

'Bubba' and 'The Arch' hit it off on Royal Tour

Meghan reveals Archie's nickname as couple meet Desmond Tutu in Capetown

BABY Archie beamed as he made his debut on the royal tour of South Africa to meet anti-apartheid hero Archbishop Desmond Tutu.

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex's four-monthold son posed with the man they call "The Arch" in Cape Town on Wednesday, and the little lad appeared unfazed by the cameras as Meghan revealed she calls him "bubba".

Bouncing him on her lap, she said:

"Say hello, hello, hi. Oh bubba!"

Harry said: "He's so busy, constantly wanting to stand. He knows exactly what's going on."

Archbishop Tutu, 87, beamed at the little boy and said: "He understands." Meghan replied: "I know! He's an old soul."

Royal fans commented on how much Archie looks like his father as a baby. Many shared photos of the young prince on Twitter and said the pair could be twins. Others said Archie had mum's eyes but dad's nose and mouth. The family spent about 30 minutes with Archbishop Tutu - one of the most vocal campaigners for Nelson Mandela's release from jail - and his daughter Thandeka Tutu-Gxashe at his Legacy Foundation. Harry, 35, last met the archbishop in November 2015 when the Queen named him an honorary member of the Order of the Companions of Honour in recognition of his services to UK communities as well as international peace. Having suffered recent ill health, Archbishop Tutu has cancelled several public engagements. He said he was "thrilled" at the "rare privilege and honour" to meet Harry and Meghan.

Later Meghan, 38, met female entrepreneurs at a city tech-hub. She revealed that she was enjoying being a working mother, despite the added pressure of being a royal. Meghan told mum-of-

The Duchess then took a large holdall of baby clothes to Mothers2Mothers, a charity supporting parents with HIV. The items included two tiny white vests – one saying "The Future" and another with the Invictus Games logo. Gesturing to the bag, Meghan said: "There's all sorts of things there. It's so important to be able to share with other families... you're all in this together so we just wanted to share something from our home to each of yours."

Also on Wednesday Harry flew to Botswana where he is expected to visit conservation projects. Meghan will stay in Cape Town with Archie until the family are reunited in Johannesburg next week.

Earlier in the week Harry and Meghan got their tour off to a swinging start, dancing with well-wishers during a traditional ceremony in Nyanga, Cape Town. Meghan danced with young girls, telling them: "I am your sister."

The royal couple were making an appearance at a community notorious for violence against women. Meghan, 38, called the young girls who greeted them "inspiring" for the way they dealt with the issue head on by learning self defence and educating the men in their community. In her maiden speech of the tour, Meghan told the youngsters how she supported their struggle against violence "as a woman of colour and your sister".

Parliament suspension 'unlawful' rules Supreme Court

Mood in Westminster grows more hostile as PM vows to deliver Brexit despite another damaging defeat

BORIS JOHNSON yet another suffered damaging defeat in his brief tenure at No. 10 this week when the Supreme Court ruled that suspending Parliament was unlawful.

The unanimous judgment from 11 justices on the UK's highest court followed an emergency three-day hearing last week that exposed fundamental legal differences over interpreting the country's unwritten constitution.

The momentous decision was read out by Lady Hale, president the supreme court of on Tuesday. Unusually, none of the parties were provided with advance copies of the judgment due to its sensitivity. Only seven of the 11 justices who heard the case were present in court.

The first legal question the judges had to resolve was whether the prime minister's decision exploiting residual, royal prerogative powers "justiciable" was and could consequently subjected be to scrutiny by the courts. The English high court declined to intervene; the Scottish appeal court concluded that judges did have legal authority to act. The supreme court supported the Scottish interpretation.

Delivering judgment, Hale said: "The question arises in circumstances which have never arisen before and are unlikely to arise again."

Then, giving the court's judgment on whether the decision to suspend parliament was legal, Hale said: "This court has ... concluded that the prime minister's advice to Her Majesty [to suspend parliament] was unlawful, void and of no effect. This means that the order in council to which it led was also unlawful, void and of no effect should be quashed."

growing opposition

Iohnson responded that he was disappointed by the court's decision but that he would 'respect the law'. He also promised to 'get Brexit done' by October 31st, although that would seem unlikely given the growing opposition to his Premiership within his own party.

The mood in Westminster grew even polarized and more vitriolic following the decision, with figures on both sides of the Brexit divide told to "mind their language" and

"think very carefully" about how they react to the historic judgment. Amid simmering tension in the aftermath of the ruling, former lord chancellor David Gauke called on the Prime Minister to ensure the justices are respected. He said it is essential ruling "doesn't the turn into a populist attack on the judiciary". Lord Chancellor and Justice Secretary Robert Buckland said: "As the PM says, we will respect the Supreme Court's judgment, the judicial process and rule of law, even though the Government respectfully with disagrees the Court's decision."

Richard Atkins, OC. chairman of the Bar Council, said: "It is vitally important that the rule of law is observed in the UK.

"Following the judgment of the Supreme Court in the Brexit case, it is even more important than ever that those in positions of power think very carefully about what they say.

'checks and balances'

"UK judges are independent and held in the highest regard around the world."

Mr Atkins added: "I very much hope that there will now be a period of calm reflection and that we do not see any comments using inflammatory language or which seek to vilify the judges or lawyers involved in Brexit or any litigation."

He earlier condemned warnings aimed at the Justices to stay out of politics and avoid "taking sides" over Brexit.

He added: "The rule of law and the independence of the judiciary are fundamental pillars of our democracy. Judges do not take sides as the Downing Street source suggests, but apply the law without fear or favour."

Simon Davis, president of the Law Society. stressed that judges' decisions are expressions of law, not political or personal opinions.

Mr Davis said: "Whatever you think of the decision, the Supreme Court ruling is a vital expression of the checks and balances that exist in our democracy.

"A judge's ruling is an expression of the law, not of their personal opinion. It would be disingenuous to conflate the two."

Tuesday's judgment has sparked a debate among lawyers, as well

Thwarted PM warns of Supreme Court 'reform'

PRIME Minister Boris Johnson has signalled the country's highest court could be 'reformed' after it ruled his prorogation of Parliament was unlawful.

Johnson said the implications of the Court's Supreme ruling to overturn the suspension of Parliament were being examined. And he refused to rule out a US-style political appointments system in the future. He said Supreme Court President Lady Hale "was very clear" that the issue "she thought Parliament should be debating was Brexit". He added: "I think that people will want to consider political implications and the constitutional implications because I think what most lawyers would agree is that, actually, this wasn't an outcome they expected and certainly it wasn't an outcome that anybody that advised us expected.

"And it's new. It's a new thing. It seems to be having a bearing on a very sensitive political question. And so yeah, people will ask all sorts of questions, but for the moment, what we need to do is take account of the ruling, put it into practice."

Mr Johnson suggested any changes would be a "long way down the track" but did not rule out considering USstyle selection processes for choosing justices. He said he would both "respect the law" and leave the EU on October 31–but he refused to say how. After being forced back to the Commons, he said the court was wrong to wade into the row over the suspension of Parliament as he addressed MPs.

Board blasted as Thomas Cook failure leaves 150,000 holidaymakers stranded

■ Board of collapsed travel firm given £20m over five years

Bosses of Thomas Cook were criticized for receiving multimillionpound pay-outs based on aggressive accounting methods as the oldest travel company in the world collapsed this week.

Boris Johnson criticised the directors of the company for paying themselves large sums before the 178-year-old tour company went "down the tubes".

The prime minister said it was "bewildering" that the taxpayer should be forced to pay millions to rescue 150,000 British holidaymakers stranded abroad. It will be the biggest repatriation effort since the Second World War.

He signalled that tour operators would be required to take out specialist insurance cover in the future to protect against the chaos caused by other companies going under.

Thomas Cook, one of the world's largest tour operators, was placed in compulsory liquidation in the early hours of Tuesday after failing to raise £200 million needed to keep it viable, grounding its fleet of 40 British-based aircraft. The Insolvency Service was given the task of carrying out an urgent investigation into the affair, focusing on the conduct of directors immediately before the collapse. Thomas Cook executives

- who were coming under pressure to pay back their bonuses yesterday this week - were paid a combined total of more than $\pounds 20$ million over the past five years. Last year the company was urged by its auditor, EY, to stop using an accounting method that could have been used to flatter its financial performance and improve the pay of bosses.

The scale of the company's financial straits quickly emerged as it was revealed that the company owed hotels in Tunisia an eye-popping £53 million. In Cyprus the bill was £44 million. It also emerged that the Spanish and Turkish governments, in a bid to protect their own tourist business, had backed an 11th-hour attempt to rescue the company, with Thomas Cook managing to "cobble together" the entire £200 million it needed to survive. It failed when the British government refused to act as guarantor to the deal.

In 1841, the founder of the company bearing his name began by charging a shilling to ferry rail passengers to Leicester, Derby, Nottingham and Birmingham.

Mr Cook recognised " the great powers of railways" but he turned to steam ships to organise the first tours to Europe, and then to the United States in 1866. Tourists to Egypt were taken to the Nile but the fleet went on to convey British troops as part of attempts to break the Siege of Khartoum in 1884-85.

The Cook family sold the firm to the Belgian owners of the Orient Express in 1928.

with holiday company tactics were not already bad enough, it emerged that rival holiday companies were quick to exploit the lack of alternatives by raising their own prices, with the cost of one Jet2 break to Cyprus almost doubling to £800 within a few hours of the news of the Cook collapse.

On Wednesday the Civil Aviation Authority launched Operation Matterhorn to repatriate British tourists, using 45 aircraft leased from other airlines. The programme, which will last two weeks, will focus on 53 airports in 18 countries including the United States, Mexico,

Duke and Duchess finally settle a very Boaty argument

■ Key research ship launched as RSS Sir David Attenborough

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge have helped to settle a controversial poll that was held in 2016.

Debate still rages over the referendum result in June that year. But an equally rancorous dispute over a poll three months earlier was brought to an end by the duchess this week as she smashed a bottle of champagne over the hull of RSS Sir David Attenborough, the scientific research ship. The Natural Environment Research Council chose the name in defiance of an online vote, which opted for Boaty McBoatface. The council insisted, however, that the vote was never intended to be binding.

It had hoped that the public appeal would give rise to a sensible result. But when the poll closed with 124,000 votes, 33 per cent were for the name jokingly suggested by James Hand, the BBC Radio Jersey presenter.

title The David Attenborough, to honour naturalist the and broadcaster, came fourth with 2.95 per cent of the vote, 0.1 per cent ahead of It's Bloody Cold Here. The research council declared in May 2016 that one of the ship's submersible vehicles would be named Boaty McBoatface.

The duke referred to the event as he spoke at the Cammell Laird shipyard in Birkenhead, Merseyside, where he was accompanied by Sir David Attenborough, 93, with his daughter, Susan.

"As last week's climate protests the world over and yesterday's report on our oceans and frozen regions demonstrated, there has never been a more important moment for this ship to get to work," the duke said. "And there is no person more fitting for this beacon of scientific research to be named after than you, David.

"You have shown us how awe-inspiring the natural world is and also how fragile and endangered it is. You have inspired us all to do as much as we possibly can to protect it. It is my immense privilege and relief to welcome Sir David Attenborough, rather than Boaty McBoatface, to speak."

Addressing crowds who had come to see the ship, Sir David said: "It's no news to any of you that the world is facing great, great problems and the most aware of that are the young people of today, who will inherit this world. Great problems require great research and facts in order to solve them.

"That's what this astonishing ship will be here to do, to find out the facts and find the science with which to deal with problems that are facing the world today and will increasingly do so tomorrow.

"There could be no more important function for any ship, anywhere in the world, than those which are going to be dealt with by this remarkable ship, at the cutting edge of science."

He said that it was the "greatest possible honour" that the ship carried his name.

The duke and duchess were given a tour of the ship and met engineers, including young apprentices, who were involved in the build. They also met scientists and schoolchildren and heard from the ship's captains and crew members about its icebreaking capabilities.

Mackenzie Grieman, an ice core scientist with the British Antarctic Survey (BAS), and his colleague Rob Mulvaney showed the royals ice core that is 85,000 years old.

Ms Grieman said: 'You can hear the carbon dioxide in them as it crackles and pops."

She said that carbon dioxide levels in ice core could be monitored and the levels today were the highest they had ever been.

As he held a piece of the core, Prince William said: "It's quite hard to know how to treat an 85,000-year-old piece of ice that's melting in your hand."

On the bridge of the ship, the duke took a seat in the driving chair as the duchess said: "Shall I leave you to it?"

RRS The David Attenborough, which is owned by the Natural Environment Research Council and operated by the BAS, will enable world-leading research to be carried out in Antarctica and the Arctic over the next 25 to 30 vears.

subjects, the Queen enjoys nothing better than tucking into her dinner off a tray in front of the TV. And before she sits down to her evening meal, the Queen enjoys her favourite tipple of gin and dubonnet at 7pm.

Revelations about the 93-year-old's evening ritual emerged during filming of Secrets Of The Royal Kitchen, a behindthe-scenes look at life at Windsor. At state banquets chefs prepare a minimum of four courses and the Queen will dine alongside hundreds of guests. But that is a far cry from the simpler food she enjoys most evenings as she and Prince Phillip relax in front of their favourite shows. Despite having her pick of lavish dining rooms whether staying at Sandringham, Windsor, Balmoral or Buckingham Palace, the Queen instead chooses to eat her evening meal in the comfort of her living room, with her meal balanced on a tray across her knee. Royal biographer Lady Colin Campbell said: "She has her dinner off a tray looking at the television. 'She likes it. It's homely and cosy and it's comfortable."

Many of the Queen's favourite shows are no longer on air and she

LIKE most of her watches them on a huge DVD collection. They include The Bill, Keeping Appearances, Up Midsomer Murders, New Tricks, Last Of The Summer Wine and Doctor Who. The Royal Family spends about £1.6million on food each year, which includes everything from formal dinners and garden parties to their cups of tea and breakfast cereals.

precise preparations

The documentary series, which began on Channel 5 on Tuesday night, has gained access to the people who prepare and cook the royal platter. Capturing the precise preparations needed to cater for a royal banquet and for feeding Britain's first family on a daily basis, staff who worked in the royal kitchens reveal what really goes on behind the scenes. While Her Majesty may not cook her own meals, she does keep a careful eye on what's being served up in the royal household.

The programme also reveals the lengths to which kitchen staff go to ensure no one is able to poison the Queen at state banquets, with the chef preparing all the dishes before one plate is chosen at random to serve to her.

Thomas Cook grounded? Don't let the same happen to YOUR holiday plans!

The last week of codes by emailing us September (13 weeks before Christmas) apparently is the optimum time to book a Christmas getaway according to AAA. com.

Surprisingly December 25th is not the cheapest date, apparently you will get better deals if you fly on the 23rd...if you are planning a trip don't forget to check out the discounts we have with Air New Zealand, you can get the current

at ANZCodes@britsin. la

If you are anything like me planning that far in advance can be a bit risky, work, etc is so unpredictable, so picking a date right now is out of the question. Or you worry that BA will decide to strike again? Or perhaps your airline carrier goes out of business? As we've all just witnessed 'reliable and trustworthy' "Don't just book it,

It's Time For Tea... Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery

Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily

Thomas Cook it" is suddenly no more! They were in the travel business for almost 200 years!! Apparently they were still taking bookings last Saturday but by Monday morning they had shut up shop. I posted about this possibility back on September 19th, so surely they had an inkling that this was going to happen?

The British government has stepped in to repatriate the stranded customers but because the business has shut down completely it is unlikely that anyone will receive compensation. Refunds will be given for future package holidays as these are protected under ABTA/ATOL. If you booked a 'flight only' with TC, the only way you have a chance of getting a refund is if either you took out travel insurance or used a credit card to purchase it. If you used a debit card the rules vary. Some banks offer a charge back scheme, so if that is how you paid I would recommend getting on it ASAP. Their business model was outdated, so it is not surprising that they went under, but what is shocking is how suddenly it seemed to happen.

Protect yourself first

What can you do to protect yourself when you book future travel? I would recommend booking everything with a credit card, and if possible a card that offers travel protection. I hear that the Chase Sapphire Card is excellent, however it does come with an annual fee of $450; although I am sure it is worth it if you ever have to claim. Contrary to popular belief, the American Express card is not one that automatically covers everything when it comes to travel. I found this out the hard way.

IF IT CAN HAPPEN TO THEM: Thomas Cook was founded in England in 1841

Never pay cash!

Travel Insurance is an annoying added expense but if you have to even use it only once it will probably pay for itself. Some companies even offer 'cancel for any reason' options, so if that audition with Steven Spielberg finally materializes you can feel comfortable knowing you can say yes without losing out financially. I personally use Allianz, (www. allianztravelinsurance. com). They offer one-trip plans but I recommend shelling out for one of their annual plans. Which, depending on your personal circumstances, start at a little over $100. They also offer family plans too. Travelex seems to be a very popular choice. I've not tried them myself, but they get excellent reviews. (www. travelexinsurance. com).

Visit www. insuremytrip.com to explore and compare more options.

If you have a company

you like, or know one to avoid, please do let us know. You can email us at info@britsin. la or comment on our social media pages - @ BritsinLA

Cash, cheques and debits cards are a very big no when it comes to paying for your trip! For obvious reasons banks seem to care more about their own money, particularly when they are loaning it to you, and therefore put more protections in place. In fact most rental car companies won't allow you to hire a vehicle if you don't have a credit card. But if you have to use them, then an insurance policy is even more important.

I know many of our members have been affected by this Thomas Cook debacle. So if you are stuck, stranded or just a bit confused, please do drop us a line and we will see if we can help you.

A dedicated support service is being provided by The Civil Authority Aviation to assist customers currently overseas and those in the UK with future bookings. Please visit: thomascook. caa.co.uk for further information.

If you need a bit of cheering up come along to one of our upcoming events - and you don't have to worry about getting stranded! Our events are purely local meaning the worst thing that can happen is you'll have to Uber home. We have both Breakfast Club at Cecconi's and Pub Quiz at the Cat & Fiddle on a weekly basis. Full details can be found at www.britsin. la or email us at info@ britsin.la.

Hope to see some of you soon!

Cheers!

Meet a Member: Juliana Hussin

Meet Juliana from Liverpool who moved to LA 17 years ago to pursue makeup.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I chose LA because I used to come for holidays as a child every few years with family to visit an uncle who lived here. I had then decided I must find a way to live in the land of fabulousness!

What do you miss most from home?

I do miss the beautiful colonial architecture of England which I took for granted while living there and walking around our many stunning parks and gardens. British pub food is the best and a really good chippy, Indian or Chinese is just not the same here in LA.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression of LA was that people here are on a permanent holiday, which is definitely not the case. Many of my friends here are extremely hardworking but know how to balance work with leisure.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus England?

The biggest difference living here is how optimistic people are.

I feel that most people here in LA are extremely encouraging and quick to connect you with people they feel you would get along with, be it in business or on a personal level, I love that about LA. I love the amazing service here, it's well worth the tipping because when I travel back home, it's so frustrating to wait forever for your meal and since the staff are not working for tips I feel bad to complain. Oh, and the weather of course!! Who would want to live anywhere else?

EYES ON THE PRIZE: for more on Juliana's work, visit beverlyhillslashinstitute.com

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I have so many hidden gems that I love but if I were to pick one it would be The Marciano Art Foundation. It's the private contemporary art collection of the founders of Guess?, which they exhibit in a beautiful space in Hancock Park. The space is not too overwhelming and a great place to walk around and get lost in imagination on a weekend.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Well, the first thing I would suggest before you move here is to get your legal situation sorted out. I was fortunate to have done a bit of modelling in Asia so was able to get a work permit really easily but if you don't have a permit and can't work, things will start to get stressful and your LA experience will not go as smoothly as anticipated. I've seen it so many times where people will spend thousands of dollars and get nowhere and have to pack up and go home. Line yourself up a job while you're on holiday or enrol in school, this will make your LA experience that much happier.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom- what is the best piece of advice you've been given? The best advice for those who move to LA is to be open minded, people are different here and to us Brits Los Angeles may appear fake. I always say I'd rather have fake happy and optimistic people around me than real negative Nellies. Find your tribe and community because LA can get lonely if you don't make an effort to make friends. The Brit Breakfast is the perfect place to make new friends and get your footing and the people there make an effort to mingle and chitchat so you'll never feel left out.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

I'm building my beauty business, Beverly Hills Lash Institute, where we do lash services and train beauty professionals in the service. I love how lashes can really transform a person from being plain Jane to J-Lo, it really does make a difference and boy do the ladies love their lashes! I would probably get death threats if I asked my clients to take a rest, they can't live without their lashes once they start doing them. My website is www. beverlyhillslashinstitute. com and you can find me on Instagram @ beverlyhillslashinstitute or @thejulianahussin

GERRARD ON KLOPP: "We want him to stay for many, many years..."

Rangers manager Steven Gerrard says he was "surprised and flattered" to hear Jurgen Klopp tip him to be his successor as Liverpool boss.

The German made his comments about the former Reds captain in the latest edition of Four Four Two magazine.

Before joining Rangers in the summer of 2018, Gerrard, 39, coached the

I don't want him to get sacked tomorrow. He's doing a fantastic job."

The comments were made by Klopp when he was asked about his working relationship with non-executive director Kenny Dalglish, saying: "Kenny and Stevie have both been a really big support from day one.

"If Liverpool were to sack me tomorrow, then maybe Kenny would be the first choice to replace me, but they would probably bring Stevie down from Glasgow.

"If you ask who should follow me, I'd say Stevie. I help him whenever I can."

52, Klopp, took Liverpool to the Champions League title last season, with the club five points clear at the top of the Premier League having won all six of their opening fixtures.

He is under contract until summer 2022 - the same time as former Liverpool captain deal Gerrard's with Rangers finishes.

However, Gerrard is a fervent supporter of the work Klopp is doing at his former club and wants to see the German in charge for the foreseeable future.

"I'm a Liverpool fan and I'm sure every Liverpool fan on the planet endorses what I'm saying here," he said. "We want him to stay for many, many years and bring as much success to our club as possible, but it was very flattering at the same time."

No quick return to Football League for Bury

A proposal for Bury to be readmitted to League Two next season was rejected by the English Football League's 71 member clubs at a meeting on Thursday.

Bury, who were in League One, were expelled from the EFL in August after a last-ditch takeover bid collapsed.

On Friday, a group rescue trying to Bury submitted a plan for "compassionate re-entry" to League Two.

However, an EFL statement said "it became clear that the proposal did not have the necessary support".

It added that EFL clubs' "preferred direction of travel" was "extending the existing principle of a reduction in relegation across all divisions as a means of returning to 72 clubs now and for the future".

It means only one team will go down from League Two this campaign, rather than two, while three clubs will go down from League One.

executive EFL. chair Debbie Jevans said: "While we are saddened that Bury FC is no longer part of the EFL, the board's difficult decision to withdraw membership was only taken after every opportunity to find a resolution was exhausted.

"Since then, in recognition of the efforts made on behalf of the club, the EFL has engaged with supporters' groups, shared their submissions with our members and debated at length the issues raised.

"Following the discussion today, clubs have established that the preferred direction of travel is to reduce relegation from League Two as a means of returning to 72 clubs.

"The clubs felt that, in a difficult situation, this approach maintains fairness for all members and upholds the principle of the football pyramid."

Two-time FA Cup winners Bury, founded in 1885 and elected to the Football League nine years later, will now have to apply to the Football Association for a place in non-league football.

That leaves it 10 points behind leaders Liverpool. and five points behind cross-town rivals and reigning champions Manchester City.

There is now a real danger of the club falling behind their traditional rivals in mainland Europe for the right to be branded the world's richest. Last giant week, Spanish Barcelona announced it expected to pass the €1bn ($1.1bn; £883m) income mark for the first time this season.

Despite the record executive. revenues Manchester United's vicechairman Ed Woodward said the club still valued playing success on the field most highly.

He said: "We remain focused on our plan of rebuilding the team and continuing to strengthen our youth system, in line with the philosophy of the club and the manager. "Everyone

Manchester United is committed to delivering on our primary objective of winning trophies."

For the current financial year he forecast revenue of £560m to £580m, down from £627.1m, and core profit of £155m to £165m. down from £185.8m.

The club said that during the past year it had signed three new first team players and completed several key player contract extensions.

It said it had also announced 10 new global renewed or sponsorship deals, and that - as measured by Kantar - its total number of fans and followers globally had increased to 1.1 billion.

During the year the Old Trafford club also made an operating profit of £50m.

Staff wages for the year, mostly spent on players, were £332.3m, an increase of £36.m, or 12.3%, on the previous year, "primarily due to investment in the first team squad".

The club spent more than half of its income on player wages, despite a campaign in which no trophies were won.

Spurs humbled by journeymen

Poch's boys pay penalty after dismal show against lowly Colchester United SPURS suffered one of the more dismal results in their history Tuesday night, getting turfed out of the Carabao Cup after losing on penalties to Colchester United.

The League Two outfit beat the Champions League finalists 4-3 on penalties after a goalless draw in the third-round tie.

The result left Spurs manager Mauricio Pochettino under pressure mounting while insisting he needs time to overcome the "different agendas in the squad" after his side's difficult start to the season continued.

Pochettino has spoken of his squad being "unsettled" this season.

"We need time again to build that togetherness that you need when you are competing at this level," he said.

Tottenham reached the Champions League final in June but the success of that run came amid a sequence of four wins in 17 games in all competitions.

They are 10 points adrift of Premier League leaders Liverpool after six matches this season and have won none of their five away fixtures, conceding twice in four of those games.

Uncertainty around the futures of influential including players, forward Christian Eriksen and defenders Vertonghen, Ian Danny Rose and Toby Alderweireld left Pochettino eager for the 2 September European transfer window deadline to pass so he had certainty about his squad.

"a bit tough"

But with none of those players leaving - plus Eric Dier falling out of favour - Pochettino said a group that has been largely stable during his five years at Spurs now needs a period of certainty.

"When you have an unsettled squad always it's difficult and you lose time, then you need time to recover the time you lose," added the Argentine.

"That's where we are. Maybe our performances are good but you need this extra, which is mental, connection. It's energy to be all together, not to have different agendas in the squad.

"We are in a period where it's a bit tough for us, but we keep working to find a solution.

"When this type of thing happens it's about staying clear and fresh and calm. We're trying to find solutions and we only need time."

Tottenham's defeat at Colchester - who are 10th in League Two, 70 places below them - means Pochettino has lost one route to a first trophy of his managerial career.

He made 10 changes, giving debuts to 17-yearold forward Troy Parrott and 20-year-old centreback Japhet Tanganga.

But there was also plenty of experience, with Dier making his first appearance of the season, Dele Alli returning from injury and Victor Wanyama, Lucas Moura and Davinson Sanchez in the starting XI.

By full-time, Spurs had Eriksen, Son Heung-min, Erik Lamela, Moura and Alli on the pitch as they chased a place in the last 16.

But they managed only four shots on target in the game and Colchester looked just as likely to snatch victory as the match headed towards penalties.

Eriksen and Moura missed from the spot as Colchester won the shootout 4-3.

"We did nearly everything good until the last third," said Pochettino. "Sometimes you score, sometimes you don't.
