■ Cameron earns ire of the Palace after revealing he asked HRH to 'raise an eyebrow' over Scottish independence vote

David Cameron has earned the ire of Buckingham Palce by revealing that he sought help from the Queen ahead of the Scottish independence vote in 2014.

The disclosure, revealed by the former Prime Minister in a TV interview, has caused displeasure at Buckingham Palace, a source said on Thursday.

The former PM told the BBC he had asked whether the Queen could "raise an eyebrow" about the prospect of Scotland voting for independence.

The Queen later said people should "think carefully about the future".

Buckingham Palace has made no official comment on Mr Cameron's remarks.

The revelation is made in a two-part BBC documentary in which the former PM reflects on his time in Downing Street.

What was discussed with the Queen's officials was not "anything that would be in any way improper... but just a raising of the eyebrow even... a quarter of an inch", he says.

The former Tory leader also discusses the Scottish referendum in his book, which he has been publicizing this week.

A source told reporters "it serves no-one's interests" for conversations between the PM and the Queen to be made public .

"It makes it very hard for the relationship to thrive," they added.

Asked about the response from the Palace, Mr Cameron told the BBC's Jeremy Vine he had tried to give an "honest explanation" of his actions while he was PM

'blissfully happy'

"We have to set the context - at the time [Scotland's then-first minister] Alex Salmond was saying that the Queen would be a proud monarch of an independent Scotland and there was frustration around that and that was being put and nothing else was."

But he said he had "probably said as much or possibly too much" about his conversation with the monarch.

Scotland rejected independence by a margin of 55.3% to 44.7%, a result which Mr Cameron said left him "blissfully happy".

Mr Salmond, who resigned as Scotland's first minister in the wake of the result, accused the former PM of "breaking every rule in the book" by trying to involve the Queen.

But he said the monarch appeared to remain neutral during the campaign, describing her 2014 comment about the future as "a pretty innocent remark".

"David Cameron was clearly trying to mobilise the Queen to help his political interest and that's not just completely improper, it's quite extraordinary that he should reveal it and boast about it," he told the BBC in an interview.

"I'm not surprised that the Palace appears to be extremely displeased with the former prime minister."

At First Minister's Questions in Holyrood, Nicola Sturgeon was asked whether she was concerned about the Queen being asked to interfere in a potential second independence referendum.

Alex Salmond criticized the disclosure, saying: "David Cameron was clearly trying to mobilise the Queen to help his political interest."

'improper'

"I think the revelations - if I can call them that - from David Cameron say more about him than they do about anybody else, and really demonstrate the panic that was in the heart of the UK government in the runup to the independence referendum five years ago," she said.

Prime Minister Boris Johnson would not be drawn on the issue. "Not only do I not comment on conversations that I may have held with Her Majesty, but I don't comment on conversations she may have held with anybody else," he told reporters in Wiltshire.

decisions," he said.
"I wouldn't ask the Queen to get involved. It's not her job - she's the head of state. She is not the head of government or the political process in Britain... and she knows that as well."

It is not the first time Mr Cameron has been accused of indiscretion in his dealings with the Queen.

Mr Cameron apologised to the monarch in 2014 after he was overheard saying she "purred" on hearing the result of the Scottish referendum.

He said talking about her reaction had been a "terrible mistake".

Cameron: Boris only backed Brexit to further his career

■ In new book, former Tory leader attacks both PM Mr Johnson and his Brexit champion Michael Gove.

BORIS Johnson's allies rushed to his defence this week after predecessor David Cameron accused him of "lying" and only backing Brexit to further his own career.

The damning criticisms are delivered in former minister prime explosive Cameron's new book, published this week.

In it, the former Tory leader attacks both PM Mr Johnson and his Brexit champion Michael Gove. The 52-year-old, who quit as premier hours after Britain voted to leave the EU in 2016, claims Mr Johnson privately said there could be a "fresh renegotiation, followed by a second referendum" - something he now says he opposes.

In extracts from Mr Cameron's forthcoming memoir, he also claimed that Mr Gove and Mr Johnson, as leaders of the Leave campaign, had declared "warfare" on

He went even further, claiming they were also guilty of "lying" to the public to win the 2016 referendum.

Mr Cameron wrote that Mr Johnson wanted to become the "darling of the party" and "didn't want to risk allowing someone else with a high profile, Michael Gove in particular, to win that crown".

writes: "The He conclusion I am left with is that he risked an outcome he didn't believe in because it would help his political career."

'truth-twisting'

On Mr Gove, the former PM added: "One quality shone through disloyalty. Disloyalty to me and, later, disloyalty to Boris." And he said Mr Gove became "an ambassador for the truth-twisting age populism".

He added: "By the end, Boris and Michael seemed to me to be different people. Boris had backed something he didn't believe in. Michael had backed something he did perhaps believe in, but in the process had broken with his friends... while taking up positions that were completely against his political identity.

"Both then behaved appallingly, attacking their own government, turning a blind eye to their side's unpleasant actions and becoming ambassadors expert-trashing, truth-twisting age of populism."

Other extracts from the book detail how Mr Cameron accused the pair of effectively "trashing" the Government during the 2016 EU referendum campaign. He adds that he is fearful of what will happen after Brexit.

'I failed'

But colleagues of Mr Johnson responded by rallying behind his handling of the ongoing negotiations with the EU. Brexit Secretary Steve Barclay said a "landing zone" was now in sight for an agreement with the EU, and that a "huge amount has been happening behind the scenes". Home Secretary Priti Patel said: "The Prime Minister is fully committed to getting a deal. "I hope the country has heard [Mr Johnson's] sheer commitment and determination to ensure that we leave on October 31, and also that the entire machinery of government now is focused on getting that deal and is planning and preparing to leave with a deal."

In Mr Cameron's

long-awaited book, For The Record, the ex-PM also writes about his decisions regarding the EU referendum. He said: "There are those who will never forgive me for holding it, or for failing to deliver the outcome – Britain staying in a reformed EU - that I sought.

"I deeply regret the outcome and accept my approach failed. The decisions I took contributed to that failure. I failed."

But on the Prime Minister's recent decision to prorogue Parliament for five weeks and withdraw the whip from 21 Tory MPs including the likes of Tory grandees Ken Clarke and Sir Nicholas Soames -Mr Cameron expressed his disapproval. He added: "Taking the whip hard-working from Conservative sharp and practices using prorogation Parliament have rebounded. I didn't support either of those things. Neither do I think a no-deal Brexit is a good idea."

Rutland battles to keep out McDs

From its first branch in San Bernardino, California, to the farflung corners of China, the McDonald's quest for world domination seemed complete.

Bosses at multibillion-pound burger chain had not reckoned, however, on the residents of Rutland, England's smallest county, when they announced plans to open a branch there.

The picturesque area of the East Midlands has not hosted a McDonald's since the first British restaurant opened in London in 1974. The golden arches stand above 1,249 restaurants across Britain but neither McDonald's nor its rivals Burger King and KFC have attempted to open in the tiny county, until now.

The county council is considering plans for a drive-through restaurant in Oakham, which have attracted more than 50 objections from locals as well as people from as far away as Leeds and Salisbury concerned that it would spoil the market town. Many of the county's 40,000 residents fear that the plans would not be in keeping with the farmers' markets and gourmet restaurants. Others complain about the "obvious eyesore of a high-profile golden arch" and that the restaurant could send house prices tumbling.

David Taylor, 39, said: "For years we've proudly boasted that we're the only county in England without a McDonald's. It's a shame the council have bowed to the big corporations. It doesn't suit our town and our way of living. It will be an eyesore and attract the wrong sort of people."

Rod Stewart: I kept my cancer battle secret and now I'm cured

SIR ROD STEWART fought prostate cancer for almost three years, he has revealed.

The singer, 74, has urged men to get themselves checked regularly, warning: "I'm in the clear now simply because I caught it early."

He says he confronted the disease "with a smile" and is thankful that "the good Lord looked after me". Sir Rod was diagnosed in February 2016 during a routine check. It was understood he had benign prostatic hyperplasia – an enlarged prostate - and had not wanted to "make a fuss".

Now, after quietly undergoing treatment, he has been told his cancer is in remission. He decided speak at a fundraising ball for the Prostate Project and European Tour Foundation at the Wentworth Club, Surrey, at the weekend. Performing with former Faces bandmates Kenney Jones and Ronnie Wood, Sir Rod cracked a joke before opening up. He said he had warned his wife Penny Lancaster, 48, that he would use the event to "come out" and Loose Women star Penny had replied: "... of the closet!"

He said: "Two years ago I was diagnosed with prostate cancer." Ronnie, who has fought lung cancer, then put his hand on Sir Rod's shoulder as an audience of 500 people reacted in shock.

"No one knows this but I thought this was about time I told everybody. "I'm in the clear, now, simply because I caught it early. Guys you've got to, really, go to the doctor."

And he added, with candour: "Finger up the bum, no harm done!"

Father-of-eight Rod said he maintained positive outlook throughout: "I've worked for two years and I've just been happy, and the good Lord looked after me."

He shared a hug with Ronnie who said: "Somebody up there likes us, Rod."

The charity urges men aged 50 to 70 to be tested. Prostate cancer kills one man every 45 minutes. Royal Surrey County Hospital claims 90 per cent of early diagnoses result in a cure.

And later in the week Sir Rod revealed the secret to his successful marriage - hardly ever seeing his wife. "Penny and I like our silence," he said. We live in a very big house and we don't bump into each other for hours on end." Rod also gave a hint to how he keeps in shape and said he is the same weight now as he was more than a decade ago.

"I work out a lot. I've had a trainer for 30 years and I weigh the same as 12 years ago. I've built an indoor pool and I do a lot of swimming," he told Women's Own.

Wild Horses can't keep the Stones from watching Downton

THE Rolling Stones may have finally put their hellraising days behind them – opting to watch Downton Abbey instead.

The rockers have been revealed as huge fans of the sedate TV costume drama, released last week as a film in the UK and opening this weekend in the US.

The band are even said to have cut gig rehearsals short so they could be home when the show started on telly. The surprise news comes from actress Michelle Dockery, who played Downton's Lady Mary Crawley Michelle, 37, was appearing on The Tonight Show in America when she described an encounter she had with Sir Mick Jagger after the New York's charity Met Ball.

She said: "Mick Jagger just started walking towards us at this afterparty and he put his hand out and said, 'Hello, I'm Mick' and we were like, 'We know'.

"And he said how much he loved the show and we just couldn't believe it. I was completely floored."

Referring to co-star Hugh Bonneville, who played Lord Grantham, she went on: "Hugh is friends with some of them, including Mick I think, and apparently when they were rehearsing their big London gig, when the show was on they would have to stop at a certain time so they could get home to watch Downton Abbey at nine o'clock. So rock 'n' roll!"

Elsewhere, co-stars Michael Fox and Kevin Doyle revealed that other famous fans included Hillary Clinton, Michelle Obama and the Duchess of Cambridge.

William in tribute to Gareth Thomas as rugby legend reveals he has HIV

PRINCE William has hailed the courage of Gareth Thomas after the former Welsh rugby captain told the world he has the HIV virus.

Gareth, who was a guest at William's wedding in 2011 and has worked with the Prince on rugby projects, is the UK's first top sportsman to talk openly about the condition. And the ITV Rugby World Cup pundit, affectionately known as Alfie to Welsh rugby fans, broke down in tears on Sunday as he hugged his husband of four years, Stephen, as he competed in the gruelling Ironman Wales contest. He briefly left the track and leaned over a safety barrier to embrace Stephen, 56, and his parents Yvonne, 70, and Barry, 69, before completing the two-mile swim, 112-mile cycle ride and a marathon.

Sue Moore, 58, a spectator at the event in Tenby, Pembrokeshire, said: "It was a very emotional moment – no one expected it."

The Duke of Cambridge, who is patron of Welsh Rugby Union, tweeted: "Courageous as ever – legend on the pitch and legend off it. You have our support Gareth W"

In a video on Saturday, Gareth, 45, who came out as gay in 2009, said he had been secretly living with HIV – the virus which causes Aids – for years, but was forced to speak out after being threatened by blackmailers.

He said: "I've been threatened by people who said they would give away my secret. It's sick and I've been through hell.

"I was being blackmailed and in my mind I thought you only get blackmailed for something really bad, which compounded the feeling of shame.

"When someone else knows a secret as big as that, they can determine your happiness or sadness every morning and use it as a weapon against you and your family. It put me in the darkest place ever. I felt I was losing control of my own life."

Famous names lined up to praise Gareth. TV presenter Carol Vorderman, 58, tweeted: "We love you Alfie. You will always have our support x."

Welsh singer Charlotte Church told him, "You've got my support and love all the way" and Match

Macca: Brexit vote was a mistake

Sir Paul McCartney has said the Brexit referendum was "probably a mistake" and he will "be glad when it's over".

He had not voted in the referendum, he said, as he "didn't see anybody saying anything sensible enough".

Sir Paul said the current situation was "a mess" but added: "I think we'll come through it, we always do."

The former Beatle was speaking to BBC News as he-with daughters, Stella and Mary - released a book of personal photos, taken by his late wife, Linda.

Reflecting on the 2016 Brexit vote, Sir Paul said the arguments made during the campaign had been "all crazy promises".

"What put me off was that I was meeting a lot of older people, kind of pretty much my generation.

"And they were going, 'All right Paul - it's going to be like it was in the old days, we're going to go back.' And it was like, 'Yeah? Oh, I'm not sure about that.' And that attitude was very prevalent.

"I vote for someone I believe in and so often there's nobody I believe in. I have to get a bit inspired. At the moment I'm not really inspired."

'Little pieces of art' Linda McCartney, who died aged 56 in 1998, began her photographic career in New York, shooting rock stars.

The book - Linda McCartney The Polaroid Diaries - compiles more than 200 photographs from her private collection and offers a glimpse into the family's life in Scotland and southern England.

"For us, they're just family photos but because it's Linda, a great photographer, they're little pieces of art," Sir Paul said.

"I'd been through a very difficult period at the end of the Beatles. It was like hell.

"But I'd just met this beautiful woman and we were raising a family, so we decided to escape, so we escaped to Scotland and lived a very funky life."

The Polaroids show pet hamsters, a lamb in the kitchen, bath-times, birthday cakes and the McCartney children playing dress-up.

Mary McCartney said the photos showed a "simple" life, where as a baby she had slept in a bed made by her father from old potato boxes.

There's a lot of Mum in these pictures," said Mary, who, like her mother, is also a photographer.

Stella, a fashion designer, said her mother had captured "quite surreal moments" and talked of the difficulty in releasing such an intimate book.

"I find it quite hard because we're a very protective family, we lived in the middle of nowhere all together and we didn't really come out and talk about it," she said.

"I grew up very much protecting the family unit."

Stella, who has previously advocated not washing clothes in the interest of the environment, was also asked about her role in the polluting fashion industry.

"I believe that the product I'm making is a far better solution to what is already existing in my industry," she said.

"I want to try and promote that you can still have a healthy, fashionable luxurious business and you don't have to kill animals and you don't have to harm the planet."

BBC's top earner Lineker heading for pay cut?

Match of the Day host Gary Lineker, the BBC's best-paid presenter, has said he's "in negotiations" over pay after reports that he will take a pay cut.

He did not deny the reports, but said he would make an announcement "when there is the time and place".

He was paid £1.75m last year, and said footballers and broadcasters "can't really justify our salary compared with people who do a real job".

"But you know, that's the market rate," he told BBC Radio 5 Live.

The BBC has pledged to close the gender pay gap across the corporation by 2020, and men outnumbered women on the latest star salaries list in July.

Asked by 5 Live host Nihal Arthanayake how he felt about the reports earlier this week saying he would take a pay cut, the former footballer said he had become "a bit of a whipping boy" for critics of the corporation.

Asked if the reports were wrong, he replied: "I didn't say it was not true. We are in negotiations at the moment. When there is the time and place to say what's happening, we'll all make it clear. And if not, you'll read it every July [when the BBC lists its highest-paid stars' salaries as part of its annual report].

"But I love working for the BBC. There are problems working for the BBC obviously because of what it is and what it entails, but it's a great place, and I'd hope to be here working with the BBC for many years to come."

He also discussed how lucrative it can be covering football on television.

"I get paid a lot of money because it's a business, particularly around football and TV, that is very competitive, and it's very well paid," he said.

"There are pundits on Sky that in recent times are paid double what I'm on,

THAT'S RICH: the highly paid former England striker also fronts BT Sports Champions League coverage and I'm not complaining about that. I wouldn't complain for one single minute."

He said he understood why some viewers feel his salary is very high.

"Of course I get that. I've always felt like that. I've felt incredibly fortunate. I felt like that when I was a footballer. And I feel like that as a broadcaster now.

"But you know, that's the market rate. That's what it's worth. And obviously, you could get bit more somewhere else.

"It is what it is, and it's the same whether you're a footballer or whether you're at the top of the entertainment world, or whether you're a singer, whether you're a top actor.

"You're paid money that is way beyond really what you deserve, but nobody's going to go, 'Actually, no, I'll for work for a pittance'. They're not going to do that. I always feel uncomfortable talking about it, but at the same time, I'm not complaining."

He was talking to promote a new book, and his comments follow a report in The Daily Mirror, which quoted him as saying: "I'm currently negotiating a new contract with them and I'm volunteering to take less."

Lineker also works for BT Sport, fronting their Champions League football coverage.

Speaking about Lineker's pay earlier this year, BBC director general Tony Hall said the success of BBC Sport, which reaches 40% of the UK population, has "much to do with Gary", adding that he "does an excellent ioh"

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: The work problem that has lingered for a few days will take a few days more to sort out but you must be more detached and let go of being in charge (even if you are). Next week the Sun in Libra will bring some balance to your life.

TAURUS: Saturn the planet of Karma moving in a positive direction will bring a sense of relief to your overall life. Even anything that is unresolved will look much easier to deal with. Keep your mood low-key but remain open to having some fun.

GEMINI: You will complete what has remained incomplete in your life these next few days. You will be dealing with decisions as Uranus in Taurus now will likely bring up memories of past people and events in some areas of life.

CANCER: Be strong and all the hard work you put in recently will bear fruit this coming week. Saturn in your opposite sign of Capricorn is moving in a positive direction and he will enhance several areas in your life that may need TLC.

LEO: Financial issues could hold you back from enjoying your life. Do not assume you can resolve the situation with ease. Tackle what you can and stop fretting over what you cannot change. Next week starts a new cycle – and it's good.

VIRGO: As this coming month unfolds you will benefit from having both Mars and Venus nearby. If you try to push for completion you may not get what you want done. Keep calm and be ready for a last-minute change of plans Happy Birthday!

LIBRA: Work-related plans may not go as planned, however there is a reason for everything under the sun. With this in mind go forward with an optimistic outlook and expect some positive outcomes in general. Happy early Birthday to some of you lovely souls.

SCORPIO: You are one of the most intuitive signs so you need to listen to what your physical body is telling you. If you are feeling stressed or out of sorts (which is likely) listen and take action to repair it. You are in a better position than you think.

SAGITTARIUS: We all deserve the finer things in life although it is not always possible to indulge yourself. This week ahead at least treat yourself as though it is. You will feel better overall for pampering yourself for a change.

CAPRICORN: You may be feeling downcast recently and some of you may be dealing with family situations. This is a time of reflection and it will pass in a few days. Stay away from others who can upset you. Saturn in your own sign is finally revving up in a positive way.

AQUARIUS: If you refuse to acknowledge something does not mean it will disappear. It will probably not be as bad as you think. Get going on sorting out the problem you alone can. Remember to reward a good turn as it will help you and them.

PISCES: If you don't keep up with the times they move on and that is not a good idea for you. You have the power this week to transform something into a positive outcome for all. Look at and acknowledge the good people and things in your life.

Downton Fabby!

AS I am sure you know by now, this was the week when Downton Abbey fever gripped both the UK and the USA, with the longawaited movie rolling out into theatres worldwide.

As would expect, the local British community got into high gear, with a fabulous 1920s-themed tea party at The Grove with lots of Brits in LA members (including myself) playing characters and interacting with the guests. I was Lord Philip Bexley, Lord of Redding (!?! - clearly my character breakdown was written by an American.) Other Brits in attendance included Peter McGann, Nicola Bertram and Ron Bottitta.

Highlights included flower arranging, tea blending and silhouette cameo pictures. They served refreshing iced tea and crust-less cucumber sandwiches and coronation chicken. Which was actually authentically British, especially by mid-afternoon when the bread turned quite stale! We even taught some of the kids how to play croquet.

Meanwhile Tuesday morning was also another chance to celebrate everything Downton. As guests sat down and enjoyed a full English breakfast at Cecconi's in West Hollywood, Focus Features provided wonderful prizes for all those who made the effort to dress up.

It's Time For Tea...

Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served
Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room
(also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions).
King's Head Pies now available in our bakery.
Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily

Ye Olde King's Head, 116 Santa Monica Blvd. Santa Monica CA 90401 • Tel: 310 451-1402

DRESSING THE PART(Y): (above) getting into the spirit of Downton at the Grove last weekend and (below) the fun continued at Cecconi's at Tuesday's British Breakast

Mary Samuel, dressed in a gorgeous crushed maroon velvet jacket won a cookbook, John Mawson won a fantastic umbrella, Alexandra Sokkoloff won Downton Abbey book and Bernard, our muchloved mayor of Breakfast, won tickets to see the film and everybody received a tin of mints, perhaps very well needed after polishing down their full English tea.

And then there is Martin Samuel. A huge congratulations are in order as he will be awarded a Lifetime Achievement award at the 2020 Make Up and Hairstylist Guild Awards, which are scheduled for January 11th. Eileen and I are SO thrilled for him. Me especially, since he recently styled my hair for an audition, making me look perfect for the part. Thoroughly deserved, Martin we love you!

Don't forget our British Breakfast is held every Tuesday at Cecconi's at Robertson and Melrose in West Hollywood and we are looking forward to celebrating our tenth year with them next month. So stay tuned for details on a suitably celebratory breakfast event.

originally from Eastbourne, but then a resident of Sydney, Australia for ten years, who moved to LA two years ago to set up a US entity for his sport and merchandise business

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I'd love to say it was a well thought out decision but in reality it was the closest flight to Sydney where I've lived for 10 years, and Venice has a beach, so it felt like (Sydney's) Bondi. I think if you're from the beach then it can be hard to be away from its salty sea air and health lifestyle-focused activities.

What do you miss most from home?

My parents, they are getting a little older and I miss then a lot but they get to visit me. My friends - they are all hitting that age where they are getting married and having families. I miss being part of their everyday lives however I'm fortunate enough to visit a few times a year and try to make an effort to stay in contact.

And Boots meal deal -I'm a sucker for those and I always grab when one passing through Heathrow.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

locals was dancing in the street. And I thought that was pretty crazy.

Since then I've learnt, that is not even close to crazy, and on the odd occasion it rains now I'm likely out there doing the same. It was big, I mean you can't walk to a shop to get milk, which I found frustrating. I thought you couldn't live without a car but I've since learnt it's possible and for me, preferable.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus your home town?

Eastbourne? A lack of OAPs. Sun, diverse industries but also a lack of history/culture. It reminds me when I go home how lucky we are to have so much on our doorstep. As far as Sydney, a go get-em attitude. People celebrate success and are willing to help and talk about it in LA, it's not something to be ashamed of. Sydney suffers from a 'tall poppy syndrome' where striving to be the best you can often be frowned upon.

Plus in LA in particular and the US in general I've found more wilingness to take risks and try new things in business. There's a sense of urgency that if you don't, then a competitor will.

The first day I arrived it Do you have a hidden to share with us?

Every stop along the PCH. The bike path and ride to Long Beach. The bike path along Culver and some of the rides into Malibu Hills, Any bike route really. Plus cheap public beach volleyball lessons on the beach and social pick up sports games on the beach all weekend. But really for me it's any opportunity to get out and do sport.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Take a road trip or visit a few cities first and figure out what's important to vou. Make contact with good networks like Brits in LAFB group, join meetup. com and say yes to lots of activities. Overall I'd say make a decision and commit 100% to it, know that moving to a new place is hard, daunting and it can be lonely at first, but I promise you'll be bigger and better for it and you'll look back wondering why you were even concerned.

Oh, and if you find yourself in Venice, drop me a line and there's a wide group of Brits and Aussies that will invite you along with open arms, so don't be a stranger IG:@ the_homeless_ceo

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Carry a roll of $1s in your bag for tips. Make the most of what could be a limited time here, hit up all the national parks, go on road trips, get the ikon ski pass. For those setting up or starting a business over here. My business mentor once told me "Impatient for action, patient for results." And don't be afraid to play the Brit card.

As for general words of life wisdom, these from 102-year-old nan just before she passed way, with a G&T in her hand.... Give to others, the most you can and in what ever format you can. Do everything to 100%. Be the best or the worst, never settle for mediocre. And always wear your good underwear, just in case you get hit by a bus

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

We have two companies. Disrupt Sports (branded. disruptsports.com) running out of Bristol, Sydney and now LA, we make custom printed sports gear and games for hotels, events, prizes and giveaways (think branded footballs, bikes, skateboards etc.). And our new new project in the US - MiAMerchandise.com We provide 'print-ondemand' merchandise for movies, TV, sports teams, events, etc. It's an ecommerce plugin that lets people buy merchandise, ordered we print and ship to the end customer (like drop shipping on steroids). England's summer a 'huge success' -Root England captain Root said levelling the Ashes at 2-2 rounded off a summer that has been a "huge success" for English cricket.

Victory in an amazing final saw England win a first World Cup in July.

Though they did not regain the Ashes, Ben Stokes inspired them to an astonishing win in the third Test and victory at The Oval ensured the series ended in a draw.

England's World Cup final victory over New Zealand came after a super over was tied, while, at Headingley, Stokes played one of the all-time great innings to lead the hosts to their highest ever Test run-chase, the final 76 runs coming in a lastwicket stand with Jack Leach.

"What a summer of cricket it has been," said Root.

"It's been phenomenal," added the Yorkshire batsman. "That World Cup was incredible, for it to finish how it did, made for fantastic viewing - not just the England games, but across the board.

"It was backed up by such an evenly matched Ashes series. We were blessed by brilliant support throughout and the cricket was pretty gripping. It was quite hard to be involved in at times, especially when we were on the wrong end of it.

"It has been a huge success for English cricket and a great opportunity to spring the game forward in this country."

England's defeat in the fourth Test at Old Trafford ensured Australia could not lose the series and would retain the Ashes.

Rangers win one for Ricksen

Rangers paid the perfect tribute to late captain Fernando Ricksen by edging Feyenoord in a rousing Europa League win at an emotional Ibrox on Thursday.

Sheyi Ojo's first-half thunderbolt secured three points after James Tavernier missed an early penalty.

There was a minute's silence pre-match and applause in the second minute in tribute to Ricksen, who died on Wednesday after losing his battle with motor neurone disease.

Rangers go level with Porto in Group G.

The Portuguese side beat Young Boys 2-1 at home, with Steven Gerrard's side travelling to Switzerland in their next match.

Feyenoord, meanwhile, will host Porto next, having grown into the game at Ibrox late on but failing to land a decisive blow as Allan McGregor made several good saves to keep them out.

CELTIC earned a deserved draw courtesy of Ryan Christie's secondhalf penalty in Rennes in a frenetic opening Group E match in the Europa League.

M'Baye Niang fired the hosts in front from the spot after Kristoffer Ajer's lunge brought him down in the box.

But James Forrest won Celtic the penalty for Christie to convert.

That set up a tense finish, and substitute Vakoun Bayo was dismissed in stoppage time after picking up a second booking.

Forrest drew the foul from Rennes captain Damien da Silva in what looked a soft award, though Celtic had a clear shout for a penalty turned down moments earlier when Christie was tripped.

Paying the penalty: Klopp and Lamps reflect on defeat

Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp and Chelsea manager Frank Lampard were both left to reflect on key penalty incidents as they began their Champions League campaigns with defeats this week.

Ross Barkley missed a late chance to equalise for Chelsea from the spot as they lost 1-0 at home to Valencia.

Meanwhile, Napoli's first goal in their 2-0 win over holders Liverpool came from a dubious spot-kick.

"For me it's clear and obvious, no penalty," said Klopp.

German referee Felix Brych pointed to the spot with eight minutes left when Andy Robertson was judged to have fouled Jose Callejon.

Dries Mertens converted the spot-kick before former Tottenham striker Fernando Llorente sealed the win with a second goal in stoppage-time.

"Callejon jumps before he has any contact," added Klopp. "But we cannot change that so we have to be critical with ourselves.

"We did well in a lot of moments, we played a lot of good football but we didn't finish off." Chelsea boss Lampard was also left to rue a key penalty incident when he saw Barkley's late effort clip the top of the bar.

There were confusing scenes moments earlier when it initially looked like Jorginho, who scored for Chelsea in their Super Cup defeat to Liverpool last month, was about to take the penalty.

However, Barkley was insistent and ended up taking the ball after discussions with several of his team-mates including Brazilian captain Cesar Azpilicueta.

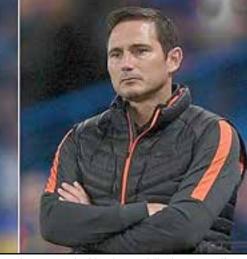

Ross is a penalty taker," said Lampard. "He scored a couple in pre-season and he was today when he came on and he missed it.

"I don't know what the conversation was. Jorginho and Willian were the penalty takers on the pitch and when Ross comes on he becomes the penalty taker and he missed it."

The miss capped a frustrating night for Chelsea, who also saw midfielder Mason Mount forced off with an ankle injury during the first half

"We probably should have won, or at least

SETBACKS: Klopp saw the Reds go down 2-0 in Naples, while Lampard's body language says it all during Chelsea's 1-0 home loss to Valencia got a draw," added Lampard. "We created enough chances, we had the penalty, and we conceded with their one shot on goal.

"It's a harsh lesson but that's Champions League football. We should have got more tonight."

Like Lampard, Klopp felt his side deserved at least a point, with defeat meaning they are the first winners of the competition to lose the opening game of the following campaign since AC Milan in 1994.

"This was a much better game than we played last time when we lost 1-0 in the last minute [to Napoli last season]," said Klopp. "It was an open game, in moments we controlled the game, but we had a lot of counter-attacks and didn't finish them off.

"That's a problem. Then in the second half we had this wild game, we were running, they were running. They've killed everybody on the pitch, started controlling again and then we've conceded a penalty. Of course that doesn't help and I've seen it now, I don't think that's a penalty."

Despite the defeat Lampard is confident his side can progress from the group, though he wants his side to bounce back quickly when they host Liverpool in the Premier League this weekend.

"That is the reality of the Champions League. It means the next two games against Lille and Ajax are more important, particularly being back to back away from home," said the former England midfielder.

"We will have strong focus on those games to try to get a result but in context it is one game done in a group where teams will take points off each other. There is no reason to be too downbeat now.

"It wasn't a bad performance tonight. Liverpool are the best team in the country on form and we have to be ready for it."

EUROPA LEAGUE: win for the Gunners, loss for the Wolves

Goals from academy gradates Joe Willock and Bukayo Saka helped Arsenal overcome a difficult test against Eintracht Frankfurt on Thursday and begin their Europa League campaign with a victory.

Willock put the Gunners in front with a deflected shot in the first half before Saka smashed in his first senior goal for the club in the 85th minute.

Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang added a third two minutes later as Arsenal ended their three-game winless run. The Gunners had created further chances but also relied on goalkeeper Emiliano Martinez to come to the aid of their fragile defence.

The Argentine produced excellent low saves to deny Filip Kostic and Andre Silva in the first half.

The second period was frantic in front of a vociferous home crowd with Arsenal's late goals only coming after Dominik Kohr was shown a second yellow card for a cynical foul.

The Gunners, beaten finalists in last year's

Europa League, are top of the early Group F table on goal difference after Standard Liege beat Vitoria in the night's other game.

Wolves' first appearance in the main stage of a European competition since 1980 ended in defeat as they lost 1-0 to Sporting Braga in their Europa League Group K opener at Molineux.

The visitors struck in the second half through Ricardo Horta's fierce effort.

Leander Dendoncker had Wolves' best chance but his close-range effort early in the second half was saved.

The defeat was Wolves' third in succession after Premier League losses against Everton and Chelsea.

The hosts had been the better side in the first half, with Patrick Cutrone a particular menace and the Italian should have done better with a low strike that flew wide of the far post.

Sporting Braga had rarely threatened up to that point with their only shot on target in the first 70 minutes a tame Paulinho effort.

But the Portuguese side, who reached the final of the competition in 2010-11, took full advantage of a defensive mistake when Ryan Bennett's hit a sloppy pass straight at Wenderson Galeno and the forward charged towards goal before squaring a ball for Horta to finish.

Wolves threw everything at the Braga defence in the final few minutes to try and rescue a draw but were unable to find an equaliser, with Raul Jimenez flicking a header wide of goal in the final minute of stoppage time.

Rugby World Cup opens in Japan

The world's top rugby nations are poised for the start of the Rugby World Cup with the outcome as uncertain as any of the previous eight editions.

New Zealand have won the past two World Cups, but Ireland are currently ranked as the best team in the world.

A resurgent South Africa won the Rugby Championship earlier this year, while Wales took the Six Nations in March.

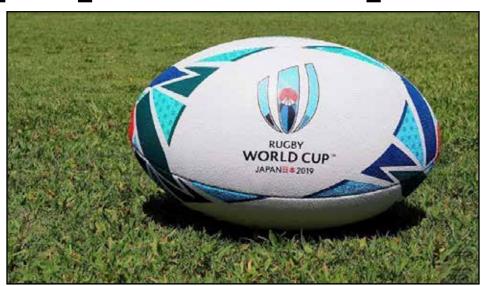

England have won 10 of their last 14, while Australia's minimum target is a repeat of their 2015 run to the final.

Argentina, semifinalists in two of the last three tournaments, talented Scotland, Fiji and France teams and hosts Japan are among those hoping to derail the title ambitions of the leading contenders.

"I think this is the most open World Cup we've had for a long time. There are six or seven teams capable of winning the World Cup," said Wales coach Warren Gatland.

"You always need a little bit of luck. You get to the quarter-finals and then take it one game at a time."

If one of the home nations is to bring home the William Webb Ellis Cup for only the second time, and the first since England landed the prize in 2003, they will need to break a southern-hemisphere stranglehold.

HERE WE GO: The Rugby World Cup runs from now until the final on November 2

United tyro makes his mark

Teenager Greenwood's first senior goal ensured Manchester United made a winning start to their Europa League campaign against Astana at Old Trafford.

On a night the 17-yearold will never forget and with the visitors from Kazakhstan threatening to hold out for a draw, Greenwood produced a clever finish in front of the Stretford End to become United's youngest scorer in Europe.

Earlier, Brazil midfielder Fred hit the bar from 25 yards before forcing a fine save from a free-kick, while England forward Marcus Rashford wasted a string of chances against the European minnows, who did not register a shot on target.

But frustration turned to celebration when Greenwood, who has been at United since the age of six, popped up with the winner.

Diogo Dalot blazed over from close range after Nenad Eric had kept out substitute Jesse Lingard's thunderous attempt.

In the other game in the Group L, Partizan Belgrade drew 2-2 with AZ Alkmaar.

It was a far from perfect

MASON GREENWOOD: clever finish return to the Europa League stage for United on their first appearance in the competition since goals by Paul Pogba and Henrikh Mkhitaryan defeated Ajax in the 2017 final in Stockholm.

Against the five-time Kazakhstan Premier League champions, United fielded their youngest side for a European game since December 2012.

Greenwood was one of six players aged 21 or under who started.

Having grown up in United's academy, the Bradford-born forward had already given United fans a glimpse of his talent during pre-season when he scored against Leeds in Australia.

In the heat of a competitive European he showed game, tremendous maturity as he cut the ball back on to his right foot after holding off an opponent before dispatching a low shot through the keeper's

Greenwood's goal was the highlight on an otherwise scrappy night for United, who were far from convincing against a team that had come through qualifying to make the group stage.

Rashford, one of two survivors from the side that started last weekend's win over Leicester, wasted enough chances to have walked away with the match ball.

At the other end, Astana were worryingly able to get behind United's defence on more than one occasion.

Tuanzebe Axel partnered Phil Jones in the centre of the backline and, with the game goalless, the visitors should have taken the lead when Marin Tomasov found space to float a cross to the back post which went unpunished.

Between them New Zealand, South Africa and Australia have won the other seven titles since the inaugural event in 1987.

Over that time England, Wales and Scotland have filled only seven of the 32 semi-final spots on offer, with Ireland never progressing beyond the last eight.

At the last Rugby World Cup in 2015, eventual winners New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Argentina contested the semi-finals.
