Duke echoes Queen's plea to come together amid Brexit chaos

PRINCE WILLIAM CALLS FOR CALM AND UNITY

THE Duke of Cambridge has issued a rallying cry for unity and leadership with just a month left until Brexit.

Delivering a keynote speech in Belfast Prince William, the second in line to the throne, made a barely disguised reference to the deep divisions Britain's decision to leave the EU had created.

As politicians bicker, clashes between Leavers and Remainers turn ugly and the EU snubs pleas to reopen negotiations he used one of the city's sporting heroines to help hammer home his appeal for calm.

On the day Buckingham Palace announced ex-Olympian Dame Mary Peters had been appointed to the Order of the Garter by the Queen, he said: "Mary Peters is not only one of the UK's sporting legends, she's also inspired generation after generation to come together in times of trouble and work for the common good – a lesson I hope many of us can learn from."

William's address at the Belfast Empire Music Hall was interpreted as a call for politicians and the public to come together, with Britain set to leave the EU on March 29.

The Duke's subtle intervention was made during an unannounced visit to the province with wife Kate but was widely seen as a carefully worded attempt to bang heads together as the clock ticks down. Like all royals, he is politically neutral in public but the location and timing of his speech were not lost on observers given the controversy surrounding the Northern Irish backstop, which is blamed for a lack of consensus on Brexit talks.

His intervention comes just a month after the Queen delivered a talk in which she called for people to show "respect" for each other when facing challenges. She also used her annual televised Christmas address to preach a similar message of unity. Since the 2016 referendum royals have undertaken a series of diplomatic missions, touring Canada and Europe, in what was seen as a bridge-building exercise. But William and Kate's unscheduled trip to Northern Ireland was a more delicate matter. The couple arrived for a two-day tour amid ongoing tensions over the backstop, a controversial mechanism to maintain

Addressing hundreds of Northern Irish youth leaders William said: "From using sport to encourage people to talk openly about mental health to delivering services to children and young people who are at risk of entering care, the work you do transcends community divisions." William and Kate met Dame Mary as well as young people from her trust before the pair dropped in at an entertainment venue and to the delight of her husband the Duchess pulled a pint. He then had a go himself and admiring his work declared: "Perfect."

Labour throws support behind second referendum

THE LIKELIHOOD of a continue to support "other second EU referendum grew this week as the Labour Party revealed it was backing the idea.

Chancellor Shadow Iohn McDonnell told the Evening Standard on Thursday his party would take the first opportunity to test whether MPs will back a public vote once the terms of Theresa May's latest Brexit negotiations were known.

But he stressed that Jeremy Corbyn's party would also continue to press for its own Brexit vision and was still calling for a general election.

Mr McDonnell said the party was "moving towards" second а referendum that would give Brits the chance to stay in the EU.

'best option'

Labour's Brexit blueprint was defeated by 240 votes to 323 in the Commons on Wednesday night and Mr Corbyn confirmed Labour would now back a referendum if faced with a "damaging Tory Brexit" or a nodeal departure from the European Union.

But he insisted that Labour would also available options" to prevent either the Prime Minister's deal or the UK crashing out without an agreement.

Speaking on an ITV current affairs program, the shadow chancellor set out Labour's approach, saying the move would be made when Mrs May next risks a meaningful vote on her Brexit deal.

"That's the time when we will have to put the amendment up," he said.

But he added: "We are still going to argue that we want a general election, we are still going to argue we think our deal that we have put up was the best option."

He suggested "either a deal will go through which will protect jobs and the economy or, to get some deal through, it will be conditional on going back to the people".

Labour MPs Peter Kyle and Phil Wilson have put forward a compromise plan to back Mrs May's deal with the condition that it is then put to a confirmatory public vote.

Mr Corbyn has come under pressure from the Labour ranks to throw the party's full weight behind a second referendum After the result in the Commons, shadow Brexit spokesman Matthew Pennycook said it was "now time to wholeheartedly get behind efforts to facilitate a new public vote that includes the option of staying in the EU^{n} .

Owen Smith, who was sacked from the shadow cabinet for calling for a second referendum, told the Press Association: "Now that Labour's version of Brexit has been rejected by Parliament, I expect Jeremy Corbyn to throw his full weight behind campaigning for a public vote."

'catastrophic no deal'

Labour's David Lammy, a supporter of the Best for Britain campaign for a second referendum, said: "It's become clear today that there is no majority in the house for May's deal, but also that Labour's alternative plan cannot command a majority either.

"In the key votes ahead of us we must extend Article 50 to take a catastrophic no-deal off the table and use that time to put this decision back to the people to decide if they back the government's botched Brexit deal or staying in our current EU deal."

JOHN MCDONNELL: the Shadow Chancellor said his party would continue to support "other available options"

The Prime Minster's dramatic announcement on Tuesday that she would allow MPs to vote on delaying the UK's EU withdrawal beyond March 29 took the sting out of Wednesday's Brexit votes which had been expected to trigger a number of ministerial resignations. An amendment tabled bv Labour's Yvette Cooper, designed to pin the PM down by placing her promise in a motion approved by Parliament, was passed by a majority of 482 - with 20 Tory hardliners opposing it and scores of Conservatives abstaining.

PRINCESS OF PINTS: The Duchess showed off her skills in Belfast this week

Kate Middleton shows off pulling power....

NOT ONLY can she pull the world's most eligible bachelor, but Kate Middleton, the Duchess of Cambridge this week revealed she can also pull a decent pint...

Prince William and Kate Middleton's made a surprise royal tour of Northern Ireland this week, and on after showing off their soccer skills with young girls from Irish Football Association's "Shooting Stars" program on Wednesday, the Duke and Duchess switched into formalwear for a party at the Empire Music Hall in Belfast.

Kate opted for a shimmery, pleated mint green dress by Missoni, which she paired with nude heels, while William wore a navy blue suit.

Kate and William appeared to be having a blast inside the venue, where they even got the chance to pour and serve pints of lager to the guests.

The parents of three also listened to aspiring artists inside the event, which was a celebration for all the "young people who are making a real difference in Northern Ireland," according to a tweet from Kensington Palace.

"The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge congratulate legendary Northern Irish Athlete Dame Mary Peters, who was today appointed by Her Majesty The Queen to be a Lady Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter," another tweet read.

cleaner barely able to afford dinner. Now Olivia Colman is set to bank more than £25million after winning the Academy Award for best actress.

In a year which has seen her mantlepiece groaning with gongs including three Baftas and two Golden Globes, the 45-year-old has become the toast of Hollywood.

The actress, who seems to have replaced Delia Smith as Norwich's most famous daughter, was the toast of Tinseltown after her funny and touching speech after getting the Öscar nod. According to multiple reports, the actress is now being courted by the industry's top film executives, who are clamouring to sign her.

Colman's Oscar for her portrayal of Queen Anne in The Favourite means she is now acting royalty, justifiably rubbing shoulders with British greats Dames Judi Dench and Helen Mirren. She beat out Glenn Close, considered the favourite for ONCE she was a penniless her role in The Wife, Lady husband, Ed Sinclair, and Gaga, Yalitza Aparicio and Melissa McCarthy to the award.

> After taking to the stage to accept her award, the mother of three began her emotional speech by saying the experience of winning was "genuinely quite stressful".

She also apologised to Close, saying, "You've been my idol for so long, this is not how I wanted it to be" while thanking director Yorgos Lanthimos, and co-stars Emma Stone and Rachel Weisz, who she said were "the two loveliest women in the world to go to work with".

"It's genuinely quite stressful. This is hilarious. I got an Oscar," Colman, who gained two stone to play the cakeguzzling monarch, gushed with emotion as she thanked her parents and "my kids, who are at home watching. Well, if you're not, then kind of well done but I hope you are, this is not going to happen again".

She then looked at her

Other British winners

Apart from Colman's success, this year's Academy Awards was a good one for the UK, with four other Britons also picking up the coveted statuettes.

It marks a drop of one from last year's ceremony, where Britons won six of the accolades, but is still a step up from 2017 which was the worst year for British talent in a decade with just one win.

Colman was the only British winner of one of the main acting prizes, despite representatives in each of the categories with Christian Bale nominated for best actor in Vice, Richard E Grant up for best supporting actor in Can You Ever Forgive Me? and Rachel Weisz nominated for best supporting actress in The Favourite.

DJ, songwriter and record producer Mark Ronson won the original song accolade for Shallow from A Star Is Born, alongside American co-writers Lady Gaga, Anthony Rossomando and Andrew Wyatt.

Sound engineer Paul Massey took the sound mixing prize for Bohemian Rhapsody alongside John Casali and Tim Cavagin.

OLIVIA COLMAN: the actress won for her role in The Favourite (below)

Paul Lambert won his second Oscar in a row for visual effects, this time for First Man.

Flaming February breaking records

BRITONS found themselves basking in winter sunshine this week as the country's record for the hottest winter day was broken on two successive days.

Temperatures reached 70F (21.2C) at Kew Gardens in west London where visitors enjoyed ice-creams and enjoyed the grounds where spring flowers have bloomed early.

People soaked up the sunshine in much of the country and a new Welsh record was set in the seaside town of Porthmadog, Gwynedd, which saw the mercury hit 69.4F a full 10 degrees hotter than in Malibu.

In the capital, city workers enjoyed lunch in St James's Park amid a host of golden daffodils.

sun-kissed The scenes were a marked difference from last February when the Beast from the East had just roared in from Siberia, battering British shores with blizzards.

However, the dry conditions also caused fires to tear through woodland best known as the setting for A.A. Milne's Winnie the Pooh. Fire crews were called to Ashdown Forest in East Sussex where smoke was billowing from "Hundred Acre Wood" in the book.

Forecasters said that the unseasonably warm weather is thanks to warm air coming in from the Canary Islands, Morocco and southern Spain.

While the variability of weather makes it hard to link any single event to climate change, global warming is heating up the whole system and making extremes more likely, scientists say.

He was speaking as he met entrepreneurs who have started companies aimed at tackling the country's social, economic and environmental problems. He told Mr Chaqor: "You need to put more pressure on the big companies." He said that while large firms might give money to environmental projects, "they are still producing single-use plastic bottles". He added: "Go to the source."

True British Style: Oscar winner Olivia hits the party bus with gong in hand!

The Favourite's Olivia Colman celebrated in true British style after her Oscars win on Sunday night-by hiring a party bus for an all night bender.

She saw off stiff competition from The Wife star Glenn Close, 71, - the bookies' favourite ahead of the event - despite snubbing A-list bashes in the lead up to it.

Olivia Mum-of-three broke down on stage as she accepted her gong, telling the practising their speech audience: "It's genuinely quite stressful. This is hilarious, I've got an Oscar.

BBC's strong medicine to 'save' Doctor Who?

Top dogs at the BBC are reportedly planning to make major changes to Doctor Who ahead of its upcoming series.

British actress Iodie Whittaker took over the iconic role last year, and while her appearance was warmly received by critics, ratings for the series sadly declined over its run, leaving its loyal army of fans disappointed.

While she kicked off her debut with a massive 8.2 million viewers, by the time the final episode aired ratings had dropped to just over 5 million.

In a bid to entice viewers back, BBC bosses are apparently considering а number of changes, including plans to bring the show back to its original Saturday night time slot.

"There is a feeling families are freer to watch on Saturdays than Sundays, when kids have being filmed, and the homework to finish," a source told The Mirror.

"While the show rated well overall, there were concerns over the decline in audience.

"Returning to Saturdays is being discussed as a likely option.'

The new series is already

Despite a positive response to Jodie's role, some fans criticised the new series for being too politically correct.

It comes after the show's former boss claimed that Jodie would last no longer than a few years in the role.

Personally, I was hoping she would on the outs after one season!

of the outcome and what you expect it will manifest quicker than you could hope for.

TAURUS: Lucky Jupiter benefiting you now will bring a situation that is unresolved to a satisfactory close. This can be in any part of your life and it leaves room to start the new month with confidence.

GEMINI: Time to clarify your intentions for the new month overall. Maybe initiate whatever you want to change and move forward. You will have time to play a little after a busy few weeks. What you decided to change recently in any area will complete by the end of next week.

CANCER: Be strong and all the hard work you put in recently will bear fruit this coming week ahead. Saturn is in your opposite sign Capricorn and will enhance several areas in your life that may need a little boost. Take that short trip away soon.

LEO: Health issues could hold you back from enjoying your life. Do not assume that it will resolve without some kind of help. Do tackle what you can and stop stressing over what you are unable to complete – it's all you can do.

VIRGO: As this coming month unfolds you will benefit from your boss Mercury going along slowly, which can bring you low energy so it's not a time to get in any discussions about future situations. If you push too hard your stress levels will rise - not a good thing as your health will suffer.

LIBRA: Any plans may not go as planned, however it is true that everything happens for a reason. With this in mind expect something or someone from your past to pop back in your life and it's for the best. Your lovely boss Venus is sending good vibes your way.

SCORPIO: There are some things you know and some things you don't. Either way you will find out if you listen to that inner voice. Life has been unpredictable for some time past and in the next few weeks ahead with Jupiter assisting, you should be ready for much-needed resolution.

SAGITTARIUS: We all deserve the finer things in life although its is not always possible to indulge ourselves. This week ahead at least treat yourself as Jupiter your lucky boss is firmly in your sign and is not leaving you any time soon. It might be beneficial to buy a few lottery tickets.

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling downcast recently and some of you may be dealing with family problems. This is due in part to your boss Saturn in your life currently, while this can make you melancholy it will pass in a few days. Stay away from others who do not wish the best for you overall.

AQUARIUS: If you refuse to acknowledge something does not mean it will disappear. It will probably not be as bad as you think. Instead take the bull by the horns and get going on sorting out the problem. Doing a good turn for another will help you and them.

PISCES: If you don't keep up with the times they move on and that is not a good idea for your life overall. You have the power this week to transform something in to a positive outcome for all. Jupiter is looking out for you. Happy Birthday!

Awards Season? That's a Wrap.....

Well that's award season finally over! Perhaps now we can get our lives back.....

While the rest of LA were moist with anticipation for last Sunday's Oscars, among the Brits in LA community the last month was all about The Toscars, and last Thursday's event at the Renberg Theatre in Hollwood underlines just how proud Eileen and I are of this community which YOU have helped create. Members rallied round to get involved in either making the films, helping us produce the event and volunteered to help things run smoothly. Speacial thanks go to Christine Peake, Andy Tyler, our performers Annie McQueen and Matthew Cheadle who performed the Oscarwinning track "Shallow", and former participants who had appeared in winning films in the past (including moi), who knocked it out of the park with a rousing version of "Bohemian Rhapsody". And of course our host Stephen Marcus, who did a fantastic job.

It truly takes a village to make the Toscars happen, so thank you so much to our sponsors: Beltran Brito & Casomayor Immigration Attorneys, Final Draft, Silent Pool Gin, Peroni and Auburn James Wines. And all of our gift givers including Cecconi's restaurant, The Cat and the Fiddle Pub, Lamo Footwear, Montecristo Social Club, Fake Bake, Nuude Botanical and Lyfe Spa.

Guests enjoyed a red carpet cocktail reception and in honor of the nominated film "Roma" Tacos were scoffed down and unique Toscars Chocolate Cookies by Sweets Party Treats. Speaking of "Roma" its parody film "Coma" took home five awards including best picture. Team leader/Producer Victoria Hoffman has been a part of The Toscars for the past five years and she also nabbed a Golden Fist for Best Whactress. A testament to hanging there and putting in the work. Congrats to everyone who took part, it was a great year and everyone had a great time. Our after party was hosted at Tramp Stamp Granny's, a fun piano bar owned by Emmy winner Darren Criss. Guests sipped Hendricks' Gin and sang showtunes all night long.

I barely had time to recover before Sunday, when I had the good fortune to attend Elton John's Oscar soirée at West Hollywood Park where they raised a whopping $6.5 million for Sir Elt's AIDS Foundation. I'm still amazed at the great work Sir Elton and David Furnish do. The musical act was The Killers and boy did they ever. It set the tone for the after party and so many staved into the wee small hours.

Oh my agein eyes...

On a sadder note. At he ripe old age of 45 I've come to the conclusion that I need help with my vision. So Eileen pointed out that Costco offer eye exams for $59. Such a bargain and it somewhat softens the blow for those of us who are finally getting grips with ageing... and these are little reminders to enjoy our youth and vigor for as long as possible. And to have as much fun and make as many memories as we can.

I don't take my youth and vitality for granted that I am fortunate enough to attend these great events but I sure as hell appreciate the opportunities I am given. With that said I don't intend to go anywhere any time soon, (or even be ready for my senior discount) because until then there's so much fun to be had at any age. Just ask Bernard, our resident host at the BiLA Breakfast Club every Tuesday. Yorkshireman Bernard has just celebrated his 91st birthday and is a shining example to us all, to wake up smiling and love every day as if you're still 21.

By Julia Michelle Dawson

Now edit to ... across the Pacific Ocean

What? Yes, that's exactly what fellow Brit Lia Ditton intends to do.

Chocolate - it's the one luxury Lia won't be giving up when she rows solo from Japan to California. In fact she's taking 80 pounds of it! It probably won't affect her waistline one iota since she will burn off 6,000 calories a day in her journey. She is packing 400 hundred pounds of food. At the end of the five-month journey she intends to have none left - not even a crumb of chocolate.

"Why?" is the one question everyone asks when I mention Lia's story. Why is she's rowing alone. One nameless person so boldly suggested she couldn't get a date. When you see Lia you'll know she can definitely get a date - she is attractive and a warm people person.

When I asked her why, she gave me one word. Frustration. I was perplexed. She explained. She had had the experience of sitting on the rail of a race boat off the coast of New England and to resolve the fact the she was freezing without the warmth of a real job on the boat she begged to be a grinder. This was on a boat with a rule of no women on the boat. She looked back at the person at the helm - a job she coveted and realized she would never get unless she was the only person on the boat. So she took up ocean life solo and in no small manner – she sailed the Atlantic solo in 2005.

Lia is amazed at how many more women are out racing today than 18 years ago when she was just a novelty. They were shocked that she was a woman and actually had skill.

Now she is a licensed captain and has sailed the equivalent of eight times around the globe. She has crossed an ocean three times alone. Ditton was also the 53rd woman to row across the Atlantic.

Lia is proud of the fact that her rowing will help educate children about ocean sciences. She will be transmitting data and her experience daily to help develop a program.

To help fund her adventure she is selling "slices" of her new boat to corporations and individuals. Sixty vertical slices will be sold. At the end the boat will be cut up to be given to the donors as wall art and motivation for future generations.

Lia is here to learn the California coast line. You can see her colorful 22 foot "row boat" out on the water in the Santa Monica Bay. This is not your grandmother's row boat. There are compartments at the bow and stern. Storage in the front. The sleep compartment is in back which is 5'8" long. Exactly how tall Lia is no room for luxuriously rolling over to catch a few more Zs on a Sunday morning.

In March 2020, Lia will depart Choshi, Japan and row 5,500 nautical miles solo and unsupported to the Golden Gate Bridge. To date only two people have done this - both were men.

Sailing has been a part of Lia's life since she was young. Born in London, her family owned a 19foot sail boat which they sailed with her parents and brother over the summers to Italy. She hated it as a teenager. The taunting from her father would start at Christmas time each year, "If you haven't a job - you have to go on the boat." She says she learned to navigate just to be able to use a land bathroom.

A curious six year old asked Lia, "If astronauts go to the moon and you are going across an ocean, doesn't that make you an aquanaut?"

She won an art contest the Arctic, but it's actually

Poch charged for Dean rant

MAURICIO Pochettino has been charged for his clash with referee Mike Dean at Burnley at the weekend.

However, a powderkeg reunion has been avoided after Dean was switched from being the fourth official for Tottenham's trip to Chelsea on Wednesday to Manchester City's home game against West Ham. Tottenham manager Pochettino was upset Burnley scored from a controversially awarded corner in the 2-1 defeat at Turf Moor. He apologised afterwards, admitting he had "crossed the line".

But Dean claimed there had been two separate breaches of FA Rule E3, with an incident in the tunnel in addition to the televised spat in which coach Jesus Perez was also involved.

An FA statement said: "Mauricio Pochettino has been charged with two breaches of FA Rule E3. It is alleged the Tottenham language manager's and/or behaviour – both on the pitch and in or around the tunnel area - amounted to improper conduct. He has until 6pm on February 28 to respond to the charge."

Pochettino was given a warning in September for berating referee Anthony Taylor in a game against Fulham so could face a touchline ban if found guilty.

Bruyne dismisses quadruple talk

KEVIN DE BRUYNE says Manchester City players will only start thinking about the Quadruple when they are kicking off the Champions League final having already added the Premier League and FA Cup to their Carabao Cup success.

The team's shootout win over Chelsea at Wembley on Sunday keeps alive hopes of City winning all four trophies although the same Quadruple talk was being bandied about last February. It was 12 months ago when City were surprisingly dumped out of the FA Cup by Wigan a week before winning the Carabao Cup.

DeBruyne said his teammates were fully

"We are not thinking about the Ouadruple," said De Bruyne. "If we win three and then we play the Champions League final, maybe we can talk about it but before that, no way.

"It's almost impossible. We are going to try to win as many games as possible, obviously, and if you do that you must be considered the best team ever because nobody has done it. However, we are not looking at that."

PHASE ONE: City won the Carabao Cup on Sunday with a penalty shoot-out win over Chelsea. The match finished goalless after extra time.

And City were also warned by a previous manager about the dangers of a fixture pile up. Speaking ahead of Wednesday's clash with City, West Ham boss Maurizio Pellegrini spoke of his "three beautiful years" under the Blue Moon in which he won a Premier League title and two League Cups, but when asked about the possibility of an unprecedented four trophy haul, warned: "City are in a good moment. The club can try to do it, but you don't have time to play the number of games you need to play. You can do it, but it's not easy."

Five star Reds swat Hornets aside

"These boys are outstanding and today they showed so much passion." - Jurgen Klopp

SADIO MANE and Virgil van Dijk were the stars as Liverpool turned on the style Wednesday night to crush Watford at Anfield and stay top of the Premier League.

But while the duo grabbed two goals apiece, the man of the match was surely Trent Alexander Arnold, who returned from injury to produce a dominant performance for Jurgen Klopp's team as they eased to a 5-0 win.

The Reds had dropped six points in their previous four top-flight games but a return to their best form helped the team to their biggest win of the season and ensured they stayed above title rivals Manchester City by a single pont.

"You know what was written and said about us. It is of course not right," Klopp told BBC Sport afterwards.

"These boys are outstanding and today they showed so much passion."

Klopp's side were fast out of the traps as usual and were 2-0ahead in 20 minutes as Senegal forward Mane headed the first before doubling the lead with an outrageous backheel, Trent Alexander-Arnold providing both assists.

Mohamed Salah hit the post before Divock Origi beat Ben Foster at his near post to make it 3-0.

Van Dijk scored two late headers, including one from another Alexander-Arnold assist.

Klopp went on the pitch at the full-time whistle to applaud Liverpool's fans and headed back to the dressing room with a huge smile and his arm draped around Alexander-Arnold's shoulder.

Alexander-Arnold's pace caused the Hornets' defence all sorts of problems while Adam Masina had a torrid time at the hands of Salah.

This was a timely return to winning ways for Liverpool after one win in their previous five league and cup games.

Mane's header set them on their way but it was his second which showed Liverpool had their swagger back - a spectacular backheel past Foster.

Ranieri out at the Cottage

Fulham have sacked Claudio manager Ranieri after just 106 days in charge, with first-team coach Scott Parker taking temporary charge.

The Italian's last game was Wednesday's 2-0 defeat by Southampton, which left the Cottagers 19th in the Premier League, 10 points from safety with 10 games left.

Ranieri took over November after in the sacking of Slavisa

Jokanovic.

The 67-year-old won only three of his 17 games as manager.

It included a 3-2 victory over Southampton in his first game, but 11 defeats have followed including an FA Cup third-round exit at home to League Two side Oldham.

Chairman Shahid Khan said in a statement: "Claudio walked into a difficult situation, inheriting a side that gained only one point in its prior eight matches, and he provided an immediate boost by leading our club to nine points in his first eight matches as manager.

"Though we were unable to maintain that pace thereafter, I am grateful for his effort. Claudio leaves Fulham as our friend and he will undoubtedly experience success again soon.
