BRITAIN'S chaotic exit from the EU lurched from crisis to farce this week, as Theresa May vowed to step down as Prime Minister if MPs passed the deal she negotiated in Brussels earlier this month.

The deal, which has already been defeated twice at Westminster, was given new life on Wednesday after Mrs. May promised Tory eurosceptics that she would step aside if it were passed, and let someone else take over the next stage of talks with

The vote was scheduled for Friday March 29th, after press time, on the day which Britain was scheduled to leave the EU,

In a move described as "desperate" by critics, Mrs May announced on Thursday that she will ask MPs to vote on only one part of the Brexit deal - the legally-binding Withdrawal Agreement - in the hope that the whole deal will be agreed at a later date.

If MPs agree to her plan, Britain will be able to leave the EU with a deal on May 22. If it is rejected, a long extension is the most likely outcome, with Britain having to take part in the European Parliament elections in May.

On Thursday night Mrs May still needed to persuade 52 Tory rebels to change their minds and agree to the Withdrawal Agreement for her to stand any chance of victory, but a hard core of around 20 Eurosceptics still insist they will never back down, with one saying he would not agree to it even with "a shotgun in my mouth".

Labour and the DUP both said they would vote against the Government. Mrs May spent 20 minutes on the phone to Jeremy Corbyn on Thursday but he told her he could not agree to her plan.

general election

Downing Street sources warned that another defeat for Mrs May could trigger an immediate general election to break the current deadlock and prevent MPs forcing a second referendum or a customs union with the EU.

The speaker of the House of Commons, John Bercow, has said he would allow Parliament to vote again only if the plan had changed substantially since it had been twice rejected resoundingly and on Thursday he said the government had met that test.

Mrs May's potential successors were on Thursday night jostling for position for a leadership election which could begin as early as Friday. cont. on page 5, col 3

■ A look at who's who in the race to replace May

Sajid Javid: Home Secretary and a former banker.

With the sun surely setting on Theresa May's blighted occupancy of Number 10, speculation is rife in Westminster about her likely replacement at the head of the Conservative Party. So here's a quick summary of the front runners, and where they stand on the ONLY issue facing Britain in the near future: that little thing called Brexit.

Michael Gove

Mr. Gove, 51, the environment secretary who formerly served as justice secretary and education secretary, is seen by some as a front-runner for the role, including some bookmakers who have put odds strongly in his favor.

He was a prominent pro-Brexit campaigner ahead of the 2016 referendum, and in the years since has largely backed the prime minister's strategy. Some British media outlets have speculated recently that he would be the likely "consensus choice" to replace Mrs. May as a caretaker leader if she were ousted.

Boris Johnson

Mr. Johnson, 54, the former foreign secretary, has been a vocal critic of the prime minister's Brexit plans. He gained notoriety as the outspoken and oftenoutrageous mayor of London from 2008 to 2016, before returning to Parliament. He was a figurehead in the campaign to leave the European Union, and since the 2016 referendum has advocated a hard split with the bloc. This mind-set has put him at odds with Mrs. May, who has fought for relatively closer ties to Europe — and who has seen Mr. Johnson regularly undermine her efforts to negotiate a deal. He has long been a polarizing figure within the party, which could hurt his chances in a bid for its leadership.

Dominic Raab: considered a long shot

Jeremy Hunt

Mr. Hunt, 52, who replaced Mr. Johnson as foreign secretary, had served as the country's health secretary for the previous six years. He voted for Britain to remain in the European Union in the 2016 referendum.

> But in the years since, Mr. Hunt has become an outspoken supporter of the decision to leave. His view was hardened, he said, in part by the bloc's negotiation tactics, which he called "arrogant" and "disappointing."

Sajid Javid

Mr. Javid, 49, Britain's home secretary, had been a successful banker before turning to politics. He is the son of parents who emigrated to Britain from Pakistan. Like Mr. Hunt, he also once supported Britain remaining in the European Union, but he has since come to support the efforts to leave. Mr. Javid has been positioning himself for a potential leadership role in recent months, making waves with the decision to strip the British citizenship of Shamima Begum, the teenager who traveled to Syria to join the Islamic State. But some, including fellow Tory lawmakers, criticized him for the move, calling it opportunistic.

David Lidington Mr. Lidington, 62, who was a supporter of the campaign for Britain to remain in the European Union, is the prime minister's de facto deputy and has been described by many as her natural caretaker successor. When speculation began about a possible coup within her cabinet, some British tabloids pointed to Mr. Lidington as the presumed caretaker prime minister. But Mr. Lidington, when asked last weekend about the supposed plot, expressed admiration for Mrs. May and said he was working to rally support for her deal. His prospects of becoming a permanent successor are slim, however, because though widely respected, he is seen as a technocrat.

"One thing that working closely with the prime minister does is cure you completely of any lingering shred of ambition to want to do that task," he told The Guardian.

Dominic Raab, 45

Considered a long shot for the top job, Mr. Raab was installed as Brexit secretary to deliver Mrs May's original Chequers plan, but he quit last year in opposition to her withdrawal deal proposal. His resignation from the Cabinet fuelled his popularity among the hardline Brexiteers.

Amber Rudd

Work and Pensions Secretary, 55. A loyalist and moderniser, she has been widely tipped as a future leader in the past, but was forced to resign from her post as home secretary over the Windrush scandal.

Jacob Rees-Mogg

Aged 49. The Arch Brexiteer is chairman of the European Research Group and has been at the forefront of the Brexit debate. Nicknamed 'the right honorable member for the 18th century' because of his fogeyish personal style, Rees-Mogg is said to be backing Boris Johnson.

Andrea Leadsom

Leader of the House, 55. Has won admirers for her feisty clashes with Speaker John Bercow in recent weeks. Withdrew from the Tory leadership contest in 2016 due to dwindling

Mojito diplomacy: Charles tours Old Havana behind the wheel of a classic MG

He is used to being 71, out of the passenger chauffeur driven in a convoy on royal tours but on Tuesday Prince Charles took to the driving seat to embrace Cuba's love of classic cars.

The heir to the throne, on a royal tour of the Caribbean island, took the wheel of a beautifully restored 66-vear-old MG TD - a rare sight on an island where many still drive American Cadillacs, Chevrolets and Dodges.

With his wife Camilla by his side, the 70-yearold prince drove to the classic car event in Havana's John Lennon Park to the sounds of the Beatles ringing out of the nearby Yellow Submarine

Looking the part in sunglasses and a linen suit, the prince pulled up tentatively and stopped, before helping Camilla, seat.

Charles told onlookers: "The one I was driving is the most beautiful car. It has an incredibly powerful accelerator. It is incredibly close to the brake so you have to be careful you don't press the wrong one."

His wife, in a mint-green Anna Valentine dress and parasol, needed a little help to get out of the lowslung car. "You try getting out of that elegantly!" she joked.

'in his element'

Turning to look at the range of cars on show, she laughed and said: "I remember most of these cars. Shows how old I am!" As Charles became absorbed in the vehicles on display, his wife joked: "He's never going to leave, he loves his cars. He's really rather

in his element."

They also met Lazaro William Gonzalez Ruiz, head of The British Classic Motorbike Enthusiasts, who was wearing a bandana and sporting and leathers metal jewellery.

Charles and Camilla seemed rather tickled by his appearance and chatted at length to him, through an interpreter, about his passion before looking at the bikes on show, including a 1956 Norton.

"Now motorbikes, that's something else he loves," said the Duchess.

Charles was then handed a Cuban cigar by a fellow classic car owner. The prince, who is said to dislike smoking, resisted the urge to spark it up in celebration but he did sniff the tobacco before handing it on to an aide.

The royal rental used to belong to 'our man in Havana' Stanley Fordham, then Britain's ambassador to Cuba.

Built in 1953, the ambassador is thought to have driven the black convertible in 1957. two years before the Revolution.

The roadster then ended up languishing in a garage in Havana, only to be discovered by chance by restaurant owner and band manager Eduardo Bermudez eight years

UK employment boom

BRITAIN has one of the world's highest employment rates as new figures reveal record numbers in work.

Some 32.7 million people have a job almost half a million more than this time last year. It means the employment rate has soared to 76.1 per cent, the seventh best in the world and higher than all EU nations bar Sweden and the Netherlands. And this year Britain could be among the top three, behind Iceland and Switzerland. Some 222,000 people found work in the last quarter, the Office for National Statistics said.

The ONS also said the UK's jobless rate has fallen below four per cent for the first time since 1975 and the number, 1.34 million, is 112,000 lower than a year ago, giving a jobless rate of 3.9 per cent, well below the EU average of 6.5 per cent. Furthermore, average earnings increased by 3.4 per cent in the year to January.

Business leaders welcomed the figures. Stephen Clarke, of the Resolution Foundation. said: "While business investment stagnated, firms are choosing instead to invest heavily in new staff.

"This

jobs growth is benefiting the morning. women and those traditionally left out of the labour market. It is even starting to have a knock-on effect on still preparation. historically weak pay rises."

Tip topper! £10k for Winston's hat

WINSTON Churchill's iconic top hat and one of his cigar cases have been valued at £10,000 – after being found at a tip.

The items were brought to Antiques Roadshow by David Rose, who unearthed them all at the dump where he works.

"I've worked there for like 15 years and I get to pull out whatever I like, mostly antiques," said Mr Rose, who said he had three sheds full of items from the dump at his home. In this week's episode of the popular British TV show, filmed at Eltham Palace in southeast London, specialist Mark Smith heard the items were gifted by the Second World War leader to one of his cooks – their authenticity confirmed by detailed letters from her to her son, also found in his haul. Presenting over 200 letters, Mr Rose said: "She used to write to her son every day about the daily goingson of Churchill, what he was getting up to, how he was feeling and just interesting stuff about him."

Also dumped was a signed photo of Sir Winston himself. Examining the items, Mr Smith revealed the authenticity would be in doubt were it not for the detailed letters. With the haul being unique, he valued the whole collection at £10,000-plus, an amount that Mr Rose described as "crazy".

However, the refuse worker remained tight-lipped about the location of the dump where he made the incredible find, saying "dozens" of people had already asked – and failed.

McCanns facing hefty legal bill

Lisbon court papers show Madeleine's parents are over £24,000 out of pocket

THE parents of Madeleine McCann are being chased for tens of thousands of pounds in legal fees a decade after beginning a libel battle against a Portuguese expolice chief.

Kate and Gerry McCann are set to be told by a Lisbon court they still owe Goncalo Amaral costs from contesting the claims in his 2008 book The Truth Of The Lie. The former policeman, who accused the couple of putting their daughter's life at risk in a new Netflix series about Madeleine's disappearance in 2007, will demand a four-figure sum from the McCanns.

Amaral, 59, is now waiting for a judgment from the European Court of Human Rights over the lengthy legal battle with the McCanns before deciding whether to launch a compensation claim.

Legal papers at a Lisbon court show the McCanns are already nearly £24,500 out of pocket after accusing Amaral of defaming them over the disappearance of their daughter. A bill of £5,346 to cover outstanding court costs is about to be sent to the McCanns' lawyer Isabel Duarte.

And that is likely to pave the way for a fresh claim by Amaral to get Madeleine's parents to compensate him for another £5,148 in remaining fees that were incurred in persuading Portugal's top court to back him over the book fight.

The McCanns had to pay£5,548in costs to Truth Of The Lie publishers, Guerra e Paz, despite its lawyer admitting to a miscalculation of nearly £1,800. The court files also show an error by Amaral's lawyer almost led to the McCanns paying the ex-policeman around £1,800 more in costs than necessary. The couple's total bill – which does not include costs they have incurred taking the case to Europe - will rise to nearly £35,000 once the McCanns are sent their new bill and Amaral demands they compensate him for his final payment linked to the Portuguese court fight. An appendix to the files also lays bare the former officer's financial position when he penned his book. Ms Duarte applied to have Amaral's assets seized in June 2009 after lodging a claim for £1million in damages on behalf of the McCanns and their children. But a financial probe revealed the £60,000 Jaguar car Amaral drove owned by a firm he set up four months after his book was published. It also showed an Algarve home – registered in his then-wife's name – had liens – security for a debt – totalling nearly £400,000.

Netflix In the documentary series released earlier this month, Amaral claimed the McCanns put their toddler's life at risk publicising distinctive eye marking. A source close to the couple is reported to have said: "Mr Amaral doesn't seem to have any compassion for Kate and Gerry and is only interested in publicising

Ska's Ranking Roger dead at 56

British ska musician Ranking Roger has died aged 56 after a battle with cancer.

Born Roger Charlery in Birmingham in 1963, Roger shot to fame as a singer and frontman for the Beat, one of the four big British ska revival bands - along with the Specials, Madness and the Selecter – to emerge after punk in the late 1970s. The Beat's flowering was a brief one, but Roger was at the heart of the group's successes in the early 80s, when they had five Top 10 singles and two Top 5 albums in the UK before splitting in 1984. He had songwriting credits on many of their most popular compositions, and alongside duties as joint vocalist with Dave Wakeling was also the band's "toaster", talking in stylised fashion over various song sections in a mode popularised by reggae deejays of the late 60s and early 70s.

Later he pursued solo projects and collaborations with various wellbands known and including artists, Big Dynamite Audio and Sting, before touring and recording with a reincarnation of the Beat, with whom he worked until his death.

Most recently his musical life had centred around a Beat revival band featuring his daughter Saffren on vocals and son Matthew as toaster: in a deal with Wakeling, who had a rival Beat group in the US, Roger's troupe concentrated on touring the UK and Europe, while Wakeling's musicians (known as the English Beat in America) focused on the US. Roger's band released albums in 2016 (Bounce) and 2019 (Public Confidential), and he relished the chance to add new material to the old. "Even if we're not as big as the first time, the respect and the credibility are still there," he said. "For me, they are great things to have."

Early this year, Roger announced that following a stroke and the discovery of two brain tumours he had also been diagnosed with lung cancer. He is survived by five children.

Brits in LA

Meet A Member: Meena Ysanne

Meet Meena Ysanne from London, who first moved to LA 14 years ago to pursue her career composing, arranging, conducting, and playing orchestral strings for rock and pop musicians, as well as for film and TV....oh, and writing books on the side.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I didn't choose LA LA chose me! I'm a conductor/composer/ arranger of orchestral music, as well as playing violin. I came for the very first time in 2004 for three weeks, to work on a record out here. At that time, I was also working on a new opera commission for the English National Opera in London, and had just come off tour with (the Dutch DJ and record producer) Tiesto - and, somehow my trajectory changed, and I'm here! Everything has organically unfolded from that initial project, in a magical way. I feel incredibly blessed that LA has welcomed me, it's a wonderful place, with unparalleled natural beauty, and the most extraordinary community creative people anywhere in the world.

What do you miss most from home?

Firstly, home is where the heart is, and as someone who has traveled so much for so many years, my home is where I lay my hat. So that's LA right now. But absolutely, I love the UK, and London in particular, and there are many things that the UK does better than anywhere else, including Stonehenge, storytelling, and a really nice cup of tea with a biccy!

And also things specific to my music, such as Abbey Road Studios, where The Beatles famously recorded, and many incredible orchestral musicians I know and love. But then, my focus here in LA is to provide opportunities in London, as well as here, for music to flourish.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

The first night I arrived was November 23, 2004. It was a warm night and the air was fragrant with unfamiliar smells from the garden where I was staying, right in the middle of Hollywood. Everyone seemed so friendly and open, and my first meal was pupusas at an El Salvadoran place, which was the first time I'd ever heard of them, let alone tasted them. Going to bed that first night in Villa Elaine, an old hotel where Marilyn Monroe had lived, and many other golden age Hollywood creative people, from Man Ray to one of my musical heroes, Frank Sinatra - well, the spirit of that building was so inspiring to me. The magic of this place is still so alive, and it's still inspiring me!

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

Goodness, where should I start? Umm.... everything! From learning to drive here so I could simply get from A to B, to trying to understand the local norms regarding such simple human behaviours as meeting a romantic partner. Things are different here, in a fundamental way, from the most basic human

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I'm currently sitting in Barney's Beanery in West Hollywood. Established 99 years ago, it's a fabulous piece of original Americana located on Route 66, only a few blocks from my home. It was a classic hang-out for 1950s beatniks, and for 1960s musicians including Janis Joplin and Jim Morrison and more recently, it's where Quentin Tarantino wrote Pulp Fiction. It's still an inspiring place for creative types to work, shoot pool and chow down on huge sandwiches and surprisingly good salads. Love the history of this place, and it's still going strong because, it's still awesome - and has free wifi, so it's a great place to work, as well as have fun.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? it's good to know that the cream of the crop of every kind of entertainment professional has been arriving in this town since the moment it began. So, be prepared. Be realistic. Be gracious, and although you don't need to leave your ambition at the door, make sure you understand that this city is more about being a tortoise than a

"Opportunity never has a neon sign on its head." Meaning, you could easily miss a small crack in a door opening to welcome you to a life-changing experience, so be present, open and aware to everything, however cheesy or small it may seem! Magic lies in your periphery vision.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

May:

Jeremy Hunt has told Cabinet colleagues he believes he has the backing of 100 Tory MPs while Sajid Javid is reportedly attempting to convince Michael Gove to join his ticket.

If Mrs May's vote fails she will be expected to announce that she will leave Number 10 as soon as a replacement is chosen.

David Jones, a former Brexit minister, said: "The general feeling is that she should go regardless of whether her deal goes through.

"People are already putting their campaigns together and are actively seeking support. It would be helpful to everyone if she left in as dignified a manner as possible, as soon as possible."

Another senior Tory said: "If we cannot get a deal through there will have to be a general election and you can't go into an election with a leader who has already said they will go."

Mrs May's predecessor David Cameron entered the fray on Thursday by saying Mrs May needed to persuade different factions to "compromise".

He said: "The basic problem is that Parliament is stuck. There are four groups in Parliament: People who want the Prime Minister's deal, people who want no deal, people who want a second referendum and people who want a softer Brexit.

"The Government has to try and find a way of getting at least two of those groups to work together, to combine their options, to compromise to find that partnership agreement and I hope that is what will happen."

Asked who he would like to takeover from Theresa May, he said: "It is not for me to say. One of the reasons I have tried to give as few of these interviews as possible is that it is a very hard job being prime minister and it is not made easier by your immediate predecessor giving a running commentary.

"I have tried not to say too much because I support Theresa May and wish her well in what she has to do."

There was some hope among Conservatives that splitting Mrs. May's plan in two would strengthen her case with opposition Labour MPs, whose main objections are to the political declaration and not the withdrawal agreement.

But Labour leaders reacted angrily to the idea on Thursday, noting that Mrs. May had previously said the two pieces of her plan were inextricably linked.

Keir Starmer warned on Thursday that splitting them "would leave us with the blindest of blindfold Brexits." He was referring to Labour's fear that, if Parliament passed part of Mrs. May's plan and the prime minister resigned, a hard-line pro-Brexit politician like Boris Johnson would take over and shape the crucial next stage of negotiations.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Financial problems (either yours or those of someone close) will take precedence over most situations this week. If you can let go of any worries about the outcome be assured Mars your boss will be more than prepared to assist you. Happy Birthday.

TAURUS: The sun in Aries will bring you some help in making a decision on a new direction you are more than ready to take. With your lovely boss Venus in watery Pisces all can work to the best and highest good for your career area.

GEMINI: Time to complete what may have weighed you down recently. You of all the signs must take some responsibility for dealing with something that is out of balance in your life and will not be resolved without action.

CANCER: Be ready to be strong for yourself and to protect any situation in which you have energy invested. It's near time that all the hard work you put in last month will start to manifest this coming week ahead. Jupiter in your communication area will assist you.

LEO: Be aware of action in your cousin planet of Aries this week or so affecting your sign. There is subliminal action going on which may not show up immediately. This means that whatever you are hoping and dreaming of can manifest if you believe it can.

VIRGO: Mercury your boss has started to go forward and it could cause frustration in several areas, so do not bang your head against whatever is in front of you. It is best to not waste your energy now as by next week life will go much smoother in the area you want it.

LIBRA: In life all does not always go as smooth as you would like. This does not mean you can rest on your laurels. If you lack information it's up to you to seek whatever answer you require. Communication is the key these coming days, either from you or others.

SCORPIO: Work or related situations is paramount for you these next few days. Bear in mind that you can be your own worst critic sometimes. It has been a confusing time all round for you recently, with this in mind you have to be aware that you are the only one who can change this.

SAGITTARIUS: Be ready to make your life a little more exciting this week ahead. It's a positive time for you now the sun in Aries will assist to get where you want to be heading. The only thing to be aware of before you start any new venture is to check the schedule ahead of time.

CAPRICORN: This week ahead could mark the end (or the beginning) of a way of doing things. It's up to you what you make of this time frame. You are about to break away from a familiar pattern and even though it's a bit scary, look forward now.

AQUARIUS: Fasten your safety belts ready for some kind of lift off. You have a rare and lovely blessed cycle about to begin. This can take you out of the normal situations you have come to expect, it's time to go onward and upwards.

PISCES: Venus the love planet in your life can bring much more contentment in the areas of life you have likely ignored or did not expect. Your life can be better overall, so let this wave of energy move through your life and enjoy some upbeat times.

BRITS IN LA

WOW! goes bust

Seems that cheaper isn't always better...as just this week budget transatlantic carrier WOW! Air went bust.

'Tis unfortunate for travelers who have already booked, as the company aren't offering refunds and are suggesting to contact other airlines as soon as possible. It says passengers covered by various protected booking methods, including booking by credit card or through a European travel agent, should try to get their money back from them. Some of the other similar airlines are offering up to 25% rescue discount on new flights for the victims of the fall. Check Norwegian, easyjet and Icelandic Air, to name but a few.

Some people who are deeply affected have taken to Twitter with their complaints. News of cancelled weddings and honeymoons, dream holidays and not making it home in time for funerals are among the complaints. One disgruntled non traveler described it as the "Fyre festival of airline travel", referring to the shambolic Bahamaian island music festival fiasco recently outlined in competing documentaries on Netflix and Hulu

The company released a statement overnight saying they were in the final stages of raising money with a group of investors and that they were postponing flights until documentation with all parties involved were finalized.

Wow was founded in 2011 by its chief executive, Skuli Mogensen. It started flights in 2012 and grew to employ 1,000 people, carrying 3.5 million passengers last year in its 11 aircraft.

According to the BBC,

Aviation expert Chris Tarry, from consultants Ctaira, said Wow was simply not able to make enough profit in a highly competitive market: "Wow faced stiff competition on the northern Europe to North America route, which is being served by rival low-cost operator, Norwegian. Wow offered low fares - but so did the rest of the pack. Even the traditional carriers were offering keen fares.

"Travelling with Wow also involved going via Iceland - attractive if you have the time and money to spare on that, but with others pricing fares keenly, something people were thinking wasn't worth their time.'

Mr Mogensen wrote a letter to employees on Thursday which said: "I will never be able to forgive myself for not taking action sooner, since it is evident that Wow was an amazing airline and we were on Wednesday night in Santa Monica saw the LA premiere of Maze, an engrossing Irish drama focusing on the audacious escape of 38 prisoners from the notorious prison of the same name in Northern Ireland in 1983. The screening was held at the Laemmle Monica Film Center on Second Street, and was followed by a post-screening Q+A with director Stephen Burke, actor Tom Vaughan-Lawlor and producer Jane Doolan.

Vaughan-Lawlor plays Larry Marley a convicted IRA operative reeling from the perceived failure of the 1981 hunger strike in the Maze's 'H-Block' which ended in the deaths of ten IRA prisoners including Bobby Sands. While Marley's cellmates bemoan a very real human and public relations loss, Marley seeks to fight a different campaign and painstakingly plots what will become the biggest mass prison break since the Second World War. Marley the right track to do great things again."

He went on now, unfortunately out of our hands. I'm very sorry about this as these are people who have supported us and it's amazing how positive our passengers have been from day one and I'm disappointed not to honour our commitments to these people."

But Wow isn't the only airline feeling the pinch these days as a number of airlines have run into financial trouble recently, with factors such as higher fuel bills and excess capacity in the sector contributing to their problems.

The UKs "flybe" airline closed along with other European budget carriers and "Ryanair" have reported drastic drops for their first quarter already.

It's very sad for the Craig Robert Young employees too, and bad news for travelers as it now means low inventory and less seats traveling back and forth to the UK which will probably mean a hike in the cost of flights.

Hope not too many of you are affected, but if you are stranded stateside, take a look at our website to see if we can help in anyway.

Los Angeles Premiere of Maze

targets hard-nut loyalist warder Gordon Close (Barry Ward), and slowly but surely ingratiates himself with the prison hierarchy, gradually gathering information and ultimately identifying the prison's fatal security flaw.

> Burke unfolds the story in a calm, low-key and scrupulously evenhanded manner, dropping the viewer right back to a troubled time that seems both far away and strikingly familiar. With the help of real prison sets in Cork, MAZE gets the tone right, down to the depressing 1980s casual clothes the IRA prisoners won the right to wear.

Although this is never really an exciting film, it is absorbing, thanks mainly to Vaughan-Lawlor's performance. With concentration and pure conviction, the actor portrays the almost-monastic singlemindedness of an IRA man who is utterly devoted to his cause.

This film educates as well as entertains, and provides a salutary reminder of how far we've come since the Good Friday Agreement.

Maze: dir/scr. Stephen Burke. Ireland. 2017. 93 mins. Currently playing at the Laemmle Playhouse 7 in Pasadena, the Laemmle Town Center in Encino and the Laemmle Monica Film Center in Santa Monica.

Frances Ruffelle's mustsee one-woman show!

British singer actress Frances Ruffelle dazzled the crowds on stage in Hollywood last week when she gave the Los Angeles showbiz set an exclusive peep at her one-woman stage performance - 'Frances Ruffelle Lives in New York' (in LA) at The Rockwell Table and Stage in Los Feliz.

Guests on the night included British actress Michelle Collins, Dancing with the Stars Strictly and Come Dancing judge Bruno Tonioli, film producers Margret Raven and Jón Óttar and actor Craig Robert Young.

The Tony Awardwinning Broadway star began working as a professionally at the age 12, landing roles in films such as The Wildcats of St. Trinian's and one of Film Four's first movies for television, P'tang, Yang, Kipperbang, back in 1982.

But it wasn't until she landed her first West End role, in the Terrance Rattigan "The play Prince" Sleeping opposite Omar Sharif, that Ruffelle started to get the recognition she deserved. Soon during the run of The Sleeping Prince, Frances found herself practicing her roller-skates backstage after landing a starring role as Dinah "the dining car," in the original company of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Starlight Express," directed by Trevor Nunn. This lead to Nunn casting her as the first ever Eponine in the Cameron Mackintosh production of Misérables, co-directed by Nunn and John Caird.

Not only was Ruffelle in the original London cast in London in 1985, but she went on to star on Broadway in the U.S. in and eventually won a prestigious Tony Award for her outstanding performance.

Now after many years of performing in shows like Chicago, Les Mis, and Starlight Express, to name a few Frances decided to do something, that SHE wanted to do. So, she set about putting together a new woman show -Frances Ruffelle Live!

autobiographical, based on me, a little theatrical license going on in there,"she said. She is quick to point out however, it's not a cabaret. "Though it's a story in a cabaret space."

"In between the songs I have written vignettes, and the vignettes move the story along. I am very proud this show."

And so, she should be, it truly is a one-of-a-kind!

She co-created the mini-masterpiece with Gwyneth Herbert, who also arranged the music for the show - already a sellout in New York, where it has been running for just over a year.

"I've been doing onewoman shows for about ten years now,"Frances said. "I have also directed, I directed Olivier award winner, Paul Baker's show. I love directing, I'd love to do more directing, perhaps a big musical."

Sean Borg: Apart from the obvious...Moving to New York City, I feel there is a deeper meaning to show. What was the drive behind making it happen?

Frances Ruffelle :When I perform on stage...for me it's all about truth and challenge...I am not scared to bare my soul onstage... I moved to New York for a challenge after a heartbreak! So quite simply...the show is from heartbreak to empowerment... finding the strength, hope and humor in life...it's dark but it's funny!

SB: İ guess being a Broadway singing star, New York City is an obvious choice to live. But why not live in Los Angeles, that's obvious choice for an actress?

FR: Very tempting to live in the beautiful sunshine of Los Angeles..but theatre is my thing... I go to the theatre at least three times a week and I love the Broadway community and to be able to be at a theatre in 10 minutes on the subway from my apartment.

SB: I think 'Frances Ruffelle Lives in New York,' is a show without boundaries. Do you see yourself as a bit of a rebel?

FR: I probably am a rebel... though...I have brought up three they children... wonderful adults now...so Lean't be too bad!

SB: Your powerful vocals impact the audience with striking resemblance (and quality) of Gwen Stefani and Kate Bush. Is it intentional to sound a little more edgy than most traditional musical stars?

FR: Ah, (Gwen and Kate) I love both of them... But I'm flattered to be compared. But I try to be myself!

SB: We only had you in Hollywood, for one night only! Not nearly enough! When will the show be back in Los Angeles?

FR:Ah, that is kind... I am excited to say that I am planning a Californian tour... Dates to be confirmed. Watch this space!

Germany and Holland? No problem insists Northern Ireland striker

Josh Magennis insists Northern Ireland can pip either the Netherlands or Germany to secure qualification for Euro 2020.

Magennis' 87th-minute goal secured a vital 2-1 win over Belarus as Northern Ireland remained on top of Group C, ahead of Germany and the Netherlands.

"We truly believe we can do it," said the 28-year-old Bolton striker.

"There is no point me standing here if I didn't think we could go through. I might as well not show up." Following Sunday's last-gasp win, Northern Ireland lead Group C on six points - three ahead of Germany who earned a dramatic opening 3-2 away win over the Netherlands on Sunday, with the Dutch also on three points after two games.

Michael O'Neill's side will begin a run of four concluding games against the Group C big guns with a home match against Germany on 9 September.

Northern Ireland will be away to the Netherlands on 10 October before a November doubleheader which sees them hosting the Dutch and facing Germany away.

Magennis, whose winner was his fifth international goal, added: "Maybe we will have to dig deep. I also say, 'Why not us?'

"It's a cliche and cheesy but the main thing was the three points and we want 12 points out of the first four games, and then we can head towards September, October and November

"We have started off well and now we have to look forward to June."

England stars deliver another five star show

England survived an early scare to mount an impressive comeback and outclass Montenegro in Podgorica, on Monday in a game overshadowed by racist abuse directed at visiting players.

Manager Gareth
Southgate gave first starts to youngsters
Declan Rice and Callum
Hudson-Odoi but England were stunned
after only 17 minutes
when Marko Vesovic
gave Jordan Pickford no chance with a precise, curling finish.

The visitors kept their composure to respond emphatically with confidence, class and power by taking maximum points - and 10 goals - from their first two Euro 2020 qualifiers.

Everton defender Michael Keane headed home Barkley's free-kick for his first international goal on the half hour, before the midfielder turned in Chelsea teammate Hudson-Odoi's shot to give them the lead before the break.

Montenegro posed only a fleeting threat and Barkley effectively wrapped up the victory with a powerful finish after determined work by Raheem Sterling on 59 minutes

England emphasised their vast superiority when Sterling was provider once more for Harry Kane's simple finish before the Manchester City forward got on the scoresheet himself.

However, the victory was marred by an unsavoury conclusion with Sterling clearly responding to taunts from the home fans in his goal celebration, and Hudson-Odoi having to retrieve an object thrown on to the pitch.

And the Montenegro supporters also directed chants at Danny Rose after the defender was shown a yellow card late on, casting a shadow over another great night for Southgate and his team.

Saints boss bans wi-fi

Southampton manager Ralph Hasenhuttl has blocked the wi-fi at team hotels to prevent his squad from playing "addictive" video games.

Hasenhuttl, who faced similar problems at former club RB Leipzig, compared it to alcohol and drug addiction.

"It's something you get addicted to and that means we have to protect the players," the 51-year-old said.

On Thursday, an anonymous English footballer admitted lengthy gaming sessions threatened to ruin his career.

The Sun revealed the unknown EFL player would play popular video game Fortnite for up to 13 hours a day.

"It's something you have to force actively against and I will do this," said Hasenhuttl, whose side travel to Brighton in the Premier League on Saturday.

"I did it in my last club.

HASENHUTTL: "You have to help protect them (the players) because it's not a small problem" ear- We had also problems with players - they an were playing until three clish o'clock in the morning tted before a game.

"You have to help protect them because it's not a small problem. If you are honest it's the same as alcoholism or getting addicted to drugs.

"To protect them means helping them not to spend so much time there. We block the wi-fi in the hotel, for example, in the evening so they can't play any more."

Austrian Hasenhuttl, who took over at Southampton in December, said none of his players has serious problems with gaming but added: "You can be sure that I'm always in contact with my captain or with a few players to speak about them.

"As long as it's not officially for the government an illness, then we have to protect them in our way.

"If it would be an illness then it would be easy for the government to say the companies have to give a block after three hours, for example, that they cannot play this game any more.

Scotland at 'rock bottom'

Scotland are at "rock bottom" after their first two Euro 2020 qualifying games, says captain Andy Robertson.

Alex McLeish's side are fifth in Group I following a 3-0 defeat in Kazakhstan and an unconvincing 2-0 win over San Marino, the world's bottom-ranked side.

But the Liverpool leftback is calling on the squad to "stick together" in a bid to recover from their sticky start.

"The only way we do that is by winning games and playing a lot better," said 25-year-old Robertson.

"The country is at rock bottom just now in terms of football and we need to pick it back up."

McLeish and the players came in for heavy criticism after the loss to Kazakhstan, who were hammered 4-0 at home by Russia on Sunday.

And Scotland's performance in San Marino did nothing to ease the pressure on the manager before a June double-header at home to Cyprus and away to group leaders Belgium.

- Robertson

Robertson, who missed the opening qualifier because of dental surgery but returned to skipper the team on Sunday, admitted the San Marino game was "all about damage limitation".

"When you get beaten in a game you were meant to win, and people are saying it's the worst result we've ever had, then this week was never going to be a success," he said.

"But we followed it up with not a good performance again. The lads need to stick together."

Welsh make winning start

Wales held on victory against Slovakia in Cardiff on sunday to make a winning start to their Euro 2020 qualifying campaign.

The hosts flew out of the blocks with attacking intent and led inside five minutes as Daniel Iames struck his first international goal with a bullet of a shot from 20 yards.

Wales had chances to extend their lead but risked squandering it against a resurgent Slovakia, for whom Albert Rusnak and Robert Mak both had shots saved by Wayne Hennessev.

The Wales goalkeeper then made a crucial

Hungary and Azerbaijan respectively - so Wales move level with them on three points. Hungary also have three points, after they shocked World Cup runners-up Croatia 2-1 later on Sunday.

This was a significant result for Wales, who are aiming to rekindle the magic of Euro 2016 and that epic run to the semi-finals after a 58vear absence from major tournaments.

Giggs had described his mixed first year in charge as a "free hit", an opportunity to experiment, knowing he would be judged on this qualifying campaign.

Under his guidance, Wales have evolved

Hamilton weighs in on 'crazy' racism

World champion Lewis Hamilton says it is "crazy" that racism is "very, very prominent" in sport and has called for stricter punishments.

Hamilton's comments come after England footballers were racially abused in a match against Montenegro this week.

"It is really there. All around the world, racism is still a real issue, which is sad to see," the 34-year old Mercedes driver said.

Solskjaer confirmed as United boss

"We are looking forward, but we have got to work harder," says the Norwegian

Ole Gunnar Solskjaer was named the club's permanent manager Thursday, on immediate challenged his Manchester United players to "work harder" and warned them against complacency because they will "never last at this club".

The former United striker arrived on an interim basis in December to replace Jose Mourinho.

Under the Norwegian, 46, United have lost only once in 13 league games.

"We are looking forward, we have got to work harder," Solskjaer said.

"I want a Man Utd team to be one of the hardest working, fittest teams and that will bring results.

"Now the players know I am here for longer than expected. Players that get complacent never last at this club."

Speaking at Trafford after signing a three-year contract, he described the position as his "ultimate dream", and revealed Sir Alex Ferguson was one of the first people he called after his position was made permanent.

"This has been my ultimate dream, maybe a naive dream," he said. "But I've always had that dream in my mind.

"It's a huge, fantastic family of a football club and I'm so honoured to be given the responsibility."

Solskjaer spent 11 seasons as a United player, scoring the winning goal in the 1999 Champions League final.

When he took charge, United were sixth in the Premier League and 11 points off the top four. They are now just two points behind Arsenal, who occupy the final Champions League qualifying spot.

He became the first United manager to win his first six league games, beating a record held by Sir Matt Busby.

"I'm just going to be myself as I've always been. I know the trade of course. I want us to lift trophies but I can't wait to get to the challenge of improving the squad," Solskjaer said.

'We have worked with them, for three months and the improvement is there to be seen. We know there is so much more to come from them.

"Every day in training the attitude has been fantastic but we know we've a long way to go. It's going to be a mountain to climb but we've climbed a few mountains before."

United have not won the Premier League since 2013 - Ferguson's final season in charge - though they finished second behind Manchester City last term under Mourinho.

When Solskjaer returned to the club, United's points tally was closer to the bottom of the league than the top, but he has since led them to victories at Tottenham, Arsenal and Chelsea, with a top-four finish now within their grasp.

Solskjaer's aim is to one day lead United back to the top of the table but he admits it may take some what we expect, what we're used to, what we have done so many times," he said.

"We can't wait too many years but it's not going to happen overnight.

"I know we will be successful but it's about taking it step by step.

"What I have done before as a player doesn't really bother me because I am always looking forward.

"It was fantastic to work with the best manager in the world but now I am working here as the manager and I think that's a bigger achievement."

The case will be dealt with by European football's governing body on 16 May.

Montenegro coach Ljubisa Tumbakovic said he did not "hear or notice any" racist abuse.

But England manager Southgate, speaking to BBC Radio 5 Live said he "definitely heard the racist abuse of Rose".

"There's no doubt in my mind it happened," he added. "I know what I heard. It's unacceptable.

"We have to make sure our players feel supported, they know the dressing room is there and we as a group of staff are there for them.

"We have to report it through the correct

Anti-discrimination group Fare said they had identified the match as "high risk" for racism before the game and executive director Piara Powar said: "We had an observer present who picked up evidence of racial abuse.

"Our monitoring team have been compiling the evidence we have before presenting it to Uefa."
