May swings axe as Williamson furiously denies Huawei breach

THERESA May has dramatically sacked Defence Secretary Gavin Williamson over an unprecedented leak from the National Security Council.

He was fired after an Prime Minister had "lost inquiry found "compelling evidence" he was to blame for betraying highly sensitive information from a meeting of ministers and security chiefs last week.

Responding to the allegations, Mr Williamson "swore on his children's lives" he had not divulged discussions about Huawei, the Chinese tech giant, to a newspaper. "I did not leak this, and to my dying day I will keep on insisting that," he said.

But the MP is now facing growing calls for a criminal investigation into the breach of security as shock waves reverberated through Westminster.

The latest blow to Mrs May's beleaguered Government came at the worst possible time - on the eve of Thursday's local elections, which are expected to see savage Tory losses.

Announcing his sacking, a Downing Street statement said the

Police reopen Tory MP IRA blast probe

SCOTLAND Yard has dramatically reopened inquiries into the assassination of war hero and prominent Tory MP Airey Neave at Westminster 40 years ago.

Home Secretary Sajid Javid ordered a review of the notorious murder in response to calls from Neave's family.

The first British officer to escape from Colditz Castle during the war, he had risen to become one of Margaret Thatcher's closest confidants and was poised to become Northern Ireland secretary of state at the time of his death.

Mrs May was informed about the conclusion of the leak inquiry by civil service officials shortly after Prime Minister's Questions at lunchtime on Monday. The Prime Minister summoned Mr Williamson to her Commons office at around 5pm and in a heated meeting, they spent half an hour arguing about the inquiry's findings, with the Cabinet minister repeatedly rejecting the claims. Mrs May finally ended the meeting by curtly informing him that his ministerial career bombings and other crimes as part of the Good Friday Agreement. Speeding ticket MP recalled

Fiona Onasanya, the guilty MP found of lying to avoid speeding ticket, а has become the first parliamentarian to be removed from office after a recall petition, triggering byelection in her Peterborough seat. Nigel Farage's Brexit party will field its parliamentary first candidate in the seat, which voted 60-40 to leave the EU. The bellwether constituency usually swings behind the party that wins a general election.

More than one in four registered voters 27.64% – signed an official notice calling for the removal of Onasanya, according to a spokesperson for Peterborough city council. This was well above the 10% threshold.

The Speaker, John Bercow, announced in the House of Commons on Wednesday night petition that the had been successful. "Fiona Onasanya is no longer the member for Peterborough and the seat is accordingly vacant," he told the Commons.

Onasanya, 35. will automatically receiving her stop parliamentary salary, expenses and pension payments, said a spokesman for the Independent Parliamentary Standards Authority. She becomes а preserved member of the pension scheme but can no longer contribute to it.

Onasanya, a solicitor, committed Christian and supporter of Jeremy Corbyn, was plucked from political obscurity to stand in the Cambridgeshire city in 2017.

She is still to face a misconduct tribunal, the Solicitors Regulation Authority has confirmed, which could mean that she could no longer practise in law.

Local sources said the byelection is expected to be held on June 6, after the European elections on 23 May.

Most Brits think climate change could lead to extinction – new poll

The majority of people in the UK believe climate change could end the human race, a new poll has found, suggesting mass protests aimed at thrusting global warming onto the political agenda have captured the public's attention.

The Extinction Rebellion group brought parts of London to a standstill with 11 days of protest last month, setting up camps that blocked off some of the capital's busiest roads and bridges. They also targeted major institutions such as Goldman Sachs, Shell and the London Stock Exchange.

A Comres poll taken after the protests found that 54% of adults agreed climate-change that threatens our extinction as a species, and a quarter who disagreed. A majority of those surveyed also said that they would forego at least one overseas trip a year for the sake of the climate, and more people said they would be willing to protest about climate change than higher fuel prices.

Those pledges may well be tested: a separate report, published this morning by the Climate Change Committee, is urging the UK to cut greenhouse gas emissions to zero by 2050.

Chris Stark, who wrote the report, told the BBC that Extinction Rebellion - and a recent climate change documentary from David Attenborough - have helped change minds.

"This report would have been absolutely inconceivable just a few years ago," he said. "People would have laughed us out of court for suggesting that the target could be so high."

Britain's biggest civil disobedience protests for generations have coincided with a growing youth movement, which has seen millions of schoolchildren around the world take to the streets to voice their growing alarm. John Sauven, the executive director of Greenpeace UK, quoted in The Guardian, said the debate around environmentalism had been fundamentally altered by the protests. "Climate activists, young and old, have put the UK government under enormous pressure to officially recognise the climate emergency we are facing," he said. "There is a real feeling of hope in the air that after several decades of climate campaigning the message is beginning to sink in. What we need now is to translate that feeling into action."

As a direct result of the protests, Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn put forward a motion in parliament on Wednesday calling on the government to declare an environment and climate emergency.

April set a new record for the number of times "climate change" was mentioned in the UK press, beating the previous record set in December 2015, when the Paris climate agreement was signed. Google searches for "climate change" in the UK have also spiked to levels unseen since 2009.

While acknowledging the protests came during a breather from Brexit, Leo Barasi, a communications expert who advises organisations that work on climate action, said that the tenor of debate on climate action has changed in the UK - and probably around the world.

"Climate-change deniers have been pushed to the fringes and don't receive as much attention as in the past," he said this week.

OUTDOORS GIRL: Charlotte at the Cambridge country retreat of Amner Hall

SHE'S confident, bosses her big brother around – and these gorgeous pictures show Princess Charlotte is growing up fast.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge released photographs of their little princess, taken by her mother, to mark her fourth birthday on Thursday.

Charlotte, who is fourth in line to the throne, was photographed by Kate at Kensington Palace and Anmer Hall, the family's country retreat in Norfolk. Charlotte is seen sitting, hands-clasped, in a summer dress on a patch of grass at the palace. The other images from Anmer Hall show the Queen's great-granddaughter running and smiling, flower in hand, and sitting on a fence beaming at the camera. She wears a grey cardigan over the same Yarrow tartan skirt by London-based Amaia Kids that she wore to last month's Burnham Horse Trials in Norfolk.

Charlotte, whose full title is Her Royal Highness Princess Charlotte Elizabeth Diana of Cambridge, is William and Kate's second child, sister to Prince George and Prince Louis. Kate, 37, herself one of the world's most photographed people, is a keen amateur snapper and has released her own pictures of her children. They include George and Charlotte's first days at nursery school and Charlotte's first birthday. When Charlotte was two, Kate said that she was "the one in charge" and last year, when the Queen met a woman whose daughter looked after her older sister, she remarked: "It's like that with Charlotte and George."

William, 36, has also given little insights into his daughter's character,

As she officially opened the Pears Family School in King's Cross, London, poon Wednesday, Kate revealed Charlotte loves the gooey, sticky children's toy Slime. The Duchess told a sevenyear-old girl called Narriyah: "Charlotte, my daughter, she dropped hers on the floor and it was pink and ended up brown and covered in so much mud. "It ends up all gooey, doesn't it?"

Chewbacca actor Mayhew dies at 74

"Gentlest of giants" topped out at 7ft 3in

Peter Mayhew, the actor who played Chewbacca in the Star Wars films, has died aged 74, his family says.

He passed away at his home in Texas on 30 April with his family by his side, a statement said.

The British-American actor played giant Wookiee warrior Chewbacca in the original trilogy beginning in 1977 as well as later films until 2015.

"He put his heart and soul into the role of Chewbacca and it showed in every frame," his family said, adding: "He fought his way back from being wheelchair-bound to stand tall and portray Chewbacca once more in Star Wars: The Force Awakens,"

He also consulted on The Last Jedi, released in 2017, in an attempt to pass on the secrets of the role to his successor Finland's Joonas Suotamo. Mayhew's family said "the Star Wars family meant so much more to him than a role in a film".

"The relationships that began then grew into the friends and family that he would love for decades to come."

The statement also said the actor had been "heavily involved" with non-profit organisations, and had launched his own foundation, which they said supported "everything from individuals and families in crisis situations to food and supplies for children of Venezuela".

The London-born actor, who was 7ft 2in (2.18m) tall, is survived by his wife Angie and three children.

Mark Hamill, who played Luke Skywalker in the original Star Wars films, described Mayhew as "the gentlest of giants".

"A big man with an even bigger heart who never failed to make me smile and a loyal friend who I loved dearly," Hamill tweeted

Mayhew was born in 1944 in London, England and was raised in Barnes. His height was not a product of gigantism; "I don't have the big head", Mayhew said when asked about the cause of his height. His peak height was 7 feet 3 inches and found work in the radiology department of London's Kings College Hospital before snagging his first acting job in 1976 when the producers of Sinbad and the Eye of the Tiger discovered him from a photograph in a newspaper article about men with large feet, and cast him in the role of the minotaur.

In an interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram he joked that he did not get a medal at this ceremony either, a reference to the Star Wars scene in which Luke Skywalker and Han Solo get medals but Chewbacca does not. Mayhew noted in an MTV interview that although Chewbacca does not get a medal in the film, he does get the last line, when he roars.

Faith Healer: the scalding power of memory

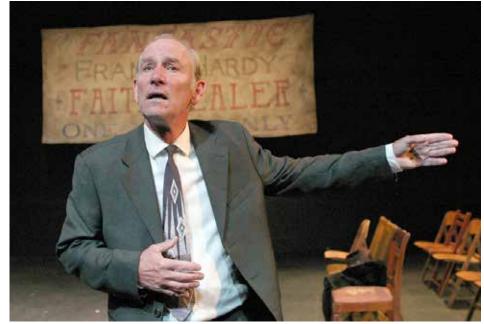

By Catherine Siggins

Although it has been scientifically proven that lying is part and parcel of everyday social interactions and politics, recently it has become so fantastic and prevalent in certain circles (see "alternative facts" or "truthful hyperbole") that it borders on mass gaslighting.

Hence, it seems apt that Ron Sossi, artistic director of Odyssey Theatre Ensembles, has chosen to stage Brian Friel's "Faith Healer", a play that questions the nature of truth and faith, ritual and remembrance, hope and despair, exile and homecoming, selfdoubt and self-belief, isolation and belonging.

Francis "Frank" Hardy (Paul Norwood) says he found from a young age that he had the power to heal. His curse is that it doesn't happen at will; rather it's something supernatural, channeled from the divine. He has made his living traveling from small country town to small country town in Scotland and Wales, one night stands in cold shabby halls, with the promise of miracles for the local inhabitants. He can tell before each performance when it will work and when it won't, which is most of the time. Plagued by doubts and feelings of inadequacy, his only escape is through the liberal consumption of whiskey, mesmeric recitation of all the names of the towns he's visited in Wales and Scotland,

Truth and faith, ritual and remembrance, hope and despair all find their way to the surface in a revival of Brian Friel's play at the Odyssey Theatre and the emotional abuse of his wife, Grace (Diana Cignoni). With them travel Teddy (Ron Bottitta), his loyal Cockney manager and general factotum.

Performed in four gripping monologues, the divergent stories paint a picture of their often-squalid existence together, the details and facts of which vary greatly from person to person. They are all skilled in the art of selfdeception. What we learn with each new telling of the story is that Frank has erased from his narrative his real past, his family history, the death of his child, and any evidence of pain from these events. Grace knows him as a twisted man, who had the need to "adjust, to refashion, to recreate everything around him" including her. It is Teddy who paints the most accurate picture of two co-dependent damaged souls, who fight and love with equal passion, both searching for something they only attain in flashes. A borderline personality, incapable of anything but self-interest, and the other looking for unconditional love, neither finding either. He is however incapable of acknowledging his feeling and why he dedicated his life to them. What emerges is a fascinating but tragic picture of three people on the margins of society, each desperately looking for belonging and to heal their own wounds. Faith Healer's rich language and syntax draws on the sense of ritual and prayer, rooted in the Irish oral tradition of storytelling, poetic and conversational in equal measure. As such, it requires the strongest of performers who can hold your attention, as they stand on the stage alone, weaving their entertaining tales to hide their denial and delusion. Paul Norwood, Diana Cignoni and Ron Bottitta are such a cast, wellbalanced and engaging. Norwood's understated performance charms, as he offers up a man who knows defeat, rather then the mountebank of earlier years. Bottitta is poignant as the beer-swigging cheeky chappie Teddy, and gets the big laughs recounting stories of his previous specialty acts. Cignoni electrifies. She has Grace hopped up with the raw energy of anguish, balanced on the edge of madness, and rather then victimizing her, she gives us a woman who has had a self-realization that will ultimately break her.

Is it the story of a charismatic man who may be the salvation for a suffering public, or who may be a conman who takes advantage of those already vulnerable, to prove some notion of his own superiority? In the end, when all the stories are told, Friel leaves it up to each audience member to decide in which story they have faith.

 Performances of Faith Healer on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. through May 12. Additional weeknight performance scheduled on Wednesday, May 8, at 8 p.m. Discounts are available at select performances for seniors, students and patrons under 30; call theater for details.

Getting behind Garcetti's plan for a greener city...

Have you hiked the hikes? Have you "skooted" the streets? Have you biked the boulevard? What about horsing around in the hills?

I'm currently working on a show for National Geographic that has taken me far and wide, from Cleveland Portland, from to Baltimore to Vermont and Vegas. It's finally nice to spend some time at home. And inbetween chores, a bundle of washing and paying those pesky bills, I recently got to spend a little time up in the hills by the Hollywood sign on a horse.

There's something about being high up surrounded by nature, helmet on and breathing in some of LA's finest air. (hmmm!) Well, it was a clear day and according to Mayor Garcetti's recent green bill and promise it seems our air is about to get cleaner thanks to his initiative, in which he unveiled a sweeping plan for a more sustainable Los Angeles, calling for dramatic changes to the car culture, buildings and air quality.

renewable sources

Taking to Facebook Live, the mayor's plan imagines a city where, by the mid-2030s, that 80% of the cars run on electricity or zero-emission fuel, 80% of the electricity comes from renewable sources and we all drive 2,000 fewer miles each year

It's Time For Tea... Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery. Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily Ye Olde King's Head, 116 Santa Monica Blvd. Santa Monica CA 90401 • Tel: 310 451-1402 than we do now. It's a far cry from today's L.A., where gridlock, tailpipe pollution and smoggy air have come to define a way of life.

Reducing the number of miles people drive could be especially challenging. Garcetti's plan envisions making it possible largely through initiatives already underway, including a build-out of public transit and a proposed congestion charge, not dissimilar London's to city center, that would make driving more expensive in some major traffic areas.

traffic everywhere

Living in Hollywood I can attest that traffic has gotten out of hand, especially in the summer months when the Hollywood Bowl is in play, there's a hit show at the Pantages and they've blocked off part of Hollywood Boulevard for the next major premiere. On some nights it can take me an hour from WEHO to Hollywood. I think ride-sharing apps have a lot to answer for as more cars from out of the city come in and lie in wait for job opportunities. I'm not blaming the drivers, but maybe like the system in place at LAX could work for the congested parts of the city. Building out waiting areas for the cars, wherein they can turn their engines off for a while and wait in turn for their rides. "Bird" scooters" and "Wheels" bikes are definitely helping.

Garcetti sets a target of 28,000 publicly available electricvehicle chargers by 2028 with the city streamlining permitting for chargers, expanding rebate programs and requiring more chargers through the building code. As someone who has driven electric for the past 4 years can tell you how nice it is to not have to stop at gas stations every 200 miles or so.

affordable housing

But Garcetti said he's hopeful because fighting climate change, expanding the economy and improving people's quality of life "go hand in hand." The city's sustainability plan estimates the creation of 300,000 "green jobs" by 2035, on top of the 35,000 green jobs Garcetti says have already been created since he took office.

But I'm left wondering does 'going green' really mean there will be fewer jobs for "real people" in the future? Machines are already taking over, I see banks have ATM machines, supermarkets have more and more selfcheckout tills. Selfdriving cars have now arrived. The future is definitely here and I'm excited about it, but what about the people who are put out of a job, and can't afford the ever-increasing rents? The latter has been worsened in part to Airbnb, where landlords can earn more money renting their places for shorter periods of time, putting long term properties more in demand and low inventories sending monthly rentals skyhigh. Good for realtors, not so good for Joe Bloggs, who just lost his job to a machine. Some food for thought. Mayor Garcetti answered one of my comments his Facebook on Live, addressing this affordable housing problem.

"Los Angeles is facing an unprecedented housing crisis, which threatens our legacy as a city of economic opportunity. Our county has one of the nation's greatest disparities when it comes to what people pay in rent, and what they take home in wages. According to the California Housing Partnership, we need to build 568,255 affordable homes across L.A. County to meet the needs of lowincome Angelenos. To combat this crisis, Mayor Garcetti set an ambitious agenda that focuses on expanding the supply of housing, strengthening rent stabilization, making development more equitable, and keeping Angelenos from falling into homelessness."

I have to say I like Garcetti as mayor and he's heading in the right direction and has some good plans in place. We just have to make sure that we and our children are prepared to train for those jobs that will be with us in the not too distant future.

Meet A Member: Karin Okada

Meet Karin Okada, composer for film and television in West Hollywood. Karin is originally from Tokyo, and has lived all her teen era in U.K., and moved to LA nine years ago.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? I chose LA for cinema. Over the past nine years I have taught at a University, a music production company, and composed music for film, television, theater, web series, commercials, animation, drama, a psychological thriller, and a private and project. corporate I find a great joy creating music in that impact human emotions.

What do you miss most from home?

I don't know how many British people live in LA, but I miss British people.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? My first impression of LA came from "Karate the movie Kid". I was living in Derby at the time and during half term I had nothing to do so I was playing piano all day or I was watching "Karate Kid" or "Gone with the Wind" which was on TV every day. I loved "Daniel- San" and "Mr. Miyagi", but I did not know that this was a story about immigrants and a story about America.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

I have been visiting London since I was 13 until now, but I stay there less than two weeks at a time, and I am usually crying from happiness to see my friends so what can I say? I may not really know what London is all about. I would love to move there one day and work on Hollywood projects remotely. Here in Los Angeles I work with directors in Singapore, China, Australia, Paris, Tokyo, and these remote sessions seem to go far smoother and faster but some directors can and only work locally so maybe I should start working with directors in London while I am still in LA.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? Zankou Chicken It's a Lebanese chain restaurant. A nice producer brought me a chicken kebab from there one day and forced me to eat it with the white garlic paste, which to my surprise I absolutely loved. Now I go at least twice a month when I need a garlic kick in my life. I always ask for extra garlic and tabouli salad instead of cucumber. This is what real people eat in LA. You should not trust anybody who eats sushi in LA!

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Bring sunscreen and write 'British in LA' with it on your arm. I will say hi to you when I spot you!

POPULAR ACCLAIM: Liverpool's Virgil Van Dijk has been in superb form this season

SURPRISE! Van Dijk picks up top PFA gong

VIRGIL was confirmed as PFA Player of the Year for 2019 on Sunday night. The Liverpool defender has enjoyed an excellent campaign as the Reds battle Manchester City for the title. Van Dijk and City star Raheem Sterling appeared to be the frontrunners for the award and the Dutchman took the prize, with Reds teammate Mo Salah tweeting last night: "Congrats big man. Well deserved!" Van Dijk joined

VAN DIJK Liverpool in a £75m deal in 2018 and has played a pivotal role in their title charge. Liverpool have lost just once in the league this season and have conceded the fewest league goals – 20. Van Dijk is also one of four Liverpool players in the PFA Team of the Year. Full-backs Trent Alexander-Arnold and Andy Robertson and forward Sadio Mane also all made the side. Six Manchester City players were picked - Ederson, Aymeric Laporte, Fernandinho, Bernardo Silva, Sergio Aguero and Sterling. Paul Pogba is the only player included who does not play for either of the top two. Sterling, 24, won the PFA Young Player of the Year award, ahead of team-mate Bernardo Silva and Liverpool's Alexander-Arnold. West Ham midfielder Declan Rice, Bournemouth winger David Brooks and Manchester United striker Marcus Rashford were the other contenders.

A loose header from Ainsley Maitland-Niles was almost pounced upon by Goncalo Guedes immediately afterwards but Lacazette's swift equaliser - which came against the run of play helped settle the nerves.

He started the move providing the through ball for Aubameyang before the Gabonese striker cut it back into the middle and Lacazette fired into an empty net. The Frenchman

Even after that, Reds forward Roberto Firmino saw his shot cleared off the line - and then Mohamed Salah struck the follow-up against the post with the goal seemingly at his mercy.

Valencia still caused problems Arsenal though. Rodrigo and Guedes were pests in attack and Petr Cech was called into action to deny Kevin Gameiro from close range in the second half.

Arsenal were wasteful, too - Lacazette missing two glorious chances before Aubameyang eventually made it 3-1 with a well-timed volley at the back post.

Arsenal's hopes of securing Champions League football next season have been lifted by this victory. Three successive defeats the Premier League - one place below Champions League qualification and two points below Chelsea with two games remaining.

Arsenal can of course reach the Champions League by winning this competition, but Chelsea could stand in their way again if they make it to final.

Manager Unai Emery has vast experience in the Europa League, having won it three years in a row with Sevilla in 2014, 2015 and 2016, and he will relish an opportunity to win silverware in his first season in England.

Victory in Spain will also see Arsenal through to their first European final since 2006.

Despite his side not managing an away goal to give them extra hope, Klopp said he is still optimistic for the second leg "because it's football".

"Before this game we had a bigger chance - it is difficult," added the German.

"It is Barcelona and if they can play for counter-attacks, that doesn't help us a lot. It is difficult to avoid - but because it is football we should still try."

Spurs still alive, insists Poch

Tottenham Hotspur are still "alive" in their Champions League semi-final despite losing 1-0 at home to Ajax in the first leg, says manager Mauricio Pochettino.

Donny van de Beek's goal gave the Dutch side victory over a lacklustre Spurs in north London on Tuesday.

"It's going to be difficult, but it's still open," said Pochettino.

"It's about preparing for the second leg. We will try to win. It will be tough for us, but also tough for them."

History is against Spurs as only one of the 17 previous teams to lose a home first leg of a European Cup or Champions League semifinal has progressed into the final.

The Premier League side paid the price for a slow start, with midfielder Van de Beek scoring the only goal on 15 minutes.

"I think the attitude was there, but we didn't

"The second half was much better, we forced them to play deeper. We pressed in the way we wanted to press. The second half gave us hope for the second leg."

And the Argentine took responsibility for his side's early struggle, acknowledging that a change of shape from a five-man defence to a back four aided his side.

"I can accept it was a mistake, the shape we used," he told BT Sport. "But there were not too many options. I am not happy - you cannot guess what happens if we play in a different way.

"It was the not the shape that conceded the goal. Our approach to the game was not good. I am the manager so I have responsibility."

In addition, Pochettino

Pedro scored an away Thursday's second leg.

There was a great deal of surprise when the Chelsea team-sheet showed Hazard's name among the substitutes.

Manager Maurizio Sarri told BT Sport that he rested his 19-goal forward because of fixture congestion, with the Belgian having played 10 matches in a row. So it was a penny for Hazard's thoughts when he was shown watching his team struggle and a goal down after 23 minutes.

However, Sarri did not rush on his key attacker and instead kept faith with what he had on the pitch, and was repaid with an excellent display thereafter.

Ruben Loftus-Cheek, brought back into the XI, led the fightback. After Pedro went close with a strike that drifted past Kevin Trapp's left-hand post, the England player kept the goalkeeper on his toes with a strike that also for the goal. Eintracht's defenders lost possession after dawdling on the ball in the area, and Loftus-Cheek carved out an opening for Pedro to do the rest.

The Blues midfielder went close twice more, first with an effort that swept over the bar and then with a stinging shot with the outside of his boot that tested Trapp.

Brazilian Luiz went even closer with an blockbuster of a free-kick that dipped wickedly and crashed off Trapp's bar.

They should have won the game but will no doubt be content with how they began their ninth major European semi-final since the Roman Abramovich era began in 2003.

Messi night as Barcelona bury Reds

A LIONEL MESSI-INSPIRED Barcelona humbled Liverpool 3-0 in the Champions Leagu semi final, leaving Jurgen Klopp's men with a mountain to climb in the second leg at Anfield.

A goal from Luis Suarez and two from Barca's Argentine talisman separated the two sides, and although the result seemed a little harsh given their parity in possession, there is little doubt that Barca's clinical edge gave them a deserved victory.

Klopp remained upbeat but candid after the match, telling reporters his side produced their best Champions League away performance for two seasons - despite the lopsided result.

Suarez gave Barca a first-half lead in the semi-final first leg, but the Reds were on top after the break.

However, Lionel Messi struck twice late on - including a stunning free-kick - to give his side a clear advantage to take to Anfield on Tuesday.

"I don't know if we can play much better," said Klopp.

"I think it was the best away game in the Champions League not only this year, last year included.

"I told the boys I'm proud of how we played. Against a side like this, playing this kind of football, I was completely happy.

"In the end, nobody is really interested probably only football nerds will think about it - because it was about the result, and we lost 3-0.

"I can work really well with this game. I will use this game to show the boys what is possible. It was a brave performance that was very passionate, very lively and, in a lot of moments, creative and direct."

In the second half at the Nou Camp on Wednesday, Liverpool - who were beaten by Real Madrid in last season's final - had more possession than Barca (57.4%), made more passes (284 compared to 217) and had more shots on target (four compared to three).

Alexandre Lacazette scored twice as Arsenal came from behind at Emirates Stadium to win the first leg of their Europa League semifinal against Valencia on Thursday.

Mouctar Diakhaby's header put Valencia in front before Lacazette slotted in Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang's pass.

The Frenchman nodded in Granit Xhaka's cross seven minutes later to make it 2-1 before half-time. And Aubameyang's late volley ensured Arsenal LACAZETTE: double for Arsenal Thursday night take a two-goal lead to semi-final defeat a Spain. they were know Lacazette should have scored a hat-trick - he fluffed a header from six yards out in the second half and was later denied by goalkeeper Neto on two occasions.

But Arsenal will travel to Valencia for the second leg next Thursday, hoping to avoid a second successive semi-final defeat after they were knocked out by eventual winners Atletico Madrid last year.

Arsenal started sloppily in London and Ezequiel Garay's miss from a few yards out was an early warning.
