Brexit delayed but for how long?

- EU leaders strip initiative away from PM as hopes for second referendum fade
- If deal is rejected for third time, UK has until April 12 to decide way forward
 - May welcomes delay, says MP 'now have clear choice' on final vote

BRITAIN will not be leaving the EU on March 29th after all, as European leaders this week seized control of the debate and offered the UK a delay until 22 May, provided MPs next week approve the withdrawal deal negotiated by Theresa May.

If they do not, the EU will back a shorter delay until 12 April, allowing the UK time to get the deal through or to "indicate a way forward".

Mrs May said there was now a "clear choice" facing UK MPs, who will vote on her deal for a third time.

MPs will then have to back the withdrawal deal and deliver on the referendum and leave the EU in "an orderly manner" or face the prospect of having to stand candidates in the European Parliamentary elections, three years after the UK voted to leave the EU.

She said she would be "working hard to build support for getting the deal through". She said she had "expressed frustration" in her speech last night, in which she blamed MPs for the delay, but added "I know that MPs are frustrated too" and she was "very grateful" to those who had supported the deal.

"I will make every effort to make sure we can leave with a deal and move our country forward," she said.

But despite May's upbeat assessment to the news cameras, for many this week's events signaled that patience was wearing thin among EU leaders. In a bruising meeting in Brussels on Thursday, May suffered a withering cross-examination from her fellow leaders who appeared to conclude that she had no political strategy to pass a divorce deal nor knew how Britain would weather an uncontrolled Brexit next Friday. In essence the EU has taken back decision making from the Prime Minister, dictating a political calendar for the coming weeks that gives both sides time to prepare for the worst-case scenario.

If MPs at Westminster agree a divorce deal next week, they can leave the European Union on May 22. If they cannot, they must produce an alternative by April 12 or essentially be expelled from the EU with no deal in place.

"The E.U., to put it clearly, is facing a British political crisis," said French President Emmanuel Macron, who was among the most uncompromising of the EU leaders in the talks.

"British politicians are unable to deliver what the people asked them to do. The people voted for Brexit, but we are in situation where the British Parliament is telling us they are not voting for the agreement we negotiated for two years."

And one European diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said May's assessments of the situation was "a bit like coming from another planet."

May was grilled for over two hours by her fellow leaders before being dismissed from the room then suffered the indignity of being disinvited from a dinner of duck à l'orange while they hammered out a deal. The Bulgarian ambassador to the European Union cont. on page 4, col 6

One million sign petition to halt Brexit - and break Parliament's website

While it's up for debate whether the British government is completely broken, Parliament's website most definitely is.

petition calling Α Minister for Prime Theresa May to revoke Article 50 and remain in the European Union gained fresh momentum Thursday as thousands of exasperated, angry and seemingly embarrassed Brits took to the website in an attempt to stop Brexit from happening.

As of Thursday morning, the petition had racked up more than 800,000 signatures and had caused Parliament's website to crash because of the sheer volume of people attempting to add their names. By 3 p.m., British time on Thursday, the petition had climbed to over a million signatures.

"The government repeatedly claims exiting the EU is 'the will of the people'. We need to put a stop to this claim by proving the strength of public support now, for remaining in the EU. A People's Vote may not for happen - so vote now," thethe petition reads.

Those attempting to sign the petition on Thursday received a message that it was "down for maintenance. We know about it and we're working on it."

'every sane person'

Many were angered and some were suspicious of the error message, going on social media to declare they would continue to try throughout the day and urged their friends and followers to do the same.

"I've signed. And it looks like every sane person in the country is signing too. National emergency. Revoke Article 50 and remain in the EU. - Petitions," wrote actor Hugh Grant on Twitter late Wednesday evening.

The petition, which only British citizens and U.K. residents have the right to sign, comes after nearly three years of divisive Brexit talks, bickering in Parliament and various votes that have done nothing but blanket the nation under a cloud of confusion.

Britain's government responds to all petitions that gain over 10,000 signatures and considers all petitions that receive over 100,000 signatures for a debate.

On Thursday morning, the petitions committee confirmed the website was "experiencing problems" and said it was doing its best to repair the website.

"As many of you have guessed, the number of people using the site has caused problems this morning. It's a mix of people reloading the front page to watch the signature count go up and people trying to sign petitions," a Twitter thread from the committee explained.

By Thursday lunchtime in Britain, Revoke Article 50 was trending worldwide on Twitter with over 100,000 tweets.

The petitions committee continued to post updates on Twitter Thursday, tweeting:

"A lot of people have been asking about numbers. Between 80,000

GOODBYE TO ALL THAT? the EU seems to be drifting away with the tide and 100,000 people have been simultaneously viewing the petition to revoke article 50. Nearly 2,000 signatures are being completed every minute.

"The rate of signing is the highest the site has ever had to deal with and we have had to make some changes to ensure the site remains stable and open for signatures and new petitions. Thanks for bearing with us."

COUNTRY LIFE: ever more popular with young Brits

Young property buyers swap the city for the shires

SOARING property prices and fears of violence are forcing younger people out of cities and towns and into the countryside, research has found.

The average age of those relocating to the country has fallen below 40 for the first time. In 2008 it was 47, but last year it fell to 37. Aneisha Beveridge of Hamptons International said:

"Changing priorities such as starting a family, having another baby or seeking a better quality of life have been the traditional drivers. "But with housing affordability a problem, more movers are heading to the country sooner, leapfrogging rungs of the property ladder."

high crime rates

Mark Godman, of London-based removal company Gentleman & A Van, says more people in their 30s are quitting the capital. He said: "Until 2008, 95 per cent of our moves were within London and the M25, with only five per cent of clients moving to the countryside.

"Today, one in four moves are clients leaving the capital for the country. They're seeking a calmer and more affordable place."

As well as young families and firsttime buyers, Mr Godman is seeing more interest entrepreneurs from and the self-employed in their late 20s and early 30s, who are able to work from home. Factors driving the millennial exodus include air pollution, overcrowding, noise, competition for school places, dirty, littered pavements and the perception of high crime rates in cities.

Jemma Scott, of agents The Buying Solution, who moved from London to rural Buckinghamshire, said: "It used to be, 'Have baby, move to country', but these days it's more, 'Have absolutely had enough of the city, move to country'."

In London, market analyst Hometrack says the average property costs £479,800. It is £423,500 in Cambridge, £408,100 in Oxford and £276,800 in Bristol. In the past decade, property prices in cities across England and Wales have risen by 61 per cent, compared with 25 per cent in rural areas. Rather than going from a flat to a terraced house, people moving to the country head straight to a large home where they will live for years.

THE GREEN AND BLACK STUFF: The Duchess looked stylish in an emerald green Alexander McQueen coat and matching hat, while later, the royal couple enjoyed a traditional tipple at a Guardsman's lunch in Hounslow

Cheers! Wills and Kate keep up a stout tradition on St. Paddy's Day

WILLIAM and Kate toasted St Patrick's Day— and an afternoon without their children—by knocking back a glass of Guinness on Sunday.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge enjoyed a drop of the dark stuff as they toasted the Irish Guards at their annual parade. Kate, 37, wowed in an emerald green Alexander McQueen coat and matching hat paired with a gold shamrock brooch and completed her look with green tourmaline earrings from Kiki McDonough.

The parade at the Ist Battalion's base in Hounslow, west London, began with the Last Post, before the Duke and Duchess led a minute's silence in memory of the 50 victims of last week's gun massacre in Christchurch, New Zealand, which was observed by the royals, the Irish Guards and their families. Dressed in a red coat, mascot Irish wolfhound Domhnall, who was presented with his first shamrock in 2013, had the honour of leading the regimental band and parade of 350 soldiers in a march at which William, Colonel of the regiment, took the salute.

Drummer David Murray, Domhnall's regimental handler, said the St Patrick's Day parade was number one in his calendar and like a second birthday. "We've had a couple of rehearsals, a couple of little bits that we've had to obviously fine tune.

"Domhnall has been in the battalion since 2012, he's pretty good at his job. He helps me through the parade to be honest, he knows what he's doing."

In a tradition dating back more than 100 years, Kate presented sprigs of shamrock to officers and warrant officers. The shamrock's three heart-shaped leaves represent Ireland and the Holy Trinity and each year on St Patrick's Day are handed out to Irish Guards and their mascot - by a senior female member of the Royal Family. The tradition, started in 1901, later became the trademark of the Queen Mother who maintained it until she died in 2002 It was later taken up by Princess Anne but since 2012 the responsibility has fallen to the Duchess of Cambridge. The royal couple were later toasted at the Guardsman's Lunch and treated to a tipple of the stout.

British streets could soon be full of electric scooters

■ Transport Laws to change to accommodate latest transport technology

A WIDE-ranging shakeup of transport laws could lead to electric scooters being allowed on UK roads for the first time.

The Department for Transport is reviewing its regulations amid changes in the way goods people and move. In its "biggest review into transport in a generation", the DfT will look at utilising electric-powered scooters cargo bicycles, encouraging data sharing and simplifying journey planning and payments.

Scooters with electric

30mph and are used for short journeys in many European nations and the US. Several firms such as Lime and Bird offer them for hire, often in competition with bicycle schemes.

Bird, which is well known to Los Angeles residents, recently launched a trial on private land at the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park in east London, but electric scooters are currently banned from the UK's public roads and pavements.

Police in the north east said a 15-year-old boy had six penalty points imposed on a future driving licence last year, after being prosecuted for riding one at high speed in a public place. The DfT said it had no immediate plans to legalise electric scooters and advised retailers to be clear to customers about their use.

Some of the laws being reviewed as part of the Government's Future of Mobility: Urban Strategy date back to the 1800s, when cars with an internal combustion engine were first used. Future of mobility minister Jesse Norman said "revolutionary technologies put the country at "a potentially pivotal moment for the future of transport". He added: "Through this strategy, the Government aims to take advantage these innovations; connecting more people and bringing big benefits, hope, for both the economy and the environment."

Government competition for up to four new Future Mobility Zones will see firms receive a share of £90million to test ideas to improve journeys for people across the country.

Projects are to include smoother payment systems, more accurate travel updates and the use of innovative of transport, forms aimed to make travel in towns and cities more convenient, reliable and cheaper.

Childhood obesity timebomb 'could wreck the NHS'

CHILDHOOD obesity is a ticking timebomb that could ultimately destroy the NHS, experts warned this week.

Health chiefs said Britain is on its way to becoming a chronic "nation of fatties" as shocking figures laid bare the scale of the crisis. Public Health England statistics show that one third of UK children aged two to 15 - almost four million people are now categorised as overweight or obese. If the current trend could continues, it "bankrupt" the NHS in the coming years, officials claimed.

new watershed

As the Government week considers bringing in a 9pm watershed on junk food advertising, the percentage youngsters who are overweight continues Analysis to rise. from the National Child Measurement Programme shows the proportion of children aged 10-11 with severe obesity has reached an all-time high. Some 60,000 children at the end of primary school in England and Wales are now obese, of whom 22,000 are classed as "severely obese".

'potentially bankrupt'

A team of medical experts this week said that the situation is now critical, risking a future adult obesity crisis which could see an explosion in the numbers suffering from conditions such as Type 2 diabetes and heart disease. The knock-on effect for an already stretched NHS could be devastating. Health chiefs are now calling on the public, and parents in particular, to improve diets and encourage exercise.

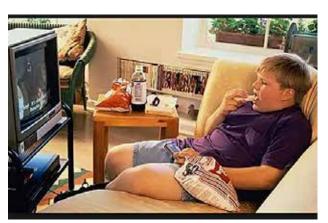

Shirley Cramer, chief executive of the Royal Society for Public Health, said: "The childhood obesity crisis presents dangers not just to the health and wellbeing of the next generation, but to the future of the NHS

Tam Fry, Child Growth

Foundation chairman and spokesman for the National Obesity Forum, added: "It is imperative that children's growth is checked routinely to avoid the calamity that 82 per cent of obese children will become obese as adults and potentially bankrupt the NHS. "It is quite fair to say we are in danger of becoming a nation of fatties."

'obesity epidemic'

The latest figures from Public Health England show that 67 per cent of men and 57 per cent of women are now either overweight or obese. But it is childhood obesity that is sparking the most alarm for the future. In the UK as a whole, nearly one in five children aged 10-11 are now obese and a further 14.2 per cent are overweight. Of children aged four to five, one in 10 are obese and 12.8 per cent are overweight. The cost of diabetes to the NHS is staggering. An estimated £14billion is spent a year on treating the disease, or

The EU terms were received in Westminster as a clear indication that the EU has lost patience, and that EU bigwigs have given up hope for a second referendum that could reverse the Brexit decision - a clear shift on a continent that once wanted Britain to stay.

Meet A Member: Mayling Ng

Meet Mayling Ng from England, who moved to LA three years ago to pursue an acting career.

After filming in Hong Kong Martial Arts movies including Lady Bloodfight, and Kumite, she moved to to the US to work in films including Wonder Woman, playing the Amazon Orana. Most recently Mayaling appeared in the latest Scorpion King movie as the villain Khensa.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I chose LA as my final destination after living across the globe, as it compliments my life being in action movies, and wanting to be around other people who live the healthy lifestyle. I have an amazing inspiring group of friends who are like family in Golds Gym, Venice. Combined with the healthier lifestyle and the creative, laidback vibe, I feel relaxed and inspired at the same time, which I never felt anywhere else.

What do you miss most from home?

I left the UK at 13 years old and grew up on the island of Tenerife where my family and brothers are still based. I later ended up in Singapore. So from what I remember, maybe the excitement of London and an indulgent Sunday roast!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

I was invited to compete at the The Arnold Classic (World Championships) in Ohio in 2013, to represent Singapore after winning silver in an IFBB (International Federation of Bodybuilding & Fitness) event in 2011. After landing at LAX a week before to acclimate here, and staying in Santa Monica at the Double Tree hotel, I knew instantly that I found my forever home.

Venice hasn't changed apart from the scooters and Instagram bloggers everywhere lol!

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus UK, Tenerife and Singapore? The lifestyle here is vibrant and exciting and fresh. I feel blessed everyday, even when driving around. People complain about the traffic, but in London the traffic is about the same and maybe even more aggressive. In Singapore you wouldn't have a car unless you're a millionaire because of the certification, GST, tax costs, even though the infrastructure is the best and transportation is fantastic. But carrying your day's belonging around in a bag gets old. So I still feel lucky everyday just to have my simple SUV here. I think life stresses are a choice and you choose how to deal with them.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

A great place I train at now in West LA is called Enter Martial Arts. Their Kung Fu-Wushu classes are great for both advanced martial artists and complete beginners. It is tailored for people to progress at their own pace and skill level. From basic kicks, weapons techniques, stretching and more.

Since I've been there, I've really noticed improvements in my flexibility, and sharping up my stances and forms. There's also a great community atmosphere there, as everyone is very supportive of each other.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Join a group like Brits in LA on Facebook for things like advice on apartment rentals, car leases, immigration lawyers and medical insurance.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

"Opportunities infrequent, so always be prepared for anything" from my acting mentor Judd Nelsonthe infamous "Criminal" from The Breakfast Club. I'm grateful that since I moved here Judd has become one of my closest friends and I take this quote to heart. So I'm always working on my skills not just in martial arts or my physique but also learning as much as I can in acting, accent classes and watching and reading as much as I can

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: This spring time is filled with new challenges. You thrive on this energy and you can make a lot of headway if you put your energy into it. While you always fare well in springtime this year especially is just what you have wanted for some time. Happy Birthday.

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler is in a positive sign right now. If you feel like reaching out and asking someone for a helping hand in any area this is the time to do it. It's also the time of year for you to set up for the new season.

GEMINI: Time to deal with what has been on your mind recently so the faster you take this in hand the better will be the results for yourself and others. With the new season come new opportunities to open up and feel good in your own skin.

CANCER: A positive beginning to the week would be to make peace or amends with anyone or anything that has caused you upset. You moon children like to hide away in your shell sometimes. Don't waste any energy this week ahead as chances are you will regret the time wasted.

LEO: Any trip taken before mid-month will not go as planned so take a rain check and make it later in the month. With this in mind expect and plan for a better week or so. Health-related issues should be taken as a priority.

VIRGO: If any area of life is not going as smoothly as you expect you can let go of worry about the outcome, all will be well by end of the month. Be confident when asked for your advice or opinion in a family situation. Just be open and all will be well.

LIBRA: The main lesson of the next week or so is that it's not the time to begin anything you will not have time to finish up. Your conscience will not allow you to take chances and rightfully so. Jupiter in your financial area will bring good news.

SCORPIO: Now your problems are sorted out (or just about) it's a good time to relax or take time out. This has been a long drawn out period, most of the past year in fact. You may be having financial worries also, fear not all of this will be resolved going forward.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is slowing down ready to take a break. So as he is always for your best good outcome get ready to assist him. This not a time for make big moves, just shine your light in areas that need work this next week or so.

CAPRICORN: Your boss Saturn has brought a lot of situations up for attention these past few weeks. You now have opportunities to sort things as never before. Although it has been tough sometime soon you will see that what has transpired has cleared away a lot of dead wood.

AQUARIUS: While your boss Uranus was in Aries he caused some problems for you and others. There are no coincidences and he was always seeking to bring out the truth of situations. With his recent move into stable Taurus for an extended visit look at what he is bringing up for healing...it is all positive.

PISCES: You may be feeling like hiding away or at least spending time by yourself. This is a temporary feeling and is due to the shift in season. By all means take a time away go for what feels peaceful to you. Listen to any messages your dreams send you.

BRITS IN LA

Traveling post-Brexit: (some) of your questions answered...

Are you in a panic about traveling post Brexit?

There has been so much misinformation surrounding it, which is causing terrible uncertainty and unnecessary upset. Even the leave date of March 29th is still up in the Passport questions and travel in general have been very hot topics on our Facebook page. If your passport is set to expire at any point this year it is probably a good idea to start your renewal application now. You can actually do it up to nine months before your current one ends and they then add the extra time on to your new passport. For those of you who are unsure, visit this useful web page that British Consulate shared with us, www.passport.service. gov.uk/check-a-passport.

You just need to answer a few simple questions and it will then either tell you that you are fine, or that you need to renew.

Have you got friends or family coming for a visit this summer? Then tell them it is worth completing the ESTA application well in advance and wait for the approval before they book their tickets. The ESTA is a visa waiver program that is offered to tourists from select countries, including Britain/ Europe, Australia and New Zealand. You can check on the US government website to see the full list of countries that are eligible. Most people leave this until the very last minute, but I really wouldn't recommend this. In the last month we have had at least two reports of denials from our members. In one case it was because the applicant mentioned they suffered from anxiety and were informed that they would need to go for an interview at the US Embassy in London. So don't just take the ESTA approval for granted as it isn't necessarily a done deal. They last for 2 years (as long as your passport has two years left on it), and costs $14, so if you know anyone planning a trip tell them to get on it ASAP.

Many US citizens have contacted us worrying, as they were incorrectly informed (mainly on social media!) that they would now need to apply for visas to visit Britain. The current official advice from the British Government website is that you will not need a visa and can stay in the UK for up to 6 months as a tourist. But you will need to provide a few documents at your port of entry so visit www.gov. uk and then enter 'USA' in their search box for full details.

Global Entry

Have you applied for fast track service 'Global Entry' yet? I haven't gotten around to it, but I hear it really does speed up the airport queues. The recent government shutdown created a large backlog of pending applications. But it appears they are catching up, as I have just checked the LAX appointment calendar and it looks like they have a ton of openings over the next month or so. It does cost $100 but lasts five years. Check with your credit card company as I think a few of them offer a refund to cover the fee if you use their card when paying for

If you are a US citizen you might be interested in the free Mobile Passport app that the government now offer to help expedite your international arrival. You can currently only use it to enter certain airports/ cruise ports in the USA,

Will I need to renew my passport earlier than planned to travel to Europe?

but it does work at LAX.

I just downloaded the app and it seems very straightforward. I uploaded my US passport which is apparently stored encrypted....and also had to submit a current photo. The only annoying thing I noticed was that you can't submit your trip details in advance, as Custom Border Protection will send you a digital (QR) code receipt after they have reviewed your submission, which expires after four hours. Although, these days most planes have WiFi so I guess you could do it in the air. Other reviewers said the CBP response is pretty fast and report that you can still use the designated even if your confirmation hasn't come though yet. Some users mentioned that it gets you through the airport even faster than the Global Entry line! Have any of you tried it out yet? If so we would love to hear your thoughts. You can email us at info@britsin.la

I am planning a trip to the UK next month so I will let you know how I get on with it.

I will post all these links on our website too, so visit www.britsin.la if you need to look one up. And don't hesitate to contact us if you have any questions that need answering. That is also where you will find our upcoming events listed, including weekly Breakfast Club and

Pub Quiz.

I know a lot of you get apprehensive about coming along alone, but please put your shyness to one side as I promise we are a very welcoming bunch.

Lastly, this is your reminder remember Mothers Day in the UK, Sunday March 31st. If you have left it too late to send a card you should check out moonpig. com They send cards locally and help you personalize them online. If you are sending flowers try calling a florist that is local to your destination, as it is often much cheaper and a far better service.

Cheers! Eileen

Transformed from his Potter days, Radcliffe hopes to cast a spell on audiences in "Escape from Pretoria"

Daniel Radcliffe has shocked his army of loyal fans after undergoing a major transformation for his new role... Oo-er!

English actor The international superstardom playing Harry Potter in the hugely popular franchise but these days Radcliffe is well established as far more than a former child actor, with well-received roles in Equus on Broadway, in movies including The Woman in Black and the Indie film What If.

And the 29-yearold is back (but barely recognizable) in the brand new flick Escape from Pretoria.

The film documents the life of anti-apartheid activist Tim Jenkin, who famously escaped from a notorious South African jail in 1979.

Daniel plays the lead role in the new biopic, and has undergone a major makeover.

recently He was pictured on-set in Adelaide, Australia sporting long hair and a full beard.

The film is based on Jenkins' autobiography.

It's not the first time Radcliffe has undergone a new look for a role.

Last month, he sported new facial hair for his role in the American sitcom Miracle Workers.

Daniel said Hogwarts fans were giving him odd looks because of his new

He said: "Yes, they're like, 'What's happened to him?' Like they think I have fallen on hard times, or something."

Bender like Beckham? Brooklyn and Hana reportedly suffer 'booze-fuelled bust-up' after night out in Camden the pressures

Oh fame...Brooklyn Beckham and his main squeeze, model Hana Cross, allegedly had a heated exchange after catching alt-rocker Yungblud performing in Camden, London.

David Beckham's eldesed son has been accused of 'drinking too much' during a 'boozefuelled bust-up', which Hana reportedly took young Becks to task.

The pair have been dating for a few weeks and all had been going swimmingly, with them supporting Victoria Beckham's Autumn/ Winter collection London Fashion Week in February.

It has been claimed that Brooklyn may have had 'a drink too many' when he attended the concert of the Doncaster-born rocker at the Camden Assembly.

couple were The heading to the afterparty with Hana, when they started arguing and the fall out quickly becoming very public.

Oo-er!

A source has told The Sun that Brooklyn, 20, "had sunk a few beers," before he, "ended up getting into a row with Hana.

Then went on to say that, "it had been a bit of a wild night out and it got a bit messy," before Brooklyn allegedly, "got really upset and ended up storming into the street."

It was at this point that Hana put her foot down and apparently, "read him the riot act and told him she didn't like it when he was acting up and drinking too much."

It seemed to be enough to snap Brooklyn out of his drunken stupor and the pair were soon looking like the loved up couple that wanted to enjoy a night out.

The source added that they "kissed and made up," soon afterwards.

So hasn't shown him the red card then...yet!!!

BRITISH WEEKLY SPORT

Just Grand! Welsh heroes hail Alun Wyn Jones

WALES wrapped up the Six Nations title on Saturday in fine style, and there was only one fleeting moment when this Welsh triumph and a record third Grand Slam for coach Warren Gatland felt in doubt.

It came not when Hadleigh Parkes, having crossed with 69 seconds on the clock, raced down the other end five minutes later to haul down Jacob Stockdale as the Ireland wing homed in on the try line.

Nor was it when, a minute later, George North left the field with an arm injury, forcing Gatland to bring on Dan Biggar – his match-closing supremo – about an hour sooner than he would have liked.

The brief doubt came a few moments after that, when Alun Wyn Jones crumpled to the turf, grimacing with the pain of a knee injury. The raucous Principality Stadium was suddenly hushed. But Wales' captain was treated, strapped and the cheer that greeted his return to his feet was louder than that for Parkes' try.

Wales are no one-man team - there is a rich seam of talent running through these players – but without Jones they would lack leadership, commitment and composure. While Gatland sets the standards off the field, Jones does likewise on it. He is the totem around whom players gather, the colossus whose influence in driving Wales into second in the world rankings is just as great as that of the coach. This was Jones's fourth Six Nations title, on the day he equalled Gethin Jenkins as the mostcapped Welshman with 134. The Ospreys lock is 33 but nothing can halt him for long. At halftime and despite the sore knee, he led his team in carries, metres made and tackles.

"He has to go down as one of the greatest," said Parkes. "He's the leader, the one we look up to, the one that steps up week in, week out."

When the photographer asked the medalled players to come together on the pitch, it was Jones who ensured every one of them would be in the picture.

"It's the mark of the man," added Parkes.
"He's all about this team. He's enjoying his footy and running around like he's 21 again. He's very special, and he's a very nice man as well, a very humble man."

Wales were 16-0 down at halftime in Paris on the opening night of the championship; they led by the same score on Saturday at the interval. With Jones on the field there was never a danger of another remarkable turnaround. Barring Stockdale's breakout, Ireland were poor, looking spent and so far from the team who beat New Zealand in November. But much of that came from Wales' relentless physicality. Gareth Anscombe whose chip set up Parkes' try – kept the scoreboard turning and it was only on the final play that the Irish breached their line. Jordan Larmour went over and Jack Carty converted, despite a cadre of Welshmen attempting to charge it down. Just as Jones would have wanted.

Bright start for Northern Ireland

Delight for captain steven Davis who scored his 12th international goal on Thursday

Northern Ireland made a winning start to their Euro 2020 qualifiers with Niall McGinn and Steven Davis on target in a 2-0 victory over Estonia on Thursday.

A frustrating first half saw the hosts fail to turn their dominance of possession into goals.

McGinn lashed the ball into the net from 16 yards from Kyle Lafferty's layoff in the 56th minute and Davis fired home from the penalty spot in the 73rd.

Northern Ireland play Belarus in their next Group C game in Belfast on Sunday.

With Northern Ireland drawn in a difficult group alongside European giants Germany and the Netherlands - only two countries to qualify for Euro 2020 - manager Michael O'Neill had emphasised the necessity building early momentum and getting early points by beating lower ranked teams Estonia and Belarus in their first two games.

O'Neill's side will face Estonia and Belarus again away from home in June, before the formidable double-headers against the Dutch and Germans in the autumn.

Northern Ireland had gone eight competitive games without a win going into this fixture but they now have the opportunity to repeat or better their start to their successful Euro 2016 qualifying series when they triumphed in their first three matches.

The win over the Estonians ensured O'Neill began his fourth qualifying campaign on a winning note as he attempts to lead his side to successive European Championship finals negotiating the condensed qualifying competition which runs from March to November.

Shocking weapons haul ahead of women's match

Weapons, fireworks and drugs have been found on a coach carrying Paris St-Germain fans to a Women's Champion's League game against Chelsea.

Up to 50 PSG fans were denied entry to the quarterfinal tie at Kingsmeadow, Kingston-Upon-Thames.

Police were first called to reports of vandalism at the stadium at 08:00 GMT, then later to disorder at Waterloo and Wimbledon stations.

A coach that travelled overnight from Paris was searched and one arrest was made.

In a statement, the Met Police said: "Weapons, including knives and knuckledusters, were recovered along with class A drugs.

The game kicked-off at as scheduled at 19:05.

Chelsea won the match,

Ward Prowse aiming to fill Beckham's boots for England

PROWSE says he wants a shot at emulating former England captain David Beckham by becoming the team's go-to free-kick specialist.

Southampton The midfielder received a late call-up to Gareth Southgate's squad following his stunning dead-ball winner against Tottenham on March 9.

And he is keen to bend it like Beckham if he plays against Czech Republic at Wembley on Friday or Montenegro in Podgorica on Monday.

Ward-Prowse, honed his dead-ball technique by watching videos of Beckham, Steven Gerrard and Frank Lampard.

"They are good role models but ultimately created my own technique, what was right for me, with a lot of hard work and a lot of hours on the training pitch," he

"But it is nice to get moments in games like against Tottenham. It is nice to see those moments paying off given it was possibly the last chance to win the game."

WARD PROWSE: "You have to have that bite."

Ward-Prowse, drafted in after Fabian Delph and Ruben Loftus-Cheek pulled out with injury, is hoping Southgate notices his dead-ball prowess in training.

But he also plans to roll out a new, grittier side to his game after being encouraged by Saints boss Ralph Hasenhuttl to get rid of his nice-guy image.

He said: "I want to get away from that perception the Southampton academy boy, that's not what I want to be any

Rice 'sorry for Instagram post

Declan Rice has apologised after a social media post emerged in which he made an apparent reference to the IRA.

The England West Ham midfielder, 20, was an Ireland youth player in 2015 when he wrote '#UPTHERA' on Instagram.

Rice, who recently earned his first callup to the England squad, apologised for "any offence caused" by the "poorly expressed comment".

"I recognise my attempt to show support for my team-mates at the time could be negatively interpreted," he said.

"While my naive words were not meant to be a political opinion and do not represent who I am, I sincerely apologise for any offence caused."

Rice won three senior Republic of Ireland caps before transferring his allegiance to England last month.

England manager Gareth Southgate, speaking at news conference on Thursday before England's Euro 2020 qualifier against Czech Republic on Friday, said: "He's apologised. It's not representative of what he believes and what he feels."

Blues star 'shocked' by England call-up

Callum Hudson-Odoi and James Ward-Prowse both in the frame for Euro 2020 qualifiers

The 18-year-old was brought into the England squad on Monday for the upcoming 2020 qualifiers against the Czech Republic and Montenegro.

He has played 19 games for Chelsea this season, scoring five times.

"It's been a crazy experience but delighted," Hudson-Odoi said. "I thought the manager was joking."

He was with England's Under-21 squad, having received his first call-up at that level last week, when he was told he was being promoted to the senior squad by U21 manager Aidy Boothroyd.

"I was shocked and then when I heard that I actually had to go over, I couldn't believe it," Hudson-Odoi added.

"I was delighted. It's a dream come true. Now I've got to work hard, enjoy every moment and keep working to just hopefully make an impact when I get the opportunity."

Former Chelsea midfielder Andy Townsend says it is a "shrewd move" by England manager Gareth Southgate to call up Hudson-Odoi.

"Whenever I have seen Hudson-Odoi play I have thought he has got something about him and he suggests when you give him the ball he will make something happen," Townsend said.

Unhappy with his playing time, Hudson-Odoi handed in a transfer request in January after

Earlier this month, Blues manager Maurizio Sarri said it was "dangerous" to put too much pressure on the teenager, adding he would only be a "top" player aged 22 or 23.

McLeish stays mum after Kazakh debacle

Alex McLeish refused to discuss his future after leading Scotland to one of the nation's most ignominious defeats, a 3-0 humbling in their opening Euro qualifier in Kazakhstan on Thursday.

The Scots were two down inside 10 minutes, and conceded again just after the break to give the Kazakhs only a second win in 21 qualifiers.

Scotland were guilty abject defending at all three goals and offered little threat going forward against the country ranked 117 in the world.

McLeish was forced to field a makeshift backline after several withdrawals and the team's inexperience was cruelly exposed.

"It was a poor night for us defensively," said the Scotland boss. "We had one chance just before they scored and I was thinking it was looking quite lively for us.

"But they scored two quick goals and we never reacted. They could have been prevented with better positioning.

"There's a lot of inexperience in the squad. We have introduced a few new names over the last year or so and it can take time, but I know we don't have time.

"It's never finished until it's finished. We have players to come back.

In the other game in the section, Belgium beat Russia 3-1 in Brussels.
