MAY ENDS IN JUNE

■ PM agrees departure timetable after secret meeting with top Tories

■ Boris Johnson confirms he is a contender for Number 10

Theresa May has promised to set a timetable for the election of her successor after the next Brexit vote in the first week of June.

The agreement follows a meeting between the prime minister and senior Tory MPs who are demanding a date for her departure from Downing Street.

If she loses the vote on her Brexit plan, already rejected three times, sources said she would resign.

Meanwhile, Boris Johnson has said he will run for leader once Mrs May goes.

increasing pressure

The prime minister survived a confidence vote by Conservative MPs at the end of last year and party rules mean she cannot formally be challenged again until December.

But Mrs May has come under increasing pressure to leave Downing Street this summer, amid the Brexit impasse and poor results for the Conservatives in the recent local elections in England.

Senior sources said it was "inconceivable" the prime minister could remain in office if MPs rejected her Brexit plans for a fourth time.

The timetable for May's depature was revealed in a short formal letter from Sir Graham Brady to Tory MPs this week which all but marks the end of Theresa May's premiership and the beginning of the official hunt for the next leader of the country.

After the lines in the short note restate the prime minister's determination to get Brexit done, it confirms in black and white that after the next big vote, in the first week of June, the prime minister will make plans with the party for choosing a successor.

Right now, the expectation is that vote will be lost (although it is not impossible, of course, that Number 10 could turn it round). And even though the letter doesn't spell it out, it is understdood that if May's Brexit plan is defeated again, she will announce she is going.

THERESA MAY: the Prime Minister will make one final effort to get her Brexit deal approved next month

The chairman of the 1922 committee of Conservative MPs, Sir Graham Brady, said he had reached an agreement over the prime minister's future during "very frank" talks in Parliament.

He said the committee's executive and Mrs May would meet again to discuss her future following the first debate and vote on the Withdrawal Agreement Bill in the week beginning 3 June.

Sir Graham said there was now "greater clarity" about the situation.

Asked if that meant the prime minister would quit immediately if MPs rejected her Brexit plans once more, he said that scenario went "beyond" what had been agreed.

MPs have rejected the prime minister's Brexit agreement with the EU three times.

But she will have another go at gaining their support in the week beginning 3 June, when the Commons votes for the first time on the EU Withdrawal Agreement Bill - legislation needed to implement her deal with the EU.

Former foreign secretary Boris Johnson has joined the growing list of Conservatives who say they will stand for leader when Mrs May announces her departure.

He told a business conference in Manchester: "Of course I am going to go for it."

Johnson will compete for top job

■ Former Foreign Secretary will be among the front runners in a crowded field following May's expected departure said he will run for the Conservative Party leadership after Theresa May stands down.

Asked at a business event in Manchester if he would be a candidate, the former foreign secretary replied: "Of course I'm going to go for it."

Mrs May has said she will resign once MPs back her Brexit deal.

A decision on her exit timetable will now take place after the House of Commons votes on her Brexit bill early next month.

Sir Graham Brady, chairman of the 1922 Committee of backbench Conservative MPs. made the announcement following a meeting prime between the minister and his committee's executive on Thursday. He said it would bring "greater clarity" to Mrs May's intentions.

Several senior Conservatives expected to enter the contest for the leadership, with the winner also becoming prime minister.

Asked at the British Insurance Brokers' Association conference in Manchester whether he wanted to be in charge of his party, former London mayor Mr Johnson said: "I'm going to go for it. Of course I'm going to go for it. I don't think that is any particular secret to anybody. But you know there is no vacancy at present."

Mrs May's withdrawal agreement with the EU has been rejected three times by the Commons. And she has come under increasing pressure to go after the Conservatives lost more than 1,300 councillors in recent local elections.

Many Conservative MPs are also unhappy that Mrs May is holding cross-party talks with Labour in an effort to her withdrawal agreement through the Commons.

Mr Johnson, a leading Brexiteer who quit the cabinet last year over the terms of the agreement, said: "I do think there's been a real lack of grip and dynamism in the we approached these talks [with the

The MP for Uxbridge and South Ruislip added: "We've failed over the last three years to put forward a convincing narrative about how we can make sense of Brexit and how to exploit the opportunities of Brexit."

In a Conservative leadership contest, MPs hold a series of ballots, with the candidate gaining the fewest votes eliminated at each stage.

Once the field is reduced to two, the winner is chosen by a vote of party members. This wider vote did not occur in 2016, when Mrs May became leader,

"We've failed over the last three years to put forward a convincing narrative about how we can make sense of Brexit and how to exploit the opportunities of Brexit." - Boris Johnson after the second-placed candidate among MPs - Mrs Leadsom - stood aside.

International Development Secretary Rory Stewart and former work and pensions secretary Esther McVey have announced they will run and Commons leader Andrea Leadsom has said she is "considering" doing so.

Other widely touted possible contenders include former and current members of the cabinet, including Michael Gove, Amber Rudd. Saiid Javid, Dominic Raab, Jeremy Hunt, Penny Mordaunt and Liz Truss.

Publisher William Collins has announced that the biography of David Cameron - whom Mrs May replaced at Conservative leader and prime minister following the EU referendum - will be released in September.

British stagger to top of league for getting plastered

BRITISH drinkers are more likely to get drunk than other nationalities, a new survey has revealed.

We reported getting sozzled on average 51.1 times in 12 months – almost once a week, the report featuring 36 countries found. Professor Adam Winstock, founder of

The diners, who were eating at the bar, were lucky enough to be served "something spectacular" and ordered a second bottle so clearly enjoyed it, according to Mr Beckett.

"At that kind of level you're into a rarity, a flavour profile you won't find anywhere else," he said.

They did not realise they had quaffed a £4,500 bottle, while the second bottle they asked for was unavailable.

Mr Beckett said the staff member involved was "brilliant, and we know she is brilliant" so there was no point criticising her for a one-off mistake.

"I am going to tease her for this when she stops being so mortified," he added.

According to the Cult Wines online tasting guide, only 500 cases of the 2001 Chateau le Pin Pomerol were made.

It describes the vintage as a "tremendous effort", adding: "Its deep ruby/plum/purple colour is accompanied by an extraordinary perfume of creme de cassis, cherry liqueur, plums, liquorice, caramel, and sweet toast."

Reviews on the vivino. com website say the wine is "legendary" and "mythical".

the Global Drug Survey, said while fewer were drinking, those who did were doing so in a potentially harmful way.

English-speaking countries led the way for drunkenness, with USA, Canada the and Australia closely following the UK. Researchers in London surveyed 5,400 people in the UK and more than 120,000 abroad over two months last year. Wednesday's report, the eighth, claims to be the largest drug survey in the world. Prof Winstock said in the UK "we end up getting drunk as the point of the evening.

emergency treatment

"Until culture changes and we become more European and moderate in our drinking, we might have to bite the bullet and think about how to advise people to get drunk drinking

NHS guidelines say we should not drink more than 14 units a week, around six pints of beer. The survey found the UK is second behind Australia in those seeking emergency treatment after alcohol use in the last 12 months, with 3.7 per cent of respondents. Some 18.5 per cent of UK drinkers regretted their drinking sessions, compared with 20 per cent globally. But the data showed that in general people "overwhelmingly like getting drunk". Brexit, the report said: "The EU may see the UK leaving as positive in terms of reducing the contagion of 'le binge'."

The Alcohol I n f o r m a t i o n Partnership, funded by the drinks industry, slammed the survey, saying we are "drinking less than many of our European neighbours" and are "choosing fewer, better quality drinks".

The Rolling Stones singer, 75, underwent heart surgery just six weeks ago, forcing the group to cancel 17 scheduled concerts. Sir Mick had to have a heart valve replaced during the procedure in New York last month. But he is clearly now raring to get back on the road again, with the band set to announce their rescheduled gigs this week. A US insider said: "The band will announce the rescheduled dates in the coming days.

"They are all chomping at the bit to get going again. Mick feels fit as a fiddle and wants to get the show on the road."

TV axes Jeremy Kyle Show after death of participant

■ Broadcaster decides to ditch programme permanently after death of guest Steve Dymond

ONE of Britain's most popular daytime television programs was canceled on Wednesday, following the death of a guest who failed a liedetector test trying to prove that he had been faithful to his girlfriend.

"Given the gravity of recent events we have decided to end production of 'The Jeremy Kyle Show," Carolyn McCall, the chief executive of the show's broadcaster, ITV, said in a statement.

The incident has caused intense debate about whether confrontational talk shows have any place on British TV, and on Wednesday the chairman of the Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Committee of Parliament, Damian Collins, announced the start of an independent review of the responsibility that TV companies have to protect participants in reality shows.

But some former guests have defended the show, saying it was being blamed unfairly for a tragedy and that the criticism raised issues of Steve Dymond was found dead last week after failing a lie-detector test on the long-running daytime programme, prompting the show to be taken off air on Monday. Withing 48 hours Carolyn McCall, ITV's chief executive, confirmed the show would not be returning. She said: "Given the gravity of recent events we have decided to end production of The Jeremy Kyle Show. The Jeremy Kyle Show has had a loyal audience and has been made by a dedicated production team for 14 years, but now is the right time for the show to end.

"Everyone at ITV's thoughts and sympathies are with the family and friends of Steve Dymond."

The show has run for over 14 years and attracts about a million viewers per episode. But the suspension did not stop an outcry from politicians and therapists who said it was time to cancel the show.

Dymond appeared on the show last week after the 63-year-old was accused of infidelity by his fiancee. The episode has not been broadcast.

One audience member told the BBC that Dymond was emotional. "He was crying from the beginning and he was so convinced he was going to pass this test," said Babette Lucas-Marriott. "Jeremy brings out the lie-detector test and asked the audience who thinks he's going to pass and 99% of the audience put their hand "ID"

CONTROVERSIAL: Jeremy Kyle has been likened to the Jerry Springer in the US

Kyle then told Dymond that he had failed the polygraph test.

Lucas-Marriott said: "You just saw him collapse to the ground. He couldn't believe what he'd heard. He was begging his fiancee for forgiveness ... They were just completely and utterly devastated. It was clear that he'd just lost his entire life with his fiancee there."

The pair split up and Dymond was found dead several days later. Police are not treating the death as suspicious.

SUICIDE DEATH: Steve Dymond

That show ruined my life!

■ Former Jeremy Kyle guest adds voice to chorus of condemnation

THE SUICDE of a guest on the Jeremy Kyle show prompted a Midlands man – dubbed the show's most hated guest ever – to label the TV program as "the worst thing that has ever happened in my life."

Dwayne Davison's told reporters this week that his appearance on the Jeremy Kyle Show in 2014 resulted in him struggling to find regular employment, and being mocked in the street, leading to a suicide attempted after sustained public shaming.

"It's the worst thing that has ever happened in my life," Davison said.
"They put the spoon in and stirred around my whole life." He said the show was designed to provoke participants into causing offence, footage was edited to portray them in an unflattering light, and any attempt at aftercare by the production team was undone by the way footage was used.

Davison, 27, approached the Guardian to describe how the attention he had received as a result of an appearance five years ago, sustained by the show's constant repeats and social media, pushed him to the brink.

"I've had loads and loads of abuse and in 2018 I decided I'd had enough," he said. "My girlfriend had some toothache medication, I took a load of it, and I can't remember the rest. A few hours later my girlfriend came upstairs and she called the ambulance."

He had stopped breathing but paramedics were able to revive him: "At the hospital they said I would have died. I know this is putting responsibility on other places but I 100% put it on that show. That show has ruined my life. It's evil."

Davison was in his early 20s, unemployed and living in Nottingham when he become involved with the programme in 2014. He was in a relationship with an older woman and was convinced she had cheated on him. Seeing the show's offer of a free lie-detector test to set the record straight, they texted the programme. What blindsided them was the speed with which events took place. A producer rang back and invited them to travel up to the show's filming base in Salford.

he said. "You don't have time to think about it or phone your family. Once you're at the hotel, you feel you have to do the show. My mum begged me not to go on."

Davison said was never asked by the show's producers whether he struggled with mental health issues before appearing on the programme, and he signed a contract without being given time to read it.

He admitted came across as surly and aggressive on the programme, swearing and doubting the words of his partner, while being accused of shoving a fellow guest and being rude to staff. He said this was a result of being kept in a backstage room largely on his own for most a day before filming began. In his telling, he was provoked by Kyle and the producers. "They tell you over and over again when you're backstage that Jeremy hates people who don't talk."

He said he was advised to wear a tracksuit rather than jeans to fit the desired image. "They're good at manipulating – it's almost magic what they do."

He continued: "These are things that people don't understand. They're watching thinking I'm evil and bad. They don't get to see why I'm so riled up." Later he said: "I wouldn't want to talk to the person they portrayed on that show.

After complaining to producers about his treatment, he was invited back on the show the following year. He was "begged" to return, he said, but he accepted he made the decision freely. "I came on to try and redeem myself but he [Kyle] saw I was calm, so he kept trying to prod and poke. It's human bearbaiting and he knows just how to provoke a response."

Meet A Member: Laila Dupuy

Meet Laila Dupuy from London to LA 1 year ago to launch her start up, Kitchin Table in USA.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

We moved to LA as we had a massive interest for our app Kitchin Table, which is the Airbnb for coworking enabling women, women to host their coworking/ ideal collaborative space at home. It helps women turn their home into a business and meet local women with similar interest and skills and grow their local community, please check us out on kitchintable.com.

I was a freelance solicitor in London and wanted to go back to work after having kids but the workforce was not welcoming so I started freelancing. That was lonely and I missed collaborative creative input and that sense of community that comes from working in an office, but places like We Work were too expensive and I got bored at my local Pret A Manger (a popular sandwich/salad and coffee chain in the UK). So I started hosting women at home and it was brilliant, and it had a viral effect across London and the UK. We were featured in the Guardian, Telegraph, Financial Times and various start-up publications, We even got invited to join a cross Parliamentary group for women in Enterprise. Last spring we won one of the most promising star ups in South by South West (SXSW) and the reaction in the USA was amazing, we decided to move to LA where the interest generated was huge.

What do you miss most from home?

However, having said all that about Pret, now I really miss Pret! In particular the ease of it, their coconut flat white, contactless payment and the parks! The trees, the massive oak trees! I also have a dog who I know really misses being let off the lead! I also really miss civilized drivers who actually let you through when you signal and don't honk their horn and raise their hands in utter despair! Still listen to LBC though... Brexit obsessed.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? My first impression is that people are a little rude, but then as I got to know them I realised that it is just their way, they are different and that abruptness is not rudeness but an intrinsic characteristic of LA as is a green juice, leggings and yoga mats! Easy to embrace the healthy lifestyle here.

I find the biggest difference is people are not so vested in their local community. In the UK we know our grocer, butcher, corner shop, but because people live such an insular life here, where their car is their kingdom, their neighbours are not so important. As such we have had to adapt the message for Kitchin Table. In the UK it's appeal was local women getting together to cowork in a host's home and get to know each other, but here in LA its more events-based with speakers.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? My hidden gem is anywhere that does good English Breakfast tea, so that is Alfred's just off of Melrose and a few other chains. Plus there is a tiny little corner shop called Rose Cafe on Overland and Pico that is small independent grocery shop run by a lovely gentleman.

What would suggest to others who are thinking about making the here?

My suggestion would be not to look for a place to live according its walkability, because you may think you will walk but you won't.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

When you move do not try and meet clones of your friends at home. Be receptive to the nuances of a new society and city embrace the and differences of people.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

Check out the app KitchinTable, which is available on iOS and Android. Joining Kitchin Table is free requires monthly commitment, it also allows you to turn your home into a revenue source.

Through attending and hosting events on Kitchin Table I have met so many amazing women in Los Angles and have connected with women from all over the city that I would have never met otherwise, our tag line is "who will you meet next?" We are currently offering hosts $50 dollar amazon voucher to host their first event in LA or the UK email me at laila@kitchintable. com if you wish to learn more.

ARIES: Now you seem to be in recess time. This does not mean you cannot pay attention to your life overall. You can thrive in this energy and you can make a lot of headway if you put your mind into it. This is just what you have wanted for some time.

TAURUS: So if you feel like reaching out and asking someone for a helping hand in any area this is the time to go for it, because the very powerful (although unpredictable) planet Uranus is living in your life. Just do not panic when things do not go the way you expect. Happy Birthday! GEM INI: Time to deal with what has been on your mind recently, so the faster you take this in hand the better will be the results. With the end of your personal old year come new opportunities to own up to past mistakes and feel good in your own skin.

CANCER: A positive beginning next week would be to make peace or amends with anyone or anything that has caused you upset. You moon children like to hide away in your own space sometimes. Don't indulge yourself this week ahead.

LEO: Any trip taken before the end of this month will not be as planned so take a rain check and a later trip. With this in mind plan for a better time frame. Family matters are in the limelight these next few days. Life is looking better.

VIRGO: If any area of life currently is not going as smoothly as you expect, you can let go of worry about the outcome, all will be well by month's end. Be confident when asked for your advice or opinion in a family situation. You might be feeling restless for a few days.

LIBRA: The main lesson of this month is that it's not the time to begin anything you will not have time to finish up. Your conscience will not allow you to take chances so listen to it well. Expect someone to contact you from your past.

SCORPIO: Now that Uranus is sitting staring at you from your opposite sign Taurus you can expect the unexpected. This should not make you worried, however as you are a creature of habit it may spook you a little. Everything happens for a reason. Trust the process.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is not very proactive in your life just now. Since he is on vacation for a few weeks you should not just act on your intuition. This means go with the flow and do not make any big decisions for a while.

CAPRICORN: Your boss Saturn has brought a lot of the past up for you. Pluto has also been visiting you. This can be difficult or even downright unfair some times, however soon you will see that what has transpired has cleared away a lot of dead wood.

AQUARIUS: While your boss Uranus was in Aries he caused some problems, not only for you but others he affects in the world. Now he has moved into more mellow Taurus, there is a light at the end of the tunnel.

PISCES: You may be feeling restless these past couple of weeks, however now the sun is in Taurus life should be pleasant. You are in some kind of a rut that is up to you to get out of. Stepping out of your comfort zone will help.

Oversharing: is the tide finally turning?

be finally turning when it comes to oversharing.

I've noticed that many people have started to think first, and sharing a little less. I am sure in part because we now know how companies like Cambridge Analytica use the information. I can't quite put my finger on when or why sharing every tiny detail of your life became so acceptable; media social definitely exacerbated the problem but I think reality TV shows have a lot to answer for as well. As a teenager I was fascinated by MTVs "The Real World", which is so tame in comparison to what is broadcast today. These platforms have a huge

I think the tide might influence on society, making us believe that it is perfectly normal to share every detail of our lives with the outside world.

Don't get me wrong, I too am guilty of this act, and it certainly does come in handy sometimes -when I see someone has checked into a restaurant I want to try, I will text them and ask how it was. And only last month I saw that a friend went to the gym; so the next time I spoke to them I was able to ask if I could join them at some point, (I'm ashamed to say I haven't been yet). My responses were all done in a more personal way. Mainly because I didn't want to announce my intentions to the world,

It's Time For Tea...

Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery. Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily but perhaps if I had I would have the start of a six-pack by now? I think the real issue that has arisen

with us all being comfortable with blurting anything and everything out is that people have lost their sense of boundaries, particularly those of others. I know someone who announced the birth of a baby on social media before the parents got the chance. I even had a friend who posted my relationship status, which wasn't the end of the world, but it certainly ruffled my feathers. I think the rule of thumb should be to share your news and not that of others, unless asked. And try to target your content properly. I am not great at this (yet), I often catch myself boring people with the mundane details of being stuck in a traffic jam or reciting the details of a crazy dream I had the night before. To be fair this can often be a result of feeling insecure or anxious, but I don't think it would hurt any of us to pause and ask ourselves " why are we telling them this?" and if there is no good reason then we are more than likely oversharing.

you've been following the news in the UK you'll be aware that this week saw yet another suicide of a reality TV guest on the popular Jeremy Kyle show. And then there is Selena Gomez, (who has over 150 million Instagram followers) declaring that 'social media is terrible for our generation' raising her concerns about online bullying, This really got me wondering whether it is actually 'good to

I don't think talking is a bad thing – for lots of people it is effective Don't use social media less. Use it more intentionally. Follow people who inspire and motivate you. Engage with experts you can learn from. Create genuine, positive friendships. Just stop mindlessly scrolling, complaining, hating and engaging in negativity and bitterness.

therapy - as long as you are selective and heed the warning 'don't talk to strangers'. Problem is most people don't or won't heed that warning. And here I am sharing my innermost thoughts.....I am aware this forum opens me up to public criticism however I trust most of our readers have better manners and will deliver any responses in a pleasant way....

This topic dovetails nicely with Sandro's commentary last week on people not being able to behave at the cinema. Is it all related? Have we all become so accustomed to 'letting it all hang out' as my parents might have put it, that we've lost all sense of what is appropriate, and what is not?

I also spotted this poignant post on a friend's profile the other day: "Don't use social media less. Use it more intentionally. Follow people who inspire and motivate you. Engage with experts you can learn from. Create genuine, positive friendships. Just stop mindlessly scrolling, complaining, hating and engaging in negativity bitterness."

Love it or hate it, we need it all to some degree I guess, but it just comes down to the reasons behind it. It also crosses my mind that I'm just a bit old-fashioned and should perhaps accept that this is how the modern world prefers to interact.

What do you think? I am sure many of you have strong opinions on this topic so feel free to drop us a line at info@ britsin.la....we always love to hear from you!

Kelly O: secret plan to quit U.S to become an X Factor judge in the UK?

Kelly Osborne hinted she could be a judge on the next X Factor series, fueling rumors she is quitting the U.S for a job in the UK.

The TV star discussed "X Factor" speculation while appearing on ITV's popular breakfast show Lorraine this week.

Osbourne told host Lorraine Kelly that she didn't think she'd be very good as a judge on the show. However, rumors suggest she is desperate to land the prime position on the hit.

She then teased that she would really love to be back in the UK.

Oo-er!

If Kelly was an X Factor judge, she would follow mum Sharon Osbourne, who was on the panel for several series of the singing talent show.

Ozzy Osbourne's daughter told Lorraine: "I get the giggles a lot so I don't know if I would be that good at it.

"I would just laugh when I am uncomfortable, especially in the audition process.

"There is this one amazing vid of my mum with Louis Walsh where she gets the giggles... and falls off her chair.

That would be me the whole time so I don't know if I would be any good at it."

When Lorraine pointed out the role would mean she could live in the UK for a while though, she added: "I would love that. I really would."

That response deserves one more "Oo-er" for the road!

Taron absolutely nails Elton in Rocket Man!

The Welsh actor Taron Egerton gave listeners their first taste of the soundtrack from the upcoming film Rocket Man with his take on 1972 classic of the same name... and he pulled it off to a T!

Fans of 'Our 'Elt who were concerned whether Egerton could fill their idol's glittery platform shoes can rest assured, as the new music video from the film finds the actor in soulful voice crooning one of John's signature hits.

The video released Thursday by Paramount Pictures features clips of Egerton performing the classic in a studio, in the longest and most detailed look yet at what is billed as an "epic musical fantasy" as opposed to a biopic, the film also stars Jamie Bell as lyricist Bernie Taupin, Bryce Dallas Howard as John's mother Sheila and Richard Madden as John's manager and lover, John Reid.

Speaking to Rolling Stone, Elton said he was adamant that Egerton record his own interpretations of his songs songs instead of lip-syncing to the original versions, as Rami Malek did as Freddie Mercury in 2018's "Bohemian Rhapsody."

"It was so important that the music I composed and recorded had to be sung by Taron," Elton said. "Getting the music right was the most important thing, as the songs in the film are integral to the story."

Like "Rhapsody," "Rocketman" has faced pre-release scrutiny as a film about a real-life queer icon starring an actor who identifies as straight.

Egerton shrugged off those concerns last week in an interview with Attitude, a British LGBTQ news outlet

"I would not have played this character if: one, I wasn't allowed to show Elton being a nightmare, because he has been; two, if we weren't able to explore his drinkand-drug addiction because I don't think you can tell a story without it; and three, if I didn't think we could make a film that the gay community would watch and feel a sense of ownership over,"he said. "What right do I have to play Elton John if I am not going to go the same lengths to portray a gay relationship as a gay actor would?"

"Rocketman," starring Egerton as Elton John and due out May 31.

City facing Champions League ban over FFF?

want Manchester City to be banned from the Champions League for a season if they are found guilty of breaking financial rules.

However, according to one well-placed source, a final decision is yet to be made by chief investigator Yves Leterme.

The former Belgian prime minister, chairman of the investigatory panel investigators of Uefa's independent financial control board, is set to make a recommendation this week.

> With no vote in such cases, the final say lies with him but several of his colleagues are understood to have firmly expressed the view at a recent meeting that a season-long ban would be a suitable punishment if City are found guilty.

Leterme and his team have been looking at evidence first uncovered in a series of leaks published by the German newspaper Der Spiegel last year.

The reports alleged that Manchester City had broken Financial Fair Play regulations by inflating the value of multimillion-pound sponsorship deal. City were fined £49m in 2014 for a previous breach of regulations.

The Premier League champions denied any wrongdoing, and Uefa said it could not comment on an ongoing investigation, but according to the New York Times, investigators now want rules upheld and City punished with Uefa's adjudicatory chamber would have decide whether it agreed with any recommendation from Leterme expected in the next 48 hours although it is unlikely to apply to next season's competition because City could appeal, and even take their case to the Court of Arbitration for Sport.

But it would still be a major blow for a club desperate to win Europe's most prestigious club competition for the first time, and who could also soon face a transfer ban, with the FA, Premier League and Fifa also currently investigating

City over their signing of youth players.

A statement from Manchester City said: "Manchester City FC is fully cooperating in good faith with the CFCB IC's [Club Financial Control Body Investigatory Chamber] ongoing investigation.

"In doing so the club is reliant on both the CFCB IC's independence and commitment to due process; and on Uefa's commitment of the 7 March that it 'will make no further comment on the matter while the investigation is ongoing'.

Liverpool and Spurs in plea for more final tickets

Liverpool and Tottenham supporters' groups have called on Champions League sponsors to return tickets so more fans can attend the final on 1 June.

The Premier League clubs have been allocated 33.286 of the 68.000 tickets for the Madrid final.

Spirit of Shankly and Tottenham Hotspur Supporters' Trust called on eight major sponsors to 'redress the balance".

The groups said the move would "lift the occasion by increasing the number of passionate fans inside the stadium".

The eight companies named in a joint statement issued by Spirit of Shankly and Tottenham Hotspur Trust are Supporters' Nissan, Playstation, Gazprom, PepsiCo, Banco Santander, Mastercard, Heineken and Expedia Group.

Mastercard said sponsorship gives the "access to company exclusive opportunities to share with fans", such as being a Champions League mascot or attending fixtures during the season and including the final.

"Given the proximity to the final, all our and our partner promotions and offers have now closed, with tickets allocated," Mastercard said.

None of the other seven sponsors responded to media inquiries.

In March, Uefa's website said the two finalists would receive 17,000 tickets each, while 4,000 would be sold to fans worldwide via the Uefa website.

The remaining 30,000 seats at the Wanda Metropolitano Stadium would go to the local organising committee, Uefa, national associations, commercial partners, broadcasters and to corporate hospitality packages.

Sunderland moved a step closer to an immediate return to the Championship as they saw off Portsmouth to reach the League One play-off final on Thursday.

After a goalless and fractious second leg, Chris Maguire's volley from the first leg at the Stadium of Light was enough to get them to Wemblev.

It was revenge for the Black Cats, who lost the Checkatrade Trophy final on penalties to the same opposition in March.

A tempestuous and scrappy game failed to live up to the hype and followed a similar pattern to the first leg in terms of a lack of chances at either end.

There was ill-discipline throughout on a night when referee Peter showed six Bankes yellow cards.

At one stage, frustrations among the capacity crowd threatened to spill on to the pitch when Sunderland full-back Luke O'Nien accidentally landed in the front rows of touchline seating when trying to keep the ball in play and then had to be Sunderland edge Pompey to reach playoff final dragged away by teammates from a spectator.

> After the match, Black Cats midfielder Lee Cattermole said his team-mate O'Nien was "punched in the back" by the fan, although the 24-year-old played it down as "just a bit of handbags".

On the pitch, two fine saves by Jon McLaughlin in either half from Gareth Evans and James Vaughan headers, and Matt Clarke nodding a corner on to the crossbar, were the closest Pompey came to drawing level on aggregate.

Lamps leads the way as Rams stun Leeds

Substitute Jack Marriott was the hero as Derby stunned Leeds to set up a Championship playoff final against Aston Villa after a wild night at Elland Road on Tuesday.

The hosts took the lead on the night to go 2-0 up on aggregate when Stuart Dallas tapped in after Liam Cooper's header had hit the post.

But Marriott levelled with his first touch before half-time after a horrendous mix-up at the back between Cooper and keeper Kiko Casilla.

Frank Lampard's side turned the tie on its head after the break through Mason Mount and a Harry Wilson penalty, only for Dallas to drift in and fire Leeds back level on aggregate.

Leeds defender Gaetano Berardi was then sent off for a poor challenge on Bradley Johnson before Marriott won it late on with a composed finish.

There was still time for Derby defender Scott Malone to join Berardi in being dismissed after collecting a second booking in time added on.

For Leeds, who finished third in the table, defeat means their spell outside the top flight will stretch to a 16th year.

Derby, meanwhile, become the first team to lose the first leg of a Championship play-off semi-final at home and go on to reach the final meaning Lampard's first season in management will end at Wembley.

There had been no indication of what would transpire on this crazy night in West Yorkshire when Dallas put Leeds in front.

They had won all three of the previous meetings between the two sides this season by an aggregate of 7-1 and Derby looked short of ideas when they did manage to launch any attacks.

With four games of the regular season to go, Leeds had been in the driving seat to win automatic promotion after a hugely impressive season under veteran Argentine head coach Marcelo Bielsa.

However, they suffered a shock home defeat by strugglers Wigan on Good Friday before losing at Brentford three days later as their three-point lead over Sheffield United turned into a three-point deficit that they were unable to overturn.

With many fans fearing their moment had passed, they put in an assured performance at Pride Park in the first leg to come into this game with a one goal advantage but, once more, they could not finish the job.

Bielsa reflected that the defeat by Wigan that took their momentum away had been "the decision of God".

And Lampard hailed the result after the final whistle, telling reporters it ranked up there with his greatest achievements in the game.

It is Lampard's first season as a manager, after retiring in 2017.

"In terms of personal achievement, the feeling is as much as I've had in football," said the 40-year-old.

"It's not the personal achievement of being able to win stuff at

BRIGHT START: this is Frank Lampard's first season in management Chelsea, but in terms of how I feel right now, it's up there.

"I was fortunate in my playing career in the Champions League, winning leagues.

"But when you come here at the start of the season and you feel the club and the fans and the position the club were in, to be here tonight, they're heroes," Lampard added on BBC Radio Derby.

United to back Solskjaer in next transfer market

Ole Gunnar Solskjaer will get the financial backing to bring success back to Manchester United, says executive vice-chairman Ed Woodward.

United finished sixth in the Premier League this season.

"The strength of our business means we have the financial resources to continue to provide backing for the manager and creating success on the pitch," said Woodward.

"This as ever remains our number one goal."

Solskjaer took over as caretaker United boss in December following the sacking of Jose Mourinho and the club went on a run of 11 games without defeat, of which they won 10.

32 points adrift

However, after the Norwegian was appointed on a permanent basis in March, his side's form collapsed and they finished five points off the top four having won only two of their last nine games.

Solskjaer, whose side were 32 points adrift of champions Manchester City, has said it will "take a long time" for Manchester United to challenge for the Premier League title again.

The Old Trafford club last won the title in 2012-13, in Sir Alex Ferguson's last season in charge, while it is now two seasons without a trophy after the Europa League and League Cup triumphs in 2016-17.

'resolute'

"While the last few weeks were disappointing, we delighted are to confirmed the appointment of Ole as our manager on a threecontract," Woodward.

"Everyone at the club - the board, the manager, the squad and all the staff are resolute in our desire to get United back to the top of English football, we continually look to improve staff on and off the pitch to achieve this."

Jose weighs in

But former United boss Jose Mourinho aimed a thinly-veiled swipe at his successor this week, saying that "nice guy" football managers can end up becoming a "puppet" at their club.

The Portuguese manager was sacked in December and replaced by Solskjaer before the Norwegian's appointment was made permanent three months later.

"I don't want to be the nice guy," Mourinho told

"Because the nice guy, after three months, is a puppet and that doesn't end well."

He added: "When you are almost alone, in that you don't have the support of the club close to you, while certain players go somewhat against the coach, who is the nice guy?"

SOLSKJAER: saw United collapse in recent weeks

Mourinho, who guided United to second in the league in 2017-18 season, insists that was his "greatest achievement" at the club and that now "people understand".

In his interview with the French newspaper, he said: "When I say that the second season was fantastic, I say it because the potential and the objectives were met.

"I really squeezed, like an orange, to achieve them." BW SPORT

This title toughest yet, says Pep

Next year 'will be tougher but we will be stronger too', says Spaniard

Manchester manager Pep Guardiola savs retaining Premier League trophy this year was the "toughest" title of his career.

City came from behind to claim a 4-1 victory over Brighton at the Amex Stadium on Sunday and finish above Liverpool by one point.

It is the eighth time in Guardiola's past 10 seasons as a manager that his side have won the league.

"To win the title we had to win 14 games in a row," said Guardiola.

"This was the toughest title in all my career, by far."

Liverpool went to Etihad Stadium

January leading by seven points but were beaten 2-1 by City, their only defeat of the campaign.

Following a 2-1 defeat by Newcastle later that month, City won a league record 14 straight matches to end the season on top.

The Reds finished on 97 points, the third-highest top-flight total in English football history - behind City's title triumphs this season (98) and last season (100).

"I have to sav congratulations Liverpool of course, thank you so much," Guardiola told Sky Sports.

"Last season Manchester City made standards. They helped to push us and to increase our standards from last season.

"To compete against this team pushed us to do what we have done. It's incredible, 198 points in two seasons.

"Normally if you get 100 points the tendency is to go down but Liverpool helped us to be consistent."

Guardiola won three La Liga titles in a row in his first three years in charge at Barcelona and three consecutive Bundesliga titles in his three seasons at Bayern Munich before joining City.

The Spaniard, 48, said he expected next season to be tougher still as his side seek a third straight title.

Manchester United

SERIAL WINNER: Guardiola clinched his eighth title in ten years on Sunday are the only club to win three consecutive Premier League titles and have done so twice, from 1998-99 to 2000-01 and 2006-07 to 2008-09.

"It will be tougher but we will be stronger too," said Guardiola.

"When you can win

two in a row I have the feeling that next season we will come back and try to be who we are right now."

Low-flying Seagulls drop Hughton

Brighton have sacked manager Chris Hughton after they finished 17th in the Premier League and narrowly avoided relegation.

The Seagulls won just three of their last 23 league games and none of their final nine.

Chairman Tony Bloom said that run "put our status at significant risk".

Hughton, who joined Albion in December 2014, led the club to the Premier League for the first time in 2017, and they finished 15th in their first season back in the top flight.

Swansea boss Graham Potter, 43, who joined the club from Swedish side Ostersunds in 2018, is the favourite with the bookmakers to replace Hughton.

Hughton, 60, who was contracted until 2021, also took the club to the FA Cup semi-final this season, where they lost 1-0 to Manchester City.

Bloom said: "Our run of three wins from Premier League matches put our status

HUGHTON: the seventh Premier League manager to be sacked this season at significant risk. It is with that in mind, and the performances during that period, that I now feel it's the right time for a change.

"Undoubtedly, this has been one of the most difficult decisions I have had to make as chairman of Brighton, but ultimately one I have made due to how we struggled in the second half of the season."

Hughton won 40.93% of his 215 games in charge and was named the Premier League's manager of the month in March 2018.

He is the seventh Premier League manager to be sacked this season.

praised Bloom Hughton for an "excellent job" in stabilising the club, achieving promotion and retaining their Premier League status.
