty and have a lengthy illness than those from many other countries, according to a new report.

A comparison of the lives of 10 to 24-year-olds in the UK with young people in 18 other countries found the UK lagging behind on several key markers of health. The Nuffield Trust and the Association for Young People's Health found the UK has the highest obesity rates for 15 to 19-year-olds among 14 European countries, including Italy, France, Belgium, Spain, Greece and Germany. Young people in the UK are also far more likely to be obese if they are poor, with some of the inequalities highest between rich and poor when it comes to obesity rates. The report added: "Despite living in the world's fifth largest economy, people aged 20 to 24 in the UK are experiencing one of the highest rates of severe material deprivation.

"Reducing poverty among young people is key to improving health outcomes in the UK."

The study also found that England has the proportion highest aged 16 to 24 with a long-standing health condition, rising from 13.5 per cent of this age group in 2008 to 18.5 per cent in 2016. This is higher than European countries like France, Germany, Greece Italy, and Spain. Exercise levels among 11-yearolds in England and Wales are also poor, while young people in the UK are twice as likely to die from asthma as in any other European country studied.

Hoddle reveals he was 'gone for 60 seconds' FOOTBALL great Glenn Hoddle was "gone for 60 seconds" after collapsing in a TV studio on his 61st birthday, he revealed on Monday.

The former England manager was saved by sound engineer Simon Daniels, who worked to keep him alive on the set of BT Sport's Live Saturday Morning Savage show last October. Hoddle said he was "gone" after going into cardiac arrest following a kickaround on the set. He said: "My heart stopped for at least 60 seconds. I was gone. The engineer ran to me and brought me back to life "

heart bypass

Mr Daniels broke seven of Hoddle's ribs as he pounded the chest of the former Tottenham Hotspur and Chelsea manager, who had fallen backwards and smashed his head on the studio floor. Hoddle, who was airlifted to hospital, said if he had suffered the heart attack anywhere else he fears he would not be alive to tell the tale. He said: "It goes without saying if my cardiac arrest had struck on the golf course, or when I was watching Spurs play in the Netherlands a few days earlier, I'd be a goner."

The Spurs legend underwent major surgery to have a heart bypass to help restore blood flow to his body at St Bartholomew's Hospital in London two weeks after he almost lost his life. Father-of-three Hoddle, who won 53 caps for England from 1979-88 and managed the national team at the 1998 World Cup in France, said he failed to recollect much about what had happened after waking up in hospital. He added: "It's ironic that, if I had died, the last thing I would have done on this earth was kick a ball.

"What a way to go. It could have happened on live TV. The timing of everything on the day was incredible." Hoddle is now backing a Government scheme to make it compulsory for school pupils to learn how to use a defibrillator and perform CPR. He said he has been overwhelmed by messages of support, adding: "It's uplifting, and getting so many positives has been a big part of my recovery."

Angry passengers stranded after airline's shock collapse

Thousands left in the lurch after regional carrier Flybmi files for administration

FURIOUS British holidaymakers have been left stranded at airports across Europe after regional airline Flvbmi collapsed, cancelling all its flights.

Thousands of passengers have had to find another flight home to the UK after the airline, which flew to 25 cities, filed for administration on Saturday. There are also 1,500 people in the UK - including families planning to jet off during the half-term school break – who have been hit by the news. The East Midlands Airport budget airline blamed the collapse on spiralling fuel costs as well as uncertainty created by Brexit. The firm said Brexit had already 'seriously affected" its current trading and future prospects. Some passengers only found out by text on their way to airports, while others were told as they walked to the boarding gate for their flight.

Durham University student Mary Ward is in Brussels and was due to fly back to Newcastle when she received a text from the airline informing her that all flights were cancelled. She said on Wednesday: "I paid £130 for my flight. I don't know how I am going to get back to Durham. I can't afford any of the flights or the Eurostar." Hannah Price, from Portishead in Somerset, who has a clothing business, also was stranded in Brussels. She faced a seven-hour journey back to Bristol, via Amsterdam. She had arrived in the Belgian capital last Monday and booked to return home on Flybmi. She said she had heard nothing from the firm about refunding her £130 air fare. Ms Price, 23, said: "If I am not in the UK my business can't run. It's highly frustrating. It could have had a catastrophic effect on my income."

Civil engineer Danny McLaughlin, 46, from Buncrana in County Donegal, booked 14 flights with the airline for his job over seven weeks between the City of Derry Airport and London Stansted. He said: "I'm stunned. It came as a bolt out of the blue."

The airline operated flights on routes from Aberdeen, Bristol, City of Derry, East Midlands, London Stansted and Newcastle. The 376-strong workforce spans the UK, Germany, Sweden Belgium. and Some passengers claim they were still able to make bookings on Saturday a few hours before the airline announced it had collapsed. In a Tweet on Friday, Flybmi also urged people to book their winter sports holiday to Munich with them. Passenger Lee

Roberston said: "So angry. They took my booking days ago. They were planning this and should not have been taking bookings."

Last year, the carried 522,000 airline passengers on 29,000 flights. Flybmi said in a statement: "We sincerely regret that this course of action has become the only option open to us, but the challenges, particularly those created by Brexit, have proven to be insurmountable."

A spokesman for the Department for Transport described the situation as "very disappointing" and said the Government was focused on supporting affected passengers.

Meet A Member: Zoe Nauman

Meet Zoe Nauman from Woolwich, London, who moved to LA three and a half years ago to continue her career as a writer and media content strategist. After working in the showbiz office of Mailonline.com, she left their Venice office and now helps businesses around the globe to get more clients, higher visibility and make more money with their social media and media content strategies online, in print and on TV and radio.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I left the UK in 2008 and moved to Australia for seven and a half years before coming to America. My husband was offered a position in LA, and we had always wanted to live in the States. I was able to get a transfer from the Australian offices of the Mailonline where I was showbiz editing, so it was ready, set go! Plus, we had got so used to sunshine living in Sydney, British winters were strictly off the agenda!

What do you miss most from home?

Definitely NOT the weather! My friends and family without a doubt. Of course I miss the hustle and bustle of London - I lived and worked in the capital for 10 years. But I remember my very last train ride home from work on December 5th 2008. My nose was literally in someone's armpit and I said to myself 'I'm not doing this again for a million dollars.' I always force myself to go on the tube at rush hour when I'm back for a visit, in case I get 'tourist syndrome' and think that's what it's like to live in London. It's always rosy when you are visiting!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

Well coming from Sydney, I remember coming into land on the plane and thinking it was like someone had washed all the colours out! The traffic – let's not get onto the topic of the 405 or I'll be here forever. I was actually praying the first time I went on it, saying out loud "don't crash don't crash" and then something along the lines of "oh s**t" when I got onto the freeway from the entrance! Also how spread out everything was. Has any of that changed? Well I can now change lanes with the best of 'em, and have a much better idea of how to get around.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London and Sydney? Well the difference from London is the lack of public transport system. And I do miss pubs. There is nothing like a good pub. Regarding what I miss from Sydney, I think again it is easier to get around and it truly is a very beautiful place to live. I'm lucky enough to live by the beach here, and I lived in Bondi Down Under, so that part is the same. I get to experience a slightly more laid back version of LA lifestyle. I don't think I could handle living up in Hollywood! Oh and the majority of people looking bloody amazing. Hence the fact I now work out everyday at F45 training, and dropped four dress sizes when I got here to keep up with the natives!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I do like seeking out Australian cafes, because I am afraid to say I became a massive coffee snob in Sydney. It's a universal thing over there. So I like Bluestone Lane on Rose Ave, Venice – they also do amazing avocado toast, another Aussie staple. Deus is also great on the junction of Lincoln and Venice. It's an Aussie motorcycle/ surf clothing brand with a great coffee shop which sells, yes you guessed it, Aussie coffee.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Zoe Nauman (above) and (below) at F45 training: "I dropped four dress sizes when I got here to keep up with the natives!

Having moved countries twice now, never under estimate how hard, and how expensive it will be. Also if you have a pet - it ain't cheap. We flew our dog Poco over here from Oz - his ticket was more than both of ours together!

LA is expensive. Food shopping is expensive! This is an on going topic of conversation between my English gal pals, as well as my Aussie ones. Be prepared, research and make connections before you come over. Brits are so friendly to other Brits abroad – I had this experience in Oz as well. And it helps to establish a friendship group for when you arrive.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given? Goodness that is a difficult one. Well I launched my business last year - Media Content Guru, and I don't mind saying it was tough on a lot of levels. So when I was feeling a bit sorry for myself, this Martin Luther King Jr quote was a good one to inspire me: "if you can't fly then run, if you can't run then walk, if you can't walk then crawl, but whatever you do, you have to keep moving forward." La La Land is hard to break! Whatever game you're in. Now I look back and I am amazed, and pretty darn proud of how far I have come with my business. Thanks Mr King you're awesome!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment? www. mediacontentguru. com and instagram theorginalzoenauman

Twelve teams battled it out for the title at the latest Brits in LA Pub Quiz but in the end, after a nail-biting tiebreaker, it was A Pint of Lagerfeld who emerged with the most fashionable of victories.

The winners are pictured here at the Cat and Fiddle, with quizmaster Sandro Monetti and their $75 prize, following the February 19 triumph.

ARIES: Take this week's energy and move it in a positive area for you and make it work and then some. The positive planet lineup coming will bring so many opportunities for good things to light up all the areas you are looking to change.

TAURUS : He who hesitates is lost should be your mantra this week ahead. Do not waste time remembering how things used to be. The planets are forcing you out of that old comfort zone. Best to let the past go and move to a positive future.

GEMINI: Seems as though all around you are procrastinating including you. If you do not make a decision this week it will continue. Regardless, all will work to your advantage mid-week. You have a good workweek ahead.

CANCER: Your inability to face your own downside, which is hiding under the shell of your feelings will in the end be your own downfall. This time it is a simple solution so with this in mind be honest to yourself and maybe keep a written record of how you are dealing with this. LEO : This time of year is a reflective one for Leos as the sun passes through the water sign of Pisces and prepares you to let go of what no longer serves you. In order to get the best results going forward look at what is good in your life and be grateful for that.

VIRGO: You have a busy couple of weeks ahead and so this weekend take time out and get away from the madding crowd. As the middle of the week ahead comes round you will be fit and happy and be ready to be on the go.

LIBRA: You may be feeling somewhat puzzled this week ahead when people around you act in a way that makes no sense. You cannot second guess anybody with this planetary energy of Uranus and it is best not to assume the worst.

SCORPIO: The recent Virgo full moon could have brought up some underlying situation that has to do with health or emotions. Just be ready to take care of this promptly and life will be back on track. Changes on the home front will be on your mind next week.

SAG ITTARIUS: Jupiter your boss planet is moving in a jaunty forward movement. With this in mind take a chance and make hay while the sun shines. You are in a good cycle to start looking at better career moves soon.

CAPRICORN: The recent full moon should have made you aware of something lacking in your overall life. This does not mean you missed out on something. It simply means you are ready for changes. So take the chance offered.

AQUARIUS: You will be ready and hopefully waiting for the moment to take some kind of action. Wait until you feel it is the right time and it will make the difference. Sunny days are ahead in relationships.

PISCES: The full moon opposite your sign along with the Sun in Pisces this week will bring some kind of completion for you. How you deal with this will be the focus for the rest of the month. You can do this if you really want to. Happy Birthday!

How the homeless pricked my conscience

Ralph's in Hollywood last week (Rock & Roll Ralphs, for those of you who know it). Parking in the main lot is a nightmare, so I went to the quieter roof level. As I was dashing through the rain to the elevator I got distracted for a second as I realized a man and a little girl were sitting under the covered area. Which gave me pause for thought. I noticed their cardboard sign; it was asking for money to help them get in to a hostel that night. I wasn't quite sure what to do, so continued on my way but it nagged

I was shopping at at me throughout my grocery store visit. I encounter homeless people several times a day, but this pair really struck a chord with me. They looked newly homeless. In that they were well presented and didn't have a mountain of possessions surrounding them. Some of you may leap to the conclusion that they were probably scammers and not destitute at all. However, my perception was that they both needed a helping hand. Should I talk to the store manager? Mention them to security? Or perhaps call the police?

did any of those things they would be asked to move on and out into the pouring rain.

This upper parking lot is slightly safer than the front one, which is notorious for transients, drug dealers and other less savory/safe people. So as I continued on I decided to shop for them instead. Seeing as it was cold I bought some fried chicken from the deli and picked up napkins and forks for them and some water and candy bars. My thinking was that perhaps the sugar would give them a little energy as well as a treat for the little girl. I looked in my wallet and only had $5 but still better than nothing. My British reserve stopped me from asking them intrusive questions. So I handed them the bag and cash and said 'I picked you up some chicken and snacks as it's cold out here.'

They thanked me without looking directly at me, slightly ashamed perhaps? Then I politely went on my way so they could eat. But really wishing I could help them more, or offer to take them to a hostel and pay for it on my credit card. But I also knew that my own personal safety had to come first.

As soon as I got home I looked up what I should do in this kind of situation.

I was afraid that if I I came across a very website informative called Coalition for the Homeles (coalition forthehomeless.org). They had a FAQ section that answered all of my questions and many more. They even offer to send you contact cards to hand out to people who look like they need help.

> Another option if you think someone is at risk is to report to the city by dialing 311. They have an app too. I actually use it a lot to report pot holes or arrange an extra trash collection, but it hadn't dawned on me that I could use it to report concerns about people living on the streets. My main worry is that by doing any of the above will cause social services to get involved and take the little girl away. But perhaps they should? As it isn't right that she is out on the streets, especially in this weather. I'm really full of dilemmas, really not knowing what is best... what would you have done in this situation?

issues they are most passionate about. They have lots of opportunities to choose from including arts, animals, the the environment, the hungry and the homeless. So if you want to get involved, visit LAWorks.com for details.

Neighboring Light also needs help, mainly the donation of basic toiletries that they can include in the care packages. Apparently there are at least 50,000 people homeless in Los Angeles, and between 3-4 thousand in just a 1/4 mile square around Skid Row in Downtown LA. So if you know any toiletry suppliers send them his way!

She may be worth $38m, but SuBo's still keeping it real!

Scotts singing star Susan Boyle who is worth $38 million, looked worlds apart from her glamorous stint on US television as she waited for a bus in her Scottish home town last week.

Spotted near her home in West Lothian, Susan was dressed for the cold weather in an olive green tracksuit with a black winter coat.

Boyle was left disappointed after she was knocked out of the finals of America's Got Talent: The Champions.

Susan had wowed judges Simon Cowell, Heidi Klum, Mel B and Howie Mandel in the first stages of the competition but didn't make the cut during her last appearance on Monday.

She was lucky enough to hear the 'golden buzzer' in the earlier stages of the show from judge Mel B and was sent straight through to the final.

Susan was joined by fellow Britain's Got Talent star, singer Paul Potts but the pair failed to make it into the final five.

Susan said afterwards: "Of course, I'd be lying if I said I wasn't disappointed, but also deep down I didn't think I would win.

"Secretly you hold out hope that you just might because that's what drives you to do your best in a competition."

Maybe she's hoping there'll be another one along in a minute....!!

Rosie stripping off? abs-solutely fabulous!

Rosie Huntington-Whiteley set pulses racing as she stripped off to promote her new lingerie range this week.

The sexy British supermodel showed off her rock hard abs as she unveiled her summer underwear collection with high street chain Marks & Spencer.

The beauty sizzled in a white lacy undies and a sexy emerald green combo as she teased her latest designs on Instagram.

She wrote: "Fittings for my Rosie Lingerie shoot today. Love the new collection coming this summer' the allure, Upping Rosie's trademark blonde locks tumbled around her face in sultry waves while her face modelled a glam but soft make-up look.

Despite her pin-up status, Rosie – who shares 20-month-old son Jack with fiancé Jason Statham recently _ revealed her life-long struggle with her skin.

Her battle with acne has also caused the model to remove eggs and dairy from her diet.

She said on her YouTube page this week: "I get a lot of people asking me what my skin type is, well on a good day, I would probably have just a couple of spots, and on a bad day, it could be a lot. "I've always had a little bit of acne because it's something my mum had.

"It's something I'm always trying to better so I'm quite diligent about my skincare routine."

they have played this season train.

The EFL found Leeds breached rules over treating teams with "good faith".

Leeds have also received a formal reprimand from the EFL, which is bringing in a rule to prohibit clubs from viewing their opposition training in the 72 hours preceding a game unless invited to do so.

The EFL said in a statement that Leeds' conduct "fell significantly short of the standards expected" and it "must not be repeated".

EFL chief executive Shaun Harvey added: "The sanctions imposed highlight how actions such as this cannot be condoned and act as a clear deterrent should any club seek to undertake poor conduct in the future.

"We will now look to move on from this incident and commence the discussions about introducing a specific regulation at a meeting with all clubs later this month."

has also issued a formal warning to Leeds, Bielsa and a club video analyst.

"The FA will take appropriate action should further evidence of this nature come to light in the future," a spokesman said. In an extraordinary news conference in the week after Leeds' match against Derby, Bielsa said he "observed all the rivals we played against and watched the training sessions of all opponents".

That led to widespread criticism, though there is no specific rule stopping teams from observing opponents training.

During Bielsa's briefing, he showed journalists how much preparation and analysis he and his staff carry out on each opponent before every game.

Leeds said in а statement: "We accept that whilst we have not broken any specific rule, we have fallen short of the standard expected by the EFL.

"We apologise for acting in a way that has been judged culturally unacceptable in the English game and would like to thank Shaun Harvey and the EFL for the manner in which they conducted their investigations."

Fans turn against manager after shambolic performance sees them dumped out of FA Cup

bow out of Europa League

Celtic

Celtic's Europa League campaign came to an end at the last-32 stage for the second successive season as they bowed out to Valencia on Thursday.

Their task in the second leg always looked formidable, given they had never overturned a two-goal deficit away from home, nor had they won in Spain.

A creditable firsthalf performance was marred by Jeremy Toljan's dismissal for twice pulling back Goncalo Guedes.

And Celtic finally conceded when Kevin Gameiro forced home from close range.

While the Glasgow side were passive last week at Celtic Park, they were far more aggressive at the Mestalla against their La Liga hosts.

Celtic at least gave them food for thought, with a 3-4-3 formation offering a much more solid look and their use of the ball far improved.

Celtic searched for the opening goal that would bring the tie alive. but their faint hopes of recovery vanished as Toljan was punished twice in quick succession for dragging Guedes down after allowing him to get goal-side.

That woke Valencia up and Scott Bain saved brilliantly twice before half-time to keep out a Daniel Parejo shot that had deflected off Ryan Christie and then to tip away Santi Mina's net-bound effort.

He and the rest of the Celtic defence stood firm for 25 minutes of the second half in the face of increasing pressure before finally buckling.

Guedes' fabulous diagonal ball from the left was headed into the sixyard box by the advanced full-back Daniel Wass and Gameiro - only just on the field - bundled it through the legs of Bain with his knee. MAURIZIO SARRI could be within days of the sack at Chelsea with the club shocked at the way the fans have turned on the Italian.

Sarri's struggling team crashed out of the FA Cup on Monday as Manchester United won 2-0 at Stamford Bridge to inflict Chelsea's fifth defeat in their last 10 games.

Fans chanted "**** Sarriball", "You don't know what you're doing", and "You're getting sacked in the morning" as frustration mounted at another shambolic performance.

And Sarri is unwilling to change his tactics despite growing concern within the club at his inability to connect with the fans – and his dismissal of that as a problem.

The former Napoli boss got a brief fillip with Thursday's comfortable 3-0 win over Malmoe in the Europa League, but they face the daunting prospect of Sunday's Carabao Cup final against a Manchester City side who beat them 6-0 in the league last week, followed by next Wednesday's clash with bitter rivals Tottenham.

Senior club officials were shocked at the reaction of fans to Monday's defeat and the feeling is that, unlike Jose Mourinho, Carlo Ancelotti or Antonio Conte, Sarri has never connected with the fanbase - nor made any effort to. Frustration at his reluctance to change his tactics, including playing N'Golo Kante out of position and persevering with Jorginho as his defensive shield, is also mounting.

One factor protecting Sarri is that there is no obvious replacement. His assistant Gianfranco Zola is a possibility, but the former Chelsea striker has been unwell this week, having an operation for gallstones which kept him away from the United game. Plus his managerial track record is poor.

Former Real Madrid coach Zinedine Zidane has been mentioned as a candidate, as has former Paris Saint Germain coach Laurent Blanc and another former Blues player in Frank Lampard. But it is thought unlikely Lampard would walk away from his first managerial job at Derby County at this stage. Former Chelsea skipper John Terry, now assistant manager at Aston Villa, was at the game on Monday night but has no managerial experience. Leonid Slutsky, the former Russia and Hull manager and friend of Chelsea owner Roman Abramovich currently at Dutch club Vitesse Arnhem, could also be a contender.

TIME'S UP? The Stamford Bridge crowd made their displeasure felt Monday night

Sources inside the squad suggest there is growing frustration at monotonous training sessions – some of them run by Zola – and the pair's insistence on sticking to the same system and tactics for every game.

There was at least better news on Thursday night as Callum Hudson-Odoi scored a marvellous second-half goal as the Blues cruised into the Europa League last 16 with victory over Malmo at Stamford Bridge.

The Blues, who led 2-1 from the first leg, started slowly but improved markedly after the break.

Olivier Giroud gave them the lead on the night by tapping home, before Ross Barkley floated in a free-kick moments after Rasmus Bengtsson was sent off.

Hudson-Odoi, 18, then drove in from the right before firing in a late third.

Tie on a knife edge as Bayern frustrate Reds

Liverpool's Champions League last-16 tie against Bayern Munich remains finely poised after a goalless draw in the first leg at Anfield on Tuesday night.

The hosts posed the greater threat but were either wasteful in front of goal or kept out by Bayern's well-marshalled defence.

Sadio Mane missed a handful of first-half chances, most notably dragging a shot on the turn wide from inside the penalty area when unmarked.

Joel Matip also failed to convert Roberto Firmino's cross from six yards.

Matip almost handed Bayern an away goal early on when his misdirected clearance rebounded to safety off Liverpool goalkeeper Alisson.

The German champions were excellent defensively in the second half, with Mane's 85thminute header at the near post the closest Liverpool came to scoring.

In Champions League history, 31 sides have drawn the first leg of a knockout match at home 0-0 but only 10 have progressed.

Bayern have lost only two of their past 26 home Champions League games, but Liverpool know if they can score it will give them a huge advantage with away goals counting as double in the event of a draw.

If Liverpool are knocked out, they will rue their misfiring performance at Anfield. Other than Mane's late header, which was saved by Manuel Neuer, their only other shot on target came from Mohamed Salah in the first half when he failed to get enough on a brilliant ball over the top by Jordan Henderson to test the Bayern goalkeeper.

There were moments when Liverpool's trademark one-touch attacking play was evident, but they also failed to make the most of promising opportunities.

Credit must also go to Bayern. They curbed their own attacking instincts to produce a resolute defensive performance, with full-backs Joshua Kimmich and David Alaba and centre-backs Mats Hummels and Niklas Sule impressive.

Despite their problems in attack, Liverpool must be pleased that their makeshift defence kept Bayern's forwards quiet. The Reds were without Virgil van Dijk, who was suspended, and the injured Dejan Lovren and Joe Gomez, meaning midfielder Fabinho had to fill in at centre-back. Robert Lewandowski, the Champions League's top scorer this season, had 34 touches - the fewest of any player in the starting line-ups - including only three in the Liverpool penalty area.

Midfielder Henderson was also excellent for Liverpool, consistently breaking up possession.

Manchester City are "still not ready to fight for the latter stages" of the Champions League, says Pep

RAHEEM STERLING scored a dramatic late winner in Germany Wednesday night as Manchester City beat Schalke 3-2 in the first leg of their last-16 tie.

The narrowness of the win prompted a pensive Pep Guardiola to tell reporters after the match that his side are "still not ready to fight for the latter stages" of the Champions League.

Sterling scored the decisive goal in the last minute of normal time latching on to goalkeeper Ederson's long kick and coolly slotting home.

The Premier League champions had come into the match as strong favourites and went in front on 18 minutes through Sergio Aguero.

But the game swung in Schalke's favour before half-time after contentious VAR а decision and two Nabil Bentaleb penalties.

The first of Schalke's spot-kicks came after the intervention of the VAR, who penalised City defender Nicolas Otamendi for handball when the ball struck his arm as he moved it behind his back.

The second was given for a foul by Fernandinho on Salif Sane - the referee sticking with his decision the VAR.

After being booked for the handball, Otamendi was shown a second yellow card for a foul on Guido Burgstaller in the second half - meaning he will sit out the second leg, as will Fernandinho.

With City heading for a surprise defeat, manager Pep Guardiola sent on former Schalke player Leroy Sane - and the Germany international curled home a free-kick from 30 yards out to level, before Sterling struck.

"It was a great result," said Guardiola. "We gave them two penalties, we gave them a red card, and in this competition that is not too good.

"We are still not ready to fight for the latter stages, that is reality, but the result is good.

"We played with incredible personality. We gave two goals when they did absolutely nothing. It is not over, this competition is completely different."

The second leg takes place in Manchester on Tuesday, 12 March.

But the post-match talking points were inevitably about how VAR changed the game.

Gunners cruise through to last 6

Arsenal booked their place in the last 16 of the Europa League with a comfortable second-leg victory over Bate Borisov at Emirates Stadium on Thursday.

Trailing 1-0 from the first leg, they scored four minutes inside when Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang's cross was turned in by Bate defender Zakhar Volkov. Centre-back Shkodran

Mustafi made it 2-0 before the break with a powerful header from Granit Xhaka's corner. Substitute Sokratis

Papastathopoulos headed in the third goal after an hour. After a disappointing performance in losing the first leg in Belarus, Arsenal needed to score at least twice to go through.

Bate denied were

It seemed as though the Argentine was trying to tuck his arm behind his back, and Spanish referee Carlos del Cerro Grande initially awarded a corner. But after consultation with VAR Alejandro Hernandez a discussion which took nearly three minutes - he pointed to the penalty spot, and former Tottenham midfielder Bentaleb converted.

It later emerged the pitchside monitor used to review decisions was broken, so the referee could not watch a replay of the incident.

Former City defender Danny Mills said on BBC Radio 5 live: "I don't know what is handball and what isn't any more. Otamendi is trying to get his arm out of the way, it's in a natural position, but it stops the ball hitting the target."

The second penalty decision was more straightforward for the referee as he penalised Fernandinho for holding - and Bentaleb scored once more.

Schalke head coach Domenico Tedesco said: "We are obviously very disappointed by
